UTILITY FIGHT IS STARTED AT AUSTIN Second Hospital Disaster Is Narrowly Averted Today

TRAPPERS REEMPLOYED

GRADICATION WORK WILL BE RESUMED

Law Validated by Legislature Recently

Frank Harrell, chairman of the industrial committee of the chamber of commerce, went to Eastland yesterday in company with representatives of other chambers of commerce in the county to urge upon the commissioners' court the re-appointment of the trappers. Those re-employed by the court were J. B. Matthews, of Cisco; Wyatt Williams and Will Funderburk. These will take up their work where they left off some time ago.

When the old law was declared invalid as the outcome of a suit filed in the commissioners' court Mr. Harrell went to Austin and took a prominent part in representing the situation and the need of a remedy to Governor Moody.

Judge Clyde L. Garrett said he did not know what would come with the case now on appeal, whether it would be carried on to the higher courts or dropped.

Five Texas People Dead in Accidents

Five persons are dead as the result of drownings, shootings, automobile accidents and storms in Texas during the past 48 hours.

Two soldiers, Private Heeley and Corporal Boston, of Fort Ringgold were drowned in the Rio Grande river a few hours of each other. The body of Boston was recovered but the water searchers had been unsuccessful Monday in their efforts to locate the body of Heeley.

A. P. Bradford, insurance agent and former Methodist minister, was killed in an automobile collision at San Antonio. The same accident resulted in injuries to two others, Bradford formerly lived in Houston.

Gunshot wounds, apparently self-inflicted, caused the death of R. E. Gooch, 63, at Ennis.

At Richland Springs, San Saba county, Jesse Ransom Munsell, 20, was killed when he came in contact with a high tension wire during an electrical storm.

Lindy and Bride Are Continuing Hide and Seek Honeymoon Game

WOODS HOLE, Mass., June 4.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today was apparently continuing his game of hide-and-seek in an effort to enjoy seclusion during his honeymoon with the former Miss Anne Morrow.

The double cabin cruiser, presumably the one which Colonel Lindbergh purchased shortly before his marriage in Englewood, N. J., a week ago yesterday, was seen lying at anchor about a half mile down the harbor by coast guards today.

GEO. W. DAKAN DIES MONDAY NEAR ANGELO

EASTLAND, June 4.—George W. Dakan, pioneer Eastland county attorney, died Monday night at Christoval, near San Angelo, according to a message received in Eastland early this morning from his son, C. B. Dakan. Acute indigestion was given as the cause of death.

Judge Dakan, who was 78 years of age, his wife and son, C. B. (Clint) Dakan, left Eastland last Tuesday to go to Christoval where they have a summer home and where for the past several years they have spent their summers. At that time Judge Dakan was apparently in the best of health for a man of his age.

According to information telephoned relatives in Eastland the body is being shipped to Eastland by rail and is expected to arrive here early Wednesday morning. Funeral arrangements cannot be announced at this time, it is stated.

Mrs. Dakan left Christoval this morning by automobile and is expected to reach Eastland late this afternoon or early Wednesday morning.

George Dakan came to Eastland county many years ago, settling first near Desdemona. He later moved to Eastland and engaged in the practice of law, at one time being a partner with Judge D. K. Scott, of Cisco. He served the county as a county judge and for many years was active in county and state Democratic party affairs.

After living in Eastland for a number of years Judge Dakan moved to Stamford and made that city his home for ten or more years, moving back to Eastland with the advent of the oil boom in this section.

He is survived by his widow, who is his second wife, and three sons, H. C. Dakan of San Antonio, C. B. Dakan of Eastland and Barry Dakan of Dallas.

DAUGHTER OF FORMER CISCO MAN IS DEAD

Barnes, formerly of Cisco and now of Abilene, died at a Fort Worth hospital last Thursday and was buried Saturday at Strawn, Mr. and Mrs. Barnes were visiting a brother of Mrs. Barnes in Fort Worth when the child became suddenly ill. She was taken to the hospital and lived four days.

Mr. Barnes was for several years a dry goods merchant of Cisco and is well known to the people of this city. He had just purchased a business in Rotan, Texas, and was preparing to move his family to that place this week.

Two other children of Mr. and Mrs. Barnes survive. They are Margaret, age 9, and Gordon, age 7.

Most important of their decisions were those in the O'Fallon valuation cases, extending to railroads the benefits of reproduction value; the Sinclair and the Thomas W. Cunningham cases affirming and extending the senate's inquisitorial power; the Okanagan pocket veto case upholding "pocket vetoes" by the president; and the Sinclair jury-shadowing case, in which espionage of jurors by private detectives, even without actual contact, was held to be contempt of court.

SHRINERS OPEN CONVENTION IN LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 4.—The 55th annual convention of the imperial council A. A. O. N. M. S. opened officially here today with some 90,000 visiting members participating in the program.

While the formal beginning took place at 10:30 in the coliseum, the exercises were mere gestures, since the Shriners actually have had possession of the city since Saturday.

The festivities of the red fezzed men will conclude Thursday after three days of impressive and colorful ceremony.

Today's program started with the parade of the 90,000 nobles to the coliseum where most of the events of the convention will be held.

Rank after rank of delegates, clad in uniforms of red, yellow and green, passed through the streets of the city and melted into the huge arena.

Thousands of spectators jammed the sidewalks and cheered the nobles, all traffic was diverted from the line of march but the action failed to halt paralyzing tie-ups.

The circus maxims, an event of 61 acts, played at the coliseum during the afternoon and will be repeated tonight.

While thousands of Shriners made merry in downtown streets, roped off for dancing last night, others met in executive sessions and disposed of part of the business of the convention.

George E. Kevple, Arabia Temple, Houston, Texas, was named president of the recorders. Lou E. Windsor, Grand Rapids, Mich., was re-elected royal director of the Royal Order of Jesters.

ROUND ONE IS FOUGHT WITH NO DECISION

Moody Alarmed at the Appropriation Bills Pending.

AUSTIN, June 4.—Round one of the fight over public utility legislation was fought in the Texas senate this morning without a decision.

Whether the proposed public utility bill shall go to the state affairs committee or the committee on civil jurisprudence was left in the air when the senate recessed at 2 o'clock.

The state affairs committee acted unfavorably to the public utility bill at the past two sessions. Senator Walter Woodward of Coleman, author of the utility bill, is chairman of the civil jurisprudence committee.

Decision rests with President Pro Tem Parrish. He presided today in the absence of Lieut. Gov. Barry Miller. His decision will not be known until late today. When the senate re-convenes it is to go into joint session with the house to hear an address from Governor Moody.

A call for economy will be made by Governor Moody in his address to the legislature. He is alarmed at the $57,000,000 appropriation bills of the senate and the $46,000,000 appropriations of the house, either of which will require a full 35 cent tax rate. That is the highest possible under the constitution.

The senate skirmish over the public utility bill was marked by bitter charges. Senator Walter Woodward charged that the press of the state is giving little publicity to public utility regulation. He charged that attorneys for the two leading utilities (unnamed) had conferred in Austin on which committee the utility bill should go to.

He charged also that representatives of utilities had been on the floor and in the senate during the session endeavoring to "thwart the will of the people."

"You want to put this bill in a committee where you can choke it to death," said Woodward to those favoring the state affairs committee. "I intend to do all in my power to keep you from doing it."

Senator Ed Westbrook on the other hand charged that there were "rumors" that it had been planned to take advantage of the absence of the lieutenant governor to have the utility bill introduced and referred to another committee than the state affairs committee. He refused to give source of the rumor.

Penitentiary legislation also had a skirmish in the senate. Senator McFarlane proposed appointment of a legislative committee of 15 to visit the prisons and ascertain the extent of flood conditions. Senator Edgar Witt opposed this as a reflection on the prison board.

Senator Joe Moore declared that an illustrated report on flood conditions is being prepared and charged that the committee movement was unnecessary. No action was taken.

The house spent the morning discussing the proposed rural school aid bill. It proposes to appropriate $2,500,000 a year for two years for the purpose.

The total number of bills introduced in both branches was raised to 83 today.

Among the new ones offered today are the utility bill, a bill to put teeth in the present law regulating automobile lights, a bill to tax malt syrup, an income tax bill, and a group of bills to guard against theft of automobiles and parts.

The state sanitary code bill and the blue sky bill which failed to pass at the first called session were again introduced.

A bill in course of preparation will provide a new system for collection of franchise taxes from foreign corporations. The present law is said to be under attack from large companies on the ground that it is discriminatory.

OIL MEN FIND RESEARCH AIDS CONSERVATION

WASHINGTON, June 4. — Legal barriers temporarily may have halted the progress of the American petroleum industry towards nationwide cooperation for conservation of petroleum resources, but research work within the industry, having as one result the conclusion that proper utilization of natural gas is of paramount importance in effective production of oil, gives indications of doing much for the cause.

Men representing virtually the entire oil producing area of the United States have contributed of their experience and knowledge to a report on the study of the function of natural gas in the production of oil, regarded as one of the most valuable contributions ever made to petroleum engineering. It has been prepared by H. C. Miller, senior petroleum engineer of the bureau of mines, after two years of work with and by the American Petroleum Institute's gas conservation committee and division of development, and production engineering.

Exhaustion of petroleum reserves is disclosed to be due more to the waste of the gas which provides the principal energy for movement of the oil to the surface than to the loss of the oil supply. It is estimated that 20,000,000 additional barrels of oil would have been produced from Burbank field, Oklahoma in 1927 if gas conservation measures had been adopted at that time. $30,000,000 additional revenue would have been realized from oil that remained undrilled.

Production is held to be a part of a measure of keeping gas as possible in the oil where it reduces the resistance to flow. The report encourages the use of the lightest oil, natural flow, gas energy through by-passes to augment the forces sustained through too viscous wells. Wide spaces reduce slower drainage of oil, reduce loss of energy per barrel produced and greater recovery. Simultaneous development of the best possible immediate initial injection to maintain pressure as nearly as possible; the development is a utilization of gas from oil well has been found adversely to affect the ultimate recovery of oil from the reservoir as a whole, hence gas conservation becomes a cooperative problem. Shutting down wells where the gas produced per barrel of oil is above the average is recommended, it having been found possible to recover such shut-in production later through pressure control and at the same time to assure greater daily output and longer life for wells allowed to flow from the first.

"Pressure control of wells is a major factor in the production of oil," Mr. Miller says. "A better realization of what can be accomplished to conserve gas and increase the recovery of oil from the sands has come to the petroleum industry within recent years. Savings of oil and gas and increased earnings which already have been effected in fields where pressure control has been applied are indications of the results which may be accomplished by the petroleum industry operator who will study his problem in the light of pressure control."

MISSING MAN IS SOUGHT AT SWEETWATER

SWEETWATER, June 4.—J. J. Turner, of Bowie, Texas, arrived here yesterday in search of J. E. (Jim) Dolan, about 45, of Fort Worth, who has been missing for a week after he was supposed to come here to board an airplane for West Virginia to attend the funeral of his wife's father.

Dolan, a member of Dolan Bros. drilling contractors, of Fort Worth, has been in the Odessa oil field drilling for the Tidal Oil company. He has been traced to Big Spring, where he was said to have stated he was coming to Sweetwater to take an eastbound airplane for Fort Worth.

New ETCC Assistant Manager Is Named

LONOVIEV, June 4.—Roger Davis, former agricultural agent of Marion county and secretary of the Jefferson chamber of commerce, is the new assistant manager and agricultural director of the East Texas chamber of commerce. Davis succeeded J. E. Stanford whose resignation took effect June 1. Stanford resigned to become Texas editor of Southern agricultural journal, published in Nashville, Tenn. His headquarters are in Bryan.

SHRINERS READY FOR LOS ANGELES CONCLAVE

The vast Los Angeles coliseum, shown above, will be the scene of the principal events, including a huge night electrical pageant in which thousands of Shriners marching behind 40 bands will carry illuminated novelties, when 100,000 delegates and members of their families gather at Los Angeles for the 55th annual Shrine conclave June 4. At the left is Le Roy Edwards, potentate of Al Malakiah temple of Los Angeles, who is director-general of the national convention, while at the right is Leo V. Youngworth, Los Angeles, who will be elevated to the post of imperial potentate.

OIL NEWS OF SOUTHWEST

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., June 4.—Oklahoma City's second producer was blowing into the air early Monday while operators were connecting a flow tank with a boiler, set farther back from the well. The producer, Sinclair-Amesora No. 1-Kinter in the southeast section of the city field blew in late Sunday with 6,000,000 cubic feet of gas and a spray of high gravity oil.

Bottomed in lime casing was set at 6,175 feet. When cement and plugs were drilled, the bit struck the lime and gas and oil started blowing out of the hole. Oil men said that they believed No. 1-Kinter would blow itself into an oil well.

Drilling started Feb. 2. It was on top of the lime May 25 at 6,125 feet.

Four gassers have been completed in the Oklahoma City field in addition to the discovery. The Indian Royalty company, Okmulgee, is the largest royalty company with headquarters in Oklahoma, according to gross production tax reports for the first quarter of 1929. The Indian company reported $192,090.92. For the six months' period ending April 1, the company had a total income of royalties of $467,359.97 from Oklahoma oil lands.

The company was organized in 1927. The company at the present time is interested in the new flash pools at Asher, Ok., and in Potawatomi county. Royalty income for the second quarter of this year should exceed by far those of the first, company officials said.

Branding the opinion of eastern newspapers as to oil production in the southwest as "unintelligent" and "erroneous," W. E. Ramsey, an Oklahoma independent oil operator, has sent the following wire to the Washington Post for the clarification of all newspapers who have said that there was an orgy of production in the west and that great waste of crude oil is occurring.

The wire follows: "I have today read in the press the comment of your paper stating that now the only obstacle in the way of conserving the nation's oil resources is the development fever which afflicts many, if not all, the western states. In reply I will say that you are undoubtedly laboring under a most unintelligent opinion of the situation as it really exists in western states. "There is absolutely no waste of oil in the western states. The states of Oklahoma and Texas have a commission that prevents that waste of oil and gas and it is being strictly followed. "These tactics are being used as a camouflage by the American Petroleum Institute to get certain laws enacted for the benefit of a few.

"The Mid-Continent field is now drawing on storage at the rate of about 90,000 barrels a day. What would you have the oil industry do—hold our own supplies in the ground while a few of the big companies import, as they are importing today from 200,000 to 300,000 barrels of oil today from South America? "This country is being flooded with propaganda by the American Petroleum Institute which is misleading. I have been an independent producer in Oklahoma for the past 15 years and am quite familiar with the situation."

HOUSTON, June 4.—The Yount-Lee Oil company's wildcat No. 6-Varielle, at Jennings, La., has been completed a 5,000 barrels producer from a depth of 7,434 feet, making it the deepest producing well ever completed in the coastal area. The well is some 3,840 feet southeast of the old Jennings production and its completion is a further indication that deep oil eventually will be found around all the old Gulf Coast salt domes.

The record for the deepest producer formerly was held by the Pure Oil company's No. 3-Sweet Lake at Sweet Lake, La., completed two years ago at 5,297 feet, which came in flowing and produced for nearly a year when it was placed on the pump.

Four gassers have been completed in Kansas during the past week. Eight were oil wells and seven dry holes. There were eight new locations, three in Sedgwick and three in Greenwood counties. The new wells had a total initial production of 1,450 barrels.

MOTHER OF 5 A STUDENT. COLEMAN, Wis., June 4.—Mrs. Mary Branson, mother of five children, will be one of the 29 students graduated from Coleman high school, this spring.

THRIFT AIM OF OAKLAND MOTOR PLANT

A thrift campaign, laid out on the same plan as its large scale manufacturing operations, is now in progress at the Oakland Motor Car company, at Pontiac, Mich.

Since the modern plant of the company is now being operated in a highly efficient manner, the campaign is designed primarily to discover new ways of processes to eliminate waste of time or materials in the building of Oakland and Pontiac sixes.

To enlist the aid of the workman in the campaign, the company management has offered, for suggestions which outline practical means for cutting the costs of production, prizes totaling more than $1,200.

Daily bulletins issued to the plant workers, exhibit boards mounted in the plant displaying items which may inspire wise plans and other measures have been arranged to keep the workers' interest in the campaign.

While special inducements have been offered to plant foremen and superintendents who offer plans to cut waste for some time past, the present campaign is directed to the workers because their proximity to the job places them in particularly favorable position for seeing how the job might be done more simply or economically.

Several other large manufacturers who have conducted similar campaigns have effected annual savings of thousands of dollars—savings brought about by cutting waste which was not known to exist until a special campaign brought it to the attention of the management. The Oakland campaign fits in with the industrial waste elimination plan sponsored annually by the government, which had its inception during President Hoover's active connection with the department of commerce.

Firestone Enters Carbon Black Field

BORGER, June 4.—The advent of Harvey S. Firestone, head of the Firestone Tire and Rubber company of Akron, into Borger insures the advance of the carbon black industry in the Panhandle. Firestone will manufacture carbon black from his own gas. He has secured option on more than 30 gas wells and also a large acreage in Moore county, so far undeveloped. From this Moore county acreage he expects to secure an additional supply.

Cost of the operation, including both the gas and the carbon black, will be in excess of $6,000,000.

Negotiations have been made by a large New York banking syndicate, with whom Firestone is closely associated, for the preliminary work. The syndicate's first move was to secure option on the wells and the Moore county acreage.

Contract has also been made with the Barium Oil company for the purchase of a 160 acre tract of land west of Borger on which a carbon black plant and a gasoline extraction plant will be erected. The Firestone company will extract gasoline from the gas and use the residue for carbon black.

for Summer Cool running at all speeds

No engine can knock and stay cool. Because Conoco Ethyl Gasoline eliminates knocks, it insures a cooler running engine. That's why Conoco Ethyl is the ideal summer motor fuel.

Of course, Conoco Ethyl is the essential fuel for high compression motors. Ethyl Fluid made these motors commercially possible. But Conoco Ethyl offers real economies for motors of ordinary compression, too. It greatly reduces wear and tear, produces more power, particularly in carbon coated motors, lessens gear shifting and makes hill climbing a sport instead of a burden.

Conoco Ethyl is not a carbon remover. But it does make carbon deposits a source of power in that these deposits decrease the combustion area in the cylinders, thereby automatically increasing the compression ratio. Conoco Ethyl functions perfectly under this increased pressure.

And remember Conoco Ethyl is a proper admixture of Conoco, the extra miles motor fuel, and Ethyl Fluid, developed by General Motors. All Ethyl Gasoline is not Conoco Ethyl. To be sure you are getting Conoco Ethyl fill only at those pumps which display the Conoco Ethyl sign.

BATTLEFIELDS STILL TAKING MANY VICTIMS

By RALPH HEINZEN
United Press Staff Correspondent.

PARIS, June 4. — The French battlefields, particularly the scarred "red zone," are still taking a heavy toll of lives ten years after the Armistice ended fighting. Statistics gathered by the Ministry of Liberated Regions for the United Press show that 2,545 persons have been injured or killed by shells left on the battlefields.

The cleaning up of the battlefields took a heavy toll among farmers, many of whom are blown to bits with their animals when a new point strikes a buried shell or an unexploded mine or grenade. The government estimates that 320 such deaths resulted, and injury to 600 more.

There were 525 deaths and 1,100 injuries in the task of cleaning up the battlefields before they were turned over to their rightful owners for farming again. This included the victims of the delicate operation of taking the shells apart to recover the steel they contain.

Many children were among the victims, also tourists, who disregarded the signs posted all over the battlefields warning trespassers against pulling wires or picking up grenades or shells.

Helmets Wired

The cleaning up process was especially dangerous, for there was no chart showing the location of many mines and once the troops were withdrawn from the front-line no one was left to point out the points where death lay buried under the surface.

The Germans, in withdrawing, fixed up many hasty mines under bridges, in the middle of roads, in houses and places where the Allied troops could be expected to seek shelter. Often a mine would be connected by unseen wire with an attractive helmet. The man who picked up the helmet as a souvenir would be blown to pieces. Doors were wired so that a turn of the knob would set off dynamite.

It took several years for thousands of men to walk over the battlefields picking up unexploded shells and weapons. Seven million acres of land were ruined by the war, torn up by shells, littered with barbed wire and concrete construction and filled with unexploded engines.

Three hundred and thirty-three million cubic meters of trenches had to be filled, and 14,000 miles of barbed wire had to be unstrung and rolled up. The reconstruction effort has been remarkable and six and a half million acres have been reseeded.

Permanent Damage

There are certain regions where nothing can be done. The ground was so badly cut up by shells and trenches that the soil is worthless, even for tree culture. So these areas will be formed into "red zone parks" and kept as a permanent memorial to teach future generations the waste of war.

Except for these parks, the whole of the battlefields will be cleaned up this year. The work of the French government has been highly successful, and the battleground departments have regained the population they enjoyed in 1914.

Of the 17,616 public buildings destroyed by war, 14,000 have been rebuilt; all of the 7,000 schools have been reconstructed and a half million children have resumed class-work. The government has built 56,000 kilometers of roads and 5,200 kilometers of railroads.

In another year's time it will be hard to find traces of the war, except in the "red zone" and the healing of France's war wounds will be complete.

TO PAY RAILROADS.

WASHINGTON, June 4. — The house Friday passed a resolution appropriating $42,900,000 to be used to pay railroads for transportation of mails from 1924 to 1929.

Would Ban Rum

If the United States government "formally suggests" that foreign diplomats stop importing liquor, the suggestion would be "cheerfully accepted" and "promptly adhered to," that's what Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador, is said to have written to a Lynchburg, Va., man who had complained because Washington embassies are allowed intoxicants for their own use. This is the latest portrait of Sir Esme, dean of the Washington diplomatic corps.

BOY, 6, CONVICTED OF MURDER.

A sentence of 15 years in the reformatory was imposed on Carl Newton Moian, 6-year-old boy, of Paintsville, Ky., after a jury found him guilty of manslaughter. In a quarrel over some scrap iron, the boy killed Cecil Van Hoose, his 8-year-old playmate, by firing a shot gun at him. In the higher court the verdict was set aside.

Says Moody Should Run a Third Time

AUSTIN, June 4.—Governor Dan Moody should announce for a third term with a state road bond issue as his platform, W. T. Wheeler of Fort Worth is proposing here.

Wheeler is head of the Texas Highway association. He says that a statewide bond plan, such as that defeated at the regular session of the legislature this year is inevitable if Texas is to have adequate highways. If Governor Moody will run again and make a state bond issue for roads his chief plank he will win, despite the third-term bogie, Wheeler said.

YOUTH SEES MANY PERILS IN JAZZ AGE

PHILADELPHIA, June 4.—Clad in working clothing and with an overnight growth of beard on his face, Chester A. Arthur, Jr., grandson of the president of the United States and sailor on a freighter, arrived here recently in quest of adventure.

A post himself, Arthur went across the river to see the home of Walt Whitman.

Prohibition was vigorously denounced by the 28-year-old sailor who blamed it for many of the evils of the present "jazz age."

"Young people today, particularly high school boys and girls, do not drink as Walt Whitman did—for pleasure," said the former president's grandson. "They drink to lose their senses and revel in drunkenness. The automobile, too, is ruining this country and blasting the lives of our young people. The cars enable young people to drive far from their homes and their parents' surveillance. The outcome of these promiscuous drinking and petting parties is irremediably disastrous."

Although from a conservative Republican family, Arthur said he supported former Governor Alfred E. Smith in the presidential election and was jailed in Boston once for speaking on the Boston common in favor of the Sinn Fein movement in Ireland.

Young Arthur said he hoped to write a novel after completing his experiences aboard the freighter. He said a sailor's life had hardships as well as the romance of going to places and doing adventurous things.

Arthur's home is near Santa Barbara, California. His wife Charlotte Arthur, has had poems published frequently in national publications.

When the 107-year-old Indian chief, White Horse Eagle, took his white wife out for a stroll along a Berlin street recently they created a sensation. Despite his age, the chief is still hale and hearty as a man half his years. The chief and his wife, who are engaged in a tour of Europe, are shown above in a Berlin street.

Didn't Want to Move Away from His Wines.

SANTA ROSA, Cal., June 4.—Luigi Renari, leasing a mountain ranch, found the place sold from under his feet, but he didn't want to move until he could legally dispose of the wine he had made on the premises.

Joseph Degliantoni, purchaser of the ranch, wanted the property at once so he could start making wine and fulfill contracts he held for sacramental wines and wine jellies and preserves.

Failing to agree, Degliantoni went to court, and Superior Judge Hilliar Comstock, recently elevated to the bench by gubernatorial appointment, gave the Solomon-like judgment that Renari leave the ranch, with no obligation for rental because his wine remains in the vats, and make immediate disposal of it.

King Spends His Birthday Abed

WINDSOR, Eng., June 4.—The usual ceremonies and celebrations attendant upon the birthdays of the kings of England were missing Monday as King George V. was forced to spend the 64th anniversary of his birth confined to his sick bed in Windsor castle.

The condition of the king seemed satisfactory and many persons in court circles were so optimistic that they expressed the hope the king soon would be able to leave his bed, although he probably would be confined to his room for some time yet.

Great crowds, including many American tourists, visited Windsor yesterday.

14-Year-Old Boy Is School Hero

DALLAS.—Batting a mad dog barehanded and locking it up after a schoolroom of children had been thrown into a panic, Thomas Sington, became a hero of Rosemont public school here.

Thomas Sington, a sixth grade pupil, heard the screams of children in the second grade room and rushed in to find a dog frothing at the mouth, snapping at the panic-stricken children. One 9-year-old boy had been bitten on the leg after he took refuge on a desk.

Grabbing the rabid dog by the nape of the neck, Thomas carried the animal outside the building. Before the boy could get the doors closed, the animal lunged back into the building, where Thomas seized it again and carried it to the basement where he locked it in the furnace room. The dog's head was examined and found to be rabid. Thomas was not bitten.

DALLAS, June 4. — Robert D. Cameron, 19-year-old animal trainer employed at W. A. "Snake" King's wild animal exhibit here, was attacked and seriously injured Monday by "Big Boy," giant red-haired African gorilla.

Cameron was grabbed by the gorilla as he walked past the animal's cage. Both hands and arms were torn and ripped by the giant anthropoid's teeth.
 Hastily snatching a heavy club, Cameron pounded the gorilla over the nose and forced him to release his grip. The gorilla weighs 330 pounds and is 5 feet, 6 inches tall. It is said to be the only gorilla to be kept in captivity for an extended length of time.

 "Sargon Soft Mass Pills stimulated my liver, regulated my bowels without griping, and I don't believe any other medicine on earth could have done as much for me in such a short time."

ANDORRAN YEARLY TRIBUTE FAILS TO PAY FOR LUNCH

PERPIGNAN, France, June 4.—The tiny republic of Andorra has paid her annual tribute in money to France in recognition of France's suzerainty. The Spanish share with the French a kind of joint guardianship over the tiny country which nestles high in the Pyrenees.

The money, about 1,500 francs, was brought to the Prefect of the Pyrenees-Orientales, M. Bodenan, by three Andoran delegates. They handed over the tribute and then formally swore an oath of fidelity to France. A lunch which cost more than the tribute was then given to the delegates and other guests.

LARGE AIR FIELD FOR SAN ANTONIO

NEW YORK, June 4. —Texas is to have the largest commercial aviation field in the south and the biggest civilian flying school in the world. It became known when Graham B. Grosvenor, president of the Aviation corporation, announced recently the purchase of a 406 1-2 field in that state.

The field, which is located at San Antonio, will be the airport for the various subsidiaries of the Southern Air Transport, subsidiary of the $200,000,000 aviation corporation making the purchase, including the T. A. T. Flying Service, operating daily passenger service in Texas.

It will also be the base for the flying schools of the aviation corporation, operating schools all over the country, during the winter and for all advanced training the year round.

The field will be named Grosvenor Field, A. P. Barrett, president of the Southern Air Transport, stated in an interview about the purchase from the offices of that company at Fort Worth, in honor of the well-known pioneer and executive in aviation development, Graham B. Grosvenor.

The tract lies southeast of Kelly field and northwest of Winburn Field, the San Antonio municipal field. The Grosvenor Field lies almost midway between these other airports.

Immediate development of the field is assured. Hangars, possibly of the Spanish type of architecture, school dormitories and class

"Will" Fortune in Rapid Drop

KOKOMO, Ind., June 4. — A fortune once believed to be $350,000 bequeathed to Mrs. George A. Pemberton of this city, has dwindled to $9,750. According to word received from Birmingham, Eng., where the will of her sister, Miss Florence Anderson, was filed for probate.

The dwindling was due to two errors in a cablegram received several weeks ago by Mrs. Pemberton, from the brother, C. J. Neilson Anderson. He wrote that he was sending by mail "thirty-five thousand dollars" but the cablegram read "three hundred and fifty thousand dollars." It now develops that Mrs. Pemberton will receive one-fourth of $35,000, sharing with the brother and two sisters in England.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
After working three years as private secretary to ATTORNEY JOHN CURTIS MORGAN, NAN CARROLL discovers she is in love with Morgan and believes that it is a matter of honor for her to resign. Her resignation is temporarily postponed, however, because she believes Morgan is going to need a faithful secretary during his defense of BERT CRAWFORD, a supposed friend, who is indicted for embezzlement of funds accumulated in a suspicious stock-selling scheme.

Nan distrusts Crawford and IRIS MORGAN, beautiful wife of the lawyer. Morgan has implicit faith in Crawford, but Nan is suspicious and by means of a listening-in device overhears a conversation between Crawford and his switch-board operator, ALICE BELTON, which takes place in Morgan's office. With a bribe, he "fixes" this witness so she will forget that he talked with the cashier of the bank approving the check young ROY BLAND cashed before his disappearance.

Nan quickly types off the notes she took of the conversation she overheard and, after a conference in which the unsuspecting Morgan is delighted with Alice Belton's coached testimony, she contacts Crawford with the typed account of his perfidy. Crawford, who had her price in mind, tells her that she will Morgan the truth unless he up Iris Morgan at once. At last agrees and Nan keeps secret. Morgan defends Crawford ably that every prediction for an acquittal. Iris Morgan to the courtroom every day in beginning to wonder if she was wrong in suspecting Crawford of the embezzlement when Fate places in her hands absolute proof of his guilt.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Even Nan was shaken in her intuitive belief that Crawford was guilty. A man might be a scoundrel and a wife-stealer and yet draw the line at embezzling a quarter of a million dollars from the company he had organized. And then, at the 11th hour, Fate, using so strange and ironic an instrument that even that hardened old hardihood must have chuckled, put conclusive proof of Crawford's guilt into the hands of the secretary of the man who was defending him, the man who had staked his professional honor on the innocence of his "friend."

CHAPTER XII

It was Saturday morning the last day of the Crawford trial. Nan Carroll was at her desk before nine, although she had worked with Morgan until nearly 12 the night before, helping him to prepare his speech to the jury. Now, at half-past nine, the last of the notes which he would require in making his summation and his plea for Crawford's acquittal were ready for him.

His tall, thin shadow loomed against the glass panel of the door, and as always at his approach Nan's heart leaped with painful joy. She straightened her tired shoulders, put on the cheerful, friendly grin that he liked. "Good morning, Mr. Morgan!"

Morgan grinned back at her, his eyes ringed with the circles of fatigue but sparkling with anticipated triumph. "I still live in hope of your getting your tongue twisted on that and saying: 'Good morning, Mr. Morgan.' Well, Nan, it's nearly over. Brainard knows he's licked; I never heard him make such a wishy-washy speech before a jury as he made yesterday. But I'm not going to relax on my speech. Everything ready?"

"Everything," Nan smiled as she handed him the notes she had typed. "Good luck. The jury's going to have a treat. I'm glad the poor things will have a chance to get away by Christmas, though. You don't think they'll take long to reach a verdict, do you?"

"I doubt if the jury will be out an hour," Morgan assured her. "Why don't you come along to the courthouse with me? Iris is going to be there. This is Saturday before Christmas, you know. No use working today."

"I've got one or two things to do first," she told him, "but I'll be awfully glad to come as soon as I've finished. I'll probably be there before you've opened."

It was ten o'clock—just time for court to convene—when Nan closed her desk. The courthouse was only a few blocks away; she wouldn't miss much of his speech—

"Merry Christmas, Nan! Look at the little Santa Claus that has come to see you! Hurry, lover! Mother hasn't a minute to waste!" And Iris Morgan, her lovely face brilliant with wintry color, impatiently ushered her little son into the office.

"Oh!" Nan wheeled from the hat tree. "I thought you were at the courthouse, Mrs. Morgan. I was just going over myself. . . . Hello, Curt! Merry Christmas!" she added to the child, her voice tender in spite of herself.

"I'm on my way to the courthouse now," Iris spoke hurriedly. Then, cajolingly, "And I've the most tremendous favor to ask of you, Nan. Curt's new nurse didn't show up today of all days; Estelle is taking the day off to do her Christmas shopping and the cook positively refused to keep the baby for me. Her insolence is absolutely amazing. Nan, but what can one do? So I told him his sweet Nana would take care of him while Mother goes to hear WILL, won't you, Nan? Curt Daddy spelling the jury. You comes bearing treasure, Nan! Merry Christmas and love from the Morgans! Give Nana the package, lover, and then give Mother a big kiss before she leaves."

Iris came for him just as soon as court's adjourned, Nan."

Nan was too angry at first to speak, and Iris took her silence for consent, or pretended to do so. Leaving behind her the mingled odors of delicate perfume and rich furs, Iris was gone. . . .

"Wanna typewrite, Nana," a petulant little whine pierced Nan's turbulent rebellion. She had flung herself into her desk chair and had buried her head on her arms.

"No!" Nan gasped, without raising herself into her desk chair and waiting on you all morning!"

The child's voice was lifted in a sudden, ear-piercing howl, but Nan resolutely paid no attention to him. She could not remain inactive however. There was that filing which was to have gone over until after Christmas; two or three unimportant letters that might as well be answered now as later; that supreme court opinion to be looked up—

Now and then, as she worked, her eyes fell upon the package which Curt had brought her. Let it be there, silly thing!

"Nana, I wanna scissors and paste!" The little boy, a trifle subdued by her angry ignoring of his presence, began to follow her about the office, his voice plaintive and coaxing by turns. "Nana, I'm hungry! I wanna cup of hot chocolate, Nana! . . . Nana, I wanna go see Sandy Claus, Nana . . ."

Nan shook him off resolutely. But when at last he gave up and sat huddled forlornly in one of the high chairs, tears slipping down cheeks that were always frighteningly pale, Nan was stricken with remorse and pity. After all, it was not the child's fault. He probably wished to be there as little as she wanted him, and no child of six could be expected to amuse himself in an office for two hours without help.

Smiling at him for the first time that morning, she hastened to get out the old battered typewriter which had been relegated to the status of plaything; set it on the edge of a table, added paper, scissors, paste pot and colored crayons. Then, because his tearful smile touched her heart, she drew a big, nit very clever picture of Santa Claus stepping into a chimney with his pack on his back.

"Now you draw one just like it for Nan," she told him. "I've got to work, honey."

He was so quiet, so happily busy for the next hour that Nan, with the cockiness of a girl who has never had a child to rear, congratulated herself: "You just have to be firm with them. He's good as gold since I disciplined him."

It was nearly noon when his utter silence made her apprehensive. Turning in her revolving desk chair, she saw that the child had fallen asleep, his head flopped over the curved arm of the high chair. Smiling, she tightened to him, wondering how she could make him more comfortable without waking him. As she stood considering beside the table at which he had been drawing, cutting and pasting, her eyes swept over the litter he had made.

"He draws pretty well for such a little tad," she mused tenderly, as she picked up a sheet of paper he had covered with chimneys, apples and stars.

She was about to clear the mess from the table when her eyes rested on a thick sheet of letter paper, covered with bold black writing, upon which were superimposed some of Curtis' impressionistic drawings.

"The little devil!" she thought, snatching up the sheet. "He's got into my files when I wasn't looking. No! Where in the world did this come from?"

Her startled eyes swept from the salutation: "My darling Iris," to the single initial "B" with which the letter was concluded. Then, her breath drawn in sharply, she began to read:

"My darling Iris: Please don't torture yourself and me with your doubts of me at this time. I haven't written because it wasn't safe; it isn't safe now. I tried to explain, to convince you that our future happiness is at stake. I've been in a sweat of fear that Brainard would learn of your telephone calls and of your visit to my apartment the other night. I couldn't admit you, darling. It would have been madness. You threaten to tell Morgan everything if I don't prove that I love you before the trial is over. Good knows I love you, Iris. Haven't I proved it by putting my life and liberty in jeopardy for your sake? You've been so wonderful, so much more courageous than I, up till now. I never would have had the nerve to do what I did, if I had not had your brains and your courage back of me, if I had not known that it meant having you always, as soon as this farce of a trial is over. It's unworthy of our love for you to be jealous of Alice Belton, darling. Can't you understand that I had to use her, that she was a necessary pawn in the big game? I adore you, beloved. A little more patience and the world will be ours. —B."

The letter trembled in Nan's hand, and for a sick, dizzy moment she thought she was going to faint. Then the necessity for action steadied her. There was no doubt at all that she held in her hand what any court would accept as a confession of Bert Crawford's guilt. How little Curtis Morgan had come to have it did not matter; he'd probably taken it from his mother's handbag while thieving, like the conscientiousless magpie that he was, for small coins with which to satisfy some of his innumerable wants. But what did matter was: what was she to do with it? A confession, a confession of guilt from the man whom Morgan was even then pleading with a jury to acquit! What would Morgan himself do, if the damning letter had come into his hands?

"If I learned, even while the jury was out debating a case of mine, that my client was guilty, I'd turn my evidence over to the district attorney and have the jury recalled," Morgan had said to her once.

A SHORT WALK WOULD LEAVE HER EXHAUSTED

No Other Medicine or Treatment Did Eastland Woman Any Good Until She Tried Orgatone.

"My wife had fallen off in weight and strength and at the time she started on Orgatone was often so weak a short walk would completely exhaust her," said G. W. Daniel of Eastland, Texas, who works at the rock crusher in the south-east part of Eastland, Texas, recently.

"I fully agree with my wife now," Mr. Daniel continued, "that there's nothing as good as Orgatone for people in the condition she was. She has gained in weight and strength by taking two bottles and she can now take long walks or do her house work and never complain of feeling tired. She hasn't been like herself for several years and kept going down hill all the time. Her nerves became so shattered that she could never get a good night's rest and she had no appetite and after eating complained of terrible pains in the pit of her stomach and would bloat up so with gas that she couldn't get a good, long breath. As I said before, she couldn't sleep sound, got up in the morning feeling worse than when she lay down at night and complained of being tired out all the time.

"She was under treatment several times and took all kinds of medicines but nothing helped her a particle until she began taking Orgatone. I had read several testimonials for Orgatone from people I knew and I decided to get my wife to try it. Well, it has proved to be a wise decision. She began picking up in just a few days and I could tell it was helping her before she finished her first bottle. From then on she kept gaining in strength and improving right along. She has now taken two bottles and is absolutely relieved of her stomach trouble. She has a fine appetite and is never bothered with gas or any sign of indigestion. Her nerves have gotten back to normal, she sleeps good every night and is in better health generally than she has been in five or six years. She is so elated over what Orgatone has done for her that she is telling her friends to try it. Orgatone certainly brings relief and I am glad to endorse it."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy and is sold in Cisco exclusively by Dean Drug Store who are direct laboratory agents.—Adv.

The picture, the first to reach America, shows two of the engine gondolas of the Zepp at the French naval aviation hangar at Cuers-Pierrefeu, near Toulon, where the recent attempt ended. The motors already had been dismounted when this picture was taken.
