MYRICK FIRM IS CONTRIBUTING TO DAIRY PROGRESS

PUTS STRESS ON HIGH CLASS DAIRY ANIMALS

164 Head in Herd Owned by Progressive Cisco Firm

One of the most progressive dairy concerns in this section of the state, a concern that is taking a leading part in the movement for agricultural salvation of Eastland county is the firm of Buck Myrick and Sons, located about one and a half miles southwest of Cisco. This firm now owns 164 head of dairy animals, with 92 cows milking. Of these 25 cows are registered, 19 of them being two years old and over.

The firm has 80 cows in the Cisco Herd Post Cow Testing association. These outstanding males head the herd. One of these sires is Sultan's Prince of Ridgeway, five years old, who has five daughters in the herd at this time. All of these daughters have exceptionally good records, each proving a higher producer than her dam, and three of them have been on register of merit tests for the past four months with indications that they will make the test easily.

"Lass" is the best of the five. She produced 135 pounds of butterfat in four months as a 2-year-old. Sultan's Prince is the son of a gold medal bull.

In the herd are also four cows who are daughters of "Vesta Vickery's Grandson," a gold medal bull owned by the Waller farm of Fort Worth. These four cows are also among the foundation animals of the herd.

The highest producer of the cow is "Lightning," a Holstein cow which was shipped here in 1919 from Wisconsin. During her flush production she gives 80 pounds of milk per day. Last season this settled to 75 pounds per day for the first four months. She was milking 35 pounds per day when she was turned dry a short while ago.

Sylvester Myrick, son of Buck Myrick, who is in charge of the production end of the business, recognizes the great value of high class animals in a dairy herd and is bending every effort toward developing the herd to the highest possible plane.

The firm is contributing largely to dairy development in this section as a whole through placing bull calves from the best cows with local farmers who agree to keep tests upon the calves and upon the daughters of the bulls. By this means a further check upon the development of the herd may be kept.

Porter Myrick, another son of Buck Myrick, recently purchased a heifer from the Financial King line which had been bred for 16 years by Hugh Van Pelt, a nationally known dairying authority. This heifer's dam produced 55 pounds of butterfat on test during her first month as a 3-year-old. Porter Myrick has, in addition to the registered cattle owned by the firm, seven or eight registered animals of his own.

Woman Novelist Deplores Lack of Great Lovers in Modern Age

NEW YORK, June 27.—Gone are the great lovers of history, heroic he-men who made history. Gone the knights errant who flourished a sword or a plumed hat with equal skill, who wooed women with powerful arms and no less powerful imaginations.

Such is the lamentation of Miss Georges Lewys, novelist and psychologist, who has recently attracted nationwide attention on two counts. As a poet Miss Lewys has been sizably honored by France; her book of poems "Verdun and Ballads" will shortly be enshrined in a glass case in the entrance hall of the Verdun Memorial. As a novelist, she has launched a suit for $1,250,000 against the Theater Guild and Eugene O'Neill, foremost American playwright, that has caused considerable stir in literary circles throughout the country. She charges the playwright with the theft of the plot of "Strange Interlude" from her novel "The Temple of Pallas Athena," published in private edition in May, 1924.

In her complaint, filed in the United States district court here in New York, Miss Lewys cites 34 points of alleged similarity in the O'Neill play and her books. "Strange Interlude" has just closed in New York after running for more than a year. It is still playing in other parts of the country under the management of the Theater Guild.

On the subject of men, Miss Lewys is said to be something of an authority. Paraphrasing Leonard Merrick's "The Man Who Understood Women," the poet-psychologist might well be termed "the woman who understands men."

Men Have Lost Cast Her book, "The Temple of Pallas Athena," is a study of eugenic and woman's right to bring perfect children into the world. As such, the perfect man, the potential father of the perfect child, is sketched with strong, swift strokes. "The perfect man" Miss Lewys' mobile face became thoughtful. She is a young woman of 30, with a personality as vivid as the copper curls of her abundant bob. Red hair... eyes, with a repertoire of kaleidoscopic expressions—a mind that pokes into dusty corners, as well as delving into the wide open spaces of thought... and the ability to articulate her thoughts processes in words that carry a punch. There you have Miss Lewys as she impressed the writer in the course of an afternoon's interview. "You know, most men consider themselves pretty perfect." Miss Lewys said. "As a matter of fact the modern man instead of approaching perfection is leaving it farther and farther behind. Men have lost caste since the days of chivalry, when they were great lovers and virtuous he-men in other phases of their robust lives. "Men, today, pay more attention to money than they do to love. And a man was put on earth primarily to live a fully rounded-out love-life. As such, when modern man gets all through chasing wealth, he'll find he's missed the greatest thing in the world, the only thing worth living for—love. "No 'Great Lovers' "I know only too well that the average man will content himself with the pursuit of money is synonymous with his pursuit of women and love. But, women do not love men for their money. Some women will marry them for their money, but they won't love them and won't make them happy. If men sat-

Randolph College Gets Two Badgers

Mr. Erp, superintendent of the grounds at Randolph college, is in receipt of a pair of badgers presented to the college by James Martin of Big Spring. The badgers, Randolph athletic team, are of a very fine breed, and may be seen in their cage on the campus of Randolph.

To aid county and home demonstration agents to prepare better copy for their local newspapers the Randolph college has arranged a contest among the agents and their writings will be criticized and judged by a group of Texas editors.

Having Hot Time

If you're hot these summer days you have at least one thing in common with the vice president of the United States and one of the world's richest men. For he is no respecter of persons, and above you see Mr. Curtis wiping vice presidential perspiration from his brow at his office in the senate building, Washington. Pictured below, in much the same sort of gesture, is J. P. Morgan, famed financier, who found the sun's rays torrid during the Harvard University commencement exercises at Cambridge, Mass.

To What Extent Should Farmer Go Into Dairying Business Is Question of Much Importance

A question much discussed wherever dairying and milk plants are talked about is, "To what extent should a farmer go into the dairy business?" In other words, "How many cows should he keep?" This question cannot be readily answered. One must know the man and something about his farm and potentialities as to labor, pasture, amount of feed that may be grown and his disposition as to likes and dislikes. He must like animals and be industrious else he should never enter the dairy field.

There are some people who can enter a new field of activity and their capacity to learn is so great that they become successful at once, but the ordinary farmer should not go into the dairy business but should grow into it.

Some people contend that one should keep only the number of cows that the farmer and wife could milk and care for. Of course this matter will be controlled largely by the possibilities of labor and cost. The cost of production and marketing must always leave a margin of profit, based on a strict record kept by the farmer.

Pasture is essential and the capacity of the farm as to amount of feed that may be grown, are always to essential matters to consider in answering the question. These questions along with cost of available labor and the price paid by your market are the true points to consider in the answering of it. The big point in considering the dairying question in Eastland and adjoining counties is to make it fit into the general plan of diversification.

Waste Material. A cotton raiser can trade his seed for hulls and meal to an advantage, grain may be fed to the cows as may the roughage from most other crops that are grown. The truck farmer will find lots of his waste materials valuable as feed for his herd.

And here comes the most important point of all for the farmer and that is, He Must Consider His Cows as a Market for His Farm Produce. He feeds his hulls and meal and in return gets so much milk money in return. Likewise all feed that goes into his herd is sold to the cow and the amount of milk produced represents what he receives as pay. A strict record will show him what cows represent good markets and what feeds bring best prices when marketed through his cows. He will soon find that kind treatment and good attention sold to his herd as labor, will bring handsome returns. He will also find that choice feed-stuff will bring higher prices through more milk flow. This last is very important and if a proper record is kept, the results will soon lead the farmer to growing of better quality produce, knowing that he will get a much higher price when sold to his cows. Wherever the idea has been put over to the farmer that his herd is the individual buyer of his feed crop, it has always resulted in encouraging him to raise a better quality of feed products. If the farmer sells his feed to the market in town it may sometimes happen that he is not able to get any margin above the ordinary fixed schedule, but if he sells choice feed to his own herd he will always get a bonus in the form of a heavier yield of milk flow and butter fat. A wonderful point to think about, isn't it, Mr. Farmer?

Mr. Meadows came to Eastland county in 1899 from Van Buren, Arkansas. He left here in 1905 to spend several years in other parts of the state before going to California in 1913. In California he raises alfalfa and dairy cattle. He and his wife are now on an extensive tour. They are travelling by motor and will spend about a week in the county before going to Washington, D. C., and New York City via Oklahoma. They plan to leave New York on August 1 for their home.

Window Display Excites Curiosity

If all the merchants of Cisco devoted as much attention to their windows as does the commercial department of the West Texas Utilities company, it seems that inevitable from the increased attention they would command.

The little attention compeller that is drawing small crowds now is a series of three fans sitting on glass fruit jars with their cords screwed into a three way socket, which is suspended from the ceiling by a twine string.

These fans are running quietly without any apparent connection with a current. When a bystander asked a salesman why they ran without a current, he replied that the glass jars were filled with kilowatts which furnished the power. At any rate unusual attention is being directed to the fans and they are what the company wants to sell.

BIBLE WILL BE GIVEN AWAY THIS EVENING

A handsome Bible will be given to the largest family present this evening at the special family night service at the First Baptist church. Dr. O. L. Powers of Wichita Falls who is preaching in the meeting has announced as his subject for this service, "The Ideal Home."

The men's service last night was well attended. The visiting minister spoke on "The Second Mile," taking his text for the second time this week from the words of Christ in the sermon on the mount: "If a man compel thee to go with him one mile, go with him two." "The test of a horse is in the second mile," the speaker began; "and likewise it is the test of a man. Law rules in the first mile, but law rules in the second. And it is the rule of love that is to swing this world up close to the heart of God." The entire forceful message was an appeal to his hearers to live their lives in the second mile. Rev. F. E. Singleton was in the service last night with a number of the members of the First Methodist church. Rev. John P. Hardisty of Abilene, who is doing some work in Cisco for the Lueters Baptist encampment, and who was a guest for the night with Mr. and Mrs. Asa Skiles, was also present and took part in the service. (The meetings are held daily at 10 a. m. and 8:15 p. m., with prayer meetings in three groups at 7:45.

Killough Away on His Vacation

Oil men wishing assistance of the oil and gas department are instructed to get in touch with Mr. Burkett here for the next 15 days.

Cows and chickens in the Decatur trade territory returned to farmers nearly $100,000 in cash in March and April, according to figures compiled by the Decatur correspondent of the Dallas News. Exclusive of the produce hauled out by itinerant buyers and that consumed on the farm, cream brought nearly $16,000 live poultry over $10,000, eggs nearly $22,000, and milk over $38,000. Decatur is shipping sweet cream in carlots to Philadelphia.

VITAPHONE TRIUMPHS IN "NOAH'S ARK"

rainbow-span of 50 centuries—"Noah's Ark" includes in its cast, more than ten thousand characters, and was more than three years in the making. "Noah's Ark," the huge spectacular picture, about which many stories have appeared in recent months, has now been released by Warner Bros. and will be seen at the Palace theater starting Sunday for three days.

The story of "Noah's Ark" is by Darryl Francis Zanuck and was directed by Michael Curtiz. It was more than three years in production and is the finest and most ambitious picture that Warner Bros. have yet made. The settings occupied 38 acres, and thousands of people were employed in the flood scenes as well as in the events which occur in the sequences depicting modern times.

The cast of "Noah's Ark" includes Dolores Costello, as star, with George O'Brien and Noah Berry and Louise Fazenda. "Noah's Ark" is not a Biblical story. It is true there is a certain amount of symbolism in it, showing how the heart of man has changed little through the 50 centuries which intervened between the Flood and the Great War. The story begins just before the outbreak of the war and the victims of a train wreck, on reaching Paris find the conflict is on.

In making "Noah's Ark" Warner Bros. have used Vitaphone most effectively. There are sole passages of speech and symphonic accompaniment but the most tremendous role played by Vitaphone is in the effects during the Flood, and the scenes preceding it.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Because of her fine sense of humor, NAN CARROLL, secretary of JOHN CURTIS MORGAN, lawyer, decided to resign when she discovered she is in love with her employer. Morgan is deeply in love with his beautiful wife, LIS. Nan lingers when she hears Morgan is to defend a supposed friend, BERT CRAWFORD.

After Crawford's acquittal, he goes down and his fellows close in. She writes Morgan she will never return, but cleverly omits mention of Crawford, whom Morgan trusts. Nan saves the lawyer from despair by forcing him into work. She acts as long-distance housekeeper for him for six months, winning the love of his son, CURTIS, and bringing comfort to a man who ironically likes only of another.

Nan returns from taking her exams and Morgan tells her he is divorcing Lis. She stutters proposal. They are quietly married a few months later. They go by the office on the way to a train, where Morgan shows her his new present to her—a new office. A partnership with him in business. They are present from going on their honeymoon by the arrival of DAVID BLACKHULL, accused of the murder of his wealthy father. Nan tells that Morgan take the case, telephones the Morgan leaves for dinner, and goes out to unpack.

Dinner Curtis strikes miser heart by asking his father thinks Nan as beautiful as they are interrupted mercifully by a phone call from NINA BLACKHULL, and Morgan leaves on. Iris, about whom the house Nan heartick, goes to her room, locking the bathroom door to Morgan's room.

HOW TO ON WITH THE STORY

"Oh, yes, you are!" Nan assured him, pushing him away with lock severity, when every nerve in her body clamored to have him hold her closer and closer. "I suppose the junior partner of this firm has SOME say-so! Go along! I'm crazy to find out if our theory has any basis in fact."

"Oh! All right!" Morgan agreed abruptly, turning sharply away from her. For one precious moment Nan thought that he was art and angry with her for sending him away from her on their wedding night. But—she reminded herself—she had touched bottom. Giving hope far behind. Of her very decency, he had had to pretend.

But hope had not been so completely crushed as Nan had believed. After her husband had gone, Nan sat quite still for many minutes, staring at her hands, like little pink cups, holding something faintly precious. A kiss in the dim of each.

The house was very silent. Estelle had left at 8. By this time the OBriens—Big Pat, Little Pat and Maude—were cozily talking over the wedding in their pleasant parlor over the garage. Curtis was sound asleep in his own small room. What was that terrible thing he had said, in his appalling innocence?—"Won't my mother be surprised when she comes home? I'll have two mothers at home, and you'll have two wives, won't you, Father?"

Nan shivered; her hands clenched convulsively, squeezing the life out of those two precious kisses. She was being foolishly neurotic, she told herself in disgust. Iris Morgan had left of her own accord, because she did not love her husband and did love another man. It was ridiculous of her to let a child's innocent words upset her so. But—what if those words were prophetic?

With sudden determination Nan rose from the little sofa and ran into the library. She would read until her husband came home. Instinctively her hand reached for a law book, but although it contained summaries of some of the most famous and fascinating murder trials in the annals of American criminal jurisprudence, the girl's tormented mind could not take in a page of it. She returned it to its shelf, selected instead a thin volume of poetry, an incongruous interloper among heavy legal tomes. Nan opened the little volume where a scrap of paper, with a pencilled memorandum, served as a marker. The scribbled words betrayed the fact that John Curtis Morgan had been reading the poem after working on an appeal of the Nolan case—less than a week ago. Her hands trembled so that she could hardly hold the book, but her eyes swept up the first stanza:

"Your hands, my dear, adorable
Your lips of tenderness
—Oh, I've loved you faithfully and well,
Three years, or a bit less.
It wasn't a success.

Faintly, in pencil, in the margin opposite "three years," was written, in the hand she knew so well "nine years." Iris, always Iris! Nan's frantic eyes leaped down the page, raced to the next. In his heartbreak had he thought of her at all? The last lines of the poem answered her question:

"And I shall find some, perhaps,
And a better one than you,
With eyes as wise, but kinder,
And lips as soft, but true,
And I daresay she will do."

Nan dropped the book to the floor with a gesture of loathing AND I DARESAY SHE WILL DO! She forgot that Rupert Brooke, and not John Curtis Morgan, had written the poem. He had made it his own, with that penciled correction. After a long time, Nan stooped and picked up the little book of poems. It had sprawled open, so that the flyleaf was exposed. Her eyes could not help taking in the black ink words which flowed across its whiteness:

"For my adored wife, on our first anniversary—John Curtis Morgan."

Almost blinded by tears, Nan fled from the library, up the stairs to the "man-and-wife" guest room. With frantic, trembling haste she selected the plainest nightdress from her modest trousseau snatched up her second best negligee and mules, whirled into the bathroom—sobbing like an insoluble child.

"And I daresay she will do!" Nan quoted, fiercely, between shuddering sobs, as she turned the key in the bathroom door that led into John Curtis Morgan's room.

Pride was Nan Carroll Morgan's bedfellow on her wedding night.

CHAPTER XXXII
Nan rose the next morning at 7 o'clock, after less than two hours of sleep—sleep so tormented with fantastic dreams that she would have felt fresher if she had not closed her eyes. That locked bathroom door was on her conscience. What had he thought when he tried the door and found it locked?

How noisy the water was! It would wake him, and he needed all the sleep he could get. Nan knew he had not returned until after 11 the night before. Every nerve in her tense body had listened for his step on the stairs. Had he stayed so long with Nina Blackhull? Or had he walked the streets, thinking, regretting Iris screwing up his courage to go on with his marriage, repeating cynically, "AND I DARESAY SHE WILL DO!"

It was not the cold of the shower which made Nan gasp. A fiercely brisk rubdown with one of the enormous, thick bath-towels which Iris Morgan had bought in prodigal quantities, Iris again! But how could she forget Iris, when everything in the house reminded her of its former mistress? Nan asked herself wearily. Kneeling, she rinsed the tub thoroughly, then darted about the yellow-and-green-tiled room, making it primly tidy. He'd promised to keep it spick-and-span for her. Well, HE should have no cause for complaint, she promised herself breathlessly. When everything was done, Nan turned the key in the lock, then fled to her own room to dress for breakfast and the day at the office. She was brushing her shining brown hair when she heard the faint sound of a knock, then the soft turning of a knob. A minute later the noisy impact of streaming water against the shower curtain.

Would he come in, after he had bathed, shaved and dressed, to say good morning? "Well, I'm not going to hang around to see!" Nan nodded fiercely at her reflection in the mirror. "Circles under my eyes," she discovered, with melancholy interest, then pride made her try to conceal them with an extra coating of the powder she used. Pride, too, made her use an extra dash of rouge on her pale cheeks. She'd show him!

But when, half an hour later he entered the dining room, all her anger against him was submerged in pity. No powder could have blotted out the dark shadows under his deep-set black eyes. His taut, lean body was drooping with weariness or discouragement, but as soon as he caught sight of Nan very businesslike in her severely simple, dark brown silk crepe, he straightened his shoulders and smiled—a smile so sweet and kindly and frank that tears rushed into the girl's eyes.

Before he took his seat he bent over her, laying a hand softly on her shoulder as he touched her cheek with his lips.

"How—how did you get along with Nina Blackhull last night?" Nan asked, as she poured his first cup of coffee with hands that trembled betrayingly. "Oh—yes, Estelle, we're ready for the fruit. Then will you run upstairs and see if Curtis is up and dressed?"

John Curtis Morgan dug his spoon in his melon. "I believe my junior partner's hunch was correct," he smiled at her. "She's obviously a thoroughly selfish and vicious woman. A raving beauty of course. Just the sort to turn the head of a youngster like David Blackhull. Without saying so pointblank, I let her understand pretty clearly that I knew the subject of the quarrel between her husband and her stepson the night of the murder. Thinking I knew the truth from David himself, and not from your amazing intuition, she spilled what will undoubtedly be her story on the witness stand—how he fell in love with her and annoyed her with his amorous attentions, until she was driven to complain to his father—"

"Then," Nan interrupted, "she will be a prosecution witness, of course."

"Naturally," Morgan agreed. "She wants him convicted. I told you she is utterly selfish and vicious. The district attorney will be wild when he knows how much she told me."

Nan threw back her head and laughed joyously but she could not blame John Curtis Morgan for taking a more orthodox view of his son's ingenuity.

"I'm afraid you'll have to count it as only one bath, son. You don't want to cheat, I'm sure."

"The old Health Chart don't ask you WHEN you took the baths," Curtis sulked. "Anyway it was Estelle's fault. She didn't wake me early enough. Will you come wake me up every morning Nan? WILL you, Nan?"

Nan gave the promise and Curtis promptly forgot his resentment toward his father.

"I'll have lunch with YOU today, won't I, Nan, won't I? I get out of school at 12. You'll wait for me, won't you, Nan?"

"But I'll be at the office, Curtis," Nan protested, "regretfully."

"I'm awfully sorry—," Curtis said. "Aw, I thought you were going to be a regular mother," Curtis scowled. "My other mother didn't go to any old office—"

Nan's face flamed, but her husband spared her the necessity of answering. "It's this way, Curtis old man," he said, making his voice both jolly and coaxing. "Nan's such a wonder that she can be a lawyer during the day and a fine mother all the rest of the time, I simply wouldn't do without her, son. She's my junior partner now, you know. Some day, I hope you'll be a junior partner, too, and then the firm will be Morgan & Morgan—"

I took one bath and dressed, and then I undressed and took another bath—"

"Don't wanna be a lawyer. Wanna be an aviator," Curtis dashed his father's hopes sulkily. "Listen, Nan! Is Father still your boss, like he used to be before you married him?"

"No," Nan smiled. "We're partners, now, aren't we?"

"Then can you come home early —REAL early—if you want to?" The black eyes were very wistful.

"Of course I can, when I'm not too awfully busy at the office," Nan told him, a little huskily. It was sweet to be wanted so ardently.

INTERNATIONAL FALLS, Minn., June 27 — International Falls, where Henry Virkula once lived as a coal dealer, is a colorful, cosmopolitan town of 6,000 souls, surrounded by a wilderness as dense as an African jungle.

Across the fast waters of Rainy River is Fort Frances, Canada, and beer at 15 cents a glass.

The Falls is neither the wide open rowdy town many imagined nor is it all prim.

Sun bronzed lumberjacks, in thick woollen jumpers, who lounge around everywhere on the curb, find enough places where they may drop their winter staves nickel by nickel in petty games of chance.

But there are no evidences of drunkenness either here or in Fort Frances.

Police say there are no more arrests for drinking than in any other town the same size. They contend most of the liquor is consumed either at home where it is produced and not smuggled from across the water.

Sheriff Hugh Reidy, a genial, massive Irishman, declared that of all the liquor taken in raids in the past year not one pint has been found to have been distilled in Canada.

"It's all moonshine from our own country," Reidy said. "I can't decide whether the drinkers here think the American stuff is better or whether the Canadian booze is so scarce because the smugglers cannot or will not bring it in."

Two thousand persons cross the narrow toll bridge between the sister cities daily during most of the year. In the tourist season 3,000 go back and forth. Many are commuters while others have no business except the visiting of beer parlors at Fort Frances.

One may cross over to the old Hudson Bay trading post to find a dozen automobiles with license plates issued in New York, Iowa, Nebraska, or Utah before any of the several thirst-quenching establishments.

Innards tourists are drinking, no rum, but beer. The fellow who waits on the tables—there are no bars—say little hard liquor is sold and that rarely does a patron drink more than he comfortably can hold.

There is little to distinguish Fort Frances from International Falls. Both have huge lumber and paper mills where some 3,000 men are employed. Perhaps the most noticeable difference is the rather slow movement in the Fort compared to the bustling activity at the Falls.

At high noon the American town takes on the appearance of "wartime Paris." Dozens of uniformed men stroll up and down Third street, the chief promenade in their blue, olive drab uniforms, pistols strapped to their sides.

These men are from the four branches of federal service on the border—customs, customs patrol, labor immigration, and immigration border patrol.

The federal police apparently are on the best of terms with county and city officers. Mayor Oscar Sandstrom said the government men and local officers, with rare exceptions, always have worked together.

Mixed with these dashing uniformed officers are picturesque lumber jacks in calked boots with trousers cut off just below the knees; flappers bare of leg with sun tanned dresses; Indians from the Boisford reservation which make the tired, conservatively dressed business man seem dull and uninteresting.

Just at the moment all these contrasting figures think and talk on only one subject—Virkula.

The great majority from Henry, the hotel porter, to Frank Keyes, former mayor and the town's first citizen, are quick to condemn what they term "the system." Few feel better, however, toward 24-year-old customs patrolman Emmett J. White whose swed-off shot-gun brought death to Virkula when the racketeer failed to halt his car quickly enough for a liquor inspection.

White, drawn grim and restless by jail confinement, waits for his friends to have the district court fix bail, so he may return to his bride in Duluth or take up his duties again pending disposition of his case next October by the grand jury. He is charged with second degree murder. The federal government has indicated it will defend him.

No crowds of angry citizens cluster about the jail yards now. Many who take the path which runs beneath White's cell window look up at the young agent with genuine sympathy. He receives as many smiles as scowls.

"It was an accident," said White at the time of his arrest. And to those who stop for a moment's chat, he says so still.

"It was murder," Mrs. Virkula declares. "I have no more ill will toward White than any woman would have who had been widowed under the same circumstances, but I insist that he be prosecuted."

International Falls now fits "Let the law take its course. If White was to blame change it, so this will never happen again."

One Cent Will Do Wonders Sometimes

A cent will not buy much these days of high costs! A post card and its stamp for grownups or the luxuries of the slot machines for children. But to find what a cent will really do, turn to our transportation agencies on land and sea.

Railroad experts tell us that 1.09 cents is the average rate per ton mile charged for the transportation of merchandise on all the railroads of the United States. The copper cent moves a ton of coal nearly a mile on a railroad. What's the price of getting it across the sidewalk into the cellar?

But the cent can perform greater miracles in transportation than this.

From Culbertson, Nebraska, a ton of grain may be shipped 1,306 miles to Norfolk at an average rate of $10.94 per ton. At this rate a cent will pay for a mile and a fifth of the haul. At Norfolk the grain may be dumped into the hold of a ship bound for Hamburg, and be carried 6,191 miles across the ocean, at the rate of $4 per ton. And here the cent will carry a ton of wheat 15 1/2 miles!

Suppose the wheat is shipped from Hiawatha, Kansas, 972 miles from Norfolk, at a rate of $7.57 per ton. At this rate a cent will pay for a little more than one and one-fourth miles of the rail transport. At Norfolk it will perhaps be loaded on a ship bound for Genoa, 4,862 miles away. The rate to Genoa is $2.50 per ton, and in this case a cent will pay for the transport of a ton nearly 19 1/2 miles. If it is flour that is to be transported, it will cost $4.45 to get a ton across to Liverpool, and one cent will carry it 8 1/3 miles. High grade steel goes for the payment of $14.56 per ton, and the well-worked copper will carry it for a little more than 2 1/2 miles of the sea journey.

A boxed automobile of an average weight of 4,500 pounds shipped from Detroit will cost for the rail carriage of 600 miles to New York $18.15 per ton, at which rate the penny will pay for about .38 mile. At New York the automobile will be put aboard ship and carried 11,298 statute miles to Austria at $2 per ton, at which rate a penny's haul will be approximately 9 2/5 miles.

PIGEON HERO OF VERDUN IS PAID HONORS

By RICHARD D. McMILLAN
United Press Staff Correspondent.
VERDUN, June 27.—In this historic town in which for years successfully withstood the fiercest attacks of the German shock troops during the World War, the French government and people this week paid tribute to a pigeon which helped to defeat the enemy.

It was the last pigeon to be released from one of the forts of Verdun. It was sent at a moment of crisis with a message asking for help. The telephone lines were cut; it was the last of the carrier-pigeons.

Over the battlefields the bird flew to its destination to secure the assistance which was necessary for victory.

As the finishing touch to two days' celebration of the rehabilitation of the new town which has been built on the ruins of the shell-shattered hulk which was all that was left of Verdun in 1918, President Doumergue unveiled here a plaque commemorating this and other carrier-pigeons which had served in the Verdun region.

The plaque is attached to one of the walls of the fort of Vaux, from which the last pigeon was dispatched by the commander of the fortress, General Raynal.

The memorial recites the hero's deeds, for the bird had to fly more than one journey over shell-swept fields of France to be successful.

The message which the pigeon carried on its last journey on June 4, 1918, stated:

"We are holding our own, but are in the midst of an attack by gas and other poisonous fumes. There is urgent need for help. Try to get us in communication by visual signals with Souville, which no longer responds to our appeals. This is our last pigeon."

The memorial relates how the pigeon accomplished the mission and received a citation of honor from the commander-in-chief. The gallant pigeon was afterwards awarded the Legion of Honor and the Croix de Guerre, perhaps the only occasion in history a bird has been so honored.

In his unveiling speech, M. Doumergue extolled the inestimable value which the pigeon service had been to France in the prolonged battle of Verdun. He recalled that this last pigeon, sent into the air with its appeal for relief for the Vaux had made three ear-to-ear journeys under the fiercest fire, on one occasion carrying the message through a hail of bullets to the destination in the remarkable short time of 15 minutes.

SUICIDE MODES RUN IN CYCLES SAYS CORONER

By DICK BALDWIN
United Press Staff Correspondent.
SAN FRANCISCO, June 27.—Styles change in suicide, and San Francisco—"The City That Knows How"—keeps up-to-date.

Last year the poison cup was quite the thing in local circles if one wished to depart suddenly from the fog and winds that blow in from the Pacific.

This year the fatal draught has become quite passe, and it is now fashionable to leap from a great height.

Suicide modes run in cycles and San Francisco has always been quite modern, according to Dr. T. B. W. Leland, coroner, who has made a study of the problem.

Ninety-five per cent of the people who destroy themselves do it on the spur of the moment, the coroner revealed, and then added, "and I don't know of any panacea for emotional stability."

Here are a few of Dr. Leland's observations:

There are twice as many suicides among married people as among single.

Four men kill themselves every time one woman ends it all.

Many men and women kill themselves, not to get clear of a sad world, but to "create a sensation and make somebody feel sorry and ashamed."

Fashions in suicide may be accounted for by the power of suggestion.

A man wants to end it all. His head is working well. He thinks suicide. Immediately the last one he's read about pops into his head. And he does it the same way.

Weather a Factor

December is the favorite suicide month. Bad weather has a depressing effect.

Every time one widow kills herself for grief and loneliness three widowers have beat her to it.

Women rarely shoot themselves. Why? Vanity!

They want to look well when we find 'em," Dr. Leland's comment.

Practically all female suicides put on their best clothes before turning on the gas, pulling the trigger, or raising the phial to their lips.

Most people commit suicide after sunset. Ill health is the chief cause of self-destruction with derangement a close second and business reverses running third.

There were 242 suicides in San Francisco during 1928. The strangest was that of a man who killed himself with dynamite. The most startling was that of a man ended his life because he feared conviction for operating a still.

The dangerous age for suicide is between 40 and 50 and—believe it or not—There is a superstition at Dr. Leland's office that if one man drinks poison, the next two suicides will also be poison.

It has never failed.

A modern "Tom, the piper's son," who stole a pig at Beaumont, didn't run very far before he was caught, the porker in question being a statuette in which the owner had almost $200 in money.

Remembers Battle of Wilson's Creek Vividly as His First Big Engagement During Civil War

Two Champions

These two men have done grapevine a lot of good—the man on the left by putting it on U. S. battlements, the other by putting it for its equivalent in the British embassy. At the left is Josephus Daniels, who dried up the U. S. navy when he became its secretary during Wilson's first term; at the right is Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador, who has just done a similar thing for the embassy. They were snapped together at the University of North Carolina commencement at Charlotte.

By A. M. CURRY
We learn from the Cisco Daily News that George Ely, who is visiting his son, J. B. Ely, in Cisco, was in the battle of Oak Hill or Wilson's Creek, which occurred August 10, 1861. I, too, was in that battle—my first, and therefore indelibly fixed in my mind.

When the Missouri State guards under the command of General Sterling Price were driven from Missouri by the Federal troops, General Price retired into the mountains of North Arkansas and established headquarters in the Boitan mountains.

About the first of August, he was joined by Gen. Ben McCullough of Texas, in command of Arkansas and Texas Confederate troops, and they planned an attack on the Federal troops stationed at Springfield under the command of Gen. Lion. We broke camp and began our march to Springfield, pitching camp on August 8, about ten miles from there on Wilson's Creek.

Each troop was provided with ammunition and rations and ordered to be ready to march at 9 o'clock the next night. Standing in line, we waited orders, but none came and the next morning found us completely surrounded by the Federal army. Quickly reforming our lines, we began the attack. Cannons boomed on all sides and for five hours we fought desperately. General Sigel, leader of the Federal attack on the south was defeated and fled from the field. By 12 o'clock the Federals were retreating and their commander, Gen. Lion, had been killed.

Thus, an army though of superior numbers, but poorly drilled and equipped gained a signal victory over a well equipped and drilled army. This battle is rarely mentioned by historians yet it is unique and is sometimes called the "Battle of the West." General Lion and General Price were well acquainted, though on opposite sides, and a short time before, had met in St. Louis and agreed to remain neutral until further developments. However, General Lion had been superseded by General Freeman.

After the battle, General Price marched his troops to Lexington on the Missouri river, captured Colonel Mulligan with his Irish brigade, and returned to the Boston mountain.

"The thousands of gallons of liquor going into the world from these mountain regions weekly have made even the small one-still operators prosperous, while the owners who have adopted chain-store tactics are actual bosses of the country," he charges.

"One or two of the original moonshiners have been bought out by the syndicates; others who have tried to maintain the old quality of their liquor have been squeezed out, since liquor properly distilled in small quantities can never compete in price with 60-gallon amounts run once," explains Pridemore.

"They pay their employees high wages, and taking it by and large, I would rather work for them than for the coal companies. As long as the smoke curls up from a thousand stoves, so long will our girls wear silk stockings and dance to waltzes, our boys carry pear-handled revolvers and dash around in new Fords. The mountains at last are having their share of prosperity. Just exactly what it will do to or for us remains to be seen."

SEES DRY LAW AS A HELP TO MOUNTAINEERS

NEW YORK, June 27.—Prohibition has brought prosperity to the impoverished mountaineers of West Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee, according to Francis Pridemore, writer, who admits he himself was a moonshiner in pre-war days.

In a strip of West Virginia, 40 miles long by 15 miles wide, where there were 10 stills before the war, there are now at least 85. All three times larger than the pre-war variety, Pridemore says in the July issue of the North American Review. In one instance 21 of these are run as a "chain" by a syndicate of three brothers who produce a minimum of 900 gallons of whiskey a week for a gross sale of $18,000. Another string of 14 is controlled by a single man.

Pridemore's own moonshining days were spent in the section he names, located in Logan and Lincoln counties, West Virginia. "I have chosen this district only because I consider it typical of many others in West Virginia, Tennessee and Kentucky," he asserts. "A skull and cross-bones should be on the label of every bottle of liquor that is sold throughout the region," declares Pridemore, who explains that where the pre-war moonshiner making liquor occasionally for his own use, was scrupulous to extremes about his distillation, the present-day still operator concentrates only on quantity. "They never run their stuff more than twice, and the fact that it is more than mildly poison-market, would serve as a serious hindrance to this development. And this must not happen.

Here are some figures obtained by careful experiments in feeding whey and other recognized feeds. The same general values found in these hog experiments will hold equally good when fed to chickens and turkeys, and besides the whey has been found of excellent value in building up the health of animals, since it has been found to rid them of certain intestinal troubles.

Solids in skim milk, lbs. Whey, lbs.
Sugar 5.00 5.00
Albumen75 .75
Casein 2.7
Ash7 .4

Total solids skim milk, 9.15 lbs.; whey 6.15 lbs., or whey contains as much solids as skim milk, and naturally is worth two-thirds of the feed value of skim milk.

Their composition is such that skim milk and buttermilk are exceptionally well adapted for building muscle and the bony framework of young animals.

Feeding trials have shown, that in general skim milk is superior to whole milk for calf feeding, after the calves have once become adjusted to the change.

There is but very little difference in the composition between skim milk and whey.

For hogs, feeding trials have demonstrated that, where skim milk or buttermilk have been fed as a supplement to corn or other cereals, the gains are larger than with any other substitute.

Experiments prove that when fed in combination with grains, 500 pounds of skim milk are equal to at least 100 pounds of grain.

Corn at $1 per bushel; 100 pounds equals $1.785. Therefore 500 pounds skim milk equals $1.785 or 35.7 cents per hundred and whey 23.8 cents per 100 pounds.

Pigs fed skim milk or buttermilk in addition to corn gained 59.61 per cent (almost 60 per cent) faster than did those receiving corn alone, and 4.18 pounds of skim milk and buttermilk had the same value as one pound of corn, according to composite results of experiments at seven different stations.

If 4.18 pounds of skim milk equals one pound of corn 100 pounds of skim milk equals 23.9 pounds of corn. At $1 per bushel—39.8 cents alone, and 4.18 pounds of skim milk or 28.8 cents per 100 pounds of whey.

LEGG OFFERED FARM BOARD POSITION

HEAD OF INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER CO.

Confers With President for an Hour This Morning

WASHINGTON, June 27.—President Hoover has offered the chairmanship of the new federal farm board to Alexander H. Legg, president of the International Harvester company, it was stated at the white house today.

Legg conferred with the president for almost an hour at the executive offices today. Although no official word was forthcoming from the white house, friends of Legg estimated he had been offered the post and had informed the president he would be available.

The appointment with the president was arranged by Secretary of Commerce Lamont, a fellow townsman of Legg.

Legg was a member of the war industries board and long has been an intimate friend of President Hoover.

The white house announced soon after the signing of the farm bill, which authorized the new board, that the chairman probably would be an outstanding business man, familiar with agricultural problems.

It was further indicated this selection would come from the middle-western section, most vitally interested in a solution of the farm problem.

Legg's long connection with the farm industry, through the agricultural implement business, it was said, has equipped him with a peculiar knowledge of the farmer's problems, as seen both from the standpoint of the business man and the farmer.

HOUSE STANDS PAT ON FUND FOR EDUCATION

AUSTIN, June 27.—By practically unanimous vote today the house of representatives instructed its committee to hold out for an educational appropriation bill of not more than $16,500,000. The senate had agreed to concur in a $17,000,000 appropriation.

Even the $16,500,000 appropriation, together with those already made will send the total appropriations $750,000 over the estimated maximum income of the state for the two years covered by the appropriations, it was said.

Chairman John Wallace of the house appropriations committee told the house that any considerable excess would lead to vetoes of appropriations, and another session.

SAYS HOOVER FAVORS HIKE IN SUGAR RATE

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Belief that President Hoover favors an increase in the sugar tariff was expressed by Stephen Love, president of the United States Beet Sugar association, at the senate finance subcommittee sugar hearing today.

ARGUMENTS IN ROBISON CASE BEGUN TODAY

Each Side Is Allowed Three Hours for Presentation

AUSTIN, June 27.—Arguments began at 11 o'clock today in the hearing by the house of representatives on charges against State Land Commissioner J. T. Robison. Attorneys have been allowed three hours a side for arguments. After that regular rules of the house will prevail. Such rules will permit arguments also by house members before a vote is taken.

SURPLUS OF $170,000,000 IS PREDICTED

WASHINGTON, June 27.—A treasury surplus of approximately $170,000,000 at the close of this fiscal year, June 30, 1929, was predicted today by Secretary Mellon.

Mellon said the treasury expected to have that amount available in excess of expenditures even after the $45,000,000 payment to railroads necessitated by the interstate commerce commission's decision granting railroads that amount in back railway mail pay.

The surplus, which has resulted despite predictions some months ago of a deficit, is attributed by the treasury to increased income tax payments caused by profits obtained by individuals from stock market operations.

CURTISS AND WRIGHT AIR FIRMS JOIN

NEW YORK, June 27.—Formation of the Curtiss-Wright corporation, the largest aeronautical concern in the world, has been announced officially here by C. M. Keys, president of the Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor company, and Richard F. Hoyt, chairman of the board of the Wright Aeronautical corporation.

It will have assets of more than $70,000,000 and an authorized capital of $12,000,000 shares of no par value.

It will deal in virtually every branch of aviation and will dominate the world's largest air lines.

CHURCHES RETURNED MEXICO CITY, June 27.—The Mexican government has returned 11 Catholic churches to the clergy and the first masses since the disputed religious laws went into effect three years ago were ordered today.

STARS INDICTED

LOS ANGELES, June 27.—The government's wholesale investigation of income tax returns from Hollywood today reached the names of two more prominent motion picture figures. The grand jury, after hearing evidence collected over the past several weeks, returned indictments accusing Raymond Griffith and Raymond McKee, actors, of making false returns.

FIVE IN JAIL, TWO SOUGHT IN HOMICIDE

NEW YORK, June 27.—The solution to the riddle of Frank Marlow's murder rests with seven persons, one of them a 19-year old girl, police indicated today.

Of the seven, five were in jail here as material witnesses. The other two, believed by detectives to be the men who shot Marlow three times and tossed him from an automobile in Flushing, were sought today in three cities.

The five persons being held in failure to make $50,000 bail each were members of the party which dined with Marlow at Le Tavernville restaurant on Monday evening, shortly before the racketeer and former prize fight manager was shot. They are Mary Seiden, 19, dancer at the rendezvous, a night club, Johnny Wilson, former middleweight champion who was managed by Marlow; Edward L. Lewis of Boston, known as "Boston Louie," Alfred Siegel, dancer at Coney Island cabaret; and Ignatius Coppa, owner of the restaurant in which Marlow ate his last meal.

HAWKS HOPS WESTWARD ON RECORD TRY

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., June 27.—Captain Frank Hawks flew westward from this field at 5:12:51 a. m. (Eastern daylight saving time) today in quest of a non-stop record between here and Los Angeles.

Should he arrive at Los Angeles without stopping he will refuel and start back immediately in an attempt to break his own west-east record of 18 hours and 22 minutes. The flyer carried 500 gallons of gasoline, dumping 65 gallons just before he started. Hawks is attempting to break the east-west record of the late C. B. D. Collier and the late Harry Tucker who flew from the Atlantic to the Pacific in 24 hours.

The plane is equipped with a radio which Hawks will use to receive weather reports. It has a 425-horsepower Wasp motor. Weather observers suggested to Hawks that he follow a route which would take him through Columbus, St. Louis, Kansas City and Denver.

M. K. and T. Officials Visit in Cisco Today

J. A. Barnard, of Waco, M. K. & T. trainmaster, and C. M. Luckey, of Waco, Katy claim agent, were in Cisco today. Accompanying them was Fred Rutledge, of Cisco, road foreman of engines. Mr. Rutledge, while living in Cisco, makes his headquarters at De Leon.

ROTARIANS ARE TOLD TO POINT TO ADVANTAGES

E. H. Varnell Speaker at Meeting of Club Today Noon

One of the most serious mistakes made in relations between urban and rural communities is the tendency of people in commercial and professional lines of business to extend sympathy to the farmer. E. H. Varnell told the Cisco Rotary club at its meeting today noon. It is an almost universal custom to continually point out to the farmer the disadvantages of his situation and criticize him said Mr. Varnell. The farmer resents that while the psychological effect is negative, he said.

A Better Way. He declared that a much better way toward the establishment of close and profitable relationship between the farm and the city is to emphasize the advantages possessed by the agriculturist, indicating that a sustained negative interest in the improvement of the farmer is not present.

"The farmer is by nature an individualist," he said. "He does his work remote from association with his neighbors and everything that he does do is for himself. Hence, he begins to think in terms of the individual. No necessity for cooperative enterprise exists. It is much more difficult to secure group action with him than it is to secure cooperative enterprises among urban people whose lives are lives of continual association."

Forced Upon Him. "He cannot help that situation. It is forced upon him and the same would be true of you who live in the city if you lived instead in a rural community."

"Instead of criticizing and pointing out the dark side of life the people of the city should furnish markets for the farmer's produce. He would appreciate that more than anything else and it would help the situation more than anything else."

"We have many successful farmers in this section. By pointing to these incidents of success we can not only arouse greater interest in better farming methods and conditions but actually increase the standards of farm living to a point where the man who lives in a rural community can be as prosperous as his city neighbor."

Mr. Varnell suggested that the civic clubs of Cisco work toward a more personal contact between Cisco business and professional men by each member inviting a farmer to a meeting so that a general get-together affair may take place.

He also stressed the importance of the meeting which will be held here on July 9 relative to the location of a cheese plant in Cisco.

Preceding his numbers Mr. Reid told of the origin of the Grand Canyon, attributing the story to

Solons of Wealth Must Defeat Designing Sirens Who Play Game of Love for Gold, Says Hardine

By MARIE DU CHATEL United Press Staff Correspondent. CHICAGO, June 27.—Solons of wealth, conquerors in the business world must defeat designing sirens who play love's game with only a lust for gold, Franklin Hardine, Chicago millionaire oil burner inventor said today in justifying his fight against Annie Livingston's $250,000 heart balm suit.

The newspaper publicity, the throngs who battle their way into the court room to hear the intimate details of his love life do not bother him.

This Story Sounds Fishy, Doesn't It? Believe It or Not

Fishes that grow so large that they are able to drag boulders off the bank are told about by H. A. Bible and J. E. Leazer of the Humble Pipe Line company, who recently returned from an outing on the A. A. Belding ranch on Devil's river in south Texas. They neglected to say how big the boulder was or how precarious was the situation on the bank, but firmly assert that it was dragged into the river after they had tied their lines to it.

A fine trip was reported by a fisherman's paradise they are ready to assert that it is the Devil's river section. The water, they said, is cool and clear, its source found in innumerable springs. Fish are legion, big ones swimming about in water so clear that they may easily be seen to considerable depths.

NOLTE FIRST WITNESS TO BE SUMMONED

Creager Condemned in Testimony of Mrs. Skhaleben

SAN ANTONIO, June 27.—Testimony which Chairman Smith W. Brookhart characterized as a "terrific condemnation of any political machine" was given today before the U. S. senate subcommittee investigating federal patronage in Texas by Mrs. H. O. Schaleben of Hidalgo county. Mrs. Schaleben told Senator Brookhart and Senator Kenneth McKellar, his associate on the committee, that independent Democrats and Republicans in her county in the last election campaign had held what they expected to be recognized as a Republican convention and nominated a county ticket only to have recognition refused by national committeeman R. B. Creager.

Five delegates to the convention, said to be Creager delegates, walked out and shortly word was received that the delegates remaining and the candidates they nominated would not receive the aid of the state Republican organization, Mrs. Schaleben said.

"We were trying to build up a Republican organization in Hidalgo county," said the witness. Mr. Creager himself defeated the purpose. We had to write in the names of our candidates and the result was that when the votes were counted hundreds of them were thrown out. Mr. Creager could have prevented this by recognizing our efforts to build up the Republican organization. As it was, we lost by only a few votes."

Counted Out. "You were counted out by the Creager and the Democratic machines," Senator Brookhart observed.

The senator had charged at the opening of the hearing that Committee Creager was raising a $100,000 fund for improper purposes inasmuch as no campaign was on, was coercing federal employees into contributing, was distributing patronage improperly, and was neglecting county Republican organizations, being interested solely in maintaining his grip on the state organization and the patronage accruing.

He called Mrs. Schaleben in support of the latter contention and strongly denounced Creager for what he termed the "repudiation of the Hidalgo county convention."

Vice Chairman Orville Bullington, of the state Republican committee, cross-examined the witness and obtained the admission that the great majority at the convention were Democrats and that the contest in effect was between two groups of Democrats. He denied Creager had anything to do with the repudiation.

Clinton Fraser, Sr., of Edinburg, Hidalgo county, testified along the same line as the previous witness, declaring Creager had nullified the

Where Gann was Seated

Ambassador Sir Esme Howard of Great Britain gave his first dinner at the British embassy for Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister of the vice president of the United States. Mrs. Gann was seated on the right of the British ambassador. She was accompanied by the affair by Vice Pres. Charles Curtis and Mr. Gann. Mr. Gann is the husband of Mrs. Gann. A Washington correspondent lets it be known that where Mr. Gann was seated was not disclosed, "but an embassy social said he had quite a good place and was very happy."

Mrs. Gann was very happy. She was on the right of Sir Esme. It was a wet function. Sir Esme is not a dry. Those who enjoy his confidence say he is not going dry. Mr. Gann is a Kentuckian. Mr. Gann had a good place at a table somewhere on the fringe of the big table. Mr. Gann's attitude on the pro question is not known. He may be a wet dry; he may be a dry wet. He is a very poor copy maker. He never rushes into print. He never seeks reporters. He does not love the spotlight. He carries his load meekly and modestly and neither the stress of circumstances nor the pomp of power forces him to unlimber his tongue. He is a blue grass and not a corn floater product.

Life Term for Young

Two young hoodlums kidnaped a 17-year old boy in the city of Chicago and beat him in an effort to extort money. They were sent to jail. They were convicted. They were given life sentences in the penitentiary by Judge Frank Comerford, who told them if they had had previous criminal records he would have sentenced them to death in the electric chair. These young malefactors are reprimanded that the insanity plea is very fetching. They should profess deep contrition, they should repent and atone. And then they should appeal to the governor of Illinois to give them their liberty to labor as missionaries in the convict camps and prison pens of the country.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma. That in those days of high-pressure business and scientific competition, cities can go ahead by being careful students of economic forces and fundamentals.

That one of the greatest insurances against business depression of a city is a diversity of its source of income; such as farming, manufacturing, jobbing and retail businesses. Each one of these enterprises is a separate source of income to a certain quota of its citizens, and the failure of any one of them would not create a big depression as the other sources of income would be able to carry the temporary load.

A city can take what comes its way without an effort and be a good city sometimes. Occasionally some valuable industry will drop in unasked, but that does not happen often.

But the city with vision, energy and a go-getting spirit is the one that has a consistent growth and creates new wealth and happiness for its constantly growing population.

SAFETY FUNDAMENTALS. In the opinion of the head of the National Safety Council, the four fundamentals of accident prevention are a belief in safety, acceptance of the principle of personal responsibility by every citizen, an active, not a passive attitude toward the accident menace and leadership to eradicate it.

Automobile accidents are the result of three causes—recklessness, incompetence or ignorance. There are few preventable accidents. The tremendous toll in lives taken each year is a shameful illustration of the failure of authorities and citizens to approach the problem from an intelligent angle.

Great industries, such as the railroads, have made amazing success in preventing accidents by study, education, and enforcement of working rules.

Legislative accident prevention panaceas such as compulsory liability insurance, begin at the wrong end of the problem by attempting to indemnify instead of prevent. The result has been a tremendous expense to the careful, without accident reduction.

Tests have shown that enforcement of modernized traffic codes will appreciably reduce accidents in a short time. Education of

Attractive Cisco Homes

In spite of the rocky soil at the top of Fifth street hill, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Maxwell have made a most delightful yard about their picturesque English style home of yellow brick with its tall sloping roof.

On either side of the arched doorway is an Italian cypress. A walk from the entrance leads to the side terrace on the east enclosing a shrubby filled corner of red-bud, lucidum, mandina, and arbor vitae, and a silver-stemmed cedar, brightened by the black window boxes above, filled with petunias.

Around the terrace which extends almost the length of the house is a shrubby bed of dwarf eucalyptus, mandina, abelia, red currant, nobilis privet and an Arizona cypress, with a butterfly bush at the rear corner.

Daisies and rose bushes separating the front yard from the rear meet with the hedge of California privet on the east while a bed of zinnias fills the corner.

On the west side of the front entrance are cherry laurel, nandina, salvia, pomegranate and an arbor vitae. Below the petunia-filled boxes on the west side of the house are a golden privet, a big leaf privet, salvia and an arbor vitae, and lucidum on either side of the entrance, with verbenas along the side leading to the west parking.

A cobblestone walk leads around to the south corner of the yard where beneath a huge hackberry tree, with its trunk entwined with honeysuckle, is a triangular bed of chrysanthemums, redbud and amoviver privet with cantanastor and aethia in the bed near the house.

Plans for beautifying the rear yard have not been completed but the many large trees which the lot naturally has will add to any kind of flower garden that might be landscaped.

New Well in Coleman County Flows 72 Barrels an Hour Flush

MORRIS 2-A IS DRILLED IN WEDNESDAY

Gravity of Oil Will Range About 42 Degrees

One of the biggest, if not the best well ever brought in in Coleman county was realized yesterday when the Eastland Oil company-Chestnut Smith J. P. Morris No. 2-A was drilled 10 feet in the sand to a total depth of 1,974 feet. The flush production of the well was 72 barrels per hour.

The gravity of the oil is high and is estimated at 42 degrees. Prairie Oil company is taking the oil.

The well, in proven territory, is located about one mile southwest of Echo and between that town and Coleman. It was first drilled about 6 feet in the sand where it began taking 14,000,000 cubic feet of gas and spraying oil. Yesterday afternoon when the sand was penetrated four feet further it began flowing.

Hoffer well 4 1/2 miles north of Cisco, owned by the Hoffer Texas oil companies, made 669 bbls of oil during the 24-hour ending yesterday at 7 a. m.

THE MAN TO BE HERE JULY FOURTH

Guy H. Albright, Texas representative of the Patho Exchange, Inc., is passing up two other Fourth of July events in Texas to attend the Cisco Bathing Revue and Celebration, he announces in a letter to the chamber of commerce. Mr. Albright will be here with his cameras to take motion pictures of the event. He hopes that the pictures may be made of national interest, he says.

Mr. Albright will come to Cisco on July 3 to help stage the revue, remaining over until it is completed.

France Will Ratify Debt Pact

PARIS, June 27. — Grave doubts were expressed in political circles today that the Poincare government would be able to induce the chamber of deputies to ratify the French war debt agreements with the United States and Great Britain without a hard, bitter struggle.

Political experts were of the opinion that ultimately the government would win out and obtain the consent of the chamber. But it was declared on all sides that if Premier Poincare wins out in his test of strength with the opposition it will be by a slight majority.

The collar of white is quite plain.

MARQUETTE IS HER CHOICE

Miss Genevieve Lyon, 305 North Daugherty street, Eastland, is shown with a beautiful new Marquette. Miss Lyon will be "Miss Eastland" at the Cisco pageant of beauty on July 4. The Marquette, recently produced by the Buick Motor company, is scoring a great success nationally. The Sivalis Motor company is the dealer for this territory.

EARLY TIMES ABOUT CISCO

(By ISHAM LAMB)

The first man to open a butcher shop in Cisco was named Lacey. Jay Reed was associated with him for a while. Mr. Mullins bought them out.

George Hill, who lives at Sabano sold beef here for a while. Mr. Thurman was for a short time his partner. George W. Price was the first dairyman. He also ran a water wagon and supplied the people with that commodity also.

His ad in the Cisco Roundup read like this:

"Let me furnish you with both milk and water, straight or mixed. G. W. Price."

He said that he tried not to deceive his customers in his advertising.

A Mr. Langford was also a water merchant. The principal source of supply was a tank near the feed mills. The dam was near the railroad. This tank was too small to furnish the town and Miss Stine is private secretary to Warner Bros. movie producers. work of thousands of independents and regular Republicans who were anxious to build up a strong organization in the county.

Noite First Witness.
State Republican Chairman Eugene Nolte was the first witness called by Senator Brookhart. He conceded an effort was being made to raise $100,000.

"I would like to make it a million if we could raise that amount legitimately," said Nolte.

The senator could not understand why so large an amount was necessary when no campaign was in progress.

"We will use it in a proper manner to effect our purpose in bringing about a two-party set-up in the state of Texas," Nolte said.

He detailed some of the expenses in maintaining state headquarters in Dallas where Leonard Wethington—a $10,000 a year man is executive secretary and director of organization.

"I never knew another state organization to pay a man this amount," said Senator Brookhart.

It was claimed by Nolte and Wethington, who followed him, that Texas, where the Republicans had been outnumbered 11 to 1, had an unusual problem.

Both witnesses denied the suggestion from Senator Brookhart that contributions had been solicited from federal employees.

TOY PLANE FLIES 36 MINUTES

LOS ANGELES, June 27.—A tiny model tractor monoplane which stays in the air 36 minutes has been invented by Lynn Sullivan, 17, high school student.

The wings have a span of 20 inches, are three and a half inches wide and are covered by Japanese tissue.

Balsa wood serves as a fuselage. It is 16 inches long, one-quarter of an inch thick by three thirty-seconds of an inch wide.

The motive power is supplied by rubber bands, wound with a hand winder to 1000 turns.

"To fly the ship, wind up the propeller, give it a gentle shove and off it goes," young Sullivan explains. "By the time it reaches an altitude of about 300 feet the motive power will give out, but the upper air currents will cause it to glide in an ever-widening circle.

PARIS, June 27.—Commenting on the impending international conference with the evacuation of the Rhineland, the newspaper Le Journal said today it believed Great Britain's suggestion that the negotiations be held in London was a move by Premier Ramsay MacDonald to secure the presidency of the conference.

Le Journal concluded that since France has the greatest interest in both the reparations question and the evacuation of the occupied German territory the presidency must be held by a Frenchman.

Path to Heavyweight Championship Begins Tonight

YANK STADIUM AT NEW YORK WILL BE SCENE

Two Old World Warriors Will Battle for Priority

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
United Press Staff Correspondent.
NEW YORK, June 27.—The path to the heavyweight championship begins at Yankee Stadium tonight. Under the blazing arc lights out in the big American League ball park, two Old World warriors—Max Schmeling of Germany and Paolino Uzcudun of Spain—battle in a 15-round bout for the right to meet Jack Sharkey in September to determine Gene Tunney's successor to the vacated heavyweight throne. When the highly-touted Teuton lunges cautiously circles around the squat, broad-shouldered basewoodegger at the first gong 10 p. m. E. D. Downs Fort Worth While Dallas Loses to Houston

By United Press.
Wichita Falls today rested at the top of the Texas League, the outcome of its 10 to 6 victory over Fort Worth while Dallas was losing to Houston. Stengraf pitched steadily for the winners except in the sixth inning. Dallas lost its third consecutive game to Houston, 4 to 1. The contest was a pitching duel between Wachtel, Houston, and Martina, Dallas, the latter allowing less hits but losing. A ninth inning rally for the second consecutive day allowed Waco to nose out Fort Worth, 3 to 2. Shreveport won from Beaumont, 3 to 2, sweeping the series and sending the Exporters down the line to last place. Fast fielding, including a double play every inning up to the fifth, featured the sports win. Games today: Beaumont at Fort Worth, Houston at Wichita Falls, San Antonio at Dallas, Waco at Shreveport.

WHERE SPEED KING MET DEATH

GORMAN PLANS GREAT FOURTH CELEBRATION

Indian Trail Pageant Is Feature of the Event

GORMAN, June 24.—Gorman's Fourth of July plans took on state-wide importance with the announcement Thursday that the widely advertised "Indian Trail Pageant" will be staged as the climax of the holiday celebration at Bass Lake. Each town along the Indian Trail, the new designation of the Waco-Cisco highway, will send girls as Indian princesses, with their maids and escorts, to appear in an elaborate ceremony in the picturesque setting along the shores of the lake, where the natural beauty will be enhanced by Indian topees and totem poles. The queen of the Indian Trail will be selected by popular vote from the princesses, after they have passed in review, and a program of fireworks, music and Indian dancing will conclude the evening. Gorman business men and a committee of women began work on plans to entertain the visiting princesses and their escorts. The costuming and stage setting was entrusted to Emil A. Robin, of Waco, late of Paris, France, who has won an enviable reputation by his handling of the coronation and pageants at the Texas Cotton Palace and the San Antonio Battle of Flowers. Details of the pageant will be under direction of a committee of Gorman women. One of the unique features of the program will be a "Papoose Pageant," open to "Little Indians" of eight years or under. Gorman merchants will offer prizes to the best costumed boy, the best costumed girl, and the boy and girl coming from the longest distance to enter this, and the "tiniest" and "cutest" papoose, the only specification being that they appear in Indian costumes. After the queen of the trail has been crowned, she will be seated on a throne by the lake, in a spot which forms a natural amphitheatre capable of accommodating 15,000 people, and the final events of day's program will be part of the entertainment which is staged before her and her Indian court. This will include, in addition to the events named above, the finals of the old fiddlers' contest, and the presentation of prizes for the swimming and diving events and the baseball tournament. Several teams have already been entered in the baseball tournament, and it may be necessary to hold an elimination contest prior to the fourth, leaving only four teams to play in the morning and one in the afternoon. The finals between the quartettes and choruses will also be sung before the Indian court. During the afternoon, there will be addresses by notable speakers including J. Thomas Davis, of John Tarleton College, and Rev. A. C. Beasley of Mineral Wells, a world war hero of the Canadian Army. These expecting to enter any of the events should committee in charge of that event, as follows: Indian Pageant Committee: Mmes. E. C. Blackwell, M. F. Allen, Carl Herrington, Charles Underwood, E. E. Haile. Baseball tournament, J. W. Cochrill. Swimming and Diving, H. I. Capers. Quartettes and Choruses, M. B. Robertson and W. G. Baker. Old Fiddlers, John Brown. Wall Street betting commissioners reported today that hundreds of thousands of dollars have been wagered on the outcome, with Schmeling money in the predominance. The odds in most quarters today were 6 to 5 on Schmeling. Spending the last night before the fight in their respective training camps—Paolino at Hoosick Falls, N. Y., and Schmeling at Lakewood, N. J.—the two principals departed this morning for the scene of the battle. Paolino motored to Albany, N. Y., and made the rest of the journey by air. Schmeling came by motor. Weighing ceremonies were scheduled for 2 p. m., in the dressing room of the world baseball champions at Yankee Stadium. Paolino expected to scale 191 and Schmeling 182.

Why We Are Able to Offer You "Solid Values" in Used Cars!

The fact is you'll find your Ford dealer selling used cars at lower prices than anybody else—Here's the reason:

The cost of the new Model-A is so low and the value so high, that we have no "leeway" for excessive trade-in allowances on used cars. This means it is not necessary for us to "pad" our used car prices in order to recoup unreasonable trade-in concessions.

In other words, you pay just what the used car is worth—and our policy of fair dealing protects the first owner who makes the trade-in, and the second owner who buys the unused milage.

We have a generous stock of used cars right now, one of them without a doubt will suit you.

AMAZED OVER BIG CHANGE

"Orgatone Gave Me Relief Right From the Start and I'm Glad to Recommend It," Says Brownwood Mechanic.

"At the time I began taking Orgatone, I was in a very badly run-down condition, and was losing in strength and energy," said Bert Johnson, of 1617 Fourth St., Brownwood, Texas. "Mr. Johnson is mechanic for the Mitchell Motor Co. For the past three years my stomach has been in such a bad condition that I couldn't eat without suffering from indigestion. I was nervous and restless and couldn't sleep at night and had fearful headaches. My appetite was all gone and what I did eat would sour and cause me so much pain and distress that I was almost frantic. The gas on my stomach would cause my heart to palpitate and I would have dizzy and bilious spells. I thought I had heart trouble and it continued to get worse instead of better. I also had heartburn and in fact felt tired and worn out most of the time. I took all kinds of medicines, but seemed as if nothing would do me any good. After reading so much about Orgatone I decided to try it, and it has proven the right medicine in my case. I have certainly improved rapidly. I am now eating anything I want—and am never troubled the least bit with gas, pain or shortness of breath. I sleep as well as I ever did and am not the least bit nervous any more. I feel like going about my day's work with vim and vigor. I am more than amazed over the big change in my condition and know that Orgatone was just what I needed. It has given me relief right from the start and I take pleasure in recommending it to my friends."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called secret or patent remedy but a new scientific bile preparation and is sold in Cisco, exclusively by Dean Drug Co., under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative.—Adv.

"L" TRAINS IN HIGH-UP CRASH

At the highest point on New York City's network of elevated lines—90 feet above the street—two passenger trains collided. Here you see the wreckage after one wooden train had telescoped the other, killing a guard and injuring 34 passengers. None of the cars toppled from the high structure, but the debris caught fire after the crash, causing a panic among passengers.

BAND CONCERT AND CARNIVAL AGAIN TONIGHT

The regular weekly band concert and water carnival will be presented at Lake Cisco this evening beginning at 7:30. Frank E. Perkins, manager, announces. The Cisco Lobo band will play while a program of varied contests and stunts will be staged at the swimming pool. These carnivals have on the past two occasions that they have been held drawn crowds numbering into the thousands, proving to be attractions of unusual popularity. Several thousands of spectators will likely be on hand tonight. Mr. Perkins said. The events are becoming known not only in Cisco but over a large area about the city. CALIFORNIA JUDGE HOLDS COURT IN AIRPLANE

And now, out in California, court sessions are held in the air. When Judge Albert S. Los Angeles found it necessary to visit mining claims involved in condemnation proceedings, out of the construction of the huge San Gabriel dam, he took court attaches and opposing lawyers to the scene of the exhibits in a big West Air Express. And going to and fro from the mining claims, he held court. Here are the principals in the first aerial courtroom session ever held: John Martin, attorney for the defendant mine owners; Ed Allen, mining expert witness; Judge Stephens; Alfred Dennis, attorney, and Roy Dows, legal head of Los Angeles reclamation projects.
