ROBISON PROBE COST YOUNG FORTUNE

$400 AN HOUR REQUIRED FOR LEGISLATURE

Expense of Hearing Alone Placed at Over $10,000

AUSTIN, June 28.—Cost of the hearing on charges against State Land Commissioner J. T. Robison was approximately $10,500, Rep. John Davis of Mesquite said today. Davis is chairman of the expense committee. This amount is exclusive of the normal expense of a session of a session of the house which is estimated at $400 an hour. Hearing began June 13 and ended June 27. Part time, however, was spent in legislation. Expense of the committee of the regular session which investigated the state land office was approximately $6,000.

JUST WHAT HE EXPECTED.

AUSTIN, June 28.—"It was only what I expected all the time," said State Land Commissioner J. T. Robison, after the vote taken in the house of representatives last night exonerated him of charges that had been made. Cheers broke out, despite warnings, as 80 red lights flashed on the electric voting machine in the house, showing support of a motion to dismiss the charges. There were 35 blue lights, voting "No." Three pairs were reported by the journal clerk.

The vote was on the same motion that had been offered Wednesday after testimony had ended. The vote at that time was delayed until counsel might argue. These arguments ended shortly after 7 o'clock last night. Another hour was spent in parliamentary moves. The vindication was indicated even before the final vote was taken. This indication was a vote of 83 to 20 to table an effort by Rep. A. P. Johnson of Carrizo Springs to censure and reprimand. A substitute, offered by Representative Olin Vanzandt of Tiooga called for removal and impeachment. It was tabled, 77 to 24.

According to Frank Robertson, secretary of the Rising Star Retail Merchants' association, Rising Star will be closed up as tight as the proverbial fig Thursday, July 4. There is no kind of local celebration, Mr. Robertson states, but a mass of the town reveals that usually everyone has made plans for the Fourth.

CRAWFORDS ARE HURT IN AUTO MISHAP

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Crawford and daughter, Helen, are back home today recuperating from a narrow escape in a car accident in which they were involved early yesterday morning 11 miles south of Brownwood. The Buick sedan in which the family was driving to Kerrville, where they expected to place Helen in a girls camp for a week or so, overturned after it had developed a flat. Mr. Crawford said Mrs. Crawford was the most seriously hurt. She sustained a cut on the right knee which required eight stitches to close. Helen was cut seriously in two places on one hand, one of which was closed with four stitches and another on which one stitch was used. Mr. Crawford suffered severe lacerations and bruises, while his wife and daughter were each painfully bruised and lacerated, in addition to their more serious injuries.

Mr. Crawford and his family had left Cisco about 4:30 yesterday morning. They had been on the road two hours, when, 11 miles after passing Brownwood, Mr. Crawford found that tire on the right rear wheel to be flat. The road at the point was not paved and the soil was loose and sandy. He attempted to apply his brakes but they were tighter than he expected them and the car skidded into the ditch suddenly, the flat having a tendency to aggravate the skid on the loose earth.

He turned the steering wheel to bring the car back upon the road and accomplished this but the rim of the flat tire caught in the hard earth below the loose soil and flopped the car over upon its top. The fact that he was driving at a moderate speed at the time prevented a more serious consequence. The family was taken to Brownwood immediately where medical attention was given. They returned to their home here, arriving late yesterday afternoon, leaving the car at Brownwood for repairs. The radiator and hood were badly damaged while the top and side were scoured badly. Otherwise the car was not damaged. The accident took place at 6:45 o'clock. Mr. Crawford is president of the Cisco chamber of commerce.

10th Anniversary of Versailles Sees Hope for Real Era of Peace for World

By LYLE C. WILSON, United Press Staff Correspondent. WASHINGTON, June 28.—Today, the 10th anniversary of the signing of the Versailles treaty, the trend of international events raises hope that the real era of peace is dawning for the world.

This is the anniversary both of the beginning and of the formal end of the war. Exactly 13 years ago, on June 28, 1914, a youth crazed with patriotism, assassinated the Austrian Archduke Francis at Sarajevo. Within a month troops were moving.

After 10 years of effort, the world's statesmen are beginning at last to believe the solutions of problems raised by those moving troops may be in sight. Events during this week have buoyed the world's expectations. Japan removed the last obstacle to effectuation of the Kellogg anti-war pact by ratifying that agreement. Owen D. Young and his colleagues called on President Hoover to report a workable method of obtaining reparations payments from Germany at last had been found, and of greater significance, were the activities of Premier MacDonald and Ambassador Dawes in Great Britain.

Shadows in Picture. There are shadows in the pictures. Tens of thousands of Germans are reported today to be planning demonstrations against the Versailles treaty. The problem of the French war debt to the United States is unsolved. Minority populations given over to the government of foreigners by the treaty in some cases are alleged to suffer indignities and repression. International suspicion persists and the vast area of the soviet union is a diplomatic outpost.

Britain's war-won heritage of unemployment has not diminished and threatens to affect permanently her economic position. In 10 years the rearmament of Germany and Hungary against loss of territory and enforced disarmament has increased rather than diminished. In reducing Austria to the status of a city state, there are indications the league created an almost un-governable nation.

Huge German violations have been incorporated into the citizenry of states created by the treaty. An arm of Polish territory stretches to the sea and isolates German East Prussia from the remainder of the Reich. Perhaps most unbearable of all in German eyes is the clause in the Versailles treaty which places upon the central powers the sole guilt of causing the war.

WRONG STATION.

DALLAS, June 28.—Complainers called up the wrong police station here when they sent for Policemen McGlothlin and Greenlee to put an end to a noisy dance. When the officers had taken his turn at failed to come out until one had had a round at the dancing and the other had taken his turn at the fiddle.

FORCED DOWN BY RAIN.

CLEVELAND AIRPORT, Cleveland, June 28.—The endurance flight plane, City of Cleveland, which took off at 7:16 p. m. last night in an attempt to establish a new refueling record, was forced down by a blinding rainstorm at 1:40 a. m. after six hours and 24 minutes in the air.

STATEMENT OF PROSECUTOR GETS REVERSAL

Convicted of Murder of A. L. Shook Last September 7

A statement commenting on the failure of the defendant to testify made by the county attorney in the trial of his case in the 88th district court at Eastland won for Clyde Thompson, convicted of the murder of A. L. Shook at Leeray last September 7 and given the death penalty, a new trial when the court of criminal appeals yesterday reversed and remanded his case. Thompson was tried at Eastland on Monday, October 15, last year. A verdict of guilty, assessing the death penalty, was returned by the jury at 11 o'clock Tuesday night.

A. L. Shook was one of two brothers whose partially decomposed bodies were found on an isolated oil lease upon which they had been at work near the Leeray townsite. The two bodies were found about 8 o'clock on the morning of Tuesday, September 11. Lucius Shook and Leon Shook were the names of the brothers. Lucius was 27 and Leon about 21 years of age. Lucius had lived in the Leeray community for several years, and was employed as a pumper on a well on the Good farm. Leon was visiting his brother at the time the double murder took place.

Three Arrested. Thompson and Thomas Davis, 19 and 17 years of age respectively, and Woodrow Davis, 12, were arrested by officers the day after the shooting. The 88th district grand jury returned indictments charging first degree murder against each of the three boys on September 13. The indictment against Woodrow Davis, 12, was dismissed later when he became a witness for the state.

Thompson made a detailed oral confession shortly before the grand jury was convened to act on the case. In his statement he declared that the double killing occurred on the Friday night preceding the discovery of the bodies. He said that he went to the home of the Davis boys Friday evening and got them to go with him to the Shook home where he had been the day before and stolen a gun and a banjo. The Davis boys, stayed in the "brush," he said, while he entered the house, believing it unoccupied. The Shook brothers had come home, however, and one of them accused him of stealing the banjo.

He said he denied the accusation and the Shook boys threatened to take him to his father's house and report him to his parent. He said that the three of them left the house and that he was armed, though the Shook brothers did not know it. He debated about shooting them in the back, he told the officers, but decided not to do that. At a tank about a quarter of a mile from the house he said he got into an argument with the boys and shot them both. His statement declared that he beat them over the head to make sure that they were dead and then robbed the bodies.

Score of Cisco Girls Will Be Entered in Beauty Pageant

Twenty-one Cisco merchants had agreed this morning to enter a girl in the Annual West Texas Bathing Revue which will be a feature of the Fourth of July celebration at Lake Cisco next week. Not all of the merchants had been visited by the committee and this list will no doubt grow to much larger proportions before the period for entering girls is concluded. Meanwhile encouraging responses are being received from towns elsewhere. Yesterday afternoon both Olney and Graham, in Young county announced that they will have representatives. Fort Worth and Dallas, according to information here, will be represented. All of the principal cities of the oil belt will send girls. The right to participate in the big Fort Worth revue, with its chance for a trip to Havana, Cuba, and the further chance to "Get in the movies" is an attraction that appeals to girls. An announcement from Breckinridge this morning says that Miss Lillie Pearl

Corley will be that city's representative in the revue. Though Cleburne will not send a young lady to take part in the pageant a delegation of business men from that city will be present for the celebration, the chamber of commerce here has been informed. Arrangements for the entire program are working out in fine shape. An added feature will be a Fourth of July address by a prominent Texan. This address will take place probably at 8 o'clock in the morning.

THREAT MADE AFTER REMARK DURING PROBE

San Antonio Man Tells of Effort to Get Post Office

SAN ANTONIO, June 24.—A threat to send National Commissioner R. B. Creager to jail for contempt of the senate furnished one of a series of sensations at today's hearings of the Brookhart senatorial committee investigating federal patronage in Texas.

The threat followed charges that the Creager-Republican organization was continuing to corrupt political conditions in Hidalgo county and the specific accusation that the postmaster at Austin was put on the blocks to the candidate who would contribute 10 per cent of his salary to the Republican state headquarters fund. Republican State Vice Chairman Orville Bullington was cross-examined by Mrs. H. O. Shaleben, of Hidalgo county, in an effort to show that minority leader John Garner, who represents that section of Texas in congress, should be considered as much a part of the political "ring" in the county as the committee was endeavoring to establish Creager to be.

Unfair Assault. "That's an unfair and unwarranted assault on Mr. Garner," Senator McKellar, Brookhart's associate on the senatorial committee, interrupted. "He is not here to speak for himself."

"There are lots of other folks you are attacking who are not here," Creager observed. The reply angered the Tennessee senator.

"There are two or three men in jail now for contempt of the senate," Senator McKellar warned. "Well," cautioned McKellar, "don't get in contempt for I don't want to have you arrested."

First Blood in Senator Brookhart's efforts to establish coercion of federal office holders by the Creager state Republican organization was drawn in the testimony of J. M. Houston, of San Antonio, formerly of Austin. Houston testified he was an applicant for the postmastership at Austin in 1926 but was told by County Chairman Von Rosenberg that he would have to contribute 10 per cent of his salary to the state Republican fund if his appointment was confirmed. He said that on receiving this information he wrote to Creager and State Chairman Eugene Nolte withdrawing his application.

Close Oil Company Drilling at Moran

The Close Oil company, of Cisco, is reconditioning its Elliott No. 1 well, eight miles east of Moran. The well is being plugged back to 3,568 feet where it will be shot. The same company will shortly begin drilling its Elliott No. 2 in section 27 of the Orphan Asylum land in the same area. This well is expected to be drilled to 4,000 feet unless oil in paying quantities is found at a higher level.

DETAILS OF LAREDO CASE ARE SHOWN

LAREDO, June 28.—A tale of murder in a hotel lobby and of hiding the victim's body in the Rio Grande was written into the records of criminal district court here today where the trial of Thomas Hernandez and Raymond J. West, Laredo police officers, is under way.

The men are charged with murder in the slaying of Harry Williams, Muncie, Ind., newspaper man, who until his death was a reporter on the Laredo Times.

The state is attempting to prove that Williams was choked to death in the lobby of a local hotel on the night of January 18 after he and a companion had refused to join the defendants on a party.

Buck Hood, former Laredo Times reporter and now with the Austin American, last saw Williams alive in the hotel lobby, he testified. Hood left Williams sitting in a chair about midnight and went to a room. When he returned the reporter had gone. He was not seen alive again.

Two women guests of the hotel, Ulicia McCloud and Alice Garcia, told of hearing scuffling in the lobby and identified both defendants by their voices. Miss Garcia said she heard an automobile drive away from the hotel.

Many witnesses testified concerning the condition of Williams' body when it was found in the Rio Grande a month later by an onion farmer, Dr. W. Lowry, Sr., called for expert testimony, said there were no marks of violence on the body but absence of water from the lungs indicated death had taken place before the body was placed in the river.

Dr. Lowry expressed the belief that Williams was choked to death, possibly by human hands. The victim's protruding tongue indicated death was caused by strangulation, he said.

KILLED BY BANDIT.

CHICAGO, June 28.—George Schirner, 61, a druggist, died early today after a gun battle with three boy bandits. The gunmen, all hatless and wearing gayly decorated slickers, escaped in a small roadster without obtaining money.

AUSTIN, June 28.—The city of Denton has the right to build municipal ice plant, the state supreme court decided today.

NO REASON FOR ALARM. KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 28.

The Kansas City Times sees no cause for international alarm in Ambassador Dawes' penchant for long pants. Commenting today on the ambassador's appearance in the court of St. James in pants instead of breeches, the Times said, "If Dawes prefers to appear at court in evening clothes with a white tie instead of a Knight of Pythias uniform, the affair should not constitute a diplomatic episode."

"This opinion holds," the Times added, "whether the ambassador chose evening clothes just because he felt he would feel more at home in them or because his legs wouldn't look well in knee breeches and silk stockings."

J. DANIELS GETS BIBLE LAST NIGHT

The family of Jasper Daniels, living at 1904 D avenue, received the gift Bible in the special family night service at the Baptist church Thursday evening. The Bible was given by the pastor and deacons of the church and was presented by Dr. O. L. Powers in a few well chosen words.

The minister's message on "The Ireal Home," met with enthusiastic response from his hearers. The speaker pointed out several elements in the building of an ideal home. The first of these mentioned was the ownership of one's home. And then he said God intended for man to have a wife and children. "A bachelor may have a fine place to stay," the minister asserted, "but he will never have a home without a wife and children. He then went on to point out that the proper parental fellowship, authority, oversight, and example were necessary requirements in a happy home.

The meetings are growing in interest and the attendance is good. It is announced.

TWO WELLS NEAR STAR ARE WATCHED

RISING STAR, June 28.—Two wells in this section are being watched by the fraternity with much interest. One of these, the Mac T. Anderson No. 1 Leatherwood, is ready to drill in. This test is in new territory. A new contract has been signed for a deep test on a pool of the Vestal and Armstrong tracts, three miles north of Pioneer. Drilling is to be started, according to the terms of the contract, not later than September 1, 1929.

Man, Thought Lost, Reported Alive

PALESTINE, June 28.—Sheriff W. G. Rogers of Anderson county announced he had obtained information that C. W. Butler, 65, prominent Houston county farmer, missing for two months, is alive in Wheeler county.

Detectives and rangers have conducted a countrywide search for Butler who was last seen at Love-lady. It was feared he had met with foul play.

To rather climb a tree than chase a hawk? Which is exactly what I wanted to do when I saw that immense pecan tree in the yard of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Hale, 400 West Sixth.

This tree, which is a native pecan, measures approximately 20 inches across the stump, and according to Dr. W. P. Lee and J. J. Butts, is between 35 and 40 years old.

Besides pecan trees, Dr. Hale has two black walnuts, their branches loaded with big green pods.

Schmeling Would Like to Enter Ring With Dempsey

BIG GERMAN IS READY FOR ALL COMERS

Conference to Consider Ring Future Is Scheduled Today

NEW YORK, June 28.—A conference between William F. Cahn of the Madison Square Garden and Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, was scheduled late today to discuss the German heavyweight's ring future.

Schmeling said today he was ready to meet anybody, but preferred Jack Dempsey if the former champion could be induced to enter the ring again.

SCHMELING MAKES GOOD

NEW YORK, June 28.—Max Schmeling made good!

The 23-year-old German heavyweight did everything but knock out Paolino Uzcudun, stout-hearted

RESULTS OF FIGHT

New York, June 28.—Results of the bouts on the Milk Fund boxing show at Yankee Stadium last night follow:

Main Bout—Max Schmeling, Germany, 187, defeated Paolino Uzcudun, of Spain, 192 $\frac{1}{2}$, in 15 rounds.

Semi-Final Bout—Otto Von Forst, of Chicago, 196, scored a technical knockout over Meyer (K. O.) Christner, of Akron, O., 197 $\frac{1}{2}$, in the ninth of a scheduled 10-round bout.

PHILIPINARISE

Angus Snyder, of Dodge City, Kan., 188 $\frac{1}{2}$, knocked out Johnny Grosso, of Mt. Vernon, 196, in the fifth round of a scheduled 10-round bout.

Roy Wallace, of Indianapolis, 185 $\frac{1}{2}$, knocked out Primo Uvalde, of Italy, 171 $\frac{1}{2}$, in the third round of a scheduled 6-round bout.

Jerry Pavlec, of Brooklyn, 212, defeated Jackie Saunders, of Long Island City, 199, in 4 rounds.

Piercing Paolino's arms and elbows defense with slashing punches to the head. Schmeling cut the basque's face to ribbons and had him blind, bleeding and groggy at the finish.

Most of the crowd of 40,000 roared its approval of the black haired Teuton terror as he left the ring unmarked and fresh as a daisy.

The majority agreed that the perfectly conditioned, cool headed German youth had completely accomplished the task set out for him despite the fact that he failed to knock out Paolino as some of his ardent backers had predicted.

An injury to Schmeling's right hand in the fifth round probably saved Paolino from the first knock out of his career. The German hurt his hand when a punch landed on Paolino's elbow and was unable to get the full power behind his dynamite right during the last 10 rounds.

REFUSES TAKE CREDIT FROM SCHMELING

NEW YORK, June 28.—Paolino Uzcudun refused to take any credit from Max Schmeling's victory over him last night, but told the United Press today that he partially attributed his defeat to loss of weight before entering the ring.

"I weighed 192 $\frac{1}{2}$ when I weighed in," he said through the interpreter, "but lost several pounds before entering the ring. I only weighed 186 pounds after the fight, the lightest I ever weighed. I'm sure something was wrong with my condition, but last night Herr Schmeling was the better man. He deserved to win."

Yesterday's hero: Rube Walburg, whose masterful pitching enabled the Philadelphia Athletics to beat the New York Yankees, 6 to 3, at Philadelphia. Rube allowed 10 hits, two of them home runs, but kept them much too well scattered to be effective. The defeat lowered the Yanks to third place in the American league.

Alphonse Thomas, after holding the St. Louis Browns to four hits in eight innings at Chicago, blew up in the ninth, allowing four men to score and the White Sox were beaten, 4 to 1. The Browns advanced to second place in the league standing.

Big Ed Morris held the Washington Senators to five hits at Boston and the Red Sox scored their 20th victory of the year, 4 to 1.

Five runs in the second inning paved the way for Detroit's 6 to 2 victory over Cleveland, at Detroit.

Rogers Hornsby clouted a home run in the eighth inning at St. Louis yesterday and lifted the Chicago Cubs out of a tie into a victory, 5 to 4, over the Cardinals.

After spotting Boston a three run lead at Brooklyn, the Robins rallied to win, 8 to 5.

Meine held Cincinnati to nine hits at Pittsburgh and the Pirates maintained their league leadership with a 5 to 3 victory over the Reds.

Mass of Letters of Contradictory Nature Pour Into Officials After Killing of Virkula by Dry Agent

INTERNATIONAL FALLS, Minn., June 28.—It now is history that the citizens of International Falls and its city council called upon President Hoover and Minnesota's representatives in congress for protection from what they called the "arrogant lawlessness" of the border patrol.

Resolutions were sent to Washington demanding that agents be disarmed of sawed-off shotguns with one of which Customs Agent Emmett J. White killed Henry Virkula and his family drove along the international highway, 27 miles south of the Canadian border.

The treasury department ordered agents to restrict use of the arms to pistols. President Hoover expressed regret over Virkula's death and declared to the International Falls city council that it might rest assured "there is no intention on the part of the federal government in any way to transgress the limits of the law."

The president said the matter of White's conduct had been referred to the treasury department.

"A mass of letters with vitriolic contradictory opinion on the shooting poured in daily to the central figures in the case. Virkula's widow and two young daughters, Agent White, Sheriff Hugh Reidy, and County Attorney David Hurlburt.

One letter to Hurlburt, from a church in Little Forks, near where Virkula was shot on the night of the 8th of June, said:

Knew He Was Runner.

"We know Virkula was a rum runner and that he stopped here that night because he knew agents were watching him."

Another from a man in Baltimore said Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of prohibition enforcement, was "a scamp for defending this sort of thing."

A Californian wrote White that he should "like to come up there and cut your throat."

A citizen of Chicago inquired of Sheriff Reidy if it was safe for him to bring his family here on a vacation, declaring "It wouldn't be so bad if I got shot up, but my wife is deathly afraid of guns."

International Falls, itself, while still resentful over Virkula's death, apparently is determined to place the matter up to the courts.

Leading citizens generally agreed with President Hoover that the federal government had no intention of over-stepping the state laws.

Mexican Upper Class Is Taking to Air

PORT WORTH, June 28.—The upper class in Mexico is taking to the air much faster than the upper class in America.

This was the opinion expressed here by George L. Rihl, Mexico City, president of the Compañia Mexicana de Avacion, and vice president of the Pan American Airways, who stopped here enroute to New York.

Rihl's company operates both air mail and passenger lines between Brownsville and Mexico City and from Vera Cruz to Guatemala.

MAGNIFICENT SCREEN EPIC HERE SUNDAY

"Noah's Ark," the long heralded Warner Bros. Vitaphone talking picture, comes to the Palace theater Sunday for 3 days. While the title would suggest that "Noah's Ark" is a tale from the Bible, it is, in fact, a story of modern life with a background of the antediluvian days.

A cast of more than ten thousand people was employed in "Noah's Ark," and Warner Bros. allotted a thirty-eight acre tract to construct the settings, on which to carry through the tremendous project. "Noah's Ark" is said to be truly gigantic in its proportions, and to possess a story of intense interest.

The idea of making a picture with the legend of the flood as its theme is compelling and fascinating. Warner Bros., looking about for a story which would enable them to make a picture that would have a tremendously popular appeal, were given a scenario by Darryl Francis Zanuck, entitled "Noah's Ark." In it they discerned that, with Vitaphone, there were possibilities for a magnificent, spectacular production. That was three years ago, ever since Warner Bros. have been at work on "Noah's Ark." On its first showing it was hailed as one of the most impressive pictures ever made. It comes to the Palace Sunday for 3 days.

The task of directing this mammoth production was given to Michael Curtis, Dolores Costello was selected for the star, with George O'Brien. The cast includes Noah Beery, Louise Fazenda, Guinn

Williams, Paul McAllister, Nigel de Bruiler, Anders Randolph, Armand Kaliz, Myrna Loy, William V. Mong, Malcolm Waite, Noble Johnson, Otto Hoffman and Joe Bonomo. In many of the scenes in the city of iniquity, which Noah denounced, more than ten thousand extra players were used. The buildings and sets for picturing "Noah's Ark" covered thirty-eight acres.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
NAN CAIRO, secretary, is in love with her employer, JOHN CURTIS MORGAN, criminal lawyer, who is deeply in love with his wife, IRIS. Nan decides to resign but changes her mind when she learns Morgan is to defend a supposed friend, BERT CRAWFORD.

After Crawford's acquittal, he leaves town and Iris follows closely. Morgan writes Morgan she will return but cleverly omits to mention to Crawford, whom she trusts implicitly. Nan Morgan from despair by forcing him more deeply into his work. She acts as a long-distance housekeeper for him for six months, winning the love of little CURTIS, his son, and bringing effort to a man who ironically likes only of another.

Nan returns from her bar exams, and Morgan proposes to her. The divorce is granted, and Nan and he are married.

They are prevented from going on their honeymoon by the arrival of DAVID BLACKHULL, accused of the murder of his father. Nan insists that Morgan stay and take care of him.

For three months Nan's and Morgan's farcical marriage continues, but Nan's heart is broken. Three months to the day the marriage Nan tells her she cannot go on like this, waiting for her ultimatum to accept the challenge! But I promise not to be a dutiful wife, if it will make you feel better. I shan't even mention rubbers or winter heavies or the frightful amount of tobacco you smoke. In fact, I'll be such an unorthodox wife that you'll forget most of the time you're married at all. . . . When are you going to see the Blackhull butler and his niece, John?" she added, with such definite intention of changing the subject that her husband could have no chance of pursuing it further.

The program of that second day of Nan's junior partnership and of her marriage, which was not really a marriage, became a routine for most of the days that followed. They drove downtown together, Morgan using the stenographer before court opened, if he had a case on, Nan dictating only after his work was done.

Nearly always they lunched together, Morgan giving her a summary of his morning in court, and respectfully listening to her suggestions for the grilling of witnesses. As near 3 o'clock as possible the junior partner of Morgan & Morgan cleaned up her desk and drove home in the sedan to take on her role of "reg'lai mother" and housewife.

Honest Nan could not blink the fact that it was a wrench to tear herself away from the office each day, leaving the dearly beloved place in the charge of Kathleen O'Hara. Nor could she blink the fact that Kathleen was glad to see her go, although the two of them did not along together very amicably—chummily, it would have been if Nan had permitted it. Did Kathleen enjoy the feeling of added responsibility that Nan's early departure of the office gave her, or did her eager joyousness arise from the fact that, with Nan out of the way, she herself became indispensable to John Curtis Morgan, for whom her eyes always shone frankly with the bright light of hero-worship?

"If I don't watch out, I'll degenerate into a jealous little cat," Nan scolded herself loudly. "I should have one consolation anyway—if his slavish passion for Iris keeps him from falling in love with me, it will just as surely keep him from falling in love with anyone else. . . . Let's see: Curtis to the dentist; some new shelf paper for the kitchen cupboard; try to match that broken Serves cup."

The evenings brought her the greatest joy and the deepest pain. For every evening managed somehow to renew the hope she thought was so utterly dead. There was a world of good talk—mostly about the fine points of criminal law in general and their own cases in particular; talk during which Nan felt all the old intimacy and congenial companionship. But every evening hope was crushed again.

It was Wednesday evening Dec. 12, exactly three months after her wedding day, that Nan said to herself: "I can't go on like this. I'll go crazy or run away. . . . But how could I leave them? They need me so. But I CAN'T go on like this."

It was as if Fate had been waiting for her ultimatum and wanted to show her how promptly such challenge could be accepted.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

Later, as they were traveling to the office in the handsome new sedan, Morgan said gravely, after a long silence: "I think the boy is right, Nan. He has almost as much right to you now as I have. Your new work should not keep you busy all day, since you won't be in the courtroom much in fact, I'd rather you left that part of the dirty work entirely up to me. The courtroom is no place for a girl, especially the criminal court. And with Miss O'Hara to do the stenographic work for both of us—" He hesitated, stole a sidelong glance at her to see how she was taking it.

Nan would not look at him. Her eyes stared straight ahead, as she answered in a low voice: "I'll do what you want me to do. I'll be my duty by you and do my work."

"Nan!" His voice was lit with a husky whisper, then he reached his throat, and said in an oddly strained voice: "Don't worry about your duty to me, dear Nan. I understand. I should've known—let you—so young."

Nan listened, first with amazement, then with indignation. "Can the blessed idiot possibly think I locked the door because I don't love him? Or is he seizing this opportunity to let me know, as tactfully as possible, that he doesn't care?"

Her pride, which had been thoroughly aroused the night before, stood her in good stead now. It gave her the power to laugh, before she retorted flippantly: "Who's SO young? I was 25 last year."

WONDERFUL TO FEEL LIKE I DO—ALDERSON

Owe My Health to Orgatone After Suffering 20 Years. Says Brownwood Contractor.

For more than twenty years before I began taking Orgatone, I was in a very bad condition and I don't know where my work was nearly dread to me," said Harry Alderson, of 501 Victoria, Brownwood, Texas, who is a well known and eminent citizen of this section.

"When I began taking Orgatone," Alderson continued, "my system seemed to be all run-down. I had no appetite and couldn't eat a thing and was getting weaker and weaker every day. I would have a puffed bloated feeling, and gas would build up so bad at times, I could not get my breath. My nerves simply shattered to pieces and I had a complete physical wreck. I tired and worn out all the time and never had any energy. I was in a very bad condition and this caused pains in my back and sides. I had a bad case of constipation, and had to take medicine most all the time. A relative of mine recommended Orgatone to me, and I have been taking it ever since. I feel much better than I have in years, and have more energy and life about me. I enjoy what I eat and do not have that full, bloated-up feeling in my stomach. I am entirely relieved of my constipation and in fact I just feel rejuvenated all over. Orgatone is such a good medicine. I take great pleasure in recommending it to anyone. For I owe my present good health to it."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called secret or patent remedy but a new scientific bile preparation and is sold in Cigo exclusively by Dean Drug Co., the personal direction of tone representative.

CHAPTER XXXIII
When, that Wednesday evening, the third monthly anniversary of her marriage to John Curtis Morgan, the little Curtis loudly clamored for a game of anagrams, Nan had no presentiment that a crisis in that still inconclusive marriage was rapidly hurrying down upon her.

Curtis' very modern school-teacher had introduced the game

A New Month!

A new month arrives and as we look back over our business we have great cause to thank our friends who have made it a pleasant one. It has been a delight to serve you and each day has been a separate problem—though a pleasant one—as to how we could make it a more complete service for you.

If we have merited a kind word we would appreciate your bringing a friend with you this month and introduce us so that we may have the opportunity of extending our service in a broader way.

We are big enough to take care of all worthy accounts with our usual service and courtesy.

of anagrams into her classroom as a novel but effective aid in the teaching of spelling and definitions. And Curtis had become so enamored of the game that he insisted upon a session of anagrams with his father and stepmother every evening after dinner.

They had been engrossed for 10 minutes this evening with the little wooden letters when Curtis triumphantly formed the word "ho-o," adding it to the three other words he had captured.

"Only trouble it, it's too easy to take," the little boy grumbled. "There! I knew I'd lose it! Why did you have to get 'E' so quick, Nan?"

His stepmother grinned at him as she took his three letters and made the word into "hope."

"And here's an 'S' which I can't do anything with," his father said with pretended discouragement, as he laid the letter in the pool, along with an "R" and a "K" already there.

"And here's an 'L' that's no good to me," Curtis gloomed, as he flung the letter to the center of the bridge table.

"But I can make it 'hopes,'" Nan triumphed, annexing the "S" from the pool and discarding another "E" she had drawn from the pile of face-down letters.

"Whew!" Curtis leaned excitedly toward Nan and studied the pool and her word, "Hopes."

"Lookee! If Father gets an L, he can take 'Hopes' away from you Nan, and leave you 'hopeless' Hi! That's a joke, Father! Get it? It's a pun, 'cause a pun is a play on words. We had it in spelling yesterday."

"Did you also learn that the pun is the lowest form of wit?" his father gibed. "Well, what do you know about that?" he pretended vast amazement and triumph. "I HAVE got the 'L'—"

"Poor Nan! Father takes her 'hopes' away from her," Curtis sympathized. "Don't you mind Nan. Father's got some little old three-letter words over there you can steal. Look! I betcha you can take his 'love' with a 'G' or an 'R'—Gee!" he marveled aloud. "I can take his 'love' with that 'R' that's been in the pool all along. Poor Nan! Father takes her 'hopes' and I take his 'love' before she can—"

It was then that Nan in her heart cried out despairingly: "I can't go on like this! I'll go crazy or run away. . . . But I CAN'T go on like this! Even a silly little word game stabs me in the heart."

She played on mechanically, her small face pale and set, her wide brown eyes blind to so many chances that at last Curtis demanded resentfully: "What's the matter, Nan? You aren't trying any more! Are you mad, Nan? You won't let ME be a bad sport and sulk when I lose—"

"Sorry, darling," Nan apologized. "I wasn't sulking about the game—honest! I was thinking of something else. You've won again, haven't you, Curtis? . . . Fine! Suppose you and your father play alone for a while. I've got some work to do—"

And before Curtis could utter half the protests that were tumbling off his clamorous tongue Nan had run into the library and shut the door.

Fifteen minutes later father and son appeared in the doorway, hand in hand, the tall man smiling down fondly upon the flushed, excited child.

"He's licked me again, Nan," Morgan told her. "I'm getting even with the champion anagram player by sending him off to bed. It's after eight. He's 10 minutes to the good, and gloating indecently over having won three games straight."

"I'm going to take the dictionary to bed with me," Nan threatened blithely. Would either of them notice that she had been crying? "Good night, Curtis. Your father'll go up with you tonight. I'm busy, darling."

"Going over the Blackhull case, Nan?" Morgan asked cheerfully. "Good! There are one or two points I'd like to smooth out with you, if you feel like it. . . . Come along, champ! . . . Oh, all right but might I remind you that you have already kissed Nan twice?"

When they had gone, hilariously, chummily—her work, that!—Nan stared for long minutes at the mass of papers on the library desk, but a thick lens of tears makes a poor reading medium.

No, she couldn't go on like this any longer. Why should she? Every day was torture, every night a hell of loneliness and crushed hope. Curtis had put it with terrifying clarity: "Poor Nan! Father takes her 'hopes' and I take his 'love' before she can—"

For three months he had daily given her a tiny modicum of hope, only to kill it, by a casual good-night kiss on her cheek or forehead or hand. For three months she had striven with every ingenuity known to a woman in love to win his love. . . . and she had failed. She had made his home a haven of comfort and peace and beauty. She had mothered his boy until the boy's own mother would scarcely have known him, so splendidly healthy and happy and normal he had become. She had brought father and son into such close companionship and congeniality that an editorial writer for a woman's magazine would have burgled with joy as he described the two. She had worked on his cases with a brilliance and zeal which not even the old Nan of pre-marriage days had dreamed possible. And for reward she had—exactly nothing.

Oh, of course—Nan reminded herself bitterly—she appreciated her work as housekeeper, mother and law partner. He was not chary of praise. And of course there was some nourishment for her starving heart in seeing him slowly lose the tragic shadows from his deep-set black eyes, in seeing his lean body become less lean. Oh, yes, she had given him peace of a sort, contentment of a sort, and he was obviously grateful. But what had he given her? Well, a chance to serve him! Once that would have been enough for Nan, but now it was not enough. She had earned more—everything. And since his love for Iris could not die, he had no coin with which to pay his debt to her. To his credit he said—Nan reminded herself with a bitter smile—he had not tried to pay in counter-feit.

"Slaving away, dear?" Morgan interrupted from the doorway. "See any loopholes in the case? Want to be in court in the morning when the case opens?"

Nan bowed her head lower over the papers, so that he might not see the traces of her tears. "I—believe not, John." She could not explain that the jovial, teasing attitude of her husband's legal colleagues toward the great criminal lawyer's partner-wife was unbearable to her. If she had been his wife in fact, as well as in name she would have gloated over their pleasantries. . . . The case looks watertight to me. I see you have the last of the depositions from Riverside, Calif. Bassett doesn't suspect a thing, does he?"
