ST. LOUIS FLIERS SET NEW RECORD Many Attend Lake Cisco Resort for Pathe News Event SUCCESS ATTENDS F.F.T. CAMP HERE

ACTIVITIES TO BE PROMOTED BY GATHERING

First Annual Meet Brings Praise From Visitors

Comments on all sides from those attending the first annual F. F. T. encampment here, beginning yesterday and closing at noon tomorrow, reveal that the boys are having a great time and that the camp is a success in every way.

Nearly 70 youngsters, accompanied by vocational agriculture instructor, had arrived in camp at 1 o'clock today. Many arrived yesterday. They are from Santa Anna, Coleman, Rising Star, May, Banger, Gorman, Clyde, Dublin, Eastland, Olney, Abilene, and Cisco.

After registration yesterday, the boys took a swim in Lake Cisco. This morning they were the guests of the Palace theater for today's program. Yesterday afternoon J. E. T. Peters, Cisco chamber of commerce secretary welcomed the boys to the city at the country club. Other speakers for brief addresses were J. J. Brown, assistant supervisor of vocational agriculture, state department, Austin; E. R. Alexander, director vocational agriculture, A and M college; J. C. Dykes, professor of vocational agriculture, A and M; H. L. Gantz, field editor of Farm and Ranch magazine, Dallas.

CALLEES GOING FROM MEXICO CITY TO N. Y.

SAN ANTONIO, July 23.—The tumultuous welcome of two cities ringing in his ears, General Pularco Elias Calles, former president of Mexico and leader of the Mexican federal forces in the recent revolution, was traveling across country today towards New York where he will embark for Europe soon in an effort to regain his health.

General Calles entered the United States at Laredo, where he was greeted by a salute of 21 guns at Fort McIntosh. He left Laredo shortly and arrived at San Antonio where he was greeted by Enrique Santibanez, Mexican consul general.

ALL DRESSED UP FOR FLYING

A lucky cameraman snapped this excellent shot of Mrs. Charles Augustus Landberg, the former Annie Morrow, who is doing about as much flying as her famous husband these days. No longer averse to pictures now that their honeymoon is over, Mrs. Landberg posed for this picture in the cockpit of the Landbergs' private plane just before a takeoff.

State Comptroller's Department Ready for Exemption Reports on New Occupation Tax on Gasoline

The State Comptroller's Department is now prepared to receive reports of exemptions from the new four-cent occupation tax on the sale of gasoline, according to an announcement by State Comptroller of Public Accounts Sam Houston Terrell. Gasoline used for any other purpose than that of propelling vehicles on public roads, streets and highways of Texas is exempt from taxation. Fuel used in farm tractors, stationary engines, air craft and motor boats, therefore, is exempt. However, the tax must be paid on all gasoline. Refunds will be made to those exempt. The tax is placed directly on wholesale distributors of gasoline at the rate of four cents per gallon, but the consumer eventually bears the burden of the tax. The new rate was in effect July 16th, having previously been two cents.

Juvenile Committed to Training School

Sitting as a juvenile court judge Elzo Ben of the 88th district court, Monday afternoon heard the case of the state of Texas vs. Hubert Earles, 14-year old youth whose home is near Gorman. After hearing the testimony against Earles the court rendered a decision committing the boy to the State Juvenile training school at Gatesville until he is 21 years of age.

Airplant Promotes Rapid Oil Flow

An airplant was recently used for the first time in a Wichita, Kan., oil field where the experiments at one lease drew 1,847 barrels in twenty-four hours from a well that naturally was flowing 400 barrels. Air was pumped into the hole under pressure where in much the manner of natural gas, it forced up the oil.

CAMERA CLICKS AND SWIMMERS "ENTER MOVIES"

Four Hundred Feet of Film Is Used for "Shots"

By LOUISE TRAMMELL. Despite the coolness of the weather yesterday, a large crowd of bathers were out to "break into the movies" and take advantage of the free swims offered between the hours of 5 and 6.

Of the three pools, the kiddies, seemed to be the most popular and the little tots laughed and splashed as if it were the warmest day of the year.

Many onlookers were out also to watch the mad scrambles among the bathers for front places when the camera began turning. Guy H. Albright, Pathe News cameraman, ground out 400 feet of film, taking the pool, groups of swimmers, and the special pleasure devices. The first pictures were taken from the south side of the entire pool. From the land shots were made of bathers spurning on the top of a swimming race, and of boys as they slid along the greased pole to grab for the tags dangling from the end.

The most interesting sights were the dives from the top of the tower made by "Cotton" Phippen, "Cluck" Van Horn, and Odie Stovall. Phippen did an excellent flip and a half. Van Horn did a clean back flip, cutting the water with the least amount of splash, and Stovall made a perfect swim from the rail around the top swimming instructor Curran climaxed the diving with a back-jack from the third tower.

From the top of the slide some excellent views were snapped of the bathers as they shot down the toboggans, of the entire pool, the sun sinking behind the dam, the crowds on the steps, and of the drive down to the pool.

According to Mr. Albright, these films will be sent directly to New York, headquarters for the Pathe News, where after development they will be run for inspection and cut to 150 feet. If OK'd they will be sent out a week from Tuesday, when they will begin their run either national or local. Fifteen reels were made of the shots of the recent bathing revue, making about a 60 day run through Texas.

Big Field Covered by Pathe. When the two issues of the Pathe News comes out on Tuesday and in Friday, 11,000,000 theaters all over the world run them. About two men are stationed in every state and one or two in every foreign country who send in about 30 reels of film each week of both silent and sound news. Pathe News men are sent on every unusual expedition and like news reporters cover all the happenings of the day. A cameraman is a member of Byrd's expedition now.

Mr. Albright says the fascination of this business to the uncertainty of where he will be sent next.

"Often," he says, "I will be ordered to a town and before I arrive will receive orders to some other place. During the Mexican disturbance, I spent two months on the border, before I was ordered back to Dallas. Within 24 hours after I reached there, I had to return to the border."

The films as exposed are about the size of a postage stamp when shown on the screen are enlarged to 16 by 20 feet—such an enlargement making it necessary to have the finest focusing by the camera. Mr. and Mrs. Albright and two sons, Guy H. Jr. and Nathan have been in Cisco all this week. They have been the guests of several individuals for boating, swimming and fishing and report that they have had a very delightful time.

Candidates and Prospective Ones for Governor Are Set Free After Adjournment of 41st Legislature

By GORDON K. SHIFFALER. United Press Staff Correspondent. AUSTIN, July 23.—Adjournment of the state legislature has set free a number of legislative candidates for office and a number of prospective candidates—both in and out of the legislature.

Definite announcements of candidates for governor have been issued by Lieut. Gov. Barry Miller, Dallas; Tom Love, Dallas; Miss Katie Daffan, Ennis; Former Mayor Oscar Holcombe, Houston; T. N. Mauritz, Ganado; and E. G. Senter, Dallas.

Candidate discussed at Austin as "likely" include: Former U. S. Senator Mayfield, Former Governor Neff, R. S. Sterling, Houston, H. L. Bobbit, Laredo, Lee Satterwhite, Odessa, and Dr. S. P. Brooks, Waco. It is also considered possible that there may be a repetition of a campaign with two Davids running for the high office—Lynch and T. W.

River Racing Boat, "Bogie," Continues to Clip Hours Off 'Robert Lee' Record

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 23.—Dr. Louis Leroy in his high-powered speedboat, the "Bogie," today continued to cut hours from the 39-year-old record of the Robert E. Lee from New Orleans to St. Louis.

If all goes well the Memphis surgeon, a veteran river pilot, expects to reach the foot of Olive Street, St. Louis, at 3:06 p. m. Wednesday, just 72 hours and one minute after he left New Orleans at 3 p. m. Sunday and 18 hours ahead of the record of 90 hours and 31 minutes.

GREENSVILLE, Miss., July 23.—The speedboat "Bogie," driven swiftly northward along the trail of the Robert E. Lee, was well ahead of the famous Civil War packet's record today but the cruiser yacht Martha Jane, here competing in challenging the mark that stood for 59 years, had been forced out of the race.

The Martha Jane arrived at Natchez at 11:50 o'clock last night. She had lost seven hours when balky motors refused to start after they had been stopped while the crew sought to repair a steering disorder. George M. Cox, her owner, despaired of overtaking the "Bogie."

MOODY VETOES FIGURES FROM MINOR BILLS

AUSTIN, July 23.—Governor Moody's blue pencil is at work on six supreme court figures before the legislature. Without reaching the major appropriation bills, he has cut $129,861 from the authorized expenditures. One veto took $100,000 that had been appropriated for a memorial to Davy Crockett. In vetoing this Governor Moody said that the condition of state finances does not justify the expenditure now. He pointed out that an appropriation to buy ground about the Alamo had previously been vetoed for the same reasons. Another item of $8,000 to preserve Sam Houston's old home at Huntsville also was vetoed.

From an emergency appropriation bill he struck out the following items: Ramsey Prison farm appropriations made by the legislature. Without reaching the major appropriation bills, he has cut $129,861 from the authorized expenditures.

Whether Lynch Davidson's candidacy would keep out T. W. Davidson of Marshall is debatable. If Lynch Davidson, who comes from Houston runs he will oppose a state income tax and a statewide road bond issue.

ROBIN PLANE DEFEATS "OLD" FLIGHT MARK

Challenger Motor Is Running Smoothly Today

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 23.—The St. Louis Robin plane established a new world's endurance flight record at 3 o'clock this afternoon, and still flying. The record is 247 hours, 43 minutes and 32 seconds.

ST. LOUIS, July 23.—Steadily whittling away the hours, the St. Louis-Robin endurance plane drew to within five hours of a new world refueling record of 247:43:32 at 10:01 a. m. today.

Despite an early morning "oil scare," nothing serious has occurred to mar the prospects of a record. Major William B. Robertson, sponsor of the flight, told the United Press.

"As a matter of fact, I expect they'll stay up there until Friday at least," Robertson said after Dale Jackson and Forrest O'Brien, pilots of the craft, had reported impaired vision because of oil. "That oil was fly-off matter from applications they have made to the motor, and is in no way indicative of anything wrong."

K. W. K. H. TO TRY AGAIN

SHREVEPORT, La., July 23.—Pored to land late yesterday because of fouled spark plugs, Van Leary and Curry Sanders, pilots of the endurance plane "KWKH" were making preparations today to take off again for another try at the world's refueling flight record.

The two fliers had been in the air over 128 hours, or more than half way to the goal of 246 hours set by the "Angeleno" in Culver City, Calif., recently.

Airport officials said that repairs could be made to the fouled spark plugs almost immediately and the ship placed in condition to take off again. Friends of the two fliers, however, tried to dissuade them from taking off until they had time to rest from the five days of grueling effort, during which Leary got six hours sleep and Sanders five.

C. C. Directors to Meet at 5 Today

The board of directors of the Cisco chamber of commerce will meet this afternoon from 5 until 6 o'clock, changing the regular schedule of meeting so that the members may visit the F. F. T. encampment at 7:30 this evening.

SIC SEMPER TARANTULA. The old-time spirit of American freedom yet lives. A few there be in this age who will stand up for their rights with boundless bravery and unconquerable courage.

Such an one is the Beaumont attorney who rose in his wrath and called forth with his trusty rifle. Once, twice, thrice he pulled the trigger. No redskin bit the dust, for he was aiming at no noble red man. A radio loud speaker was his target. The first bullet found the mark but the loud speaker took no notice. The second shot struck and the loud speaker faltered. The third landed and the loud speaker fell mortally wounded.

It seems that the loud speaker was connected to a radio in a confederacy situated in a residential district and that the radio blared forth day and night almost without ceasing. Now a radio is a noble institution—in moderation—but an endless diet of broadcast music would cloy even the least fastidious taste especially when heard from some distance and when the hearer has no choice as to the station.

The citizenship, as they sought to read, to write, to chat, to eat, to pray and to sleep, were subjected to this unending musical outpouring, it seems. They petitioned and entreated but in vain, just as was the case in Patrick Henry's day. So shouting "Liberty or death," the brave harrister marched forth to battle. Single-handed, he charged the fortifications and, in a mighty struggle, he conquered.

The owner of the radio has protected to the authorities. Of course, the lawyer's act may have been illegal. So was the Boston tea party. (Not to be confused with the white house tea party.) But the fact of the business is that war itself being a form of violence is illegal but the world keeps on having wars. And this was but a form of warfare.

If the rifle broadside of the attorney was illegal, what of the conduct of the radio owner? If he had sought to build a glue factory, the courts would have held it to be a nuisance as it would render valueless the nearby residential property. But is an odor any more objectionable than the noise of a radio?

Craig B. Hazlewood, president of the American Bankers association, says: "That in this nation we have garnered success like wild rice out of the abundance of nature. The richness of this country has been such that only the most complete lack of management could result in failure. And after each success, we have expressed satisfaction over our good management, when in reality much of our success should have been accredited to Divine Providence and good fortune. Men have too frequently succeeded out of the richness of their environment, and then have congratulated themselves upon their good management."

But if there is any lesson to be learned from the studies and surveys which have been made of business in this country in recent years, it is the imperative necessity for better management. We have learned that the primary reason for success or failure today is not economic conditions—not environment—not location—not any other factor—but management. Good management has made enormous strides within the past few years, but it still has before it opportunities for major improvements in industry, more important than any we have ever experienced in the past. There are possible refinements in operation, closer budgetary control, standardization of a thousand commodities, simplification of processes, greater mass production and still lower costs, faster turnover, more efficient machinery, and many other possibilities, all of which will bring to industry most gratifying returns, with economies and savings heretofore unknown.

These benefits, moreover, will extend to the ultimate consumer, the purchasing power of whose income, and the sum total of whose permanent capital will be increased many times.

Work of the Legislative Trimmers Gov. Moody called the lawmakers for a third special session and told them to trim. They trimmed. That is, they used pruning knives and sent appropriations totaling $47,792,955 to the gentleman down stairs. Now the gentleman down stairs had told the lawmakers in a message that the major appropriations certainly should not exceed $48,000,000. They saw the point and surrendered to the inevitable.

Today final adjournment of the session will take place and the legislative servants of the people of Texas will return to their respective homes. They will be back in the "good old winter time."

POT SHOTS AT POLITICS

By Col. Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald. AUSTIN

Tossed into the Wastebasket Rep. Ieno E. Eickenrodt, the only republican member of the house, asked by resolution for the appointment of a committee to prepare and offer revenue raising measures to the next legislature.

The gentleman from Guadalupe made a tearful plea for the adoption of the resolution. Well, apparently a majority of the house did not care to tap new sources of revenue at this time for they throttled the resolution.

That is, they sent it to the official wastebasket. There are two republican members of the senate. That is, there were republicans last year. There is no telling what will emerge from the Texas political melting pot next year.

SLAKES HOLD UP WORK.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., July 23.—Hundreds of poisonous snakes have impeded work of patrolmen on the high-tension power line along the Delaware river near Port Jervis. One patrolman, J. E. Marsa, said he has killed 60 reptiles in a few days. Other patrolmen are carrying clubs to combat the many copperheads, rattlers and other dangerous snakes which are rampant in the region. Excessive rains and hot weather is believed to have brought the serpents out in unusually great numbers.

It will house the long distance cable of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company and will form one link in a vast chain of underground channels which will bring the voices of five states to this city.

MUSCLES GIVEN TRAINING HAVE BEST CONTROL

By DR. J. C. ANDERSON, State Health Officer. A teacher who stands erect and pays a great deal of attention to posture usually has a class of pupils who do not slouch or slump as they stand or as they sit at their desks. They have trained their muscles in the right way. Success or failure in many things depends as much or even more upon the control of the muscles as it does upon their strength and development. Muscles must be trained if we would have them give us the best possible service with the least amount of direction and effort.

Muscles are trained by use. As they do over and over the same movements, they become accustomed to doing them in certain ways. The close attention and the careful direction needed in the beginning gradually becomes less necessary and important. Then, if the process of training is kept up long enough, the movements develop

Sit firmly with the body erect. 2. Sit well back in the seat so that the bones in the upper legs will support the weight of the body all along their length. 3. Rest the feet flat on the floor with toes pointed forward. 4. Whenever you find yourself sliding down in the seat or bending too far forward, straighten up before the muscles get used to holding the body in these incorrect positions. It is easy for them to stand erect because their muscles have become accustomed to their duties and are kept in the best possible condition to do the work for which they are intended.

MUSCLES GIVEN TRAINING HAVE BEST CONTROL

By DR. J. C. ANDERSON, State Health Officer. A teacher who stands erect and pays a great deal of attention to posture usually has a class of pupils who do not slouch or slump as they stand or as they sit at their desks. They have trained their muscles in the right way. Success or failure in many things depends as much or even more upon the control of the muscles as it does upon their strength and development. Muscles must be trained if we would have them give us the best possible service with the least amount of direction and effort.

Muscles are trained by use. As they do over and over the same movements, they become accustomed to doing them in certain ways. The close attention and the careful direction needed in the beginning gradually becomes less necessary and important. Then, if the process of training is kept up long enough, the movements develop

It is easy for them to stand erect because their muscles have become accustomed to their duties and are kept in the best possible condition to do the work for which they are intended.

U. S. Tennis Team to Meet France for Davis Cup

GETTY SEES SLIM CHANCE OF VICTORY

French Have Been Holding Trophy Since 1927

By FRANK GETTY, United Press Sports Editor.

An American tennis team is preparing once more to do battle with France's "Four Musketeers" for possession of the historic Davis cup. Whereas our Americans have won through a strenuous campaign to reach the challenge round, the French have been able to take things as easy as they pleased. They went over to Wimbledon and took away the singles honors again, but they only played when they felt like it.

The United States team has been working up towards the challenge since early in the spring. Tilden and Frank Hunter led most of their work abroad, while the youngsters were mopping up the opposition in the American league.

What are the chances of victory over France and the return of the Davis cup to its native shores? Well, indeed, the French are too young for our veterans and too salty for our younger players. Conditions at Paris are made to order for Cochet, La Coste & Co. Once a nation gets the Davis cup hangs onto the trophy like grim death. Only twice since the cup matches were inaugurated in 1900 as the nation winning the trophy lost it the following year.

There were no matches in 1901, 1915-18 and on three other occasions, in 1904 and 1919, the United States did not compete.

Vitaphone Catches Football Roar in 'Time, Place, Girl'

The "Big Game"—an institution in every American community with a stadium big enough to support a college—the thrilling riot of colors—the feverish, milling throng—the uniformed rooters—the stunts—the frantic cheer leader working himself into exhaustion—the hysterical co-eds screaming for victory—the dizzy freshmen trying to usher and watch everything on the field at the same time—the old grads taking a drink to every yard of gain—or less—the usual nose-diving aviator who terrifies every one in the stands, the long run by the star through a broken field—

All of this with its real voices and sounds has been captured for the screen for the first time in "Time, Place and the Girl," the Warner Bros. Vitaphone all-talking and singing production of the famous musical comedy success by Hough, Adams and Howard, which Howard Bretherton directed.

The songs, dialogue and action that made the production such a great stage hit are rendered by Vitaphone.

The story opens with a college background. Grant Withers is the football hero who becomes everything but heroic bond salesman. Rivals for his favor are Betty Compton and Gertrude Olmsted. The picture will begin at the Palace today for a run of 3 days.

As a move toward preparedness for 1930 and years that will follow.

As the team now stands—Tilden, Lott, Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn, the latter comprising the doubles team—it is the youngest American squad ever to represent this country in the challenge round of a Davis cup contest.

LACOSTE MAY NOT PLAY

PARIS, July 23.—Whether Rene Lacoste will play on the French Davis cup team against the United States in the challenge round this week end will not be determined until Friday, Jean Borotra told the United Press.

"I'm not certain, but I doubt whether Rene will be in shape to play," Borotra said.

Lacoste, who has been suffering from a severe cold, did not practice with the team yesterday.

KEEN BATTING COMPETITION MAJOR LEAGUE

Rivalry Is Close Between Leading Batters

By GEORGE KIRKSEY, United Press Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, July 23.—A keen struggle is in progress for the batting leadership in the two major leagues, with two percentage points separating the two National League bace-setters and a bare point between the two American league leaders.

The last of the 400 hitters have disappeared and Babe Herman, Brooklyn outfielder, who leads the National league with .395, is also the major league leader. Two points behind Herman comes Frank (Lefty) O'Doul, John J. McGraw's discard who is playing in the Phillies' outfield.

Heinie Manush, St. Louis Browns outfielder who lost the American league batting crown to Goose Goslin by a lone point last season, is leading the American league parade with a .387 mark—one point ahead of Jimmy Fox, Philadelphia's Athletic first baseman.

After hitting above .400 for the first half of the season, Fox has fallen into a slight slump and is down to .386.

A year ago Rogers Hornsby was leading the National league hitters with an average of .392, while Goose Goslin was leading the American league hitters with an average of .396. Both won the batting championships of their respective leagues.

In the modern history of baseball only four men have ever batted .400 or better. They are Hornsby in the National league and Ty Cobb, Harry Heilmann and George Sisler in the American.

Hornsby has batted over .400 on three occasions—1922, 1924 and 1925. Cobb batted over .400 in 1911 and 1912; Sisler topped the mark in 1920 and 1922 and Heilmann hung up .403 in 1925.

SHREVEPORT, La., July 23.—Golfers representing the states of Texas, Louisiana and Arkansas today began the Southwestern Golf tournament which will continue here until Saturday.

Eighty-eight entries had registered late yesterday and more were expected to arrive this morning. Three flights of 32 each are planned for today. The field will play in threesomes.

In a practice game yesterday, Jack Speer of Houston, the defending champion, turned in a 73, as did Ralph Guldahl, Gus Moreland and Jack Jackson, all of the Texas delegation.

Early Evacuation of Rhineland Appears Reality; Reporter Pays Visit to Occupation Territory

EDITORS NOTE: With the successful conclusion of the Young plan and the advent of the Labor government in power in Great Britain, the early evacuation of the Rhineland by the troops of the allied armies of occupation now appears certain. Such a move is almost certain to be the outcome of the proposed conference of Germany and her creditors in August.

The United Press sent Ralph Heinzen, its Paris bureau manager, through the Rhineland. He talked with the French, Belgian and British troops, their officers, with the German "man in the street." The burgomasters and many civilians who would be likely to feel the military control of the Allies. The impression he gained has furnished the material for an absorbing series of five articles, of which this is the first.

COLOGNE, July 22.—The early evacuation of the Rhineland by the Allied troops of occupation, who have been there since early 1923 under one of the "guarantee sanctions" of the Treaty of Versailles, has become in German opinion, a moral, more than a material, necessity. The next gathering of European statesmen certainly will negotiate the evacuation by Christmas of the remaining corners' nest of occupation.

URNS TABLES AFTER 15 YRS.

"Sargon turned the tables for me after I had tried for 15 years to get well of stomach trouble. Now I am gaining every day. I went from 119 to 130 pounds, a gain of 11 pounds in three weeks on just three bottles. That's pretty good for a man 62 years old. I suffered day and night for almost 15 years and spent many hard earned dollars for medicines, but none of them reached my case until I got Sargon. I felt week and sick from morning until night. I would just drag myself around but now I feel years younger and can keep going all day. I eat anything I want and have no trace of stomach trouble, headaches or dizzy spells any more."

The Sargon Soft Mass Pills straightened out my liver and I no longer suffer from biliousness and constipation. It sure is great to be feeling like my old self again and I will always praise the Sargon treatment. There never was any medicine equal to it."

any better with the peaceful Rhinelanders either. When the Allies pull out, the Reichwehr will move in again, and in force of arms at least, there will be no difference for the civilians. Education is a subject of debate only a few hours a day. The Rhineland is one of the busiest corners of Germany, and it would be hard to drum up any evacuation enthusiasm before 6 o'clock in the evening. But after dinner, when the Germans and their wives and "kinder" gather at the cafes under the trees, the men puff at their long pipes and agree without a dissenting voice that the foreigners must go, but the "kinder" follow along after the French or Belgian or British soldiers and beg a penny just as boys follow soldiers everywhere.

Evacuation Costly
Economically, the departure of the Allies will cost the Rhineland a pretty mark. The presence there of 60,000 men, many of them accompanied by their families, brings a million dollars a month to local tradesmen and employment to 4,000 German civilians directly and to thousands of others indirectly.

The withdrawal of the occupation forces is certain to bring the Rhineland a serious problem of unemployment. The municipal officials admit it and expect it, but they look to the central government at Berlin to provide for the unemployed, for political reasons.

The story of the occupation is quickly told. The ink on the Armistice was scarcely dried before the American, British, Belgian and French divisions of pecked troops started forward for the Rhineland. The Americans entered Mayence on December 6, 1918, and crossed the Rhine to take over the bridgehead on December 13.

At the start the British held the zone and bridgehead of Cologne, with the Belgians farther north; the Americans were assigned to the Coblenz bridgehead and zone, and the French held the southern zone and bridgeheads, with Mayence as their base. Everything went along peacefully until the French, making use of a sanction accorded by the Versailles Treaty, occupied the Ruhr in January, 1923. They remained there and controlled the heart of German industry until Germany signed the Dawes plan, the French withdrew ing their troops in August, 1924. French unpopularity was never at such height, in the Rhineland, as during those 19 months.

Evacuation in 1926
When Germany was admitted by the Conference of Ambassadors to have fulfilled her disarmament obligations, on November 11, 1925, the order was given to evacuate the Cologne zone in accordance with the peace treaty. On January 30, 1926, the British troops started to move out, accompanied by their 800 German wives accumulated during their stay. The French evacuated Bonn, birthplace of Beethoven, shortly after and the Belgians moved out of Krafield, restoring the northern zone to Germany. The British moved south to take up headquarters at Weisbaden after trimming their forces greatly, and the Belgians took over Aix-la-Chapelle.

When the Americans, at the order of congress, moved out of the Coblenz zone, the French moved in. This second zone, which contains the great, productive plateau of Essel with 17 mile bridgehead across the Rhine at Coblenz, must be evacuated early in 1930, in accordance with the treaty. The third zone, with Mayence as its center, remains in the control of the Allies, to guarantee the functioning of the peace treaty, until 1935. It is to advance this date, that Germany is centering her efforts on an evacuation conference. The present strength of the occupation forces, small compared with the great army that moved into the Rhine before Christmas, 1923, is 60,000 men, whereof 48,450 are French, 6,250 British and 5,300 Belgian.

SELLS PARENTS' GRAVESTONES
MOSCOW, July 23. — The artistic gravestones on the tombs of her parents are helping support a former aristocrat now reduced to beggary. Lady Maria Skaratina-Demekaya was once among the most brilliant figures in the imperial court at St. Petersburg. Now she is a familiar figure on the streets of Moscow—an old, sick woman who begs kopecks from passersby. Recently, when it was announced that a monastery where her family tombs are located would be razed, she reclaimed the sculptured gravestones over her father's and mother's tombs and sold them.

REAL "SKY PILOT" IN TEXAS

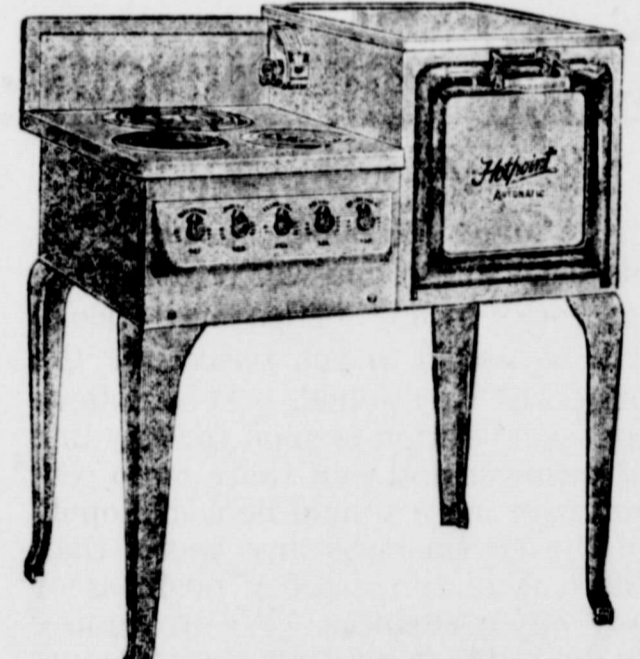

He left his pulpit, this parson did, to get into the aerial swim. Above is Rev. I. C. West, who resigned as pastor of a Fort Worth, Tex., church to accept a position with the Texas Air Transport Flying School, Inc. But Rev. West is not through with the church. He now goes by air—a regular pilot—every week-end to serve as visiting pastor in different churches.

The SHINING TALENT

By ELEANOR EARLY © 1929 By NEA Service Inc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
The trial of LIONEL BARROWS, accused of the murder of BERNICE BRADFORD, has now to a close. And little MOLLY BURNHAM, covering her first big story, is trembling with excitement.

Barrows was charged with poisoning a notoriously light and beautiful woman, whom he once loved. Bernice Bradford was found dead in her bed. And though she had many lovers, suspicion centered on Barrows, the petted darling of smart society, and a married man to boot.

The trial has afforded Molly a big chance to do some real writing. She is engaged to marry a boy named JACK WELLS, whom she loves devotedly. But she has dreams also of being an author, or a playwright, perhaps. She is a very ambitious girl, and clever and beautiful besides. During this trial she has achieved a good deal of fame.

HOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER X
The trial lasted two weeks. And on the 15th day the jury retired to reach a decision. Eighteen hours later they brought in the verdict.

Barrows took it coolly. But Molly did a most surprising thing. Through the long night the reporters waited in the courtroom, they sent out for food, but Molly was too excited to eat. As it grew late, the others slept, dropping their heads on their arms.

carelessly, since the consensus of opinion was that Barrows was undeniably guilty. Betting around the press table was 5 to 3 that he would be convicted.

At 10 o'clock they brought the prisoner in. He walked slowly to his cage, a guard on either side. His face looked like a death mask and his long dark lashes swept his ash-colored cheeks. He seemed like a murderer going to the hangman's noose. And Molly shivered as he passed.

"Gentlemen of the Jury, have you reached a decision?"

The foreman stood. "We have your honor."

A guard in blue, with brass buttons on his uniform, pulled the prisoner to his feet.

Molly was praying silently. She believed the man guilty, but because a woman's heart is made of pity, rather than of justice, she began, weakly, to pray. "Oh, God, don't let him be guilty. Please God, don't let him be guilty."

The foreman of the jury squared his shoulders. "Not guilty, your honor."

The prisoner closed his eyes, shivered convulsively, and slipped like a woman, to the floor. There was a great commotion at the press table. Reporters dashed madly for the telephones in the corridor. Messenger boys ran from the room. And then, in the midst of all the confusion, Molly fainted. Quietly—falling to the floor, in a still heap, like the defendant.

They threw cold water on her and made her drink coffee that was cold and bitter. And when they had revived her, they laughed at her, because reporters are not supposed to be emotional, and a sob sister, they said, should be hard-boiled.

On the courthouse steps Molly bought a paper. Her story led the sheet, and across the top was a flaming banner line that exhorted the public, in scarlet type, "READ MOLLY BURNHAM'S HEART THROBS." Her picture was there. And there were pictures, too, of Bernice Bradford and Lionel Barrows.

"Wouldn't mother have a fit!" thought Molly.

The week was up, and Molly one evening, was reading James Joyce's "Ulysses." Everything she read these days was carefully chosen. Books that dealt with naked emotions she read avidly, having decided to begin work soon on her own novel. The novel that was to portray the Soul of a Woman.

She would see, like a creature of flame, the girl she must imprison between the covers of her book. A girl like Bernice Bradford, with a red mouth made for kisses, a girl with white, twining hands. A slim body fashioned for love and pain.

Ulysses slid to the floor, as Molly began to plot her tale. The girl's name should be Magdalene, and she should die for love. A gorgeous, sinning siren, kneeling before the high white altar of a pure passion. . . . Suddenly, madly—falling to the floor, in a still heap, like the defendant.

"Yes?" Molly addressed herself coldly through the mouth of whoever it was, he could not come up.

"Molly! Hey, Molly, it's Red Flynn."

"Yes—well, you can't come in, Red," she told him. "I'm all ready for bed."

Red was unimpressed. "Now listen, dear," he countered. "I'm not going to have a long distance argument, you know. I've something to tell you. And I'll wait just five minutes. If you don't let me in then, I'll go open my heart to Gacie Burns."

Gracie Burns was sob sister on a rival sheet, and not a particularly good friend of Molly's.

"What's it about?" she parried.

"I'm dreadfully tired, Red."

"It's about Bernice Bradford," he informed her. "And Gracie'll get a big kick out of it."

Molly gasped. And, gasping pressed the button.

She met him in the hall, apologizing. "Please forgive me, Red. I wasn't really ready for bed, you see. I was only tearing my hair trying to think of a plot. I felt sort of inspired, and exactly as though I was about to give birth to a perfectly wonderful idea."

He grinned engagingly. "You're a very rude girl," he told her. "And, besides, you tell lies. I should punish you by using your telephone to make a date with Gracie. I should tell Gracie all I know, and collaborate with her on a crime play based on my newly acquired information about the late lamented Miss Bradford."

"Red!" she threatened. "Don't you dare. Here—sit down. Have a cigarette? Have a piece of pie? I've some cold chicken in the ice box."

"Now you're talking," he approved. "Well, trot out your chicken, dear. And put some coffee on like a good girl."

"And you'll tell me everything?"

she bargained.

"Everything," he promised.

Molly plugged in the percolator and cut bread for the electric toaster. The little roast chicken looked tempting, and the big apple pie, Red bit a cigarette, and while they waited for the coffee to boil, began his story.

"There's a boy," he said, "named Perry Ingersoll, a junior at the University. Perry got very, very drunk tonight, and talked his head off. I've parked him now in my own little bed, with Slim Boynton, to see that he doesn't wander off. Because, just between you and me, Molly, I don't know what we'd better do with the kid."

"Did he know Bernice Bradford?" she interrupted eagerly.

"Did he KNOW her?" repeated Red dramatically. "Dear woman, he was going to MARRY her!"

"Red! He wasn't!"

"I've seen the marriage license."

"But why didn't someone find out before? A marriage license. Why, it must have been taken out in her name."

"It was," he interrupted dryly. "Only her name wasn't Bradford. Only fair Bernice had been married before. Her husband, since dead, was a man named Bones. Nice, romantic name—Bones. And Bernice's first name was Mary. Everyone always called her Bernice. It was her middle name. Naturally the clerks at the registrar's office never connected Mary Bones, widow, with the deceased Bernice Bradford."

"My heavens! Did the Ingersoll boy know about Barrows?"

Red nodded. "Yep. But he was in love with her just the same."

Can you beat that, Molly? Here's a guy—a handsome kid, too—proud old family, and all that sort of thing—and he goes off his nut about a woman old enough to be his mother."

"Bernice was 34," Molly reminded him.

"Well, anyhow," pursued Red, "this kid fell head over heels in love with her. Used to write poetry, and all that mush."

"Ain't I telling you? He TOLD me," Red looked hurt. "Here I am, spilling a story that hasn't a beat this side of the Rue Morgue and you throw questions at me like a blooming prosecutor."

WASN'T FREE FROM SUFFER A SINGLE DAY

Cisco Woman Says She is Now Well and Happy After Taking Orgatone—Statement Remarkable.

"For the first time in ten long years I'm free from suffering and I'll never forget to praise Orgatone for what it has done for me," said Mrs. E. L. Wisdom, residing at 709 West Third St., Cisco, Texas, a few days ago.

"My stomach was dreadfully out of order," she continued, "and I suffered from indigestion. I reckon, as bad as anyone could. I had no appetite and I actually dreaded to eat because everything hurt me so. The gas that formed on my stomach after eating would gather round my heart and give me palpitation of the heart and such awful smothering spells I could hardly breathe. On top of this I was very nervous and at times couldn't do any of my housework at all. I kept getting weaker and more nervous and many a night I couldn't sleep at all. There was hardly a day for more than ten years that I was free from suffering. I could get no kind of medicine to help me and I just felt miserable.

"But the relief I had hoped for so long has come at last and I can now understand why so many people are praising Orgatone, for I'm praising it too. I had tried so many things without getting any relief that I was despondent and often found myself wondering if there was nothing made that would help me. Then I read in the papers about Orgatone and the good it was doing people right here and I somehow felt that it would get me over my troubles too. Well, I just want to tell you and everybody else I haven't been disappointed. My heart fills with gratitude for my wonderful recovery and I feel like spreading the good news everywhere so every body can know what Orgatone is doing for suffering humanity. The pleasure of being able to eat what I want without suffering is alone worth many times what two bottles of Orgatone cost me, but when I tell you all my troubles are gone and I feel strong and well, you can see that I have every reason to rejoice. I sleep like a child, I'm not the least bit nervous and have gained in weight and strength besides. In fact, I simply feel like a new person and I can do all my housework without the slightest trouble. Orgatone is nothing short of wonderful and I only hope my statement will be the cause of others finding relief as I did."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy but a new scientific bile treatment sold in Cisco exclusively by the Dean Drug Co., under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative.
