CHEESE MARKET IS SOUGHT FOR THIS TERRITORY

PLANT WOULD BE ASSURED OF PRODUCTS

Chamber of Commerce Is Working on Problem

A cheese plant for Cisco? This will be the present solution of the dairying problem in all the territory contiguous to the city, according to the chamber of commerce if adequate market facilities for handling the product of the plant can be provided. The chamber is now at work on the market problem, and hopes to have it solved for the best interests of farmers and dairymen of this section by the time for crop planning for the ensuing crop year, according to E. P. Crawford, president of the local chamber of commerce.

A committee to devote unstinted effort and time to this problem is to be selected by the chamber. Of the complete situation as it now stands, Mr. Crawford says: "There is a well defined movement in the territory contiguous to Cisco that is backed by the farmers of this section, to increase their dairy herds if Cisco provides them with a market for whole milk. From what I learned in contact with banks and business men here, Cisco is ready to take this forward step.

Adequate Building.

"Our investigation convinces us that for the present a cheese plant is the solution. We find that we have an adequate building which is properly located, as a plant for producing cheese. Complete equipment plus the necessary working capital will approximate $15,000.

"I believe that our forward-looking citizens will purchase this amount of stock.

"We find further that the markets for all dairy products are at present overcrowded. It is going to take considerable work to find adequate market facilities. Unless this is done, it would be an unfortunate to manufacture cheese that couldn't be sold as to produce milk that couldn't be sold.

The Cisco Chamber of Commerce is now at work on a solution to this problem. We hope to have it worked out in time for the farmers to plan their crops for the ensuing crop year for the most profitable advantage to this entire section."

Warning Is Given for Middle Aged

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 24.—"Don't go in for this just-as-young-as-I-used-to-be performance," those of middle-age and over are warned by Dr. Theodore B. Appel, head of the state health department.

"The business man who is fat and 40 or at least 40 suddenly develops a logical enthusiasm for tennis, golf and baseball at this outdoor season," he said. "And while such a thing as permitting one's affection for a sport to get the better of one's judgment—then something happens.

"The business of imagining at 40 or 50 years of age that one is just as young as ever is a mighty poor proposition if one deliberately steps out to prove it after a winter's physical lassitude, by way of suddenly over-exercising or indulging violently in outdoor sports.

"Sunshine and exercise are among the cardinal necessities for all. But sudden exertion, or even protracted exertion that is not so sudden can not be indulged in safely by the middle-aged who are not accustomed to it. It is not even good for the college man. This fact is recognized by all trainers who regulate and step-up athletic activities.

Proposes Erection of Mustang Memorial

AUSTIN, July 25.—Fifty thousand dollars for a memorial to the Texas mustang is proposed by Ralph R. Ogden, Texas prospector, plainsman and investor who offers to head the subscription list. Ogden wants a suitable memorial on the laws of the state capital grounds here.

"The day will soon arrive" he said "when the horse will be a curiosity to the city youth. The horse is little appreciated by the present generation; in a few years there will be few to recall the days when the horse was an absolute necessity to man's existence in every section of the state."

NEW FARM BOARD MEETS WITH HOOVER

Pictured here are President Hoover and members of the new federal farm board as they met at Washington for the first time to discuss administration of the extensive machinery to cure the farmers' ills. Seated left to right, are James C. Stone, vice chairman of the board, of Lexington, Ky.; Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, President Hoover, Alexander Legge, chairman of Chicago, and C. C. Teague, of Los Angeles; standing, William F. Schilling, of Northfield, Minn., Charles S. Wilson, of Hall, N. Y., Carl Williams, of Oklahoma City, and C. B. Denman, of Farmington, Mo.

Livestock Industry in General Makes Satisfactory Progress in June, Review Editor Announces

AUSTIN, July 25.—In general, the live stock industry made satisfactory progress during June, and the outlook for the remainder of the year is very encouraging, according to Bernard Nichols, editor of the Texas Business Review, issued monthly by the bureau of business research at the University of Texas.

"While it is true that there are a few unfavorable features present, total income to producers this year is expected to be above returns of 1928," Mr. Nichols said. "The lower prices for wool and muttons will be more than offset by higher quotations for beef and hogs. Then, too, both the wool and lamb crops were larger this year so that gross returns from sheep should make an excellent showing. Range trading is slowing up somewhat and contracting for fall deliveries is rather dull, but it must be remembered that a large number of animals have already changed hands and the season is about half over. A decrease of about 3 per cent is indicated in the spring pig crop as compared to 1928, according to the United States department of agriculture. This decrease will tend to encourage higher hog prices later over the next year.

Eats 100 Cones

Speaking of marathons, here's the ice cream cone eating champion of the world. She's Miss Caroline Bierhals, 18, of New Kensington, Pa., who recently ate 100 ice cream cones in 1 hour 45 minutes. And she went to work as usual the next day.

Doughboy Sweetheart Revue for Tomorrow

MEXIA, July 25.—Representatives from more than 20 posts of the American Legion will attend the "Doughboy Sweetheart" revue in Groesbeck, Friday, July 26. Six of the "Doughboy Sweethearts" have already been selected and several others are expected to enter the contest tomorrow, the winner of which will unveil the "Doughboy Statue" on the Limestone county court house lawn, November 11. One hundred dollars in prizes have been offered.

The girls already entered are Annie Laurie Hoke and Elizabeth Lusk, Waco; Frances Hobbs, Temple; Lois Johns, Georgetown; Mary Lou Carlton, Gatesville; and Elizabeth Fullinwider, Marlin. Scenic and carnival attractions and military pageants, a dance and drum and bugle corps contests are planned.

PAMPERED SHORTENS LIFE.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 25.—Pampered dogs who spend the day on cushions die young while dogs "let alone" live to a ripe old age, according to Dr. J. W. Scheiber, local veterinarian.

Laredo onion crop reaches 1,536 carloads valued at $800,000. Laredo ships carload of grapes.

FREIGHT RATES HERE SHOW 75 PER CENT GAIN

Texas and Pacific railway rates for Cisco show a gain for June this year of 76 1-10 per cent over June of 1928, says C. P. Cole, local T. & P. agent.

Last year, Mr. Cole states, a train passed through Cisco on the T. & P. road on an average of every 48 minutes. This year the average has been a train every 50 minutes, he says, but despite this difference of two minutes the local rates have shown the big gain of 76 1-10 per cent.

"Dugout" Serves as Home in City

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25.—Habits of "dugout" dwelling in France proved an inspiration to Frank Schroeder and Frank Madero, who a year ago constructed a bit of "front line trench" in the heart of San Francisco's business district.

The men were "broke" and there was a vacant lot at Larkin and Market streets, within a stonethrow of the stately cluster of municipal center buildings.

Comparatively calm Larkin street was on one side while on the other was the clanging four-way electric car service of Market street.

That the vacant lot was valued at $100,000 didn't matter to the veterans who sought assurance of a regular place to live.

Calling information from the fund of memory, a "dugout" suddenly adorned the choice uptown lot, with bits of canvas and other refuse forming walls, floors and ceilings. Madero was and is a salesman of plants. Among other things the pair made the lot, formerly an unsightly place, a flower garden and repository of beautiful shrubbery. Because of the improved appearance no one objected.

Just as early home-seekers of the old west "squatted" and "stayed put," so did Schroeder and Madero remain in their tiny cave.

As the weeks sped by the cave improved in appearance. Flowers and shrubs concealed most of it and enlargements were made. Telephone service was installed about eight months ago and with prosperity came a radio, and other comforts of home. The kitchen is completely furnished, running water and all. There is a roomy living room, a cozy and restful place.

Schroeder and Madero boast of being the only "cavemen in San Francisco" as well as possessing the distinction of having "squatted" on $100,000 worth of property and gotten away with it.

Covered Wagons Are Homes for Colony

LONDON, July 25.—In a secluded corner of London, lives a colony of people who would not live in the finest mansions of the country if they were offered them free.

This colony, of about 40 members, makes its home in a number of old caravan wagons. At its head is a woman who has lived in a covered wagon for more than 40 years, her father and mother having also lived in one. They own the ground on which the wagons are placed and seem to live in happiness and peace.

DALLAS MOTOR DELEGATION ON WAY TO MEXICO

DALLAS, July 25.—Some 50 persons making up the Dallas delegation of the motorcade with a large number from several other cities along the way which left here Wednesday in the interest of completing the highway from Dallas to the Mexican border have a full program for the rest of the week.

Diet of Vegetables Unsuitable; She Sues

COLUMBUS, Ind., July 25.—"Jack Spratt would eat no fat..." but he let Mrs. Spratt do as she pleased and lived happily ever after, according to the story.

Jack Black tried to enforce his vegetarian ideas on his wife with disastrous results.

Mrs. Lucille Black obtained a divorce here on the ground that her husband would let her eat nothing but tomatoes, rice, macaroni and rolled oats.

Cannibal Mosquitoes to Fight Own Breed

HONOLULU, T. H., July 25.—Some of the lay observers appear dubious, but Hawaii is going to import more mosquitoes to make fewer mosquitoes.

The promoter of the venture is C. E. Pemberton, entomologist, who has sent his first shipment from New Britain island. The mosquitoes in question have cannibalistic traits, and when in the larval stage feed on the larvae of other mosquitoes — Pemberton assured skeptical laymen.

COTTON REPORT ESTIMATE NEAR FIVE MILLION

Conditions Show Slight Change Since June

AUSTIN, July 25.—Cotton conditions in Texas show 73 per cent of normal on July 15. State Agricultural Commissioner George B. Terrell estimates in a crop report issued today. Corn condition is estimated at 73 per cent. Crop conditions have changed little since the June report, he reported, but adds that insect pests and drought in some sections may cause rapid deterioration shortly. The cotton report:

"The acreage in cotton was increased two per cent but the abandonment has about offset the increase, and the acreage will be practically the same as last year, with an estimated production of 4,775,000 bales. With favorable conditions the crop could reach five million bales, but it is our opinion that it will fall below that figure.

"Considerable damage is reported by boll weevil, and the leaf worm is cleaning some of the fields of south Texas. Many of the growers are now poisoning the cotton, but this should be done upon first appearance of the worm unless the cotton is already matured."

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 25.—Nine passengers and a bus driver of the Nashville Railway and Light company alighted from a bus here safe and sound after the car had been pushed 150 feet by a Tennessee Central freight train.

Points to Purposes for Cotton Relief

DALAS, July 25.—Attention to the work of congress in attempting to formulate farm relief and especially in the cotton region was pointed out by M. H. Wolfe, sales agent for the Farmers' Marketing Association of America here recently.

He says the ways and means of accomplishing the purposes set forth by congress in relieving the farmers are sane and sound:

1. By minimizing speculation.
2. By preventing inefficient and wasteful methods of distribution.
3. By encouraging the organization of producers into effective associations or corporations, under their own control, for greater unity and effort in marketing and by promoting the establishment of a farm marketing system of producer-owned and producer-controlled cooperative associations and other agencies."

BEAU GUEST.

BUTTE, Mont., July 25.—Angry because his landlady refused to reimburse him with $30 he alleged was stolen from his room, a man set fire to his bed, then walked out of the establishment with the hotel register under his arm. Police launched a search for him after the irate proprietress told of his deeds. The fire was extinguished before it did more than destroy the bedding.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
MOLLY BURNHAM and RED FLYNN are spending an exciting evening. Molly is principal scribe on a big newspaper. And Red is police court reporter. Recently Molly covered the BARROWS trial. Barrows has been found innocent of the murder of BERNICE BRADFORD, a beautiful and unattractive girl.

Following the trial, Red meets a lady named PERRY INGERSOLL, who calls in drunken confidence, of his own romance with Bernice. Red comes immediately to Molly with the story, and suggests that they collaborate on a play, using the Barrows-Bradford-ingersoll triangle for a plot.

He tells the story as he has heard it from Ingersoll's own lips. Bernice, it seems, had a lover, Ingersoll, who adored her, to marry her—in order that she might blackmail Barrows. Ingersoll, crazed with love, was ready to take her on any terms. So Bernice bought herself a wedding gown. Excitedly Red outlines the sordid story.

"It's too good to write for the paper," he declares. "There's material there for the best plot on Broadway!"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Good!" approved Red. "You can sure turn a pretty phrase, old dear."

"I did write some good stuff on that case," confessed Molly delightedly. "Emotional writing is what I like."

"And here's your chance," cut in Red excitedly. "Don't you begin to see the thing, Molly? Say, this has all those crime and sex plays beat a mile. Why, honey, you can give the best of them a run for their money. Here you've got all the ingredients for the best damn plot in history. Beautiful woman. Quivering passion. The calf love in Ingersoll. Play Ingersoll along side Mrs. Barrows. Sin versus respectability, with sin all glamorous and seductive. And respectability so damn proper that sin calls the trick. And there's your Moral. Every play has to have a Moral."

"And Mystery!" cried Molly. "Why, Red, it's the most mysterious thing that ever was! Here's a woman, preparing for her wedding day. All set. A blackmailing wealthy lover, and marry a boy who adored her. Everything rosy. Why—WHY would she kill herself?"

"That's just it!" announced Red triumphantly. "And the answer is—she didn't!"

"But who—?" began Molly.

"CHAPTER XII
The plot thickened. Perry Ingersoll, according to Red, had gone to Bernice's apartment on the day her body was found, with the marriage license and a wedding ring in his pocket. He had, in fact, shown them to Red and Slim Boynton.

He had another fellow with him that morning. A boy from the university who was going to be his best man. Bernice didn't want any bridesmaid, for all her gorgeous wedding gown. She said she couldn't trust women, and she hadn't a girl friend in the world.

They were going to drive to the house of some man Bernice knew who was a justice of the peace, and the ceremony was to be performed there. Then they were all going back to the apartment for a wedding breakfast.

"But I don't understand," interrupted Molly. "You say Ingersoll and his best man went to the apartment that morning. But Bernice's body wasn't found until afternoon. She'd given her maid the day off, you remember. The janitor found her that afternoon when he went in on business. And the medical examiner said she'd been dead for some hours. Now if Ingersoll had been there in the morning, as he says, he'd have found her then."

"He DID!" triumphed Red. "That's just it! Bernice was dead at 9 o'clock. Cold as ice, the kid says."

"But he didn't give the alarm?" "You're darn right, he didn't give the alarm. The boy's not so dumb as he acts. Anyhow he's a weller. I told you that already didn't I? He was scared. Scared to death. And you can't blame him much at that. Molly. There wasn't anything he could do for her. And, naturally, there was going to be a row. Police and all that."

"Nobody knew that Ingersoll had anything to do with Bernice. There wasn't a chance of dragging him into an investigation. Not so long as he kept his mouth shut. Maybe his friend, the best man, had the cooler head of the two. I don't know. Anyhow they made a safe get-away. And nobody saw them."

Red paused. And a dramatic silence fell between them.

"What do you think," "what do you think of that?" Molly shook her head.

"I don't know. It rather does away with the suicide theory doesn't it?"

"Absolutely," agreed Red. "Didn't I tell you she'd ordered groceries and champagne for a wedding breakfast? Nobody does things like that, and then takes a swig of cyanide."

"No," she said. "No, I suppose not. What does Ingersoll think, Red?"

"Hell, Ingersoll KNOWS!" Red dropped his cigarette on the rug, and ground it fiercely into Molly's precious Kashmir. His eyes were blazing.

"Here's your chance," cut in Red excitedly. "Say, this has got all those crime and sex plays beat a mile!"

Like a good story teller, Red had saved his climax. And now, having reached it, the horror of the thing seemed to engulf him.

"Bernice had a date the night before," he said. "And that date was with Barrows."

"You mean," whispered Molly, "Barrows KILLED her?"

Red shrugged his shoulders. "Circumstantial evidence," he admitted. "He had an alibi, of course. Said he spent the evening at home with his wife. Lord, that's no alibi! Mrs. Barrows was just naturally a go-through sort. She lied for him, that's all."

"But I should think Ingersoll would have been a state witness!" exclaimed Molly.

"No, he had sense enough to keep out of it," repeated Red. "You can't blame him for that. Bernice was dead. It wasn't as if he could do anything for her. Naturally, he thought of his folks. It would have been sweet for his mother, wouldn't it, having him mixed up with a girl like Bernice, and the papers full of it? Besides, if he'd talked, he'd have been suspected himself. Imagine if he'd kicked up a rumpus there, and anybody'd come in!"

Molly laughed hysterically. "You know what would have happened?" she cried. "We'd all have remembered that poem of Oscar Wilde's about the man who was hung for killing his sweetheart, and we'd have quoted these lines:

"And blood and wine were on his hands. When they found him with the dead. The poor dead woman whom he loved. And murdered in her bed."

"Attagirl!" he approved. "That's the old punch, Molly. Sob stuff straight from the muses. . . . Well, what do you think, dear? Am I right? Or am I wrong? Is there a plot there for a play, or isn't there?"

"Of course there is," she agreed. "It could open with the trial of Barrows. . . ."

"And sum up all the evidence in the first act," broke in Red. "Make a regular mystery of it, you know. Might even make the testimony point toward some other guy. Then switch it around again, and when you got the audience thinking it was Barrows, suddenly acquit him. Make a great anti-climax of that."

"Then open the third act with that place on Beacon Hill," interrupted Molly eagerly. "And the Ingersoll kid crying. . . ."

"How'd you end it?" demanded Red. "Make a mystery out of it?"

"Oh, now," demurred Molly. "We'd have to have a surprise climax. Maybe we could convict Ingersoll. . . . No, that would be too obvious. We might drag the best man in."

She was very excited now. Her cheeks were flushed, and her eyes were blazing with an uncanny light.

"Oh, Red," she cried, "do you think we could do it?"

Red blushed furiously. "Gosh!" he muttered. "I can't write. I'm only a police court reporter. But there's your plot, Molly. Go to it, old girl!"

He took her hand awkwardly. "I'm awful keen on you, you know, Molly."

"Red!" she exclaimed, and thought, guiltily, of Jack. "You're not making love to me, my friend?"

"Love!" he repeated. "Now Molly, be your size."

"Well, I didn't really think you were," she protested. "But I thought I'd better be sure. Red because you see I have a boy. And I'm pretty crazy about him myself. I wouldn't want you to get me wrong."

"Yeah?" Red shrugged non-committally. "Well, remember what I told you about getting married

BRITISH FILM EXPERT URGES INNOVATIONS

LONDON, July 25.—Innovations which may revolutionize the talking film industry are being urged upon British producers to bring to an end American supremacy in film production.

Serious consideration is being given the development of third dimension pictures, such as were presented in America recently as novelties but never brought to perfection. R. E. Jeffrey, sound production expert of a large British film concern, is the foremost advocate of this idea.

"Within the next few years," he said, "I am convinced we shall see the arrival of the plastic figure—the film that will give depth as well as height and breadth. Many experts have been working for some time to achieve perfection in this invention and I would not be surprised if it were attained in the next two years."

"In America inventors are doing their utmost to achieve successful results in this type of film and I am afraid that it may burst upon us just when we in this country have brought the talking picture to a fairly high pitch of perfection."

"It is therefore up to British inventors to get there first."

Jeffrey believes color will be a natural part of film development. In his opinion, persons who have been successful radio artists will make the best "talkie" actors, providing they "screen" well.

Stanley Rowson, a member of the board of trade film committee, told an exhibitors' conference that British audiences soon may expect the "smellies."

"We have had already the 'tin-tin-ties,' the 'smiles,' the 'dancies,' and the 'weepies,'" he said. "Now we shall witness the evolution of the 'smellies.'"

"When the irate husband in the picture scornfully asks his submissive wife whether she describes that as a fresh kipper, the odor of a kipper of obvious senility will flow through the theater."

Rowson, however, was not entirely optimistic about the future of the British film.

"Experience does not justify the conclusion," he said. "That the British film will have an unexpected vogue because the British actor is more polished than his American confrere. American companies will always be able to buy the best actors."

"But time will come when American companies will discover that England is the only important foreign market for which a revenue can be expected, and it is reasonable to expect that a real co-operative film alliance, which has hitherto been rejected, will come about."

FISH TOMMY BASED WITH ST ON RHINE

RALPH HEINZEN
Press Staff Correspondent.

ADEN, July 25.—Leave many Atkins to pick for beautiful watering places down to 19 years of guard over a few miles line.

citizens pay dear for just sports and conveniences, and opera, fireworks or sports as Tommy gets his day's work here. If any British soldier whether to evacuate the Rhine of time, he will tell you would rather stay, or if he will come back here soon as he gets out of likes the Rhineland, and is unfortunate that the Tommy. Since he has to camp somewhere, he it ins of Aldershot, or some- India, Egypt or Africa, he tells you that "Jerry" bad fellow and that the is "a bit of all right."

British soldiers are in to military occupy the see that the peace treaty fulfilled. But except den, you would never be- Most of the Tommies with the landscape, never been known to be, but they simply do up in this great German- aristocrats absent along one of the foot- the Tannus, Weisbaden is ose summer resorts where chly pay well to stay. For around are British army and the Tommies are cer- luckiest of all the troops making up the watch on the Rhine. The presence of the troops has kept away many of the German visitors who formerly made pilgrimages for health reasons to this delectable watering place. In fact Weisbaden cures very few ailments these days, but the merchants are not complaining. They are richer now than when ailing aristocrats swarmed there.

Everywhere, Tommy has seen to his own comfort. He took all the available sport grounds and tennis courts for himself. His two cricket leagues, horse show, tennis tournaments, rowing and swimming championships and soccer keep him in prime condition.

For the officers there is polo, and in civilian clothes they are allowed to attend the races during the Frankfurt turf season. The officers mix freely in the amusements of the place, and every cabaret and cafe is open to them, but the war office has its own ideas about fraternizing and women spies, so the officers are forbidden to dance, even with their own wives in public.

No Amosities

For the enlisted Tommies, he can go anywhere except to the cafes reserved for officers. There is no D. O. R. A. to curtail his drinking, as is the case at home. He sits in front of his beer until mid- night, but he must not dance either.

To show that there is no hard feeling, the municipality recently voted to cut the entrance fee to half for British soldier desirous of entering the Casino, in whose gardens and fireworks. Even the movie theaters cater to him and have their sub-titles in English and German.

For Tommy on duty, and most of them appear to be off duty almost continuously, there are picnics and excursions up and down the Rhine. Just as their elders, with their dry humor of the trenches, marked their Piccadilly circus at a crossing of trenches in Flanders field the younger Tommies have their "Brighton," "Coves" and "Blackpool" on the Rhine banks, having given those names to their favorite beaches.

The requisitioning officer knew what he wanted and took it. The finest stone mansion in the city, once the palatial home of a rotund millionaire who liked plenty of room, is now an officers' club. Whole streets of stucco-fronted houses have been requisitioned to house the non-commissioned officers and their families.

Press Not Received

The troops are housed in former hotels and sanitoriums and are far more comfortable than their unfortunate brothers back home. It may have been irony, or it may have been a stange sense of humor, but the British army chose the Hohenzollern hotel for its general staff headquarters and there where the Kaiser used to stop when he took his cure, now lives General Sir William Thwaites, commander of the British troops in Germany.

Around British headquarters, there seems to be a permanent ban on newspaper reporters. Every subaltern will repeat to you the same thing, "The press is not received here." It is not the same thing over at the town hall where the German officials are willing, even eager to talk.

I found an old friend at police headquarters, the director, Herr Frotzheim, well known tennis international who had played often in Paris and on the Riviera.

"There is little I can say about the British occupation," Herr Frotzheim said. "If I say nice things about the British I will be in trouble with Berlin. If I say bad things about the British, General Thwaites will telephone me."

Municipal authorities will tell you that they are more worried about balancing their budget than they are about the evacuation of their region. They seem to be truly worried by their financial situation. For many years their budget has ended in the red, but Weisbaden comes under the "Zwangsdienst" law which provides for national financial assistance.

"Sure we would be glad to see the troops go, if no other reason than to get back thousands of houses wherein to house the many Germans who cannot find homes," one municipal official answered my query.

"But our trouble is simple; our tourist season has been a washout. Living costs are terribly high in Germany, and business has slowed up. Germans travel less and spend less. Many of our hotels would have closed long ago if it had not been for the English."

FALL EGGS STABILIZE PRICES

Poultrymen, by careful attention to the breeding and management of their laying flocks, have effected a definite change in the egg market. According to H. L. Shrader of the United States department of agriculture, this is evident as to both seasonal and annual production.

"The market receipts of fresh laid eggs during the late summer and fall months have been increasing the last few years," he comments. "This means that the pullets are being hatched and are maturing earlier, but it also denotes improved efficiency, because the birds are laying more eggs when prices are highest."

From the standpoint of the consumer this tendency is of definite value. "Already we have noticed," Mr. Shrader says, "that the increased production in the season when eggs were formerly scarce has prevented prices from soaring to extremely high levels."

Advertisements on Air Save Fan Money

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Radio fans should be patient when the radio announcer breaks into the broadcasting of an exciting sporting event or a soothing musicale to tell by whose courtesy the fan is able to hear it, according to Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce.

It saves the fan money. These "annoying" moments of commercial publicity save the radio listeners from renewing a license every year and paying a fee probably equivalent to the price of a new tube or so.

"In El Salvador, in Central America," Klein said, "it costs from $20 to $35 to install and operate a receiving set the first year, and $18 in subsequent years. While this is the highest assessment recorded in the commerce department's survey, the fees in other countries are large. The Australian pays $5.85 each year, the German $5.70, and the Britisher about $2.50."

Klein explained that in the United States the funds obtained through sale of air space for advertising purposes support the radio broadcasting stations. In other countries they are supported by taxation.

"And," continued Klein, "the problem of language does not enter into the problem in this country. In many European countries there are only one or two stations. These, of course, broadcast in the language of the country. However, there may be stations in neighboring countries large enough and close enough to be within easy range of the ordinary set, with obvious resultant complications. Greece has no stations, until recently broadcasting having been prohibited. There is a station in nearby Turkey but it broadcasts in French and Turkish. You will well understand that Greece is not at present a large market for receiving sets."

Early British Secrets Yield to Archaeological Excavations; Celtic Villages Being Uncovered

LONDON, July 25.—A determined campaign to wrest from long-buried ruins the secrets of early Britain is being waged the length and the breadth of the English countryside.

The summer months are the "digging season" in England and the ghosts of the Celts, Romans and Saxons are trooping to new retreats, driven from their ancient haunts by the pick and shovel assault of the archaeologists.

"Probably never before has such interest been shown in historic and prehistoric Britain," Dr. R. E. M. Wheeler, keeper of the London museum and one of England's foremost archaeologists, told the United Press.

"Archaeological excavation has become one of the recognized sights of our summer countryside. During the next few months, excavators hope to throw new light on many periods of this island's existence.

The modern trend of the excavating methods, Dr. Wheeler pointed out, is indicated by the use of the airplane at the old Roman town of Caistor-by-Norwich. All aerial photographs were taken of the cornfield where the town was known to lie and the Roman streets were revealed in the picture as shaded lines in the ripening corn.

"Air Photography Necessity Working from the photograph, it was possible to locate the Roman temples and baths and the probable site of the forum. The Roman walls and towers also were discovered.

"Air photography may henceforth be regarded as a necessity to the field-archaeologist," Dr. Wheeler said. "In the past, the ruins of this region contributed little to the archaeology of Britain and the Roman remains of the county were almost unknown. Now all that is changed; the air photograph was irresistible."

Near Dunstable in Bedfordshire, the University College Anthropological society is working on a huge mound containing stone age, bronze age and Saxon relics.

The mound was built about 1500 B. C. for the burial of a woman whose skeleton was found with a flint knife at its side. In a higher stratum were found bronze age implements including a bronze urn containing burnt bones.

The mound was used later by the Roman conquerors for the burial of slaughtered prisoners. The skeletons of 50 men were found with indications that they had been slain with their hands fastened behind their backs. The excavators believe the victims may have been the remnant of some defeated Saxon raiding party in the fifth century, A. D.

Two Celtic Villages Recently large estates traversed by the wall were sold, presumably to persons interested in archaeology. The government has scheduled the wall under the ancient monuments act, thus insuring its preservation.

"Apart from the wall," Dr. Wheeler said, "the most important Roman site now under excavation is that of the legionary fortress at Caerleon, near Newport, in Monmouthshire. Work is already in progress upon the Roman defenses and barrack-blocks in the western corner of the fortress and this work will be supplemented in August by the excavation of the eastern corner of the fortress."

Among the important discoveries in the fortress was an antefix, or ornamental tile stamped with a cross. It is believed to be the earliest evidence of Christianity in England.

"Many of the excavations on medieval sites are being made at places which are regularly visited by American tourists, Dr. Wheeler pointed out.

"At Canterbury the Saxon monastery founded by St. Augustine, the first archbishop, is being explored and it is believed that the remains of the Saxon cloister have been uncovered. If the ruins actually prove to be the cloister, it will be the oldest monastic structure in Europe.

A committee was named to confer with representatives of the Christian church relative to the union. The forthcoming convention is expected to name a similar body.

In addition to the question of union of the churches, the Christian convention will discuss two major problems—a pension fund for ministry, which is hoped to have established by Jan. 1, 1931, and selection of a new president for the United Christian missionary society.

The question of the ministry pension is the largest financial undertaking of the brotherhood. It provides for a new plan, with an initial reserve fund of $8,000,000 leaders announce.

Christian churches are located in 46 states and the District of Columbia, with the greatest numerical strength in the Middle West and South.

YOUNG MONUMENT ROW. SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, July 25.—The argument over whether the statue of Brigham Young, which for years has stood at the intersection of Main and South Temple streets, should be moved to a more remote location is being waged hotly. It has been contended that the monument is a traffic hazard and ought to be moved to the Mormon temple grounds or the state house lawn. Another faction, however, contends that through respect to the Mormon pioneer, it should remain unmolested.

LAGRANGE, Ga., July 25.—Three LaGrange boys, Alwin Thompson, Joe White and Roy Spinks got value received out of a $5 "lizzie." They have returned home after traveling 8,000 miles in a 1922 edition of the Ford.

QUICK CHANGE ON THE BEACH

In Portland, Ore., the girls have found out how to get in and out of their bathing suits even when no dressing room is available. A top frame of wire, cloth enough to reach the ground, and shoulder straps to hold it up complete the portable dressing room—as demonstrated here by two fair bathers.

FUTURE PILOT, WIFE QUELLS PLANE FEARS

NEW YORK, July 25.—Airplanes are far safer than automobiles today and are easier handled because traffic conditions are far better in the air than on the ground, according to Mrs. Ivan R. Gates, wife of the airplane manufacturer. Ten years ago, Mrs. Gates refused her then husband-to-be permission to pilot an airplane or to fly in one.

Today she is taking instruction herself and will be able to handle a ship herself after a few more hours of flying time. "I used to be afraid to go into the air, but the experience I have had traveling from coast to coast in airplanes of the latest type has caused me to forget this fear," she declared. "In fact, riding as a passenger has become so safe that it also has become homesome."

Mrs. Gates took her first ride with one of the early stunt pilots in San Francisco. It frightened her, Gates was promoting aviation at this time, and had arranged the ride. When she landed, she refused to marry him unless he promised to stay out of airplanes. He promised.

A few months after the ceremony she caught him flying one of the planes of the Gates Flying circus, which toured America for 10 years, giving exhibitions and carrying passengers. Thereafter, instead of refusing him permission to fly, which she knew would have no effect, she went with him. Still frightened, she insisted that they "crash together."

Within the last two years she has forgotten the crash idea, and is now taking instruction.

Mrs. Gates, who is widely known in aeronautical circles, has flown hundreds of thousands of miles, visiting all of the 48 states. Probably no woman who is not a licensed pilot has flown as far.

"Traveling in an airplane is best," she said. "I've gotten to a point now, however, where I don't want to go where the pilots want to go—I want to take a trip or two myself."

"Traffic conditions are such that I get less and less pleasure from driving and more and more from flying."

ENROUTE TO GENEVA. AUSTIN, July 25.—Mrs. S. M. N. Marrs of Austin and Mrs. Ella Carruthers Porter of Dallas are in Paris enroute to Geneva to attend the World Federation of Education, a cablegram received by State School Superintendent S. M. N. Marrs here says.

Author's Latest Book at T. C. U.

FORT WORTH, July 25.—"Howard Lineage," the latest book from the pen of Mrs. Gustine Courson Weaver, of McKinney and formerly of Fort Worth, author, lecturer, poet, book reviewer, story teller, and writer of children's stories has been received at the Mary Couts Burnett library of Texas Christian University.

Two other of Mrs. Weaver's books, "Hop Run" and "The Boydstun Family," are on the shelves of the T. C. U. library. She is also author of "The Golden Room," "Our Guest," and "The Ministers' Wife." Four of her works have been placed by a number of the Society of Mayflower Descendants in more than 250 historical libraries over the United States.

Mrs. Weaver, wife of Clifford S.

Weaver who was at one time financial secretary of T. C. U., was the organizer of the oldest story tellers' league in two states, Texas and Arkansas; the founder and first president of the Texarkana Story Tellers' league, the oldest one in Texas now in existence, as well as the organizer and first president of the Story Tellers' League of Fort Worth. She has been dubbed as "the dean of Texas story tellers" by Miss Daphne Carraway, president of the Story Tellers' league of America.

CHURCH UNION PROPOSAL TO BE DISCUSSED

By STANLEY BAILEY

United Press Staff Correspondent

SEATTLE, Wash., July 25.—Union of two of the largest churches in America, affecting the religious organizations of approximately 10,000,000 persons will be one of the principal topics of the international convention of the Disciples of Christ, the Christian churches which will open here August 8.

The Christian church will consider union with the Northern Baptist church.

Differences between liberal and conservative factions of the church is expected to develop during consideration of the proposal. The differences, according to Seattle ministers, will center about the baptism ceremony.

"The Baptists baptize because you are saved and the Disciples baptize that you might be saved," was the way in which Dr. Marvin O. Sansbury, Seattle minister, explained the difference. The distinction, however, is not emphasized by the liberal elements of either church.

It has, however, tended to prevent the long-desired union of the northern and southern Baptist churches, he added.

At the recent Baptist convention in Denver, the Rev. Sansbury said,

To the Citizens of Cisco and Vicinity:

Since our competitor has reduced the price of ice our business has declined until it is necessary that something be done if we are to keep our plant in operation and make a fair return on our investment. We have given the matter serious thought and have concluded that there is a possibility of our being able to keep our plant in operation if we meet the price of our competitor, provided we secure a sufficient volume of business. We do a large part of our own work and believe that we can operate a plant as economically as a plant can be operated.

We are therefore reducing our prices to twenty-five cents per hundred pounds at the dock and thirty-five cents per hundred pounds from the trucks. We have recently sold a great many ice books based on the old price and if you will return these ice books to our office new books will be issued to you based on the price last mentioned. We believe that competition is good for any line of business and that there is no reason why there should be a monopoly in the ice business any more than there is in the grocery business or any other business. We are going to deliver to you a first class product and will at all times extend to you a prompt and courteous service.

We will appreciate a fair proportion of your business. It is our judgment that if we are forced out of business it will be a very short time until you are paying the prices, and are receiving the service, that were paid and received before we came to Cisco.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 25.—Flight of the St. Louis-Robin, safely past its 290th consecutive hour at 9:17 a. m. today, apparently had settled into an aerial endurance contest not only against time but against the "Billion Dollar City," approaching 200 hours at Houston, Texas.

At that hour they had been up 288 hours in their monoplane, with no perceptible sign of weakening in their Challenger air-cooled motor. Their spirits obviously continued as high as their plane.

POPE EMERGES FROM VATICAN IN GALA RITES

By THOMAS B. MORGAN
United Press Staff Correspondent.
VATICAN CITY, July 25.—In imperial splendor, before a crowd estimated at more than 200,000, Pope Pius XI today emerged from the Vatican, the first pope in almost 60 years to set foot outside its threshold. Every vantage point was occupied for a view of the historic event.

The ceremony was radiant with medieval pomp and pageantry as a living tableau had been resurrected from the middle ages. The pontiff supported on a dais shaped like a prie-dieu high above the crowd, held aloft the monstrance before which the hundreds knelt with religious fervor. The pope was covered, except for the head, with a priceless white cope embroidered in gold.

The scene was kaleidoscopic in variety and breath-taking splendor. The precious garments of the cardinals, archbishops and bishops were rich in intricately worked gold and silk. The gay uniforms of the Swiss guards in red, yellow and blue vied with the dazzling and white of the noble guards, the pope's bodyguards, for preeminence. The black Elizabethan garb with ruffled collars of the papal chamberlains added a distinctive touch, as did the papal banderole in high busbies and buckskin boots. The pope was borne on the dais by his valets in solemn eucharistic procession around the colonnades of St. Peter's square. Today's event had been the subject of conversation and conjecture for many months; in fact ever since the signing of the lateran treaties on February 11 of this year.

AMERICAN TRANS-ATLANTIC FLIERS IN EUROPE

The news spread about the countryside that a trans-Atlantic plane had landed, and soon all roads led to the little flying field at Santander, Spain, where the American monoplane Pathfinder had been forced down after spanning the ocean. Here you see the craft piloted by Roger Q. Williams and Lewis A. Yancey as it was surrounded by curious crowds and guarded by local troops during its brief stop-over for fuel at the Spanish town. The take-off of the Pathfinder from Santander in the last leg of its journey to Rome is pictured at the top.

HOLD HEARING FOR GUARD OF BOYS SCHOOL

PAULS VALLEY, July 25.—Preliminary hearing of R. E. Davis, guard at the Pauls Valley training school for boys, on a charge of murder in the alleged beating of Stanley Kelley, 16-year-old inmate, opened here today.

Clyde Goodner, superintendent of the institution, was to be one of the principal witnesses against the guard when the hearing came to him. Homer Hunt, Garvin county attorney, said he would place Goodner, several doctors, employees and inmates of the institution on the stand in an effort to bind Davis over to district court for trial by jury.

Meanwhile officials of the state continued investigation from conditions at the reformatory while Governor W. J. Holloway had under advisement a report of a four-day investigation personally conducted by Mrs. Mabel Bassett, state commissioner of corrections and charities.

Removal of Goodner as head of the school and complete reorganization of the institution was recommended in Mrs. Bassett's report.

Oklahoma Pioneer Is 116 Years Old

Records of Sloan's birth are contained in the Catholic church in Mourne, Shrove, Ireland. He was born, the records say, on December 25, 1812. He came to America in 1826. He was too old to serve in the Civil War.

Jury Discharged in Reynolds Case

LONDON, July 25.—The jury which was trying Young R. J. Reynolds, son of the late American Tobacco magnate, was discharged today by the presiding judge, Justice Humphreys, because of certain irregularities. No verdict had been reached on the manslaughter charge.

Shortly after the case was called this morning the justice said it was reported to him that the foreman of the jury had conversed with several witnesses involved in the case, one of whom was the foreman's friend. Therefore, Justice Humphreys concluded, it was impossible to proceed with the case and a rehearing was adjourned for a date to be fixed later.

Reynolds, whose automobile ran over and fatally injured a bicyclist, was granted bail.

GRADY SHIPP TO ACTIVELY MANAGE WTCC

Cunningham, who was in Cisco today. Mr. Cunningham is field representative of the organization department of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

The appointment of Mr. Shipp was made by President Andy Bouldin, also of Vernon, according to Mr. Cunningham.

The same day Mr. Bouldin called a meeting of the advisory committee of the chamber for a meeting at Ft. Worth next Monday. Mr. Cunningham stated this committee is composed of Ray Nichols, Vernon; Joe Wheat, Seymour; Clifford Jones, Spur; R. W. Haynie, Abilene.

HATCHER TO BE CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR

DALLAS, July 25.—Announcing that he would freely discuss the official acts of "public officials from governor to constable" whose official acts merited discussion, W. Gregory Hatcher, Dallas, state treasurer, today announced his candidacy for governor of Texas.

In his formal statement Hatcher pledged himself to lower the cost of running the state from $50,000,000 to $40,000,000 if he is elected. He also announced himself as opposed to chain banking and said he would not knowingly grant charters to banks operated by chains.

Hatcher's announcement came as a surprise today following an altercation at the state capitol yesterday in which he was struck by James Shaw after a heated meeting of the state banking commission. Shaw is said to have declared he would break every bone in his (Hatcher's) body if he said anything about me.

Hatcher said today he would follow his formal statement with a "free discussion of the acts of James Shaw and any other state officials whose official acts I see fit to discuss."

Ratification of Agreement Predicted

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Prompt ratification by congress of the Mellon-Berenger debt agreement between France and the United States was predicted today by Chairman Smoot of the senate finance committee and member of the debt funding commission.

"I have no doubt congress will promptly ratify the Mellon-Berenger debt agreement," Smoot said.

SITUATION IN MANCHURIA IS STILL TENSE

Czarist White Guards Executed by Soviet Agents

TOKIO, July 25.—Firing between Russian and Chinese patrols at Manchuli, on the northwestern border today was reported in a dispatch to the newspaper Nichi from Manchuli.

At 6 a. m. today, the dispatch said, 10 Russian airplanes appeared over Manchuli and Chinese patrols opened fire. Russian border infantry returned the fire. The city was terrified, the dispatch said, and Japanese residents began to flee.

The announcement of the execution, made in full today, stated that the Czarists had been active in the East for the past six weeks and that they were caught after a series of armed crossings from Manchuria into Soviet territory.

The announcement stated that the White Guardists were helped in their crossing into Russia by the connivance of the Chinese government, with the intention of destroying certain important bridges, ammunition depots and of committing other acts of violence.

"We are confirmed in the opinion," the announcement said, "that the White Guardists were beginning to execute plans to terrorize Soviet territory for the purpose of disturbing the peace of the country."

BERLIN, July 25.—Russia's rumored rejection of mediation proposals by signatories of the Kellogg pact today caused considerable mystification among German diplomatic observers who saw in the rejection a possible answer to China's recent suggestion that Japan assume the role of mediator.

GRAIN PROBLEM TO BE STUDIED BY FARM BOARD

WASHINGTON, July 25.—The surplus grain problem will be studied by the federal farm board in a special meeting in Chicago tomorrow it was learned today. All members of the board except Secretary of Agriculture Hyde expect to assemble there with mid-western farm leaders.

"The board feels that such a meeting will provide a valuable opportunity whereby officials of these farmer associations may come more closely in touch with the work of the board itself and with the possibilities for the assistance in grain marketing which could be rendered under the agricultural marketing act," the board's official announcement stated.

State farmer elevator associations of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, and Montana, as well as the wheat pools of Indiana, Kansas, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Oklahoma and Texas, and the farmer owned commission agencies of Kansas City, St. Louis, Chicago, St. Paul, Enid, Okla., and Hutchinson, Kan., will be represented at the meeting.

Race Boat "Bogie" Beats "Robert Lee" Up Mississippi By More Than 2 Hours

ST. LOUIS, July 25.—A 59-year old Mississippi river record of 90 hours and 31 minutes for the run from New Orleans to St. Louis established by the packet "Robert E. Lee" was shattered here today by the "Bogie," comparative midget speed boat owned by Dr. Louis Leroy, Memphis sportsman. The "Bogie," which left New Orleans in quest of the record, "five cents in cash and a million dollars in honor," docked at the foot of Olive street here at 6:45 a. m., completing the 1,200 mile treacherous run in 83 hours, or 2 1-2 hours better than the record of the "Robert E. Lee."

Student Pilot Is Killed in Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 25.—Funeral services for Joseph A. Graham, 23-year-old student pilot and faculty member of the University of Oklahoma, were to be held today. Rowe said he would make a thorough investigation of the crash and report to the department of commerce.

Pro Agents Capture 800 Gallons Whisky

DALLAS, July 25.—Swooping down on a farm near Corsicana last night two federal prohibition agents captured a 1,000-gallon capacity still of the most modern, electrically operated type, and from 800 to 1,000 gallons of whisky. Three men were arrested at the scene of the big liquor plant.

The men, whisky and some of the liquor-making paraphernalia were brought to Dallas today. Barrels of the contraband stacked on the sidewalk outside the federal building drew a large crowd.

Policemen, Off Duty, Seek Trial

DALLAS, July 25.—Relieved from duty by an order of Police Commissioner Graves, plain clothes policemen, Mike Higgins and A. B. Farrow, today sought trial before the city commissioners.

The officers were removed on a formal charge of insubordination, Commissioner Graves declaring that they had been guilty of trying to "frame" him.

Commissioner Graves said a woman came to his office to warn him that she had been urged to invite him to a "beer party" which she said would be raided while he was there.

The commissioner said he would grant the two a hearing before the city commission, but no date has been set for the trial.

RURAL SCHOOL BILL SIGNED BY GOVERNOR

AUSTIN, July 25.—First of the major appropriation bills of the recent session of the legislature was approved by Governor Moody yesterday when he signed the bill giving $5,000,000 to aid rural free schools. He had vetoed a previous appropriation of $5,500,000 for the same purpose.

Without signature he permitted a $2,500 appropriation for Cuba school district in Johnson county. It is to help replace a school house that was destroyed by storm.

The proposal to send a legislative committee to Washington at state expense to urge location of a veteran's hospital in Texas was vetoed.

Cruelty Charged in Divorce Suit

LOS ANGELES, July 25.—A divorce suit in which Mrs. Grace Bryan Hargreaves, daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan, charges Richard L. Hargreaves with cruelty and general incompatibility was on file here today.

A property settlement has been agreed upon, according to Mrs. Hargreaves' attorney, who said his client asked for the custody of four children.

Last May, Hargreaves, president of a Beverly Hills bank, admitted he and Mrs. Hargreaves were living apart. He declared the trouble to be "largely a matter of differences in temperament."

Calles Aboard French Liner

NEW YORK, July 25.—General Plutarco Elias Calles, former president of Mexico, was in seclusion today aboard the French liner Ile De Franks which sails tomorrow for Europe. Calles arrived last night in his private coach attached to a train from St. Louis. Since crossing the international boundary at Laredo Texas, interviewers had been denied audiences because of the general's illness.

Calles is making the trip to Europe for treatment of a stomach disorder.

DEATH COMES TO STRANDED AUTO PARTY

Foot Trail Leads From Car Over Wastelands

EL CENTRO, Calif., July 25.—The torturing heat of the Mojave desert today claimed as victims a man, a woman and six children, trapped when their automobile broke down far from civilization.

Authorities, who reconstructed a picture of suffering typical of the old pioneering days in Death Valley, said they had identified the dead as Enrique Armentes of Brawley, Mrs. Julia Perez, and the children of Mrs. Perez.

There was a possibility that another victim may be added to the list, according to deputy sheriffs. Staggering footprints leading across the sands were followed as searchers believed one of the party—stronger than the others—continued the search for water after his companions had fallen.

The tragedy occurred at the dry Beale wells, a barren spot near the village of Niland.

Worn out by the hardest desert travel a small automobile in which the party had started from Brawley for a destination believed to be Blythe, Ariz., on the Colorado river, broke down.

futile attempts on the part of Armentes to repair the chief hope of safety for the little group were found by the deputies. The hood of the machine was off, it was said, and tools were lying around. The last drop of water had been squeezed from the radiator of the car.

EL CENTRO, Cal., July 25.—A tragedy of thirst was revealed here today by deputy sheriffs who followed a zigzag trail of foot prints from an automobile found stranded in the desert near Niland until they came upon the bodies of six of its occupants sprawled face downward in the sand.

A seventh passenger had not accompanied his companions—over miles of safe brush covered wasteland. His body was found beneath the automobile where he had crawled to escape a temperature of more than 105 degrees.

TEXAS AS CENTER OF CITRUS INDUSTRY

Secretary Arthur M. Hyde of the department of agriculture is going to Florida to study the methods of the Mediterranean fruit fly. Texas has its citrus orchards and Texas has freed itself of the fruit fly pest and is growing by leaps and bounds.

Entomologist J. N. Del Curto made an inspection of the orchards of the Lone Star state in the Rio Grande Valley and the winter garden districts. He found that the fruit fly has been stamped out and no signs remained of the invader.

This agent of the state department of agriculture knows his Texas. He knows his grapefruit orchards and orange groves. He has the statistics. Five years ago Texas stood sixth in line of citrus production. This year Texas is third, led only by California and Florida.

In 1928 shipments from the valley totaled 2,600 car loads of citrus. This year the total will be close to 5,000 car loads. In addition to shipments from the valley 500,000 more trees have been planted in the winter garden this year, and will in a very short time add greatly to the shipments of the state.

Crease being put in citrus is increasing annually in the Rio Grande Valley and the entomologist predicts that within a very few years the state should lead the United States in citrus fruit production.

He estimates a 20,000,000 box shortage of citrus fruit over the United States this year due to freezes and to outbreak of pests, mainly in Florida. Texas' supply is about normal and will be more than doubled. There are summer and winter gardens everywhere under Texas skies. There will be another election in 1930.

A conservative governor should be elected and the people in all the districts should see to it that conservative senators and representatives are sent to the 41st legislature. There is work to be done. It should be done in the primary selection of public servants. If the ballot is the thing, then the voter should make use of it and declare for a legislative program that will make Texas first in all producing fields of endeavor.

SNATCHING 'EM FROM THE CHAIR

The course to be followed by attorneys for prisoners under sentence of death is now pretty well charted. First, exhaust all possibilities of the courts themselves.

Then, when those have failed, wait until the eve of the execution date with an affidavit by someone alleging a belief that the prisoner has become insane.

In the Mackenzie case this worked successfully enough. Mackenzie, at a hearing conducted under the archaic system in use in Texas, was adjudged insane and thus escaped the gallows. It remains to be seen whether it will prove equally effective in Leahy's case. Leahy was to have been executed on last Friday. On Thursday the insanity affidavit was introduced in the court where he was tried and a stay of execution was ordered. The insanity hearing was set for July 22. Even if Leahy is adjudged sane he will have gained ten days more of life. And there is the chance, of course, that he will be adjudged insane.

POT SHOTS POLITICS

Col. Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald. AUSTIN

Hike in Cost of Food. Jas. J. Davis is secretary of the federal department of labor and a bulletin issued by the department lets it be known the retail price of food in the United States increased one per cent between May 15 and June 15 and has advanced 58 per cent since June 15, 1912. Well, who takes down the velvet? Farmers everywhere are demanding relief. Consumers are paying high prices. Point out the missing link in the chain.

Hoover Lifts the Pressure

Pres. Hoover has issued a proclamation raising the embargo on the shipments of arms and munitions to Mexico, an embargo which was imposed by Pres. Coolidge Jan. 17, 1924. It is a matter of history that the embargo throttled the Obregon revolutionists in the not distant past and the settlement of the church row in Mexico may bring about a stable government which will endure throughout the years.

Let us forget the airplane with its fighting warriors and its terrific bombs crushed the recent revolution in short order. In wars of the future the war plane will be the thing.

Civilized man has at his disposal frightful weapons of destruction. Slavs and Chinese may go to it for the possession of Manchuria before the close of the year with Japan in the lookout chair ready at the finish to take the torques and hand the feathers to the Russ and the Mongol.

Farmers Are Unorganized

Chris L. Christensen, secretary of the federal farm relief board and a leader in the cooperative marketing movement, estimates that only about one-third of the 6,000,000 farmers of America are now organized. These associations must organize under state laws. This confines the associations for the most part to state groups.

Chen. Legze has let it be known the farm relief act "is essentially to assist cooperative producer-owned agricultural associations."

He explained to the press correspondents that the cooperative associations must be owned and controlled by the producers of the commodity involved.

There are millions of tenant farmers in the 48 states. It is said by those who profess to know that 68 per cent of the producers of Texas are tenant farmers. Organization appears to be the thing. Cooperatives may be in the saddle some day in America. But what will they do with the tenants?

In the Southern States the tenants live from hand to mouth. They are victims of an age old credit system. They are landless and most of the time penniless.

BACK TO NATURE

By W. F. BRUCE. This always morning somewhere, and above. The awakening continents, from shore to shore. Somewhere the birds are singing evermore. —Longfellow.

Did you ever lie and listen at dawn to the variety of notes, warbled, chattered, whistled, cooed and chucked by the birds? One of the inspiring features of nature is provided by the songs of the birds. The winter is not a season for the birds to sing especially and yet their notes may be heard even then on a sunny day especially in this climate. There are notes for every hour of the day and even of the night. Every one is familiar with the habit the mocking bird has of singing in the night, sometimes rather sleepily as it sounds. If he did not keep it up so continuously and for so long one might think he was troubled with sleepless babies who had got mixed on the day and night, or persisted in being fed even in the middle of the night. As a matter of fact his song, as is that of most birds, is associated with, but not limited to, the nesting season.

I am going to describe quite fully, but not name, a bird belonging to the middle states, the plains region between the Mississippi and the Rockies, and numerous around Cisco. In the mountains of New Mexico I saw one alight on the campus one day that awakened a friendly feeling by his familiar appearance. This bird is slightly larger than the English sparrow I have recorded in this section as early as the middle of March and as late as November and am quite sure it is here all winter. His song may be heard as early as March and as late as October at least. He is an important part of the chorus of birds but is not apt to be noticed unless taking a solo part. The general appearance is a streaky effect of gray to brownish above and whitish on the lower parts. If you approach while he is singing from his perch on the limb of a tree or on a wire you may draw near and even walk around him timing your movements to his bursts of song. Then his distinguishing marks may be observed, a black streak on each side of the throat and one in the center of the breast; a white streak on either side of the head almost through the eye and another through the crown. Another mark of identification taken with those just mentioned is a border of white on the spread tail while the bird is in flight and noticed especially as he alights with a sort of upward glide to his perch.

The song of the bird we are describing I consider one of the sweetest in nature although simple and unpretentious. It may be heard at any hour of the day and often in the night, but is especially appropriate as a vesper song when it may often be heard harmonizing with the quiet balmy breezes of the closing day. A swelling of the little throat may be observed as the bird utters its short refrain of simple notes much like the subdued effect of a muffled mouth organ.

Write me your guess on the name of this bird and your own name. Names of those guessing correctly will be given next week. Box 636, Cisco, Texas.

Attractive Cisco Homes

"We spend most of our time here," said Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Blankenbecker, 705 West Ninth street, speaking of their back yard. Tall shrubbery surrounds the small grassy nook where a yard swing has been placed, making it a most beautiful spot and delightfully cool.

The west corner of the garage juts out to form a little alcove across the back that is filled with purple and white althea, nasturtiums, roses, golden glow, cosmos, amaryllis lilies, and gladiolus with a tall slender Lombardy poplar at either end. The corner of the garage itself is hidden by a towering mass of crepe myrtle, a weeping willow tree, and below it the brilliant orange swing. To the right an oblong fish pond is bordered with iris, is covered with the immense leaves of water lilies. In the corner on the west side of the yard between the flower bed and the wisteria-covered lattice fence stands a stately silver-leaf maple.

A walk of stepping stones leads from the back entrance where a heavy thicket of honeysuckle covers the back porch and a tall pecan tree stands beside the steps above the bed of zinnias, roses and dahlias along the house.

OUT-OF-DOORS UNIVERSITY IN DENVER PARK

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN. United Press Staff Correspondent. DENVER, Colo., July 25. — A university where the students bring their pet dogs to class, where the men—and women, too — smoke while listening to their professors and where it is suspected a little love making goes on in the rear row, is the latest in Denver educational circles.

At a Greek amphitheater on a knoll in a grassy park overlooking the hazy, lavender Rocky Mountains to the west, the classes of the Outdoor university meet shortly after dusk.

The students, flappers and their boy friends, housewives and their children, white haired pioneers and their wives, stroll about the flower beds, admire the ever changing vistas of the mountains and chat until 8 p. m., when Chancellor Sidney B. Whipple mounts the rostrum to introduce the speaker of the evening.

The lecture may be on chemistry, or earthquakes, or astronomy. Whatever it is, the students of the Outdoor university settle back on the grass to listen for an hour. Dogs are quieted, babies are given playthings, pipes are lighted and the class is begun.

"The Outdoor university as organized here," said Whipple who started it with the financial aid of F. G. Bonfils, publisher of the Denver Post, "is unique in educational annals. No Tuition Fees. We have no set courses, no tuition, no attendance record, and no rules. The students can get up and walk out in the middle of a lecture if it doesn't interest them. We started it simply because we believe there is need for the informal purveying of knowledge to the masses."

Recognized authorities upon their subjects, usually professors from various Colorado institutions of higher learning, are the teachers at the Outdoor university. The night the correspondent attended the university, chemistry was the order of the evening. A professor from the University of Denver was the lecturer. He told of the wonders of wood, how it is bleached, and even gun-powder by a shake-up of its atomic structure.

Love-making Forgotten. The students were spell-bound. The love-makers forgot to hold hands. Cigars went out and even the dogs were quiet in the spell of the almost magical tale of creative chemistry.

Then the professor told how for years chemists had been able to produce an unpleasant gummy substance by combining farbric acid and formaldehyde. No use for it could be found until one day several years ago an experimenter sprayed ammonia gas upon the mass.

The gas, the professor explained, served to fuse the atoms in the gummy mass more solidly so that a hard, almost indestructible substance was evolved. It is used for synthetic amber beads, fountain pens, radio dials, automobile gears and the like.

One of the students, an aged man, took his pipe from his mouth and looked at its stem which he had just learned was made from carboic acid, formaldehyde and ammonia.

"Still, it's a pretty good pipe," he said.

Well Known Eastland, Tex., Woman Gives Her Reasons for Endorsing Orgatone.

Mrs. T. M. Holmes, wife of a well known drilling contractor and residing at 603 Halbryan St., Eastland, Tex., in a recent statement regarding the benefits she has derived from Orgatone, said: "I haven't been in good health for several years. My system seemed to be all run-down, my appetite was very poor and I had aches and pains in my stomach after eating. I couldn't sleep well, biliousness. In fact, I never felt good at any time and knew I needed something to put me in condition."

"Seeing Orgatone so highly recommended in the papers and many of the people lived right here in Eastland I decided to try it and it has certainly set me right. My run-down nervous irritable feelings are gone and my appetite is splendid. All my aches and pains have left me. I sleep like a log every night and am simply feeling great. These are my reasons for thinking so well of Orgatone and I have told numbers of others about it."

$1,000,000 Is "Kingdom for Horse" Offer for Phalaris

KENTUCKIAN IS SEEKING STAR FROM BRITAIN

Huge Bid Made for Great Turf Sire of England

By FRANK GETTY
 United Press Sports Editor.

A Kingdom for a Horse
 The offer by Joseph E. Widener of $1,000,000 for the English stallion, Phalaris, owned by Lord Derby, is reported by this week's New York Press, the entertaining American racing paper.

The object of this extraordinary offer is to add the greatest of British turf sires to Widener's Kentucky breeding establishment. Remarkably enough, the offer probably will be refused. Phalaris, winner of many important stakes in his racing days, is a Pymelius out of Bromus, sire of Salfoin, sire of Rock Sand. The name is the most valuable stallion yet imported to the United States, having been bought for $20,000.

The highest price on record for a stallion is $300,000, paid abroad for Call Boy. Widener's offer of $1,000,000 is obviously out of proportion to values previously fixed for thoroughbred stallions, but it happens that millions do not mean as much to the American sportsman as to some of us. Apparently Lord Derby doesn't have to hock the family corns, either.

Phalaris already is called Papa Manna, which won the Epsom Derby in 1925; Colorado, a 2,000-gallon winner; fair Way, best of the English three-year-olds last season, and other equine champions.

The Larkspur at the Spa
 Not content with recognition for champion, Blue Larkspur, as the best three year old of 1929, Col. E. Bradley, Kentucky sportsman, sending the sleek black colt to further laurels at Saratoga.

Owners of horses which chased Blue Larkspur home at Arlington and other chances against the colt, which will now seek pages honors.

Blue Larkspur has won $216,420 to date. Zev won $313,639 but this record sum included $100,000 picked up in a center in the match race with the English beer-drinker, Zyrus.

Colonel Bradley has found his match in the Larkspur justified and is ready to match him against the best, so the colt may yet surpass Zev's high money mark.

Joe's Must Live, Too
 Mack Garner, one of the best of American riders, had the leg on the Larkspur in the Bradley colt's important victories. Mack flew out of the way from New York to Louisville to ride the horse in the Kentucky Derby, only to finish fourth. Since then, Blue Larkspur has accounted for the Withers, the Belmont and the Classic, and Garner's riding had been a contributory factor to success.

Joe's who can ride like that do not go unrewarded these days. Garner's earnings for the year probably will amount to $60,000. He recently received $5,900 when Larkspur won $59,000 in the American Classic, and Colonel Bradley added the yards' on top of that.

BLUE LARKSPUR IS SIXTH AS MONEY HORSE

By BERT DEMBY,
 United Press Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, July 25.—Col. E. R. Bradley is determined to make Blue Larkspur the leading money winner of all time.

Keenly disappointed when this son of Black Servant-Blossomtime failed to win the Kentucky derby, Bradley now desires to make Larkspur a "standout" horse by having him eclipse Zev's money winning record of $313,639.

Already Larkspur is sixth in the list of high money horses. He bows only to Zev, Exterminator, Man-o-War, Display and Sarazen and the 1929 season is but half over.

When Larkspur won the American Classic here a week ago he brought his earnings to $230,420, supplanting Crusader, who until that time had held sixth place as a purse winner.

This record of Larkspur's is more amazing when the fact that he has started in only 13 races is considered. Exterminator went to the post 100 times; Zev faced the start 43 times.

The one horse which compares, according to number of starts, with Larkspur is Colin. In 15 starts, Colin amassed a total purse winning figure of $180,000 and Larkspur already is ahead of that mark.

Houston rose to within half a game of the league leadership when the Buffaloes stamped in their game with Shreveport and snatched the ball for 18 hits, which enabled them to defeat the Sports, 10 to 1.

GLIMPSES OF ACTION AT DENVER

A. A. U. records went skittering all over the place when these athletes put on their act during the recent championship tourney at Denver. The high jumper at the top is Bert Nelson of Butler, setting a new A. A. U. high jump record at six feet 4 7/8 inches. The pole vaulter is Harold McAtee of Michigan State clearing the bar at 13 feet 4 3/4 inches, a new junior record. Richard Barber of the Los Angeles A. C. pictured above in the broad jump, just missed a new mark by a fraction of an inch. He leaped 24 feet 2 1/2 inches. Jed Walsh of the Los Angeles A. C. is shown finishing the 120 yard high hurdles in 14.9, a new junior championship record.

WATCHING THE SCOREBOARD

By United Press.

Yesterday's hero, Hack Wilson, burly Cub outfielder whose two home runs at Chicago scored four runs for his team and paved the way for an 8 to 7 victory over the New York Giants.

Those came blows, incidentally, blasted Chicago into first place. There was none on base when he hit the first but Hornsby was on first and Keathote on second when he smote his second into the stands.

Brooklyn had several home run hitters on top but didn't need them with William Watson Clarke in the box at Pittsburgh. Clarke scattered the Pirates 10 hits and Brooklyn scored its second victory in three games in west, 6 to 4. Pittsburgh dropped to second place.

Jimmy Wilson emulated his chunky namesake in Chicago when he hit a home run in the eighth inning of the Cincinnati-Cardinals game at St. Louis, scoring the winning runs for the 1927 champions. The score was tied at 4-all before Wilson booted home the runs that gave St. Louis a 6 to 4 verdict.

Boston used 10 hits to advantage at Cincinnati and beat the Reds, 5 to 3. Cunningham and Smith held the losers to 8 blows.

Here Pennock allowed 11 hits but kept them well scattered and the New York Yankees beat Detroit, 7 to 5, at New York. George Uhl was the losing pitcher.

Philadelphia took an early lead over Cleveland and beat the Indians, 5 to 3, at Philadelphia. George Earshaw gave the Westerners eight hits, but held them scoreless until the ninth.

Bob Burke and Al Thomas staged a great pitching duel at Washington. The winners worked the Senators, 3 to 2. Both teams made eight hits.

Fourteen hits gave Boston a 9 to 7 decision over St. Louis Browns at Boston. The winners worked three pitchers during the contest, and the losers used four.

Texas League

By United Press.

In the face of a 6 to 1 lead by the Fort Worth club Wednesday the San Antonio Indians came from behind to beat the Cats, 8 to 6, in the first game of a series. Milt Gordon and Brozovitch, with a two-bagger and a triple, respectively, started the rally.

When the Dallas Steers decided to bear their losing streak at Beaumont Tommy Estell was unable to stop them. When in a fifth inning assault Dallas scored three runs, Estell was replaced by Fred Sturdy who held the invaders scoreless, but Beaumont likewise was unable to score. The final count was 5 to 0.

In a closely contested game at Waco the Cubs won out over the visiting Wichita Falls club when they scored their second run in the fifth to break the 1 and 1 tie. A home run by Windle gave the Cubs their first score. The game ended 2 to 1.

BRUSHING UP SPORTS By Laufer

THE business of elevating eyebrows took a brisk upturn about ten years ago when Yale announced that a professional ball player had been hired to coach the team.

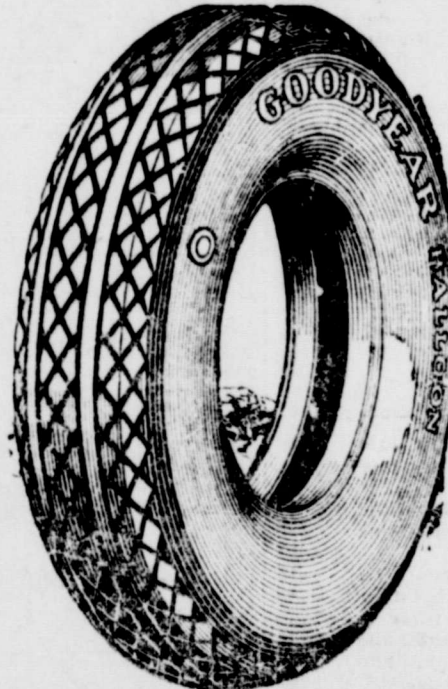

That player was Smoky Joe Wood, hero of the 1913 world series when his fast ball helped the Boston Red Sox into a world championship. He was the first of the tobacco-chewing element to make his way into one of the holly-toity schools. Ever since Smoky Joe came to Yale, professional players as coaches have been gaining in favor. Prof. Phelps of Yale even went so far as to have Fancher Tunney tell a few things about left hooks and Shakespeare to his English class.

Joe has won respect that is nation-wide because he has been turning out smart teams at Eli and developing splendid ball players. You don't hear much about Joe's players, because not many of the Yale men go into professional baseball after they have ended their college careers. Bruce Caldwell, farmed by the Indians to New Haven in the Eastern League, is one of Joe's boys, and he has been burning up the league this year with healthy wallops.

Ducky Pond, who could have pitched for any big league club he chose, and Mac Aldrich, one of the most brilliant shortstops seen in college baseball in years, were Joe's proteges. Neither went into pro baseball after their days at Yale were done.

Joe Wood's name was linked in the scandal several years ago when Dutch Leonard made his startling disclosures about Cobb and Speaker, and the Yale student body rallied behind Smoky Joe to a man, voting confidence in his integrity.

Joe has developed quite a few great hitters, too, who preferred knocking out the customers' eyes with gilt-edged bonds to lapping them over the fence. Joe was a hitter as well as a pitcher and has proved one of the country's most valuable collegiate coaches.

POPE MAY VISIT HISTORIC LATERAN AGAIN

From the time of Constantine the Great until the middle ages the historic church of St. John Lateran, in Rome (shown at the right), was the headquarters of the Catholic church. No pope has seen it, however, since 1870, when the seizure of Rome by the Garibaldians caused the popes to remain within the walls of the Vatican. On July 27, however, Pope Pius XI will signalize the recent establishment of the papal sovereignty by journeying out into Rome, and it is expected that the Lateran will be one of the first places he will visit. At the left Pope Pius (in white) is shown in the Vatican gardens—until now, the only place he could stroll in the open air.

Many Phases of Agricultural Thought and Activity Are to Be Discussed at Short Course

COLLEGE STATION, July 25. — Actually every phase of agricultural thought and activity will come for discussion at the twentieth annual farmers' short course to be held at the A. & M. college of Texas July 29—August 3, announcement of the general program by H. H. Williamson, vice director and state agent of the extension service under the auspices of which the short course is held. Group sessions for men, boys and women and girls will be held and sectional meetings will be devoted to specialized fields of farming and farm operation. Indications are that attendance this year will exceed that of nearly 500 registered last year, officials have announced, and arrangements are being made for a record crowd. Special rates of one cent a mile each way have been granted by the college.

Topics of general agricultural interest will be discussed by outstanding educators and specialists in the forenoon and evening sessions for men and boys while subject matter lectures and demonstrations will be held during the afternoon. Special programs have been arranged for women and girls, featuring topics of particular interest to the farmer's wife and children.

A central theme will dominate the general lectures each forenoon. The program for Tuesday will be devoted to "The American Agricultural Trend," for Wednesday to "Farming in Texas," for Thursday to "Land Utilization and Conservation," and for Friday to "The Cattle Industry." Monday morning will be given over to the formal opening ceremonies when President T. O. Walton of the college will deliver an address in welcoming the short course visitors. In addition to the special homecoming programs for women and girls, sectional meetings will be held each afternoon for detailed attention to such subjects as agronomy, poultry raising, dairying, swine and sheep and goat raising. Annual judging contests for H. H. club boys will be held as in former years in the following divisions: Livestock, dairy, poultry and grain judging, and terracing. Trophy cups and medals will be awarded winning teams. The winning team in dairy judging, including the county agent coach and alternate member, will be awarded trip to the National Dairy show in St. Louis in October as guests of the M-K-T railroad. R. Reese, Dallas agricultural agent for M-K-T in Texas, has announced. Forty or more teams are expected to enter the dairy judging event with correspondingly large numbers of entries in the other events.

FUNERAL COSTS ARE CHEAP IN AUSTRIAN CITY

VIENNA, July 25. — To live in Vienna is expensive especially if one is a stranger; but to die here is quite the other thing. Funerals cost less than in any large city in the world. No funeral costs very much unless something especially elaborate and extraordinary is specifically ordered. Most funerals cost only a little more than $14, and the average for all funerals is only a few cents more than $50.

Vienna is ruled by a Socialist government which its opponents know more about ways and means to keep the population poor than any other city government anywhere. Regardless of finances an individual's life, however, the city fathers make dying as easy for those thoughtful souls who in their last hours are over the sacrifices which their loved ones will have to make in order to bury them decently. The shadow of no conscientious undertaker hovers over the bed of the Viennese to make his death yet more painful.

No Wakes Permitted. — Of each death in Vienna the authorities must be informed immediately, and within six hours after death the body of the deceased person must be removed from the house to a municipal mortuary. No death watch or wake is allowed in any home.

On the day of the funeral a municipal motor-vehicle is provided to take the body to the cemetery for burial or to the crematorium. Private undertaking establishments ments exist but they are compelled to keep their prices down in order to get any business at all. By far the greater part of the 75 daily burials are handled by the socialist municipality's establishment at the price of 100 Austrian schillings (less than $15) each. During the past 12 months the municipal motor-vehicles covered a distance 23 times that between Vienna and New York.

Of the 75 persons who die each day in Vienna 11 have only the fatal complications usually designed by non-medical men as old age; 11 others are victims of tuberculosis, and nine of cancer. Approximately half the deaths here are accidental, approximately two daily are suicidal—the attempts at suicide being about 50 per cent successful. An ever increasing number of bodies are cremated each year. In behalf of cremation the socialist party wages a continual campaign, this campaign being partly hygienic and partly aimed against the influence of the Catholic church.

JOURNALIST IS PAID HONORS BY BULGARIA

NEW LEXINGTON, O., July 25. — The memory of Janarius Alcyonius MacGahan, American journalist who for five generations has been hailed as Bulgaria's liberator, was honored at his tomb here recently by Simeon Radoff, Bulgarian envoy sent by royal commission from his post at Washington.

A romantic figure who followed campaigns from Siberia to the West Indies, MacGahan rose from obscurity to the ranks of a national hero in Bulgaria. His stories for the New York Herald on the imperial drive to Khiva in 1871 resulted in his deprecation by the Russian government. It was mainly through the efforts of MacGahan that the Russians later were dispatched to the assistance of the war-torn Balkan state during the Sultan's drive of 1876.

That the Bulgarians today recognize MacGahan's services was demonstrated at the memorial exercises here when a wreath was placed on the monument over his grave by order of King Boris III. MacGahan's accounts of the Turkish advance in the Balkans for the London Times and the London News were largely responsible for an investigation by the British government, which had stationed a fleet in the Dardanelles. His stories were found to be true and the fleet was withdrawn.

One of MacGahan's cherished hopes was realized when he lived to see the northern armies push the Turks to the Bosphorus. Illness contracted in his campaign caused his death a year after its close in 1878.

Burial was at New Lexington, near his birthplace, after the body was accorded international honors in Europe and Washington.

TO CELEBRATE BLERIOT HOP OVER CHANNEL

By SAMUEL DASHSELL, United Press Staff Correspondent. PARIS, July 25. — Twenty years ago today Lindbergh's forerunner, Louis Bleriot, silent Frenchman of 39, flew for the first time across the English Channel, and France is preparing to observe the anniversary with the plaudits it merits.

In that single flight of a half hour at dawn on July 25, 1909, the whole of the geographical balance of Europe was upset. The magnificent isolation of England was no longer a reality. The smiling Frenchman in a red jersey had smashed his plane in the effort, but he was the forerunner of Lindbergh and his mighty hop across the ocean. Byrd and his flight over the North Pole and the fliers whose planes have linked Europe with Asia, the Old World with South America and continents with islands.

Altimen and pioneers around the world are preparing to flood Bleriot tomorrow with telegrams of friendship. France and Britain have organized celebrations on the sides of the channel where Bleriot took off in his frail monoplane where he piled up in a happy delirium of similarity to Lindbergh.

There is much similarity in careers and characters of Bleriot and Lindbergh. Both could claim to be silent birdmen. Perhaps that is why Lindbergh was drawn to the modest Frenchman when, after his historic flight, a smiling youngster was being fed in Paris. He spent much time there with Bleriot, and has since maintained communication by letters.

As did Lindbergh, Bleriot hopped off without any fanfare. He, Hubert Latham, each with his planes, and Count de Lambert a biplane, had been waiting along the French coast near Bourlogne for a following wind to help carry their light machines over the channel and thus win a prize of $25,000 offered for the flight.

Bleriot stole a march on his rivals by getting up early in the morning of July 25. They believed he was out of the race, because the day before he had been hobbling on crutches as the result of an injury to his foot in a bad landing.

Anzani, the constructor of the motor of Bleriot's plane, awoke his mechanics that morning by firing his revolver in the hallway of their hotel. Latham and Lambert slept through the din, and Bleriot, in a red sweater and red cap, was over the channel before they woke up.

There was practically no wind when Bleriot took off at 4:41 a. m. and he was soon over the whole of the channel. On the British shore, he struck bad winds and he flew up and down the coast looking for a landing place.

"The wind was blowing 25 miles an hour, almost a whirlwind, and certainly the worst storm I had ever flown in," M. Bleriot told the United Press in recalling his flight.

"As I landed, I made a good three-point landing, but the weight of the motor bent the front of the fuselage, and the body of the plane was smashed. There was no wild excitement, because my flight was a surprise known only to my wife and a few friends."

ing engagements. We knew that my success meant definite progress and we set to work the next day to build larger monoplane."

Bleriot had been unable to interest an insurance company in insuring either his life or the plane. He did not gain a cent by his courageous success, and in fact never expected anything. But he became one of France's principal airplane builders and has since constructed both biplanes and monoplane for military and civil flying around the world.

Latham's Disappointment. — Latham cried from disappointment when he learned of Bleriot's success. But it was a Sunday morning, and Denver slept late. A police constable named Fleet was one of the few to witness the landing. It was hours later before the municipal officials could be gathered to welcome Bleriot at the Lord Warden hotel, and later there were further celebrations in London.

Bleriot's plane was the smallest of the three, two principal wings attached to two smaller ones by light framework with four movable controlling rudders in back. The total lifting surface was less than 14 square metres. The three-cylinder motor turned the four-blade propeller with 22 h. p. With pilot

SCOTLAND YARD MAKES USE OF WIRELESS SETS

By WALLACE CARROLL, United Press Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, July 25.—On the top floor of a grim range of buildings overlooking the Thames is a small room which contains some of the most carefully guarded secrets of London police.

The room is the control point of Scotland yard's wireless system. Throughout the day, "tips" on the activities of criminals are flashed to the motor cars of the "Flying squad" in all parts of London. There are times also when photographs and finger prints of criminals are transmitted to police authorities half-way across the world. Not unlike a "Sparks" cabin aboard ship, the room contains a Pictograph picture transmitting machine and a Marconi-Wright fac-simile transmitter in addition to standard Morse equipment. It is thoroughly insulated against interference from the electric trains which run directly below Scotland yard and the elevators in the building.

Effectiveness Demonstrated. The effectiveness of the system was demonstrated recently when a squad car captured three motor handbills within ten minutes after it had been "tipped off" by the yard.

Most of the squad cars are indistinguishable from ordinary delivery cars. There is no wireless equipment on the outside to reveal their purpose. As they whirl through the streets, few of London's millions are aware of their mission.

At all hours of the day and night the units of the squad are in constant touch with headquarters by wireless and can be mobilized quickly for duty at any particular point. They can communicate with each other through the yard but not directly.

The newest of the police cars have room for four officers in addition to their wireless apparatus. They can accelerate from 10 to 60 miles per hour in 15 seconds and attain a speed of 75 miles per hour.

Secret Code Used. Scotland yard engineers began experimenting with wireless in 1921 when two machines were fitted with portable radio sets. To eliminate interference, rejector circuits attached to the receiver were used. Telegraphic code, the method of communication at first but telegraphy later was substituted because of its greater range and reliability.

Among the earliest experiments was the scheme used in 1921 and the following years for controlling the vast Derby day traffic by wireless instructions from airplanes. The present wave length used by the police is kept secret. A secret code is used in accordance with an international agreement with other police forces.

Scotland yards frequently sends messages to the United States, Canada and Australia as well as to the continent. Finger prints have been transmitted to the American police and replies confirming the identity of the suspects have been received within 24 hours. Few countries have police owned wireless sets. Germany and France have a few but the Scotland yard set is the only large one in England.

Forecast of Revolution in Rice Seeding Methods Comes as Field of 640 Acres Is Planted from Plane

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25.—By using airplanes to seed their crops, California rice farmers may save thousands of dollars. Forecasting a revolution in rice seeding methods, the story of how a 640-acre rice crop was saved this season by means of airplane seeding is revealed in the current issue of the Pacific Flyer, San Francisco aviation magazine.

Three principal advantages are outlined as the result of a successful experiment made on a 640-acre tract at Merced, owned by the Crocker-Huffman Land and Water company: 1. Seeding by airplane means independence of the weather. 2. It provides an inexpensive seeding in water, which is said to give the best crop. 3. The airplane is claimed to give the most even seeding obtainable.

The airplane experiment came about in unusual fashion. The Crocker-Huffman company, owners of thousands of acres of productive rice lands was faced this year with a loss of $64,000. An entire section of 640 acres, seeded earlier than usual, had sprouted when migratory mud hens began to arrive in droves, enroute north. They stopped long enough to discover the tender young rice shoots. E. S. Murchie and Tom McSwain conferred with Frank Galison and L. F. Tedrow, proprietors of a commercial flying service at Merced airport, and the two pilots agreed to attempt the seeding. They loaded 500 pounds of seed into the front cockpit of a plane.

TEXAS SCHOOL LEAGUE WILL MAKE CHANGES

AUSTIN, July 25.—Several changes will be included in the new edition of the constitution and rules of the University of Texas interscholastic league, according to Roy Bedichek, chief of the league bureau. Some of these changes were recommended to the state executive committee by the last state meeting of delegates. They include raising of the age limit for juniors from 14 to 15 years. The new schedule of ages for the three divisions in league contests will therefore be: Sub-juniors, under 10; juniors, 10 to 15; seniors, more than 15 and less than 20. Another change recommended by the last state meeting requires bi-district eliminations in all four divisions in tennis before contestants may be qualified for the state meet. Definite provision to be included in the debating rules for disqualifying a team, either member of which exceeds the time limits set forth in the rules, and installation of a high school baseball contest on the same general lines now in force for determining regional championships in Class B football are other changes recommended to the state executive committee. Two charges originating with the state committee to meet urgent demands from schoolmen provide for installation of a new contest for county meets in art memory along the lines now in use in determining county contests in music memory and for installation of regional contests in still life in charcoal, still life in color and clay modeling for qualification to the state meet in these events.
