OVER 100 WOLVES CAUGHT IN EASTLAND COUNTY

F. MATHEWS OF CISCO, IS LEADING LIST

Bounty Paid Private Trappers for Each Scalp

Something over 100 wolves have been caught in Eastland county during the campaign for the eradication of predatory animals was Blanton, Mathews here according to Michael, at Eastland. Of September 27 were caught by private individuals who received from the county, 44 were two county trappers and by two federal trappers. July the bounty paid for animals was $2 per head. The state legislature, however, passed a law enabling the trappers courts of certain Eastland included, to pay bounties on wolves, wildcats and predatory animals and the commissioners court of this county an order authorizing the payment of this sum on wolves. Each Month bounty does not apply on animals caught by government trappers. The ears of the animals brought to the court must be of the person claiming the bounty. At the end of the month a check for the bounty due a claimant is issued by Mr. Michael. The bounty bounties have been turned to the auditor's report for May, 12; June, 3; July, 10.

TERRELL CALLS WEEVIL FREE ZONE MEETING

Eradication of Sweet Potato Pest to Be Considered

A meeting of all those interested in eradication of the sweet potato weevil in this section has been called by Commissioner of Agriculture George B. Terrell, to take place at the court house at Eastland Saturday, September 14, at 2 p. m. The following proclamation was issued by Mr. Terrell:

"Austin, Texas, Sept. 1, 1929.

"Whereas, the sweet potato weevil, Cylas formicivorus, a serious pest of the sweet potato is known to exist in certain sections of the state, and:

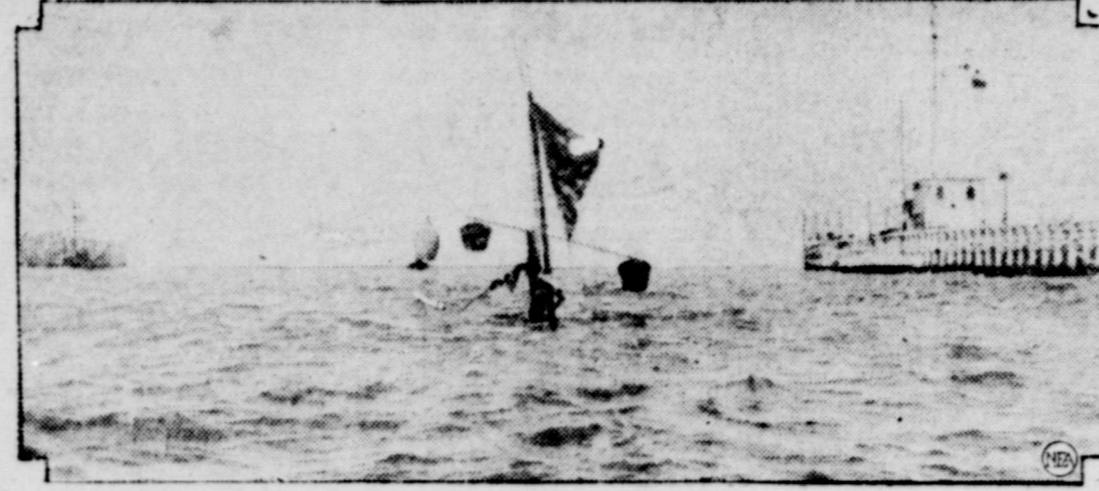

"Whereas, the sweet potato weevils are not known to exist in that section comprising the counties of Taylor, Callahan, Shackelford, Erath, Hood, Somerville, Parker, Stephens, Coleman, Eastland, Comanche, Brown, and Palo Pinto, and:

"Whereas, the commissioner of agriculture has been petitioned by a large number of citizens of this section to declare this area a weevil-free zone and prohibit the importation of sweet potatoes for seed or consumption into this zone from any section, save another like zone or as may be deemed advisable, and:

"Whereas, it has been alleged in these petitions that the present protection offered in state certification of sweet potatoes and sweet potato slips for planting purposes does not give the defense and protection required.

"Now Therefore, I, Geo. B. Terrell, commissioner of agriculture of Texas, by authority invested in me by the laws of Texas do hereby call a meeting of all interested persons for a consideration of this problem to be held at the court house in the town of Eastland, Texas on Saturday, Sept. 14, 1929, at 2 o'clock p. m. The purpose of the above hearing will be to consider the adoption of a proclamation prohibiting the movement of sweet potatoes, sweet potato plants or any parts of plants to any of the above mentioned counties and interested persons are invited to attend and voice their opinion.

WHERE TRAGEDY ENDED HOLIDAY CRUISE

Grim evidence of tragedy, this mast projecting above the water was all that remained visible of an excursion steamer which sank after a collision with a tug in the harbor at Ostend, Belgium. Ten lives were lost and many persons were injured when the excursion craft, cut almost in two, swiftly went down. Scores of passengers, grouped on the landward side of the vessel to wave farewell to friends on shore, were swept into the water without a chance of reaching the lifeboats.

STATES THAT CERTAINLY BLESSING TO

Suffered With Stomach and Nervous Troubles Five Years, covering Health Since Taking Orgatone.

ADMIRAL

My friends all want to know what the big improvement in my health and appearance I just say, "Orgatone," says E. J. Shannon, 608 South Eastland, Eastland, Texas. "My trouble began many years ago," she continues, "when my stomach got so bad that everything I ate would sour on me. I had to eat cause gas to form and against my heart, made me feel as if I was being crushed, and I was always in pain. I also had shortness of breath and dizziness whenever I would stoop down at times when one of the boys would come on, I would feel as if I were about to faint. I often I would have to get up until the attack passed off. My back ached across the middle, my back and my kidneys pained me continually. "I took Orgatone on the advice of a friend, and right after I began to get better. The first thing I noticed was that my appetite returned and that I slept having trouble after meals. Now eat anything and it doesn't hurt me. My nerves are better than I could carry, but I am making me so well, without any discomfort now. I am certainly thankful for the constipation is corrected, and I sleep soundly every night instead of lying awake for hours as I used to do. My nerves are calm and quiet and anybody I meet at me now would never think that I was almost a nervous wreck only a few weeks ago. Orgatone certainly proved a blessing to me. Genuine Orgatone may be obtained in Cisco at the Dean Drug Store.

CENTRAL

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Kurkin have returned home from New Mexico where Mr. Kurkin has been in camp for his health. They report the temperature dropped to 40 degrees. Mr. and Mrs. C. Nobels of Eastland were guests of his father and mother Sunday. Milton Nicholas and son June, also John Hazel of near Lubbock are here visiting relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Finley attended church at Corinth Sunday night. Mrs. Reynolds of Dallas, Mrs. Reynolds of Cisco and Grandmother Reynolds of Gorman called to see Mrs. L. Henson Thursday. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Henson of Eastland have moved to their farm. We are glad to have them with us. Haven't set date yet for school to start. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson of Olden were the guests of Mrs. Henson's Sunday. Mrs. Potter was shopping in Cisco Tuesday. Knute Lewis has out his second bale of cotton. Mr. and Mrs. D. Seabourn were in Cisco Saturday.

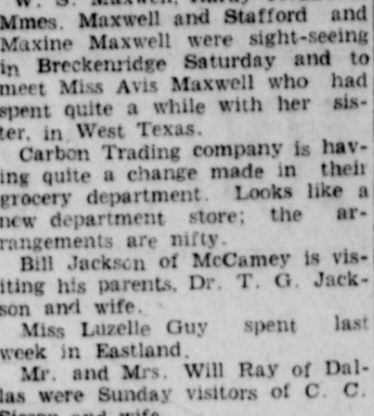

GRAPEVINE

Everyone in this community seems to be on the move at the present. Jim Thompson and family spent their last night here with Mrs. Thompson's sister, Mrs. John Seabourn and this morning started on their way to San Angelo, where they will stay about three weeks and then move on to the plains. Also Marion Kemp and family are leaving for California where they will make their future home. We wish them good luck and much happiness. Dillard Steinhough is on the sick list this week. Mrs. Jim Mickelle returned home last Sunday from Breckenridge after spending a few days with friends there. Mrs. Frank Kemp of Eastland spent Tuesday with friends here. This community as a whole enjoyed the revival meeting at Corinth, very much. Farmers here have most of their crops gathered so there is nothing to hinder our school beginning rather early. Our dramatic club meets again this week to make further preparations for our fair. Remember next Sunday is our pastor's day again and our regular singing day so come early. Miss Willie Frank Walker of Cisco is spending this week with Esther Walker.

CARBON

The Carbon fair committees met Friday afternoon. Mr. Patterson and Miss Ramey were on the ground to give information and cooperate in any way in order to make the fair a success. Our fair will be Sept. 13-14 also Eastland county hog show. Everybody come. The Nazarene meeting which is being held at the Methodist tabernacle is well attended. Rev. Howell closed a meeting at Flatwoods Sunday. Rev. Hollis and family are in Grayson county holding a meeting. Weldon Usery left Saturday for Lubbock where he will enter the Tech for a year. J. K. Hall and wife of Breckenridge were Sunday guests of Mrs. Kirk and Stafford. W. P. Gilbert and family, Mmes. W. T. Stubbsfield and Edna Jones were sightseeing in Cisco Sunday afternoon. W. J. City of Tomorrow Will Be Designed to Admit Health Giving Rays of Sun Now Lost in Crowded Skyscrapers Huge pyramid-like skyscrapers, designed to admit the maximum amount of air and sunlight, will be the business and dwelling places of tomorrow...

After a gap of centuries, during which the human race has taken great pride in clothing itself with heavy garments...

which was obtained by tremendous labors of the best scientific minds of the age...

the heavy clothing of men, will replace clothiers as designers of men's wear.

As long as 400 years before Christ, Hippocrates, the father of medicine, built a solarium where his patients could win back their health by basking in the beneficial rays of the sun.

The sun disseminates two kinds of rays. One is the infra-red or heat ray. The other, the ultra-violet or invisible rays which penetrate the skin and exert subtle alchemies inside the system...

Some indication of progress of this kind was shown recently when a doctor appeared before the New York City Rotary club in a special health costume which he had designed.

Now science has the answer for which Hippocrates struggled so long in vain. Today we know why sunshine is indispensable in the cure and prevention of tuberculosis and rickets...

So well have women caught the vision of the health the sun holds for them that they have radically changed their styles to get the utmost rays from the sun.

Men are awakening to their losing position in the race and somewhat tardily are groping their way toward more hygienic clothing.

are so feeble, after they had penetrated the layers of smoke and dust in the atmosphere, that they lost most of their effectiveness.

So important is sunlight to health that scientists have now devised a means of providing it on the dark, cloudy days of mid-winter...

Not content with giving humanity a method for getting its sunlight when the sun is weakest or living conditions do not permit actual sunlight, scientists have even captured the sun's rays and have put them into food.

This is not theory but a hard, scientific fact as Dr. Harry Steenbock, of the University of Wisconsin, has proved.

named "The sunshine vitamin," the most important to human health of all the vitamins.

Health experts declare that his discovery of irradiating foods has put civilization ahead for centuries and has done a great service to his fellow-beings by putting sunlight into the foods they eat.

"Do you want to stay here, and let me go away all alone?" questioned Bob gravely. "Do you want your poor daddy to go where nobody loves him, without his little girl to keep his company?"

Rita buried her head on Molly's shoulder. She was sobbing unrestrainedly, and her breath came in great, heart-wrenching gasps.

"Don't you torment the child!" commanded Molly, raising her tear-stained face from Rita's curls. "I never heard of such a cruel thing in my life!"

"But she has to make up her mind," insisted Bob stubbornly. "Come now, Rita, stop your crying, dear, and be a brave girl. Tell daddy if you want him to go away all alone, and leave you here."

"No, no," wailed the child pitifully. "No daddy."

"You see," he faced Molly triumphantly. "Blood is stronger than water."

Then suddenly his manner changed. "My God, Molly, can't we fix things up? This is horrible."

"Dreadful!" She shuddered. "Poor baby. There Rita. Don't cry sweetheart. Daddy isn't going to talk that way any more."

Bob patted his daughter's tousled hair. His eyes were wet, and his voice unsteady.

"There, there," he soothed. "It's all right, Rita. Daddy's not going to hurt his baby. Everything's going to be all right."

He averted his gaze from Molly's.

"We're not in any shape to go over this now," he said. "I'll get in touch with you by and by. You won't mind if I phone for an appointment later? Will you come to the door with daddy, Rita? Poor little girl. I'm sorry I made you cry."

He took her in his arms.

"Goodbye, Molly. It's a ghastly mess. I'm sorer than I can say. But there must be some way out. I believe that, I hope."

She nodded miserably.

"Yes, Bob. Your technique's tough, that's all," she smiled through her tears. "You and I, both—we're a perfect genius for doing the wrong thing."

"It will come out all right," he insisted. "It's just that I love you Molly, and you don't give a darn about me. Love's like an illness. People get over it—only, instead of feeling better, one feels worse."

"I couldn't feel any worse myself," she told him. "I don't see how you could either. Whatever happens, Bob, I reckon we've got to start feeling better pretty quick."

When he had gone, Molly went to her room to repair the ravages of her latest conflict. To please Rita, she changed her dark dress for a negligee of hyacinth crepe. They would spend the day in the house. That would be safest. It would be impossible to avoid reporters and photographers, if they should go out together.

The negligee, worn as a special favor to Rita, was a lovely thing, with a train that hung from Molly's shoulders and trailed the carpet, like the royal robe of a princess in a fairy tale. The flowing sleeves were weighted with ostrich feathers the color of Chinese vermilion. Her little slippers were orange.

When Rita was smaller, Molly used to read her a poem "The Hushabye Lady from Rockaby Street." Now Rita, when Molly thought the name was charming, and wore her lovely robe frequently for the very joy of hearing Rita cry, "Oh, see the Hushabye Lady!"

She changed leisurely, and then went to the nursery. Marie was sitting by the window, sewing.

"Where's Rita?" she asked.

Marie sprang to her feet.

"Why, I thought she was with you, Miss Burnham. Natsu told me Mr. Newton was here, and that Rita was with you."

"But Mr. Newton has been gone half an hour. Where's Natsu?" Molly rushed into the hall. "Natsu! Natsu! Have you seen Rita?"

The butler's yellow skin grew pale.

"She left the house, my lady, with her father. I supposed you knew."

"Oh, my God! Get Mr. Flynn on the phone immediately. And call a taxi for me."

Molly was tearing at the fastenings on her hyacinth gown. Before the butler had Red on the line, she had changed into street clothes. She snatched the telephone from Natsu's hands.

"Red, Bob's taken Rita away with him! Half an hour ago. No, I don't know where he's gone. No, No, I tell you! I don't know anything at all about it. I've just missed her. I thought she was with Marie. Oh, what shall I do? Yes. Yes. I am calm."

She hung up the receiver.

"Mr. Flynn says I must be calm, Natsu," she told him. "Calm!"

She laughed hysterically.

"Don't Miss Burnham!" cried Marie. "You mustn't take on that way!"

CHAPTER XLVIII

Red had promised to come immediately. Molly paced up and down the hall, wringing her hands. Sometimes she pressed her fingers to her lips, to stifle the screams that were in her throat.

"Oh, God!" she prayed, "don't let him keep Rita. Please don't let him keep her."

When the bell rang, she rushed past Natsu, to open the door herself. To her utter amazement, it was not Red—but Jack—whom she admitted.

"I've read Ashes of Desire," he announced surprisingly.

And, stepping in, he closed the door behind him.

"You've what?" she cried.

"Read Ashes of Desire," he repeated patiently. "Your book. I never read it before, Molly."

"I don't know what you're talking about," she told him foolishly. "Rita's gone, Jack. Bob's taken her away. What shall I do?"

"Rita?" he repeated. "I didn't come to talk about Rita."

Natsu and Marie had disappeared, and the two were alone. Simply, as though he had done it only yesterday, Jack put out his arms. And straightway, like a child, Molly nestled in their circle.

"Dearest!"

He held her closely, as though he could never let her go.

"I don't understand," she murmured. "Did Red send you? Do you know about Rita?"

He shook his head.

"No, darling. I went back to New York, when I learned you had left town. I didn't ever want to see you, nor hear of you again. Red Flynn had sent me Ashes of Desire. I never meant to read it. I meant to return it to him. But last night—oh, Molly, it was an awful night! It poured and poured, and the wind howled. I tried to get you out of my mind. I didn't want to think about you. I darn near went crazy, trying to forget you. Then I picked up your book, and I glanced through it."

"My Lord, Molly, I hadn't read a dozen pages, when I realized! You wrote that book for me didn't you?"

He raised her head from his shoulders, and putting his fingers beneath her chin, tilted her head back, so that he might see her eyes.

"Tell me, dearest! Tell me you wrote it for me."

"Of course I wrote it for you, Jack."

"And those fool reporters thought it was for Bob Newton?" He laughed shortly. "I don't understand, sweetheart. You weren't really engaged to Bob, were you?"

"Yes," she admitted. "I mean no. That is... oh, Jack, he's taken Rita!"

"I don't understand," he repeated.

"Neither do I," she confessed. "It's awfully mixed up, isn't it? I love you, Jack."

"Oh, darling. I know you do. It's the most wonderful thing in the world. And, Molly, I never stopped loving you, sweetheart."

"But you wouldn't marry me?" she moaned.

"I was just a darn fool," he declared. "Let's get married today."

"Oh, dear!" she cried. "If I only had Rita I'd be the happiest girl in the world."

"I'll get Rita for you," he promised. "I'll do anything in the world you want me to, Molly."

"But you can't get Rita," she wailed, "because she belongs to Bob, and he won't let me have her, unless I marry him."

"So that's it! That's why you got yourself engaged to Bob?"

"You couldn't marry me," she said. "And I didn't want to marry anyone else, so it didn't make much difference."

He kissed her hair the way he used to.

"You're cuckoo," he told her tenderly. "You may be a bright young woman on Broadway, but you're only a little nut after all."

"Come in my sitting room," she proposed. "Red will be here any minute. I'm afraid he'll think I'm fickle, if you don't stop kissing me. Last time I saw him, I was engaged to Bob... Oh, dear, if I only knew about Rita! There are about a million things I want to ask you, Jack Wells."

"What sort of things?" he asked.

"Oh, that dreadful Mrs. Bulwer-Eaton for one."

"Molly, you didn't believe that drivel!" He regarded her sternly.

"No," she said, "of course I didn't. But you've a lot of explaining to do, just the same."

"Well, she was rich as old lady Croesus," he declared, "and I was a poor young man, trying to get along. Besides, I did some swell houses for her. I got paid pretty well for my time, of course."

"That's as it should be," she decreed. "You didn't ever kiss her, Jack?"

"No! Whatever made you think of a thing like that?"

"I just wanted to be sure. I'd hate to have had you kiss her. It was bad enough the way you held her hand the night Sacrifice opened."

"I don't understand," she murmured. "Honest, Molly. I never did a thing but draw plans for the old lady, and pick up a lot of Italian antiques."

"Hello, what's this?"

Red had strolled to the window, and was looking down the street. Isn't that Rita running along the sidewalk? She just left that taxi on the corner.

Molly flew to the window.

"It is!" she cried.

She threw the window open, and leaned out.

"Rita! Rita!"

The child looked up and waved.

"Hello, mama!"

Natsu must have seen her first, since he was on the doorstep waiting. It was he who carried Rita triumphantly into the house, and up the stairs to Molly.

"Where did you come from, sweetheart?"

"Wait a minute, until I get them in order. I'll bet you no other girl ever had an engagement ring like this before. Here you are—here's D."

"A diamond circlet!" she cried. "Oh, Jack, that's beautiful! It's like a little wedding ring."

"Put it on," he ordered. "Now wait a minute. I'm just starting. Here's E."

"Put it on," he ordered. "Now here's E."

"Emeralds! Two rings, Jack!"

"Seven," he corrected gravely. "Amethysts for A. Rubies for R. More emeralds for E. Sapphires for S. And turquoise for T. What does that spell, sweetheart?"

"Dearest!" she cried. "Oh, Jack, you angel, did you think of that yourself?"

"All by myself," he admitted modestly. "Can you get them all under your knuckles?"

"They just go," she proclaimed, slipping the turquoise circlet over the sapphires. "My dear, it's the loveliest engagement ring a girl ever had!"

Soft-footed Natsu stood at the door.

"Mr. Flynn," he announced.

"Oh, heavens!" she cried. "I'd forgotten all about Rita! That's how much I love you, Jack Wells!"

She greeted Red hysterically.

"Look! I'm engaged! See my ring. Oh, Red, I'm so happy! I mean I'm so miserable. What do you suppose Bob's going to do with Rita?"

Red took her left hand, and contemplated the seven little sparkling rings.

"They spell DEAREST," she explained. "Jack thought of it himself."

"Darn clever," approved Red. "So you're engaged to Jack tonight?"

"Oh, it's forever this time," she assured him. "You know yourself, Red, I never loved anybody else but him."

Red shook hands with Jack and kissed Molly.

"I'm glad," he told them simply. "This is the first sensible thing you've done in a long time, Molly. I suppose you've counted the cost?"

"I'm Jack's sweetheart," she declared demurely. "I'm not a mathematician."

"But you know Bob will keep Rita."

"I know." Her eyes filled with tears. "But I guess Jack and I might have a little girl of our own. Of course she wouldn't be like Rita. But she might be nice, don't you think so, Jack?"

Red cleared his throat.

"The poor sap," he said, and his voice was very gentle. "He's not such a bad egg after all."

"I'm hungry," announced Rita practically. "Daddy and I didn't have anything to eat, not anywhere."

"I'll get her something," offered Red. "I haven't eaten myself yet. Want to come out, Rita? I'll buy you some ice cream."

"Oh, goodly!"

She smiled beautifully. "Daddy said I'd feel better by and by. I guess maybe he knew you was going to buy me some ice cream, Uncle Red. I was crying like everything, but he said little girls always felt better by and by. Is this by and by, mama?"

Molly smiled mistily.

"I think it must be, dear."

When Red had gone, and taken Rita with him, she went to her desk, and took out a copy of Ashes of Desire.

Putting it in Jack's hands, she said, "This one is yours. I had it bound for you. But I didn't think I would ever give it to you."

"Did you ever read about how Rossetti, when his wife died, buried his poems with her? Years afterward his friends persuaded him to have his earlier verse published. But his loveliest things were in the grave. In the casket, with his wife. Then his friends convinced him that he should have the grave opened—and the casket. And that he should take the beautiful verses that had never been published away from his dead wife's possession. So Rossetti did as they urged."

"But, when the grave was opened, it was discovered that his wife's hair had grown around the little manuscript in her hands. She had long golden hair, and it had become loosened, and had fallen down over her shoulders. To take the verses away, they had to cut the strands that had twined themselves about the verses.

"Rossetti's friends did not tell him that, and the verses were published. They made Rossetti famous. But his success was tinged with melancholy."

"Years later someone told him the story of the way his wife's hair had grown around his poems. Then Rossetti went insane."

Molly paused.

"That's an awful creepy story," declared Jack.

"Yes, I know it is. Well, I dreamed last week that I left it, and they buried this book with me, and my hair started to grow, and grow..."

"Stop it!" he cried. "Gosh, Molly, you make my blood run cold!"

"But it's so strange," she persisted. "I want you to know. I won't tell you the rest of the dream, if you don't want me to. Only this one part dear. I woke up, and I was very frightened. It seemed so real. And I went to the desk, to see if this book of yours was still there. It was the one that I had been dreaming about. Look, dear. It says in the front, in little gold letters, 'For My Sweetheart.'"

"I opened the drawer, and there it was, exactly where I left it. I opened it, and began to write on the first page. The words came simply and naturally. I wrote without any hesitation. When I finished, I read over what I had written, and it seemed to me one of the most beautiful things in the world."

She turned the page.

"Let me read it aloud, sweetheart. Nothing is sweeter than love; nothing stronger; nothing higher, nothing broader, nothing fuller, or better in heaven or on earth, for love is born of God, and can rest only in God above all things created."

"Do you remember, Jack, that night at college—the night before Rita's wedding—when we were out on the lake, and I told you that I thought I was psychic?"

He nodded.

"Now I know I am," she exclaimed.

She moved toward the circle of his arms, and her hair caught the glint of the sun as it slanted through the window, so that it glowed like a halo. And there was a sort of luminosity about her, like a mystic light.

"That passage," she said, "is from 'The Imitation of Christ.' I never looked it up next day. I never read 'The Imitation of Christ' in my life."

"But I don't understand," he murmured. "Neither do I. Love," she told him softly, "is beyond all understanding."

MRS. THADEN WINS RACE FOR WOMEN FLYERS

Mrs. Louise McPhetridge Thaden, winner of the Santa Monica, Calif.-to-Cleveland air derby for women flyers, is shown here being congratulated by Clifford Henderson, Jr., manager of the National Air Races at Cleveland, upon her arrival at the Cleveland airport. Thousands of spectators were on hand to greet the winner, who was immediately presented with a floral wreath.

216 CREEDS SUBSCRIBED TO IN U. S.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—If asked to name the churches and creeds existing in America the average man could enumerate probably 15 or 20, by thinking hard—a list beginning alphabetically with Adventists and ranging through the well-established sects to Universalists. He would miss his mark by approximately 200, for by the most authoritative figures obtainable there are at least 216 distinct religious bodies now active in the United States, according to Charles W. Ferguson, who surveys this variegated religious growth in the September issue of World's Work.

There are 19 divisions of Methodism now functioning. Ferguson shows, Baptist bodies number 18. Presbyterianism has nine different bodies of adherents, and there are 22 kinds of Lutheran churches, 17 major bodies of Methodists, and seven divisions of Eastern Orthodox churches.

But aside from these divisions of long established churches, and apart from the great bodies of Roman Catholics and Jews, there are more than 100 minor sects, whose names, creeds and purposes are unknown to the vast mass of Americans—and most of them are flourishing. Altogether they number more than 2,600,000 adherents.

"Far from being an age of unbelief, this is an age of incredible faith," declares Ferguson. "Certainly we cannot be said to be an irreligious nation; we are so religious that we have become perverse about it. It should be borne in mind that each sect I mention represents an entirely serious and emphatic departure from accepted religions; each is, to all intents and purposes, a new religion.

GRAY HAIR INDICATES BAD HEALTH—MAKES YOU OLD

Gray Hair Is Dead Hair, But Youthful Color Can Be Revived

USERS OF NEW TONIC LOOK YEARS YOUNGER

A newly discovered scalp and hair tonic banishes itchy dandruff, eczema and falling hair and while doing this users notice in amazement that the youthful color returns to their gray hair as if by magic. Primarily intended only as a stimulating tonic to put the hair and scalp in vigorous condition—it has followed that the hair revives and changes back to youthful color, from gray to its shade of brown, red, auburn, black or blonde, as the case may be, and the user actually looks years younger. What is more becoming than the shade nature bestowed originally to match your complexion? There are over 3,000 shades to human hair and no expert can tint or paint the hair with old-time dyes so satisfactorily.

There is a "Death Chamber" in the FLY-TOX factory. It is used to test the quality of FLY-TOX as a spray to kill flies, mosquitoes, bedbugs, roaches, etc. During a test a large number of young, healthy insects are placed inside the cabinet. These insects are raised in incubators for testing purposes. While the insects are flying and crawling around in the "Chamber of Death," FLY-TOX is sprayed inside. Less than a teaspoonful is used. Instantly there is a change. Within five minutes not a buzz is heard. All insects are dead. To make sure they are really dead the insects are carefully removed from the "Chamber of Death" and placed in incubators in an effort to revive them. If a wing flutters, the FLY-TOX tested never leaves the factory. This test is your guarantee of FLY-TOX quality. It does what you want it to do—kill insects in and about your home. Yet, FLY-TOX is positively harmless to people. FLY-TOX was developed at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research by Rex Research fellowship. It will not stain. Has a delightful perfume-like fragrance. There is only one FLY-TOX—insist upon the genuine in bottles with blue labels.—Adv.

MEXICO AGAIN WILL SELECT CIVILIAN HEAD

By GESFORD F. FINE
United Press Staff Correspondent.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 5.—Mexico, now governed by a civilian president, Emilio Portes Gil, who was elected provisionally last December by congress, will have another civilian as chief executive in 1930 unless in the meantime there is an unexpected overturn in the political lineup. To succeed to the term of six years to which the late General Alvaro Obregon was elected, there are two candidates, Pascual Ortiz Rubio and Jose Vasconcelos.

When General Obregon was assassinated in July, 1928, Portes Gil, then secretary of the interior, was chosen for a provisional term of 14 months. Meanwhile elections for the regular term are scheduled for November of this year. Ortiz Rubio or Vasconcelos, depending on who is chosen, will take office in February.

Ortiz Rubio is the nominee of the National Revolutionary party, founded by Calles in an effort to weld together the strongest members both of his own group and the Obregonista bloc behind Vasconcelos is the Anti-Reelectionist party, a faction which traces its origin to Francisco I. Madero who under that banner overthrew Porfirio Diaz in 1911 after 30 years' dictatorship.

Ortiz Rubio Favored
With the power of the more strongly organized group at his back, Ortiz Rubio is the favored candidate. If he is supported by a majority of office holders in the states and federal government, it seems inevitable that his election will result.

What of the personalities and policies of the two candidates? Both describe themselves as 'revolutionists' that is, followers of the revolutionary reforms begun in 1911. But there the comparison ends.

Vasconcelos is of the soil and self-made, a member of the lower middle class. Ortiz Rubio is an aristocrat who turned from his own class to the revolution. His relatives were lawyers, members of the supreme court of his natal state, Michoacan, churchmen and high officers of state.

The home city of Vasconcelos is Oaxaca, state of Oaxaca. There and in Mexico City, he worked his way through school finally graduating in the capital from the National School of Jurisprudence.

Both Ortiz Rubio and Vasconcelos were on the side of Madero in 1911 in the original revolution. As a member of a congressional bloc known as the 'renovadores,' Ortiz Rubio was arrested by President Victoriano Huerta and imprisoned. When released Ortiz Rubio joined with Venustiano Carranza in opposing Huerta. On the advent of Carranza to power, Ortiz Rubio became one of his aides, going on foreign missions for him and serving as governor of Michoacan in 1917.

Enemy of V. Huerta
Similarly, Vasconcelos was an enemy of Victoriano Huerta and helped Carranza in his fight against him. Vasconcelos, however, broke with his chief and went over to Pancho Villa. When Villa and his movement went to pieces, Vasconcelos fled to San Antonio, Texas, where he opened a tailor shop. It was not until Obregon had ousted Carranza that he was able to return to Mexico and resume his political career.

Ortiz Rubio and Vasconcelos have each held cabinetships. Ortiz Rubio was secretary of communications under both Adolfo de la Huerta and Obregon. While serving in this latter post, Ortiz Rubio resigned to become minister to Germany and a little later, ambassador to Brazil. It was not until six months ago that he returned to Mexico, having meanwhile been in Rio de Janeiro four years.

Ortiz Rubio was nominated by the National Revolutionary party at its convention in Queretaro in March of this year. Almost up to the day of the balloting, Aaron Saez, governor of Nuevo Leon, had been considered assured of the nomination. When the vote showed that Ortiz Rubio had been nominated the Saezistas left the convention in disgust, asserting that the election had been unfair. Before the country had a chance to find out what had actually happened, the Escobar-Manzo-Carranza revolution was under way. For nine weeks, until the government succeeded in putting down the rebellion, politics was forgotten.

Known as Educator
Vasconcelos to the time of his entering the presidential race was perhaps best known as an educator. He was rector of the National University under de la Huerta and secretary of education in the Obregon cabinet. In general, the ideas of Vasconcelos are much better known than those of Ortiz Rubio. The Anti-Reelectionist candidate takes pleasure in denouncing the United States which he accuses of attempting to direct affairs in Mexico through the United States embassy here. He also represents in many ways the more extreme type of Mexican politician, combining idealism with the 'revolutionary reforms.'

Besides the two principal nominees of the leading parties, a Communist candidate, General Pedro Rodriguez Triana, is in the running.

OIL NEWS OF SOUTHWEST

HOUSTON, Sept. 5.—With completion of the Sun Oil company's No. 3-Chambers county agricultural imight kdgrbruvppbb br b b g al at 4,600 feet late last week flowing 2,500 barrels, production in the Barbers Hill field was given another boost.

Production at Barbers Hill Tuesday was estimated at 23,850 barrels. Average daily output under production of Winkler county last week was 131,100 barrels, previous week 131,000; Pecos county 133,600, against 130,200 the previous week.

WICHITA, Kas., Sept. 5.—Empire Oil & Refining company is having difficulty completing its Hogart in the eastern Greenwood county field north of Quincy. A strong flow of oil and some gas pressure are handicapping operations. Sand was topped at 1,500 feet and oil started flowing during the first 15 hours the well made 215 barrels by natural flow. Oil men estimate it as a 500-barrel producer when completed.

Hogart No. 2 on the same property was recently completed for 125 barrels a day. Empire is completing two other wells in the Haverhill district of south Butler county. Hutchinson No. 8-B, drilled in last week, was shot with 70 quarts of nitroglycerin and produced 157 barrels in 24 hours while being swabbed and cleaned out. In the same section, Empire is preparing to shoot W. Sharrock No. 7 which had 250 feet of oil in the hole at 2,769. The well is estimated for 175 barrels.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Sept. 5.—Operators in the Oklahoma City field have agreed to ask the state corporation commission to issue an order pro-rating the production of the new field long enough to permit marketing to catch up with developments. Most of the operators favor a complete shut-down for 30 days.

Total production of the Oklahoma City field for Tuesday reached 53,122 barrels from 14 wells, compared with 48,587 barrels from 13 wells the day before.

Saskwa area is getting new play. Magnolia Petroleum has staked another location in the south part of the field and Sinclair's No. 5-Davis was drilling at 4,210 feet with 500 feet of oil in the hole. The entire Earlboro field has increased in activity. Magnolia Petroleum's No. 6-A Anderson has come through for 115 barrels an hour and two new wells have been located on the townsite.

Plainview—Plans underway for establishing new town 14 miles from this place.

Announcing a Very Significant Policy

For reasons vital to every present or prospective watch owner

We Shall Feature AMERICAN WATCHES

THIS is a drastic change in policy. It is based on many months of careful study and many years of service. It is made for the following reasons (widely-known to jewelers, but little-known by the general public) . . .

1. The American watch is the finest and most accurate time-piece that you can buy.
2. In the last two years it has come to surpass all others in beauty, in refinement, and in smart good taste.
3. You can always have it repaired in a few hours' time, no matter where you may be—and at a nominal cost.
4. You can buy an American-made watch for every purpose—in the very latest style—suited to every purse.
5. And back of any nationally-known American watch you buy is an American manufacturer, ready to make good every guarantee of satisfactory performance.

This is a tribute to the skill and genius of the American craftsman—and to America's well-merited leadership in another great field.

Starting tomorrow we shall maintain the Largest Display of Fine American Watches in this Locality

Including the nationally famous Elgin, Hamilton-Illinois, Waltham and Howard. In opening this display we are offering some unusual values—to show you how great an advantage you enjoy in choosing a watch that is American-made. All the newest shapes and sizes, especially suitable for anniversaries, graduation, wedding or birthday gifts, and for your own personal use as well.

Note: Our watch repair service has been made possible largely through the finer standardization and more perfect construction of the American-made watch.

Helms will be electrocuted shortly after midnight tonight at the state penitentiary at Huntsville.

TARIFF BILL ANTAGONISTS CAN'T AGREE

By PAUL R. MALLON
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Claiming enough votes to wreck the republicans' $600,000,000 tariff bill, the bi-partisan senate farm bloc was unable to agree today on how to go about it, so the opening of their contest, against the measure probably will be delayed until Monday.

Leaders of the bloc on both the democratic and republican sides have about decided to drop the Thomas resolution which seeks to eliminate all the industrial rate increases in the bill, preserving only the higher rates for agriculture.

TEMPLE, Sept. 5.—Funeral services will be held here Sunday for the late Mat M. Rice, vice president of the New Haven railroad, whose death Wednesday in New Haven, Conn., ended his long railway career.

Rice started his railway career in Temple 40 years ago and left here in 1906 for the east. The body will be buried here Sunday that of his wife whose death occurred several years ago.

CONFIRMATION OF REPORT OF CRASH LACKING

Heavy Rains Make Progress of Searchers Slow

GALLUP, N. M., Sept. 5.—While undertakers ambulances waited at Zuni, 40 miles south of Gallup, in the rough "bad lands" country of New Mexico, searchers at daylight today started a new effort to discover the Trans-Continental Air Transport plane reported struck by lightning in a storm near here late yesterday.

There was no definite confirmation of the report circulated last night that the plane had been found. In the black wash country near Zuni, although officials here believed the report might be confirmed during the day. Company officials last night declared the plane had been struck by lightning but today said they had no information to confirm the first report.

Terrific rain storms since Tuesday had turned the narrow mountain roadways into seas of mud. Automobiles virtually were helpless and pack horses and men about had to be depended upon.

NEW PRINCIPAL IS GUEST OF ROTARY CLUB

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma.

So much has been heard lately about Nicaragua that I thought I would interview an American business man who could tell something about the new proposed canal. So I asked Wilbur B. Foshay, president of the W. B. Foshay company who owns the water works, the ice plant and the electric light system in Managua, Nicaragua, as to the value of the new canal to the central states. For I knew his company had investigated before they invested. Mr. Foshay said:

"As you know, there was a law passed by the 70th Congress authorizing the president to cause to be made under the direction of the secretary of war and supervision of the chief of engineers a full and complete investigation to serve the purpose of ascertaining the practicability and the approximate cost of construction and maintenance (1) such additional locks and additional facilities at the Panama canal as may be necessary to provide for future needs of inter-oceanic shipping, and (2) any other routes for a ship canal between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. The survey will include, of course, the Nicaraguan route, the cost of additional locks at Panama, and the cost of digging the Panama canal to sea level.

"You can see that it would be premature to form any opinion about the canals in question of their relative effects on shipping because of the many unknown factors that enter into consideration of the effects of these proposed canals. It is my understanding that it will be some years before sufficient data has been secured for reasonably intelligent decision to be arrived at.

"So far as the northwest is concerned, or for that matter any part of the country that is tributary to the Mississippi river it would seem to me that with the completion of a deep channel on the Mississippi river, barges could take agricultural supplies or manufactured articles from as far north as Minneapolis and St. Paul down to New Orleans where it can be transferred to boats and taken through the Nicaraguan canal, saving many hundreds of miles travel and then up the Pacific coast to San Francisco or down the Pacific coast along Central and South America.

"It seems to me that it will add greatly to the value of the Mississippi river and will increase the importance of New Orleans as a port and should in many ways help the Central States to better water communications with the outside world."

Also—Dairy products company of Kingsville to establish creamery here.

BACK TO NATURE

How far is man a part of and how far apart from nature? Some would write all human history as simply as "the natural history of man." And considering nature as "the things that are," the universe, man is a part of it. The faculties with which he is endowed above every other part do not argue him out of his realm of nature. Or if things be classified into the natural and the supernatural, man would still be classed with the natural. But usually we speak of nature as including that which has not been modified or constructed by man. From this standpoint he is apart from, has a knowledge of, and to a small extent has control over nature. Hence man is not a product of natural forces only.

Observation of human nature is a fascinating as well as a useful study. One can hardly be a success in any line of activity without some knowledge of men. If he is acting on his own initiative he must know the people with whom he is dealing. If he is an employee he still must know how to read men if he is to get on well.

We say human nature is always the same. The fundamental characteristics of the nature of man are the same from land to land and from age to age. Yet each one's disposition is a result of combined educational influences. The home, the school, the church, as well as amusements, and other social factors all enter into the making of the child. If we add to these factors whatever effort the individual may put forth in his own behalf—and the latter could and should be the determining factor—we would have a new man.

RESIDENT DINES-INFORMALLY

The president of the United States sheds his dignity occasionally and lunches informally in the open air just like the humblest citizen—and here are two photos of President Hoover to prove it. They were taken at Madison, Va., where the citizens gave an outdoor picnic in his honor, and show the president eating a sandwich and a dish of ice cream. Madison is a short distance from the president's fishing camp.

BROADWAY MELODY WILL RETURN HERE

Featuring all the lilt and laughter, daring dancers and mood-moving music of a regular New York revue, "The Broadway Melody," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's all-talking, all-singing, all-dancing production of backstage life, will be back at the Palace theater Saturday with the sort of brilliant entertainment that one is accustomed to find only in the theater district of New York.

Amelia Page and Bessie Love, its two leading ladies, appear as a kerene circuit "sister act" that comes from the "sticks" to show Broadway how to put on a show. Miss Page plays the role of the younger of the two sisters whose beauty takes her farther than the other's cleverness. Miss Love is the business manager for the act, its chief star and the guardian of her little sister.

A humanly interesting love theme runs throughout in which Charles King appears as a smart-cracking song-and-dance man who promises to put the sisters across. However, after being put on for a tryout, at the request of their boy friend, who writes their special musical scores, the act fails.

A specially written theme song, "Broadway Melody," is heard throughout the production.

SOPHIE TUCKER IN "HONKY TONK"
 Sophie Tucker, the perennial "red hot mamma" of the variety stage, is featured in "Honky Tonk," Warner Bros. latest talking, singing Vitaphone production which comes to the Palace theater Sunday. Miss Tucker makes her motion debut in "Honky Tonk."

In this brilliant picture she is the center of the riotous gaiety of the "Honky Tonk" night club in New York—the singer of rollicking songs in the "floor show," and the bright particular star who is the principal attraction of the cabaret. And all the while she dreams of the daughter whom she is keeping at a fashionable school and in ignorance of her mother's real life.

Mr. Boom and Mr. Steddy were business enemies, but chance had placed them on the same board of directors.
 One day after a meeting Mr. Boom was holding forth.

 "Yes," put in Mr. Steddy, "but only one honest way."
 "What way's that?" asked Mr. Boom, sharply.
 "Ah!" retorted Mr. Steddy, "I thought you wouldn't know it!"

Scientists Seeking Yardstick for "It" at Psychology Meet

By SAM LOVE
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 5.—A search for a yardstick for "It"—that thing which John Gilbert and Clara Bow are all broken out with and which, alas, many college professors seem to lack—has begun at the great gathering of more than 1,000 scientists at the ninth international psychology congress.
 Paper after paper was presented on the subject at a symposium on "character and personality" the latter being the professional name for "It."
 Prof. Mark A. May of Yale offered a new definition of the quality that made Cleopatra a menace to Rome. Personality, Prof. May said neatly, is "an individual's social stimulus value."
 When you come into a room, does anyone take the trouble to change the tone of his conversation in any way; do your friends seem to notice that you are around? If you are a lady does any gentleman covertly straighten his tie, or if you are a gentleman, does any flapper reach for her powder puff?
 If not—if nothing at all happens to the social atmosphere—you are a washout. You haven't a vestige of "It." Your stimulus value is zero and it behooves you to find out what is missing.
 In a few years, Prof. May's idea can be developed, there will be a method of measuring your "It" that will give your personality hett as easily as the bathroom scales will give you your weight. But right now, Prof. May asserted, there is no way of measuring anyone's personality to the satisfaction of science, despite the efforts of many experimenters.
 Practically all of the old methods have sought to measure something inside the individual to discover his personality is almost solely what it does to other people.

Ma Prepares Welcome for Bobby Jones' Conqueror

BRUSHING UP SPORTS

By Laufer.

BOBBY JONES

HAS COPPED THE AMATEUR
THE FIVE FOUR OUT OF
...THE LAST FOUR OUT OF
...THE FIVE TIMES....

It isn't so much a question of who will win the National amateur golf championship, beginning at Pebble Beach, Del Monte, Calif., Sept. 2, as it is who will keep Bobby Jones, the celebrated Atlanta barrier, from winning it.

In one of the greatest fields ever to compete in this annual contest, Bobby Jones, four-time winner of the event and National open champion of 1929, stands out like Al Capone at a Christian Endeavor picnic.

Jones, today, dominates golf as Jack Dempsey used to dominate the fight game. Or like Babe Ruth did, and still does, in baseball. His spot is at the very pinnacle—a higher place than has ever been attained by any human in the history of the ancient Scotch sport.

Harry Vardon was a master golfer—a stylist supreme. Jones, on the strength of his mar-ous record, crowds Vardon out of the picture. He is the greatest golfer of all time without an argument.

But there is no man so great in his line that he is an absolute sure thing in any one competition. Hence there is hope in the breasts of the horde of amateurs who are heading for the California tournament.

The British amateur champion is Cyril Tolley. He and four compatriots, Eustace Storer, T. A. Bourne, Lord Charles Hope and Major Guy Colin Campbell, are making an unofficial raid for the American crown.

C. Ross Somerville is Canadian amateur champion and an exceptional golfer. He has always been among the leaders when he failed to annex titular honors in tournaments in Canada and the United States.

BIG DAM CHATTER

The Lobo squad at Chesley park where the training period for the 1929 football season is in full sway, is being increased daily. Coach Chapman and Hill had about 35 out yesterday afternoon with several other good prospects yet to report. Tackling was another fundamental practiced yesterday. Backfield men received lessons in avoiding tacklers, incidentally.

Several new faces are seen among the familiar ones on the field. They are certainly welcome with a schedule that includes nine conference games and a tilt with the El Paso high school. Such a schedule requires plenty of reserve power.

Abilene, they say, will have plenty of that essential. That is not to be gathered from Prexy Anderson's gossip because Prexy so far maintains a careful silence on the subject. He finds occasion to point warningly in the direction of the Buckaroos. No doubt there is reason behind this if rumors from the Breckenridge camp are to be considered. But that fact should not veil the Eagle threat.

Ranger will be the first oil belt eleven to move into action this year. The contest will be a non-conference affair with the Gorman Panthers Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock on the Ranger gridiron. The opportunity to see what promises to be another dreaded oil belt opponent this season should draw a large audience of football fans from rival centers. Whispers from the Bulldog fair presage trouble for the rest of the district this season.

Eastland steps out next against Clyde. The game is set for Saturday afternoon at Eastland. A spectacular offense will be the Maverick forte this fall, observers say. A good offense is the best defense in the world and if the Eastland eleven has enough of it they should go better this year than last.

The oil belt's annual love feast will take place as usual at Breckenridge, September 13, under the auspices of the Lions club. J. D. Sandefer, Jr. sends us an invitation which we hope to accept. "You'll miss a good program and plenty of hot air if you are not

SCHOOLS IN EAST START GRID WORK

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Football practice is under way at a dozen or more eastern colleges, with the remainder making preparations to hold their first workouts within the next ten days.

Yale, Harvard and Princeton—the last three eastern schools to begin training—will not assemble their gridiron squads until September 15.

Thirty-eight candidates have reported to young Joe McKenny to try for places on the undefeated Boston college eleven.

Columbia university had its first practice scheduled today under head coach Charlie Crowley.

Plowboys Star Grid Grind September 10

STEPHENVILLE, Sept. 5.—Coach W. J. Wisdom, director of athletics in John Tarleton agricultural college, announced today that the football training camp for the Plowboys will begin on the college campus Sept. 10 and continue until the opening of the fall term, Sept. 18. Ten of last year's letter men and a large number of recruits will attend this training camp.

The letter men are as follows: Rudder, captain-full; Pinkerton, center; Thomas, end; Walker, center; Spearman, half; Bresnahan, guard; Nabors, half; Porter, half; Baldrige, guard; Irwin, tackle. The schedule promised for the season is a hard one consisting of the regular junior college conference and several encounters with senior college gridsters. The following is the Plowboys' not yet complete schedule for the coming season: Sept. 21, Daniel Baker at Brownwood; Sept. 28, A. C. C. at West Texas fair, Abilene; Nov. 1, S. M. U. freshmen at Dallas; Nov. 11, Gainesville junior college at Stephenville; Nov. 28, Randolph college at Cisco.

At the present only one game is scheduled to be played on the Plowboys' field, but several dates are still open, and Coach Wisdom promises that Stephenville will get to see the Plowboy in action several times this season.

present," he says. It is customary to shake hands before committing legal mayhem.

Coleman Evens West Texas Series

COLEMAN, Sept. 5.—Fighting desperately to get an even break in the race for the West Texas League pennant, Coleman yesterday won its game from Midland, 5 to 2, thus evening the playoff series. Had the Bobcats lost, the series would have ended.

Kowalik, Coleman pitcher, displayed no fear of Midland's heavy hitters, and seemed to have them under his control throughout the game. The hardest hit of the game, a home run, came from Bryan Bobcat left fielder. However, Crumpton was the hitting star getting three hits from Coleman out of four times at bat.

SPORT SHOTS

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Eugene Huat, flyweight champion of France, who knocked out Emile (Spider) Fladner, is on his way to the United States aboard the S. S. Volendam. He is matched to meet Corporal Izzy Schwartz at Madison Square Garden Oct. 4.

WESTBURY, N. Y., Sept. 5.—After one of the longest overtime polo games in history, the hurricane team of Great Britain today was in the finals of the national open polo championship. The hurricane beat Roslyn yesterday, 8 goals to 7, in the fourth extra period.

41 Years' Experience behind each DUNLOP

WHEN you buy Dunlop Tires you buy all the world's greatest tire-building experience can give you! Dunlop founded the pneumatic tire industry—more than 41 years ago.

Dunlop has pioneered many major tire improvements. Dunlop was first to develop the straight-side tire—first to own its own rubber plantations—first to weave all its own requirements of cord fabric. Dunlop Tires are better—so much better they will stand even severe abuse.

DUNLOP Built to stand abuse

With so vast an investment to protect, it is only natural that Dunlop should take extra care in building tires. Special long-staple cotton all the way from Egypt... woven in Dunlop's own mills into special "cable twist" cord fabric... resilient, enduring tread rubber, the product of the toughest compound known... make Dunlops so sturdy that they can stand the most punishing treatment. No matter how you use your car... over concrete highways or thru the dirt roads of back country, Dunlops stand the gaff. Come in and look at Dunlop Tires... see their extra value for yourself.

Quality of Products at Alameda Fair Show Improvement

COMMUNITY DISPLAY HELD ON WEDNESDAY

List of Winners in All Departments Is Given

A better quality of products were grown in the vicinity of the Alameda community this year than in 1928 was revealed in the exhibits yesterday at Alameda community fair when compared with the exhibits of the Alameda fair of last season, according to J. C. Patterson, county agent. This better quality was shown in agricultural products despite the drought of the past several weeks.

Not so large a quantity of exhibits was shown, however, although there was a greater number of exhibitors.

Alameda will be represented in the various departments of the county fair, Sept. 19, 20, and 21, and will draw from the agricultural exhibits and women's department exhibits of the community fair for display of products at the county exposition.

The winning agricultural and women's department exhibits, with the names of the winners, at the Alameda community fair are listed below:

COTTON MUST BE RESCUED SAYS SENTER

DALLAS, Sept. 5.—Because cotton has been produced during the last four years at an average loss of about $3.53 per acre explains why farmers have been moving away from their farms to the cities and why this migration has represented an average of more than two million people per year for the last five years, E. G. Senter of Dallas, candidate for governor, said in an interview with the United Press today.

His interview, touching on issues that are likely to predominate in the next state campaign, follows:

"Cotton must be rescued from its serious plight or all the cities and towns of Texas will finally begin to decline. The federal government will never do this job. The Hoover plan is a mere gesture and will get nowhere but to the land of disillusionment.

The legislature should create a cotton sales corporation with a capital of $500,000,000. It should have such powers as would safeguard the producer and such advantages as would rally around it all the business interests dependent upon cotton. Other cotton states would then gather under the fold of this corporation, Texas and its sister states would then dominate the cotton market because they would mobilize their financial resources to this end.

The best business talent of the world should be employed to lead the fight against the interests opposed to cotton. If there be another Charles Schwab available he should be enlisted in this mighty contest. The way to fight the trusts opposed to cotton is to use their own weapons against them. To win this fight is more important to her than was the winning of the European War. If we will be enlist one-half the energy and resources in this behalf which represented our contribution to the salvation of Europe, our cotton farmers will soon take their proper place in the industrial world.

This fight should go on with a stern determination that the laborer in the cotton patch shall receive for his toil remuneration equal to that which is paid to the laborer in the cotton factory. This would require an increase of at least 400 per cent over his present returns.

Legislative whims and in-fidelity have enlarged into legislative despotism. The legislature refuses from session to session to pass laws which are imperatively required for the public good. The most important work of the legislature has been to increase the salaries and fees, multiply extravagance and promote impotence in all departments of the government.

The people at large are far more intelligent and far more patriotic than the average legislature. It represents, in the main, a symposium of unfortunate accidents. There seems to be no escape from this form of despotism, fatal to the public welfare, except through some sort of referendum which will enable the public to apply the whip to the legislature when its delinquencies shall become intolerable. The present legislature would never have dared to carry on as it has done if it had not been confronted with an appeal for direct judgment upon its performance to be given by the people at the polls.

It is well known that special interests have brought under their control many of the servants of the public through blandishments which need not be described. No man can serve two masters. The creature or servant of any special interest should be made ineligible for any form of public service and no servant of the public should be permitted to enter the service of any special interest dependent for favors in any way upon him when he was in office for at least two years after he shall retire from such office. This reform would clarify the public service as by a magician's wand.

The public press should be made immune from control by great utilities and special interest through merger, holding corporations, or otherwise.

The bank deposits of the people of Texas should be withdrawn from use by the gamblers of the East to carry on their gigantic speculations in the products of the farm and ranch and in stocks and bonds. These proposals are submitted to the public not as an all-comprehensive program but as an indicative of the abrupt turn which government in all of its departments, should take. Under the system which has grown up in Texas with the last 20 years, we are all taxpayers for our masters, the fee grabbers. The time has come for the worm to turn.

That government which takes all that a man or woman can earn by hard endeavor soon takes all that is left of the loyalty of the citizen.

The proper aim of government is protection for life and property. We have changed this to a system which converts the government into a hopper to grind out favors for barnacles and special favorites.

The general result is seen in the gradual transfer of all the proceeds of the toil of those who labor in the fields and industries of the South to the pockets of the fee grabbers at home and the remnant goes to the swollen treasuries of those who gamble upon the exchanges of the North and East. This condition is a reproach to American civilization and forecast of things to come, more disastrous still than the evils with which we now contend.

The man who is willing to sacrifice most and fight hardest to remedy these conditions should be selected to lead the fight against them. I will fight under the banner of any man who will neither ask nor give quarter until victory shall crown our efforts but never again will I follow the lead of the trimmer, the compromiser or fee grabbers at home and the herder said the airplane disappeared from view behind some trees.

A Navajo Indian reported that he saw a plane on the ground.

"The plane had no engines," the Indian told Kelsey.

Kelsey said he took this to mean that the engines were not running.

The Indian did not approach the plane because of his fear that it might contain bodies.

T. A. T. HAS NO INFORMATION.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 5.—Officials of the Trans-Continental Air Transport company said here today that they had no direct information that their missing passenger ship was down with all passengers and crew dead at Gallup, N. M.

"We still are doubtful concerning the location of the plane," H. W. Beck, western traffic manager said. "We have men investigating the report that it has crashed near Gallup but we are not at all certain that the report is true."

Previously T. A. T. officials had issued statements regretting the crash and death of all eight persons aboard near Gallup, N. M.

Insurance Board to Hold Meeting

AUSTIN, Sept. 5.—The state board of insurance commissioners will hold a hearing on Sept. 25 to consider changes in the Texas general basis schedules. Chairman W. A. Tarver has announced.

All rate schedules, rules and regulations contained in the general basis schedules will be considered. Notice has been sent to all stock insurance companies licensed to operate in the state in order that they may be represented at the hearing.

MILAN ITALY JOINED TO U. S. BY TELEPHONE

Trans-Atlantic telephone messages came over the Alps for the first time with the extension of the service August 28, to Milan, Italy.

The rate for a telephone conversation between Texas and Milan is $60 for the first three minutes and $20 for each additional minute. The hours of service are the same as those for other overseas points, for from 5.30 a. m. to 9 p. m. Eastern daylight saving time.

Calls from America to Milan are routed through New York City to one of the Bell system's radio transmitting stations, across the Atlantic to a receiving station in Great Britain and thence by wire to London. From London submarine cables carry the messages to the British channel. From telephone wires across France land. In all the messages over a circuit of 4,400 miles.

Milan has nearly 1,000,000 people and a population of approximately 835,000. It puts the American in voice communication with twenty-one foreign cities.

With the recent new short wave radio center at Lawrenceville, Atlantic is now being used for telephone circuits, to add one long wave and one a third shorter later in the year.

Wolfe City—Texas Light company announced commercial lighting.

passed up a chance to meet one of Leno's lady friends!"
Helen spoke up sharply. "You needn't call him Leno just because I do," she said.
The girls laughed. "Oh, we wouldn't think of getting familiar to his face, if that's worrying you," one of them said. "We wouldn't want him to think we aren't proper companions for you. He might take you away from us and put you in a more fashionable school."
"Yes, you know I've wondered, Helen, how he happened to place you here at Span's," the girl Agatha admitted with youthful frankness. "The Ritz, and French originals! He could do better by you in the way of schools. If my dad could afford it I'd be at Elmwood. It's exclusive. All the girls come from six-car families at the very least."
"I'm quite happy here," Helen declared. "And now will you all get out please? I want to try on some of these things and dress for dinner."
"I wonder you don't put Shallimar out too," one among them grumbled as they departed. "She has eyes the same as we have, Miss Prim."
Helen laughed. She could afford to be good-natured. Tonight she would dine with Leno at the inn—and dance with him.
Shallimar helped to clear the beds of boxes and tissue paper. She was Helen's roommate and quite used to removing things to make sitting room.
But on this occasion she wore a slight frown. Not that she minded having her portion of the room overrun with Helen's belongings. She was thinking of Helen herself, wondering if she wasn't a bit of a fool to fall so hard for her guardian's ideas. There were that woman they had seen him with in town, for instance. She certainly looked as though she knew her way about; not at all the sort of person that Mr. Brent seemed bent on making of Helen. Shallimar didn't think it was fair. And Leno, there was the way Helen had acted on that occasion. A flid to intrude Shallimar's thought. A B-o-o-h-out explained why she had drawn back abruptly as she passed with his unknown companion. But Shallimar knew she was aware of the acceptance of her lot for since the trifling episode Helen had been reluctant to speak of it.
Helen observed the frown on Shallimar's darkly beautiful features and a bit of her elation over the news that Brent was coming vanished. She hated to be a mystery to her roommate. Shallimar had confided her intimate affairs unthinkingly and Helen felt guilty over withholding her own secrets. Secrets! With her life itself just on long secret how could she confide anything. The thought had troubled her through many wakeful hours.
But she could see that Shallimar was seriously disapproving of her now. Often the dark granddaughter of a Spanish dancer had warned her that she would lose her individuality if she tried to remake herself in an outmoded mold. Impulsively she decided to explain her reason for not making her presence in the Ritz known to her guardian. She put down the stocking box in which she was putting away her new hosiery and came over to sit on Shallimar's bed.

"You think I have the makeup of a mouse, don't you, or that I believe children should be neither seen or heard?" she began half-teasingly. But under the light tone she adopted there was a hint of appeal for tolerance from her friend.
"Oh, if you want to efface yourself that's your business," Shallimar answered; "provided you really want to."
Helen spoke softly. "I do, when Leno wishes it," she admitted.
Shallimar gave her a straight, quick look that Helen found made her uncomfortable.
"Yes," she went on, reading Shallimar's thought. "I'd do anything for him."
"Are you jealous of him?" Helen started and reddened.
"Of course not," she said quickly. Shallimar laughed. "You don't mind his being with a knockout like that woman we saw and yet you're so crazy about him that you have to tingle with delight over obeying his slightest wish. Something's wrong with the picture, Helen. But tell me, has he forbidden you to speak to him in public?" She ended tauntingly but Helen was invulnerable to the jibe. Delicate sarcasms, and broad were favorite weapons of the girls at verbal grips with each other.
"That's what I want to tell you about, Shallie dear," she said quietly and Shallimar was instantly disarmed. She opened her eyes a little wider and then narrowed them in anticipation. Was Helen actually going to open up?
"There's a reason, but I don't know what it is, why Leno wants me to grow up to be what he calls a lady. Please don't laugh. You know there is a difference between girls who take refinement and good form seriously and those who don't."
"What if there is?" Shallimar interjected impatiently. "Is that any reason why you have to give up even a dab of rouge along with cigarettes?"

A tender smile wreathed Helen's lips before she answered. "Maybe Leno does carry it a bit far," she agreed, "but what I wanted to tell you was that he has never arranged for me to meet any of his friends or acquaintances and I know he wouldn't want it to happen by accident."
Shallimar scoffed. "Afraid they will contaminate you probably. But that's going to be pleasant for you when you leave school, isn't it? Who are you going to know? What are you going to do? He won't be able to create a set of Priscillas and Prudences just for you to associate with."
"He says we're going to travel," Helen explained.
"And show the world one American girl who is natural and unspoiled, I see. So that is what you are being groomed for."
"I don't know, Shallie. Maybe it's just that Leno believes girls ought to be natural and unspoiled." Shallimar laughed again. "After the lady we saw him with you today. Why, then, did he want her to be so different?

Helen's heart sank anew at every repetition of the question. For the answer was always the same. Leonard—Leno—did not regard her as she regarded him. He might not be in her mind, too aged for her fancy to weave a love dream about him, but it was her great fear that he regarded her as a child.
She got up and moved away to hide her face from Shallimar's close scrutiny.
"Don't be a goose," Shallimar exclaimed sharply. "Be yourself, Helen. Cut out the ingenu. You are 18, you know. I don't approve at all of your falling for Mr. Brent but if you want to get anywhere with him you won't allow yourself to be a football for his notions. Not while you have proof that his personal taste is contrary to all he is making of you."
Helen answered with a half sob. "Sometimes I think I'm just naturally uninspired," she said, fishing a fresh handkerchief out of a box.

Shallimar rushed over and put an arm about her. "No, you're not, honey. Don't you see? No one but a person with a lot of character could do what you're doing. And that's why I think it's a shame that you should try to be anything but yourself. It just happens that Mr. Brent wants you to be a throwback. If you thought he liked modern youth as it's sometimes pictured to make a story or a sermon you'd flame to high heaven to please him."
Helen wiped her eyes and blinked back the rest of her tears. It was pretty hard being the ward of a man who were in love with—a man who had loads of fascinating omen friends—and to know that you were just a . . . a sort of experiment with him; but hard or not Helen hated tears. They were too much in keeping with the character being thrust upon her.
"Well anyway," Shallimar said cheerfully, "he doesn't dress you in hoops and bustles. I can't quite get his idea. An old-fashioned girl in the latest word in clothes. I don't get it either," Helen confessed. "But I'm grateful for the lovely things he sends me. I'd hate to look funny."
"As you would if he wanted you to," Shallimar sniffed. "I hope I never fall in love if this is what it does to a girl. But honestly, Helen, I don't think you're in love with him, really. He's got you hypnotized, that's all."

Helen was pinning her thick yellow hair up on her head preparatory to taking a shower bath. She smiled at her reflection in the mirror. How little Shallimar knew about the grand passion her great brown eyes said to those in the glass. She pitied Shallimar. For no matter how much it hurt to be in love it was an experience not to be missed.
And it made having a new dress ever so much more exciting. "Shall I wear silver slippers or the blue moire?" she asked, facing about and forgetting that her dearly beloved Leno would very likely remain unmoved by any choice she made among the things in her plentiful wardrobe.
"Wear the blue—silver's overdue," Shallimar advised. "And here's a bar of that soap Aunt Cecilia sent from Hungary. You'll love the odor. It's lasting but that won't matter since your arbuter won't permit you to use perfume."

"He doesn't object to a delicate scent," Helen corrected as she took the cake of clear green soap and disappeared into the hall. She ran down to the bathroom but, early as it was, she found all the tubs and showers in use and had to wait 10 minutes for her turn. The girls were forever upsetting the bathing order established for them by the house rules committee. It did no good to grumble yourself with a sponge bath, aided by a rubdown with cologne. The facilities for luxurious living at Miss Span's were limited. Still, the school had a reputation for worthiness that kept its enrollment full and things went on as they were.
When Helen returned to don her crepe de chine dancing set and the periwinkle dress she was aglow with well being and happy anticipation.
Shallimar stood by and offered well meant suggestions that were entirely ignored. No, not even a hint of lipstick, and certainly no eye shadow. Helen was firm.
"Not that you need it," Shallimar cooed, "but there isn't a woman born who can't be made more beautiful. And you want to look beautiful, don't you?"
Helen consented to having her slightly water-shined nose powdered and she allowed Shallimar to arrange her heavy hair in a way that permitted one adorable little ear to invite a caress, but that was as far in modern allurement as she would go.

Fee Investigators at Breckenridge

BRECKENRIDGE, Sept. 5.—Senator Pink Parrish and Representative George Purl, members of the state fee investigating committee, made a hurried call on local county and district officers Wednesday afternoon.

Their short investigation revealed nothing out of the ordinary, they reported, as none of the officials here received more than $10,000 for the work he did.

The committee did not include in its investigation the letting of an individual contract for the collection of Stephens county delinquent taxes.

Prices in Fifty Cities Show Gasoline Far Below Eleven Year Average

"Passenger cars, trucks, buses, taxicabs, aircraft, motor boats and stationary engines in growing numbers clamor for more and more gasoline," says the American Petroleum Institute. "There is no substitute for gasoline as a present day motor fuel. Gasoline has met all the demands made upon it for fuel and power. And gasoline has made the motor vehicle the most economical means of transportation, all things considered, that is available today. You may think you are paying today as much as, or more than you ever did for gasoline, but it may be because of the gasoline tax. The tax is adding 2 to 6 cents to the price of every gallon you buy. The service station or retail price of gasoline today is well below the average over 11 years."

Yes, Sir; A Better Tire!

You can find plenty of tire dealers who'll be glad to dicker with you, tempt you with all sorts of "special" deals.

We can't. It goes against our grain to pad up list prices in order to give you a discount or a "long trade"—to make ourselves good fellows at your expense.

We've been in the tire business for a good many years. Watched the "bargain boys" and the "long discount" fellows come and go. Every year our business has increased.

Every year more shrewd tire buyers come to us for Goodyears—and they "stay put" on Goodyears.

Now there's more reason than ever why you should buy "The World's Greatest Tire"—GOODYEAR.
