TORCH KILLER'S MOTHER SITS WITH HIM AT TRIAL

Staunch defender of her son, Mrs. Catherine Peacox sits close to Earle F. Peacox, young radio expert, in the White Plains, N. Y., courtroom where he is being tried for the "torch murder" of his pretty bride last April. Here you see the mother, stoically undemonstrative, neatly dressed in "housekeeper's black," as she watched her accused son take an active part in selecting jurors who are hearing the case. The defendant has removed the "sheik" mustache he affected.

Below—Why did Peacox kill his pretty young wife. "He was 'legally insane,'" declared Defense Attorney Sydney A. Syme, lower left, as the young radio expert went on trial at White Plains, N. Y., for the "torch killing." "He was a cold-blooded murderer," contended District Attorney Frank H. Coyne, upper right. Two friends of the slain woman, Bertha Kappus, left, and Elvira Howard, are pictured, at right, as they waited in the court room to be called upon to testify.

NEW MACHINE TO SET TYPE IS INSTALLED

The new C-3m No. 2 Intertype typesetting machine, costing about $6,000 when the Daily News is adding to its plant for the improvement of its service to Cisco, has arrived and is now being installed. B. M. Saladeo, of the Intertype corporation, is here to set up the new equipment. About a week will be required to get the machine in perfect working order.

This piece of machinery represents the latest in typesetting equipment. Six fonts, or type faces, are carried on the machine so that the operator may set at the keyboard and set up the widest range of reading matter from advertisements to "straight matter" without moving from his seat. The work of the Daily News will be speeded up while the quality of this work will be greatly improved. More attractive ads and a more attractive paper will be given Cisco by means of this investment.

HILO, T. H. Sept. 25.—The natives of the Kona area of the Hawaiian Islands are becoming extremely nervous and alarmed at the increase in earth tremors centered around Hualalai crater. It was learned here today.

Long was released from the county jail here on temporary bond Tuesday afternoon following an agreement between her attorney, Henry Kahn of Houston, and County Attorney C. H. Reese. TEXAS SHERIFF MAKES ARREST NEAR AUCKLAND

Thirteen Indictments Against Prisoner at Belton

AUCKLAND, N. Z., Sept. 25.—A search that lasted 13 years has ended at Helensville, near here, with the arrest by a Texas sheriff of John Grey, land agent at Helensville, on a charge of defrauding Texas banks of $250,000.

Grey had lived at Helensville for 11 years. He was identified by Sheriff Bingham of Bell county, Texas, as A. B. Crouch, formerly a large grain broker in that state.

Grey was accused of mulcting the banks by forged waybills for grain. He was placed in jail and probably will fight extradition.

The search which brought the sheriff halfway around the world was estimated to have cost $4,000.

IS UNDER 13 INDICTMENTS

BELTON, Sept. 25.—A. B. Crouch, former Temple man, arrested at Auckland, N. Z., by John Bingham, sheriff of Bell county, is under 13 indictments in the district court of Bell county on charges of forging bills of lading and passing of forged bills of lading to the City National bank and the Farmers State bank, both of Temple.

The amount of money secured by him in this manner is said to have been more than $125,000. Crouch is a member of one of Bell county's most prominent families. He was born and reared five miles from Temple and attended Baylor university at Waco, where he graduated with honors.

Crouch engaged in the grain business at Temple after his graduation and also operated a branch office at Ft. Worth. He disappeared from his home in Temple on March 13, 1916, leaving a number of letters to relatives and friends, some of them stating that he was going to some unknown place where he would take his own life and that he would never be heard from again.

Peacox Believes He Is Not Insane

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 25.—Earle Francis Peacox today apparently curtailed chances of using insanity as a defense against the charge of murdering his wife and then burning the body when he testified he regarded himself now and in the past as sane.

On cross examination he told of having been examined by several alienists.

"What are your claims as to insanity?" District Attorney Frank Coyne asked the 22-year old radio operator.

"I don't think I am insane now."

"Were you ever insane?"

"No."

The questioning of Peacox today concerned almost entirely scenes in the room after he had killed his wife.

"WET DINNER" STORY HINTS AT SENATORS

By WALKER L. WALKER, United Press Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—The story of an allegedly wet dinner here with a Wall street man as host and senators as guests was written into the congressional record today as partial answer to President Hoover's challenge to Senator Brookhart, Rep., Iowa, coming to the aid of his colleague from Nebraska, spread the story in late afternoon debate Tuesday, while Howell, producing a prohibition agent's report on public drinking, suggested the president was a "little unfair" in demanding specific instances of dry law violation. Howell insisted that, while he had no acquaintance among bootleggers, he had based his non-enforcement charges on what he claimed was "common knowledge" around Washington.

Senator Brookhart, Rep., Iowa, told of the party and how distinguished guests quenched their "thirst" by reaching under the table for individual pocket flasks.

Other senators listened with amazement to Brookhart's story and laughed heartily when he said Senator Smoot, Rep., Utah, known as a personal and political dry, was one of the guests at the party.

"I was not there," Smoot declared.

"I saw the senator there," Brookhart replied.

"I did not say get it; I said see it," Smoot retorted.

"The flasks were under the table and all one had to do was to reach down and get his flask and put it in his hip pocket," Brookhart said. "The senator did not do that, I know. He told me he did not." The senate laughed.

Howell, in replying to President Hoover's request for specific data on violations of the prohibition law here, read to the senate a previously secret report of prohibiting agents submitted in 1927 telling of public drinking in one of Washington's leading hotels.

SIXTY HOURS IN WHICH TO TALK BUSINESS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Tucked in the midst of Premier Macdonald's crowded Washington program are about 60 hours reserved for the president of the United States.

Whatever of moment develops from the meeting of the British Premier and Mr. Hoover will have its origin in that quiet period from Saturday to Tuesday when the premier and his daughter, Miss Isabel, will return to the British embassy.

After days of trimming and comparison, the state department and British embassy devised a six-day program of 22 separate engagements. They range from informal luncheons to a White House dinner planned for the evening of Monday, Oct. 7.

At 2:30 p. m. Saturday, the premier and his daughter will step from the clamorous atmosphere of curiosity which inevitably must surround them to the security of the White House. Monday the premier will visit congress. Over the week end two men who overcame humble birth and poverty will chat. The fate of nations may rest upon their words.

GIGANTIC TRUCKS.

Commenting on the statement of the Plainview Herald that "the heavy truck has become somewhat of a menace to traffic," State to get home in Houston after a week's visit with her sister, Mrs. E. S. Wilkinson.

Public roads. It is practicable to build trucks that will run any road. The Appian Way more than 2,000 years old, withstood all the hardships that horned oxen and draught horses could drag over it. But the Appian Way wouldn't last two years were it subjected to the loads of freight haulers employing the ponderous vans now coming into service.

"There is a limit to the strength of roads possible to be built with tax money. But there is no limit to the weight that commercial truckers will put upon them unless severely restrained. The fact that oversized goods vans are a menace to the minor vehicles on the highway is something to be considered. Our point is that to allow any commercial interest to ruin roads built with the hard-earned money of taxpayers is opposed to intelligent public policy. The railroads have had to spend multiplied millions in rebuilding their trucks and bridges to accommodate the monster locomotives of today. Are taxpayers to perform a like service for the freight truckers?"

EDUCATION IN OIL.

The past decade has witnessed the adoption by many colleges and universities of oil education as an important feature of their curricula. It is perfectly natural that any industry as vast as the petroleum industry, with its marked influence on the world at large and upon a considerable portion of its population, should command attention educationally. Our schools have wisely decided to provide the student, in most instances, solely with a background; only where conditions are ideal for it do they undertake to teach him the practical phases of the business. In offering the student instruction in the basic principles of petroleum and permitting him to gain his actual experience in the field itself, our educational institutions intelligently realize their mission and serve the industry well.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma.

Walter J. Robinson, editor of the Negrinstown, (Pa.) Register, says: "That a community is judged more by the manner in which its mercantile houses receive customers and the treatment accorded them than by glittering promises never kept. There are business houses right here in Negrinstown, and larger ones in Philadelphia, which retain constant patronage because of unflinching honesty which has become reputation. Honesty in advertising.

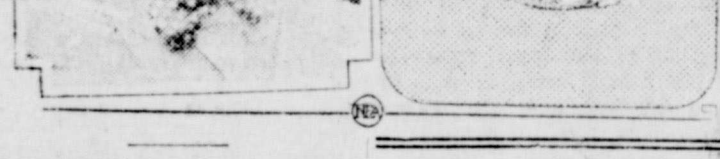

A Hitch in the Program

SHAFER SAYS WORLD SLOWING UP

result of years of study, in which he has traveled thousands of miles, sailed in every ocean and touched at hundreds of remote islands. The tides, he says, are acting as brakes on the world's rotary motion. Ultimately they will bring it to a complete stop. Then the earth will circle around the sun; and one hemisphere will have everlasting tropic day while the other will have everlasting arctic night. All of this, however, needn't worry anyone. It won't happen for several million years yet. But it's coming—some day.

In addition, Dr. Schaffer says that the earth ultimately will become a perfect sphere. Right now it isn't, even if we do call it a globe. It is flattened at the ends, and it has a bulge at its equator. But that bulge, even now, is redistributing itself—working its way north toward the poles.

NEW ORLEANS.—Although it has been spinning around energetically and methodically for a good many thousands of centuries, the earth of ours is eventually going to stop spinning altogether and stay eternally at rest, one side forever toward the sunlight and the other side forever in darkness. When this happens, the sunny side, where there will never be an ice-bound waste, desolate and barren as the antarctic continent of today.

TO BECOME A NUN

Connie Mack and his pennant-bound Philadelphia Athletics have lost one of their most faithful rooters—Connie Mack's daughter, Mary Cornelia, 18, who daily sat in a seat back of the A's dugout and rooted for the Athletics. She has entered the convent of the Sisters of St. Joseph at Philadelphia, where she was educated, as a novice to become a nun. While attending the convent, she was prominent in school athletics.

WATCHING THE SCOREBOARD

By United Press
Yesterday's hero — Melvin Ott, young outfielder of the New York Giants, who tied the National League season home run record with a total of 42, hitting one in the fourth inning of each game of a double header in which the Giants defeated the Boston Braves, 5 to 4, and 6 to 5.

The Phillies withstood the shock of a four run rally by the Brooklyn Robins, and came back in their own half of the eighth with a five run rally of their own to win, 8 to 6, gaining a full game in the battle for the top of the second division.

In this same second contest, the Cincinnati Reds shipped a cog when the St. Louis Cardinals, behind excellent pitching by Bill Hallahan, a newcomer, defeated them, 5 to 1. Red Lucas allowed only five hits, but Chickahey, who hit his 27th homer of the season, broke up the game.

Tom Zachary, veteran southpaw pitcher of the world champions, pitched his twelfth victory of the season, the Yankees beating the Red Sox, 5 to 3. Zachary has not been defeated this year.

The Detroit Tigers got to Alvin Crowder from 13 safeties and a total of 30 bases, defeating the St. Louis Browns, 9 to 4. Herrin, Rookie from Oklahoma, pitched well for the winners, while Akers, another recruit, starred at short.

WEATHER IS THREATENING DIXIE SERIES

Connally Prepares to Take Mound for Dallas

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 25.—In the face of threatening weather Sarge Connally, Dallas twirler, prepared to take the mound today against Ray Caldwell, former big-leaguer now playing with Birmingham, in the first game of the Texas league-Southern association seven game series.

It has rained here for the last two days and the weather was threatening this morning. Jim Moore, Dallas outfielder, will not see service in the series. Manager Milton Stock said today, Moore tore a ligament in his leg during the Texas league play-off with Wichita Falls.

The regular meeting of league and club officials was held this morning. The Dallas Steers were scheduled to hold a snout workout before the game this afternoon.

In spite of the apparent loss of Vic Fraser, their hurling star, and Jimmy Moore, the Steers were bubbling with confidence today. A majority of the Steers expressed the opinion that they would be forced to return to Birmingham for the sixth game before they could clinch the "little world series" pennant.

GRID TABS

DALLAS, Sept. 25.—Two more days of hard practice are on tap for the Southern Methodist university Mustangs before they meet Howard Payne, winner of the 1928 Texas conference, here Saturday. Coach Ray Morrison, dissatisfied with the showing his eleven made last week against Denton, stressed defense in his daily scrimmage.

FORT WORTH, Sept. 25.—Cy Leand, noted sprinter, will be in the backfield when Texas Christian university takes the field against Daniel Baker here Saturday. Coach Schmidt now has two backfields working together in scrimmage. Both will play Saturday.

FAVETTEVILLE, Ark., Sept. 25.—Jack Dale, counted on by Arkansas university fans to star this year as the did last, will be unable to play against the college of the Ozarks here Saturday. He is suffering from a severe case of boils.

American Heavyweight Title at Stake as Sharkey and Loughran Meet Tomorrow in 15-Round Bout

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—With the American heavyweight championship at stake, Jack Sharkey of Boston and Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia will meet in a 15-round bout at Yankee stadium tomorrow night.

Bigger, stronger and perhaps faster, Sharkey has all the necessary ring equipment to defeat the former light-heavyweight titleholder, but the blonde-haired, blue-eyed Lithuanian has a habit of failing in a pinch.

Twice he was pointed for a match with Gene Tunney and twice he failed the late Tex Rickard—when he was knocked out by Jack Dempsey in 1927 and when he refused to try and lost a 15-round decision to Johnny Risko in 1928.

At his best, Sharkey should defeat Loughran. At his worst, Sharkey should end his ring career.

Loughran is ambitious to follow in the footsteps of Gene Tunney who went from the light-heavyweight title to the heavyweight championship.

The Philadelphia Irishman is beginning to look and act more like Tunney every day. Sometimes he even talks like him. What's more important is that he can fight like him? This bout should provide an answer.

Unlike Sharkey, Loughran has a habit of rising mightily to meet every crisis. Leo Lomski floored Loughran twice for counts of nine each and Loughran got off the canvas to win the next fourteen succeeding rounds. James J. Braddock opened a severe cut over Loughran's eye in the first round of their 175-pound title match last July which would have been enough to make a less courageous man become discouraged or rattled. Loughran unflinchingly braced with his utter indifference to the cut and gave Young James J. a rather bad lacing.

The last time Sharkey met a former light-heavyweight champion he knocked him out before the echoes of the first gong had silenced. It was last April when he knocked out Jack Delaney in the first round.

Against smaller men who have no reputation as hitters, Sharkey always has been at his best. He is not afraid to take chances and open up with all his guns.

NEW RECORD
PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 25.—A new National league record for two batters has been established by Johnny Frederick of the Brooklyn Robins, who hit his 51st of the season off Smythe, Philadelphia rookie. The former record was 50, established by Paul Waner last year.

BIG DAM CHATTER

Well, we had our say the other day about the lack of appreciation with which the oil belt district committee seem to be treating the poor and down-trodden sports scribe. Now some of the other boys are laying their say.

Our Breckenridge compatriot comes out and says what he thinks in no uncertain terms and now our contemporary over Ranger way gets a barb in.

Folks, it ain't right.

It ain't right to say, in effect to the visiting sports scribbler: "You want! All you do is clutter up the press box and scribble fine phrases. If you want to visit our town and spy on our team, don't expect any courtesy."

It's lack of appreciation, folks. It's only fair to give the devil his dues.

Here's what Boyce House has to say and "Them's our sentiments":

"Our colleague over at Cisco motored a considerable distance the other day to attend an oil belt district game—and had to pay to get in.

"The way to treat that town is to go right up to the box office, Benny, and pay your dollar; go in like any other spectator and look at the game—then promptly forget to write anything about it. See how they like that treatment."

"Personally, that's exactly what this writer intends to do in such a case. Watch how much space this town with such a parsimonious and grasping attitude gets in these columns.

"Why's hold out-of-town newspapermen write a column every few days about some team, thereby helping to create interest and to draw a crowd, then when he goes over to see the team that he has been 'writing about, he is treated with no courtesy, consideration or appreciation whatever? The answer is: Don't do it."

"I am always ready to pay a dollar to see my home team play because I am anxious to do everything that a loyal citizen should do to help the athletic association and I am ready to sit up till midnight to write articles about my home team for newspapers far and wide in order that the crowds will be induced to flock to the games. But toward some team 50 miles away I owe no such obligation.

"Frankly, I'd rather pay a dollar than to be admitted without charge because when a fellow goes in like a regular spectator he can turn himself loose and just lose himself in the game. The average fan may envy the sportswriter but he's wrong. Seeing a football game is work to us. We can't let out a wild whoop, bang our neighbor on the shoulder and get glassy-eyes in watching old Sizemobman hit the line and little Pickmeupanday-midway circle end. The fan doesn't care whether the halfback ran 18 yards or 22 yards—the touchdown that came at the end of the run is what counts. As for all the statistics and details, he'll read the papers tomorrow to get that.

"But up in the press box there are furrowed brows. 'How far was that punt? Let's see, he was on the 32-yard line and kicked to the other team's 41-yard line and the safety man returned nine yards. What line is that? Why in hell don't they have the line marked with the figures and why do they have to have five-yard lines instead of 10-yard strips?' And so it goes all through the game.

"Paying your way in and thereby escaping all this worry and eternal note-taking would be bliss.

"What is a dollar to me, anyway? Say, Ernest, how about a loan of two bits till Tuesday?"

Dawn Reveals New Mexico Town Swept Away by Water

2 BUILDINGS SURVIVE RIO GRANDE FLOOD

Town of 1,000 People Succumbs to Swirling Torrent

EL PASO, Sept. 23.—Dawn revealed the town of San Marcial, N. M., 100 miles north of Albuquerque, had been swept off the map by flood waters of the raging Rio Grande.

Only two buildings withstood the onslaught. They are the property of the Santa Fe railroad and they house on second floor the 45 residents who remained in the town. All other structures in the town, which had a population of more than 1,000, succumbed to the turbulent river as it raced on to wreak destruction to the south.

From the windows of the Harvey house, owners watched their adobe homes crash into the black waters and disappear. Water was 10 feet deep in the business section. Details of the flood, the worst in the history of this section, trickled into El Paso over a long telephone wire. It was learned the damage will probably run into the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Swallowing in Water
A. M. Van Coeverton, Harvey house manager, lowered himself from the second story of the building to talk over the telephone.

"I am standing in three feet of water in the Harvey house," Van Coeverton shouted to make himself heard over the swishing of the water.

"There are about 45 men in the building and one other. The water is rising."

"We have enough food for two days, if we are forced to remain here that long," Van Coeverton said.

Van Coeverton said the party would attempt to leave the town on rafts today.

A hole 75 feet wide and eight feet deep was cut in the levee, weakened during August by the waters which had been beating against it for three days. Seventy-five men fought the torrent with shovels and sandbags yesterday, but when they saw the flood waters tearing away the levee, some fled to the foothills, the remainder seeking the shelter of the Harvey house.

Gets One Cent for False Arrest

WACO, Sept. 23.—Instead of the $10,000 he sought, John Acker was awarded damages of one cent for allegedly false arrest in Mart in 1927, by a 19th district court verdict.

The jury was instructed by Judge Sam Scott that in view of the fact that Acker was arrested without technical authority, they should grant him a momentary award from Constable Charlie Beckham. Admitted by the defense and recognized by the court, Acker was apprehended and cast in the Mart city jail with no warrant for his arrest and no written complaint against him. Alleged threats against his wife was the cause of the incarceration.

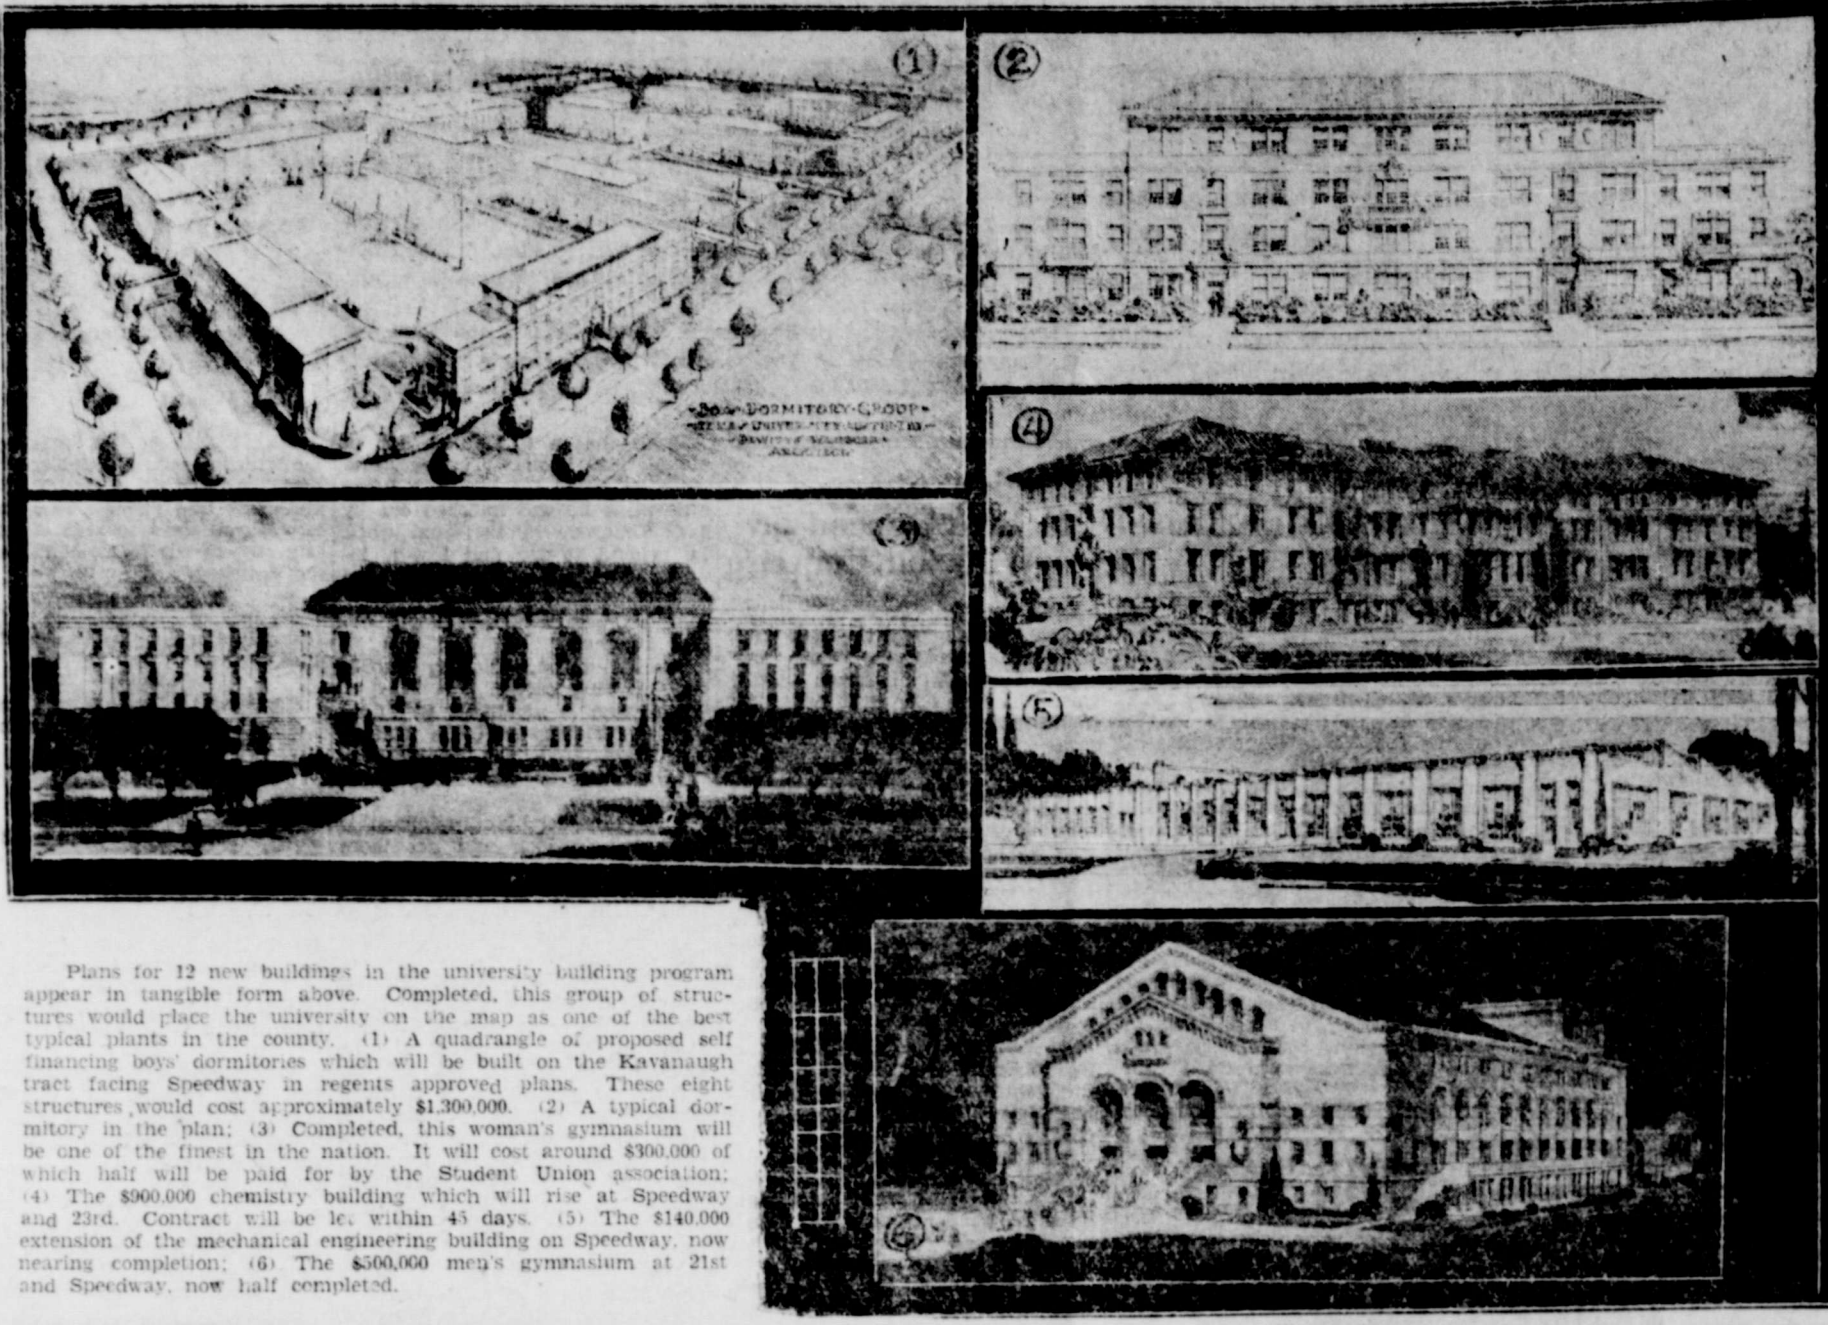

HERON PUTS OUT LIGHTS

PLYMOUTH, Wis., Sept. 23.—A farm community near here was without electricity all of one night when a heron perched on a 2,300-volt power line and its tail came in contact with an adjoining wire. The resulting short circuit put out the heron's "light" and also the lights in the surrounding farm homes.

SWEDISH TOURIST INCOME

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 23.—Sweden's income from foreign tourists this year probably will exceed 30,000,000 crowns, as compared to some 27,000,000 crowns in 1935. The revenue is expected to be much higher in 1936 because of the Stockholm industrial arts exhibition which probably will attract a great many visitors from abroad.

PROPOSED BUILDING PROGRAM FOR GREATER UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS

Plans for 12 new buildings in the university building program appear in tangible form above. Completed, this group of structures would place the university on the map as one of the best typical plants in the country. (1) A quadrangle of proposed self-financing boys' dormitories which will be built on the Kavanaugh tract facing Speedway in regents approved plans. These eight structures would cost approximately $1,300,000. (2) A typical dormitory in the plan; (3) Completed, this woman's gymnasium will be one of the finest in the nation. It will cost around $300,000 of which half will be paid for by the Student Union association; (4) The $900,000 chemistry building which will rise at Speedway and 23rd. Contract will be let within 45 days; (5) The $140,000 extension of the mechanical engineering building on Speedway, now nearing completion; (6) The $600,000 men's gymnasium at 21st and Speedway, now half completed.

choice of teeth by City Judge W. Colburn Cook.

MEXICAN RURAL EDUCATION

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 23.—To concentrate on rural education in Mexico, the ministry of education has established a rural circuit and augmented the budget for the work by $3,000,000. Under Minister Ezequiel Padilla there has been a special effort during the term of Provisional President Portes Gil to improve the school facilities outside the cities.

PROSPERITY IS SWEEPING PANHANDLE

AMARILLO, Sept. 24.—Prosperity is sweeping the Panhandle as farmers, cattlemen, and oil men continue to reap the flow of gold from golden grain and black gold. Crops this year are all record breakers and the production of oil is showing a steady increase and a trend towards the peak days of before pro-ration and the cut in prices.

Thousands of acres of land have been sold to new settlers in the past year, and most of this has been broken out, either for row crops this summer or fall sowing of wheat.

The wheat crop of the Texas Panhandle, harvested this summer, was 45,000,000 bushels from 1,750,000 acres, an average of 25 bushels per acre. Just as the new crop came on the market the price began to go upward, exceeding the dollar mark and adding much to the price gained by the farmer.

Estimates differ on the probable acreage this fall. Conservative authorities say that the increase will be about 250,000 acres, bringing the total to 2,000,000. Others say the increase will be about 25 per cent or over 400,000 acres.

"I am positive that the wheat acreage will be not less than 2,000,000 acres, but it may not exceed that much," Henry Ansley, one of the best informed men in Amarillo reports.

Fall row crops will soon be harvested. An acreage increase of not less than 25 per cent above last year, was put out in the spring. Much of the row crop harvested will not be sold but will be fed to hogs and cattle during the winter.

Natural increase in beef cattle is about $25,000,000 per year. The fall cattle movement is starting and more than half of this amount is expected to be in the banks within a few months.

The cotton crop movement on the south plains is now under way. The crop is short, however, experts saying it will not exceed 250,000 bales.

An oil price hike several days ago brought additional investment drilling and production. The development of Gray has increased production to around 100,000 barrels daily. Other counties also are having notable development.

Rumors of another increase in the price of oil have been circulating. This may develop if the high gravity of oil is maintained. Leases are changing hands, more acreages are being developed as the field is extended.

Wholesale men say that totals this year will exceed records. Sales exceed 1,000 per month, with some increasing. There is an abundance of goods sold through this year in 3,313 retail establishments.

Dairying is increasing at time in the Panhandle. In the past six years over 100,000 head of dairy cattle have been bred. Production of cream exceeded all early projects.

Amarillo creamery has used 1,200,000 pounds of butterfat in the past year while many thousands more were shipped to other cities. This year dairy production is estimated at 50 per cent above that of last year.

Poultry and hog raising other new industries. State railroads have increased and egg shipments over 100 per cent. There are several hundred thousand hogs on ranches and the spring crop of pigs is now being shipped to market.

San Marcos—San Marcos installed new scale at cost of $1,600.

The Innocent Cheat

by Ruth Dewey Groves
AUTHOR OF "RICH GIRL-POOR GIRL", ETC.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
HELEN PAGES feels unhappy when her classmates accuse her of being in love with her handsome guardian, LEONARD BRENT. But he represents all that she knows of home and family and she adores him blindly.

Brent changes all his plans for Helen's future after a chance meeting with a dying beggar, CHARLES OWENS NELLIN, who tells a strange story which Brent is able to corroborate to some extent by a visit to Yonkers.

On graduating, Helen reminds her guardian of his promise to reveal her parentage and is amazed when he informs her that she is heiress of a millionaire, CYRIL K. CUNNINGHAM, and that he promised her parents to take her to him when she was 18.

They go to Yonkers and Brent introduces her to Cunningham as his granddaughter. He offers as proof the locket containing a picture of EVANGELINE CUNNINGHAM which he had taken from the dying Nellin.

Helen remains at Bramblewood while the lawyer investigates the story. Cunningham presents her with a car which she drives everywhere. One day she accidentally strikes a girl, EVA ENNIS, who has to be taken to the hospital. Eva's brother, ROBERT, upbraids Helen for her selfish recklessness and then, noting her unstrung condition, offers to drive her home. Cunningham receives him graciously and invites him to spend the evening. The young couple go for a canoe ride.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XVIII

One of the things that Robert Ennis was ever to be grateful for was the fact that he did not kiss Helen at that moment.

He knew the desire, the urge that comes like an avalanche, sweeping all before it, disregarding restraint, taking on account of costs.

He knew it, and he mastered it, for one thought remained clear in his mind. This girl was not for him. His life was devoted to Eva. It was for her future that he was working. She depended upon him. And he could not lay a burdened future at the feet of a girl like Helen Brent, even had he dared to take her romantic gesture seriously.

Her hand fluttered away from his and a flush stole quickly into her cheeks. Had he deliberately repulsed her overtone? Did he still consider her a devil-may-care modern?

An awkwardness descended upon them that lasted until they reached the boathouse. Helen found relief in helping Bob get the canoe launched.

The commonplace phrases they used banished much of the restraint that had fallen upon them and gradually, as they glided over the smooth water, the spell of the night reweave itself into their minds.

To Bob Helen appeared to be an ethereal creature from another land. Her white dress merged into the background of moon-silvered water like a part of the moonlight itself. Only a glint now and then from the spangled Brent stepped forward and Helen introduced him to Eva. "Pretty kid," he thought.

He was glad when she began to talk, in a low, melodious voice. His sense of having been transported out of his own world was becoming uncomfortably convincing.

Conversation seemed not to suggest itself to either of them. They were living their hour, not discussing it as they would when they were older and sought to recapture the rapture of an awakening that never can be repeated. Old lovers talk, relive their dreams. Youth dreams. They were content with silence—the silence of song.

Presently Helen said they must go back and Bob headed the canoe toward the boathouse without vocal protest. But every instinct in his nature cried out against parting so soon.

His good night was strictly formal. But the thoughts with which they fell asleep were not. Bob was wondering what it would be like to bury his face in that alluring wealth of hair and Helen was thinking that—well, for once Leonard Brent did not get her good night thought.

But in the morning he came to Bramblewood and his saucily forceful personality caught at her wavering interest and fastened it securely upon himself again.

Helen told him about the accident to Eva Ennis and asked him to drive to the hospital with her. Brent was quite willing to go. He with her. For certainly an aloofness on his part would engender a similar attitude on hers in time, he reasoned.

They were admitted to Eva's room without delay. Helen went swiftly to the bed and took the hand that Eva extended in a touching friendliness.

"How are you?" she inquired anxiously.

Eva smiled at her.

"Very little pain this morning, thank you," she replied.

"I telephoned late last night and they told me you were sleeping," Helen said.

"Yes. After Bob left. He came in late." Eva's eyes were shining with excitement as she looked at Helen. Bob had told her that he'd been at Bramblewood—told her how wrong he had been in his first judgment of Helen. Eva was delighted, because nothing could make her believe that Helen was entirely to blame for the accident.

She attempted to express this opinion to Helen. "You know I should have looked before I stepped into the road," she said, "and I do want to thank you for—all this." She waved a hand to indicate that she meant the private room and the private nurses.

"It's nothing, my dear," Helen said hastily. "I was speeding. I owe you a great deal for the pain you've suffered. You must let me make it up to you. And now I want you to meet a very dear friend of mine. I should have asked permission to bring him here, but he's someone you will see a great deal of in the future, I hope, so I thought you wouldn't mind meeting him now."

Brent stepped forward and Helen introduced him to Eva. He took the slender hand she held up to him and gave it a gentle pressure.

"Pretty kid," he thought, and his smile deepened.

Eva's hand fluttered back upon the cover, but her eyes remained upon Brent. He spoke of the accident, expressed his regret and wished her a speedy recovery.

Mr. Cunningham's questions were dangerous—and Helen's company as well. He must avoid the appearance of having anything but a paternal interest in her and this he could not do without harm to his plans if he spent much time

Her mother had brought some of Eva's own garments to the hospital that morning and had spent an hour in doing the things for her daughter that no one else can think of.

The soft, curly brown hair was brushed until it gleamed and the shell pink jacket Eva wore was not finer and softer in its silken texture than the round young throat that rose from it.

The blue eyes were shadowed with the marks of pain but their brightness had not faded and there was even a faint tinge of pink underneath the delicate skin of the cheeks.

She looked very sweet and delicate, very appealing and feminine. Rather a novelty to Brent, meeting a girl like her. It struck his fancy to give it attention.

Eva tore her eyes away from him.

"The doctor says I may go home in a few days," she said to Helen.

"I'll come for you," Helen promised.

A few minutes later she left with Brent. "What do you think of her?" she asked when they were out of Eva's hearing.

"Sweet," Brent answered indifferently.

A cloud passed over Helen's face at his answer. Of course she couldn't have expected him to admire Eva. She knew too well the type of woman to whom he bowed in admiration.

Brent wanted to know what was back of the accident and Helen told him frankly that she had been bored to desperation by the life at Bramblewood.

Brent understood what she left unsaid—that she had been longing for him. Secretly he glowed with satisfaction. But when he spoke his voice was tinged with sadness.

"I'm sorry you haven't been happy," he said, "because I believe your grandfather is getting to love you."

Again a shadow passed over Helen's features. "I'm afraid he is," she agreed. "And I'm very fond of him, too—in spite of . . . everything."

Brent sighed. "Well, my dear, you must not harbor resentment. He is not the same man who was unkind to your mother. She would forgive him if she were here and I'm sure she would ask you to do the same."

"But it's so different from all I had planned for and dreamed of," Helen protested.

Brent took her hand and gave it a reassuring squeeze. "Never mind," he said promisingly; "we can play again when everything is adjusted."

Helen felt uneasy. "Oh, but I think my accident has made me realize that I mustn't think so much about myself," she said quickly.

Brent's face darkened. "Did I hear that little Ennis girl say something about a chap she called Bob?" he asked.

Out of the corner of his eye he observed Helen's change of expression. It was very slight, but it was unmistakable. He noted, too, that she hesitated a second before answering.

"Yes," she said simply.

"Who is he?" Brent asked, and Helen was conscious that the question had snapped from his lips in irritation.

She turned her head and regarded him in amazement. Was he jealous of her. Strangely the thought was not so pleasing to her as it would have been a few days earlier. She was aware of dreading it now.

"He's Eva's brother," she said quickly.

"I see," Brent mused. "You have met him?"

"Yes."

That simple word, uttered as Helen uttered it, told Brent more than Helen herself knew it contained. It set his hair-trigger brain to work to save his scheme from smashing on a natural hazard.

"Helen," he said suddenly, "wouldn't you like to come in and go to the theater with me?"

WAS NOTHING BUT A BUNCH OF NERVES

Iredell, Texas, Farmer Says He Never Saw Anyone Improve As Wife Has Since Taking Orgatone.

"At the time my wife sent and got her first bottle of Orgatone, she was nothing but a bunch of nerves, and it has pulled her up and done her more good than everything else, she has ever taken," said E. R. Turner, well-known farmer of Iredell, Texas, while in Bowen's Old Corner Drug Store, Waco, Texas, for some more Orgatone.

"For the past 10 months" he continued, "my wife suffered terribly from nervous headaches and a general rundown condition. These headaches would come on almost every day and she would get so deathly sick that she would just have to go to bed and have awful pains through the back of her neck and around her heart. She was dreadfully rundown and during the past winter her condition got so much worse that at times I actually was alarmed. She had no appetite at all and hardly ate enough to nourish a baby. She was pale and sickly looking and losing weight every day and although she took all sorts of medicine we never could find a thing that would do her any good."

"We heard so much comment about this Orgatone, and sent to Wichita Falls and bought our first bottle before it was placed on sale here in Waco. Actually, before my wife had finished it, those terrible headaches had left her and she hasn't had one since. A few more bottles of the wonderful medicine soon fixed her up all right and now she has such a splendid appetite that she can just sit down at the table and eat anything she wants. All that tired, listless feeling is gone and she is simply feeling fine. She has a healthier color than before, is gaining in weight and the whole family says they never saw anybody improve like she has."

Genuine Orgatone may be bought at Cisco, at the Dean Drug Store.

Modern methods of crime detection are used in "The Argyle Case" the latest Warner Brothers all-talking Vitaphone production, which stars Thomas Meighan, and which is scheduled to open its local engagement at the Palace Theater tomorrow for 2 days.

When Meighan, in his role of master-detective, finds it necessary to investigate the activities of the occupants of a certain boarding house, he enters the landlady away and sends a force of his operatives to place dictaphones in every room in the house.

Wires are laid to the attic of a house next door, and here two assistants are placed with a switch-board enabling them to communicate at will with a confederate who has been installed as a boarder, to another operative disguised as a chestnut-vender on the sidewalk before the house, or to the detective's office.

In addition, the delicate microphones of the dictaphones bring to the hidden men all the conversation that transpires in the house under surveillance, and thus modern scientific methods eventually bring about the solution of the mystery.

Meighan's supporting cast in "The Argyle Case" includes such well known screen players as H. B. Warner, Lila Lee, John Darrow, Bert Roach, Wilbur Mack, J. Quinn Douglas, Gerrard, Alona Marlowe, Zasu Pitts, Lew Harvey and Raymond Gallagher. The production was directed by Howard Bretherton. The original stage play by Harriet Ford and Harvey F. O'Higgins was adopted for the screen by Harvey Thew.

Wilcox Says Bolters Can Be Left Off Ballot But Favors Permitting Them to Vote if Pledge Is Taken

By RAYMOND BROOKS

Daily News Austin Correspondent. AUSTIN, Sept. 25.—Governor Wilcox said today that bolters should and legally can be kept off the democratic primary ballot next year, but the bolters should be allowed to vote in the primaries if they take the pledge anew, in the opinion of D. W. Wilcox of Georgetown, chairman of the democratic state executive committee. "This statement, as his own views and not for the committee as a whole, was made to Judge Edgar Scurry, Wichita county chairman. Effect of this ruling, if followed by the state committee, would be to bar Sen. Thomas B. Love, Hoovercrat leader, from the ticket as a candidate for governor, but would admit the 300,000 democrats who voted for Hoover back into the party primary if they will subscribe to the primary ballot pledge. "My personal view," Chairman Wilcox said, "is that it will be best to allow those voters who bolted the national ticket in the last election to vote in the primaries next year, provided they intend in good faith to live up to the statutory pledge printed on the ticket. "But I do not think that the name of any person who participated in the primaries last year

Too Drunk to Remember Name

DENTON, Sept. 25.—A lone figure came weaving its way down the street. Undeniably the man who was having such a hard time keeping his feet tracking, was in his "cups." He was lurching from one side of the walk to the other but by some miracle was managing to maintain his equilibrium. A deputy sheriff escorted the drunken one to the police station. "What's your name?" asked the desk sergeant, preparatory to booking the man on a charge of being intoxicated. The subject of King Alonzo made a brave effort to think, puzzled. "I'll tell you, sergeant," he said. "It's a right familiar name to me, right, but I'm darned if I can't remember it right now." But the sergeant was booked midst merriment about the potency of his liquor, amazed police officers. On sale Thursday, my entire stock of millinery at one-third actual value. Mrs. Chas. Curry at residence, 604 H Avenue.
