STATE FORCES TO STAY IN BORGER

GOVERNOR IS DETERMINED UPON CLEANUP

National Guardsmen Arrive in City This Morning.

AUSTIN, Sept. 30.—State forces will remain in Borger until it is cleaned up, or until the end of my term of office and my successor removes them. Governor Dan Moody said today formally announcing that Borger went under martial law at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Proclamations removing local peace officers and placing the military in control were executed by Governor Moody at 3:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon but suppressed in an effort to let troops reach here before the announcement. "I nearly got away with it," said the governor.

Gov. Moody also announced today the appointment of Clem Calhoun as district attorney. Calhoun, who formerly lived at Hamlin has been acting as special prosecutor since the assassination of District Attorney J. A. Holmes.

Partial Office The proclamation removing local peace officers takes all law enforcement out of their hands but leaves them in control of fiscal affairs. Mayor Pace is left with this partial office and Sheriff Joe Owenby is left in charge of county tax matters. Military officers will make before the regular courts, the governor said, except the city court which will give way to a provost marshal's court.

Brig. Gen. Jacob P. Wolters of Houston and Col. O. E. Roberts of Austin will be the ranking officers. Assistant Attorney General Paul Page, Jr. has been sent along as legal adviser.

The proclamation removing local peace officers has a preamble reciting that the officers removed have demonstrated their inability and unwillingness to enforce the law and "unwillingness to aid and assist in enforcing the law."

The martial law order extends to all of Hutchinson county.

BORGER PATROLLED BY SOLDIERS.
Borger, Sept. 30.—This boom town was occupied by state troops today and its policing in charge of state rangers, with county officials removed from authority. More than 100 national guards arrived here at 8:35 a. m., with instructions to take over the town in its entirety. They are in charge of Colonel Jacob Wolters, who carried the martial law proclamation signed by Governor Moody.

IF GRAPES ARE HALF AS SWEET—

SLIGHT CHANGE MADE IN PLANS OF M'DONALD

By NORMAN SMITH
With Premier MacDonald's Party ABOARD S. S. BERENGARIA, Sept. 30.—Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald's plans were slightly modified today as the result of his acceptance of Mayor Walker's invitation to stop over in New York long enough to have the freedom of the city conferred upon him.

Instead of proceeding to Washington immediately after landing in New York Friday, the British prime minister will go to the city hall where he will receive the key to the city. It will be the first time in history that this honor will have been conferred upon the head of a British government.

After a ceremony which is expected to last two hours, the premier and his party will leave for Washington.

MacDonald's failure to attend church services yesterday disappointed many passengers who had come to the service in the hope of seeing him. Premier MacDonald explained to me later that he was very tired, having slept badly during the previous night owing to the banging of doors and the heavy swells which the vessel encountered, immediately after breakfast he lay down in his stateroom to get some sleep and when he awoke, the Sunday service was over.

TRAIN ARRIVES HERE SHORTLY BEFORE NOON

El Paso Hospitality Makes Trip Very Pleasant One.

Between 150 and 200 Cisconians returned home today tired but happy. With them came 25 Loboes bearing the scalps of the El Paso Tigers taken by a margin of victory greater by far than resulted from either of the two previous encounters between the two teams. The score as the final gun barked conclusion to one of the most sensational high school games ever played was 38 to 13. That score, however falls to tell an honest account of the hectic contest, a contest featured with thrills on end and made the more spectacular by reason of great batteries of floodlights that poured their brilliance upon a field hemmed in by massive masonry and towering mountain peaks.

The special train, or rather special coaches, bearing the Cisco delegation, left El Paso last night at 8:15 for home after two days spent in the Gateway city and its environs. They were two days checked with interest and good time; two days made all the more enjoyable by reason of the splendid hospitality of the host city. The train reached Cisco shortly before 11 o'clock this morning and was greeted by hundreds of Cisconians who gathered to welcome the victors home.

On the outward trip El Paso was reached at 8 o'clock Saturday morning. The football boys, traveling in a coach all to themselves, were hustled to their hotel rooms while the rest of the delegation, headed by the Lobo band paraded the five blocks to the Hotel McCoy, gold and black colors proudly displayed.

Large numbers of Cisco fans had gone to El Paso in automobiles, preceding the special train. These were at the station to greet the train and to join the parade to the city.

Hotel conditions in El Paso were found to be congested due to the presence of a large rodeo but accommodations were finally arranged. At 9 o'clock a large part of the delegation went on a tour of the city and its suburbs through the courtesy of the El Paso chamber of commerce.

At 12:30 a chartered street car carried 75 of the party across the international boundary to the Central Cafe at Juarez where a special luncheon was served. During the luncheon the Lobo followers visited in the quaint Mexican town or in El Paso or attended the rodeo which was in progress.

The football game began at 8 o'clock in the magnificent El Paso high school stadium built in horse-shoe shape before the stately portico of El Paso's beautiful central high school building. The setting for the game was certainly impressive. To one side arose the level of the sea while at the very summit of this towering mass a single airplane beacon glared a red warning to ships of the air, many of which roared unseen over the big white stadium while the game was in progress.

Motion for Continuance of Clyde Thompson Murder Case Granted and New Trial Date Set for October 28

Judge Elso Been of the 58th district court at Eastland this morning granted a motion for continuance in the Clyde Thompson murder case when it was called and reset it for trial on October 28. The motion set out the fact that Judge J. R. Stubbfield, defense counsel, was physically incapacitated because of a recent automobile accident.

A special venire of 236 men was ordered summoned from which to select a jury to try the case when it again comes up for a hearing.

Thompson, who is under 20 years of age, is charged with murder in connection with the killing of Lucian Shook, near L'Arroy, in September 7, 1928. On a former trial of the case he was given the death penalty. The case was reversed.

Thompson is also under indictment for the murder of Leon Shook, younger brother of Lucian, killed at the same time Lucian was killed.

15 Convicts are Still at Liberty

Hobart White, above, 14-year old son of a Gastonia textile striker, was a witness to the killing of Mrs. Ella May Wiggins, who was shot while on route to a union demonstration. He's pictured here with broken arm and shoulder, results of a beating said to have been inflicted to "keep his mouth shut." Hobart, however, will testify in the investigation of the killing of the woman.

Fierce Hurricane is Sweeping Gulf

PENSACOLA, Fla., Sept. 30.—Tropical hurricane racing through the Gulf of Mexico after sweeping the Bahama Islands and Southern Florida, produced gale-like winds on the Gulf coast of Alabama and northwestern Florida today.

Apalachicola and Port St. Joe reported winds of 50 miles velocity at 5 a. m. when telephone lines began to go out breaking off communication between these two towns.

The barometer here registered 29.40 at 4 a. m., a drop of nine points in one hour.

Panama City, Fla., reported a 52 mile wind at dawn, while barometer drops were recorded all along the Gulf coast as far as New Orleans, where a reading of 29.77 at 5 a. m. was a two point drop in two hours.

Size of Naval Parley Undecided

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Whether the forthcoming naval conference is to consist of representatives of three or five powers probably will be known to President Hoover and Premier MacDonald before the latter returns to London. The premier today is at sea aboard the Berengaria and is due here Friday.

Frank Hamer, Texas Ranger Captain, is Known as Dead Shot and Square Shooter

AUSTIN, Sept. 30.—A "deadly shot" and a "square shooter" is the reputation of Frank Hamer, Ranger captain, whom Governor Dan Moody has picked to tame Borger, upstart oil town in the Panhandle where 26 killings have occurred in three years.

Hamer entered the Ranger service 26 years ago but typical of peace officers in those exciting days, Hamer talks very little about himself or his experiences. Records show that Ranger Captain Wright had called on the sheriff of Brewster county to recommend some one to range the mountain county along the border.

The sheriff said "There's a plum good fellow out at Marathon. Frank Hamer's his name. I'll send him in to see you."

Shortly thereafter 250 pounds of six-foot youth reported to Captain Wright that he was Frank Hamer. Wright was disappointed. "Why, he's only a boy," he wrote back to the sheriff. "That don't make any difference, try him out," the sheriff advised.

The next that the sheriff heard from Captain Wright was the laconic message: "If you have any more kids like this Hamer out there, send 'em in. I can use 'em."

Out in the Big Bend country where Hamer first enforced the law, he is known as the man who made a jail out of a windmill.

A certain roustabout had been taking his pleasure at various ranch dances, whipping whoever he could pick a fight with and generally making of himself a "bad hombre." He celebrated in this fashion once too often. Hamer accosted him in his quiet manner and placed him under arrest. "Arrest, hell!" said the trouble maker. "Where's your jail?"

Hamer forcibly took the fighting prisoner down the street. In those days but wooden windmills were used instead of today's slender contrivances. "There's the jail," said Hamer as he chained the "bad man" to the windmill.

Scared by the bullets of others, it is Hamer's record that he never shot a man who had not first shot at him. A badly damaged forearm is the result of this rule of Hamer's. In one of his early experiences Hamer was cornered between two men who had ordered him to "clear out of the country." "Without a flicker he walked to the nearest one. A shot struck his right arm. He couldn't raise his gun.

Falling to the ground he dropped the gun from his useless right hand, picked it up with his left and shot his assailant. Meantime, the other man shot Hamer in the leg and as Hamer turned to do battle with him the man fled. "Hell, I can't shoot him in the back," Hamer was heard to say as the man had disappeared.

Going to Kill Him More recently Hamer's arrival at a certain Texas town was followed by the boast of an offended officer that he would kill the Ranger. Hamer met the booster on the street. He drew no gun but walked quietly up to the fellow and said: "It's being told around here that you are going to kill me. Cut out that kind of talk. Don't let me hear any more of it." And he didn't.

However loath Hamer is to shoot, the verdict is unanimous that when he does shoot he never misses his mark. Recently at pistol practice Hamer shot a bullseye.

CAR TURNS OVER SUNDAY ON HIGHWAY

Death Occurs This Morning in Ranger Hospital.

RANGER, Sept. 30.—Two Ranger high school students were injured, one of them fatally, in an automobile accident Sunday afternoon on the Breckenridge highway several miles west of Ranger.

Jack J. Meyers, 18, member of the senior class, died this morning as the result of a fractured skull and cerebral hemorrhage.

J. D. Faircloth sustained a broken collarbone and a scalp wound but was able to leave the hospital after receiving medical aid.

Young Meyers was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Meyers. For a number of years Mr. Meyers was in the furniture business on North Austin street in Ranger then moved to Lubbock, where he is now engaged in the furniture business. The family has been making their home in Lubbock for about a year but Jack desired to graduate with his old school mates, so he was attending Ranger high school and would have graduated in June.

He is survived by four sisters and two brothers. His mother was notified of the accident and arrived in Ranger before he died. Funeral arrangements had not been made this morning.

The car in which young Meyers and young Faircloth were riding was a light roadster and the accident occurred when the former in bringing the car back from the shoulder of the road, turned the wheel too sharply, it is thought, resulting in the automobile overturning.

CISCOANS HURT IN COLLISION

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Martin and Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Vaughn were injured in an automobile accident late yesterday evening which occurred 11 miles south of Dublin. The Martin car, Mr. Martin driving, was returning from Austin when it was sideswiped by a passing car. The car turned over. Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn received minor cuts and bruises. Mrs. Martin a severe cut on the face, while Mr. Martin sustained a dislocated wrist, a sprained knee and cuts on the face. The car was wrecked. The other car was damaged but the driver, a man, and the only occupant, escaped injury. The party was taken to Dublin where the wounds were dressed. They came to Cisco by train.

"Human Fly" Will Attempt Laguna

D. D. Roland, 39-year old "human fly," is scheduled to climb to the top of the Laguna hotel building at 7:30 tomorrow evening. Once up to the top Roland will perform acrobatic stunts. Roland has been climbing tall buildings in the country for 14 years. He has had but one fall, that of 50 feet from the courthouse at Bloomfield, Ia., when a pigeon flew in his face and caused him to lose his head and otherwise terrified the spectators below.

The Innocent Cheat

© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE INC.

By Ruth Dewey Groves
AUTHOR OF "RICH GIRL-POOR GIRL", ETC.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
HELEN PAGE feels hopelessly in love with her handsome guardian, LEONARD BRENT, who expects obedience to his wishes. A chance meeting with a dying beggar, CHARLES NELLIN, who tells a strange story, causes Brent to change his plans for Helen's future.

On graduating, Helen reminds her guardian that he promised to send her a picture and is amazed when he tells her she is the mistress of a millionaire, CYRIL K. CUNNINGHAM, and says the time has come to take her to him. Brent introduces her to Cunningham as his granddaughter and offers as a gift a locket containing a picture of EVANGELINE CUNNINGHAM which he had taken from the dying Nellin. Pending investigation, Helen remains with her grandfather who gives her a new car. She accidentally hits a girl, EVA ENNIS, who has to be taken to the hospital. Helen meets the girl's brother, ROBERT, who falls in love with her but she is still devoted to Brent.

Cunningham gives a party and announces that Helen is his daughter's child and his heiress. Brent's triumph is followed by a letter for her finds a lost locket which exactly matches the one he had taken from Nellin. When he finds that Helen is wearing hers, he persuades her to take it off.

Brent excused himself to Bob with the plea that he wanted to talk to Mr. Cunningham. Bob was glad to see him go.

"What has happened?" he demanded, noticed in a flash that the clothing of all three was dripping wet.

Helen turned to him then and for the first time in many weeks she did not give him the impression of restraining herself with difficulty from rushing to his arms.

"We upset the canoe," Eva explained. "Helen and I."

Brent lifted an eyebrow. "A rescue?" he said coldly. "But I thought you both could swim. I know Helen can."

Helen said nothing, although Brent looked at her and not at Eva.

"Yes, but Helen was caught under the canoe," Eva told him. "Her scarf got wound round her neck and somehow, when we went under, it caught on the canoe and held her there. I couldn't get her free or turn the canoe over. I don't know what would have happened if Bob hadn't come along just in time."

"I see. How do you do, Ennis?" Brent said coldly. Helen regarded him with a startled expression. He caught it and instantly got himself in hand.

"Plucky thing. How did you manage it?" he asked Bob.

"Don't really know," Bob returned shortly.

"He's a wonderful swimmer," Eva contributed innocently.

Brent frowned. "Your grandfather is worried about you," he said to Helen.

"Oh, I forgot how long I've been away from him," she confessed. "Come on Eva, I can let you have some clothes." She paused and turned to Bob, adding: "But I don't know what you will do."

"I'll dry out in the sun while I'm waiting for Eva," Bob told her. "Don't be long, sis."

The two girls hurried away and Brent excused himself to Bob with the plea that he wanted to talk with Mr. Cunningham. Bob was glad to see him go.

"And that's the fellow Eva's always raving about," he thought contemptuously as Brent strode down the path. "Looks like a first-class crook to me."

Eva was not thinking of Brent at the moment. She was concerned with the thought of her dress.

NEW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXII

With Eva within hearing distance, Brent was compelled to obey Helen's suggestion of an early morning drive.

"Like Miss Ennis, I must be in the city early," he said. "I have an appointment with my dentist."

He added the excuse lest Eva might misunderstand and consider he was trying to get away from her. Helen laughed to hide her disappointment and said it was a silly notion anyhow. Her manner completely deceived Eva.

Brent was glad that Bob arrived a few minutes later and broke off his sister's lingering departure. He observed the young man Helen closely when Bob joined them but there was nothing in greeting to disturb him.

Helen was politely detached and was restrained in his manner. And there was plainly no sign on his part to tarry under Cunningham roof.

Brent felt certain of Helen at the moment. It remained now for only to play his cards with Mr. Cunningham was failing—no one could reasonably give every much time to live, Brent.

He was the probable date of his death with all the calculating coldness of his nature and decided he would keep his relations with Helen as long as possible until that event occurred.

For Mr. Cunningham, he was convinced, would not consent to a marriage between him and Helen. But for all his planning when he left her that night, he was a little warmer toward her than he had been before. They were in the garden and there was a soft glow of color in the sky that lent romantic glamor to the setting.

Helen reacted to it with a longing to start a new life with the new man they could take Leno's car, thought, and drive away—now, everywhere, let their journey end by what it may.

"Dreaming?" Brent said, taking her hand.

Helen sighed.

"So many girls would be delighted to have had a fairy wand waved over their heads," Brent said. "Think of it, dear, you are very rich some day."

"Money?" Helen's voice dripped with contempt for the word. She smiled at her unworldliness. "I'm glad to be acknowledged by my mother's daughter," Helen said quickly. "And I couldn't think of leaving my grandfather now, so feeble and..."

"I know," Brent said gently. Helen looked up at him. "But you will go away," she said wistfully. "You will have those wonderful trips we planned together. You have done everything you wished my father would do for you—are you free now?"

Brent hesitated for effect and then spoke, when he spoke, with a voice that was not with feeling. "I'm afraid," he said, "that I cannot go away—I cannot leave you, Helen."

Helen reached up her hands and pressed them together and rested her head upon them. Helen never so little, yearning to be taken in his arms.

Brent was aware of her desire and did not satisfy it. "You are dreaming," he whispered. "I can't be sure that you know your heart."

"I know that it is aching," she answered.

"My dear," he breathed, "my dear, you are so sweet beautiful. Many men will love you. You know nothing of life. You will not take advantage of you. You will wait."

Helen closed her eyes to shut the world and all but Brent's soothing words.

"Your grandfather would not like to lose you so soon after leaving you," Brent continued. "And he is very frail. It would be a shock to him if you brought back the memories of breaking with your mother. It would be unwise to tell him this."

Helen nodded her head against Brent's chest. She suppressed a sigh of relief. "We will keep out love a secret," he said softly. Helen nodded in assent.

For weeks after that night she lived in a world apart from that in which she moved as Helen Nellin. There were fewer and fewer trips to town with Brent, owing to her grandfather's increasing feebleness. He wanted her near him, grew to depend upon her for many small services that formerly had been a part of Mark's duties.

But Brent did not allow the time they spent together to be dull. Helen was always eagerly impatient to be with him again. And as the day seemed to draw near when no one would stand between him and his plan to marry the Cunningham millions, he grew even more ardent in his love-making, under the guise of giving Helen the sympathy and encouragement she needed.

He drove up one Sunday to call, convinced that he would find Mr. Cunningham greatly on the decline. He was shown to the sick man's room immediately. Much to his surprise he found him sitting in his chair at the window. Brent had expected to find him in bed. He saw at once that the aged man was upset.

He greeted Brent cordially enough and then revealed the cause of his agitation.

"I'm worried about Helen," he explained. "She's been out on the lake with Miss Ennis much longer than she said she would be gone. I was just about to send Mark to see if anything has gone wrong."

Brent, still standing, turned toward the door. "I'll go," he offered.

"I wish you would," Mr. Cunningham agreed. "Helen is always prompt about coming to me when I expect her."

Brent hurried downstairs, not in fear that what he considered a sick man's misgivings might have a foundation in fact but because he wanted to be with Helen. He had but little time to spend at Bramblewood on this occasion and he did not wish to waste it on an invalid.

Eva's presence there was a jarring note, but it was not uncommon that they met at Bramblewood and Brent trusted himself to carry off the situation satisfactorily.

He found a situation, however, that he was totally unprepared to meet. Out in the lake the canoe floated, bottom side up, and for a few seconds he had a terrifying fear that a fatal accident might have occurred.

Then he saw Helen and Eva on the shore, partly hidden by a clump of flowering shrubs. He rushed over and before he reached them he discovered that they were not alone.

Helen was standing face to face with Bob Ennis, her hands in his in a grasp that filled Brent with cold anger.

Eva saw him before Helen did and Brent thought for a second that she was going to fling herself into his arms. He looked past her at Helen and Bob.

CATS ASSEMBLE STRONG LINEUP FOR BIG GAME

The Cisco Cats, local amateur baseball nine, expects to give the Fort Worth Panthers some of the strongest competition the pro club has met on its barnstorming tour when the teams play here at Chesley park Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The assembling of a fast aggregation of locals has the lineup of the Cisco Cats practically complete. The Eastland Arab nine defeated the locals at Chesley park yesterday afternoon by a count of 18 to 7. A different lineup than that which faced the Arabs yesterday will meet the Panthers. Some of the stars who will wear the Cisco colors Wednesday are Jack Wright of Abilene, formerly of the Philadelphia Athletics and who played with the Western League during the season just closed; Rip Hinson of the Coleman club of the West Texas League, Ed Carraway of the Western League, who won the Chicago White Sox next year; and Stone of Rising Star, who has played with the Coleman club. Cisco's four regulars who will be in the lineup are Lefty Sublett, H. Sublett, Moseley, and Edwards.

Frank Hamer, Texas Ranger Captain, is Known as Dead Shot

It was Hamer who led the protest against the state bankers association offering a $5,000 reward for dead bank robbers. "I haven't any brief for bank robbers to be shot down by reward seekers." Under Hamer's sharp attack the reward notices that banks had posted gradually disappeared. er emptied his six-shooter at a dollar-size target 50 feet away. Five shots hit the center. One touched the rim. "That one would have missed his navel," was Hamer's disgusted comment.

Moot Case Involves Eye-Glass Inventor

LONDON, Sept. 30.—Many million persons use them but do not know who invented them. Who did invent spectacles? This was one of the hardest questions which faced the recent London Congress of Spectaclemakers. W. E. Hardy, one of the organizers of the congress, said that many years of study have been devoted trying to find out who first made eye-glasses. "It is thought," he said "that the credit may be given Roger Bacon, the English philosopher and scientist of the 14th century, but the situation has been complicated by the recent discovery of lenses in an old Carthaginian sarcophagus. "There is no proof, however, that these lenses were used for defective sight; they may have been burning glasses. Spectacles came into general use in this country after the invention of printing.

DIRTLESS, HEATLESS COACH TRIED BY FRENCH RAILROAD. PARIS, Sept. 30.—A dirtless, heatless coach for traveling in hot weather has been given a trial run on a French railroad. The newspapermen, engineers and government officials who took the ride were enthusiastic and it was said that the luxuriantly equipped coach will become a regular feature of the service between Paris and the south of France. The refrigeration installation corresponds to that in vogue in moving picture theatres in the United States, comprising a system for cooling and filtering the air that enters. The windows are kept shut so that passengers are assured an agreeable temperature and a freedom from cinders. This is the first time, as far as can be ascertained, that a refrigerated train for human beings has been placed in operation.

PALACE advertisement for 'THE GREENE MURDER CASE' by William Powell as Philo Vance, featuring 'The Cockeyed World'.

IT IS A GREAT PLAY, THRILLING, TENSE; packed with action and amazing plot situations. It is better than 'The Canary Murder Case,' because the crimes were more baffling of solution, because the story carries a greater number of amazing surprises. It deals with the misfortunes of the strange Greene family, a bed-ridden paralytic mother and her four children. With a fortune at stake should she die, the household is suddenly gripped by a series of tragic killings. It is top-notch entertainment. Well it should be. It has great plot material; a supporting cast which includes Florence Eldridge, Morgan Fairley, Jean Arthur, E. H. Calvert, Eugene Pallette and many other stage-trained actors. If you like your thrills dished up with machine-gun rapidity, if you like entertainment that keeps your pulses tingling, don't pass up 'The Greene Murder Case.' It is one of the season's best bets.
