

Kittens and Cyclones Tie in Hardfought Contest Here

SCORE AT END OF THRILLING GAME 33 ALL

Both Russell Girls Are Forced from Game in First Half

In a hot fought game here last night the Randolph college Kittens and the Golden Cyclones of Dallas fought to a 33 to 33 tie at the local high school gym. Both M. Russell and T. Russell, Randolph guards fouled out in the first quarter. The Kittens led the visitors at the outset but just before the end of the first half the Cyclones jumped into the lead with a score of 11 to 10. The score remained tied almost throughout the second half, the Kittens taking the lead late in the half only to surrender it when Didrikson tossed a field goal to tie the count as the game ended.

Lineup for the game was—forwards: Fulford and Darnell, forwards; Greenlee, center; Patterson, T. Russell and M. Russell, guards; Kirby and Johnson, sub.
 Cyclones: Warren and Didrikson, forwards; Wiesinger, center; Straton Langford, and Iari, guards; Peace and Tutt, subs.

"SHE COULDN'T SAY NO" DRAMA OF GREAT POWER

With much of its story told against a background of ray night clubs, "She Couldn't Say No," the Warner Bros. Vitaphone production which opened an engagement at the Palace theatre last night, is nevertheless a drama of unusual power.

Winnie Lightner, its star, gives a convincing impersonation of a rather hardboiled entertainer, and proves herself an actress of emotional ability as well as a comedienne. The story is unusually effective and we follow with interest the fortunes of the girl who loved in vain. The leading male role is played by Chester Morris, who became a screen star overnight through his sensational work in "Alibi," and who is undoubtedly without a peer in such a role as he here plays in "She Couldn't Say No."

Other prominent roles in this entertaining production are played by Sally Eilers, Johnny Arthur and Tully Marshall, in addition to hundreds of lesser actors in the great cafe scenes and in those which take place within a theatre where Winnie is a performer.

The picture is nicely mounted, and is a thoroughly satisfying production in every way. Lloyd Bacon, the director, is to be credited with much of the film's success, and his guiding hand is often apparent to the critical spectator. You will enjoy "She Couldn't Say No."

Crawford, Spencer at Eastland Banquet

E. P. Crawford, president of the Cisco chamber of commerce, and J. E. Spencer, were guests at the annual meeting of the Eastland chamber of commerce Friday evening.

Little Concern for 9 Missing Lepers

HONOLULU, T. H., Feb. 22.—Nine lepers still missing from Kalahehi hospital failed to alarm the island population today.

Health authorities seemed little concerned, saying they considered the fact that a few lepers were at large to be no menace.

The matter-of-fact medical men admitted they were uncertain how leprosy was transmitted. They said the disease was not contagious, although mildly infectious.

PHILADELPHIA IS PAST STAGE OF EXPERIMENT

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—The Philadelphia National league club has passed the experimental stage and only three players who have not had previous major league experience are on the 1930 roster.

There are 12 new players on the squad of 29, but four of the group finished the season with the Phils and five others are not new to the majors.

Several of the most promising recruits broke into the lineup last season. One is Tripp Sigman who is looked for a regular outfield berth along with Chum Klein, National league home run champion, and Lefty O'Doul, National league batting champion.

Eight new pitchers have been added to six retained from last season. Among the newcomers is Grover Cleveland Alexander, 43, who comes back to the Phils where he started his major league career in 1911. Alexander won 9 games and lost 8 for the Cardinals last season.

Three of the pitching recruits are Earl Collard, Chet Nichols and Byron Speece, who have had previous major league trials. Collard, who won 10 games and lost 3 for the Shreveport Texas league club last season, has been up with Detroit and Cleveland.

Three other young pitchers finished the season with the Phils. They are Harry Smythe, promising southpaw from the Asheville Sally league club, who won 4 games and lost 6 last season; Sam Dailley, purchased from the Des Moines Western league club, who won 2 games and lost 2 for the Phils last season; and John Milligan from the Erie, N. Y., Pa. league club, who participated in 8 games with the Phils last year.

The other pitching recruit is Harold Miller, 29, a free agent who has been pitching semi-pro baseball around Philadelphia.

QUEENS BEAT BRECK 27-20 IN ROBY GO

Advance to Finals of Invitational Tournament

The Cisco Queens won the Roby invitation tournament last night by defeating Roby 27 to 15 in the final game. Bates, with 28 points, led the scoring. The half ended 9 to 7. Ola Purdue was awarded outstanding guard, and Gary Powell outstanding jump center and best all-round player. A silver trophy was given the Queens.

The Cisco high school Lobo Queens advanced to the finals of the Roby invitation basketball meet at Roby Saturday morning by defeating their old rivals, the Breckenridge Breckenridges, 27 to 20, in a game that was played at 9 o'clock.

The girls had previously nosed out the Mingo sextet in a hot fought contest by one point, the score being 24 to 23. This game was played Friday night. Friday afternoon the Queens defeated Busby 33 to 14.

The final game was to have been played Saturday night but no report from the contest was available here at 10 o'clock.

Cisco Cagers Lose Out at Stephenville

A powerful defensive club that didn't spelled disaster for the Cisco Lobos Friday evening and for the first time in four successive years the Cisco cagers surrendered the district interscholastic League basketball title to a rival. The Breckenridge Buckaroos won the flag by defeating first the Stephenville Yellowjackets, 19 to 13 and then the Lobos 26 to 15 in the district tournament held at Stephenville.

The victory of the Buckaroos, although not wholly unexpected, was somewhat of a surprise to the district in view of their showing as compared with other teams. Cisco's record, although the Lobos sustained a narrow defeat at the hands of the Buckaroos during the practice periods, was admittedly much better than that of the Stephens county boys. The previous victory of the Buckaroos over the Lobos was by one point in a game at Breckenridge, a victory that was won largely because of the argumentative nature of Cisco's star guard, O. C. Ray, who was banished from the court after words with the referee, had given the Buckaroos two of three points on free throws.

However, Coaches Chapman and Hill returned from Stephenville Friday night — after Breckenridge's clean sweep of the tournament had made playing of the other games useless—with no disposition to contest Breckenridge's right to the victory.

Cox High Point.
 Cox, elongated center of the Buckaroos, led the scoring with Blackburn second. Cox scored 11 points and Blackburn 9. Whitehead was high point for Cisco with five and Van Horn second with 4. Out of 11 free throws awarded the Cisco team only three were made. This inability to realize upon gratuities was another factor that entered into the Cisco boys' defeat. The first half scoring stood 8 to 7 in favor of Breckenridge; and the bulk of the scoring took place in the second half.

Incidentally this loss prevents the Lobos from acquiring permanent possession of the district silver trophy which requires three wins to secure.

Cisco won their first game at 2:30 against Lipan by a score of 37 to 18. Second stringers played half of this game after the first string had run up a sizable count. This second team consisted of Clemp Ray and Karkalis at forwards; Purvis at center; Chambliss and Hanks at guards.

Lineup for the Breckenridge contest was:
 Cisco—Whitehead and Yeager, forwards; Van Horn, center; O. C. Ray and Preston, guards. Preston was forced out on fouls in the last quarter and gave place to Karkalis. Breckenridge—Blackburn and Kile, forwards; Cox, center; R. Carey and Chase, guards. R. Carey was forced out on fouls in the last quarter and gave place to G. Carey.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON RECRUITING CHRISTIAN WORKERS

an organizer. It is an interesting fact that we sometimes forget. A few years ago a leading advertising man in America wrote a book about Jesus in which, among other aspects, he was spoken of as a great executive. It was a rather extravagant and overdrawn account of the meek and lowly Jesus, calculated to encourage the modern business executive in the too complacent assumption that Jesus was a man somewhat like himself, or at least that he and the Master had considerable in common.

The representation, though it indicated a reaction from the affection of undue meekness and humility, hardly did justice to the deep and essential teaching of Jesus concerning true humility and the complete usefulness of the highest life.

But Jesus was an organizer, and it is well to remember that. He was not a futile dreamer content merely to scatter seeds as seeds that had very little effect. He never put outward movements and results above inward and spiritual realities, and in the organizations that he effected and the sort of advice that he gave to the disciples that he organized he was very careful to keep first things first and to disabuse their minds of the idea that their labors would be measured in terms of apparent or outward success.

Organized Disciples But Jesus did organize. He quickly gathered to him a inner group of 12 unique and trusted men, one of whom in fact proved unfaithful, but he also appointed at least 70 others and sent them forth with the ministry of the Kingdom. Perhaps we have never appreciated how much of the Master's time and labor went into the gathering and training of these disciples.

Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth labourers into his harvest. And when he had called unto him his twelve disciples, he gave them power against unclean spirits, to cast them out, and to heal all manner of sickness and all manner of disease.

New names of the twelve apostles are these: The first, Simon, who is called Peter, and Andrew his brother; James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother; Philip, and Bartholomew; Thomas, and Matthew the publican; James the son of Alphaeus, and Lebbaeus, whose surname was Thaddeus; Simon, the Canaanite, and Judas Iscariot, who also betrayed him.

These twelve Jesus sent forth, and commanded them, saying, Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritans, but go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. And as ye go, preach, saying, The Kingdom of heaven is at hand. Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils: freely ye have received, freely give.

He that receiveth you receiveth me; and he that receiveth me receiveth him that sent me. He that receiveth a prophet in the name of a prophet shall receive a prophet's reward; and he that receiveth a righteous man in the name of a righteous man shall receive a righteous man's reward. And whosoever shall give to drink unto one of these little ones a cup of cold water only in the name of a disciple, verily I say unto you, he shall in no wise lose his reward.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Feb. 22, Recruiting Christian Workers, — Matt. 9:35—19:8; 10:10-42. By WM. E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of The Congregationalist. Jesus appears in the New Testament story early in his ministry as the great things of the gospel are, after all, relatively simple, and it is because of this simplicity that those who will may hear the call of Christ and find a ministry in him. That does not mean that unlearned women can perform the acts of service that depend upon efficient training, but it does mean that if we are willing to act sincerely, earnestly and honestly within the range of our own limitations, the reality of our Christian living and speaking cannot fail of its effect. Today we are in the midst of a great reconstruction of the Church's ministry of teaching. We are developing teachers in our church training schools trained more specifically than ever before, and what is called religious education has become a major interest of inquiry, instruction and practice.

But in the midst of all this undoubtedly improvement it is worth while occasionally to recall the power of many a Sunday school teacher, probably very inadequately informed and educated, and certainly with very little actual training for teaching, who none the less, left a gracious and powerful influence through contact with the young Sunday after Sunday—an influence that was deep and stirring because of its defectiveness and certainly overcome by the supremacy of a beautiful Christian example.

No advancement in other directions can ever atone for the lack of that spirit. It is Christian purpose, Christian living, that is the very foundation of Christian effectiveness; and it is this fact that makes it possible in the Christian church for every individual believer to be a priest, king and a prophet unto God.

Seizure of "Plot" Letter Confirmed SAN LUIS POTOSI, Mexico, Feb. 22 — United States Consul George Shaw confirmed today the seizure of a letter sent from a Mexican student now in St. Louis, Mo., in which completion of a "plot" against President Herbert Hoover, similar to the attempted assassination of President Ortiz Rubio, was claimed. The consular described the letter as the work of a "hairbrained boy," Nicolas Alcorca, the letter writer, formerly lived here, and was credited by the police with having "radical ideas."

Alcorca's name, originally given as Acosta, was disclosed by Vicente Aureoco Siches, another youth under arrest. In the letter the boy had used a non-de-plume. The American consul added that Alcorca claimed he was a regular attendant at the "St. Louis Communist Dynamite Society," where plans for the anti-Hoover plot were discussed, saying that he hoped he would be chosen for the task.

Five Men Dead of Radiator Solution. LYON, Neb., Feb. 22 — A drinking party at which poisonous anti-freeze solution for automobile radiators was mistaken for wine, today claimed the life of the fifth and last member of the party. Reuben Roberg, 22, section hand, died today from the effects of the poisonous anti-freeze mixture that the five had stolen from the basement of Ed Stethen, local railway agent.

The other members of the quintet that had preceded Roberg in death were: Hollis Cleveland, 17, Lyons high school football player; Leon Jarvis, 18, high school youth; Lawrence Kochmeyer, 24, farm hand; and Nelson Jarvis, 20, brother of Leon. Two other youths who had sipped out a small portion of the liquor felt no ill effects.

Flores Says Act Was Spontaneous MEXICO CITY, Feb. 22 — Daniel Flores, who attempted to kill President Ortiz Rubio on the day of his inauguration, had no accomplices and the shooting was a "spontaneous act," he told newspapermen in an interview last night. Flores said he had not decided to shoot until he saw the presidential automobile leaving the palace. "Something impelled me to fire because I realized that Ortiz Rubio had been foisted on the people," Flores denied that his act was inspired by any Vasconcelists.

THE HI-LIFE In Which the News of Cisco High School is Presented MARY BETH LANGSTON, Editor

The Juniors had a lovely treat for C. H. S. when they selected the charming and talented couple, Mr. and Mrs. Kline, to entertain the student body. Mr. and Mrs. Kline are well known entertainers, and C. H. S. was indeed fortunate to get their matinee program. On the guitar they played Honolulu March, a Little Kiss Each Morning, Painting the Clouds with Sunshine, and All That Tin Asking is Sympathy. Mrs. Kline played Vagabond Lover on an instrument that was a combination of guitar, mandolin, and ukelele; she played Carolina Moon, Pagan Love Song, and Sleepy Valley on the saw, accompanied by Mr. Kline on the guitar. Mr. Kline read "Jim Wolf and the Cats," a selection from Mark Twain's "Huckleberry Finn" and "Kewpie's Bar." Mr. and Mrs. Kline also gave a one-act play "Please Pass the Cream," a breakfast scene. The tennis teams gave a good account of themselves at Ranger a few days ago. The three doubles teams, Dick West and Roy Chambers, Leon Henderson and Leonard Shockey, and Billie Bricker and Gene Abbott, won their matches; Dick and Gene won their singles matches, but Roy was defeated. The teams went to Breckinridge Wednesday, but the wind was so high that it was practically impossible to play.

Unusual features of design assure EXCEPTIONAL ECONOMY

Though it is known mainly for its superior performance and smoothness, the New Oakland Eight is also exceptionally economical. Unusually accessible parts make its maintenance cost low. Its sound basic design assures long service. And its gasoline mileage equals that of many sizes of similar size and weight. Its power plant provides ample space for large, long-lived bearings. Its short, rigid crankshaft eliminates torsional vibration and bending, two enemies of long life. Generous water passages around cylinders and valves protect against overheating, and a water recirculation system insures uniform cooling. Complete down-draft carburetion and manifolding promote more economical use of fuel. A new-type cylinder head insures uniform combustion. Positive lubrication under 25 to 30 lbs. pressure supplies a constant flow of oil to moving parts. And crankcase ventilation prevents dilution of engine oil. Furthermore, Oakland's wood-and-steel Fisher bodies resist wear, being well constructed of materials chosen for hard service and long life. These features keep operating and maintenance costs low, and protect the car's ultimate resale value. In view of its many advantages, the New Oakland is very moderately priced. Why not come in and drive this newest General Motors eight whose superior performance is made all the more attractive by its exceptional economy? The New Oakland Eight, $1045 and up, f. o. b. Pontiac, Michigan, plus delivery charges. Levelty Hydraulic Shock Absorbers included in list prices. Bumpers, rear fender guards and spring covers extra. BEGIN HERE TODAY

Judith Cameron, New York typist, marries Arthur Knight, executive of the publishing house where she works. Knight is a widower with a daughter, Tony, 18, and son, Junior, 16. Tony denounces Judith as a gold digger. Her father makes her apologize. When Junior comes home for Christmas holidays, he is equally unfriendly.

Andy Craig, a young man Knight has aided, takes a position with the publishing house. He is in love with Tony and calls on her frequently. Tony tries to convince her father that Judith and Andy are carrying on an affair, and when she fails, tricks the pair into a compromising situation.

Tony is carrying on a flirtation with Mickey Mortimer, wealthy, and married. This is revealed when they are arrested at 3 a. m. for reckless driving. Tony and Andy's father quarrel over this, but the girl is finally forgiven. Knight becomes dangerously ill with pneumonia. Junior comes home and before he leaves admits to Judith he has misjudged her. After Knight begins to recuperate he seems to prefer Tony's company to Judith's.

Tony intercepts a letter which comes for Judith. Later she follows her stepmother on a trip into the city and sees her meet a young man. She threatens to tell her father the story unless Judith goes away for two weeks and Judith agrees, leaving a note for Arthur. Knight's secretary reports that "Andy Craig is missing, too. Judith goes to an inconspicuous hotel on upper Broadway. She has barely reached her room when the telephone rings with the story.

CHAPTER XLIII

The bell rang a second time. Startled, Judith stared at the telephone and hesitated. Then she picked up the instrument. Who in the world could be calling her? "Hello!" she said in a low voice.

"Long distance," came the crisp voice of the operator. "Will you hold the wire please?" Judith swayed. All at once it seemed her breath caught in her throat.

"For an eternity she waited. Then there were buzzings on the wire. She could hear the muffled tones of operators making connections. Suddenly clearly above the rest a soprano voice cut in.

"There's your party. Ready, Indianapolis?"

"Indianapolis—" Judith choked.

"Operator, who is this call for?"

"Indianapolis calling R. J. Wagner. Isn't Mr. Wagner waiting?"

"There's some mistake! There's no Mr. Wagner here."

"What number is your room?"

"This is Room 419."

For a moment there was no sound. Then:

"Hello!" she said in a low voice.

"Long distance," came the crisp voice of the operator. "Will you hold the wire please?" Judith swayed. All at once it seemed her breath caught in her throat.

was stiff and uncomfortable, so different from the downy one to which she was accustomed. She stirred uneasily, found her original position was better and moved again.

Surely Arthur had read her letter by this time. What was he thinking?

It was singular that in all her misery and loneliness Judith gave little thought to Tony. Tony Knight had been directly responsible for her banishment and yet Judith did not reproach the girl.

After all, it was not Tony who made Judith's plight serious. It was the truth of the facts which Tony knew.

The little room on the court was stuffy and ill ventilated. Judith tossed sleeplessly for what seemed to be hours. At last she drifted into troubled slumber.

When she awoke the room was still dark. Judith blinked her eyes, closed them, then opened them once more. For a frightened instant she could not remember where she was. She sat up, startled.

Gradually the past day's adventures came back to her. Like a flash it was all clear in her mind. Of course! The drive with Tony—the girl's ultimatum—hasty packing—the note to Arthur—catching the train—this hotel.

So here she was and her exile was not a dream. It was tragically true. She was separated from Arthur and only fate could say when she should see him again.

Was it morning? Judith rubbed her eyes and wondered. She felt as though she had slept a long while, but she was still tired and nestled in the bed covers, loath to move.

At last she sat up and put one foot out on the cold floor. She went to the window and raised the shade.

The hands of her watch pointed to 11:30 o'clock.

Yes, the little watch was ticking. It really must be that late. Judith felt that she must hurry to get dressed. At home since Arthur's illness she had slipped until 8:30. But 11:30—!

Hot water, then cold water splashed in the bowl. Quickly Judith pulled on undergarments, stockings and pumps. She combed and brushed her hair and dusted her face with powder. Lastly she slid the jersey frock over her head and fastened the little old-fashioned locket about her neck.

Was there the slightest trace of defiance in her face as she did this?

Judith's head ached drearly. It occurred to her this might be the result of hunger. Then she remembered she had no dinner the evening before.

When she had slipped on hat and coat and picked up her purse, she stopped to make a survey of the room. She stepped back and raised the window to its full height. Then she went out of the room and locked the door.

She noted on the way to the elevator that daylight did not improve the appearance of the hotel. Corridors were dark and the paint cracked.

A wheezy rattle indicated that the elevator was rising. Judith stepped inside, said "good morning" to the gray-haired man who operated the car and rode to the ground floor. There she left her key at the desk and went out on the street.

The sun was shining and the cool, fresh breeze against her cheeks brought color surging into them. Judith enjoyed the sting of the cold air. It came from the river and she started walking westward.

The locality was strange to her but somewhere near there was sure to be a clean, cheap restaurant.

She found one, entered and took a small table in the rear of the place. Judith was just ahead of the noon-time rush. Soon men and women came pouring into the place and nearly every table was filled.

The luncheon which she ordered was a substantial one. When it came none of the food was particularly palatable. Judith concluded quite rightly that the fault was with herself. She knew she should eat but was not hungry. It was hard to force herself to swallow even a small part of the meal.

Ordinarily she would have been interested in the crowd about her.

She was not interested in them today. Judith was wondering if Arthur Knight had remembered to take his medicine. Had he taken it with the right amount of water so as to remove the bitter taste?

When she had finished, Judith pulled her coat collar closer. The wind, as she turned and retraced her steps, felt colder. She walked as far as Broadway and then hesitated.

There are such hundreds of inviting retreats for those who have leisure in Manhattan! Judith knew some of them. Seldom before had an afternoon in the city hung heavy on her hands. She loved the crowds, the shops, the theaters. She was delighted at trips into unexplored foreign quarters. None of these pastimes appealed today.

At last she decided to visit the Battery, and walked until she found a subway station. She boarded the train, glad to find it was not crowded. The joggling, roaring trip did not irritate her as it had the night before.

When Judith came out into the daylight again a gust of wind caught her coat and sent her spinning about. The sunlight dancing upon the water was glorious even to one whose mood was as dark as Judith's. She stood staring off into the golden haze from which craft of a dozen varieties emerged, filling her lungs with the good air.

Shrill, snorting tug boats wheeled about. Ferries whistled. The harbor was a moving, changing mass of color and life.

Against the chill, driving wind Judith made her way to a bench and sat down. There were men and women about—particularly men—but no one seemed to notice the girl. Most of the others had their eyes on the harbor, too. The water seemed to fascinate them.

The water fascinated Judith, too. She stared at it, shuddered involuntarily. The water looked dark and cold. How easy it would be—!

bearing on the actual value of the stocks.

TALK OF MERGER DANGER REVIVED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Announcement of the merger of the Vacuum Oil company with the Standard Oil company of New York has revived most abruptly here the discussion of increasing growth of the nation's largest business concern, a matter many members of congress regard with considerable anxiety.

Justice department officials said the merger has not been confirmed officially by the administration, but refused to comment further.

The senate was particularly interested in the manner in which the merger might influence the tariff situation. Independent oil dealers have demanded a duty of one dollar a barrel on crude petroleum imported into the country, as protection against the larger concerns which do most of this importing.

Definite Issue

The Standard and other large companies have been made a definite issue in that fight, proponents claiming the big firms will drive the smaller producers out of business if the dollar tariff is not imposed.

The demand, which a month ago was not regarded seriously even by its advocates, has gained considerable momentum in the senate during the last few days and has assumed powerful proportions.

Proponents claim they have lined up 40 votes which is almost enough to carry the senate. First indication of the area Washing. Feb. 22.—Little hope is held for the recovery of former Chief Justice William Howard Taft, seriously ill here from blood and bladder complications, it was indicated today.

Members of the immediate family are expected here soon to join Mrs. Helen Taft Manning, his daughter, and acting head of Bryn Mawr college, who was called again to the bedside yesterday.

His condition, according to attending physicians, is not regarded as immediately critical although he is very weak. Unofficial reports say he has not rested as well as usual for the past few hours.

strength of the forces behind the movement was given yesterday when Senator Sheppard, democrat, Texas, announced he would support it.

Aside from its possible influence on the tariff, the Vacuum-Standard merger attracted considerable attention.

The Montana senators, Walsh and Wheeler, democrats, were outstanding among opponents of "combinations" who attacked it.

Walsh recalled that the New York Standard and Vacuum companies were part of the Standard oil combination dissolved by federal courts in 1901.

"If that merger doesn't constitute a violation of the Sherman act, the act will cease to be of any value," he said.

Wheeler, however, said it made little difference whether the big companies combined or not "so long as all agree to fix the price of gasoline."

"OH WAR" CALLED "NONSENSE"

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Reports of a new oil war as a result of the Standard Oil and Vacuum company merger are "nonsense," Sir Henri Deterding, director general of the Royal Dutch Petroleum company, said today in a ten-minute conversation with the United Press.

When asked his opinion as to whether certain oil companies were trying to obtain a monopoly in Germany, Deterding, who is at St. Macree, replied: "That also is absolute nonsense."

Oral Contract

This reply showed employment of George Armistead and Charles McClendon of Houston of the firm of George Armistead and company at $25 a day and also employment of Paul E. Banning of Washington at $25 a day and expenses from there.

"Isn't your report to the governor a rehash of an article that appeared under the name of Armistead and company and which was written by McClendon in 1927?" asked McGregor.

Lynn said no. That he dictated too much of it himself for it to be that.
