COUNTY DEMO BALLOT IS PREPARED Make-Up Occurs in Chicago Police Department Today

2ND PRIMARY TO BE HELD ON AUGUST 23

Executive Committee Meets This Morning in Eastland

The county democratic executive committee met today at the county court house at Eastland, fixed the order of the names of candidates upon the county ballot, determined upon the assessments against each candidate for paying the expenses of the primary and determined that a second primary would be held on August 23.

The assessments against the candidates and the order of their names upon the ballot was fixed by a committee appointed by County Chairman Ed T. Cox as follows: F. S. Perry, Gorman; Dave Jones; Rising Star; W. N. Compton, Nimrod; L. R. Pierson, Ranger; and A. B. O'Flaherty, Cisco. The order of the ballot was determined by lot, as the law required.

A total of $3,400 was assessed against the candidates for defraying the expenses of the election. Assessments against candidates for county offices ranged from $200 for #### Republican Primary.

The county republican executive committee will meet this evening at Eastland to certify the names of republican candidates for public office in the county and to arrange the order of the ballot for the primary in July. The same law governing the Democratic primary elections governs the republican primaries. This will be the first time since the days of reconstruction following the civil war that Texas will have had a republican primary. It was made mandatory by the heavy vote polled by the republican party in the presidential election in 1928. The democratic and republican primaries will be held on the same day.

F. A. Blankenbecker, of Cisco, is republican county chairman. Precinct chairmen are: Dr. H. B. Tanner, Eastland; Fred Dreinhoffer, Ranger; C. R. Smith, Rising Star; R. L. Cooney, Gorman; Tom Dingler, Carver; and Len Quinn, Desdemona.

It is understood that a republican candidate will be offered for each office in the county. The names of these candidates will be announced after they have been certified this evening.

the offices of county judge, county attorney and county clerk, to $5 for the office of public weigher.

In calling the roll of the 28 precincts it was found that several had not elected precinct chairman to represent the precinct at the county meeting but that several had been selected and sent to the meeting. The members of the committee voted on these representatives and elected them as precinct chairmen.

A motion was made and carried that the county chairman appoint a committee of five men to arrange the ballot, determining the order in which the names of the candidates would appear on the ticket and to assess the candidates for the cost of printing the ballots and other expenses of the primary election.

STORMS AND RAINS CLAIM NINE LIVES

By United Press
Bank full streams and indications of more rainfall threatened scattered parts of Texas today after a week-end of rains and storms that claimed at least nine lives and caused extensive property damage.

Funerals of two mothers, killed by a lightning bolt while they held their babies in their arms were held Sunday afternoon at the homes near O'Donnell in Dawson county, five others injured by the bolt, were recovering today from shock. The mothers, Mrs. Morris Durham, 28, and Mrs. Cora Whitaker, 30, were killed instantly. The injured were neighbors of the Durhams, who had gathered at the home to attend an ice cream supper.

The storm ruined a large portion of crops in Lynn and Dawson counties and killed several head of livestock.

A group funeral was held Sunday at Goree for a family of five that was swept to death in flood waters. Bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Tidwell, their son and daughter and Mrs. Tidwell's mother, Mrs. Gilliland, were recovered Saturday night and Sunday morning nearby their home site. The house was destroyed by the raging waters.

Wichita river and Holiday creek became serious flood meanders Sunday when additional rains swelled the streams, already bank full. Roads in the vicinity were impassable. Travel was disrupted on the Wichita Falls-Archer City highway following a washout. A stretch of Fort Worth-Wichita Falls highway was under water this morning and it was feared that travel between the cities would be impossible. Repair crews were busy today on the Wichita Falls and Southern Trackway which was washed out by the downpours and the work was expected to require several days before traffic could be resumed.

CHARGES ARE HURLED IN TARIFF ISSUE

Republican Leaders Are Accused of "Deceit"

WASHINGTON, June 16.—President Hoover was indirectly charged with making misleading and erroneous statements in defense of the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill, in an unusual attack made in the senate today by Senator Pat Harrison, democrat, Mississippi.

While the bill was on its way to the White House for Mr. Hoover's signature, Harrison charged that the republican leaders, including the President, were practicing "hypocrisy and deceit" to mislead the public about the terms of the measure.

By PAUL R. MALLON
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 16.—President Hoover's public assurance that he will make the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill a law within a few days was received with republican applause and democratic warnings in congress today as preparations were made to adjourn and carry the issue to the polls in the coming congressional campaign.

In a Sunday night statement designed to alleviate any apprehensions which might exist, Mr. Hoover announced he would sign the bill although he did not believe it was perfect. He said he would seek to remedy what he considers its injustices under the flexible provisions which he called "the outstanding step of this tariff legislation."

He said final action in the measure was necessary to stabilize business.

The response from congressmen was immediate. Republican leaders including Chairman Smoot of the senate finance committee expressed their approval of the President's step about which they said they had entertained no doubt.

Democrats including Chairman Joutel Shouse of the democratic national executive committee and Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, announced in behalf of their party that the President had made the tariff a political issue by accepting the bill contrived in a republican congress.

REPUBLICAN LEADERS MAY LEAD TO RETALIATION

LONDON, June 16.—The provisions of the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill are feared in Great Britain more for the possibility that they will lead to retaliatory measures in other nations affecting Britain's exports than for any possible diminution of British exports to the United States.

Political quarters feared other nations, especially in Europe, might be prompted to raise similar tariff barriers, which would have damaging effect on British exports to countries other than the United States.

"PROTECTIONIST MOVE"

PARIS, June 16.—Passage of the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill was viewed here today as a result of domestic over-production unattended by appropriate increase in the exporting power of the American people.

Le Temps, semi-official organ, declared the bill was "the most resolute protectionist move the United States has ever known, and marks a turning point in the economic policy of the American people."

CONFLICTING SENTIMENTS

BERLIN, June 16.—The news of the passage of the American tariff bill was received here with conflicting sentiments of alarm and passive interest.

The majority of German economic observers declared the bill would prove a drawback to international trade. They were joined by many industrialists who complained that the new tariffs would make impossible German exports to the United States.

Still Believes in Fresh Air

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo., June 15.—Fred Skelton, farmer believes in plenty of fresh air and sleeps with his head near an open window.

Last night a lightning shot through the screen and struck his pillow, tearing it to fragments. The bolt took all of Skelton's hair off.

After being unconscious for about an hour, the farmer came to, said he felt "pretty good," and said the experience was not going to keep him from sleeping as near as possible to fresh air.

SOUTHWEST IS HARVESTING WHEAT CROP

Wheat was the unfinished business of the southwest today as the harvest moved in its various stages through the grain belt.

Some farmers looked over broad, untouched fields while mechanics, who have replaced harvest hands, oiled combines. Others, with their wheat in stacks, prepared its movement to market. Elevators were filling with grain, while railroad men pondered problems of transporting it to the markets of the world.

With the harvest well under way in the Texas panhandle and Oklahoma, the hum of the harvester, the clatter of the binder and the roar of the threshing grows louder, edgewise northward day by day. Before the end of the week cutting will be general in Kansas and around July 1 the line will be drawn in Nebraska.

Estimates today indicated that Texas would have a yield of more than 25,000,000 bushels; Oklahoma 32,000,000; Kansas 137,000,000; Missouri 19,500,000, and Nebraska more than 65,000,000 bushels. The five states are expected to produce approximately 278,000,000 bushels.

Approximately 30,000 extra men will be needed for the harvest in these states, government labor officials estimated. While this number is about the same as last year, it is only half the number required before the use of the combine harvester became general.

The binder, however, will still be used in many sections of the grain belt. It has been estimated that 99,000 workers, including the farmers, will harvest 4,500,000 acres with the binder, while 60,000 men will harvest 7,300,000 acres with the combine.

Railroads, elevators, cooperative enterprises and terminal companies have indicated they are prepared to move and store the grain. Kansas City's marketing machinery, grain men are confident will be ready for the load. When the time comes, facilities here are expected to be about the same as last year. At the present rate reduction of stocks, elevators will have about 15,000,000 bushels on hand July 1, grain men say.

Capacity of local regular houses is about 26,000,000 bushels. About 3,000,000 bushels of space will be available soon because of expansions. Other storage facilities, mill elevators and local houses, have a total capacity of about 17,500,000 bushels.

Nearly 102,000,000 bushels of wheat was handled here in 1929.

Bobbitt to Take Charge of Probe

AUSTIN, June 16.—Attorney General R. L. Bobbitt after receiving reports from assistants sent to Pexar county announced that he will take personal charge of an investigation of alleged poll tax frauds in that county. The report reveals that a most serious condition exists. Bobbitt said "I am giving every phrase of the situation my personal attention. I will be able in a few days to announce definitely what action will be taken."

The poll tax frauds were charged in connection with the voting of a recent bond issue in San Antonio. The same poll tax lists unless revised will be used in the state primary and general elections this year.

"The ballot has undoubtedly been polluted in Bexar county," said Bobbitt. "I am attempting to fix the responsibility."

SEEK SEVEN MEN LOST IN SPEED BOAT

All Night Search of Lake Is Carried On

TOLEDO, O., June 16.—All available craft of the Toledo Yacht club cooperated with members of the coast guard today in a search of Lake Erie for seven men—some of them prominent in politics—whose empty speed boat was found drifting late yesterday near Putin-Bay island.

The men set out from Toledo Sunday for Pelee island, 50 miles from here, for an Elks picnic and were last seen when their powerful speed boat raced with an excursion steamer. They outdistanced it and spectators said they were soon lost to sight. Several hours later, however, their boat was found by William Miller, a boatman who said he found three life preservers and a hat about the boat.

Additional mystery was added to the disappearance when weather officials said no disturbances had been reported in the area. Powerful speed boats of the Marlborough coast guard station searched the surrounding waters with searchlights throughout last night in an effort to find some trace of the men.

Those reported aboard the boat when it left Toledo were: Charles H. Nauts, U. S. internal revenue collector in charge of the Toledo district; Herbert Nauts, a brother and an attorney; Franklin Jones, Frank Miller, former city water commissioner to Toledo; Henry Heinkish, assistant engineer of Lucas county; Arthur Krause, and Joan Myers, believed to have been the hired pilot of the boat.

NEWSPAPERS ARE SCANNED BY CANNON

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Bishop James Cannon, Jr. of the southern Methodist church announced today that his attorney is scanning newspaper articles and editorials about him with a view to prosecuting the publishers of those he believes libelous. He said the lawyer already had decided one newspaper published libelous matter.

At the same time Cannon united in an appeal to the senate with Eugene L. Crawford, secretary of the Methodist board of temperance and social service, of which Cannon is chairman, asking that the entire Wickliffe law enforcement program be passed before adjournment.

The bishop's personal statement said: "Bishop James Cannon, Jr., issued a statement that he had consulted counsel with reference to the various cartoons, editorials and alleged news articles published concerning him in various wet and Roman Catholic publications during the past two years, and had examined publications with a view to determining which, if any, of them may be the basis for action for libel, either criminal or civil.

"His counsel already has reached the decision that the Catholic and Times of Buffalo, New York, has published clearly libelous matter. This paper has been the most abusive of all the Roman Catholic papers which have been attacking Bishop Cannon for the past two years.

"The bishop further announced that it would be his purpose to meet all further publications, as well as those which have already been made, as far as counsel may consider them proper grounds for action, with the processes of the law.

"Vicious, cowardly attacks made in the senate and the house of representatives are immune from such prosecution."

The bishop's declaration of warfare on his newspaper critics followed by only a few days of his victory over the committee, which finally ruled he did not have to tell his work in Virginia against former Governor Alfred E. Smith.

Marie Tarrant was riding with her two brothers, Marshall and Billy, when the accident happened about 3:15 p. m. A car in front swerved sharply to the left and to avoid hitting it the Tarrant car swung to the right, striking a mail box and turning over.

Marie Tarrant sustained several cuts and bruises about the face and a head injury, none of which were serious.

HOOVER REAPPOINTS ALEX W. LEGGE

President Hoover has reappointed Alexander W. Legge chairman of the federal farm relief board. Chairman Legge was named a year ago as the big vice of the board. He gave up a $100,000 year position to accept a place that carries with it a salary of $12,000. He was drafted and he accepted. He was drafted because the president thought he knew his man. Legge was born on a farm. He was reared on a farm. He was given a real education. He became a business man and step by step he made his way to the top until he became the president of the International Harvester company, a concern which deals with the farmers of America and whose representatives are in touch with the agricultural classes all the time. Now what will the senate do with the nomination?

Chairman Legge and his policies have been pounded by the United States chamber of commerce. They have been pounded by the great grain and cotton exchanges. They have been hammered vigorously by Julius Barnes and all outstanding individuals who think as Julius Barnes thinks. They have been pounded by senators from the west and the south who insisted that Chairman Legge did not go far enough in granting financial relief to wheat growers and the growers of other staples.

Chairman Legge is a man of action. He is a man of splendid courage. He never takes the back track. He thinks out his problems, or rather the problems of the board, and then he blazes away. His policies may be right, his policies may be wrong, but Legge is one of the outstanding executives of America and his reappointment by President Hoover is taken as a hint that the president endorses the program or policies of the chairman and the members of the federal relief board. After his reappointment had been announced, Chairman Legge said the cotton stabilization corporation would "be ready to do business in a few days." Let us forget the cotton stabilization corporation was set up as an emergency measure to handle the 1929 cotton surplus. He likewise declared that the board will immediately take over the one million to twelve hundred thousand bales now in the hands of the cooperatives. In addition to this he let it be known that the corporation has not yet asked for a specific amount of money from the board, and his opinion is that at least $50,000,000 will be required.

After asserting that the board had no very definite reports on the condition of the 1930 crop, Chairman Legge estimated this year's carry over would range from 1,000,000 to 1,500,000 bales more than the surplus a year ago. He ventured the opinion that such a situation was not nearly as bad as it has been in some years. Cotton growers everywhere are interested in the reappointment of Chairman Legge. Growers of all important farm staples are interested. Now what will the followers of Julius Barnes, including the rank and file as well as the heads of the grain and cotton exchanges of the country, do to prevent the confirmation of Chairman Legge? Of course, the chairman is sitting easy. If the senate refuses confirmation, all he has to do is to return to his old $100,000 a year job. If the senate confirms him, this remarkable ex-president of the International Harvester company will continue to play the game for the cooperatives as he has been playing it since the federal farm board began to function. He is not a quitter; he is not a rubber stamp appointee. He was drafted and given a free hand. He has used the free hand and those who are close to him say that he will continue to hew to the line regardless of where the chips may fall in a political sense.

POPULATION OF A BLACKLAND COUNTY.

Lamar county is one of the early settlements of the Red river section of North Texas. It is a rich agricultural county. Its 1930 population is given as 48,524, or a decrease of 6948. Not many years ago, "back to the farm" was the advice of city experts and welfare workers. "Away from the sticks" was the response in many American states and hundreds of the older settled communities.

CHICAGO PRESSLAND AND GANGLAND.

There is to be a great battle fought between Chicago pressland and Chicago gangland. There is a reward of $55,000 for the slayer of Alfred Lingie, a reporter of 30 years who has been made an immortal and given a worldwide prestige by the gun of an underworld assassin. It goes without saying that 95 per cent of the people of Chicago are law abiding and have no love for the gunman. A huge sum of money offerred as a reward should lead to the capture of the murderer. It is a mistake that there is honor among thieves. It is a greater mistake that there is honor among assassins. There is fear among assassins that they will be betrayed, but fear isn't honor. Now a tip-off will furnish the clue; perhaps he will get the reward, and later along he will be given a ride.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE Shawnee, Oklahoma.

Talbot Patrick, editor of the Goldsboro (N. C.) News-Argus, says: "That isn't it likely dreams never come true until they first have been dreamed?"

In the same way, isn't it likely that our hopes and wishes for ourselves and for our community are not likely to come true half so fast unless we put these hopes and wishes into definite form of words and then work for them?

The first question we were reminded of a couple of days ago when a Goldsboro woman told us it is her hope to make a trip to Alaska and then commented, "I suppose that sounds like a pretty large order." If she does make the trip to Alaska, the chances are ninety-nine out of a hundred it will be because she had been dreaming and hoping and planning for such a trip.

The second question reflects our reaction to a question asked of the president of the Goldsboro Kimanis club, Dr. A. G. Woodward, by J. W. House, president of the Wilson Kiwanis club: "What are your club's objectives for this year?" And several members of the Goldsboro club laughed. We understand why they laughed, how they laughed. It is easy to have objectives, to have both general ideals to be carried out by members of a civic club and to have broad plans for the work of the club and its members in their community. But, "What are your objectives for this year?"

That makes things pretty definite. That question calls for a definite answer of things the club plans. And, when you have many general plans, some of which are slowly working to fruition, still it is hard to speak up and say, "Our objectives for this year are thus-and-so." A question like that calls for a brass-tack answer. Under the circumstances, Dr. Woodward acquitted himself as well as any member of the club could have. But we believe that every member of the club present had driven home to him the need and value of putting objectives for the year into the definite form of words. For, with your objectives definitely set before you, it is far easier to push straight toward them and to attain what you set out to do. The meeting was an excellent lesson for a civic club's members and, incidentally, one from which each of us can draw something of value.

The more definite the form we set to the dreams we have, the more likely those dreams are to come true.

DANCING JUDITH

BY CORALIE STANTON and HEATH HOSKEN
COPYRIGHT 1930 BY CHELSEA HOUSE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Vincent Stornaway, successful portrait painter, takes Bruce Gidson, wealthy financier, to the picturesque Cafe Turc in Greenwich Village to show him the bohemian life of the world of artists. There he introduces him to Judith Grant, beautiful artist's model and dancer, and her friend, Clarissa Morley, known as Chummy, and tells him of Chummy's tragic history. Seven years ago Chummy had loved Alan Steyne, an artist. Steyne had abruptly disappeared, and the shock had uninged Chummy's mind, so that she had been childish in her mental processes ever since. Chummy lives with Judith, who looks after her and supports her. After the two men leave the cafe, Bastien Dumont, another artist, tells Judith that Steyne has come back to New York, and the two arrange a meeting between Steyne and Chummy. Chummy fails to recognize Steyne, however; and Steyne, after giving Judith some money to help care for the girl, takes his leave, telling Judith he hopes to see her again soon.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER III
The next day, about noon, Judy and Bastien Dumont met in the Cafe Turc. Judy had been sitting for the famous Max Dickbread, a rather irritable individual. She was exhausted, and had come for a cup of coffee and some sandwiches made of Italian sausage that Dan always prepared for her. Dumont had a glass of beer before him. He said he had lunched which did not necessarily mean that he had.
"Do you really think he will marry her?" he asked.
"Of course he will marry her!" the girl replied indignantly. "What else could he do? He will pay doctors to make her well, and then he will marry her. If the doctors can't make her well, he will marry her all the same."
"Did he say so?"
"Of course—I mean, it wasn't necessary. He gave me money for her—to spend on nice things. He is going to take her away."
"Did he say so?"
"Of course he must, Bastien. Why should she stay where she is? He is rich, isn't he?"
"I don't think he's exactly rich, but he's well off. He told me about it. When he left here, he was in despair and half dotty for lack of food. He made his way to Italy with a man he knew, and thought he might make a living by copying old masters. There he fell in with an old gentleman, a rich art collector, who took a fancy to him and made him his secretary. They traveled all over the world. The old man died six months ago and left Steyne very comfortably off. I don't think he left him everything he had, but it was quite enough to keep the wolf from the door."

Judy clasped her hands. "How absolutely gorgeous for Chummy!" she breathed. "And, Bastien, he is awfully nice!"
"Easy enough to be nice when you've got money," grumbled Dumont. "Easy to keep young, too. I'm getting near 30, Judy, and in a few years I shan't be young any more; but there's Alan Steyne, looking like a boy, so fresh and fit—and he's older than I am!"
"Oh, Lord, hark at Methusalem!" cried Judy. "Why, sometimes I feel 90. Bastien, you silly owl! And sometimes I feel 16. Actually, I'm 23. That's getting old for a girl, too, you know."

Dumont closed his eyes for a moment with a look of pain. Then he looked at the girl, his face drawn with miserable yearning. "I wish I could do any kind of work that would make me famous and rich," he said feverishly. "Then perhaps you'd listen to me, Judy. I can't expect you to now, although if you'd only marry me, I'd work like a plowboy. I'd simply make them take my work and pay for it, and at least you wouldn't have to slave."
Judy shook her head, and her bright hair glittered under her hat.

"I've told you lots of times, Bastien, that I'm never going to marry until I fall in love. Falling in love must be jolly, and it may make it worth while getting married. From what I've seen of matrimony, it wants something pretty strong to make it worth while!"
A week passed, and Chummy's cold did not get better. She developed a troublesome cough, and her cheeks began to look transparent. Judy was worried, particularly as Alan Steyne did not come again.

Max Dickbread was painting Judy as a Spanish dancer in a sensational work for the Paris salon, and he changed her pose every day. He was a clever artist, but his personality was devastating. Judy could not have put it into words, but he fed on other people's vitality and reduced her, as he said, to a rag.
Judy went for the doctor. He was a queer Irishman with red hair and fiery eyes. His name was O'Shane, and he ran a dispensary for the poor.

He was not very encouraging about Chummy. He said she wanted

"Don't you think you'd better call in some other doctor?" the girl asked.

ed warmth and coddling, and plenty of nourishing food.
Judy bought many little delicacies out of Alan Steyne's gift. Doctor O'Shane had attended Chummy before. As he was leaving, he said to Judy on the landing:
"I think her brain's going. She's more childish than she was."
It was that same day that Chummy started her friend by saying suddenly:
"I feel so queer, Judy! I think something's going to happen to me. It's a horrible feeling, like a lot of brass bands playing in my head!"
Judy sought Dumont. He was her confidant, the one person on whom she could rely. She made him promise to go and see the doctor and tell him all about Chummy.

They met again at the Cafe Turc in the evening.
"Well?" the girl asked breathlessly.

"O'Shane doesn't think anything could be done," he answered. "If she didn't know Steyne at once, he doesn't believe she will ever know him. He says there's no treatment that could cure her. He was rather decent—for him; tried to explain the case to me."
Judy was in despair.
"Has Steyne called again?" Dumont asked.
"No."
"Did he say he would?"
"Yes—I mean, Chummy invited him. Oh, Bastien, that night he was so nice to her! I thought him simply perfect. What can be the matter? Why doesn't he come?"

Dumont had no answer. In his own mind he could think of several reasons. He had not Judy's unshakable faith in humanity—which was indeed something to marvel at, considering how much she had seen of life.

Steyne did come a couple of evenings later. He came laden with fruit and flowers, and to Judy he was like a day in spring. His absence was easily accounted for. He had to go to Maine on business connected with the property his late benefactor had left him.

He came several times that week. Chummy was delighted with him in her placid, "take-everything-for-granted" way. She ordered him about just as she did Judy; but not even his repeated visits struck a single chord of her lost memory.

Judy spoke to Steyne about the doctor one night, as he was leaving. Chummy had not been able to go out yet. The two stood on the landing. Chummy's room was only the pretense of a sitting room, because the bed was hidden behind a rickety screen.

"Don't you think you'd better call in some other doctor?" the girl asked.
There was a note of impatience in her voice. Evidently she was feeling the strain of this unnatural position. Alan Steyne sitting and chatting to Chummy as if they had just met and made friends, and Chummy smiling unaware that her best beloved was by her side—it was a spectacle that got on Judy's nerves.

"It's taking such a time!" she went on. "Aren't there better doctors than O'Shane? Can't something be done to make her memory come back and to make her know you? And she's been feeling queer lately. She's told me so. Oh, do something, Mr. Steyne! It must be dreadful for you—this waiting. It's driving me silly—what must it be doing to you?"

Alan Steyne did not answer immediately. He was looking at Judy. As she gazed at him in her perplexity on behalf of her friend, his eyes held hers, and she found herself flushing hotly and angrily as she realized that at that moment the condition of poor Chummy was far from his mind.

She looked away, furious and ashamed at her own embarrassment. Steyne took her hand.

"Good night, little guardian," he said. "Of course, I'll be only too glad to get another opinion, but I'll see this man O'Shane first."
The result was that a famous specialist came to see Chummy, in consultation with the Irish doctor. He did not give much hope. He said just what Doctor O'Shane had said. There was no treatment to be prescribed. It could only be left to nature. It was quite possible that Miss Morley might recover her memory, but there were no means known to science which could accelerate the process.

"So you're just where you were," said Dumont, when Judy told him at the Cafe Turc on the same night.
"Yes, except that of course Mr. Steyne will take Chummy away now. Her cold's almost well. She wanted to come with me tonight, but I was afraid."

The young artist said nothing. (To Be Continued)

BROOKLYN IS HOLDING LEAD IN NATIONAL

The second inter-sectional series of the 1930 major league season neared its close today, with Brooklyn holding a 3-1-2 games lead in the national league and Philadelphia leading by a bare half game in the American league.

After today's national league games, the third inter-sectional series will begin tomorrow with the Western clubs at home against the Easterns. The present Western invasion, in the American league will not end until tomorrow, with the Eastern teams returning home to oppose the western clubs again Wednesday and Thursday.

Five errors helped the St. Louis Cardinals win their first game of the season from Brooklyn Sunday, 9-4, although the Robins made 12 hits, one more than the Cards.

Frank Hogan's home run with two on base enabled the New York Giants to beat the Chicago Cubs, 7 to 4. Gabby Hartnett made four hits in four times at bat for the Cubs.

George Sisler's double drove in the winning run as the Boston Braves beat the Cincinnati Reds, 4 to 3.

Altho Babe Ruth hitting home run No. 21 and Lou Gehrig hitting No. 16 and 17 the New York Yankees pounded out a 7 to 19 victory over the Cleveland Indians before 33,628 persons, the largest crowd that ever saw a game in Cleveland.

Leity Grove pitched the Philadelphia Athletics back into the American league lead with a 10-1 victory over Detroit, allowing but four hits.

Sam West allowed Oscar Melillo's single to get by him in the ninth and the player circled the bases with the winning run as the St. Louis Browns beat Washington 3 to 2.

No other games were played Sunday.

TEXAS LOOP TO DECIDE ON SPLIT SEASON

Owners of Texas league franchises will meet early this week to decide whether or not the 1930 season will split in half again this year, with the two winners meeting in a special series to decide the loop champion.

Wichita Falls, leading the league by a margin of nine games, already have virtually clinched the pennant for the first half.

Financial reverses, brought on by lack of interest in the race this year, probably will lead owners to split the season and attempt to recuperate their fortunes during the second half.

The Houston Buffs, in second place, gained a whole game on Wichita Falls Sunday by defeating Dallas in a double-header, 4 to 3 and 6 to 6, while the Spudgers and San Antonio were idle because of rain.

The Buffs scored the winning run of the first game in the last half of the tenth inning, counting twice in the ninth to tie the score at three- all. In the aftermath, Payne, Houston pitcher, held the Dallas nine to a single hit.

Beaumont defeated Fort Worth for the second consecutive tie, 4 to 1. Hits and gave up only two bases on balls.

Ralph Stein, Waco right hander, pitched the Cubs to their first shutout victory of the season when he held Shreveport to seven hits and won, 5 to 0. Four of the Waco runs came from homers, one of them by Stein.

Games today
 Dallas at Houston (played as part of double header Sunday)
 Fort Worth at Beaumont.
 Wichita Falls at San Antonio.
 Shreveport at Waco.

55 to One Shot Wins American

CHICAGO, June 16.—Turf fans at Washington park were looking carefully at the "long shots" today as they discussed the victory of Reveille Boy, a 55 to 1, bet in Saturday's running of the $50,000 American Derby.

Names of owners received more than usual attention, because Reveille Boy was entered in the Derby by a retired grocer from Memphis named J. D. Best. The pun-makers pointed out that the Best colt won.

Gallant Knight responded to his ranking as favorite by finishing second and Benefol, a filly, was third.

AIMEE GLAD TO PAY CUSTOMS SHE DECLARES

NEW YORK, June 16.—Aimee McPherson, clamped her turkish fez over her golden hair today and announced she would be delighted to pay a customs fine of $277 because "I hear times are pretty bad in this country."

The California evangelist, who has just returned from a pilgrimage to the Holy Land, appeared surprised when she was told that she had an engagement with customs officials tomorrow morning over a little matter of some articles that were found in her trunk, but not in her declaration list of dutiable goods.

"Really, I'm amazed," said Sister McPherson, donning a turkish robe and a fez when she saw photographers edging into her hotel room. She swept a heap of newspaper clippings off the bed, patted her hair into place and resumed.

"The customs men were so nice. I had no idea this was going to happen. All I brought in that I didn't declare were a pair of old satin slippers that were badly scuffed and two pairs of pajamas which I bought for $2.97 in Constantinople. And, oh, yes, this hat which I bought in Budapest for $3.97 to save my good hats."

She was asked about a French gown which the customs men said to have found.

"French gown, indeed," snapped Sister McPherson. "Remember I am an evangelist. I didn't even look in a French store but I suppose everybody will think I bought a French gown. The next time I come in I'm going to declare everything even if it is worn to rags."

Photographed
 She wrapped an embroidered sash around her waist, slipped a turquoise-studded silver necklace on her throat and deserted reporters for an instant while photographers got their pictures.

It was noted that Sister McPherson was considerably thinner than before she started for the Holy Land. Mention also was made of the fact that her hair, once lengthy and titian, had been shortened and turned into a gleaming gold by the burning sun of the Near East. When she was asked concerning her hair, Mrs. McPherson laughed.

"Nonsense," she said. "My hair has always been the same, and it is not bobbed."

After her tete-a-tete with "those nice customs men" tomorrow, Mrs. McPherson plans to leave for California and Angeles Temple.

There is much work to be done there, she said, and she looks forward to seeing "my people again." Temple bells will ring, an airplane will strew roses on her train, 30 couples are waiting for her to marry them and there won't be a customs official in sight.

COMPLETE TRAINING

CHICAGO, June 16.—Otto Von Porat and W. L. "Young" Stribling completed hard training today for what Chicago expects to be the best heavyweight battle it has witnessed since the night Jack Dempsey fought Gene Tunney the second time. Stribling has been the favorite in the betting.

eastern sections where Bird creek flowed over its banks in the lowlands of Pawhuska. Damage in the various sections of the state was expected to total $300,000.

No loss of lives had been reported today as the crest of flood waters passed in most sections.

A 6.94 inch rainfall in Oklahoma City caused more than $150,000 damage to the business and residential sections. Crops along the Canadian river drainage basin were destroyed in many sections.

Railroad tracks were washed out and traffic was disrupted.

Oil field activity in the Oklahoma City field was at a stand-still. Crews worked Sunday and last night repairing boilers that had been covered by flood waters. The rain storm started Saturday night with a cloudburst at El Reno, the storm moved down the Canadian river drainage basin and extended to the Washita river basin to the south. At Oklahoma City the water spilled over the banks and inundated the lowlands. The greatest damage in the city was done, however, when the heavy waterfall overflowed storm sewers and turned streets into rivers. More than 250 automobiles were stranded, a count showed Sunday. Flooded Bird creek at Pawhuska sent about 300 negroes fleeing from their homes. The crest was passed there today, reports said. The Caney and other north-eastern streams were also at flood stage last night but no considerable damage was anticipated as skies cleared over the area.
