Two Men Victims in Crossing Tragedy Near Eastland

LIMITED HITS AUTO; FATHER AND SON DIE

Crash Occurs 2 Miles East of City at 5:15 o'Clock p. m.

EASTLAND, Feb. 4.—John Foster, 55, and his son Rufus Foster, 25, were instantly killed at 5:15 o'clock Tuesday afternoon when the car in which they were riding was struck by the westbound Sunbeam Special of the Texas and Pacific railway at a crossing two miles east of Eastland.

Rufus had been working as a pool dresser on a well near the crossing where the accident occurred and his father had gone to the well to bring him back to Eastland when they were killed. The car was completely demolished and wreckage was scattered for a distance of several hundred yards from the tracks.

The bodies were taken to an undertaking company's parlor in Eastland immediately following the accident. The two Fosters live near Flatwoods about four miles south of Eastland. The elder Foster is survived by his wife and five children, one of whom is Carl Foster, captain of the Eastland Mavericks during the past football season. The younger Foster was unmarried. Funeral arrangements had not been completed this morning.

RELATIVES LIVE HERE

A niece and two nephews of John Foster live in Cisco and will attend the funeral services for Mr. Foster and his son, which will probably be held at Flatwoods tomorrow. They are Mrs. J. A. Woodward, James Foster and Hayward Foster. J. A. Woodward is city garbage contractor.

Ciscoans Attend Penney Banquet

At the evening—for a consideration—and made his first attack on the auditory nerves of Iowa. Even if there had been no food, all, no dancing and no club-house, the three suave and smiling gentlemen in their startling combinations of second-hand operative costumes garnered heaven knew how many dollars in the evening. Even Ginger felt stirring of her already excited blood at sight of them.

It was at Bard's suggestion that they adhered exclusively to their native tongue, answering every word addressed to them with a torrent of eloquent, incomprehensible

NINE DEAD IN DISASTER TO ENGLISH PLANE

PLYMOUTH, Eng., Feb. 4.—A Royal air force plane was wrecked at Plymouth sound today and 8 of the 12 men aboard were drowned. Another man, critically injured in the crash, died a few minutes later.

Three men were in a hospital critically injured. The plane crashed when the pilot, apparently confused by bright sunlight on the water, misjudged the landing surface.

An explosion wrecked the craft which sank and trapped the men in the submerged cabin from which only four were able to escape. One of the dead was an officer.

WEATHER

West Texas: Mostly cloudy with rain in extreme west portion tonight. Cloudy Thursday, local rains.

East Texas: Increasing cloudiness tonight, cloudy Thursday, becoming unsettled in west portion.

Doomed Woman and Her Son

BROCK OWEN IS CHARGED UNDER HABITUAL ACT

Brock Owen, who was arrested in Port Worth January 24 when he and Luther Helms were found in an automobile alleged to have been stolen from the show rooms of the Leville-Maher Motor company of Ranger, has been indicted by the grand jury under the habitual criminal act on five counts.

The indictments returned against both Owen and Helms are for the same offenses except that Owens is indicted under the habitual criminal act under which he will receive a life sentence if convicted on any one of the five counts, while Helms is indicted under the subsequent conviction act which carries a maximum penalty for the felony for which he is tried.

The two men are in the Eastland county jail under indictments charging: "That on or about January 16, 1931 they did by force, threats and fraud, break and enter a house occupied by Morris Leville and take personal property valued at more than $50." In Owens indictment it is stated that prior to the act under which he was indicted he had received a conviction on July 5, 1927, in the 91st district court on a charge of burglary and was subsequently sentenced. The other indictments stated that the men are alleged to have stolen a car on January 16 from Morris Leville and on the same date took a car belonging to W. A. Parrish; that on January 23 they appropriated, for their own use personal property belonging to Will Gattis, including 35 pounds of English walnuts, 24 cartons of cigarettes, one radio, 10 boxes of cigars, 7 buckets of lard, 2 pieces of bacon, one pair of trousers, one sweater, one coat and 10 pairs of gloves. The last of the five indictments charge the men with burglary of the store belonging to Will Gattis and taking personal property.

CANCELLATION OF CONTRACTS RECOMMENDED

Grand Jury Advises Abrogation of Pritchard Agreements

EASTLAND, Feb. 4.—In a report made to Judge George L. Davenport, the 91st district court grand jury, which recently adjourned, recommends that certain contracts made by the county commissioners court with Ed S. Pritchard & Co. and with Ed S. Pritchard and W. J. Herrington be cancelled, giving as the reason for such recommendation that the contracts are too indefinite as to the compensation to be paid. Pritchard is former county judge of this county and Herrington is a former tax assessor. The contracts referred to are for collecting delinquent taxes and for gathering data for use by the county in fixing the taxable value of public utilities and oil companies.

Compensation paid for making of a certain map for use in connection with the property valuation work has been declared by the grand jury to have been far in excess of the value of the services rendered. The county paid $4,000 for the map.

No Reflection In submitting its recommendations on the Pritchard contracts, the grand jury stated that it wished it understood that no reflection on the integrity of any member of the county commissioners court was meant.

Following is the grand jury's report: The State of Texas, County of Eastland, Ninety-first District Court, January 31, 1931.

To the Honorable George L. Davenport, Presiding Judge: We, the grand jury, desire to make this our final report, after having been in session at intervals during the term for a period of 12 days and having examined a total of 206 witnesses, have returned into court 80 true bills of indictment, most of which were felony offenses.

We desire to mention the excellent cooperation our county attorney, Joe H. Jones, and his two assistants, Grady Owen and Willbourne B. Collier, have given us. Our work has been greatly facilitated by their efficient work, both in preparing cases for submission to this body, and in their assistance in the examination of witnesses and advice with reference to proper procedure, and the law with reference to offenses. We would also commend the splendid cooperation our county attorney, Sheriff Virge Foster and staff. They have given us all information possible in investigating crimes, and in order that the public might know we have found that during our session they have made numerous arrests on violations of the liquor laws. They have raided 11 places, confiscated five stills, including a great volume of intoxicating liquors, beer, gin and imported wines, all of which goes to show that the liquor laws are being violated to excess. This, of course, can only be eliminated by the close observance of the laws by the citizenry as a whole; in so far as the law is concerned we have plenty of laws. What we need is co-operation of the public with the sheriff in apprehending those guilty and with the county attorney in the enforcement thereof, and bring about a condition of law enforcement that Eastland county can justly be proud of.

Burglary Offense We would call attention of the good citizens of this county to the offense of burglary and petty pilfering and stealing of all kinds among the children in sections of the county. Some of the youths are too young to be handled by the laws of our state. The number of complaints called to our attention makes it conclusive in our minds that this very deplorable condition must in some way be stopped, and we would report that there is only one way to make any progress to a betterment of these conditions is through the help of the parents of these children. If not through the parents, or those closely associated with

CRIPPLED SALESMAN BURIED ALIVE AFTER BEING TORTURED IN CEMETERY BY HOODLUMS

CHICAGO, Feb. 4.—George Wittbrod, 34, a crippled salesman, was rescued today from a box coffin in which he was placed by seven men who kidnaped him, beat him, let him hang for an hour from a cross in cemetery and then buried him alive.

A farmer, passing the cemetery before daybreak, heard stifled moans and called police. Wittbrod's coffin was found in a deep ditch where he had been tossed after a night of torture unequalled in the history of Chicago crime.

The salesman said he was on his way home from a pool room late last night when the seven men seized him in an alley and knocked him unconscious. They taunted him when he awoke in an automobile with seven men and told him they were taking him for a "ride" he said. His feet and hands were tied.

Hanged on Cross They took him to All Saint's cemetery, he said, he was dragged from the automobile and suspended on a high cross. He was left hanging there and as his body became numb from exposure the hoodlums watched and laughed.

They were leaving, he told when he managed to jerk one hand free. One of the men saw his move and called the others back. Seeing the rough box near by the gang leader suggested they take Wittbrod down from the cross and bury him alive.

He was cut down, placed in the box, his hands and feet retied and a burlap sack placed over his head. The lid of the box was nailed down, the box hoisted onto a convenient wheelbarrow.

Nearby was a half dug grave which grave diggers had left unfinished last night. An attempt was made to force the rough coffin into the grave but it would not fit when laid horizontally. It was stood on end in the grave while the men debated whether to get a shovel and dig the hole bigger.

The men Wittbrod said, finally removed the box from the grave, fastened it to the back of their automobile, started away at rapid speed and cut the box loose. The coffin rolled down the roadway into the ditch where Wittbrod was found face downward in the box, half dead of the treatment he had received.

WIFE SNEERED AT WORK

SEATTLE, Feb. 4.—His wife sneered at his occupation, and openly ridiculed him before their friends, so Philip J. Fowler sought and obtained a divorce. His wife, Mrs. Erna Kahn Fowler, is a school teacher, while Fowler is a hair dresser. She refused to accompany him here from California when he obtained a permanent position at permanent waving.

School Wants Trophy Back

Wednesday evening, February 11, from 10:30 to 11 p. m. (Eastern Standard Time) Dr. West will read in the Grantland Rice period over station WEAF and network from New York.

The Rangoon club, winners of trophies of the sort won in past games with the Lobos. So far as the high school here is concerned these trophies are Ranger's and belong in the Ranger trophy case. Cisco feels that Lobos are proud possessors of rival schools.

For the same reasons the Lobos prize trophies won in competition with Ranger teams, and the high school wants its football back. The Cisco school does not feel that this vandalism expresses the Ranger school's attitude but attributes the act to poor sportsmen who are to be found in almost every community, unfortunately, even in this particular one.

STORY TRUE, VANDERBILT'S LETTER SAYS

Copyright 1931 by United Press. LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4.—"Sure, the story is true," Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., said in a letter received today, regarding the Butler-Mussolini incident.

The former publisher, writing a close friend in Los Angeles, said that a visit he had made with Premier Benito Mussolini in 1926, formed the basis for assertions made by General Smedley D. Butler.

Vanderbilt for the first time disclosed himself as the source of Gen. Butler's information to the effect that Mussolini's automobile killed a child and moved on without stopping.

Quake-Stricken City Ordered Evacuated

AUCKLAND, New Zealand, Feb. 4.—The extent of disaster caused by Tuesday's earthquake was indicated today by the first report of organized relief forces which invaded the ruined cities of Hawkes Bay region.

With the death toll in three of the stricken cities placed at about 431 and with other regions unreported, a general order was issued for evacuation of the flourishing city of Napier, famous resort town on the eastern coast of North Island.

The evacuation was ordered carried out within two days due to the breakdown of sewage facilities and the fear of authorities that an epidemic would start unless the inhabitants leave at once.

GAS CONSUMERS COMPLAINING OF HIGH BILLS

RANGER, Feb. 4.—Gas bills for the past month that are equal or almost equal to the bills for January a year ago have provoked a flood of protests and complaints from the citizens of Ranger.

The month just ended was one of the mildest Januaries in the history of this section while January 1930, was the coldest in 30 years.

Yet one citizen reports that his gas bill for last month was $19.90 as compared to $18.60 for January a year ago. Numerous citizens declare that their bills for last month are almost as great as for January of 1930, in many instances there being only a dollar's difference.

In January of last year, there were two days when the temperature fell below zero—the first time since 1899. One morning the temperature dropped to three degrees below zero, and some residents declared it was even lower than that. There were 14 days in which the average mean temperature was freezing or below.

For almost paralyzed traffic on the highways for several days. People could not walk with safety on the sidewalk here. For two weeks many houses were without running water as the pipes were frozen.

In contrast to the conditions of January, 1930, there was only one snow last month. It is doubtful if any water pipes have frozen for many householders have not even found it necessary to cut off the water a single time this winter.

In fact, it has been probably the mildest January in 30 years—in contrast to last January which was the coldest in 30 years.

Yet one business establishment reports its bill for last month was $50.40 as compared to $52.80 for January a year ago. In 1930, the stoves were kept going all night so the building would be warm for the workers the next day. This year, the weather has been so pleasant that, even during the daytime, there have been many hours when all stoves were turned off.

The situation at Ranger, as reported above, is similar to that in Cisco where a multitude of complaints have been received by the local gas company because of what were declared excessive bills for the period covered by the last readings. Although the month just past was extremely mild compared with the same period of a year ago many consumers reported their gas bills were in excess of the bills for the same period.

A number of consumers reported that the bills for gas used at their residences were from one or two dollars to four dollars above their bills for January a year ago while reports from business houses in many instances said that their bills were correspondingly higher.

Since uniform complaints of this condition have been received from over the oil belt the suggestion has been advanced that the quality of the gas supplied the local distributing agencies during the period might have been poor causing excessive consumption.

ROBBERY AT PAMPA TODAY NETS $1,500

Hastily Formed Posse Holds One Man for Identification

PAMPA, Feb. 4.—Two bandits held up the First State bank of Alameda, 35 miles south of here, and escaped today with $1,800 after seriously wounding Jim Bryant, 55, when he failed to understand their command to hold up his hands.

The bandits entered the bank when it opened at 9 a. m. today and ordered E. D. Hendrick, cashier, and Miss Jennie Sherrod, his assistant, to get down on the floor.

While they were scooping the money into a flour sack, Bryant walked into the bank. One of the men commanded him to put up his hands.

Eyraud, who is almost deaf, failed to comprehend the situation. He asked the bandit to repeat the command. The robber fired, the bullet penetrating Bryant's abdomen.

Bryant was taken to a Clarendon hospital where physicians said he would recover.

A quickly organized posse of deputies and citizens under the leadership of Sheriff Lon L. Blanspach began a search throughout the district for the two bandits. All highways are being watched closely.

One man was found near Alameda by the side of an overturned coupe. Posse members returned him to Alameda for identification.

BANKER FOOLS ROBBERY

MEXIA, Feb. 4.—Two unmasked bandits attempted to hold up the Oakwood State bank of Oakwood near here at 11:45 a. m. today but were frightened away when R. R. Wylie, vice-president and cashier shot at the pair from his desk.

The bandits fled from town in an automobile with a posse trailing close behind. They went in the direction of Buffalo.

Wylie was working at his desk he saw the bandits approach L. L. Hall, assistant cashier. After firing one shot he followed the pair to the street and fired again as they entered their automobile. Wylie believes his second shot struck one of the bandits.

SECY. WILBUR CHANGES HIS MIND

Secy. Wilbur of the department of the interior does not subscribe to the doctrine that "consistency is the virtue of a fool." It was early in the month of January that Secy. Wilbur declared a tariff on foreign crude would lead to the financial ruin of the small operators. Now the drive of the independents have gained support from Secy. Wilbur. He is not for a tariff. He is for a half way embargo. This is his attitude: "It seems to me that the evident need is proration of imports under the guidance of some fact finding body such as the federal trade commission."

Calvin Coolidge while president dominated the federal trade commission. President Hoover named the present federal trade commissioners. It is likely they will recognize their master's voice. President William Green of the American Federation of Labor and the heads of the railroad brotherhoods are demanding "a legislative wall against the flow of oil from abroad." Ralph Arnold, a very noted engineer of California, appeared before the senate commerce committee and said he believed there was enough oil in the United States to meet the nation's needs for 500 years at the rate of the present consumption of one million barrels annually.

Senator Samuel Shortridge, republican of California, has a bill pending for a tariff of one dollar a barrel on crude oil imports. Senator Capper, republican of Kansas, has a bill pending proposing a limitation of 16,000,000 barrels annually on oil imports. Senator Capper's bill has the endorsement of the labor representative and the California engineer and petroleum expert. By a large majority the Texas house of representatives resolved for a tariff on foreign crude.

OLD AGE PENSION BILL.

Enactment of old age insurance legislation will be urged in the Texas senate and house of representatives. Senator C. A. Dill, (d), of Washington, is leading the fight for old age insurance in the American congress. There are many senators who are friendly to the measure. In his address arguing for the enactment of the measure the senator from Washington said no movement before the country is more worthy of support than the movement that provides the comforts of life for the aged poor. Declaring 15 state governors have urged such legislation, the western senator said experience in the states which have adopted it have shown it cost no more than the county poorhouse system. Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York is a powerful advocate of the system.

Bills have been prepared by Texans who are behind the movement. Above the surface all is harmony under the big dome. Under the surface the factions are preparing for battles royal of a legislative nature. Think of a lineup on the one hand of the oil companies and the passenger and freight bus companies with the railroads on the other fighting for pipeline legislation which will give greater protection to the rail common carriers of the southwest. There are wise ones who say that it may happen.

WILL ROGERS' TRIUMPHAL MARCH

Will Rogers is an apostle of glad tidings, the friend of the dog in the ditch, the laugh-maker whose name is a household word in America and an idol of the millions in the 48 American states. His Houston audience rolled up $8500 for the drought relief fund. His appearances thus far have netted $8500 at Houston; $2600 at Austin; $6353 at San Angelo; $2000 at Abilene; $3856 at Dallas; $2000 at Beaumont, and Breckenridge, contributed $2100 to the fund. More than $10,000 was contributed to the drought relief fund, the grand total to a magnificent sum.

There is this ace of optimism who's valuable time to the cause of the outer. In addition to this because cities, his wife sent a check for $1000. More power to his voice and may he live to be as old as the Arab who passed his 110th birthday just the other day and was in quest of his 40th wife. Oklahoma should be proud of its distinguished son and the American Indians prouder still of the thousand per cent American who has not only climbed Alpine heights of fame and fortune but has won the admiration of the American people.

section of their rights, in many instances of disagreement between the railroads and their employees or between other groups or interests which serve the public. From the standpoint of the public, neither the railroads nor the truck and bus lines should be put out of business. Both are performing a service that is essential in modern transportation, and both have a right to perform that service under conditions which will enable them to earn profits. But under present conditions the truck and bus lines enjoy an advantage over the railroads that is also disadvantageous to the public; and the problem before legislators is to equalize the situation so that this handicap may be removed from the railroads without doing injury either to the motor lines or to the public. Admittedly it is a very difficult problem.

The public is interested in securing safe and rapid transportation at a minimum of cost. It is interested in preserving the railroads because they are essential to the operation of the transportation system. It is interested in the continued operation of truck and bus lines for the same reason. But it is also interested in regulation of the motor lines so that the highways of the state may be used with safety and economy, and this phase of the problem has not been given the attention it merits. No matter what one may think of the economy or speed of motor bus or truck transportation, it must be admitted that the prior right to the use of the highways belongs to the public as a whole. This means that trucks or buses which use the highway should in the first place be required to pay a reasonable share of the cost of their construction and maintenance, and should be required to use the highways in such manner as to promote the safety of other vehicles that are used on the highways. Between the first of last September and the first of January, 114 persons were killed by motor trucks on the highways of Texas. The railroads of Texas have not killed that many people in ten years. Moreover, the operation of heavy trucks over the highways destroys the roads; and the unregulated use of motor trucks in the transportation of freight destroys industrial investments in many inland towns and cities, to the hurt of the public.

These are some of the things to be kept in mind as one thinks about the question of regulating the motor truck and bus lines. It isn't a question of protecting the railroads against competition, or of destroying legitimate investments in transportation lines operating over the highways. It is a question of reconciling the conflicting interests of the railroads and the truck and bus lines in such manner as to preserve the rights of the public as a whole. —Brownwood Bulletin.

Summer Resort Liba H Council Meeting

Arrangements were made for a picnic in blue tweeds and Mrs. Dodge Joane in pirate blue with bright figured scarf. Mrs. Walker, wife of New York's mayor, also accentuated her garb with red, a feather of that color in her hat and a scarf making bright play against a blue turtleneck.

Brighter colors were predicted as the weather turned very chilly at night. The Pacific breeze made us use blankets.

At daylight the Sikorsky flew over the ocean. As we rose, we could see great sand beds on the St. Elena peninsula. These beds are formed by the natives carrying up buckets of ocean water and pouring the water over the ground to let it evaporate and leave the salt. Cameras are forbidden in most South American countries so we hid ours when we glided down at Guayaquil for custom's inspection and to retail.

From the air, Guayaquil looks most attractive and typically Spanish. It has a golf course, race track and several parks and plazas. It seemed a progressive city.

Leaving there we followed the river out to sea and headed southward. An enormous surf was hammering the coast of Ecuador. I've been told that the surf usually is 15 feet high.

We make our first landing in Peru after two hours and twenty minutes of flight. A Peruvian civil guard acts as customs official. The town is Talara, oil center of Peru. It reminds us of Signal Hill, California, where oil derricks are as thick as trees. We transfer to a tri-motored plane for the Lima trip.

The country from Talara to Lima is the most interesting and beautiful that I have ever seen. A complete, new picture is unfolded every minute. Miles of barren country, river valleys, extinct volcanoes, solid rock and sand constantly are revealed.

Lima and its seaport, Callao, are enveloped in clouds. We fly over Callao, San Lorenzo Prison Island and follow new paved roads to Lima, ten miles inland. We land eight miles from Lima and pass through the beautiful Miraflores, on our way to the city.

Down at Lima on schedule—two days from Cristobal, Panama.

For GINGER'S SAKE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Life was never dull with Ginger. Telliver at that of Ginger got her idea. This she suggested a for Country Club to save the anger set of Red Thrush, Iowa, in utter boredom. It was to be a club—no parents, no babies, accordingly Ginger, whose father a minister bore those steps, the former Phil Van Doorn, both wealthy and indulgent, chased the Mill Rush farm, a acre tract with an old house on which she proceeded, with the stance of her friends, to over- and furnish.

Red Thrush seized the idea with his passion. One day an artist called to do a portrait of Ginger exchange for a meal. After he shaved off his beard, Ginger and to her amazement that he both young and good looking. He had talent, he had studied Paris, and his name was Bard.

Ginger thought it would be a idea if Bard remained a white Thrus. She would see that get enough commissions for portraits, which would be better than hobnobbing through the country, and she could do the mural decorations at the new club house. So she her stepmother to prevail on her to accept an invitation to Bard at the Tollivers'.

Bard thought "Joie de Vivre" would be a good name for the club, was adopted. And he thought it would be splendid if they could get Nico to Calleno from Chicago. For Nico was handsome and he could cook and sing and play a guitar. He would make a dandy addition to the club.

There would be a knockout on the coming night, for which a dinner was planned. So he sent for Nico. But on the morning of the dinner there arrived at the Tollivers not one Latin youth, but what seemed an army of them. Little Nico was a musician, and Nico could cook. And Benito could sing. And how! Nico could not sing, it seemed, and they had to sing in his place. They would sing for their board. So they were stalled at the club.

That evening, at the dance, Bard began to realize he was falling in love with Ginger. And Ginger felt the same way. It was a wonderful evening for everyone.

DW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Handing had been announced nine o'clock—that in itself a big innovation in a community where six is the favorite hour for dancing, and where within an hour or so afterward the average resident is willing to call it a day and go to bed.

It was not surprising that he belted doubly by their own determination to miss nothing, and the insistence of parents who considered 7:30 the proper hour for a children's party, the upper and prep school crowd was necessary on of the tables reserved to them.

And those same parents, he it seemed to their shame, had referred to the unworthy expedient of having the youngsters out, as a legitimate excuse to obtain a glimpse of the goings-on at the club that night.

By eight o'clock every reservation had been taken up, and Benito was figuring that there was no use waiting an hour when they were willing to begin parting with their money at once, and he turned Angelo loose at the ball rolling.

He released the three waiters who were employed at the Hotel Grand the evening—for a considerable time—and made his first attack on the auditory nerves of Iowa.

Even if there had been no food and no dancing and no club, the three suave and smiling waiters in their startling combinations of second-hand operative costumes garnered heaven knew how, would have stamped the evening with the ineffaceable hallmark of success. Even Ginger felt a twinge of being already excited at sight of them.

It was at Bard's suggestion that they adhered exclusively to their native tongue, answering every word addressed to them with a torrent of eloquent, incomprehensible words which amounted to no argument in return, and at the same time lent an international flavor that Red Thrush had not before experienced.

Also, as Bard aptly observed, it would be to condone the service, which was not always what it might have been. One who ordered soup received spaghetti, one who would have crackers and cheese was obliged to be content with ginger ale and fruit cookies, and so matter! All protests were mooted in the laughing of idiomatic, rhythmic, good-natured Italian.

Out by the gate Ben Brooks held a court with his friends, although crowded just a trifle for honor. By 11:30, the merrymakers were largely dependent for transportation to and from this place of joy, while upon Ben devolved merely the dubious delight of bouncing the undisciplined.

"Ain't that Mussolini got lungs now," said Ben admiringly.

"If all Eye-talians got lungs like that," said Ivy Ford, "they ain't got no call to waste money on battleships. They can go to war and sing their enemies to death."

"I bet they was Eye-talians that yelled down the walls of Jericho like it says in the Bible," opined Gar Haven critically.

"Don't say nothin' 'bout the Bible on this ranch or Ben'll have to bounce you off that rock on your bean," said Ivy Ford. "This here is a worldly institution and one of iniquity just like that Mount Marty in Paree, and the less said about the Bible and such the better."

The youth of that particular corner of southeastern Iowa was taking itself to in good earnest that sweet May night. The mere fact that the twin inhibitions of parentage and pastorate had been torn asunder was sufficient to loose the floodgates of their surging exuberance.

On the whole, no one in the world had a higher regard for the ministry than Ginger. Ella, she having by her own admission practiced it since the day of her birth, her father more often than not being referred to as "Ginger's help." But as a social asset she was beginning to find it something of a liability. As she explained to Bard apologetically, not wishing him to feel that she cherished any real disloyalty to the profession in which she was born, bred and had her being, "to have some one interrupt right at the climax of one of my most unprintably Freudian repartees to ask father to speak a few words on this or that, or return thanks, or lead in prayer, takes all the savor out of my salt."

But on the night of the formal opening dance, the Joie de Vivre justified its existence. There were no preachers to ask a blessing on the spaghetti and ginger ale. There were no drooping infants fatly fingering the tinsel tassels of the evening wraps. There were no paternal smiles and no maternal nudges to express a smug and admiring approval, to suggest a courtesy or curb an impulse.

"Let the spaghetti be unconfin'd!" exclaimed Ginger.

It was at Bard's suggestion, he being rather better versed in the doings of Bohemia than the rest of them, that now and then Pietro himself, in crisp, enveloping white apron and jaunty cap, should fare forth among the guests to serve them with fresh spaghetti hot from a huge bowl. It was upon one of these errands, when Bard was giving him a whispered word of instruction, that Pietro got his face well behind the spaghetti bowl to whisper a query of his own.

"Uh—how about a little—uh—something extra—in your ginger ale?" he suggested.

"Have you got it?" ejaculated Bard with a surprise that was not simulated.

"Gad! Sure I got it!"

Bard looked interested, hesitated doubtfully. "I don't know," he said. "You go on out to the kitchen and wait for me. I'll come out there. Excuse me, Eddy, could I speak to you a minute?"

The two men moved away from the table, conferred in whispers, moved slowly toward the kitchen.

"Do you suppose the girls would like a little?" suggested Bard.

"Gosh, no. Why, those girls still think the fruit of the vine means jelly!" ejaculated Eddy.

"They were close to the kitchen entrance."

"How long has that bird been in town?" he asked.

"Just today. Got here this morning."

"Pretty quick work. Where do you suppose he got hold of it?"

A sight of them the still Pietro produced a ginger ale bottle and a couple of cups. "Say when," he snickered.

"Where'd you get it?" demanded Eddy. "It's not at all bad—though I'm no judge."

"Oh, you always come across it," said Pietro evasively. "Pretty good, yes?"

"Have another," suggested Bard. "You're not peddling this around in there, are you?"

"Who, me?" was the indignant rejoinder. "Me, I'm a cook. Say, I'm no bootlegger. I got this for my own use. You're my friends, ain't you? Friends of little Nico, and all. Have another?"

"No thanks. Put it away and keep it out of sight."

"And if we catch you passing it around the crowd in there we'll turn you over to the sheriff. This state is dry."

"Yeh?" said Pietro with an interested grin.

As they made their way back they discussed it. "I don't like it," said Eddy Jackson. "He got hold of it in a quick. We don't work as fast as that here."

"Half of those kids are still in high school, aren't they?" asked Bard uneasily.

"Yes, and Ginger's responsible for this. She can call it Ben and Jenky's place all she likes, it's her money doing it and I know it."

"Keep an eye on all three of them," suggested Bard. "They can't get away with anything without our catching them."

Scouting in Troop 1

At 7:30 Saturday morning three scouts: Junior Assistant Scoutmaster Blair Clark, Carl Siddall and Sen-tel Caffery, cranked up the troop truck and journeyed to Breckenridge. Carl Siddall went to take life saving and swimming tests, as Breckenridge is the only near city that has an indoor swimming pool. This makes it possible for boys to take swimming tests during the winter. The other two boys took their swimming tests during the summer.

Below is copy of a letter from Scoutmaster Bane of Troop No. 18: Breckenridge, Texas

Mr. Chisholm, Scoutmaster Troop No. 1, Cisco, Texas.

Dear Scoutmaster:

Three of our troop members met me this morning, bringing test for life saving and swimming for Carl Siddall. The directors at the YMCA were kind enough to allow us to use the pool at 1 o'clock but, it being a very busy day for them, I made the examination. Am sorry that you could not have your signature but he would have to come for more than one day for this. He made a splendid job on his test. He does need a little practice as his wind was a bit short caused partly by the intense heat in the room at that hour. I gave him with the assistance of Scouts Clark and Caffery all that is required for a test of this kind and then some. Am glad to report that he does splendid work.

PARIS, Feb. 4.—The Quai d'Orsay has denied the persistent rumor that M. Paul Louis Claudel, French Ambassador to Washington, would be transferred and be succeeded by M. Jean Hennessy, French "cognac king."

M. Hennessy, scion of a family of distillers of the grape, is one of the richest men in France. The "three-star" brand of cognac which bears his name brings him one of the largest annual incomes of all Frenchmen. Diplomatically, he is ambitious and has previously been ambassador to Switzerland.

There was also talk of reaching outside of the political and diplomatic ranks for "business" man-ambassadors to Washington and there had been much mention of the name of M. Andre Citroen, the "French Ford" who was the first to introduce Detroit methods of motor car manufacturing to France.

Bell Hop Hunter of Autographs Dead

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 4.—The city lost one of its most versatile and persistent collectors of autographs recently when William Cooper died.

For the past 26 years he was a "bellhop" at the Bellevue-Stratford hotel. Known to almost every prominent guest who visited the famous hostelry, he eagerly sought their autographs.

His collection included Presidents Roosevelt, Taft, Wilson and Harding's signatures on menu cards; General Diaz, Marshals Foch and Joffre and General Pershing. At one time Major General Smedley D. Butler told Cooper he could have the signature of every man who ever served under him, but the bell hop declined, saying the offer was a trifle too late.

Loboes Win County Championship in Game With Rangers

QUEENS ARE VICTORS OVER VISITING 6

Cisco Boys Have Easy Pickings and Get Fancy

Both the Loboes and the Lobo Queens annexed victories at the expense of Ranger teams at the high school gym last night. The girls game was the exciting feature of the program, when the Ranger sextet staged a determined offensive coupled with remarkable shooting on the part of Lindsey, forward, to outscore the Queens in every period save the third. The Queens were "hot" for that one quarter, however, and accumulated a sufficient margin to keep them two points in the lead as the game ended. The score was 16 and 14.

The Loboes had easy pickings and the final moments of their game with Bulldogs developed into an exhibition of fancy shooting which entertained the crowd almost as much as an exciting contest would have done. Departing from orthodox methods of chucking the leather at the basket, the boys took all manner of daring chances, sinking spectacular shots with startling accuracy. The Ranger team was helpless before the remarkable teamwork and sharpshooting ability and succumbed 28 to 9.

Raises Percentage

The game, while it raises the Lobo percentage in the Oil Belt Basketball League, also clinches the county class A championship of the Interscholastic league for the Loboes. They have met and defeated Ranger twice and Eastland once and with a standing of 1000 per cent in the county have only one more game to play. They meet Eastland, Beth Eastland and Ranger have suffered two defeats and the Loboes may lose their game with the Mavericks and yet retain the championship.

Yeager was high point in the boys game last night with 12 points. Van Horn collected eight points and Preston 5. Saunders was high for Ranger with four points.

In the girls' game a rough and tumble affair, the Ranger team led at the first quarter 5 and 3 and at the half 9 and 5. The Queens came back strong at the opening of the second half and ran up points in quick succession, assuming a lead which they retained throughout the remainder of the game. At the end of the third period the score was 15 and 11 in their favor and at the end of the game 16 and 14.

Both the Loboes and Queens go to Breckenridge Friday night for return engagements with the Buckaroos and Buckarettes.

Laird Indicted on Charges at Cisco

Indictments were returned by the 91st grand jury against Frank Laird, charging him with burglary, theft of an automobile and on two charges of forgery.

Laird has dictated a confession to the crimes to W. B. Collier, assistant county attorney, in which he admits all the charges against him, the county attorney's office announced.

It is alleged that he entered a house occupied by T. E. Clark at Cisco on January 26, 1931, took personal property belonging to Clark.

He is also being held on a charge of stealing an automobile from the driveway of A. H. Purse in Eastland on the same date.

One of the forgers counts is for the alleged forgery of the name of Kent Wood to a check drawn on the First National bank of Cisco for $25, January 24, 1931, and for forging the same name to a check for $15 drawn on the First National bank of Cisco on August 11, 1930.

them, then how, we ask you citizens, can it be stopped?
We wish to call attention of the various school boards of all recipients and disbursements of such funds. A complete record should be kept so that a competent public accountant might be able to verify the same.

Should Serve on Juries

We have at all times had in mind the various offenses and violations given us in charge by your honor, and we find the numerous violations of burglary and theft have been committed. These and the liquor laws are the most frequently violated, some of them by professional and habitual criminals. We have investigated every character of offense that has been called to our attention, which have been many, yet taking into consideration the period of depression that has existed, we feel that our county has not suffered from violations of the law more than any county similarly situated and if our citizens will respond to the call of jury service, in lieu of evading it, which is their duty as citizens, conditions will be greatly improved.

We made a visit to the county jail and find conditions as good as could be expected; in fact, for the condition of the building, we feel that prisoners are being cared for as comfortably as those conditions will permit. We recommend the jailer, Mack Kibborn, for his unusual ability and consideration in taking care of the prisoners and responsibilities that are entrusted to him.

Clerk's Report

The district clerk, W. H. McDonald, has submitted for our investigation and consideration his annual report of the affairs of his office. His report shows that all expenses of the office, including his salary and salaries of deputies, were paid out of the fees earned by the office and that approximately $1,000 was paid into the county treasury over and above expenses of maintaining the office. This shows that the office was self-supporting and no salary came from county funds.

We have been requested and urged by a number of citizens to make an investigation regarding certain contracts entered into between the commissioners court and Ed S. Pritchard & Co., and between Ed S. Pritchard and W. J. Herrington and we beg to report:

UNIFORM LAW IS VOIDED BY APPEAL COURT

The court said: "The wearing of one kind, color or cut of clothes can by no stretch of the imagination be held to legitimately affect the legality or fairness of an arrest of one charged with crime and in our opinion such a statute is unwarranted interference by one branch of government with another."
