Americans who make out their income tax returns to an accompaniment of groans and wails about the high cost of government, literally "ain't seen nothing yet."

In Germany, even comparatively low-salaried folk pay from 10 to 20 per cent tax, and the wealthy pay 40 per cent on practically all their income. The salaried worker has his income tax deducted and forwarded to the government by his employer, and dividends are taxed at anywhere from 10 to 40 per cent at the source. There is also a heavy capital tax on lands, houses and intangible capital.

The accompanying chart gives a rough comparison of income taxes in the three countries as clearly as they may be shown allowing for differences in currencies and tax systems.

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

SAYING GOODBYE—Finally brethren farewell. Be perfect, be of good comfort, be of one mind, live in peace; and the God of love and peace shall be with you.—2 Cor. 13:11.
PRAYER—Help us, Lord, to live so worthy that Thy peace and love may abide with us always.

HOW TO BUILD CITY STREETS.

Representative T. W. Adkias of Gilmer, "away over in East Texas," has introduced a bill to allow towns under 4000 population to levy a tax of one and one-half cents per gallon on gasoline sold by wholesale agents to local retailers—"the money thus obtained to be used for repairing streets." This is a merry old world "on wheels" and the chap who puts his foot on the gas must pay the price. In Oklahoma all he has to do is to buy free textbooks for all the children and build all the highways. In Texas he will be asked to contribute to the fund for street construction and street maintenance in cities having a population of less than 4000.

Why shouldn't he be happy in this vale of tears? Robert T. Hill started something when he discovered oil and gas in Texas more than 30 years ago, and his admiring fellow citizens rewarded him by giving his discovery the laugh and forcing him to go to a distant state to earn his bread and butter.

BUS REGULATIONS DEMANDED BY RAIL HEADS.

Heads of leading American railways appeared before the interstate commerce commission and recommended regulations for motor bus and truck transportation lines. They also suggested that truck and bus services be required a reasonable rental for use of highways. They urged the system of regulation which should be adopted would allow only such highway transportation operations as would be found necessary by commissions "which would control their rates and services." Way back in the "good old days" rail heads opposed regulation as well as rate making. They lost. Now they embrace the regulation and rate making plan. Time makes many changes. Now the railroads are fighting for life. They are facing fierce competition. Their revenues are melting away. They are entitled to justice which is another name for fair play and equal privilege. They are of and part of the new civilization and the old methods and old systems in time will be as dead as the dodo. "Build Texas" and give every man and every interest a square deal.

WHY A SECOND TAX ON CIGARETS?

Manufacturers of cigars are heavily taxed by the federal government. Why a state tax on cigars? Why a nuisance tax of any character? Why sandbagging bills? Why not the constitutional mandate "taxation shall be equal and uniform"? There are men who are most aggressive in their opposition to a tax on natural resource wealth—and yet their opposition is very mild to the imposition of a nuisance tax. There must be a reason why.

POPULATION OF THE JAPANESE EMPIRE.

A preliminary report of the 1930 census of Japan places the population of the empire at 90,100,000. More than 64,000,000 are in Japan proper. There is no race suicide in Japan. Population of the empire shows an increase of nearly 7,000,000 compared with the 1925 census of which nearly 5,000,000 are in Japan proper. It is said that the Japs are the Yankees of the Orient. It must be true. Japan traveled faster in a hundred years than any nation under the shining sun. It copied the western civilization but retained its ancient religion and many of its customs. Among the fighting races of the world place the Japs near the head of the procession. As for "the little brown brother" he is industrious, he is frugal, he is inventive, he is resourceful and if Texas were a Japanese empire it would support in comparative luxury a population of 150,000,000.

INTRODUCING FRANK T. CROWE.

Engineer Frank T. Crowe of San Francisco has a big job on his hands. His company has been awarded the $49,000,000 contract to build the Boulder dam and power house. He will be on the job at Black Canyon for six and a half years. He will build a dam 727 feet high or larger than any ever before constructed. He will construct a railroad down the Canyon connecting the government railroad with the damsite. It will be carved out of the walls of the canyon and will be a tunnel almost all the way. It will be a job for machines and all of these machines will be power driven. This is the Machine Age.

Engineer Crowe says a thousand men will be on the job in April. When the big work starts in summer the maximum will reach 2400. Engineer Crowe knows his business. He issued a warning against men seeking employment for the reason "it is a serious problem to care for those already at Las Vegas seeking work."

STILL A DANGER

If it has been assumed that the fight against smallpox has been won it is time now to take note that the assumption is false.

Small outbreaks of the dread disease have occurred in scattered places, including four cases among students of a southern college. Similar outbreaks could occur almost anywhere because many persons, doubtless including numbers of us in Cisco, have become careless about the necessary periodic vaccination.

What percentage of adults here and over the section have been vaccinated within five years?

The smallpox fight is not wholly won but victory is within easy grasp if we remind ourselves that vigilance still is necessary.

Shades of St. Patrick!

OTHER OPINIONS

THE CRISIS

This week brings Texas to the crossroads.

We have come to the point where we must choose one of two or three well-defined tax-highways along which we are to travel for the forthcoming biennium.

Bills have been introduced in the legislature which, were they favorably considered in committee or passed by the legislature, would defer for at least twenty years the industrial development of the state. Other bills have been introduced which would drive from the state many of the great industries now established here.

If the newspapers of the state afford a reliable index to the public mind, Texas people are committed to a program of industrial progress rather than a program of industrial stagnation. The people have learned that they live in a state which has been liberally endowed with every requisite resource wherewith to sustain a tremendous industry. They have learned that the late (or should we say present) depression would have left little impress upon this state had we capitalized upon these incomparable industrial opportunities as we could have capitalized upon them.

Members of the 42nd legislature have proven to be unusually sane thinkers. They have evidenced a disposition to give formal and legal expression to the wishes of the people, and the people have confidence that in the matter of these tax-bills, as in other matters the legislative course will be dictated by the will of the people.

Unquestionably the people oppose and resent some of the vicious attacks which have been launched against industry and industrial development. That industry should pay its just and equitable share of the cost of government is but proper, but it should not be taxed to such an extent that profitable operation becomes impossible; and, certainly, it should not be taxed to such an extent that its activities are curbed and thousands of Texas men and women are deprived of their jobs.

Texas stands at the crossroads of industrial development this week, because so many tax-bills which effect industry will come up before the legislature. The people have confidence in their elected representative at Austin, however, and are convinced that an attempt will be made to effect economies in government which will make it as unnecessary as it is unwise to enact tax measures calculated to postpone or throttle the industrial prosperity which now is promised the state.—Editorial Digest.

In the Political Arena

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD

Representative Harry M. Wurzbach of Guadalupe is swinging around the circle in Texas. He is the only republican congressman and was the honor guest at the Roosevelt republican club in the city of Fort Worth. Representative Wurzbach is getting to be a practical politician. He is convinced that honey catches flies. He predicted easy sailing in congress for the Trinity river canalization project from Fort Worth to the Gulf via the Trinity river which is a noble stream in the springtime when it gets out of its banks and easily forded in good old summertime when stepping stones are unnecessary to cross from bank to bank. Representative Wurzbach threw an olive branch in the direction of the white house. He did not believe President Hoover would have had anything to say about his proposed conference with oil companies "if he didn't feel something would come out of it" and that he had the support of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, and remarked that Mellon, who is not only a cabinet member but also the guiding head of the Gulf Production company, one of the large importers, will have a prominent part in the conference." He ventured a second prediction. "If the president is able to get the companies to agree to a cut in imports the effect will be as good for Texas producers as a tariff."

There are thousands of wet republicans and democrats in the Wurzbach congressional district. Wurzbach knows when his fences are in excellent shape. He would offer no criticism of Rasch's state liquor control proposal. He made a great straddle by saying "I'll just leave that for the democrats to settle." It goes without saying that the 14th district has a large majority classified as democrats. Wurzbach is elected by democratic votes. He has been kept in the lower house by democratic votes. He is not going to kick the democratic steer in the face. Why should he? If the Texas legislature redistricts and awards a congressman to the Alamo section of Bexar, Wurzbach will move from Seguin to San Antonio and do his level best to become the political idol of the city settled more than 200 years ago by the Spanish conquistadors, the Franciscan fathers, the Canary Islanders and in later years by hundreds of rugged adventurers from the Teutonic countries.

Executives from 18 states as well as the officers and directors of the Mississippi Valley association held a session in the city of Chicago and studied the Shipstead bill introduced in the senate and referred to the committee on commerce. This bill calls for a $500,000,000 bond issue to insure the early completion of inland waterways and harbor improvement. Senator Shipstead would order the secretary of the treasury to issue $500,000,000 in internal improvement bonds for completion within five years of all the inland waterways and harbor improvements proposed by the Mississippi Valley association. This will not appeal to the rail executives of the nation, but the proposal will be fought out in the national halls of legislation next winter. According to the political propagandist of the administration prosperity is on the way and will be sweeping all before it in the fall of 1932.

Senator James A. Watson of Indiana, majority senate leader, is known in his home state as "Slick Jim." He is said to be as smooth as split silk. His latest prediction was a sweeping republican victory in the presidential tournament. "Slick Jim" lost his home leadership in 1930. Democrats gained several congressmen. They made sweeping legislative gains. Had it not been for the steel county of Lake and the steel city of Gary, the Indiana republicans would have been swept out of power. They were saved by house of steel voters. They may be saved again by house of steel voters in the 1932 election.

Legislative champions of additional courts, district or otherwise, are going to find the road rocky. Gov. Sterling will veto any bill to create a new district court. This was the gist in a message which he sent to the house. He reminded the lawmakers that "the state has not been judicially redistricted, insofar as concerns district courts, for a very great length of time, if ever, and by virtue of this last condition unequal distribution of the work demanded of the various district judges in this state." He suggested the creation of additional district courts be held up until the matter of redistricting the state for district court purposes has been given thorough study and consideration by the legislature. A well timed hint is as effective as the kick of an army mule.

Like Tea . . . the best Gasoline is Blended

EVEN the Japanese maiden who laboriously picks the tea leaves knows that before you sip the delicate beverage from your cup, leaves of another type of tea must be added, for the best teas invariably are blended.

When the tea merchant takes a quantity of Japanese tea, a bit of China tea, and a touch of Ceylonese, then blends them according to the dictates of his expert knowledge, he parallels the making of CONOCO Gasoline. For this is a blended gasoline. It is blended because this is the only method which brings together in one fuel the desirable properties of several types of gasoline. No one type of gasoline can contain them all.

CONOCO

CONOCO refiners use: Natural Gasoline, for quick starting; Straight-run Gasoline, for power and long mileage; Cracked Gasoline, for its anti-knock properties.

There is no secret formula covering the elements which compose this triple-test gasoline. The secret is in the knowledge behind the blending. Knowing how makes one tea blend better than all others. . . and knowing how places one gasoline in a distinct quality class. Experience the performance advantages of CONOCO Balanced-Blend Gasoline. You'll find it wherever the CONOCO Red Triangle is displayed.

WEEKS WILL BE REQUIRED FOR CAMEL CONTEST

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., March 17.—More than one million letters were received in answer to the request of the national newspaper publishing campaign announcing the contest, with the new cigarette wrapping for Camel cigarettes, according to an announcement today by R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company.

The contest was the response that officials estimated it would take the weeks and their staff several weeks to read all of the entries and select the thirty-eight prize winners.

Officials of the Reynolds company, thanking the more than one million persons who wrote letters to the contest, also paid high compliment to the efficiency of the newspaper publishers. They pointed out that the contest was used exclusively in the contest, with the exception of radio announcements, that never before had such a large number of returns been received in a short-time national contest.

The announcement stated that the contest was received by every conceivable means of transmission, in every language, in tiny packages and in large express packages, and in thousands of different kinds of paper. It was estimated that more than 4,000,000 persons, including extrants and their families, or more than three per cent of the nation's population, will be interested in the announcement of final winners.

Officials and directors of R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company said that the contest was the most successful in the history of the industry, and that the contest was the most successful in the history of the industry, and that the contest was the most successful in the history of the industry.

contest announcement, and wish to thank each and every one of them. We want also to assure the public that every single letter, despite the enormity of the task, is being carefully read and studied by the judges and their staff.

"We ask the public to be patient, for such careful consideration takes time, and it will probably be several weeks before the judges can render a decision. The judges' decision will be announced as quickly as possible."

TEXAS TOPICS

AUSTIN, March 17.—Legislators may lean back with the feeling that part of the year's economic program has been fulfilled, the drought and other relief, and the state's future made secure. They have created the office of state poet laureate.

Rep. Eugene V. Giles has declared that one of the most constructive measures of a decade is that to which 106 house members give approval to permit counties to assist the farmers by terracing land and protecting the soil from erosion. This would be done with county road money and paid for by the land owner at cost.

It will improve the land for the present, but its great value is that it will preserve farm land which in a few years, unterraced would be worthless.

The bill awaits senate action and its sponsors are confident of a favorable vote.

More fundamental than its terms, the measure is a step to put the power of the state and the county on the side of the citizen rather than further seeking to restrict, regulate, harass or punish him.

Prospects are bright, according to members of an appropriations committee sub-group, for a measure that will allow the construction of a state highway building for present needs of the state. The bill will be paid for out of highway funds.

Rep. T. H. McGregor of Austin is author of the bill.

The appropriations committee likewise is studying measures for the fireproofing and improvement of the capitol, and for building of a fireproof state records building near the capitol.

The house will get, on minority report, a proposed income tax bill whose terms have not yet been written. The house, under this procedure, will be called on to vote on the question of allowing the bill a place on the calendar, before it is allowed to be taken up for consideration.

Members of both the revenue and taxation committee and of the house have insisted that until all other neighbor states join in the movement to establish an income tax at the same time, the measure in Texas alone would set up injustices against citizens of the state by their own lawmakers, and in favor of the people and business institutions of other states.

Many members also insist it is better to levy an adequate tax on the exploitation of the states' natural resources, before these resources have been exhausted, than to penalize the private individual who builds up an industry or a commercial enterprise by his own efforts.

Rome Observes Old Tradition

ROME, March 17.—An ancient Roman observance was carried out once more today when the noble palace of Prince Massimo was thrown open to the public, and numerous masses were said in the chapel to celebrate the miraculous restoration to life of the young Prince Paolo Massimo by St. Philip Neri in 1583.

The masses were said in the room where the young prince was called back from the dead for a few minutes by St. Philip.

St. Philip Neri was precursor to young Prince Paolo, and learning that his pupil was dying, rushed to his bedside only to find that he was already dead. The saint called him by name, and tradition has it that Prince Paolo opened his eyes and spoke to his teacher calmly for a few minutes before dying again.

A magnificent servant of the Massimo family with large cocked hat and splendid livery stood at the palace doors and let all visitors enter the mansion.

The Massimo family has one of the oldest histories of any in Rome, and traditionally dates back to the times of Fabius Maximus the Cunctator or temporizer. The Massimo family is the only one which has given two popes, afterwards made saints to the list of St. Peter's successors.

The site of the palace has probably been the residence of Roman nobles many times since the days of classic Rome, though the present structure is not more than four or five hundred years old.

Texas Relays Attract Stars

AUSTIN, March 17.—When Steve Farrell, colorful racing star of the past, calls the first event in the Seventh Annual Texas relay games here March 27, a galaxy of champions from several collegiate athletic conferences will be on hand to compete for prizes.

Already entered, three weeks before the games start are: From Denton Teachers college: Lee Simpson, holder of the state interscholastic mile championship, with a time of 4:28.7 to his credit; Cecil Jordan, hurdles champion in the T. I. A. A. in 1928, 1929 and 1930; and Culpepper, high hurdles champion in the interscholastic league in 1930.

From Ouachita college, Arkadelphia, Ark., a team with a javelin thrower, holding the state record of 198 feet nine inches.

From the University of Oklahoma will come: Clifford Mell, champion Oklahoma broad jumper, with a record leap of 23 feet nine inches; and Glen Dawson, national interscholastic mile champion in 1927; and present Big Six champion in both the mile and five-mile cross country runs.

U. S. ACQUIRING EMBASSIES IN ALL COUNTRIES

By JOSEPH H. BAIRD
Unity Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, March 17.—The pomp with which America's envoys represent their country abroad today is marked contrast to conditions around the "turn of the century" when only the rich could take posts in important capitals and the rest of the way places considered themselves lucky to have a roof over their heads.

Records of the state department foreign buildings office show congress has appropriated $6,835,000 for adequate embassies and legations abroad since the $10,000,000 foreign buildings program was authorized in 1926. And congress is being asked this year to set aside another $2,000,000.

When the present program is finished this country will have magnificent embassies in Rio de Janeiro, Santiago, Paris, London, Havana, Tokyo, Mexico City, Istanbul, Rome, Berlin, Buenos Aires, Argentina, and Lima. The American flag will float over adequate legations in Tirana, Albania, Peking, San Jose, Costa Rica, Prague, Oslo, Managua, Nicaragua, San Salvador, El Salvador, Monrovia, Liberia, and Ottawa.

Nears Completion

This program, largely completed already by recent purchases, will be carried out under the $10,000,000 authorization of 1926. But, in the opinion of the state department, buildings are needed in many other capitals. And Chairman Temple of the house foreign affairs committee already has introduced an authorization bill for another $10,000,000 program.

In justifying this vast expenditure, state department officials point out that the growing importance of the United States in world affairs and world trade demands that its foreign homes be commensurate with national pride and dignity. Again, they point to the fact that without government owned homes abroad, only the wealthy can accept diplomatic posts in the larger capitals. This prevents appointment of men without fortunes, however well fitted they may be, and thus tends to destroy democracy in the service.

When Whiteley Reid was ambassador to London in the early years of this century, he was forced to pay $100,000 rent annually, from his own pocket, for an embassy. Even had he received the present ambassador's salary of $17,500 per year, which he didn't—he would have had to pay nearly six times that amount for his home alone.

Lacked Tools of Trade

Not only did foreign service officials lack comfortable living places in the old days; they had not even the necessary tools of business. The consulates of Yokohama had no typewriter, no telephone, no postage fund. When mail—a bill of lading, for instance—was sent to an American client, it was dispatched without postage, and the recipient had to pay double if he wanted the letter.

Until recently the American traveler was likely to find his nations represented in small places by the most unexpected persons. A certain wanderer in Canada saw a sign, "U. S. Consulate," and entering the building on which it was posted, found himself in a butcher shop.

"Where is the consul?" he inquired of a white-clad butcher. The meatman nonchalantly cut a slice of ham, and finally answered: "I am."

But all this is changing. Within 10 or 15 years, it is expected, this country will be represented throughout the world by pretentious embassies and legations.

Last year a start was made toward providing "representation allowances" for necessary official entertaining to American diplomats, something European nations have done for many decades. The first allowance was small—only $94,000 for 95 diplomatic missions and consulates. But the state department hopes this will be an entering wedge for larger allowances.

OUTDOOR ADS FORBIDDEN

NORDEY, March 17.—The governor of the district including the East Friesian islands of Norderey, Borkum, Juist, Baltrum, Langeroog and Spiekeroog has issued a decree forbidding unsightly billboards and similar outdoor advertising in the rural districts of the islands. Furthermore, all existing billboards must be removed by May 1. A further order prohibits buildings which detract from the beauty of the landscape.

Some say the game of ice hockey originated among the Canadian Indians but so far as is known, Buddy Maracle, above, is the only full-blooded redskin to reach professional hockey's major league. Child Welfare Program Urged AUSTIN, March 17.—Separation of mother and child, except in extreme cases, will be abolished in Texas if the child welfare program being presented to the Texas legislature by William Strauss of Houston, Ernest Cox of Corsicana and C. W. Areson of the Cleveland Humane Society, is adopted. Areson formerly was a welfare worker in Houston.

It is not only thru sentiment that they want to keep mother and child together. It costs more to raise children in institutions than to grant mothers aid, Areson said. Cox adds that the institution-raised child has individually suppressed.

Adoptions of orphans are to be rigidly supervised if the program carries. A state child welfare division will be in charge. In addition there will be a required trial adoption. Adoption will not be approved until the child has lived six months in the family and results are noted.

Establishment of the parentage of illegitimate children is another part of the program. Texas, Virginia and Louisiana alone have no such agency, Areson said.

Backing up the economic side of the program the advocates say 35 per cent of juvenile offenders are children who were first neglected. Then dependent and next delinquent. When they reach 17 years, the age for criminal prosecution, it is too late to reform them. "We must start earlier" said Areson.

MAD MARRIAGE

By LAURA LOU BROOKMAN Author of 'HEART HUNGRY', etc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Gypsy McBride, 19-year-old typist, meets the boat on which Alan Crosby returns from a year as a half in Paris. They are not engaged but there has been an "understanding" between them. Gypsy is a beautiful woman on the pier whom Crosby identifies as Mrs. Langley, a ship's acquaintance.

Two nights later he breaks an engagement with Gypsy over a plea of business. She goes to the theatre and encounters him with Mrs. Langley. There is a scene. Mrs. Langley drives away alone. Gypsy and Crosby go home in a cab, quarreling all the way. Next day Gypsy attempts to apologize and Crosby refers to their romance as a boy and girl affair, now forgotten.

Gypsy is criticized for carelessness at the office she resigns her job. To forget her misery she accepts an invitation from her wealthy cousin, Anne Trowbridge, to take the place of another dinner guest. The dinner is boring and when the others are playing cards Gypsy escapes, determined to go home. She hears a noise in another room, opens the door and sees a man climbing in the window.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER X

Gypsy's heart seemed to stop beating. The man in the window stared back at her. One of his feet rested on the windowsill. Another noise and he would have been inside.

"You'd better go away," the man warned, "or I'll scream!"

The man continued to stare. The girl hid behind the door, her face all concealing his features. He was wearing an overcoat and in a crouched position he must have been most uncomfortable. Still he did not move.

"You'd better go," Gypsy repeated. "If I scream you'll be arrested."

Apparently the stranger had heard his voice.

"You—you live here?" he asked.

"Yes, No—I mean why don't you leave?"

Gypsy had been too startled to be afraid. Suddenly it occurred to her that the burglar might have tied a half-dozen apartments in building. It was taking her time to get away. Before he could answer she reversed her orders:

"Come on in! There—stand over here." She pointed to a spot near the center of the room. Slowly, finally, the man climbed over the ledge. He stood up and she saw that he was tall and broad shouldered. His dark overcoat was a good one. There was nothing about his appearance to conform with Gypsy's idea of a thief. He did not wear a mask.

Obviously he walked to the spot near which she pointed.

"Here—sit down," Gypsy said. "You're five feet three. In her chiffon gown and fishy high-heeled slippers she was certainly a figure to confront a burglar. The stranger accepted her commands. He looked more alarmed than the girl.

Gypsy signed her way between the burglar and the window.

"You're a fine looking fellow to be climbing into people's windows," she stormed. "Now let's see that you've stolen. Empty your pockets and put the things on the table."

"Say, listen—" for the first time she noticed his bass, drawl was agreeable. "My dear young lady, if you'll let me explain—"

"You can explain to the police!"

"Good Lord—say whose apartment is this?"

"Are you so particular whose room you take?"

"Now wait a minute! Give me a name! I haven't the slightest idea in the world who you may be and I don't blame you for thinking me a thief, but you've got to be honest with me. I'm going to say, I caught this was Phil Trowbridge's apartment."

"What?"

"I said I thought this was Phil Trowbridge's apartment."

"Why—why is it?"

"The burglar gave her a searching look. "Then what are you doing here?" he demanded.

"I don't see what difference that makes."

"Don't you think?" it can make a lot. For instance it might make me, young woman, the unlawful owner instead of myself. It means I won't have to spend the night in jail!" He took a quick glance about the room. "This is Trowbridge's place! Sure, I recognize it now."

It was all a trick of course. He was trying to make her believe he was Phil, that he had a right to be here.

"Not so fast!" the girl snapped. "There's still a law against housebreaking. I can testify I saw you climbing through that window!"

"Their eyes met in silent duel. Then the stranger ceased his posing, slipping his hands into his pockets.

"Have you got a gun?" the girl's face wavered.

"I wish I had," he scowled. "Seem to be useful when you're fighting with women. Now, for the sake, will you listen to me for two minutes?"

"Well—"

The man pointed to an object in the corner of the room. "See that traveling bag?" he said. "There's a leather tag on the handle with a name and address on it. Look at it."

Suddenly their positions had changed. The girl obeyed meekly. The heavy piskin bag bore the name James R. Wallace. Gypsy read it aloud. The address was a place called Forest City.

"Now look at this," the man commanded. "Oh, take it—you don't have to be afraid!"

It was a card that he held out. The plain Roman letters were the name, James R. Wallace.

The girl's face showed she did

HAIR TEXTURE SEEN AS CLUE TO MIGRATION

DENVER, Colo., March 17.—By the hair on their heads, ye shall know them, or so believes Dr. George Woodbury, curator of archeology and ethnology at the Colorado State Museum, whose study of the origin of the American Indian may prove of major scientific interest.

Dr. Woodbury, while withholding announcement of the results of experiments he has made until he has more definite proof, indicated he may establish Asiatic migration of the North American Indian.

He took his cue from an investigation made in Germany several years ago which revealed certain types of people and various races had distinctive hair texture, color and waviness.

Dr. Woodbury said this developed from cross section study three types of hair: the Mongolian, or straight, black, coarse hair with round cross section; the brown, wavy hair with oval cross section; and the kinky, kidney-shaped type.

The curator began his own study by measurements and ethnic study of hair on exceptionally well-preserved mummies found in the Mesa Verde cliff dwellings. Hair from 14 skulls was examined.

Dr. Woodbury then procured samples from any living Indians from the United States reservations. Results of both studies were compared.

One of the most notable preliminary results of this investigation he revealed, was the discovery that the hair of living Indians differed widely.

Dr. Woodbury indicated he considered his study more important to possible future investigation of the peoples and early tribes of Siberia and the Bering Strait territory.

It is hoped, he said, to establish definitely that the American Indian came from the same region in Asia thought to be the origin of all men.

MARRIAGE BUREAU FAILS
MANNHEIM, March 17.—Albert Laub, 27, drew 18 months in jail when he failed to show that his "Bureau for Harmonious Marriages" had legitimate lists of prospective bridegrooms. Laub found plenty of women applicants by advertising for "independent" or "orphans girls" who sought husbands.
