Governor Asked To Withhold Action On Redistricting Bill

AUSTIN, July 27.—House members are taking action to make sure there will be no legislative redistricting at this session, so that revision could not become effective before 1935. More than 100 had signed a resolution asking Gov. Ross S. Sterling to withhold this subject and not put it before the special session. The resolution was prepared even though submission of the subject was unlikely. Members plan a continuing fight to keep large cities from getting eight or more members apiece, claiming that the continued revision of house membership would "give the cities control." Four cities now have an equal number of senators with 94 counties.

Handsome West Coast Attorney Goes To Trial Next Month For Slaying Of Prominent Los Angeles Newspaperman

By GEORGE H. BEALE United Press Staff Correspondent LOS ANGELES, July 27.—David H. Clark, handsome young attorney, is scheduled to go to court here August 3 in what is expected to be Los Angeles' most sensational murder trial since Edward Hickman was convicted of the murder of Marion Parker. Clark, recently a candidate for a municipal judgeship and for seven years a deputy in the district attorney's office, will face the charge of having slain Herbert Spencer, prominent locally as a newspaper man and political magazine writer. The brilliant attorney also is accused of having killed Charles Crawford, for years political boss of Los Angeles, but he will not be tried on that count, at least not until after the Spencer case has been concluded. Political Flavor The Spencer case has a distinct political flavor, since Spencer, co-editor of the political "Critic of Critic," and Crawford, dabbling in politics after a brief retirement, were shot down together on the afternoon of May 20, less than two weeks before the date people voted on Clark as a candidate for judge. The tremendous interest in the case is attributed to the prominence of the principals; the charges, often repeated, that half of the politicians and underworld characters fear what Clark may say and have tried to cover facts in the case; and the fact that Clark has advanced up defense as yet, an almost unprecedented procedure in Los Angeles criminal cases. Clark is a very popular figure. He looks and dresses like a motion picture hero. In his seven years in the district attorney's office he tried many important cases. He successfully prosecuted Albert Marco, once the vice lord of Los Angeles, on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder. More recently he gained the conviction on theft charges of Daisy De Voe, former secretary to Clara Bow. Whereabouts Mystery Clara went to Agua Caliente the week-end before the slaying. He returned to his home here Monday and after greeting his young wife left to go to his office. His whereabouts from that time until the next afternoon have not been traced. Tuesday afternoon he entered a store and bought a revolver. His next positively known movement was his surrender Thursday night, May 21, after the district attorney's office announced it wanted him for the double murder. Meanwhile on Wednesday afternoon a young man entered Crawford's real estate office on Sunset Boulevard in Hollywood. The man, according to the district attorney's office, was young Dave Clark. Crawford was back in the political game attempting to regain the prominence he once held when he was credited with running the entire city administration. A few minutes after the men en-

SLAYER OF CONSTABLES IS HUNTED

RAYMONDSVILLE, Tex., July 27.—Two peace officers were dead, a third was injured slightly and a posse was seeking Pancho Chiamberlain today as the result of a shooting near a cemetery here last night. The officers slain were W. J. Haywood, constable, 44, and Frank Cisneros, deputy constable, 33. They were shot to death when they attempted to question a man and woman in a parked automobile, said Jose Dussman, who was wounded slightly by a shot. The woman was held for investigation while officers sought Chiamberlain, said to have been a defendant many times in border cases. Dussman said the man in the parked car began shooting before the officers left. A pistol was shot from the hand of Cisneros and Haywood was shot before he could draw his gun.

MURRAY OFF TO CAPITOL AFTER "WAR"

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 27.—Gov. W. H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray, his time and energy needed by the smoky problems of unemployment relief and the depressed petroleum industry in Oklahoma today left his army of state troopers at the Durant and returned to the state capitol. Gov. Murray openly challenging a federal court order that the Durant-Durant bridge be opened and barricades shutting off traffic across the span be removed, spent the weekend with the 32 national guardsmen he mobilized there under his declaration of martial law. "Everything is well in hand at Durant," the executive said. I am not needed there anymore, but if I am you can bet your boots I'll be right back. Lt. Col. John McDonald was left in charge of the troopers. He received Ad Gen. Charles Barrett, named specially by federal judge Colin C. Nebett, in his order enjoining him and the state from guarding the Oklahoma approach to the toll bridge. DURANT, Okla., July 27.—Col. John McDonald will send half of his thirty boy guardsmen home today he announced. "We are going to cut down the overhead of this war," said McDonald. "We may have another." The others have been ordered to remain until August 4 unless new orders are received from Oklahoma City. Those dismissed included R. L. DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

THE HIGHEST ROCK:—Hear my cry, O God; attend unto my prayer. From the end of the earth will I cry unto thee: lead me to the rock that is higher than I.—Psalm 61: 1, 2.

CONE JOHNSON ANNOUNCES READY.

Speaking of the Austin San Antonio Military Post highway, Cone Johnson of the city of Tyler and the county of Smith has announced ready. This is his verdict:

"There is no reason for waiting. We can start out now and build ten miles of the road while they are talking about right-of-way elsewhere."

Chief Engineer Gibb Gilchrist, it is said, will be authorized this month to designate the location in Travis county and call on County Judge Roy C. Archer to provide the 120 foot right of way strip. Highway Commissioner D. K. Martin is for quick action. Judge Archer is for quick action. Flowers for the living. Now get busy and rush construction.

WILL THERE BE A SECOND CALLED RESSION?

Now the lawmakers and the laymen are asking, "Will there be a second called session this month?" A state house correspondent quotes the governor as having said, "If they can't do it in 30 days, I can't see much hope for accomplishing anything in 60 days." If the 31 senators start a little investigation of their own there will be plenty of copy for the news hound. A wise old member of the house is quoted as having said "Some action should be taken. A drastic provision law should be enacted. We must blaze a new trail. Then if the law enacted is constitutional all will be well. If not, it will be the old story of supply and demand."

Well, where do we go from here?

ALCOHOL MANUFACTURERS IN THE TOILS.

Prohibition Director W. W. Woodcock is a happy man. At a cost of $500,000 for the government it has agents turned in evidence to a federal grand jury in the city of Baltimore which resulted in three indictments charging 53 corporations and individuals with conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws. These indictments named persons in New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Michigan and Ohio. It is said an investigation was ordered in 1929 and it was the largest and costliest ever undertaken by the pro enforcement department of the United States government. Heads of three of the largest industrial alcohol companies in the United States are among those named in the indictments and who will be forced to stand trial in the courts of the country. In 1929 pro officers seized three huge stills in the city of Baltimore used for cracking and re-distilling commercial alcohol for beverage purposes. Now it is the end of the trail for the violators.

Baltimore is said to be one of the wettest of American cities. Philadelphia is another. Pittsburgh is another. Chicago is another. For years and years republican administrations dominated Chicago. Republican administrations have dominated the two Pennsylvania cities for 50 years. Baltimore, municipally speaking, was ruled in recent years by the republicans until a dramatic landslide in late spring drove from power the G. O. P. in the metropolis of the state governed by Alfred C. Ritchie more than 12 years.

Alcohol does not appear to be a struggling industry in the United States. It appears to be found everywhere and manufactured for beverage purposes from ocean to ocean and from moist Canada to wet Mexico. It cost the government a half a million dollars to trap the Baltimore conspirators. Now there will be rich pickings for lawyers and a jury will write the final chapter of the story.

DEAN KYLE ISSUES A DEFFY.

"I can name dozens of men in Texas who have become millionaires raising cattle; I defy any man to name any individual who has become a millionaire producing cotton," declared E. J. Kyle of the A. & M. college who addressed the old settlers of Williamson county on the future of agriculture in Texas. He urged diversification as a cure for the ills of agriculture. "Dairying and baby beef," he said, "are the greatest aids to Texas and this climate and range are unsurpassed." In war time Mike H. Thomas of Dallas was rated as a millionaire or a multimillionaire. Didn't he amass his fortune "while producing cotton?"

"NO TROUBLE TO ASK QUESTIONS."

Will H. Mayes is a former state senator and a former lieutenant governor. In addition to all this he has been in the newspaper business for many years. He has shivered a lance in the toll bridge row. For instance:

"Attorney General Jimmy Allred says he doubts whether the Texas highway commission had the right to agree to pay a private toll bridge company $150,000 for the privilege of building a public bridge or to withhold opening of the public bridge until the owners of the private toll bridge have time to repay themselves from tolls for the cost of their bridge."

So far, so good. Then the former lieutenant governor knowing that it is more trouble to answer questions than it is to ask them, makes this comment:

"The question arises, do privately owned toll bridge companies acquire exclusive rights to cross a stream for which the state must pay before it can erect a free bridge that will destroy the business of the bridge company? The courts will likely decide the issue and in the meantime the public will have to continue to pay toll fees to continue to get across the river, perhaps long enough to pay the bridge owners much more than the cost of their bridge."

Sure, the courts will have to decide the tangle. If the

To the Rescue!

Texas highway commission entered into a contract with the toll bridge company the question is, is the contract valid or worthless? Attorney General Allred is said to be of the opinion that it is worthless. This calls for a court decision. It is a matter of history that the toll bridge got there first. In fact, got there before the authorities or the people of Oklahoma or Texas decided that the owners of the toll bridges were monopolists and enjoyed fat pickings from the tourists or the freighters compelled to cross from one state or the other over the river known as Red.

But why should an individual or a combination of individuals enjoy a monopoly of river bridge rights? Let the courts answer.

This is a law and order country and regardless of the cost to the people it is the safest and sanest way out of tangles of all kinds.

AMBASSADOR DAWES COMING HOME.

Ambassador Charles G. Dawes is coming home for a brief vacation. Washington correspondents insist that President Hoover is very hopeful that Dawes will resign his ambassadorship and accept the chairmanship of the republican national committee. It appears that Dawes was urged to accept the chairmanship last winter but side stepped and made an eloquent presentation of the name of Patrick J. Hurley for the place. The secretary of war did some side stepping himself. He is said to be ambitious to be the republican nominee for vice president on the ticket with Hoover, if Charles Curtis resigns and makes the race for the senate next year. Why depose the good Doctor Fess? He is an educator, an orator, a lay-preacher, a dry of the dries and a politician who insists that prohibition "has no place in politics."

OTHER OPINIONS

ROSES AND ECONOMICS

From the New York World-Telegram:
The New Haven railroad has found that roses planted along its right of way on steep "where grass would not grow checked soil erosion and landslides. So Dorothy Perkins roses scent the air and delight the eye where New Haven trains run in New York, Connecticut, Rhode Island and Massachusetts.

In this utilitarian world most of the things we do are done for reasons of material gain. But it is surprising how often material benefit is found to go hand in hand with benefits ignored when they are urged as a matter of beauty, justice or humanity.
A classical example of this is the growing favor with which community property laws, giving women control over their earnings, are them elsewhere, are now regarded Western States. It has been discovered that community property laws reduce the family income tax.

Business men long ago discovered that workmen's compensation laws operate to their financial benefit as well as to that of the employees, and that shorter hours and good working conditions make for efficiency in their plants.

Some day business is going to discover that it can only prosper when all the people of the United States have money with which to buy its products. Then it will find a way to end unemployment. The things that have been urged so long as a matter of social justice will be accomplished when industry vents them for the sake of profits.

It is a matter of learning how to be selfish intelligently. Dorothy Perkins roses point the way charmingly.

In the Political Arena

BY HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD

Thomas Pryor Gore is one of the remarkable men of the age. He is a senator from Oklahoma. He has been blind for years. His brilliant and courageous wife is His Eyes. He is one of the best read and the best informed men in the political life of the country. His wife is his official secretary as well as his manager. She is his pal as well as his manager.

Thomas Pryor Gore is a Mississippi by birth. He is a lawyer by profession. He has had a unique career. In the first flush of youth, out on his own, he came to Texas and hung out his shingle in the city of Corsicana. Those were days of intense political excitement. They followed in the wake of the financial crisis of 1892. It was then that the populist party was born and the father of fathers of the party believed in the issuance of a huge volume of paper money based upon the credit of the nation to relieve the distress of the farmers and wealth makers and wage workers everywhere. That is, they would start the government printing presses in the city of Washington and the magical process by which adopted would bring prosperity to all alike — with the exception of those who were mammon worshippers in Wall street. Thomas Pryor was an eloquent expounder of the new gospel. He was one of the most aggressive as well as captivating orators in the campaign that followed. It was then that Bryan came out of the Platte river country. It was then that the battle for the resoration of silver as a standard of money blazed its fires across the country.

It is all ancient history now. Thousands of southern democrats became populists. They deserted the party of their fathers for the scaled party and run amuck the country over. Populism died. And then what was known as the free silver cause was buried in the election which sent Bryan back to the Platte river country in 1896 and made William McKinley president of the United States. Thomas P. Gore moved to Oklahoma. This in territorial days. He returned to the faith of the scaled fathers. Thousands like him returned to the democratic party.

Statehood came for Oklahoma and the Indian territory. Gore became one of the leaders of the democracy. He played a prominent part and became nationally known. Fortune favored him. Political success came to him. In course of time he was elected a senator of the United States and made his mark in that which is known as the greatest deliberative body in the world. His eyes were with him as his guide and counselor. He was a senator in war time.

When the finish came of the mighty conflict overseas, Woodrow Wilson, an immortal of all time, laid down the burdens as well as the responsibilities of president. Thomas Pryor Gore was effaced from the official life of the nation. He lost his toga. Republicans captured Oklahoma. They held it for years. Then came 1930 and its fierce political contest. Then came the eclipse of the Hoover prosperity predicted by all republican leaders to be never ending. Democrats recaptured the Senate commonwealth. They elected William H. Murray governor by an overwhelming majority. They elected Thomas Pryor Gore to his old seat in the senate of the United States. Murray scored a mighty comeback. Gore scored a comeback. Now they are of the faithful in the high council of the democratic party.

They are in the picture and the headlines. It is true that Murray is leading a lion's share but in December the 72nd congress will assemble on the banks of the Potomac and then the blind senator from Oklahoma and His Eyes will be in the picture and in the headlines as in days of yore. Murray hopes for a democratic landslide next year. Gore is paying for a democratic landslide.

Is it possible for a man to come back? Doubters are pointed to William M. Murray, a former Texas, and Thomas Pryor Gore, for several years an adopted son of Texas. For ample evidence that it is possible if a fighter in any field has the pluck and, as in the fistie arena, has the intestinal quality of ever being able to punch his way to the championship.

INDIANA YOUTH SUCCEEDS AS ONE-MAN ORCHESTRA.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., July 27. — Paul Castle, a high school student of 16, is gaining popularity as South Bend's one-man band. He plays the piano, accordion, a drum and all the traps, nearly a half dozen horns, a fiddle, harmonica and several devices of his own invention.

Paul gives a large amount of credit for the one-man band idea to his father, who helped him rig up the outfit. In his performance the right foot comes in for more than its share of the work. It beats the bass drum, hits the cymbal, tambourine and triangle. A snare drum, connected to a small battery, rattles each time the other drum booms.

A special wire rack holds the harmonica and horns so that all can be played without the use of hands. The left hand plays the accordion and the right hand the piano.

At present both Paul and his father are searching for something to keep the left foot busy.

Heart of Liane

IN HERE TODAY Barrett, daughter of Cass, an actress, meets and falls in love with Van Robard, the man of the world. Cass is not to have anything to do with the marriage. Muriel Laid, debutante, is in the office at Willow L. L. professes to be in love with Van Robard. A reporter, Chuck Desler, later she announces her engagement to Robard and Liane forget him. When her mother is seriously ill on her deathbed, Cass recovers her delirium raves of a story concerning the girl's death.

At last she reached the front door. There was an old-fashioned chain lock. With painstaking care she unlatched it and the door swung quietly on its hinges. She felt her heart pounding in her throat. Softly she swung the door to, felt her way in her stockinged feet, her one silver slipper in her hand, across the splintered porch. Salt air rose gratefully to her nostrils. The unmistakable breath of the south shore marshes was in the wind. Blindly in the dark she began to run. Where she was going she knew not. Anything was better than that terrible house and the people in it.

Liane suspected some trick, some barricade. It seemed inconceivable that those men had left the place with only Holly to guard it. They had reckoned, perhaps, without her determination and courage.

Her thin stockings were torn by brambles and barberry. Her hair was disarranged, her face scratched. There was no moon, and for this Liane was grateful. The dark shadow of the woman called Molly covered the girl's moon-pale frock.

She heard steps running toward her. A man's steps. Determined ones. A voice said, "Whoa, there!" Liane stumbled in her terror and mercifully fainted again.

Meantime the little group back in the clearing pressed on. McHugh, busy in his uniform, Clive, elegant though disheveled in his Bond Street evening clothes, and the girl who had been driving the cheap sedan.

Clive was half frantic with anxiety by this time. He felt that they were following the wrong trail. It seemed lunacy to waste precious moments in questioning this dowdy young woman.

Officials got around to inspecting all these safety deposit vaults and they were found to be empty then.

On this apparent lull and on the lights between officers of the district attorney's office and the police were formed the charges of a "cover up."

Clark engaged W. I. Gilbert and Leonard Wilson as his counsel and immediately the legal battle started.

Because Clark refused to talk or to make known his defense, Ford announced he would be tried first for shooting Spencer and then for shooting Crawford. Clark attempted to force trial of both counts at the same time but was not successful.

for bail and was admitted to $100,000 bail.

This was said to be the first time a man accused of a double murder was admitted to bail in Los Angeles. It was interesting to Clark that the bail was posted for Clark almost immediately.

Clark's popularity was shown again in the election June 2. He polled almost 70,000 votes, while his successful opponent drew only 20,000 more.

Immediately after Clark surrendered District Attorney Fitts announced that because every one in his office was friendly with Clark that a special prosecutor, Joe Ford, had been selected.

Ford is one of the best known criminal attorneys in Los Angeles and formerly was a prosecutor. Ford immediately fought with the Los Angeles police, claiming they were lax in running down clues and evidence in the case.

Spencer and Crawford each had a number of safety deposit boxes and Spencer once published the fact that he believed his life was in danger and that if he was killed the name of his slayer would be found in his box.

MASSACHUSETTS WOOL POOL TO BE ENLARGED

BOSTON, July 27.—The Massachusetts wool pool, under which farmers get 45 and 55 cents a pound for their wool, regardless of the market, will be twice as large this year as in any previous year.

The general plan of the pool is that every farmer who keeps sheep sends his wool to the nearest of eight assembling points. From these points the wool is transported to the mill and made into blankets. Enough blankets are returned to each farmer to represent the amount of wool he turned in figuring 11 pounds of wool to one blanket.

Then the farmer sells the blankets locally at a rate to net him $6.10 per blanket.

PROHIBITION LAW SUBJECT LOCAL PASTOR

A lot of parents are laying a foundation for making bootleggers and law breakers out of their children by making home brew in their homes. Rev. H. D. Tucker declared Sunday night in his message at the First Methodist church.

The subject of the message "Has Prohibition Failed?" was heard by a good audience.

The text used by Mr. Tucker was Proverbs 20:1. "Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise."

Among other things Mr. Tucker said: "The open saloon is gone from America forever but the trouble is when prohibition was secured, people went home, folded their hands and said: 'The war has just started,' and quit.

Paper Wet

"The wet press of America is doing everything possible to break down the prohibition laws and make them ineffective," the speaker declared during his message. "Not all the daily papers are wet but a large per cent of them are dripping wet," he said.

"If the daily press would show the effects of the enforcement of the prohibition laws it would mean much for enforcement. What we need is sentiment for law enforcement."

The Rev. Mr. Tucker complimented Sheriff Virgo Foster and his assistants in their efforts to enforce the law in Eastland county and urged the citizenship of the county to stand back of them in these efforts. "There is a lot more of enforcement in Eastland county than in many counties of Texas," he declared.

"It is not an officer's business to decide what law he shall enforce," Mr. Tucker said. "If a person breaks the prohibition law he will lose respect for all law."

"This law should be enforced the same as the murder law," he said.

"There are too many silent puppets on this question today," the speaker said. "Too many of us preachers and too many citizens have a backbone like a piece of macaroni soaked all night in sweet milk," he declared. "We are not willing to stand four-square against the liquor traffic."

Four Routes

Asking the question, "Will America junk her prohibition laws?" the Rev. Mr. Tucker said that there were four things America could do, bring back the open saloon, modify the laws, put the government in the saloon business or enforce the prohibition laws.

Commenting on these he said: "The saloon will never come back. Even the wet press declared it doesn't want them back. I do not believe modification will come. 'A bear drunk is the nastiest drunk in the world. Light wines bring light fumes.'"

"I do not believe that Uncle Sam's hands will ever be stained with the blood of youth. The people of this nation are not going to set our government up into a business of wrecking character and damning souls," the speaker declared in the midst of a lot of applause from the audience.

"There is only one thing to do and that is to enforce the law. This is going to be done."

"The United States government is going to see to it that the prohibition laws are enforced. If the state and county officers will not do their duty the federal officers will attend to the job," Mr. Tucker said during his message.

Violators

The speaker took a rap at liquor drinkers when he said: "The man who buys and drinks bootleg liquor is no better than the man who sells it. He is a law breaker just the same as the bootleggers."

In closing his message Mr. Tucker made an appeal to citizens to "take up before the curse touches your own home" and especially in the interest of the young people did he urge people to stand against the breaking of the prohibition laws.

FORT WORTH TEAM WINS

The Fort Worth All-Stars made it three in a row when they took a double-header from the Red Sox here Sunday taking the first game 7-6 and the second game 8-4. Both contests were loosely played affairs with the Red Sox looking the worse. It seemed they could not catch, throw or hit a ball. McEety, seventeen year old curve ball pitcher had the Sox on his hip most of the way and was in trouble only once or twice due to poor support from his team mates.

In the second game the Red Sox started off like they were going to send Sweet to the showers in a hurry but after allowing two hits in the second inning he settled down and divided two more hits in the next five innings.

This game made the first one look like a good ball game, the Red Sox showed clearly the kind of condition they were in as one ball after another went through them and bonehead play after another that could not be credited as an error.

Reinforced by several new players the Cisco team should now be one of the best in amateur baseball.

Next week the Red Sox are negotiating with San Angelo for a game here. It will be a chance to get some of the new players accustomed to their positions and to their team-mates although we hope they don't take up some of the habits.

Seven years ago, after letters and requests to friends here failed, Mrs. Dziab came to America and continued the search.

Finally she located the missing husband in a mining village near here.
