DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

FATE OF THE ROBBER: — Behold at evening tide trouble; and before the morning he is not. This is the portion of them that spoil us, and the lot of them that rob us.—Isaiah 17: 14.

FRANCE BLOCKS DISARMAMENT.

France has notified the League of Nations that disarmament is a political rather than a technical question, that French armaments have been reduced to the lowest possible point and the declaration is considered in the capitals of the world that France would find it necessary to make increases in armaments in case any actions were taken relieving Germany of the limitations imposed by the Versailles treaty. France is willing to trade. France advises the League of Nations to adopt the plan of a world military and naval force to bring about universal peace before the arms conference shall declare for a policy of world disarmament. France has a navy that is the pride of its people. France has a greater number of war planes than any other nation. France emancipated the principal point from the Hoover moratorium proposal. Now France is not going to agree to even partial disarmament unless the League of Nations furnishes the world an army and world navy to compel all nations and all men to get together for a common purpose. French statesmen think they hold four aces. Maybe they know their cards. Germany defied the world. What happened to Germany? Go ask the Kaiser at Doorn. Go ask Wargod Mars. Go ask the army of broken crown princes and grand dukes and the beggarly nobles of many lands that were thrown in the discard when the sword dreamers found themselves the battered relics of a dead civilization.

FARMERS LIVE UP TO LOAN PACTS.

Director G. L. Hoffman who handled the federal loans to farmers of the country reports that the government is well satisfied with the way the farmers who received drought loans last year are living up to their obligations. Inspectors of the agricultural seed loan department have found that virtually every one has kept his agreement to plant and cultivate carefully the crops upon which the government took a lien for security. Also, many repayments have already been made. Encouraging to say the least. Farmers as a class hold their pledges sacred. Just now in the Dakotas and Nebraska they are facing the largest army of grasshoppers ever known in that section of the United States.

Is farming a gamble? The answer is yes—at all times and in all countries.

PROSECUTORS AND THE FEE SYSTEM.

District and county attorneys are holding their annual convention in the city of Houston. Abolition of the fee system in favor of a graduated salary system was recommended by the resolutions committee. As for the Sheriff's association of Texas, that organization is on record for the institution of a straight salary schedule for all Texas officials.

Why not? The fee system is a relic of barbarism. Servants of the people should be paid straight salaries and all the fees should be placed in the treasury of the state. Forty years ago the reformers launched a movement to do away with the system and yet it is in evidence today.

GOVERNOR "BILL" DECLARES A MORATORIUM.

Governor Murray of Oklahoma has declared a moratorium on payment of rentals on 340,000 acres of farm lands owned by the state as school lands. His executive order affected 2120 preference right lease holders. And the state school land commission unanimously approved the moratorium. Deferred payments will bear 10 per cent interest as compensation to the state for delay in collection. Now the Oklahoma democrats have two favorite sons advised as presidential timber. Who will be given the state delegation in 1932—Political Bill or Humorist Bill? Political Bill started on his upward flight as a farm boy in a West Texas county. He has been farming ever since.

FIGURES ON DAN CUPID

Marriage decreased 8.5 per cent and divorces 4.2 per cent in the United States during 1935. There were 1,128,180 marriages in 1935, and 191,630 divorces. Marriage is not only a venerable institution but it is a permanent institution. There are a lot of misfit tie-ups but why worry? This is woman's age. There are millions of women wage earners and matrimony isn't the first and last resort as it was in years gone by.

TEXAS SENATORS AND THE RATE INCREASE.

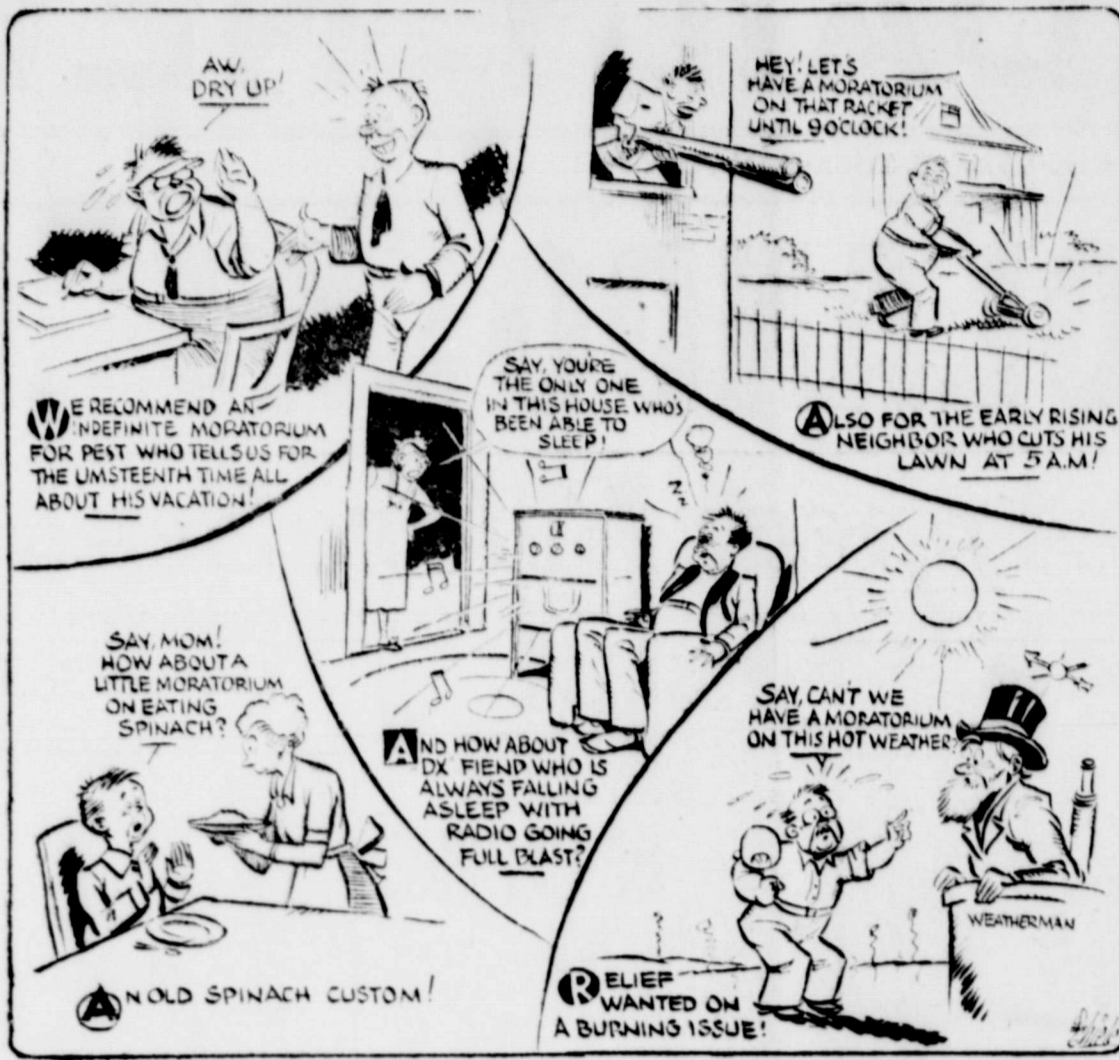

Of interest to the shippers is the action of the state senate of Texas, which voted unanimously to ask the Interstate Commerce Commission not to grant a 15 per cent general increase in freight rates now being sought by the railways. It was predicted by lawmakers that the house would pass a resolution by an overwhelming vote. Just now the Interstate Commerce Commission is having troubles of its own and as for the railways their operators say that the increase must be given or disastrous results will follow.

FARMERS PRAY FOR DIVINE RELIEF.

Grasshoppers are devouring the crops in upper Nebraska and many of the South Dakota countries. More than 1200 persons of Union county, S. D., sought divine help for deliverance from the hungry hordes that have been ruining their fields. They gathered in a special religious service on the same spot where their fathers prayed for help for the same reason 60 years ago.

A reminder that the federal government, speaking through its agents, declared there was no fund which could be used for the purchase of poison to rid the western fields of the grasshopper pests. Man appears to be a puny creature at best. As a last resort he invokes the aid of his Creator. It has been so from the beginning of time and it will continue until time shall be no more.

GOVERNOR BILL BOWS TO THE LAW.

Governor Bill Murray of Oklahoma has put away his horse pistol and lifted his hat to the law. There is a free bridge open at Denison and those who prefer the toll bridge monopoly are granted the privilege. Thus it happens that a small tempest in a small tea pot has been dissipated, and Texas rangers and the national guardsmen have returned to their respective homes. "Free Bridges" for all is the slogan of the people of free states. This is not the ox cart period of civilization when wily politicians playing to the mob are permitted to confiscate or destroy private property. Even the stockholders in the toll bridge monopoly have rights which should be respected.

ADVERTISING THE LIFE OF TRADE.

All wise merchants know the value of advertising. All wise politicians know the value of advertising. All climbers, social and otherwise, know the value of publicity. Now it is said that a tablet will mark the site of Governor Murray's "great bridge war." This is what Governor Bill said to a news hound in defense of the tablet:

"You know every time Teddy Roosevelt came to a ditch or a creek in Cuba he had Gen. Wood stop and take a picture and send it back to the United States papers."

Thus it is that Governor Bill is walking in the footsteps of the immortal Teddy.

OTHER OPINIONS

THE APPEAL OF THE LOCOMOTIVE

Most small boys dream of becoming, in time, one of three things—a locomotive engineer, a fireman or a policeman.

The plight of Walter Roeschen of Philadelphia will, therefore, fall upon millions of sympathetic ears throughout this country.

Mr. Roeschen has for years been engineer on the Reading Express, a very fast passenger train deservingly nicknamed "the fastest of the rails." The other day they took Mr. Roeschen's beloved engine to roundhouse and in its place hooked up a smooth-running, powerful, silent electric locomotive.

"The old thrill is gone," grieved Mr. Roeschen. "You know there's something about an engine, you have to humor it."

Every locomotive, like every ship and automobile or any other machine, has its own characteristics. Some are contrary, some are sweet and sensible, some merely indifferent, neither fish, fish nor fowl.

But a locomotive is the most beautiful, most fascinating piece of machinery the ingenuity of man has ever devised. It appeals to the human as well as to the engine man. It has personality, pep, spirit and appeal. No wonder small boys hang out kitchen windows, their hands on Locomotives, and pretend to be driving a locomotive down the track. It is something that has appealed to the imagination of youth for nearly a hundred years, and no electric locomotive, no matter how sleek and shiny, can possibly serve as a suitable substitute. — Abilene Reporter.

citizens have attended Randolph and have thus kept above $20,000.00 of Cisco money at home. It is practically impossible for a student to go away even to the less expensive schools and spend as little as $500.00 per year. An examination of the expense page of the catalogue of any of these institutions will bear out the fact that $500.00 is a minimum. It would probably run nearer $700.00 per person per year. So it is a conservative estimate to say that Randolph each year is keeping $20,000.00 of Cisco money at home where it is being paid to Cisco citizens and is keeping up Cisco institutions.

Another benefit to Cisco is that Randolph college brings money into Cisco. As stated above the average student spends $500.00 per year in the town where he attends college. At least an average of 100 students from other communities attend Randolph each year and at the rate of $500.00 per person spend in Cisco an average of $50,000.00 per year. This money is paid to teachers who spend it in Cisco and is paid for feedstuff for the upkeep of the dining hall and for many other items, practically all of it going into the hands of Cisco business men. Another considerable amount of money Randolph brings into Cisco consists of gifts from churches and friends over the state. This varies from time to time but is always an appreciable sum. This money, likewise, flows into the business channels of Cisco.

So it seems, even when we do not count the cultural and other more or less intangible benefits, and count only the financial dividends derived, Randolph College is every year worth many thousands of dollars to Cisco. I wonder how many other institutions or firms of Cisco mean as much financially to our city as does Randolph. It was because I felt that the average citizen failed to realize just the extent of these benefits that I felt impelled to write this article.

It seems to me, since Randolph is worth so much to Cisco, that Cisco could ill afford, especially at this time, to lose Randolph and the benefits afforded by it. Why then, will not all loyal citizens rally to the aid of their college, not by gifts of money but by sending their children to be educated in her walls and by sympathetically helping to work out her problems. In my next article I will show in detail how the people of Cisco can help Randolph.

The home-coming which was held here last Friday proved quite a success in every way except that there was a larger crowd than had been expected and the four beeves that had been donated and had been barbecued the night before proved not quite enough. Plans for the gathering were not made until about a week before and considering the short time it was remarkable that people came from the Rio Grande Valley and from the northwest plains to meet with old friends.

A parade formed at 10 o'clock at the Methodist church and went through the main parts of town. About 40 decorated cars and trucks were in the parade, led by the little boys Rhythm Band. A large arbor had been built on the south side of Main Street and speeches were made there and music furnished by Abernathy brothers and Wayland Seal. Mount Vernon Replica Dry

PARIS, July 30. — The French Mount Vernon, replica of George Washington's mansion erected at the Colonial Exposition, is going to obey the prohibition amendment and is the driest spot in Paris.

Blascom Sloop, American High Commissioner at the Exposition, decided that Mount Vernon would be kept dry, even at the expense of exciting ridicule. There have been a number of garden parties there this summer, under the trees of the Vincennes forest but the punch was unspiked fruit juices.

"This is just another bit of American soil and the prohibition amendment to our constitution applied here just as much as it does in the states at home; our parties will certainly not be wet and our punches will be above reproach," Sloop said.

Embassy officials were not asked for a ruling, but pointed out today that the Embassy, which is also considered as American soil is "wet" and that cocktails and wines are served at Embassy functions.

Most of the buildings at the Exposition and all of the restaurants are "wet" and at all the official functions, champagne corks pop and native liquors provide enthusiastic atmosphere. For visitors to the exposition there are 27 cocktail bars and two beer gardens, one of which is adjoining the American building.

WISCONSIN'S SOLONS DELAY REDISTRICTING

MADISON Wis., July 30.—Wisconsin's representatives in congress may be elected at large in 1932.

The 1931 legislature adjourned without reappointing the state to eliminate one of Wisconsin's 11 districts, necessary under recent population changes.

Reapportioning plans were considered by the legislators until various congressmen began to apply pressure to protect their districts. Then the matter was dropped to prevent prolonging the session.

Up to Congressmen

Now the LaFollette administration has let it be known that unless the congressmen agree on which one of their number is to be sacrificed, they will be deprived of a district benefit and selection of 10 representatives at large will be left to voters of the entire state next year.

Election of representatives at large instead of by districts might be a shrewd move on the part of the progressive republican faction headed by Gov. Philip P. LaFollette, giving his group control of the entire Wisconsin delegation.

Aids Progressives

LaFollette was elected by a plurality of 123,906 votes. That fact promises aid for other progressives who may campaign against regular republicans on a state-wide basis. Two republicans and a democrat are among the present Wisconsin delegation. The district of the late Rep. Harry Allen Cooper would be likely to elect a regular republican if the election is limited to district boundaries. Running at large means certain political death for some of these incumbents.

Reapportionment may be considered at a special session which the governor has promised to call in the winter. It is his privilege to specify what subjects shall be considered there. The congressmen have learned that reapportionment will not be included unless they get together on one elimination. And none of them seems willing to part with his job.

GAMING SHIFTS SITE AT JUAREZ

JUAREZ, Mex., July 30.—The Americans are doing more of their drinking and gambling now just where the state of Chihuahua wants them to indulge.

The campaign to tell Americans where to drink and gamble has ended in victory for Governor Andres Ortiz of Chihuahua, although for a time a general strike in Juarez was threatened as a protest.

Gambling is said to have increased four-fold at the Casino Turista Internacional. Business in the uptown saloons also is said to have picked up.

The reason the governor was so solicitous about business in the uptown section of Juarez is that it is from those sources that the state gains most of its tax revenue. And right now, politicians say, it is imperative that the state's income be increased because the state's coffers are low.

So to fill the treasury again the governor took drastic steps to increase business uptown here. When he was at first unsuccessful in having the Santa Fe street bridge closed to pedestrians coming from El Paso, he decreed that 12 saloons near the bridge must close at 9 o'clock nightly. His object in closing the bridge to pedestrians was to force them to go across the Stanton street bridge and thus go through town instead of paying the saloons near the other bridge.

Then the labor unions threatened a general strike in Juarez unless the saloons were allowed to remain open until midnight as formerly. A compromise was arranged whereby American pedestrians are not permitted to cross the Santa Fe street bridge from El Paso, while the saloons were granted permission to stay open until midnight.

Sorghum Would Deplete Farms Giles Figures

AUSTIN, July 30.—If the state wants to destroy its soil twice as fast as at present, the best way to do it is to require that cotton land be turned into sorghum land, according to figures Rep. Eugene V. Giles Austin, has prepared to offer in contesting the cotton acreage bill.

Corn wheat sorghum hay and oats all deplete the soil of its fertility units more rapidly than cotton, according to Rep. Giles' figures.

That means that by requiring cotton land of one year be planted in other crops the next additional fertility depletion would be caused, Mr. Giles said.

The figures were based on nitrogen at 32 cents a pound, phosphate AC and potash at 6 cents a pound. Following are the amounts of fertility taken from an acre of land by average crops in one year by each of the five crops, according to Mr. Giles' figures:

Cotton	$3.42
Wheat	4.35
Corn	4.69
Oats	5.83
Sorghum hay	7.14

HOPI INDIANS PREPARE FOR ANNUAL SNAKE DANCE

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., July 30.—Under a blazing desert sun far out in the wastes of the Arizona desert-land, chiefs of the mess-dwelling Hopi Indians make plans for the most savage of southwestern Indian rituals—the Hopi Snake Dance. The rites are held in August.

Mystic signs, shadows cast by the sun or moon, according to legend, set the date for the Hopis to plead for the Gods of the Underworld to turn the rain. Runners carry news of the date across the desert to the seven mesas about 15 days before the dance.

If custom is followed, dances will be held at Walpi and Mishongvovi, because this season in Hopi calculations is an odd numbered year. On even numbered years the ceremonies are held at Hotevill, Shipaolovi and Shunupovi, larger of the settlements.

Dead Clan Leader.

Mystery shrouds the death of Chief Shu-pela, high priest of the Snake Clan. Whether a successor will be named the Indians declined to say but the ceremonies will continue as usual. The aged clan leader, director of the ceremonies for many years, died last winter and fears that the dances would be discontinued were current.

For years Chief Shu-pela directed the ceremony. He participated in the heathen prayer to the Rain Gods of the Underworld by chanting to the sacred messenger—the snakes of the desert.

The actual dance is spectacular and draws thousands across the desert to the magnetic Hopi and Two clans are active in the rites.

The Antelope Clan, closely united with the Snakemen since a legendary antelope was saved by a snake who cured the animal after injecting deadly poison into its body, sing and dance during the rain prayer. From 60 to 80 snakes, more than half of them deadly rattlers, are used. The snake priests dance with the snakes for more than an hour at locations in the center of the pueblos built on high mesas.

Striking Spectacle.

The snakes are handed to members of the snake clan from a kilt, a beaver built of cottonwood boughs, while the antelope clansmen chant heathen prayers to the accompaniment of rattlers and throbbing tom-toms. Painted in gaudy fashion, the dancers present a striking spectacle with the buzzing rattlesnakes

CORN KING SEES SOUTHWEST AS FARM CENTER

LUBBOCK, July 30.—Because of high priced lands and rapidly lessening fertility of soils, the southern farmer is through, according to the belief of the Corn King of America, W. J. (Bill) Casey, of Dalhart, Texas, who operates 8,000 acres in the Texas Panhandle and whose 1931 crop will make approximately 150,000 bushels.

"The farmer of the middle west, of the corn belt," Casey explains, "has seen the end of his heyday. The future of agriculture lies in the southwest."

And I am of the opinion that the most successful future farm operations will very likely be carried on by folks not now engaged in the business.

Future Farmers.

Men experienced in operating factories, business men from the cities, these are to be America's future farmers. They understand machinery and financing. Few farmers can succeed in these days who do not understand these two elements.

The corn king earns his title by operating his 8,000 acres. Six thousand of these acres are planted to corn this year, with 2,000 acres in silo maize. Last year's corn crop totaled 100,000 bushels. This year's likely will be 150,000 bushels.

Casey started in 1926 with 320 acres. Through the extensive use of power machinery he has expanded to his present vast acreage. With a row of corn to every 42 inches, he explains in telling of the job of weeding, cultivating and harvesting his crop, if these rows were butted end to end they would stretch out for 15,000 miles.

100,000 Miles for Machinery.

My power machinery travels 100,000 miles to complete all preparations and all harvesting," he said. "When I tell friends from Iowa that my production cost on corn is but $4 per acre, about 15 per cent of what they are accustomed to, they hardly believe me."

An average yield of 25 bushels an acre is harvested, white and yellow dent corn predominating among the varieties raised.

It is the corn king's contention that large scale farming will eventually come to a piece-work basis. Up to now he has been employing tenants for cultivation of much of his property. Next year it is his anticipation to supervise everything himself.

"SORRY, MADAM, ... WE WON'T HAVE ANY 'TIL NEXT WEEK"

WHILE shopping for some household supply, you have often been advised, "Sorry, Madam, but we won't have any 'til next week." Perhaps you thought little about this incident, but there are many reasons why you were not supplied the article you wanted—when you wanted it. Someone may have forgotten to replenish the supply; or neglected to provide enough to meet the demand; or inadequate transportation facilities delayed the delivery. Any one of these reasons may have caused you inconvenience.

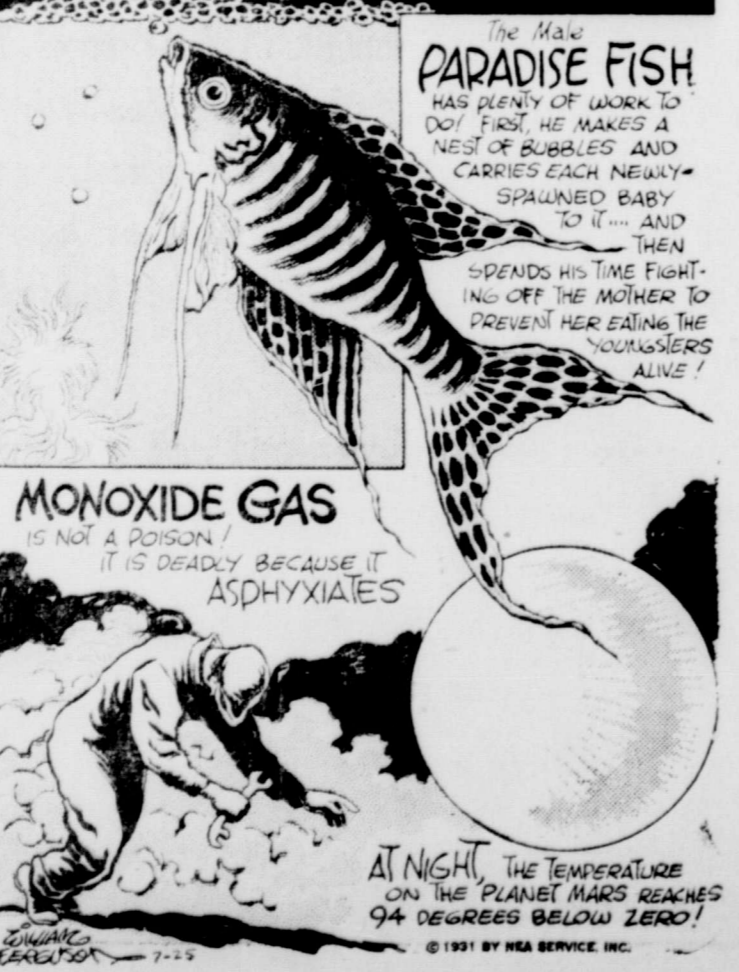

Imagine your gas company telling you in the middle of a "blue norther"—"Sorry, Madam, but we won't have any gas until next week." Sounds absurd, doesn't it? Yet there are definite reasons why LONE STAR SERVICE is uninterrupted. It is there when and as you want it, because a quarter of a century has been spent in building a faithful gas service . . . the lowest priced dependable fuel service obtainable.

Even during summer months, when the domestic consumer requires very little fuel, Lone Star Gas Company is maintaining its facilities to combat weather hazards of the bleak months of winter.

Liane, who is beautiful, poor, falls in love with a rich man, Van Robard. Her mother, Cass Barrett, who has nothing to do with the girl's life, plays around with many professions to care for her. A reporter, but becomes engaged to her and wishes to please her. Liane promises to other, Cass Barrett, who will give her millions on his wedding. Cass falls ill and in her delirium she tells of some mystery in the girl's birth.

Van Robard, who with her sister, Amberly, is visiting her. She comes between her and her mother, who is warned off by McDermid, police officer in charge of Liane. At a ball for the benefit of Slavaria, Liane is seduced by a gang seeking Van Robard. Clive and her mother pursue the kidnappers, but are rescued without serious injury.

Liane is alarmed and urges a marriage. Liane is driving to New York for a fitting her gown when the car breaks and Robard comes along.

GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXI

"Only a flat, Miss Barrett," said disquietedly, "but Madame wants to make time and this is a bit." "I have no garage anywhere in the city," Liane said, anxiously watching. "I can change it in a jiffy," assured her. "I took out my vanity case and absent-mindedly to open her eyes in this occupation, she heard the purring of a motor car drawn up beside her. She looked mockingly. "Is the car yours?" "No, it's my father's," she said. "I can change it in a jiffy," assured her. gives her thoughts to the affianced, to another.

Carefully they helped Liane out of the gown. Miss Lilly buttoned her into the smoke-colored frock.

"They treat me," marveled Liane, "as if I were a princess. She smiled at them, told them the dress was beautiful. Miss Lilly said, impetuously, "I should like to come to your wedding, Miss Barrett." She always said that to her brides and seldom meant it. This time she meant what she said. Liane said, "I'll be sure to send you an invitation." Dreamily she smiled at the other girl.

She was not really thinking of them. She was wondering what she would say to Van Robard who waited for her in his long, low car. She was trying on the dress she would wear to her wedding but her love was given to another man.

Over the table in a quiet, secluded little restaurant, Van said, "I told Kelly you would be delayed. He'll pick you up at the Ritz at four."

Troubled, Liane looked across at him. "If anyone should see us here," she murmured, "there'd be gossip. I should hate that for Clive's sake."

"What nonsense! Even Eva would not mind. Why, I'm almost one of the family!"

Liane laughed, suddenly light-hearted and determined to enjoy the interlude. "I suppose you are, I'm foolish to worry."

He covered her hand, the one with the engagement ring, with his own brown one.

"You're a darling even if you are foolish. His eyes crossed her. "You're not very polite." She tried to appear dignified.

"Do you want me to be? One is polite only to the people one cares nothing about."

He bent his head to light a cigarette. Covertly she studied his averted face. Always when those dark eyes of his burned deeply into her own she became confused. Now her glance devoured each hand.

power to sway her against her better judgment?

Van set his lips. "Very well. I've been wrong about you from the first then."

This tore from her an agonized, "Why?"

He said cruelly, "You're after the millionaire baby just as they all say."

She stared at him, stabbed to the heart. Pride came to her rescue at last. "It's nice to know what you really think of me." She gathered up her gloves.

"Don't go. You know I didn't really mean it."

She thought, "Oh, if I could only hate him! That would be everything!"

Miss Barrett is lovely," muttered Mademoiselle, falling back a few steps and clasping her hands.

Liane glanced dreamily at herself in the long mirror. Startled, she beheld her own image. She stared at herself as if, indeed, it were a stranger she beheld.

The dress was exquisite. There was no least doubt about that. It followed the style of a more romantic period. The fitted bodice, long tight sleeves, the graceful flow of the long full skirt suited her exactly. Above the artfully fitting bodice her throat and shoulders were exquisite. Miss Lilly, watching her, thought there was something vaguely Florentine about the girl.

She thought, "If all our brides looked like this I shouldn't mind raving about them." Aloud she said, "But it's too divine! Miss Barrett, you are beautiful!"

Liane colored. "Thank you," she was not used to fulsome compliments.

Mademoiselle thought with Gallic shrewdness, "The young miss is sad today. One wonders if she is really afraid I'll have to take her into his car. She is so suddenly conscious of her own of her slowness and slim in the smoke-colored frock."

He did not answer. The red flashed on and Van brought engine to a standstill. He had meant in which to turn to her, her hand with his free. "You and I have so much to each other, sweet," he told. "And well do you know it!"

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

FATE OF THE ROBBER: — Behold at evening tide trouble; and before the morning he is not. This is the portion of them that spoil us, and the lot of them that rob us.—Isaiah 17: 14.

FRANCE BLOCKS DISARMAMENT.

France has notified the League of Nations that disarmament is a political rather than a technical question, that French armaments have been reduced to the lowest possible point and the declaration is considered in the capitals of the world that France would find it necessary to make increases in armaments in case any actions were taken relieving Germany of the limitations imposed by the Versailles treaty. France is willing to trade. France advises the League of Nations to adopt the plan of a world military and naval force to bring about universal peace before the arms conference shall declare for a policy of world disarmament. France has a navy that is the pride of its people. France has a greater number of war planes than any other nation. France enunciated the principal point from the Hoover moratorium proposal. Now France is not going to agree to even partial disarmament unless the League of Nations furnishes the world an army and world navy to compel all nations and all men to get together for a common purpose. French statesmen think they hold four aces. Maybe they know their cards. Germany defied the world. What happened to Germany? Go ask the kaiser at Doorn. Go ask Wargod Mars. Go ask the army of broken crown princes and grand dukes and the beggared nobles of many lands that were thrown in the discard when the sword dreamers found themselves the battered relics of a dead civilization.

FARMERS LIVE UP TO LOAN PACTS.

Director G. L. Hoffman who handled the federal loans to farmers of the country reports that the government is well satisfied with the way the farmers who received drought loans last year are living up to their obligations. Inspectors of the agricultural seed loan department have found that virtually every one has kept his agreement to plant and cultivate carefully the crops upon which the government took a lien for security. Also, many repayments have already been made. Encouraging to say the least. Farmers as a class hold their pledges sacred. Just now in the Dakotas and Nebraska they are facing the largest army of grasshoppers ever known in that section of the United States.

Is farming a gamble? The answer is yes—at all times and in all countries.

PROSECUTORS AND THE FEE SYSTEM.

District and county attorneys are holding their annual convention in the city of Houston. Abolition of the fee system in favor of a graduated salary system was recommended by the resolutions committee. As for the Sheriffs association of Texas, that organization is on record for the institution of a straight salary schedule for all Texas officials. Why not? The fee system is a relic of barbarism. Servants of the people should be paid straight salaries and all the fees should be placed in the treasury of the state. Forty years ago the reformers launched a movement to do away with the system and yet it is in evidence today.

GOVERNOR "BILL" DECLARES A MORATORIUM.

Governor Murray of Oklahoma has declared a moratorium on payment of rentals on 340,000 acres of farm lands owned by the state as school lands. His executive order affected 2120 preference right lease holders. And the state school land commission unanimously approved the moratorium. Deferred payments will bear 10 per cent interest as compensation to the state for delay in collection. Now the Oklahoma democrats have two favorite sons advised as presidential timber. Who will be given the state delegation in 1932—Political Bill or Humorist Bill? Political Bill started on his upward flight as a farm boy in a West Texas county. He has been farming ever since.

FIGURES ON DAN CUPID

Marriage decreased 8.5 per cent and divorces 4.2 per cent in the United States during 1930. There were 1,128,180 marriages in 1930, and 191,630 divorces. Marriage is not only a venerable institution but it is a permanent institution. There are a lot of misfit tie-ups but why worry? This is woman's age. There are millions of women wage earners and matrimony isn't the first and last resort as it was in years gone by.

TEXAS SENATORS AND THE RATE INCREASE.

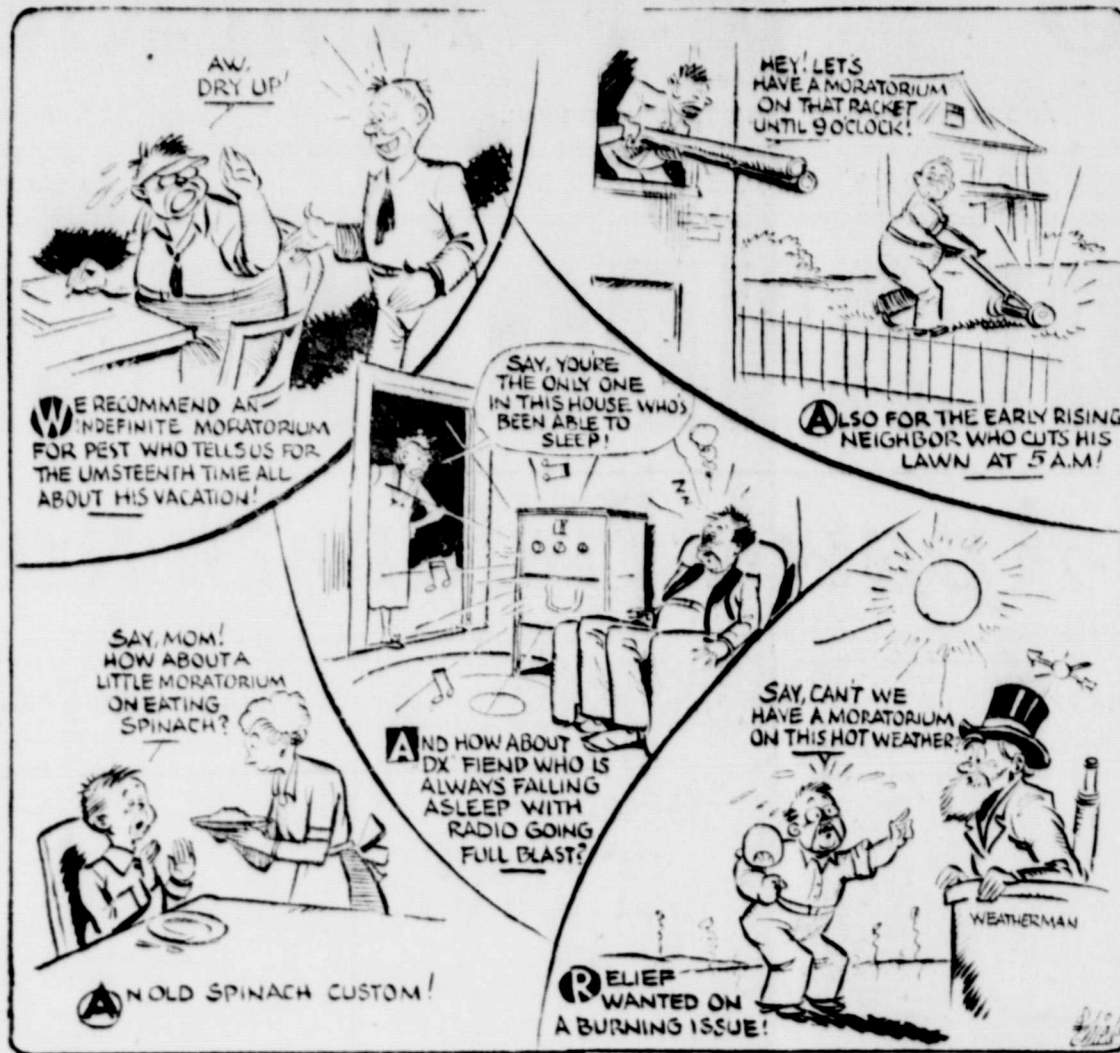

Of interest to the shippers is the action of the state senate of Texas, which voted unanimously to ask the Interstate Commerce Commission not to grant a 15 per cent general increase in freight rates now being sought by the railways. It was predicted by lawmakers that the house would pass a resolution by an overwhelming vote. Just now the Interstate Commerce Commission is having troubles of its own and as for the railways their operators say that the increase must be given or disastrous results will follow.

FARMERS PRAY FOR DIVINE RELIEF.

Grasshoppers are devouring the crops in upper Nebraska and many of the South Dakota countries. More than 1200 persons of Union county, S. D., sought divine help for deliverance from the hungry hordes that have been ruining their fields. They gathered in a special religious service on the same spot where their fathers prayed for help for the same reason 60 years ago.

A reminder that the federal government, speaking through its agents, declared there was no fund which could be used for the purchase of poison to rid the western fields of the grasshopper pests. Man appears to be a pious creature at best. As a last resort he invokes the aid of his Creator. It has been so from the beginning of time and it will continue until time shall be no more.

A Few "Moratoriums" We Might Consider Next!

GOVERNOR BILL BOWS TO THE LAW.

Governor Bill Murray of Oklahoma has put away his horse pistol and lifted his hat to the law. There is a free bridge open at Denison and those who prefer the toll bridge monopoly are granted the privilege. Thus it happens that a small tempest in a small tea pot has been dissipated, and Texas rangers and the national guardsmen have returned to their respective homes. "Free Bridges" for all is the slogan of the people of free states. This is not the ox cart period of civilization when wily politicians playing to the mob are permitted to confiscate or destroy private property. Even the stockholders in the toll bridge monopoly have rights which should be respected.

ADVERTISING THE LIFE OF TRADE.

All wise merchants know the value of advertising. All wise politicians know the value of advertising. All climbers, social and otherwise, know the value of publicity. Now it is said that a tablet will mark the site of Governor Murray's "great bridge war." This is what Governor Bill said to a news hound in defense of the tablet:

"You know every time Teddy Roosevelt came to a ditch or a creek in Cuba he had Gen. Wood stop and take a picture and send it back to the United States papers."

Thus it is that Governor Bill is walking in the footsteps of the immortal Teddy.

OTHER OPINIONS

THE APPEAL OF THE LOCOMOTIVE

Most small boys dream of becoming, in time, one of three things — a locomotive engineer, a fireman or a policeman.

The plaint of Walter Reeschen of Philadelphia will therefore tell upon millions of sympathetic ears throughout this country.

Mr. Reeschen has for years been engineer on the Reading Express, a very fast passenger train despoiling the overworked destination of "crack." The other day they took Mr. Reeschen's beloved engine to roundhouse and in its place hooked up a smooth-running, powerful, silent electric locomotive.

"The old thrill is gone," grieved Mr. Reeschen. "You know there's something about an engine, you have to humor it."

Every locomotive, like every ship and automobile or any other machine, has its own characteristics. Some are contrary, some are sweet and sensible, some merely indifferent, neither fish, flesh nor fowl.

But a locomotive is the most beautiful, most fascinating piece of machinery the ingenuity of man has ever devised. It appeals to the layman as well as to the engineer. It has personality, pep, spirit and appeal. No wonder small boys hang out kitchen windows, their hands on breadbushes, and pretend to be driving a locomotive down the track. It is something that has appealed to the imagination of youth for nearly a hundred years, and no child's locomotive, no matter how sleek and shiny, can possibly serve as a suitable substitute. — Abilene Reporter.

Cisco, Texas.

citizens have attended Randolph and have thus kept above $20,000.00 of Cisco money at home. It is practically impossible for a student to go away even to the less expensive schools and spend as little as $500.00 per year. An examination of the expense page of the catalogue of any of these institutions will bear out the fact that $500.00 is a minimum. It would probably run nearer $700.00 per person per year. So it is a conservative estimate to say that Randolph each year is keeping $20,000.00 of Cisco money at home where it is being paid to Cisco citizens and is keeping up Cisco institutions.

Another benefit to Cisco is that Randolph college brings money into Cisco. As stated above the average student spends $500.00 per year in the town where he attends college. At least an average of 100 students from other communities attend Randolph each year and at the rate of $500.00 per person spend in Cisco an average of $50,000.00 per year. This money is paid to teachers who spend it in Cisco and is paid for foodstuff for the upkeep of the dining hall and for many other items, practically all of it going into the hands of Cisco business men. Another considerable amount of money Randolph brings into Cisco consists of gifts from churches and friends over the state. This varies from time to time but is always an appreciable sum. This money, likewise, flows into the business channels of Cisco.

So it seems, even when we do not count the cultural and other more or less intangible benefits, and count only the financial dividends derived, Randolph College is every year worth many thousands of dollars to Cisco. I wonder how many other institutions or firms of Cisco mean as much financially to our city as does Randolph. It was because I felt that the average citizen failed to realize just the extent of these benefits that I felt impelled to write this article.

It seems to me, since Randolph is worth so much to Cisco, that Cisco could ill afford, especially at this time, to lose Randolph and the benefits afforded by it. Why then, will not all loyal citizens rally to the aid of their college, not by gifts of money but by sending their children to be educated in her walls and by sympathetically helping to work out her problems. In my next article I will show in detail how the people of Cisco can help Randolph.

WISCONSIN'S SOLONS DELAY REDISTRICTING

MADISON, Wis., July 30.—Wisconsin's representatives in congress may be elected at large in 1932. The 1931 legislative adjourned without reappointing the state to eliminate one of Wisconsin's 11 districts, necessary under recent population changes.

Reapportionment plans were considered by the legislators until various congressmen began to apply pressure to protect their districts. Then the matter was dropped to prevent prolonging the session.

Up to Congressmen

Now the LaFollette administration has let it be known that unless the congressmen agree on which one of their number is to be sacrificed, they will be deprived of district benefits and reelection of 10 representatives at large will be left to voters of the entire state next year.

Election of representatives at large instead of by districts might be a shrewd move on the part of the progressive republican faction headed by Gov. Philip F. LaFollette, giving his group control of the entire Wisconsin delegation.

Aids Progressives

LaFollette was elected by a plurality of 125,906 votes. That fact promises good for other progressives who may campaign against regular republicans on a state-wide basis. Two meetings and a democratic pre among the present Wisconsin delegation. The district of the late Rep. Henry Allen Cooper would be likely to elect a regular republican if the election is limited to district boundaries. Running at large means certain political death for some of these incumbents.

Reapportionment may be considered at a special session which the governor has promised to call this winter. It is his privilege to specify what subjects shall be considered there. The congressmen have learned that reapportionment will not be included unless they get together on one combination. And none of them seems willing to part with his job.

GAMING SHIFTS SITE AT JUAREZ

JUAREZ, Mex., July 30.—The Americans are doing more of drinking and gambling now just where the state of Chihuahua wants them to indulge.

The campaign to tell Americans where to drink and gamble has ended in victory for Governor Andres Ortiz, of Chihuahua, although for a time a general strike in Juarez was threatened as a protest.

Gambling is said to have increased four-fold at the Casino Turista International. Business in the uptown saloons also is said to have picked up.

The reason the governor was so reticent about business in the uptown section of Juarez is that it is from these sources that the state gains most of its tax revenue. And right now politicians say it is imperative that the state's income be increased because the state's coffers are low.

So to fill the treasury again the governor took drastic steps to increase business uptown here. When he was at first unsuccessful in having the Santa Fe street bridge closed to pedestrians coming from El Paso, he decreed that 12 saloons near the bridge must close at 9 o'clock nightly. His object in closing the bridge to pedestrians was to force them to go across the Stanton street bridge and thus go through town instead of patronizing the saloons near the other bridge.

Then the labor unions threatened a general strike in Juarez unless the saloons were allowed to remain open until midnight as formerly.

A compromise was arranged whereby American pedestrians were permitted to cross the Santa Fe street bridge from El Paso while the saloons were granted permission to stay open until midnight.

Sorghum Would Deplete Farms Giles Figures

AUSTIN, July 30.—If the state wants to destroy its soil prices as fast as at present, the best way to destroy it will be to require that cotton land be turned into sorghum lay land, according to figures Rep. Eugene V. Giles Austin, has prepared to offer in connection with the cotton acreage bill.

Corn, wheat, sorghum hay and oats all deplete the soil of its fertility units more rapidly than cotton, according to Rep. Giles' figures.

That means that by requiring cotton land of one year be planted in other crops the next, additional fertility depletion would be caused, Mr. Giles said.

The figures were based on nitrogen at 32 cents a pound, phosphate AC and potash at 4 cents a pound. Following are the amounts of fertility taken from an acre of land by average crops in one year by each of the five crops, according to Mr. Giles' figures:

Cotton	$3.42
Wheat	4.35
Corn	4.69
Oats	5.83
Sorghum hay	7.14

HOPHI INDIANS PREPARE FOR ANNUAL SNAKE DANCE

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., July 30.—Under a blazing desert sun far out in the wastes of the Arizona desert-land, chiefs of the mesa-dwelling Hopi Indians snake clans are turning their attention toward the most savage of southwestern Indian rituals—the Hopi Snake Dance. The rites are held in August.

Mystic signs, shadows cast by the sun, moon, according to legend, set the date for the Hopis to plead for the Gods of the Underworld to send rain. Runners carry news of the date across the desert to the seven mesas about 15 days before the dance.

If custom is followed, dances will be held at Walpi and Mishongvili because this season in Hopi calculations is an odd numbered year. On even-numbered years the ceremonies are held at Hotavili, Shipaulovi and Shungopovi, larger of the settlements.

Use of medicines prepared by aged squaws prevents rattlesnake poison from causing the dancers illness, but the contents of the mixture are closely guarded as a secret and remains as much of a mystery as other phases of a fast vanishing savage rite—the Hopi Snake Dance.

Dead Clan Leader.

Mystery surrounds the death of Chief Shu-pela, high priest of the Snake Clan. Whether a successor will be named the Indians declined to say but the ceremonies will continue as usual. The aged clan leader, director of the ceremonies for many years, died last winter and fears that the dances would be discontinued were current.

For years Chief Shu-pela directed the ceremony. He participated in the heathen prayer to the Rain Gods of the Underworld by chanting to the sacred messenger—the snakes of the desert.

The actual dance is spectacular and draws thousands across the desert to the magnetic Hopiland. Two clans are active in the rites.

The Antelope Clan, closely united with the Snakemen since a legendary antelope was saved by a snake who cured the animal after injecting deadly poison into its body, sing and dance during the rain prayer.

From 60 to 80 snakes, more than half of them deadly rattlers, are used. The snake priests dance with the snakes for more than an hour at locations in the center of the pueblo built on high mesas.

Striking spectacle.

The snakes are handed to members of the snake clan from a kiva, a lower built of cottonwood boughs, while the antelope clansmen chant heathen prayers to the accompaniment of rattlers and throbbing tom-toms. Painted in gaudy fashion, the dancers present a striking spectacle with the buzzing rattlesnakes.

CORN KING SEES SOUTHWEST AS FARM CENTER

LUBBOCK, July 30.—Because of high priced lands and rapidly lessening fertility of soils the southern farmer is through, according to the belief of the Corn King of America, W. J. (Bill) Casey, of Dalhart, Texas, who operates 8,000 acres in the Texas Panhandle and whose 1931 crop will make approximately 150,000 bushels.

"The farmer of the middle west or of the corn belt," Casey explains, "has seen the end of his heyday. The future of agriculture lies in the southwest."

"And I am of the opinion that the most successful future farm operations will very likely be carried on by folks not now engaged in the business."

Future Farmers.

Men experienced in operating factories, business men from the cities, these are to be America's future farmers. They understand machinery and financing. Few farmers can succeed in these days who do not understand these two elements.

The corn king earns his title by operating his 8,000 acres. Six thousand of these acres are planted to corn this year, with 2,000 acres in silo maize. Last year's corn crop totaled 100,000 bushels. This year's likely will be 150,000 bushels.

Casey started in 1926 with 320 acres. Through the extensive use of power machinery he has expanded to his present vast acreage. With a row of corn to every 42 inches, he is saving in tilling of the job of weeding, cultivating and harvesting his crop. If these rows were butted end to end they would stretch out for 15,000 miles.

100,000 Miles for Machinery.

My power machinery travels 100,000 miles to complete all preparations and all harvesting," he said. "When I tell friends from Iowa that my production cost on corn is but 84 per acre, about 15 per cent of what they are accustomed to, they hardly believe me."

An average yield of 25 bushels an acre is harvested, white and yellow dent corn predominating among the varieties raised.

It is the corn king's contention that large scale farming will eventually come to a piece-work basis. Up to now he has been employing tenants for cultivation of much of his property. Next year it is his anticipation to supervise everything himself.

PENNSY HIGHWAY PATROL TURNS DOWN GIANT ROOKIE

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 30.—A recruit applied to the State Highway Patrol. He was a strapping big fellow, six feet five inches in his stocking feet.

Captain W. C. Price, superintendent of the Pennsylvania Patrol, looked the youth over. He smiled at the rookie and told him to mount a motorcycle.

It was found that a motorcycle handlebars can't accommodate knees attached to such a tall man. Captain Price decided that six feet five inches is a fine height for a drum major, but that it was too tall for a patrolman. He then decided all candidates must be at least five feet eight inches tall but that their height should not exceed six feet.

BEARS AND DEER FEASTING.

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 30.—Bears and deer have been feasting beautifully this summer in Pennsylvania.

BERWICK, Pa., July 30.—Some of the Pennsylvania territory included in the new 15th Congressional District showed the district to be four times the size of the Delaware, and about the same as Connecticut.

The 15th District comprises Bradford, Chambers, Monroe, York, Sullivan, Susquehanna, Wayne and Wyoming counties with a total area of 4,716 square miles.

Rhode Island's area is given as 1,248 square miles; Delaware, 2,370; and Connecticut as 4,960. Bradford is the largest county in the district with 1,145 square miles.

The district is reported to be one of the largest in area in the eastern section of the United States.

POLICEMAN CHEATS SHARE OF NICE TROUT DISH

ELCOMBSBURG, Pa., July 30.—A 10-inch trout owes its life to Pits Hower, Bloomsburg sportsman, according to Hower's story. He said that he saw the trout held firmly in the mouth of a fisher snake. The trout struggled until Hower frightened the snake, stoning it.

The trout was released and the fisher and captive disappeared into the stream in which they had been struggling.

"SORRY, MADAM, ... WE WON'T HAVE ANY 'TIL NEXT WEEK"

WHILE shopping for some household supply, you have often been advised, "Sorry, Madam, but we won't have any 'til next week." Perhaps you thought little about this incident, but there are many reasons why you were not supplied the article you wanted—when you wanted it. Someone may have forgotten to replenish the supply; or neglected to provide enough to meet the demand; or inadequate transportation facilities delayed the delivery. Any one of these reasons may have caused you inconvenience.

Imagine your gas company telling you in the middle of a "blue norther"—"Sorry, Madam, but we won't have any gas until next week." Sounds absurd, doesn't it? Heart of Liane

by MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Barrett, who is beautiful, poor, falls in love with a man of the world, Van Robard, who is rich, and who has a heart as large as the same.

Her mother, Cass Barrett, who is a fortune teller, tells her to marry Van Robard, but she refuses to do so.

Her mother, Cass Barrett, who is a fortune teller, tells her to marry Van Robard, but she refuses to do so.

Her mother, Cass Barrett, who is a fortune teller, tells her to marry Van Robard, but she refuses to do so.

She is alarmed and urges a marriage. Liane is driving Van Robard to a fitting of her gown when the car breaks and Robard comes along.

GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XX

Liane followed her into a lilac-draped cubicle. With infinite care she was helped off with her smart, black dress. Miss Lilly, a tall, red-haired girl with a matchless Irish complexion, appeared.

Liane glanced drearily at herself in the long mirror. She stared at herself as if, indeed, it were a stranger she beheld.

Liane glanced drearily at herself in the long mirror. She stared at herself as if, indeed, it were a stranger she beheld.

The dress was exquisite. Miss Lilly, watching her, thought there was something vaguely Florentine about the girl.

She thought, "If all our brides looked like this I shouldn't mind raving about them." Aloud she said, "But it's too divine!"

Rev. I. N. Demy says:

gives her thoughts to the affianced, to another.

Carefully they helped Liane out of the gown. Miss Lilly buttoned her into the smoke colored frock.

"They treat me," marveled Liane, "as if I were a princess."

She smiled at them, told them the dress was beautiful. Miss Lilly said, impetuously, "I should like to come to your wedding, Miss Barrett." She always said that to "her brides" and seldom meant it. This time she meant what she said.

Liane said, "I'll be sure to send you an invitation." Dreamily she smiled at the other girl.

She was not really thinking of them. She was wondering what she would say to Van Robard who waited for her in his long, low car. She was trying on the dress she would wear to her wedding but her love was given to another man.

Over the table in a quiet, secluded little restaurant, Van said, "I told Kelly you would be delayed. He'll pick you up at the Ritz at four."

Troubled, Liane looked across at him. "If anyone should see us here," she murmured, "there'd be gossip. I should hate that for Clive's sake."

"What nonsense! Even Eva would not mind. Why, I'm almost one of the family!"

Liane laughed, suddenly light-hearted and determined to enjoy the interlude. "I suppose you are, I'm foolish to worry."

He covered her hand, the one with the engagement ring, with his own brown one.

"You're a darling even if you are foolish." His eyes crossed her. "You're not very polite." She tried to appear dignified.

"Do you want me to be? One is polite only to the people one cares nothing about."

He bent his head to light a cigaret. Covertly she studied his averted face. Always when those dark eyes of his burned deeply into her own she became confused. Now her glance devoured each hand- other, whose very presence had the

"This tore from her an agonized, 'Why?'"

He said cruelly, "You're after the millionaire baby just as they all say."

She stared at him, stabbed to the heart. Pride came to her rescue at last. "It's nice to know what you really think of me." She gathered up her gloves.

"Don't go. You know I didn't really mean it."

She thought, "Oh, if I could only hate him! That would cure everything!"

Last Buffalo Herd Offered To State

AUSTIN, July 30. — The last herd of buffalo in Texas, 230 strong, remnant of the countless swarms of the giant picturesque monarchs of the plains, is being offered to the state of Texas for official keeping in a state park set aside as their last reservation, like the restricted "range" of their ancient Redskin antagonists.

Fred L. Hackett, who grew up with the west, an intimate of the late Col. Charles Goodnight, has been at work in Austin to get the state game department to make of the historic ranch at Goodnight, Texas, a state game park, with the remaining buffalo free to roam its rugged hills, the property of all the people, a living landmark of the past.

Whether he'll win is to be decided, but the state cannot but feel a keen interest in the buffalo, preserved for half a century by the venerable old patriot of the plains, Col. Goodnight.

"HUMAN PIN CUSHION" STUDIED BY EXPERTS
LORAIN, O., July 30. — Due to an abnormality of his nervous system, Walter Essler, known here as a "human pin cushion," can pierce his face and arms with needles without feeling any pain.

Physicians say his is a remarkable case of sensory anesthesia, with the explanation that the nerves which carry the sensations of pain as well as of heat and cold to the brain do not function in his body.

But specialists point out he faces a real peril in that he may develop acute indigestion, or appendicitis, or some other form of illness in which pain is the chief warning and his condition might become critical without his having any warning.
