Schools to Open With Exercises for Patrons Monday

CHANGES IN SYSTEM TO BE EXPLAINED

The Cisco public schools will formally open their doors Monday morning with exercises at 9 a. m. at the high and ward buildings. The program at the high school will be for patrons of the school in particular. At that time the changes to be inaugurated this year in the administration of the system and the courses of study that will be offered will be explained in detail by school officials, Supt. R. N. Cluck said.

Divisional lines as between the various ward schools will also be published in the Daily News. There will be no registration of pupils until Monday, it was announced. A list of fees to be charged for library, laboratory and other privileges will be announced shortly and students registering are expected to have their fees with them when they appear for registration.

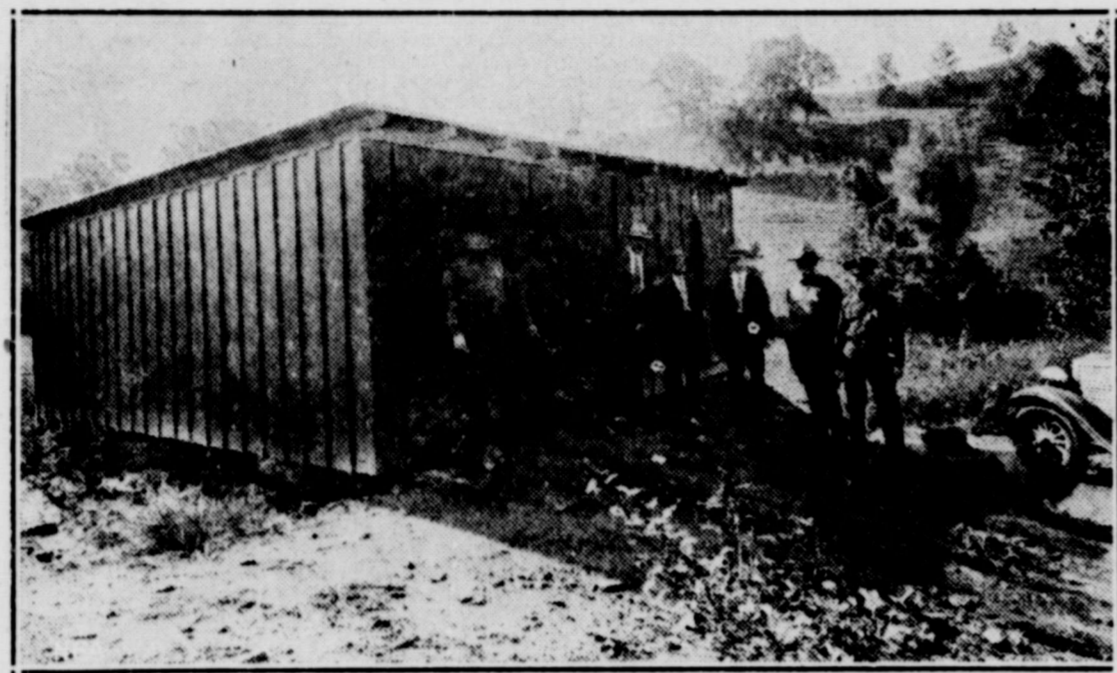

About 350 students are expected to attend the high school. Principal Hiram Brandon said. Estimate of the total attendance is roughly between 1,400 and 1,500 students.

Mr. Brandon was the guest speaker at the luncheon. He was presented by the program committee, F. D. Wright and R. N. Cluck, with Mr. Wright presiding.

There is a tendency on the part of many men to feel that when they have paid their taxes for the upkeep of the schools they have discharged their duties to the last degree. That is a mistake. You remember when you were students that you invariably rendered your interest upon some business or professional man and made that man your ideal. Students in the schools here are doing that very thing with you. You have incurred a responsibility and it is your duty to recognize that responsibility and to exert your influence to make the schools better, to cooperate with the faculty and the school board to the end that the schools may be the most effectively take care of the demands being made upon them.

Mr. Brandon pointed out that a large part of the responsibility for failures in schools was due to the home environment and urged the Rotarians to look to the surroundings of their homes with this fact in mind. He also suggested that they would work toward discouraging the common student attitude of "getting by" and substitute for it a true appreciation in the mind of the child of the importance of the work that he or she is doing.

Death Garage Where Strangler Took Lives of Five Persons

SENATE WILL SIT MONDAY IN PRICE HEARING

AUSTIN, Sept. 3. — Members of the Texas senate will sit as a court Monday for the first time in the state's history to try a district judge on articles of impeachment.

The judge is J. B. Price, 66 years old and a life resident of Bastrop. He is charged with 12 instances of negligent and unlawful approval of accounts of sheriffs in the 21st court district. The accounts were for fees and mileage in felony cases.

Judge Price has been suspended from the bench since the notice of impeachment approved the articles of impeachment at the end of the special session last month. He is suffering from a stroke of paralysis. One of the sheriffs whose accounts are questioned has been dead for a year.

The remaining three are charged with receiving excess mileage fees. The trial may last a week. It took the house that long to hear evidence in support of the charges. These were brought by a joint legislative committee investigating the fee system.

T. M. Markham, assistant state auditor, testified that accounts were padded and made duplicating claims. He said the sheriffs had charged excessive mileage in serving subpoenas, that fictitious witnesses were listed and that some of the arrests charged for were never made.

Plane Crashes Into Crowd; 3 Killed

FERRARA, Italy, Sept. 3. — A plane participating in the air force maneuvers here today, crashed into the crowd, killing three spectators, injuring three seriously and seven others slightly. The pilot also was injured.

The king and other high officials were attending the maneuvers.

This is the fantastic garage near Clarksburg, W. Va., where Harry F. Powers, operator of a mail-order matrimonial bureau, strangled to death two women and three children, according to his confession to police. He is alleged to have lured Mrs. Asta Buick Eicher, a widow of Park Ridge, Ill., her three children, and another woman to the basement of the garage, locked them in dungeon chambers, kept them several days without food, and then taken their lives.

BODY FOUND IN RIVER THAT OF GANGSTER

HOUSTON, Sept. 3. — Gangland today had served notice of its entrance in the southwest. While police were searching for four members of a bandit gang for questioning in the dual murder of C. A. Jewea and his wife, one of the bandits was at the bottom of the Brazos river at East Columbia, near here.

He was John Cherris, of Dallas, police discovered when they went to Proepport, had the body exhumed and checked his finger prints. Cherris, ex-convict and under indictment in Memphis, Tenn., for a $29,000 bank hold-up in May, was shot through the head and his body weighed down with wagon-hubs, tossed over a bridge either Saturday or Sunday night.

New Government in Chile Takes Office

The senate and the chamber authorized the government to establish a state of siege where it was deemed necessary.

LONG PLAN IS ENDORSED BY FARMERS

AUSTIN, Sept. 3.—A majority of the Texas senate is against enforced cotton acreage reduction. Governor Ross Sterling said today. "Wouldn't I be a boob to call a session of the legislature to enact legislation that they say they opposed?" he asked. The house by a large majority has declared for the cotton session.

The governor indicated that he is not to be influenced by speculation in dealing with the cotton situation. A small but intensely interested group of farmers, their number augmented by a few Cisco business and professional men, answered the call of the chamber of commerce for a mass meeting on the cotton question last night at the cotton exchange. They were unanimously in favor of Gov. Sterling convening the legislature to enact legislation germane to the situation. The big majority favored the Long plan of the Louisiana legislature.

J. J. Collins, president of the chamber, presided and introduced State Rep. Vicor B. Gilbert who presented the question and discussed various plans offered to meet the emergency of starvation prices for the staple. His address favored the Long plan of total prohibition of cotton in 1932. He quoted figures on the present surplus of cotton and the expected production this year to prove that the cotton already produced will suffice for the needs of the country this year and next with a surplus of 1,000,000 bales at the end of that period. He answered arguments that in the event of the south's declaring a holiday on cotton for a year Egypt and other foreign countries would increase production to take the market permanently away from the United States growers, by stating that Egypt, growing long staple cotton, is also burdened with a glutted market, and has announced willingness to cooperate with American growers in a program of adjustment.

Down With Cotton "Down with the cotton tyrant!" was the prevailing sentiment of the meeting, as spokesmen for the farmers denounced the blighting economic effect of the crop and vigorously endorsed any movement that promises to break its grip on the south. The Long plan of total prohibition of cotton planting in 1932 was vigorously supported as offering the shortest and quickest way to accomplish that end. These favoring this plan criticized plans for partial restriction on the basis that enforcement would be difficult and costly and create conditions approaching open rebellion. Disgust with the conditions in the industry was evident and the majority were of an outspoken mood to go the whole route or none and let the ax fall where it would, if only the grip of King cotton could be effectually broken and the way opened to more prosperous times.

It was argued that passage of laws enforcing total restriction would

Eastland County Farmers Get Pointers On Conservation in Trip to Spur

Nineteen Eastland county farmers headed by County Agent J. C. Patterson and Vocational Agriculturist E. H. Varnell, the latter of Cisco, visited the Spur experiment station at Spur, Texas, Friday, August 28, leaving Cisco Friday morning and returning that evening.

Results of the trip are discussed here in an interview with Mr. Varnell. "This station is doing outstanding work in a number of farm problems, particularly soil conservation and water saving. Farmers were shown ten acre fields un-terraced which yielded at the average of one bale of cotton to seventy four acres last season—un-terraced with rows running down the hill—this was on ground with one half of one per cent slope, which is almost flat. The slope here Cisco usually runs two or three per cent. Adjoining this field, another ten acre block, planted on the same date and treated alike in every way, produced one third of a bale to the acre last year. This field was terraced with level terraces, turned up at the ends to hold all the water. The Spur station has found that during the past four years, 35 per cent of the rain fall was lost on the terraced in any way except level; in other words the Spur station recommends level terraces for most soils—terraces close together. Wide terraces are used all together.

One of the fields planted the cotton on the same date of the above mentioned was terraced so as to hold all the water which fell on it and also received the run-off water from twenty additional acres. This field of nine acres which received about 4 inches extra water made more cotton than all of the 320 acres planted to cotton on three farms adjoining the experiment station. This experiment has called attention to the fact that water can be diverted from near by pasture or field areas and held on land long enough to soak in, thereby greatly increasing crop yields. Clay sub-soils are very slow to take up water, therefore the necessity for it to be held on the ground a considerable length of time.

Most of our soil around Cisco is underlain with a strata of clay, or heavy soil. The soil at the Spur station is very much like the dark soils around Dothan and Scranton. Soils of this type hold more moisture if it is given time to soak in than sandy soils, except where there is a clay sub-soil near the surface.

UNEMPLOYED ARMY HALTS ROAD WORK

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 3. — An unemployed army which late yesterday forced two road contractors in Jackson county to cease work, planned further objectives today in its fight for a minimum wage of 40 cents an hour for the work and employment of local labor.

Proceeding without violence but with calm determination, the 300 men forced machinery used on two road jobs to stop and informed contractors that the minimum wage must be set and 90 per cent Jackson county labor must be employed on the jobs before work could continue.

Partly Clad Body Of Woman Is Found

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 3. — The body of a partly clad woman about 30 years old, her head battered, presumably by a hammer slaver who had criminally attacked her, was found on the bank of the White river today. Police believed it had lain there two days.

Police said there were signs of a fierce struggle at the spot. They believed the victim had been attacked then hammered to death.

OHIO HENS BUSY ELYRIA, O., Sept. 3. — Many a hen may have been idle in Lorain county this summer but hen-power certainly wasn't. July records just released, show that the 4,000 hens in the county laid 62,026 eggs to establish a new record.

COW FAINTS AT MILKING ARNOLD, Neb., Sept. 3. — A milk cow at the Harry Bryan farm near here fainted while she was waiting to be milked. The cow fell over sideways onto Mrs. Bryan, who was milking another cow. The woman was severely injured.

STERLING AND COMM'N HOLD CONFERENCE

AUSTIN, Sept. 3. — Gov. Ross Sterling has informed the state railroad commission, it was learned this afternoon, that he is willing for their order opening the east Texas oil field on Saturday to go in effect and be given a trial.

This station is doing outstanding work in a number of farm problems, particularly soil conservation and water saving. Farmers were shown ten acre fields un-terraced which yielded at the average of one bale of cotton to seventy four acres last season—un-terraced with rows running down the hill—this was on ground with one half of one per cent slope, which is almost flat. DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

GUARD YOUR THOUGHTS:—Finally, brethren, whatever things are true, whatever things are honest, whatever things are just, whatever things are pure, whatever things are lovely, whatever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things.—Philippians 4: 8.

GOVERNOR SITS TIGHT.

Governor Sterling's apparent determination to keep the lid on in east Texas, regardless of the railroad commission's orders, until the oil industry is assured against a repetition of the wasteful production orgy which was responsible for the special session of the legislature to enact stricter conservation laws, merits the approval of every citizen. For some reasons, known only to God and themselves, the railroad commission is wedded to a 225-barrel per well proration basis; and critics of the order assert very forcibly that under this sort of regulation the legislature just as well had not met. They point out that it will mean a drilling race and the survival of the fittest, and consequently the doom of the majority of the independents.

Under the 225-barrel per well basis the total allowable production of the field as it stands will be 340,000 barrels per day, it is estimated.

The original order of the commission has been modified by the inclusion of a provision limiting the amount of gas that may be produced with a barrel of oil to a ratio of 700 feet a barrel, and by some other and minor features, but the commission has abandoned no fundamental features of its program at Mr. Sterling's insistence upon a revision.

Without attempting to criticize the commission, the Daily News hopes that Mr. Sterling will stay in the ring with gloves on until the acts of the recent legislature have been made effective in practice. The huge cost of the special session has but one justification, and that is relief to the oil industry. To have the benefits of the legislation, secured at great expense and exertion of official energy, nullified by illogical regulations is a travesty on the state, and the governor is performing a statesmanlike service when he utilizes his authority to arrest that tendency.

NO WORK, NO EAT.

"No work, no eat," is the slogan of employment agencies of the larger cities of the state where drives for cotton pickers to harvest the bumper 1931 crop of cotton are being made. At Houston the federal employment bureau is preparing to round up 10,000 pickers for farmers in that territory. Bureaus in Fort Worth, Dallas and other cities are likewise endeavoring to turn unemployed to the cotton fields.

For the next two months the ranks of the unemployed in Texas and other cotton growing states should show a great decline. The man without a job and his family, who is near the cotton patch has no reasonable excuse for remaining idle. By some irony of circumstance the picker this year stands last week, and is now over 100 this week.

AVOID DUPLICATION.

In these days when every item of public expense that comes out of the taxpayers' pocket should be scrutinized with a high-powered magnifying glass, the Baltimore Sun makes the following pertinent editorial comment:

"In the present state of agitation about the power trust it is highly desirable to have on hand for public use a full and accurate picture of the issues involved. There is no point, however, in having two Federal agencies engaged at public expense in going over the same ground in this matter.

"Whether such a duplication obtains to any important degree in the case of the current power investigations by the Federal Trade Commission and the Federal Power Commission, is not clear at the moment. A query on that point at the Federal Power Commission, which is launching a comprehensive investigation centered upon hydroelectric power companies licensed by the commission, did not bring an entirely clear reply. It was stated that the power commission intends to use the already enormous record compiled by the Federal Trade Commission in investigating the power industry in response to the very broad congressional resolution, but will also find it necessary to go over some of the ground independently, and with reference to its own peculiar interests. Just how much duplication of effort this might lead to was not made clear, nor did it seem that anyone had been assigned specifically to the job of acting as liaison officer between the two investigations.

"In times past there have been occasions when two agencies of the Federal government worked quite independently, and one might almost safely say competitively, in investigating the same business practices. Needless to say, this has involved a waste both of energy and public money. Consequently, there is much point in seeing that precautions are taken to avoid having the Federal Trade Commission and the Federal Power Commission plow the same ground at public expense, and at expense to the companies investigated, which is included in the power bill paid by consumers."

OTHER OPINIONS

ALL WANT THE SAME THING

Down at Palestine the other night Col. Owsley, self-appointed guardian of the liberties of the people (or is he self-appointed?) made this brilliant statement in his talk scoring Governor Sterling for putting the oil field under martial law: "Where was the great army of Texas when you people were selling cantaloupes this summer for 1 cent each and fine Jacksonville tomatoes were bringing 1 cent per pound? Why didn't they call out the army and do something about it?"

It would be interesting for the Colonel to explain what the army could have done under the circumstances he mentions. It is true the army might have eaten up a lot of these Anderson county cantaloupes and those fine Jacksonville tomatoes but what else could it have done?

Unfortunately for the colonel:

plea that the shutting down of the wells and the efforts being made to bring about orderly proration, is all being done in the interest of the big oil men, is the fact that the Sinclair company, the Gulf Refining company and the Dandinger Oil company are taking the same position. The Colonel goes. These big companies want exactly what the Colonel wants, that is wide open production and no proration. At the same time these companies' interests are bleeding for the small operators and land owners in the oil field. It is extremely touching to witness Harry Sinclair shedding tears because the little fellow is being injured. And the Colonel's anxiety touches us deeply. — Marshall News.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee, Oklahoma.

That the best way to make the home city better is for every citizen to buy merchandise at the right place is from the stores of the home city.

No city can have prosperity if the people and the business men do not patronize each other. Merchants should never buy in other cities that they can buy at home. They have no more right to do that than any other citizen. In order to build a city, citizens must patronize each other, keeping business at home where it belongs. When this is done money will circulate more freely. There will be more work, more improvements and a better and happier city.

54 REPORT TO BRECK COACHES FOR '31 TEAM

By WES HODGES

BRECKENRIDGE, Sept. 3. — Fifty-four youths, including six 1930 lettermen, answered Coach P. E. Showell's first call for grid practice yesterday afternoon. Three or four other 1930 squadmen and a few more nubbin candidates are due to report for duty this week or sometime before school starts. Every letterman of 1930 with the exception of Ralph Cox, tackle, was on hand yesterday for the initial drill. Cox is still in East Texas and it is not known yet whether or not he will be back for this season's grind. There's no use blowing off too much steam about how the bunch looked on their first afternoon out in uniform. You couldn't tell. They all looked a little stiff and clumsy, but this is to be expected on the first day since most of the youths probably haven't seen a football in three months. By the time Coach Showell and Coach John Patton puts the gridders through a week of practicing twice daily, then one may be able to say more about how they will stack up in the 1931 race.

Offhand, the chances don't look bad. With four powerful linemen back around which he can build as good a forward wall as he has ever had and two promising backfield candidates to start with, Coach Showell can be expected to put his Buckaroos well in the running this season, whether he wins the district title or not.

Capt. Nig Spain, Jenner Clark, Leo Martia and Bill White, line lettermen, will not give Coach Showell much to worry about. If Cox returns, the forward wall will be practically completed except at the ends, where Harold Henry and Joe Stuphan, making their first bid for regular Buckaroo jobs, are expected to be the leading candidates.

Jack Hinrichs and Geo. McFall, lettermen backs, seem sure to land berths although they will have a smart looking bunch of youngsters to battle for their jobs. Bill Estes, fast Caddo flash; Henry Satterfield, Ansil Hodges, Chubby Wohlford, Bobbie Wood, Bill Pitzer, Edward McAllan, Jim Wragg and one or two other youngsters are seeking backfield berths. Satterfield, Pitzer and Hodges will make the hardest fights for the signal barking post.

Big Doyle Pennington, Bedford Odell, Eddie Teddlie, Harry Price, Maurice Russell, and Cecil Paschall, are line candidates that will be fighting to land a berth in the forward wall and with these youths battling down the lane, the 1930 lettermen will have no chance to sit back and figure they already have their jobs clinched. The Pennington boy will tip the scales at around 215 pounds. He's a little green, but a powerful youth. Harry Price, tackle candidate, will make any and all linemen hustle to keep their jobs. Price seems determined to make the team this year and, some say, will be a regular in spite of everything.

Human Bones Found Under House Floor

MEMPHIS, Tex., Sept. 3. — Local authorities are investigating murder records of a decade ago as the result of the discovery of three human jaw bones and 35 old army cartridges beneath the floor of a vacant house here.

Dr. O. R. Goodell said two of the bones were of men about 50 years old and the other was that of a woman. He believed all had been dead from 10 to 15 years. A few teeth and some muscular tissue remained on the bones.

Mrs. Earl Gilchrist, wife of the owner of the house, discovered the bones after a tenant of two weeks moved without leaving an address. Though old, the bones apparently had been under the floor only a short time as they were wrapped in a copy of the Denver Post of March 8, 1931.

The cartridges were in seven clips. The shells were so old that the slugs were removed easily. Some of the powder would burn.

KILLS HOGS

WINNER, S. D., Sept. 3. — Farmers in the Rosebud country have lost thousands of dollars worth of hogs and poultry because of the widespread use of poison to curtail the grasshopper plague. Hundreds of pheasants also have died after eating grasshoppers which had been killed by the poison mash.

BOUNTIES ON PESTS

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 3. — Bounties were paid on 1,065 weasels, 56 gray foxes and a wildcat killed by Pennsylvania aiding in exterminating game pests during July 1931. The bounties paid provided welcome additions to the claimants' incomes.

25 ELECTROCUTIONS

HOLDENVILLE, Okla., Sept. 3. — Dr. W. L. Taylor, veteran Hughes county physician, has witnessed every electrocution in the state penitentiary. Thirteen of the electrocutions were of negroes and 12 of white men. The first electrocution which Taylor attended was in 1916.

HUGE X-RAY IS BUILT TO FIGHT CANCER

PASADENA, Calif., Sept. 3.—An unraveling of the mysteries of matter and a possible solution to the difficulties that have baffled physicians in their battle against cancer, is hoped for by California Instructors of Technology scientists who shortly will start operation of the world's largest and most powerful X-ray tube.

The tube, approximately 30 feet long and using 2,000,000 volts of electricity, is science's latest instrument in the struggle against death. Rays emitted by the tube are twice as powerful as all the radium in the world would be if gathered in one spot, Dr. C. C. Lauritsen, its designer, declared.

Smash Atoms

With rays generated in the tube, technicians at the Institute expect to be able to demolish with ease the elusive atom, now believed to be composed of electrons, with a theoretical "breaking point" when "struck" by about 300,000 volts of electricity. Scientists in this way hope to be able to determine the constituents of matter.

Scientists do not know exactly the makeup of atoms, they theorize that electrons form the atoms, which in turn form molecules. The different ratios of positive and negative electrons account for the various forms of matter, scientists believe.

Study Electrons

Although the exploration of the electrons is the primary purpose of the tube, cancer is to be the study of a research committee composed of Los Angeles physicians.

With proper safety precautions, it is believed that the potent rays will prove stronger and of more benefit than those now in use in treatments. The new tube is 1,300,000 volts stronger than any existing instrument for cancer treatment.

All work of constructing the gigantic tube was done in the shops of the Institute under the direction of Dr. Lauritsen, assisted by students.

Glass cylinders, 20 inches high and tapering from 18 inches to 12 inches in diameter, form the glass exterior of the long tube. Inside are the electrodes.

A New Liner Sails Into New York—From the Air

With the mightiest of skyscrapers towering in the background, the mightiest of air-planes — Germany's DO-X — is shown in this striking picture as it sailed down on the waters of New York Harbor. It was journey's end for the mammoth air-cruiser, for New York was the goal of the flight begun nearly ten months before at Lake Constance, Switzerland. Note the immense hull of the plane, with rows of port holes giving it resemblance to a steamship. The DO-X had proceeded to New York by leisurely stages after crossing the Atlantic to South America.

$10,000,000 ARMY PROJECTS NEAR COMPLETION

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 3.—A $10,000,000 building program that has been in progress for the last 18 months, is expected to be completed at Randolph Field and the 1st air army post by January 1.

The largest of these projects, Randolph Field, alone has meant the expenditure of more than $8,000,000 and the constant employment of between 1,000 and 2,000 men. The last building for which appropriations have been made will be completed before Dec. 1.

Other construction work at Duncan Field, Normoye quartermaster depot and at Fort Sam Houston, will continue through December before being completed.

If congress follows up its policy of speeding up construction work on federal projects, it is expected that additional funds soon will be provided for the construction of much needed new quarters at Fort Sam Houston.

Building activities at Fort Sam Houston, Duncan Field and Camp Normoye have been inconsiderate in comparison to the Randolph field work, yet it has involved expenditure of more than $2,000,000. These expenditures are only the forerunner of a building campaign which in the next few years will involve expenditures rivaling those at Randolph Field.

The new Station Hospital alone, scheduled to be built at Fort Sam Houston during the next two years, will mean approximately $2,500,000 and other construction required to permit the abandonment of wartime buildings at local posts in accordance with the announced policy of the war department, will more than double this figure.

MISSIONARIES IN FIELD OF BIG BUSINESS

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—Missionary work in foreign fields has joined the realm of "big business."

No longer does the Christian worker abroad confine himself to evangelistic service. The scope of his activity has broadened in recent years until it embraces an elaborate program which also includes:

- Schools, ranging from kindergartens to colleges.
- Industrial and agricultural instruction.
- Hospitals, dispensaries and clinics.
- Social service, with settlement houses and playgrounds.

Oldest Society

America's oldest foreign missionary society is the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, with headquarters here. From the time it was organized 121 years ago, it has sought the cooperation of all Christians without distinction of sect "who desire to propagate the gospel among the unevangelized nations."

Today it has 700 missionaries—248 men and 452 women—in foreign fields. There are 173 in China, 158 in the Near East, 120 in India, 110 in Africa, and smaller numbers elsewhere. Last year the organization spent nearly $2,000,000 on missions.

Dean of Workers

Dean of these church workers abroad is Miss Eva M. Swift, 68, formerly of Dallas, Texas, still active in India after 47 years' service. And the society's honor roll lists the names of 114 retired missionaries who served 25 to 57 years. An average of 30 new recruits are sent out annually.

The American Board has 1,345 schools in foreign lands and says that if pupils attending them were to form a parade and march, 10 abreast, it would require 18 hours for them to pass the reviewing stand.

JERSEY COW AT TARLETON MAKES RECORD

STEPHENVILLE, Sept. 3.—A record which agriculture faculty members of John Tarleton Agricultural college believe to be unique was established this year by a Jersey cow owned by the college, when Prince's Pretty Polly B. 85763, with one quarter of her udder removed, won the Gold Medal award of the American Jersey Cattle Club.

The cow, whose right fore quarter was injured and had to be removed three years before the beginning of her test, also suffered during the tenth month of the test with milk fever, so that her udder had to be pumped. She regained her full milk flow, but forty-four days later got down with milk fever again. She was 6 years and 7 months of age when started on test, and had made no previous record of merit.

During the year she yielded 732.11 pounds of butterfat, 14,595 pounds of milk. She maintained her yield above 50 pounds of butterfat per month, and during her highest month yielded 70.14 pounds of butterfat.

Bright Briscoe 693819, another of Tarleton's prized Jerseys, also won the Gold Medal in a recent test, winning also the Silver Medal award for cows under five years of age.

Barking Dogs Are Prohibited

EL PASO, Sept. 3.—It's going to become unlawful for dogs to bark in El Paso.

City councilmen have instructed City Attorney J. H. McBroom to draft a nuisance ordinance holding owners responsible for dogs which disturb neighbors.

McBroom also is considering provisions for the yowling cats, the bleating of goats and the buzzing of bees.

SPRINKLED DURING RAIN

PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 3.—"Rain" is a terrible master," remarked city officials here upon learning that street sprinkling wagons functioned as usual during a heavy rain when the rain and the street sprinkling hours coincided.

During the last seven months of her test she produced more than 60 pounds of butterfat per month, exceeding by several pounds the average for the first five months of her test. During her highest month, the tenth of her test she yielded 67.80 pounds of butterfat.

Briscoe is now back on test, having made 362.2 pounds of butterfat during her first 136 days. Her highest month to date was July, when she produced 86.46 pounds of butterfat or approximately 102 pounds of butter.

AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION NEWS

From the Office of the County Agent and The Home Demonstration Agent.

EVERY FARM A FACTORY EVERY WEEK OF THE YEAR
This slogan of the Agricultural Committee of the Texas Bankers' association has been adopted also by the Texas Extension Service. It is commended to newspapers, bankers and others interested in a safe and sane farming program. When this slogan becomes a reality on Eastland county farms our farmers will be on a sound financial footing and business generally throughout the county will again become and permanently remain prosperous. Farmers would do well to adopt this slogan after making a slight variation; it making it read "This farm a factory every week of the year." These farmers who have made a practice of having something to market every time they go to town will be found in much better condition financially than the average farmer.

There is always a market at some price for dairy products, poultry and eggs, fresh and canned fruit and vegetables, dried and preserved meats and canned meats of all kinds. Home-made hominy has almost gone out of existence but could be made a marketable product. Popcorn and peanuts for home use offers another salable product. Pumpkins and kershaws keep well for several months but are not usually available after November. Potatoes and onions store well and are in demand during the winter and spring. Cream cheese sells well and offers a good outlet for milk. Cottage cheese when properly made and packed will always find a ready sale. Okra dries well and is fine for soups during the winter when there is no fresh supply. There are other things that find good markets when properly prepared and offered for sale. Energetic people with plenty of ingenuity can always find something to work at the year round that will help make the farm a factory every week of the year.

POPULAR THEORY EXPLODED
Another interesting experiment being conducted at this station which is being corroborated by other state and federal stations is in relation to the amount of cultivation most profitable to crops. Results are that too frequent cultivation given crops yields and that the only advantage of cultivation is the destruction of weeds and grass. Cotton that is kept clean by limited cultivation or merely chopping out the weeds and grass is making just as high yields as that plowed three or four times and is making higher yields than that cultivated six or seven times. This has exploded a very popular theory, constant weeding increases the returns. It is important however that the seed bed be properly prepared before planting since deep plowing of corn in its early stages increases the yield by taking place of deep plowing in preparing the land for planting.

STATEMENTS about the results of planning with the skip row method require qualifications since the yield is determined by the number of plants per acre rather than the distance between rows. Mr. Dickson recommends in planting grain sorghums that every row be planned and then if there is not a good stand all of it be left but if there is a good stand every third row be plowed up later to be planted in peas if desired. Often times it is better to have a thin stand so the heads get bigger thus cutting the harvesting cost although the amount of grain per acre may be the same as when planned thicker.

Livestock feeding tests at the Spur station have shown that the grain fed top cane is just as valuable feed as milo or corn. It has developed also in feeding for sheep and young cattle feeding the bundles at a cost of $2.00 per ton was not profitable, however where there is a grinder on the farm and no expense is figured for grinding it probably pays since the amounts of grains put on the animals is slightly higher. Older stock usually pay better where the feed is ground. Mr. Dickson states that the amount of grain fed less by not being digested is just as great when fed ground as when fed whole. Whole grains in the droppings are readily observed and while this loss cannot be seen when the grain is ground the feed is there just the same. It appears that there is more difference in the quality of feed than in the variety of method of preparing for stock. Early planted milo stalks are usually unpalatable and not eaten readily while late planted stalks are relished by stock and fatten animals in this proportion.

NOW TIME TO KILL TIMBER
During the past week I have been over approximately 100 Eastland county farms and in nearly every instance I have observed wide strips of land in the fields bordering timber which is sitting the ground from fifty to a hundred feet to such an extent that little or no crops are grown yet this land must be cultivated just as productive land is. A 50 to 100 foot strip of this timber may be killed out around the entire field at very little cost. Now is probably the best time for deciding timber. The chemicals making up the formula are 1 pound each of white arsenic, sal soda and common lye together with one and a half gallons of water. Mix the lye and soda in the water and stir in the arsenic. Cut the bark around the tree similar to girdling but only cut through the bark with a downward stroke each time making a continuous scratch around the tree. Apply poison mixture at rate of one tablespoonful to each six inches around the tree. Brush and small timber may be cut off and the stump mopped thoroughly with the poison for a complete kill. There are no sprouts coming out and the tree dies quicker than if just cut down. Field sprouts may be readily killed in this manner. This mixture costs about 20 cents per gallon. One gallon should deaden timber all around a ten acre field. The work of applying it is light. The mixture is poison.

LAURA LOU BROOKMAN Author of "MAD MARRIAGE"

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Pretty Norma Kent, 20-year-old secretary in a first-class office, had been together with her first love, Mark Travers, for three years. They had been together in a small town in the middle-western metropolis. Norma declines to tell Travers her name or where he can see her name.

Bob Farrell, young lawyer, asks Norma to marry him and she refuses, though she is fond of him. Norma takes the puppy to the shabby apartment she shares with Christine Saunders. She fears Chris is falling in love with her married employer, Brad Hart, proprietor of an advertising agency. Norma's puppy in advertisement about the puppy in newspaper lost and found column is Mark Travers. He tries to take a date but Norma declines invitations. A small boy claims the puppy and takes it home.

Norma goes for a drive with Bob Farrell and he tells her he is leaving Marlboro. Two days later she meets Travers on the street and goes to lunch with him. This is the beginning of a whirlwind courtship. Norma finds herself head-over-heels in love but thinks she must send Travers away because of some secret of the past. She declares if Norma loves Travers all else is unimportant.

Mark is invited to dinner at the apartment. Norma is there alone when a caller arrives. He tells her she is Mark's father and demands an affair with his son shall end. The night of a head-speech Mark appears. Father and son quarrel and the father threatens to disown Mark if he marries Norma. The elder Travers departs. Mark begs Norma to marry him once and after some hesitation she agrees. The couple drive to the town of Woodbury with Christine and Bradley Hart. Norma and Mark secure a license and are married. Then Mark takes his bride to the palatial Hotel Marlboro.

CHAPTER XIII
GO ON WITH THE STORY

The glowing orb of the molten disk stirred Norma and moved to the right. Out of the sunlight it was not glowing metal at all but a bobbing tendril that had been searing the vision of her left eye all back into place.

Curled up in the huge rose-pettery chair the girl seemed a negligible creature. She wore a negligee of blue. It was skimpily cut, made of cheap material but as seriously azure as the heavens on perfect July morning. A worn black satin mule flopped back on one bare foot. Norma's sleeveless fell away almost to her shoulder, revealing arms of creamy whiteness. Like the rest of Norma's body the arms were excitedly formed, slender but unlined.

She was smiling. Not at the young man across the room. His look was toward her. Norma smiled at the reflection in the mirror of the dressing table. It showed a young man, coatless, energetically brushing a shock of brown hair back from his forehead. He has an unusually good-looking mouth even when he frowned, as he did just then, and threw down a brush to tug at his necktie. Suddenly he caught Norma's eye, watching him in the mirror. The young man's grin. Mark whirled.

"See here, Mrs. Travers!" he said. "Do you call yourself a helpful wife? Sitting there taking my hair off everything I try to do? Can't even tie my tie decently? Here, what kind of conduct do you call that?"

In three strides he was across the room, perched on the arm of Norma's chair and tousling her hair.

The girl laughed and tried to defend herself. A moment more and Mark had routed her from the chair, appropriated it himself. He held Norma, protesting gaily, in his arms and the game became a spirited contest. Much rubbing of hand curls the wrong way. It was tickling fun, and Norma, in a moment, flushed and breathless, laid Mark claimed undisputed victory. At last he placed a long kiss squarely on the girl's lips.

Norma lay back and looked at him from beneath the dark fringes of her lashes.

"Look at your tie now," she suggested demurely.

It was worse—oh, so very much worse than it had been! Travers grimaced in mock dismay. He took his head.

"So this is married life! Terrible to be sure!"

A little beyond reach stood the breakfast table. It had been abandoned some time since and was littered with crumpled napkins and soiled dishes. There were pink roses in a silver vase in the center of this disarray.

Norma drew herself away. "It really is terrible," she agreed. "Goodness, it must be—why, look!—nearly 11 o'clock! Oh, Mark! Think of all the things we should be doing! They won't have any idea at the office what's become of me. Mr. Brooks will be furious."

"Let 'em worry. You're never going back there again."

"But, Mark, don't you think—"

A knock at the door interrupted. It was the waiter who had come to take away the breakfast table. He was leaving Mark look out his wallet and stuffed a bill into the man's hand. The waiter bowed, murmured thanks and departed.

Mark did not replace the wallet. Instead he opened it again, drew out a collection of coins and greenbacks and looked at them. A rueful smile spread over his face. He scratched his chin meditatively.

"There was exactly $96 in that wallet yesterday," he announced. "Ninety-six dollars." Suddenly the mirrored, grateful she could bring her beauty in tribute to Mark. There seemed little else that she had brought him.

Norma did not dawdle as she powdered, rouged her lips and slipped into her clothing. She hurried because Mark might return at any moment. She must be ready to leave when he returned. They couldn't remain in this extravagant place any longer.

When she had made herself as presentable as possible the girl spent a rueful moment before the mirror. Her dress was the one she had worn the night before. It was a brown crepe of utmost simplicity, bought only three weeks before. Modish, well-fitting in spite of its cheapness—but brown. Brown was no color for a bride to wear! Her neat punns were brown, too, and she had worn the brown beret in place of a hat. It had seemed appropriate for the drive to Woodbury, less appropriate this morning. Well, doubtless hundreds of other brides who had made impulsive marriages had known the same pang over absence of wedding finery.

From the sitting room window Norma could see the huge clock on a sky-scraper two blocks away. Twenty after twelve now. Mark had been gone nearly an hour. She tried peering down into the street to see if she could see him. That was ridiculous. The window was on the eighth floor and it was impossible to look straight downward.

Well, she could write the letter to Brooks, Welliver and Brooks explaining why she was giving up her work.

It was a difficult letter to write. Norma sat at the neatly appointed desk a long while before she put her pen down on the fresh paper. She began three separate pages and in rapid succession discarded them. It was fully 45 minutes before the note was finished and then Norma studied it with dissatisfaction before finally she sheet was folded and inserted in its envelope. She addressed it but left the flap unsealed. She would ask

Mark what he thought of the note before mailing it.

Surely Mark should be there! Terror with clutching, vise-like fingers of ice gripped the girl's heart. A traffic accident—a single misstep—oh, if anything had happened—!

Against the sought the window. Then for 10 minutes Norma paced back and forth—back and forth. She could not sit still but she must believe nothing terrible had happened. It was only a foolish nightmare. Mark would be there any moment now. She sat down again and she was on her feet, as restless as before. The frightful premonition would not be downed.

Long Plan---

raise prices on the current crop to a point where a profit could be made on cotton now in the hands of the farmers and this, Long plan advocates argued, would be more than could be hoped for this year or next if the threat of a large 1932 production continues to hang over the market.

Other Arguments
Other arguments advanced for the long plan is that it will teach the farmer that he can grow something else beside cotton; eliminate root rot, insects and so forth and res-land from its annual cultivation of cotton.

The small majority who favored plans for a 50 per cent reduction of production on a percentage or other proportion basis, did not advance arguments for their plans. Features of each, however, were detailed by Mr. Gilbert.

In his address Mr. Gilbert pointed out that the governor is anxious for an expression of opinion from the farmers who live outside the city few attended. He declared that the farmer has not taken sufficient active interest in the legislature although their voice is earnestly listened to by the legislators, and urged them to adopt a more aggressive attitude in presenting their interests to the state lawmakers.

Other Meetings
Several of the farmers present said that the meeting had not been sufficiently advertised among the farmers who live outside the city limits and do not take the daily paper, and those asserted that the interest in the question among the rural population is paramount and that had they but known it generally large numbers would have been present to express their views. It was gathered from remarks in this connection that the majority of the farmer population of the county is strongly in favor of acreage restriction.

Other mass meetings on the question will be held this week as follows:

- German, Thursday evening at 8 o'clock;
- Eastland, Friday evening at 8 o'clock;
- Rising Star, Saturday evening at 8 o'clock.

Ex-King Plans Book on War

PARIS, Sept. 3. — With nothing to do but find a job to keep him busy, ex-King Alfonso of Spain advised close friends recently that he had decided to publish a book. The book will not be a defense of the Spanish monarchy nor an explanation of his abdication, but will be devoted entirely to proving that Alfonso was friendly to France in the World War.

Alfonso was surprised, since coming here in exile, to learn that his war time position is regretted by many French.

In his book, the King intends to show what he did to prove his sympathy for France, despite the pro-German attitude of many of the Spanish political leaders during the war and the government's official neutrality.

His writings will show how he spent from his personal fortune to obtain the repatriation of French prisoners and how he paid for special care for French wounded in German prison camps. One of the French prisoners whose return King Alfonso obtained was Maurice Chevalier, the moving picture star.

Schools to Open With Exercises for Patrons Monday

CHANGES IN SYSTEM TO BE EXPLAINED

The Cisco public schools will formally open their doors Monday morning with exercises at 9 a. m. at the high and ward buildings. The program at the high school will be for patrons of the school in particular; at that time the changes to be inaugurated this year in the administration of the system and the courses of study that will be offered will be explained in detail by school officials, Supt. R. N. Cluck said. Explanation of these changes will also appear in the Cisco Daily News of next Sunday.

Divisional lines as between the various ward schools will also be published in the Daily News.

There will be no registration of pupils until Monday. It was announced. A list of fees to be charged for library, laboratory and other privileges will be announced shortly and students registering are expected to have their fees with them when they appear for registration.

About 350 students are expected to attend the high school, Principal William Brandon today. Estimate of the total attendance is roughly between 1,400 and 1,500 students.

ROTARY HEARS SCHOOL TALK

It costs you people of Cisco approximately $20 per student for every pupil that falls in the Cisco high school, Principal W. Brandon told the Cisco Rotary club at its noon luncheon today. The total cost of failures in Cisco high school last year, taking into consideration only the direct cost including payments on indebtedness, janitor service and other upkeep of the school, was about $3,500.

Mr. Brandon was the guest speaker at the luncheon. He was presented by the program committee, E. D. Wright and R. N. Cluck, with Mr. Wright presiding.

There is a tendency on the part of many men to feel that when they have paid their taxes for the upkeep of the schools they have discharged their duties to the last letter. That is a mistake. You remember when you were students that you invariably fastened your interest upon some business or professional man and made that man your ideal. Students in the schools here are doing that very thing with you. You have a responsibility and it is your duty to recognize that responsibility and to exert your influence to make the schools better, to cooperate with the faculty and the school board to the end that the schools may be the most effectively take care of the demands being made upon them.

Mr. Brandon pointed out that a large part of the responsibility for failures in school was due to the home environment and urged the Rotarians to look to the surroundings of their homes with this fact in mind.

He also sought that they would work toward discouraging the common student attitude of "Getting by" and substitute for it a true appreciation in the mind of the child of the importance of the work that he or she is doing.

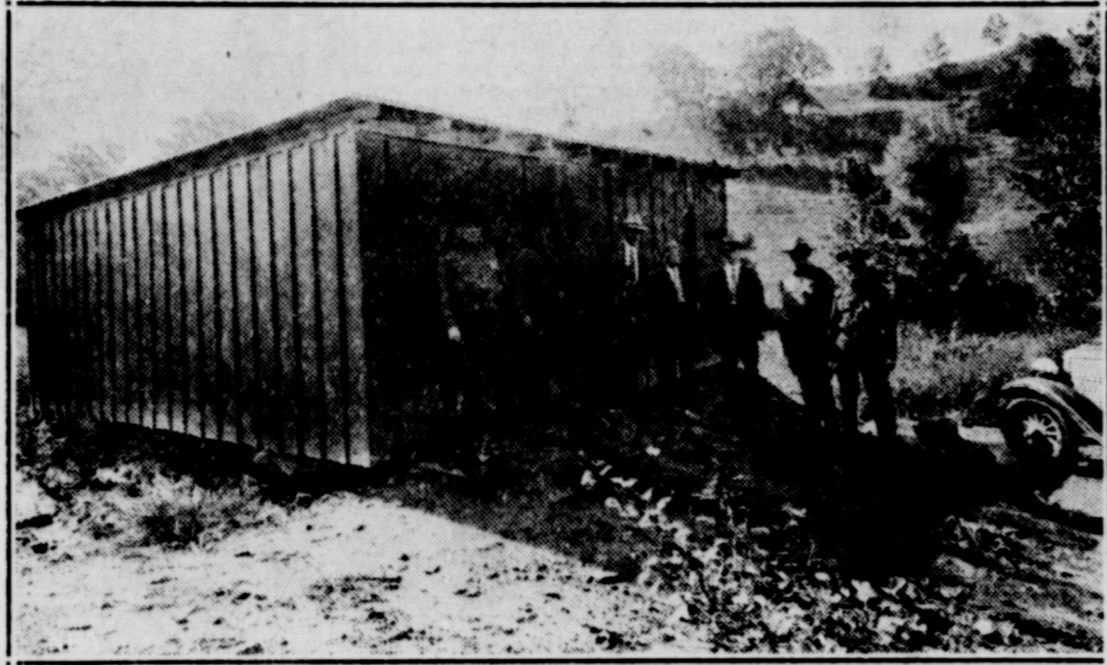

"You hear a great deal about 'back to school' and 'every child should be in school' but unless there is a conscientious attitude and a lot of earnest work on the part of the pupil that talk to my mind is a lot of poppycock," declared Mr. Wright in a short discussion of the school question before introducing Mr. Brandon.

"If a child is going to school just to be going some where he has no business in the school and ought to be put at useful work, relieving the public of the great expense of educating him and making room for a student who will really work."

The cost of educating a child in the Cisco high school is $82 a year and in the grade schools $42 a year, he said. That includes the teacher's expense. With that expenditure invested in each child who attends annually it is incumbent upon the students to work if they attend and upon the patrons of the school to cooperate to the fullest extent with the school board and the faculty to see that the proper results are obtained, he declared.

He declared that it is going to take a great deal of sacrifice on the part of the public, the school board and the teachers to accomplish what is necessary with the school system this year. "The school, like everything else, are feeling the effects of the times. We do not know how we are going to get through but we do know that we are going to get through some how," he said. Wright is a member of the board.

SENATE WILL SIT MONDAY IN PRICE HEARING

AUSTIN, Sept. 3.—Members of the Texas senate will sit at a court Monday for the first time in the state's history to try a district judge on articles of impeachment.

The judge is J. B. Price, 66 years old and a life resident of Bastrop. He is charged with 12 instances of negligent and unlawful approval of accounts of sheriffs in the 21st court district. The accounts were for fees and mileage in felony cases.

Judge Price has been suspended from the bench since the house of representatives approved the articles of impeachment at the end of the special session last month. He is suffering from a stroke of paralysis. He said the sheriffs had charged excessive mileage in serving subpoenas, that fictitious witnesses were listed and that some of the arrests charged for were never made.

House attorneys contended Judge Price could have discovered the discrepancies in the accounts by the exercise of proper and reasonable diligence. They alleged that he had even signed blank pages in his witness fee certificate book. Defense attorneys replied that Judge Price was ill at the time and had relied on the law as it was interpreted and on his confidence in the elected officials.

The sheriffs whose accounts were questioned were: John T. Carlisle, deceased; Clint D. Lewis, Burleson county; J. J. Burtshell, Lee County; Woods Townsend, Bastrop county. A grand jury will convene here Monday to consider the charges against the sheriffs while the senate is trying Judge Price.

A distinguished array of lawyers will defend the aged judge. It will include Robert L. Bates, chairman of the board of regents of the University of Texas and a former federal circuit court judge and Dan Moody, former governor of Texas.

OFFICER AND BANDIT SLAIN IN GUN FIGHT

FORT SMITH, Ark., Sept. 3.—A patrolman was slain, another wounded and three suspected bandits shot, one fatally, in a gun battle on the Oklahoma-Arkansas highway near here early today.

The dead were W. A. Bourland, night police chief of Fort Smith, and Orb Crow, Park Arkansas bandit suspect. Patrolman Ralph Howard and two more bandit suspects, Jeff and Everett Wackerly, brothers, of Radcliffe, Ark., were wounded but all three were expected to recover.

The gun fight occurred after a filling station owner reported his station had been held up and $80 stolen. The officers were answering his call when a car carrying an Indiana license and answering the description of that used by the bandits, passed them going in the opposite direction. In the running gun battle that ensued Bourland and Crow were killed.

LONG PLAN IS ENDORSED BY FARMERS

AUSTIN, Sept. 3.—A majority of the Texas senate is against enforced cotton acreage reduction. Governor Ross Sterling said today.

"Wouldn't I be a boob to call a session of the legislature to enact legislation that they say they opposed?" he asked. The house by a large majority has declared for the cotton session.

The governor indicated that he is not to be influenced by market speculation in dealing with the cotton situation.

A small but intensely interested group of farmers, their number augmented by a few Cisco business and professional men, answered the call of the chamber of commerce for a mass meeting on the cotton question last night at the city hall and voted unanimously in favor of Gov. Sterling convening the legislature to enact legislation germane to the situation. The big majority favored the Long plan of the Louisiana legislature.

J. J. Collins, president of the chamber, presided and introduced State Rep. Victor G. Gilbert who presented the question and discussed various plans offered to meet the emergency of starvation prices for the staple. His address favored the Long plan of total prohibition of cotton in 1932. He quoted figures on the present surplus of cotton and the expected production this year to prove that the cotton already produced will suffice for the needs of the country this year and next with a surplus of 1,000,000 bales at the end of that period. He answered arguments that in the event of the south's declaring a holiday on cotton for a year Egypt and other foreign countries would increase production to take the market permanently away from the United States growers, by stating that Egypt, growing long staple cotton is also burdened with a glutted market, and has announced willingness to cooperate with American growers in a program of adjustment.

Down With Cotton

"Down with the cotton tyrant!" was the prevailing sentiment of the meeting, as spokesmen for the farmers denounced the blighting economic effect of the crop and vigorously endorsed any movement that would break its grip on the south. The Long plan of total prohibition of cotton planting in 1932 was vigorously supported as offering the shortest and quickest way to accomplish that end. Those favoring this plan criticized plans for partial restriction on the basis that enforcement would be difficult and costly and create conditions approaching open rebellion. Disgust with the conditions in the industry was evident and the majority were of an outspoken mood to go the whole route or none and let the axe fall where it would, if only the grip of King cotton could be effectually broken and the way opened to more prosperous times.

It was argued that passage of laws enforcing total restriction would

Eastland County Farmers Get Pointers On Conservation in Trip to Spur

After viewing several hundred California girls, Henry Clive, famous artist, selected Renee Whitney, above, of Beverly Hills, as the ideal artist's model. And we wouldn't question his judgment. Would you?

Nineteen Eastland county farmers headed by County Agent J. C. Patterson and Vocational Agriculturalist E. H. Varnell, the latter of Cisco, visited the Spur experiment station at Spur, Texas, Friday, August 28, leaving Cisco Friday morning and returning that evening.

Results of the trip are discussed here in an interview with Mr. Varnell.

"This station is doing outstanding work in a number of farm problems, particularly soil conservation and water saving. Farmers were shown ten acre fields un-terraced which yielded at the average of one bale of cotton to seventy four acres last season—un-terraced with rows running down the hill—this was on average with one half of one per cent slope, which is almost flat. The slope here Cisco usually runs two or three per cent. Adjoining this field, another ten acre block, planted on the same date and treated alike in every way, produced one third of a bale to the acre last year. This field was terraced with level terraces, turned up at the ends to hold all the water. The Spur station has found that during the past four years, 35 per cent of the rain fall was lost on ground terraced with a fall of three inches to the hundred feet, whereas, only 12 per cent of the water was lost on level terraces. Only one field out of some twenty or thirty on the terraced in any way except level. In other words the Spur station recommends level terraces for most soils—terraces close together. Wide terraces are used all together.

"One of the fields planted the cotton on the same date of the above mentioned was terraced so as to hold all the water which fell on it and also received the run-off water from twenty additional acres. This field of nine acres which received about 4 inches extra water made more cotton than all of the 320 acres planted to cotton on three farms adjoining the experiment station. This experiment has called attention to the fact that water can be diverted from near by pasture or field areas and held on land long enough to soak in, thereby greatly increasing crop yields. Clay sub-soils are very slow to take up water, therefore, the necessity for it to be held on the ground a considerable length of time. Most of our soil around Cisco is underlain with a strata of clay, or heavy soil. The soil at the Spur station is very much like the dark soils around Dotheran and Scranton. Soils of this type hold more moisture if it is given time to soak in than sandy soils, except where there is a clay sub-soil near the surface.

"The Spur Experiments in soil conservation are being watched all over the country.

"Experiments are being run at this station on the best varieties of grain sorghums, best date of planting, spacing tests, etc. Local farmers saw all these tests in progress."

The following made the trip from Cisco: J. C. Patterson, L. A. Hightons, J. W. McKinney, W. F. Ziehr, L. M. Barron, Lon Townsend, Albert Schoor, Aubrey Holt, J. B. Brown, E. K. Winge, G. C. Brown, J. G. Sturville, E. H. Varnell, W. B. Starr, J. M. Starr, John Holder, Carlton Holder and Lee Lieskie.

Setting an allowable in this manner will cause an unprecedented drilling campaign in which the small operator will be unable to compete the association told the governor.

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

GUARD YOUR THOUGHTS:—Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things.—Philippians 4: 8.

GOVERNOR SITS TIGHT.

Governor Sterling's apparent determination to keep the lid on in east Texas, regardless of the railroad commission's orders, until the oil industry is assured against a repetition of the wasteful production orgy which was responsible for the special session of the legislature to enact stricter conservation laws, merits the approval of every citizen.

Under the 225-barrel per well basis the total allowable production of the field as it stands will be 340,000 barrels per day, it is estimated.

The original order of the commission has been modified by the inclusion of a provision limiting the amount of gas that may be produced with a barrel of oil to a ratio of 700 feet a barrel, and by some other and minor features, but the commission has abandoned no fundamental features of its program at Mr. Sterling's insistence upon a revision.

Without attempting to criticize the commission, the Daily News hopes that Mr. Sterling will stay in the ring with gloves on until the acts of the recent legislature have been made effective in practice. The huge cost of the special session has but one justification, and that is relief to the oil industry. To have the benefits of the legislation, secured at great expense and exertion of official energy, nullified by illogical regulations is a travesty on the state, and the governor is performing a statesmanlike service when he utilizes his authority to arrest that tendency.

NO WORK, NO EAT.

"No work, no eat," is the slogan of employment agencies of the larger cities of the state where drives for cotton pickers to harvest the bumper 1931 crop of cotton are being made. At Houston the federal employment bureau is preparing to round up 10,000 pickers for farmers in that territory.

For the next two months the ranks of the unemployed in Texas and other cotton growing states should show a great decline. The man without a job and his family, who is near the cotton patch has no reasonable excuse for remaining idle. By some irony of circumstance the picker this year stands to profit more from a bale of the staple than the farmer who has devoted his investment and his season's labor to its production. A price of 50 cents per hundred pounds seems to be the general remuneration for picking. That equals about $7.50 a bale for gathering a crop that brings between five and six cents a pound.

A good picker can make from $1.50 to $2.00 a day and if he has a family whom he can take to the fields with him his earnings are correspondingly increased. That is more money than he can earn at common day labor, and he has no excuse for throwing himself on charity or taking the alternative of starving while the opportunity to drag a sack down the rows exists.

AVOID DUPLICATION.

In these days when every item of public expense that comes out of the taxpayers' pocket should be scrutinized with a high-powered magnifying glass, the Baltimore Sun makes the following pertinent editorial comment:

"In the present state of agitation about the power trust it is highly desirable to have on hand for public use a full and accurate picture of the issues involved. There is no point, however, in having two Federal agencies engaged at public expense in going over the same ground in this matter.

"Whether such a duplication obtains to any important degree in the case of the current power investigations by the Federal Trade Commission and the Federal Power Commission, is not clear at the moment. A query on that point at the Federal Power Commission, which is launching a comprehensive investigation centered upon hydroelectric power companies licensed by the commission, did not bring an entirely clear reply. It was stated that the power commission intends to use the already enormous record compiled by the Federal Trade Commission in investigating the power industry in response to the very broad congressional resolution, but will also find it necessary to go over some of the ground independently, and with reference to its own peculiar interests. Just how much duplication of effort this might lead to was not made clear, nor did it seem that anyone had been assigned specifically to the job of acting as liaison officer between the two investigations.

"In times past there have been occasions when two agencies of the Federal government worked quite independently, and one might almost safely say competitively, in investigating the same business practices. Needless to say, this has involved a waste both of energy and public money. Consequently, there is much point in seeing that precautions are taken to avoid having the Federal Trade Commission and the Federal Power Commission plow the same ground at public expense, and at expense to the companies investigated, which is included in the power bill paid by consumers."

ALL WANT THE SAME THING

Down at Palestine the other night Col. Owsley, self-appointed guardian of the liberties of the people (or is he self-appointed?) made this brilliant statement in his talk scoring Governor Sterling for putting the oil field under martial law: "Where was the great army of Texas when you people were selling cantaloupes this summer for 1 cent each and the Jacksonville tomatoes were bringing 1 cent per pound? Why didn't they call out the army and do something about it?"

It would be interesting for the Colonel to explain what the army could have done under the circumstances he mentions. It is true the army might have eaten up a lot of these Anderson county cantaloupes and those fine Jacksonville tomatoes but what else could it have done? Unfortunately for the colonel:

idea that the shutting down of the wells and the efforts being made to bring about orderly production, is all being done in the interest of the big oil men, is the fact that the Sinclair company, the Gulf Refining company and the Danziger Oil company are taking the same position: the Colonel does. These big companies want exactly what the Colonel wants, that is wide open production and no proration. At the same time these companies' wells are bleeding for the small operators and land owners in the oil field. It is extremely touching to witness Harry Sussair shedding tears because the little fellow is being injured. And the Colonel's anxiety reaches us deeply. — Marshall News.

Other cities what they can buy at home. They have no more right to do that than any other citizen. In order to build a city, citizens must patronize each other, keeping business at home where it belongs. When this is done money will circulate more freely. There will be more work, more improvements and a better and happier city.

54 REPORT TO BRECK COACHES FOR '31 TEAM

By WES HODGES BRECKENRIDGE, Sept. 3.—Fifty-four youths, including six 1930 lettermen, answered Coach P. E. Shetwell's first call for grid practice yesterday afternoon. Three or four more 1930 squadmen and a few more nubbin candidates are due to report for duty this week or sometime before school starts. Every letterman of 1930 with the exception of Ralph Cox, tackle, was on hand yesterday for the initial drill. Cox is still in East Texas and it is not known yet whether or not he will be back for this season's grind. There's no use blowing off too much steam about how the bunch looked on their first afternoon out in uniform. You couldn't tell. They all looked a little stiff and clumsy, but this is to be expected on the first day since most of the youths probably haven't seen a football in three months. By the time Coach Shetwell and Coach John Patton puts the gridders through a week of practicing twice daily, then one may be able to say more about how they will stack up in the 1931 race.

Offhand, the chances don't look bad. With four powerful linemen back around which he can build as good a forward wall as he has ever had and two promising backfield candidates to start with, Coach Shetwell can be expected to put his Buckaroos well in the running this season, whether he wins the district title or not.

Capt. Nig Spain, Jenner Clark, Leo Martin and Bill White, line lettermen, will not give Coach Shetwell much to worry about. If Cox returns, the forward wall will be practically completed except at the ends, where Harold Henry and Joe Stutphen, making their first bid for regular Buckaroo jobs, are expected to be the leading candidates.

Jack Hurrichs and Geo. McFall, letterback backs, seem sure to land berths although they will have a smart looking bunch of youngsters to battle for their jobs. Bill Estes, fast Caddy flash; Henry Satterfield, Ansil Hodges, Chubby Wohlford, Babbie Wood, Bill Pitzer, Edward McNellan, Jim Wragg and one or two other youngsters are seeking backfield berths. Satterfield, Pitzer and Hodges will make the hardest fights for the signal barking post.

Big Doyle Pennington, Bedford Odell, Eddie Teddlie, Harry Price, Maurice Russell, and Cecil Paschall, are line candidates, that will be fighting to land a berth in the forward wall and with these youths battling down the lane, the 1930 lettermen will have no chance to sit back and figure they already have their jobs cinched. The Pennington boy will tip the scales at around 215 pounds. He's a little green, but a powerful youth. Harry Price, tackle candidate, will make any and all linemen hustle to keep their jobs. Price seems determined to make the team this year and, some say, will be a regular in spite of everything.

Human Bones Found Under House Floor

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 3.—Local authorities are investigating murder records of a decade ago as the result of the discovery of three human jaw bones and 35 old army cartridges beneath the floor of a vacant house here.

Dr. O. R. Goodall said two of the bones were of men about 50 years old and the other was that of a woman. He believed all had been dead from 10 to 15 years. A few teeth and some muscular tissue remained on the bones.

Mrs. Earl Gilchrist, wife of the owner of the rent house, discovered the bones after a tenant of two weeks moved without leaving an address. Though old, the bones apparently had been under the floor only a short time as they were wrapped in a copy of the Denver Post of March 8, 1931.

The cartridges were in seven

UGE X-RAY IS BUILT TO FIGHT CANCER

PASADENA, Calif., Sept. 3.—An unraveling of the mysteries of matter and a possible solution to the difficulties that have baffled physicians in their battle against cancer, is hoped for by California Institute of Technology scientists who will start operation of the world's largest and most powerful ray tube.

The tube, approximately 30 feet long and using 2,000,000 volts of electricity, is the latest instrument in the struggle against death. Rays emitted by the tube are as powerful as all the radium in the world would be if gathered in one spot, Dr. C. C. Lauritsen, its designer, declared.

Smash Atoms
 With rays generated in the tube, scientists at the Institute expect to be able to demolish with ease the atoms, now believed to be composed of electrons, with a theoretical "breaking point" when struck by about 300,000 volts of electricity. Scientists in this way hope to be able to determine the constituents of matter.

Study Electrons
 Although the exploration of electrons is the primary purpose of the tube, cancer is to be the study of a research committee composed of Los Angeles physicians.

With proper safety precautions, it is believed that the potent rays will prove stronger and of more benefit than those now in use in treatments. The new tube is 1,300,000 volts stronger than any existing instrument for cancer treatment.

The cow, whose right fore quarter was injured and had to be removed three years before the beginning of her test, also suffered during the eighth month of the test with milk fever, so that her udder had to be pumped. She regained her full milk flow, but forty-four days later got down with milk fever again. She was 6 years and 7 months of age when started on test, and had made no previous register of merit record. During the year she yielded 732.11 pounds of butterfat, 14,595 pounds of milk. She maintained her yield above 50 pounds of butterfat per month, and during her highest month yielded 70.14 pounds of butterfat.

Bright Briscoe 693819, another of Tarleton's prized Jerseys, also won the Gold Medal in a recent test, winning also the Silver Medal award for cows under five years of age when started on test. She was only 3 years and 11 months of age when started on test. In 365 days she produced 725.01 pounds of butterfat, 12,601 pounds of milk, averaging 5.75 per cent fat. During the last seven months of her test she produced more than 60 pounds of butterfat per month, exceeding by several pounds the average for the first five months of her test. During her highest month, the tenth of her test she yielded 67.80 pounds of butterfat, or approximately 102 pounds of butter.

AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION NEWS

From the Office of the County Agent and The Home Demonstration Agent.

EVERY FARM A FACTORY

This slogan of the Agricultural Committee of the Texas Bankers' association has been adopted also by the Texas Extension Service. It is commended to newspapers, bankers and others interested in a safe and sane farming program. When this slogan becomes a reality on Eastland county farms our farmers will be in a sound financial footing and business generally throughout the county will again become and permanently remain prosperous. Farmers would do well to adopt this slogan after making a slight variation in it making it read "This farm a factory every week of the year." These farmers who have made a practice of having something to market every time they go to town will be found in much better condition financially than the average farmer.

There is always a market at some price for dairy products, poultry, eggs, fresh and canned fruit and vegetables, dried beans and peas, fresh, cured and canned meats of all kinds. Homemade hominy has almost gone out of existence but could be made a marketable product. Popcorn and peanuts for home use offers another salable product. Pumpkins and kershaws keep well for several months but are not usually available after November. Potatoes and onions store well and are in demand during the winter and spring. Cream cheese sells well and offers a good outlet for milk. Cottage cheese when properly made and packed will always find a ready sale. Okra dries well and is fine for soups during the winter when there is no fresh supply. There are other things that find good markets when properly prepared and offered for sale. Energetic people with plenty of ingenuity can always find something to work at the year round that will help make the farm a factory every week of the year.

SPUR EXPERIMENT STATION VISITED BY LOCAL FARMERS.

Nineteen Eastland county farmers observed the experimental work being done at the State Experiment Station last Friday, being accompanied by E. H. Varnell, Vocational Agricultural worker, at Cisco and the county agent. The trip was made in the one day with almost five hours spent on the station. Soil conservation or terracing experiments was the phase of work in which we were most interested. Terraces have been built with different slopes and on the level, rows running straight down the hills and records of crop yields kept on the various plots since 1926. Planted to cotton last year the rows running down the hill yielded at the rate of one bale to 74 acres, which was about the average for neighboring farms. Terraced land with terraces and rows on the level yielded a bale to four acres and plots arranged the same way but with the water from some other land run in on this ground made a bale to three acres. These results are in line with past records.

Mr. Dickson, station superintendent is strongly in favor of level terraces or those having no fall. Practically all land in that section is now being terraced in this manner. With some heavy rains the water will spill over the terraces but uniformly all along the terrace.

POPULAR THEORY EXPLODED

Another interesting experiment being conducted at this station which is being corroborated by other state and federal stations is in relation to the amount of cultivation most profitable to crops. Results are that too frequent cultivation often cuts crop yields and that the only advantage of cultivation is the destruction of weeds and grass. Cotton that is kept clean by limited cultivation or merely chopping up the weeds and grass is making just as high yields as that plowed three or four times and is making higher yields than that cultivated three or four times. This has exploded a very popular theory that constant plowing increases the returns. It is important however that the seed bed be properly prepared before plowing since deep plowing of corn in its early stages increases the yield by taking place of deep plowing in preparing the land for planting.

Statements about the results of planting with the skip row method require qualifications since the yield is determined by the number of plants per acre rather than the distance between rows. Mr. Dickson recommends in planting grain scrumgins that every row be planted and then if there is not a good stand all of it be left but if there is a good stand every third row be plowed up later to be planted in peas if desired. Ordinarily it is better to have a thin stand so the heads get bigger thus curing the harvesting cost although the amount of grain per acre may be the same as when planted thicker.

Livestock feeding tests at the Spur station have shown that the grain and top crop is just as valuable feed as milo or corn. It has developed also in feeding for age to sheep and young cattle grinding the bundles at a cost of $2.00 per ton was not profitable, however where there is a grinder on the farm and no expense is figured for grinding it probably paid since the amounts of grains put on the animals are slightly higher. Older stock usually pay better when the feed is ground. Mr. Dickson states that the amount of grain fed lost by not being digested is just as great when fed ground as when fed whole. Whole grains in the droppings are readily observed and while this loss cannot be seen when the grain is ground the feed is there just the same. It appears that there is more difference in the quality of feed than in the variety of method of preparing for stock. Early planted milo stalks are usually unpalatable and not eaten readily while late planted stalks are

During the past week I have been over approximately 100 Eastland county farms and in nearly every instance I have observed wide strips of land in the fields bordering timber which is sapping the ground from fifty to a hundred feet to such an extent that little or no crops are grown yet this land must be cultivated just as productive land is. A 50 to 100 foot strip of this timber may be killed out around the entire field at very little cost. Now is probably the best time for deadening timber. The chemicals making up the formula are 1 pound each of white arsenic, sal soda and common lye together with one and a half gallons of water. Mix the lye and soda in the water and stir in the arsenic. Cut the bark around the tree similar to girdling but only cut through the bark with a downward stroke each time making a continuous trench around the tree. Apply poison mixture at rate of one tablespoonful to each six inches around the tree. Brush and small timber may be cut off and the stump mopped thoroughly with the poison for a complete kill. There are no sprouts coming out and the tree rots out quicker than if just cut down. Field sprouts may be readily killed in this manner. This mixture costs about 20 cents per gallon. One gallon should deaden timber all around a ten acre field. The work of applying it is light. The mixture is poison.

GUILTY LIPS

Author of "MAD MARRIAGE"
LAURA LOU BROOKMAN

etty Norma Kent, 20-year-old secretary in a law office, sees Travers for the first time together as they rescue a puppy from downtown traffic in Marlborough, middle-western metropolis. Norma declines to tell Travers her name or where he can see her.

Farrell, young lawyer, asks Norma to marry him and she resists, though she finds the puppy's friend. Norma takes the puppy to the shabby apartment she shares with Christine Saunders. Christine is falling in love with her married employer, Brad Hart, proprietor of an advertising agency. Norma inserts an advertisement about the puppy in the paper and the first person to call is Mark Travers. He tries to set a date but Norma declines invitations. A small boy comes claiming the puppy and takes it home.

Norma goes for a drive with Farrell and he tells her he is going to Marlboro. Two days later she meets Travers on the street and goes to lunch with him. This is the beginning of a whirlwind romance. Norma finds herself over-heels in love but thinks she must send Travers away because of some secret of the past. She declares if Norma loves Travers all else is unimportant.

Mark is invited to dinner at the apartment. Norma is there alone when a caller arrives. He tells her his father and demands an affair with his son shall end. The matter of a heated speech appears. Father and son quarrel and the father threatens to disown Mark if he marries Norma. The elder Travers departs. Mark begs Norma to marry him once and after some hesitation she agrees. The couple drive to town of Woodbury with Christine and Bradley Hart. Norma and Mark secure a license and are married. Then Mark takes his bride to the palatial Hotel Marlborough.

CHAPTER XIII

GO ON WITH THE STORY

The glowing orb of the moon had started gently and moved to the right. Out of the sunlight it was not glowing metal at all but red. Norma shook her head and was bobbing tenderly that had been hearing the vision of her left eye back into place.

Curled up in the huge rose wicker chair the girl seemed a creature. She wore a negligee of blue. It was skimpily cut, and of cheap material but as brightly azure as the heavens on perfect July morning. A worn black satin mule flopped back on one bare foot. Norma's face seemed to glow from the light of her shoulder, revealing arms of a creamy whiteness. Like the rest of her body the arms were extremely formed, slender but rounded.

She was smiling. Not at the young man across the room. His black eyes toward her. Norma gazed at the reflection in the mirror of the dressing table. It showed a young man, costless, energetically brushing a shock of brown hair back from his forehead. He had an unusually good-looking face, with eyes that frowned, as if he did just then, and threw down his brush to tag at his neck. Suddenly he caught Norma's eyes, catching him in the mirror. The young man became a grin. Mark whirled.

"See here, Mrs. Travers," he called, "you call yourself a help-me-out wife? Sitting there taking my life and everything I try to do! Don't even tie my tie decently! Here, what kind of conduct do you call that?"

In three strides he was across the room, perched on the arm of Norma's chair and tussling her hair.

"The girl laughed and tried to defend herself. A moment more and Mark had routed her from the chair, appropriated it himself. He held Norma, protesting gaily, in his arms and the game became a heated contest. Much rubbing of the hand curds the wrong way. It was nothing fun — half-pay, half-entertainment. Flushed and breathless, at last Mark claimed undisputed victory. At last he placed a long kiss squarely on the girl's lips. Norma lay back and looked at him from beneath the dark fringes of her lashes.

"Look at your tie now," she suggested demurely.

It was worse — oh, so very much worse than it had been! Travers grimaced in mock dismay. He shook his head.

"So this is married life! Terrible, terrible!"

A little beyond reach stood the breakfast table. It had been abandoned some time since and was littered with crumpled napkins and soiled dishes. There were pink roses in a silver vase in the center of this disarray.

Norma drew herself away. "It really is terrible," she agreed. "Goodness, it must be — why, look! — nearly 11 o'clock! Oh, Mark! Think of all the things we should be doing! They won't be any idea at the office what's become of me. Mr. Brooks will be furious."

"Let 'em worry. You're never going back there again."

"But, Mark, don't you think —"

A knock at the door interrupted. It was the waiter who had come to take away the breakfast table. As he was leaving Mark took out his wallet and stuffed a bill into the man's hand. The waiter bowed, murmured thanks and departed.

Mark did not replace the wallet. Instead he opened it again, drew out a collection of coins and greenbacks and looked at them. A rueful smile spread over his face. He scratched his chin meditatively.

"There was exactly $96 in that wallet yesterday," he announced. "Ninety-six dollars." Suddenly the mired it, grateful she could bring her beauty in tribute to Mark. There seemed little else that she had brought him.

Norma did not dawdle as she powdered, rouged her lips and slipped into her clothing. She hurried because Mark might return at any moment. She must be ready to leave when he returned. They couldn't remain in this extravagant place any longer.

When she had made herself as presentable as possible the girl spent a rueful moment before the mirror. Her dress was the one she had worn the night before. It was a brown crepe of utmost simplicity, bought only three weeks before. Modish, well-fitting in spite of its cheapness — but brown. Brown was no color for a bride to wear! Her neat pumps were brown too, and she had worn the brown beret in place of a hat. It had seemed appropriate for the drive to Woodbury, less appropriate this morning. Well, doubtless hundreds of other brides had had made impulsive marriages had known the same pang over absence of wedding finery.

From the sitting room window Norma could see the huge clock on a sky-scraper two blocks away. Twenty after twelve now. Mark had been gone nearly an hour. She tried peering down into the street to see if she could see him. That was ridiculous. The window was on the eighth floor and it was impossible to look straight downward.

Well, she could write the letter to Brooks, Welliver and Brooks explaining why she was giving up her work.

It was a difficult letter to write. Norma sat at the neatly appointed desk a long while before she put her pen down on the fresh paper. She began three separate pages and in rapid succession discarded them. It was fully 45 minutes before the note was finished and then Norma studied it with dissatisfaction before finally the sheet was folded and inserted in its envelope. She addressed it but left the flap unsealed. She would ask

Mark what he thought of the note before mailing it.

Surely Mark should be there! Terror with clutching, vise-like fingers of ice gripped the girl's heart. A traffic accident—a simple misstep—oh, if anything had happened!

Again she sought the window. Then for 10 minutes Norma paced back and forth—back and forth. She could not sit still but she must stop this worrying. She must believe nothing terrible had happened. It was only a foolish nightmare. Mark would be there any moment now. She sat down again. A moment more and she was on her feet, as restless as before. The frightful premonition would not be downed.

Long Plan--

raise prices on the current crop to a point where a profit could be made on cotton now in the hands of the farmers and this, Long plan advocates argued, would be more than could be hoped for this year or next if the threat of a large 1932 production continues to hang over the market.

Other Arguments
Other arguments advanced for the Long plan is that it will teach the farmer that he can grow something else beside cotton; eliminate root rot, insects and soil and resins; and land from its annual cultivation of cotton.

The small majority who favored plans for a 50 per cent reduction of production on a percentage or other proration basis, did not advance arguments for their plans. Features of each, however, were detailed by Mr. Gilbert.

In his address Mr. Gilbert pointed out that the governor is anxious for an expression of opinion from the farmers who live outside the city. He declared that the farmer has not taken sufficient active interest in the legislature although their voice is earnestly listened to by the legislators, and urged them to adopt a more aggressive attitude in presenting their interests to the state lawmakers.

Other Meetings
Several of the farmers present said that the meeting had not been sufficiently advertised among the farmers who live outside the city limits and do not take the daily paper, and these asserted that the interest in the question among the rural population is paramount and that had they but known it generally large numbers would have been present to express their views. It was gathered from remarks in this connection that the majority of the farmer population of the county is

Ex-King Plans Book on War

PARIS, Sept. 3.—With nothing to do but find a job to keep him busy, ex-King Alfonso of Spain advised close friends recently that he had decided to publish a book. The book will not be a defense of the Spanish monarchy nor an explanation of his abdication, but will be devoted entirely to proving that Alfonso was friendly to France in the World War.

Alfonso was surprised, since coming here in exile, to learn that his war time position is regretted by many French.

In his book, the King intends to show what he did to prove his sympathy for France, despite the pro-German attitude of many of the Spanish political leaders during the war and the government's official neutrality.

His writings will show how he spent from his personal fortune to obtain the repatriation of French prisoners and how he paid for special care for French wounded in German prison camps. One of the French prisoners whose return King Alfonso obtained was Maurice Chevalier, the moving picture star.
