DIKIE FARMERS PLEAD WITH TEXAS

Belize Struggles to Restore Order After Hurricane

UNOFFICIAL CHECK SHOWS 700 PERISHED

BRITISH HONDURAS, Sept. 12.—(By Pan-American Airways Press)—This devastated city, for its injured and burying its dead, struggled today to bring order out of the chaos left by Thursday's hurricane and tidal wave. An official count had not yet been made of the dead but estimates ranged from 400 to as high as 700. The injured numbered 600 or more, and more than one-third of the buildings were left.

COMMUNICATIONS RE-ESTABLISHED

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 12.—A new but unofficial check today estimated 700 persons to be dead at Belize, British Honduras, from the effects of the hurricane there Thursday, according to a message received by the Pan-American Airways operator here from the Pan-American operator at Belize.

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

THE FOUNTAIN OF PRAISE:—O Lord, open thou my lips; and my mouth shall shew forth thy praise. For thou desirest not sacrifice; else would I give it.—Psalm 51: 15, 16.

PLAIN SPEAKING.

John B. Daniels, general counsel for the Temple Trust company, of Temple, impresses one as a type of man who is not going to stay down if he is knocked down. An aggressive, vigorous, determined sort of man with a streak of fight in him that keeps him battling when the odds are the heaviest. Mr. Daniels has become familiar to many Ciscoans in connection with his program for putting Randolph college on its feet. To him the Temple Trust company bequeathed the task of making an asset out of a liability and Mr. Daniels has shucked his coat and waded into the middle of the problem with such a ferocious assault upon its difficulties that Cisco has already profited spiritually by his electrifying vigor.

With his aggressiveness Mr. Daniels combines a penchant for plain speaking. He belongs to that rare species who can tell brutal facts kindly. There was nothing indirect or insinuating in the way he scored Cisco people for their low morale at the meeting at the high school auditorium Thursday night. He told them as frankly as a physician would tell a patient he had gout or dyspepsia, that they had lost their spirit and their fighting ability and he made them like it. Figuratively he gave Cisco a good "raking over the coals" and there are plenty of those who heard him who today admit it was the best oratorical tonic that this city has had in moons.

But, imagine telling Cisco that Cisco has no spirit, that Cisco people are low in morale and need an injection of real, honest-to-God Irish fighting blood. Isn't it rather disgraceful that a man can come to Cisco from Temple, or any other city in east, west, north or south Texas, and point such an indictment at Cisco? One is instantly prompted to inquire: "Is this the city that built a big dam and lake, the biggest swimming pool in the world, miles of paved streets, produced champion high school football teams and developed a civic spirit that was a state-wide boast and a monumental pride?" If so what has the past been worth to us? Of what advantage was it that we built well if today we are content to decay? Of what consequence the spirit of 1920 if that of 1931 is flabby and weak and our civic zeal sunk deflated into a shameful shadow of the past? Of what advantage is it that we met the problems of other years with a conquering, vivifying determination that elevated Cisco into a boastful prominence if the problems of today find us lax and afraid, too steeped in indecision and too downright debilitated spiritually to even attempt to overcome them?

Are we not the same people? Are we not physically strong? Do we not have the same desires, the same hopes the same needs?

Why is it that a man by the name of John B. Daniels should come from Temple, Texas, and point a finger of indictment at Cisco?

THEY COULD HAVE KILLED HIM BUT.

Warden R. E. Davis' nerve stopped a prison mutiny in Utah that might have claimed many lives and done damage running into the thousands.

The outbreak was well underway, the prisoners had gained the upperhand and had even kidnaped two guards whom they threatened to strangle. Then the warden acted. He walked into a prison courtyard, alive with rebellious convicts. They might have killed him easily enough but they didn't touch him.

Such lack of fear awed these frenzied convicts into submission and at his command to "get back to your cells, you men," they scurried for the cell house.

How much better was this warden's plan than standing on the prison walls aggravating the mutiny by pouring a stream of bullets at those convicts. Men the world over respect a brave man. And when it comes to bravery and to handling men this warden certainly knows his onions.

A MAN WITH COURAGE.

B. W. Thompson sends in a clipping from the Thursday morning paper of the story from Fort Worth of A. C. Smith fighting off an armed negro when the black sought to attack a woman. He writes: "A. C. Smith by his action on the occasion mentioned stamped himself as one of the noblest of heroes. Do you not think the women should express their admiration of him?"

Smith, if you don't remember the story, was fired on by the armed negro. His courage was exceeding.

WHEN IT'S TIME TO LAY POLITICS ASIDE.

Great Britain is rising to meet its financial crisis. Parliament is pruned down the nation's costs and economy is the word.

Prime Minister MacDonald hasn't minced his words about there being a crisis. He and those who were his foes short weeks ago are working side by side to stabilize the kingdom.

Save for some disgruntled laborites, members of the party MacDonald formed and nursed to power, politics has been laid aside and all have worked for the common cause—Great Britain.

In New York state there are indications that politics will be laid aside and that all will work to relieve the state's unemployed. Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt has a program for the needy. From republican headquarters this week came orders that the party must not obstruct the democratic govern-

nor's program to help the jobless and the hungry. Be that good politics, its good cooperation, too—

And now's the time for political foes to lay aside their personal differences and pull together.

OTHER OPINIONS

TEXAS OPPORTUNITY.

Texas controls gas and oil enough to provide for half the nation's industries, and has in reserve countless thousands of tons of combustible lignite; it has a virtual monopoly of the most important chemical known to the modern industrial world, producing more than eighty-five per cent of the world's and almost one hundred per cent of the country's sulphur; completion of the intracoastal canal will connect its industrial centers with all of the important cities and populous areas of the Great Lakes and Mississippi Valley regions, and its splendid deep-water ports already have given it access to all world markets. To these add a mild and salubrious climate favorable to efficient year-round industrial operations and an abundant supply of surface and artesian waters. It is a picture of incomparable industrial opportunity.

No commonwealth of ancient or modern history ever had so valid a claim upon industrial and commercial pre-eminence, yet there is a rather general feeling that we are "muffing" the opportunity. Enough Texas gas is being wasted, experts inform us, to operate all of the industries of the great Chicago and Pittsburgh industrial districts; and instead of encouraging industry to come to Texas where this abundance of cheap fuel is available, our tactics are calculated to suggest that they locate elsewhere and pipe this precious fuel to the out-of-Texas location.

There was recently established in Corpus Christi a great chemical manufacturing industry whose initial investment will range between eight and twenty million dollars. It will afford employment for approximately fifteen hundred men. This giant industry came to Texas for three good reasons: it demanded a location central as to sulphur, salt and fuel, and nowhere else could that requirement be so well satisfied as in Texas.

If we would have more industries in Texas, like the one that established in Corpus Christi, we've got to build a reputation for industrial-mindedness. We've got to conduct ourselves, particularly in our legislative halls, so that a reputation for fair-dealing is broadcast across the continent. We've got to sell ourselves on the idea of building, rather than destroying, payrolls. We've got to apply to our revenue needs the doctrine of volume—of great volume and small assessments, rather than small volume and high assessments.

A little sane and constructive thinking and acting, and Texas can capitalize upon an opportunity that is without parallel. Capital and industry merely wait until we evidence an established policy that is deeply rooted in the principles of fairness and equity.—Editorial Digest.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee, Oklahoma.

That in every city in the land, advertisements are helping to make business better.

Business concerns that wish to sell their wares can simplify their selling by using newspaper advertising.

Business concerns are doing business under self-imposed difficulties when they do not use newspaper advertising.

Citizens should realize that when they buy advertised goods they get the best at the price. What to buy will not trouble them after they read the advertisements, for the best is always advertised.

It is with a feeling of pride that live business concerns present for the public's consideration, through their advertisements, the best and latest in up-to-date merchandise or service.

The advertisements always tell you when and where to get what you want.

Real bargains are always advertised.

ARE YOU GOING TO SCHOOL THIS FALL.

If you contemplate attending a business college this fall, and take Texas gas is being wasted, experts inform us, to operate all of the industries of the great Chicago and Pittsburgh industrial districts; and instead of encouraging industry to come to Texas where this abundance of cheap fuel is available, our tactics are calculated to suggest that they locate elsewhere and pipe this precious fuel to the out-of-Texas location.

THE LION THAT JUMPED TOO FAR

Well s'r, driftin' down an African river on a tree is no picnic. First off, a big hippopotamus rose up out of the water, opened a mouth as big as a cave and roared like a China Sea typhoon. Perk took a shot at th' hippo and fell backwards into th' water. In th' excitement my gun slipped out of my hand and sank to the bottom of th' river.

As I was reachin' for Perk to pull him out he began to yell that somethin' was bitin' him. I heaved him up onto th' tree, an' I'll be dingbusted if there weren't three or four big-mouthed fish hangin' on to him. We'd just knocked th' last fish from one of Perk's legs when I saw a canoe full of savages makin' for us. Luckily for us we had drifted in close to shore. In one jump we were in th' jungle, runnin' like scared rabbits. After a little we stopped to get a breath or two. Just then, out of th' corner of my eye, I saw a big lion on a rock above us, ready to leap. By cracky we lit out of there like bullets out of a gun, with th' lion roarin' after us.

I spotted a big tree with a limb about ten feet from th' ground. Perk and I jumped for th' limb just as th' lion made his big leap for us and hit th' trunk of th' tree head-on. We got down from our perch and I'll be dodgasted if th' lion wasn't dead'n a door-nail. To this day I believe it was th' same lion that went adrift in our boat on th' beach.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

SOME MISSIONARY EXPERIENCES

Text: Acts 11:8-23
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Sept. 13. Some Missionary Experiences. — Acts 11:8-23.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of The Congregationalist

Missionary experiences have almost always been accompanied by remarkable physical phenomena. Hence it is that the record of missionary enterprise is a record full of stories of the miraculous.

The New Testament never makes the miracles themselves the important thing but rather the power by which the miracles were wrought.

Perhaps it is worth while to point out that the most remarkable works of healing in connection with missions of modern times. By utilizing the laws of nature earnest missionaries trained for their work in the best schools of medicine and surgery have brought relief to countless thousands. The stories of what modern missionary hospitals and clinics have accomplished do not sound miraculous in an age when so many marvelous things are happening in obedience to law, but all the miracles of the past, that are recorded represent something very slight in comparison with the Christian application of the laws of God in the treatment of disease in modern times and the bringing of relief to the suffering people.

The traditions that arise concerning great religious movements are very interestingly illustrated in the records of this lesson. The people who saw these wonderful happenings were neither Jews nor Christians; they were full of pagan notions, and they had to interpret these facts according to their own religious ideas. So it was that they believed that their own gods had come down in human form. They called Barnabas Jupiter, and Paul, Mercury. So strongly were they impressed with the facts, that as moved by their own assumption that Paul and Barnabas were gods in the likeness of men, that the priest of Jupiter, whose temple was outside the city, brought oxen and garlands to the gates, intending to do sacrifice there in the presence of the multitudes, in accordance with their religious ideas.

How simple and direct, however, were the words of Paul and Barnabas; their very actions giving their words emphasis. When they found the priest and the people acting in this way they thrust themselves among the multitude, rending their garments in token of deep feeling and crying to the people, "Why do ye these things? We also are men of like passions with you."

In ancient times as today, the multitudes liked to be fooled. Even the plain and direct words of Paul and Barnabas were hardly sufficient to restrain them from their sacrificial purpose. Simplicity in religion is the last thing that many people seek.

It is this lack of simplicity and lack of regard for essential truth that makes so much of religious interest unstable and even dangerous.

The mob spirit that is full of devotion today may be full of the reaction of vengeance tomorrow.

This worshipful feeling toward Paul and Barnabas changed very quickly when Jews from Antioch and Iconium arrived at Lystra and preached there he returned to Lystra and to Iconium and to Antioch—the very cities in which he had met with so much opposition and in one of which he had almost lost his life. The purpose of this return was to confirm the faith of the disciples and to encourage them in their new experience. He taught them also that through tribulations we must enter into the Kingdom of God.

NOTED WRITER WORKS ON NEW MASTERPIECE

MEDAN, France, Sept. 11. — A mysterious masterpiece, of which the world will know nothing until it is completed, is being produced here by Maurice Maeterlinck, the famous Belgian writer, in the seclusion of the old chateau of Medan.

Although 70, Maeterlinck works every day in the week to complete his mysterious work. Few visitors are allowed even to enter the park surrounding the chateau and inquiring journalists have the gates closed in their faces.

Maeterlinck never deviates from a daily program which he has followed for many years. He rises each morning at seven and starts writing at eight.

Hearty Meal.

At 12 o'clock he stops work to enjoy a hearty meal and then takes a nap for several hours. Before three o'clock has struck, however, he is on his feet again, walking about the grounds of the chateau followed by his little Belgian dog.

When he has had sufficient exercise, he starts to work again and usually writes until seven. Then has dinner, and goes to bed immediately afterward.

Nothing can induce him to change the hours set for meals or work. People who come to visit him on business must forget business when 12 o'clock strikes.

Maeterlinck, in spite of the mysticism in his writings, is a true "gourmet." He always eats heartily. Sometimes he likes to prepare his own meals and is said to be an excellent cook.

Tinkers With Auto.

His other diversions are tinkering with his automobile and repairing the electric light system of the chateau.

Once with a persistent newspaperman managed to enter the grounds of the chateau, he encountered Maeterlinck wearing old clothes covered with grease working on a motor car. Not recognizing the writer, he explained who he was and said:

"I would like to see your master." "He won't see you," Maeterlinck replied. "He doesn't like journalists. You had better not let him catch you around here."

BIG DAM CHATTER

With the Ranger Bulldogs' startling defeat of the Stephenville Yellow-jackets, erstwhile power in the Oil Belt district, and Brownwood's not unimpressive rout of the Santa Anna battalion, the 1931 edition of the oil belt football season has had its prelude and is now officially on the boards. Led by the redoubtable Weaver, whose passing precision gained the admiration of the customers, the well-advanced Ranger crew punted, passed and ran its way to a top-lotus victory over the Yellow-jackets Friday afternoon at Ranger. The score at the conclusion of the spectacle was an orgy of 67 to 0. The canyons accumulated 21 first downs while the impotent Stephenville team was without a tally even in this indecisive column.

The Bulldogs, traditionally recognized as the vanguard of the oil belt district, shared honors in this department with two other teams, Brownwood and Eastland. The Lion-20 to 0 defeat of the Santa Anna team, has been mentioned. While they and the canines were scamping to tall victories, the lighter Eastland Mavericks crew drew a serious assignment in the shape of the reserves from Howard Payne college. The Mavericks maintained prestige but it was by a narrow margin of 7 to 0 gained at the expense of a bitter struggle. The encounter took place at Eastland. Criticism of the grouping of all three opening conflicts on the same afternoon has been directed from some ardent fans who wished to absorb the largest amount of football possible this season. It is probable that the gates suffered to some extent.

While the skirmish squads were thus engaged the remaining three of the Big Four resumed uneventful practice grinds. Cisco, Breckenridge and Abilene will not swing into action until the latter part of this week. Cisco plays host to the German representatives, Breckenridge entertains an invading Comanche crew while Abilene's opponent is unknown to us, principally because Prexy Anderson straddles so much territory in his daily menu of sports that he seems to have forgotten such a team as the Eagles exists. It is almost like searching for the well-known needle in the haystack to get any statistical information on the way birds. We have just searched through three or four back copies of Prexy's periodical in a futile effort to discover what fate waits the charges of Mr. Mayberry this week. It has been in our mind to speak to Prexy about that. No doubt he will return something to the effect that we should read our exchanges.

Before confining these remarks to the home picture, it should be well to remark by way of explaining the apparent lack of information we shall be able to provide, that Chesley field holds the pregnant secrets of the Lobos of 1931. The buzzard-roost received quite a severe shock early in the season when Coach Jeffery, after a brief period of leniency served notice on the curious that he wanted privacy and lots of it. Some of the braver of the "old guard" tested the sincerity of his announcement later and discovered to their chagrin that the new Lobo member has a faculty for saving a great deal in a very few words. They left the field humbled in pride and respectful attitude and since that good day any one of the ejected will admit that he would much rather stay in town and play ping-pong, leaving the whole of the field to Jeffery and Hill and the 53 charges that are going grimly about the business of making a football team.

Naturally the effect of Mr. Jeffery's ultimatum has been to increase the already lively curiosity as to what is taking place out there, and critics are looking eagerly forward to next Friday evening at 8 o'clock when the blazing lights at Chesley field will illuminate a scene of much significance. The Lobos will go against the Gormen eleven at that hour in their first test of the season. German, if past experience holds true, will be well fortified by a bruising crew of "axes" and the Cisco boys should not take the encounter too lightly.

Meanwhile reports leaking through the crevices of the censorship about Chesley field have an untimely flavor. Forrest Ray, up and coming guard, has been temporarily, at least, removed from the scene of action by virtue of an attack of appendicitis. Frank Aycock, another line player of great promise, is nursing a turned ankle which seems to be improving nevertheless.

The general attitude of the boys is not what the coaches have ordered and some grim sessions of a character to set the mental equation at rights are slated. The change in coaching bringing about a revision of system of play—with particular emphasis upon open attack—seems to have gotten the boys out of the proper frame and they appear to come a trifle bewildered and unable to fall naturally into the groove. The problem is to get their feet back on solid ground and the squad to click with the naturalness that comes from perfect assurance in what it is doing and why. Plenty of power and hustle are not to be denied but Jeffery and Hill are concerned with getting the boys in the right attitude for the most effective application of this talent.

That, to be frank, is the reason the gates are barred against spectators. Nothing that will distract attention from the chores that the 53 squaddies are put to each afternoon will be allowed on the field. If the grandstand benches were guilty of such distraction they would probably be dumped over the fence by Monday afternoon.

The character of the starting eleven is only dimly beginning to assert itself above the general surface of the squad. In fact there is little possibility that a regular starting team will be nominated before the Spectators Friday night will therefore, be privileged to speculate without inhibition upon the likeliest candidates.

"Texas" Title of Song by Ciscoan

Matthew Henry Kleiner native Ciscoan and son of Mrs. J. E. Kincaid, of this city, has just published a song for which he wrote the lyric and Harry P. Schaefer, Cisco musician, composed the music.

The song "Texas" is dedicated to the state from which it borrows its title. Young Kleiner, who has ambitions to become the poet laureate of Texas, presented the Daily News with a copy of his poetic efforts. The song is divided into six stanzas and one chorus.

Laura Lou Brookman Author of "MAD MARRIAGE"

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Norma Kent, 20-year-old girl in a law office, marries Travers, son of F. M. Travers, real estate dealer, the father has sworn to cut off without a penny if the daughter takes a husband. Norma has only a few weeks, did during the courtship that a millionaire's son.

She let him take her into the drug store. The boy at the soda fountain mixed and presented the dose in a tall glass. Norma swallowed the unpleasant mixture bravely.

"You'll feel better now," the hotel and you can lie down a while.

They went out on the street. It was after 8:30 and traffic on Center street, Marlboro's chief thoroughfare, was heading for the theaters and picture palaces.

Norma stood still, clinging to Mark's arm, and breathed deeply of the fresh October air. Another week and October would be gone. The night was a cloudless one with a cool breeze that was not chilling.

"Do you know what I'd like to do?" she asked. "I'd like to walk. It's such a perfect night and I think the air would be good for my head."

"Well, then, we'll walk."

For a block they drifted with the crowd. At the intersection they crossed and turned to the right. The street ahead of them was brightly lit but outside the rounds of the pleasure seekers. Tall office buildings, strongholds of commerce, rose on either side. Not half a dozen pedestrians were in sight.

Norma and Mark walked slowly, saying little. He was holding her arm, keeping her close to him. They came to Broad street. Half a block away was the Liberty building, where Brooks, Weliver and Brooks had their law offices. How many weary hours Norma had spent there!

She was not thinking of the law office as she stopped suddenly. "It was right here, Mark!" she exclaimed. "Right here in front of the flower store. Do you remember?"

"Sure I do. You mean the night I dragged that pun out of the street, don't you? The first time I ever saw you? Say—and were you high-hat! Wouldn't give me a tumble. Wouldn't tell me your name."

The street light across the corner was old and dim. Only the palest glow of yellow fell across the girl's face as she raised happy eyes.

"But you found out, darling! Oh, Mark, that all happened only six weeks ago. Doesn't it—doesn't it sort of make you tremble to think how much can happen in such a little time?"

"Funny all right. Say—if anyone'd told me six weeks ago that I'd be married tonight I'd never in the world have believed that. That was before I met you, Baby!"

"Not—not sorry, are you, Mark?"

"Well, what do you think?"

They went on again. Three-quarters of an hour later they were back in the hotel room. Norma slipped off her hat and hung away her coat.

Mark had thrown himself into the big chair. He was scowling at the floor. As the girl turned he said, "Norma—I think maybe you were right when you said we shouldn't come to this place. I think maybe we ought to move."

"Oh, I'm glad! I've been so anxious to get into a place of our own, dear. An apartment where I can cook and keep house. It would be so much more fun!"

"Yeah—and lots cheaper! I guess you think I'm the world's prize dud, Norma. Maybe I am. Only don't think I'm not trying to find a job. I've tried a dozen places. Trouble is people start kidding whenever they see me. They don't think I'm really serious about going to work. It isn't that but going to find friends for favors. I got over that long ago. If we move the money we have will last longer."

Norma flung her arms about his neck.

"We will move," she declared. "I'll start tomorrow morning hunting for a place. And you're going to find work soon, too, dear."

Norma's quest for an apartment was more successful than Mark's search for work. Within two days she had located a "three-in-one" arrangement of living room, dressing room, kitchenette and bath. It was in the neighborhood where she and Chris had lived. In a nicer building with more air and sunlight. The rent was five dollars higher.

Mark stormed a bit at transferring to such an unfashionable neighborhood, but he discovered how rents mounted elsewhere. Besides there was no lease to sign. The right job with a decent salary. Mark, during the second week of their return from Blue Springs, was in a subdued and tractable mood.

He let Norma manage details of their installation in the new quarters. He even graciously echoed her enthusiasm over purchases from the "five and ten"—kitchenware, a growing plant in gay orange and white pots, and yellow and white dimity curtains to brighten the kitchenette.

Norma knew that Mark was worried and disturbed. No need to ask when he arrived home at night whether the day had brought "luck." She cheered him bravely. She was so sure all he needed was his chance in the world.

Mark Travers' method of hunting a job was far from the procedure of most young men seeking work. He never looked at "help-wanted" columns in newspapers. He ignored employment agencies. Mark did not consider himself above such things. He was merely self-conscious, entirely without an idea of the business-like way to attack his problem.

Each day he went to the club. He dropped into offices where he had acquaintances, sauntered about the old haunts, always in the expectation he would hear of "a good thing." Making these rounds required that a large amount of time should be spent in careless chatter. Mark was known as a good fellow. He tried to maintain the reputation.

He stood waiting for a car one evening during the hateful rush hour. A fat woman, arms loaded with bundles, wedged her way between Mark and the street car. He stepped back to avoid the sharp-cornered packages so near his right eye he heard a familiar whistle.

Mark turned. Nat Price's tan roadster was halted less than 10 yards away. Nat, clad in bright green, was waving. He made his way to the roadster.

"Hop in, hop in," he called out. "Hop in! I'll give you a lift."

Mark hesitated. "Afraid it would be out of your way, Nat. We're east now, Franklin avenue."

"Don't be silly! I can have you there in half the time the car takes. Anyhow, I haven't seen you in ages!"

She swung open the car door and Mark took his place beside her. At once the tan roadster shot forward. Ah! this was better than clinging to a swaying street car strap! Nat drove with perfect assurance. She kept up a running fire of talk about the League's new revue, about Sidney's divorce and Lottie's wedding. As they stopped before the unimposing the girl turned impulsively.

"There's something I've been wanting to say to you, Mark," she began. "I want to tell you I think it's perfectly splendid of you to show your independence the way you have. No matter what anyone else says I'm for you!"

Travers flushed. "Thanks, Nat."

"LAST FIGHT" CLAIMED DICK'S BEST PICTURE

Richard Barnclemess has been more than lucky in his choice of a starring vehicle in "The Last Flight" which opens at the Palace theatre today.

The story is by John Monk Saunders, who if we are not mistaken, did both "The Dawn Patrol" and "The Finger Point" for the same star.

"The Last Flight" is known to many as "Nikki and Her War Birds" which ran serially in Liberty Magazine and was later published as a novel under the title of "Single Lady."

Mr. Barnclemess plays Cary Lockwood, chief of pretty Nikki's warbirds. He is an ex-flier who crashes into the picture from a flaming plane, and proceeds to paint Paris red in an effort to provide thrills equal to those of the days before the Armistice.

Cary Lockwood meets up with other birds of the same feather, Bruccho Bill Talbot, once of Montana who is a giant ex-gunner. Shep Lambert, also of the flying brotherhood, and Washout, once the best shot of the squadron, but now a nervous wreck—and the buddies hit the high spots. Drama enters with a capital D when Nikki, the girl who says she can walk faster in red shoes—appears—allows herself to be "adopted"—and sets forth with the group on their madcap wanderings.

Then there is the outsider, a meddlesome newspaper correspondent from America, who tries to steal Nikki—and—but that is telling the story. It is enough to say that "The Last Flight" is a romance of unique and semi-tragic beauty—lived in a glittering panorama of life—in Paris, Portugal—and in Never-Never-Land. It is a story you won't be able to forget.

Daily News and American and Roundup want ads are a good investment—Phone 80 or 81.

Le-fors—2.2 miles road east of here being improved.

SURPRISE PARTY GIVEN FOR MRS. GEO. WINSTON.

Circle 4 of the Missionary Society of the First Methodist church met at the home of Mrs. H. S. Nance on West Fifth street with Mrs. Nance and Mrs. Charles Yates hostesses. After a short business period, the meeting was turned into a surprise birthday party for Mrs. George Winston, chairman of the circle. Mrs. P. Pettit had charge of the social meeting. Little Miss Margaret Ann McDonald gave a reading, and several contests were conducted. Mrs. Winston was presented a cook book, the recipes being contributed by the members, each one giving her favorite. A color scheme of pink and white and a profusion of cut flowers were used in decorations. The birthday cake was beautiful with the candles placed in the shape of a "W".

Misses Murl and Tennelle Nance assisted the hostesses in serving refreshments to: Mesdames P. Pettit, M. A. Northrup, W. L. Loyd, H. Fairless, W. H. Hurd, N. V. Noell, W. E. Ricks, O. W. Stathum, J. T. Anderson, Powell, Leveridge, D. L. Lemigan, Geo. Winston, Misses Maud Martin and Margaret Ann McDonald.

MRS. WALLACE ENTERTAINS FOR VISITORS.

Mrs. W. W. Wallace entertained Wednesday afternoon with a bridge party at her home in Humbletown honoring Mrs. T. H. Dolan, of Overton and Mrs. Frank Statler of Houston. Three tables of players enjoyed the games in which Mrs. M. L. McGannon won high score, and Mrs. J. R. Almond the low score. Both were given beautiful linen sport handkerchiefs. The honor guests were each given a lovely string of beads. During the afternoon, the hostess served refreshments of apple pie a-la-mode.

The guest list included Mesdames P. D. McMahon, W. J. Armstrong, A. E. Jamison, R. B. Carswell, Ted Mullinnix, Rex Carrothers, M. L. McGannon, Rice Porman, and the hostesses.

MRS. CHARLES SANDLER ENTERTAINS MOTHERS CLUB.

Members of the Mothers club were entertained with a breakfast Thursday morning at the home of Mrs. Charles S. Sandler on West Ninth street. This was the first meeting of the year, and no program had been planned. Mrs. E. O. Elliott was elected vice-president, and Mrs. F. Higginbotham and Mrs. Murray were elected to the membership of the club. Mrs. Sandler, president, appointed Mrs. S. Coplin and Mrs. H. V. Price to represent the club at the City Federation meeting Monday. An outline of the program for the year was given and passed on. Mrs. Price will be leader of the program at the next meeting.

Those present were: Mesdames E. O. Elliott, H. V. Price, C. O. Pass, Sam Dargatzias, Murray, Higginbotham, S. Coplin, J. M. Witten, J. E. Spencer, J. V. Heyser, and the hostess.

CLUB TAKES UP STUDY OF CONTEMPORARY NOVEL.

The Wednesday Study club took up the study of "The Contemporary American Novel" at the first meeting ever which Mrs. Paul Woods, president presided. Mrs. E. L. Grabar was leader of the program. The first lesson was on "The Technique and Purpose of the Novel." Miss Mariam Chambliss read a paper on "The Elements of Narration." Miss Ester Hale gave an interesting talk on "Terms Used in Criticizing Novels." Mrs. H. Brandon read a paper on "Realistic and Romantic Fiction," and Mrs. Don Sivalis gave a discussion on "What is a Good and a Bad Book."

Others present at this meeting were: Mesdames Leola Moser, R. N. Cluck, Allan Wood, Dick Luederdals, T. F. O'Brien, Edward Lee, James Moore, and Miss Ella Andrus.

J. O. Y. CLASS HAS PICNIC AT LAKE CISCO.

Members of the J. O. Y. class of the First Baptist Sunday school enjoyed an outing at Lake Cisco Thursday evening. Many members of the party took a dip in the swimming pool after which they joined with the others in playing a variety of games. Each brought a basket lunch and a bountiful feast was spread at the picnic grounds.

Those enjoying this occasion were Mesdames J. B. Brooks, George Wild, R. B. Gustafson, W. P. Thompson, E. L. Smith, Jack Phippen, A. N. Crownover, J. E. Thornton, M. D. Paschall Jr., H. G. Bailey, W. H. Brittain, Lloyd Surles, Ted Huestis, Leonard Surles, H. B. Hensley, Joe Black, M. M. Parmer, D. L. Cashion, J. E. Bates, V. C. Littleton, Jack Jones, and R. L. Comer.

LITTLE-TO-DO CLUB HAS MEETING.

The Little-to-do bridge club met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Smith Huestis on E Avenue. In the bridge games, prizes were awarded J. L. Thornton, winning high score for men, Mrs. Joe Black, winning high for women, and Mrs. J. L. Thornton, prize. Co-responding floral designs were used on the tables and score pads. At the conclusion of the games, refreshments of cherry pie with whipped cream were served.

Present were: Messrs. and Mrs. H. H. Qualls, Ted Huestis, Leonard Surles, R. B. Gustafson, J. L. Thornton, Joe Black, Lloyd Surles, and the host and hostess.

MRS. SCHAEFER HOSTESS AT CLUB MEETING.

On Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. Rudolph Schaefer was hostess to the Happy Thimble Sewing club at her home on West Seventeenth street. Most of the afternoon was spent in sewing. Lovely refreshments of ice cream and cake were served. Thimbles were the very appropriate favors given to Mesdames J. P. Parish, Ed Huestis, Ernest Lennon, Rudolf Comer, C. E. Hickman, Ocie Leveridge, C. H. Parish, and Oren Caudie.
