GUARDING HEALTH.

Attaches of the state health department have been quietly going about the business of insuring the public welfare against outbreaks of pestilence and disease in the drouth stricken areas and the results of the efforts of the nurses and sanitarians since May 1 is a commendation of the efficiency of the forces which the state, cooperating with the federal government, has placed in the field.

Prevention is the surest remedy in the world and the work that the sanitary corps has done cannot be adequately measured by estimation. Suffice it to say that hundreds of thousands of dollars have been saved to the people of the affected areas in the prevention of sickness with its attendant doctor and drug hospital bills, not to speak of the more valuable saving in human suffering and life.

The following survey of the health work that has so far been accomplished speaks better than comment of the value of the campaign:

"Nurses and sanitarians in the drouth areas of Texas report that steady progress is being made in the installation of health protective measures throughout the area. Since the work was begun on May 1, 1931, there have been 9552 sanitary toilets installed at farm homes and rural schools; 2893 wells improved; and 275 septic tank sewage disposal units constructed. This is indeed a remarkable showing and speaks well for the interest the people are taking in improving living conditions. More than 300 farmers have improved their dairies and methods of handling milk.

The immunization program has likewise been well received. There have been 8431 complete typhoid inoculations; 3888 successful smallpox vaccinations; and 6264 completed diphtheria toxoid injections.

Through lectures more than 100,000 persons have been reached with health messages, thousands of instructive bulletins and other printed literature distributed, and health-care carried on in Floyd, Swisher, Lynn and Dickens counties. A total of 1737 news articles and stories on health have appeared in the press throughout the state giving testimony to the health-mindedness of the present day newspaper editor.

County school superintendents everywhere have eagerly grasped the opportunity of getting assistance in improving sanitary conditions at the rural schools. A safe water supply and sanitary toilet facilities at every rural school in the area is now the goal of these educators. Hundreds of clinics have been held and instruction given by the nurses in child care and the value of immunization.

According to the present budget the work will continue until February at least. Many of the workers report that they will have from one to a dozen communities in each county that will be 100 per cent sanitized by that time. Never before in the history of Texas has such a gigantic piece of rural health work been undertaken and the state department of health, city and county health officers, and the U. S. Public Health Service are deeply gratified at the results already accomplished or in sight.

A FEDERAL GAS TAX.

The proposal to establish a federal tax on gasoline should center the attention of the public on the whole problem of gas taxation.

If a federal tax were levied, it would mean that eventually the total gas tax might be even doubled. Already the states have gone farther than is economically feasible in burdening the motorist. The average tax is now slightly in excess of four cents a gallon, and rates of five and six cents are becoming more common. In one state an eight-cent rate was defeated only by quick and decisive action on the part of the public. And rumblings of ten-cent rates are heard in the distance.

No other necessary and generally-used commodity is taxed so highly. Special and class taxes are always bad—and when allowed to grow to excessive proportions, they become economic monstrosities.

THE COST OF CRIME.

In its report on "The Cost of Crime" the Wickersham Commission states that America's crime bill is well in excess of $1,207,000,000 a year. The average per capita cost of crime in 300 cities which were surveyed, was $5.47. The lowest rate recorded—in Galesburg, Illinois—was 92 cents. The highest—in Jersey City—was $11.30 a year for each citizen. These facts should make the public wonder if the pleasure of passing new "reform" laws is worth what they cost, not only in actual money, but in security, freedom and a stable society.

As an economic measure the Commission recommends a weeding out of laws, to eliminate unnecessary and expensive social restrictions. There is nothing new in this, but it is well to bring it once more to public attention. If there is one cause responsible for the prevalence of crime, its cost, and the failure of law enforcement, it is the tremendous bulk of unnecessary laws on our statute books.

The average citizen needs few laws to deter him from murder, housebreaking, kidnapping, blackmail and other age-old crimes, while a million laws, in themselves, will not stop the criminal from pursuing these same vocations and using a gun or a blackjack or any other murderous weapon, which he will secure, law or no law.

OPINIONS

... of nourishing religion in modern life. This has been called an age of materialism, but the spiritual quality in man has been able to survive its rush and pressure. More and more do the leaders of national progress find it desirable themselves to turn aside now and then to show their devotion to the higher things of the spirit, and also to bear witness to the essential part which religion plays in society today. If it sometimes seems to be forgotten, it always comes back to assert its strength.

The old conflicts, supposed to be irreconcilable between religions, creeds and sects have largely disappeared and the world talks of church union and the brotherhood of man. — Paris News.

China May Buy U. S. Cotton

SHANGHAI, Sept. 23.—Yangtze floods have wiped out a large portion of the cotton crop in China this summer, according to official reports, and the prospects are that China will buy a larger amount of cotton from the United States than ever before.

The collapse in silver exchange reduced purchases of cotton from abroad, because of their high price in silver, but failure of the Chinese crop makes such purchases imperative.

Disagree Over Prison Movie

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Sept. 23.—Louise Fazenda, screen comedienne, has changed her mind about making a prison picture.

"I'd always wanted to do a prison picture, but I was told that was 'out' for me. I understand now," she said after visiting the prison. "There is no comedy in a penitentiary."

Marian Marsh, however, one of the newest blonde pictures, thinks it would be "thrilling" to be in a prison picture.

Furthermore, she prefers Quentin should she ever have to serve a term.

"If I were ever sent to prison, I hope it would be San Quentin," said "The women's department seems to be just like a clean, managed girls' school.

The two actresses were in a pair of movie notables shown through the prison.

"Why My Next Car will be A FORD"

WHEN you buy a Ford there are two things you never have to worry about. One is reliability. The other is long life.

Here's an interesting letter from a Ford owner in North Carolina:

"My Ford was purchased May 3, 1928, and has been run 121,567 miles. It has never stopped on the road for repairs of any kind whatsoever except punctures.

"The brakes were relined at 101,000 miles. My gas mileage averaged 21 miles to the gallon, and on tires, 19,000 miles per tire. I travel over all kinds of road conditions—mountainous and flat.

"I consider this a wonderful record and I assure you my next car will also be a Ford."

This is just one of many tributes to the reliability and long life of the Ford. A Ford owner in Iowa tells of driving his Ford 73,000 miles in a single year. Another writes of 120,000 miles of good service.

Think ahead when you are considering the purchase of an automobile and consider what it will be like after thousands of miles of driving. Will you still be satisfied? Will you still say "it's a great car"?

If it's a Ford, you know everything will be O. K. It will be taking you there and back in good style, just as it has always done. And you will have saved many important, worthwhile dollars in cost of operation and up-keep and low yearly depreciation.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee, Oklahoma.

This is indeed a most curious world, made more curious by some curious people who populate it.

We are mildly surprised that many curious people give public expression as to their ignorance about what is best for the welfare of the country and its war veterans.

The world war brought new problems for surgery and medicine. It melted men in a way which was new to the profession of healing—poison gas, shell shock, many mental diseases came in its train, and today we have thousands of ex-servicemen whose lives are a living hell. There are many who contracted diseases and other disabilities, on account of war service, who will suffer from their war service for the balance of their lives.

To give to them is not charity. They have a very pronounced right to be kept as comfortable as human means can make them. Their claims upon us are backed by all the law of right and justice. Furthermore it is not only a duty, but a supreme privilege to serve them.

In the Army and Navy were a collection of men, hastily gathered together, hastily trained by the too few regular army and navy men and national guard, who did their duty and fought as men inspired by the single idea of protecting their home and country. As soon as the war was over they hurried back to civil life and did their best to forget the grim days of war, except the warm and shining spirit of comradeship.

It is a strange thing, but it seems that the soldier is adored in war but neglected and shunned by a lot of people in times of peace.

LAURA LOU BROOKMAN Author of "MAD MARRIAGE"

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Norma Kent, 20-year-old widow, married Mark Travers, a wealthy dealer in real estate, in spite of the threats to disinherit Mark. The story opens in Marlboro, a western metropolis. Mark is an expensive playboy who goes to fashionable Blue Islands. There Norma meets him, and it is evident from her manner that she has been there before.

Their money is soon gone, partly due to Mark's gambling. With the money borrowed from Stone the couple return to Marlboro. Mark is cut on a round of pleasure riding instead of hunting work. Then the funds dwindle again and Norma moves to a cheap apartment. Then he becomes a dealer in Blossomdale's department store. In spite of poverty the young couple are happy.

Mark's father sends for him to take him back into his company if Mark will prove himself a business trip to France. Norma is to remain at home. She is frightened but cannot persuade her parents to give up the opportunity. Her parents see her go to the railway station and see him depart for the five weeks' trip.

HOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Travers led the way through the station and his wife followed. Norma Mrs. Travers said she stepped out on the sidewalk. Harvey has the car over her.

Norma's father-in-law was saying something to his wife. Norma did not hear what it was. Then she was aware that they were moving away from the station.

Somewhere in the distance a train chuffed faster and faster carrying Mark away from her. That was gone! There had been that last moment when she had seen him smiling back at her from the car platform. Waving and saying "Now he was gone and she would not see him for five weeks. The weeks— it seemed endless, impossible!

Norma clutched her hands together tightly. She could not cry now. She could not give way and sob out the terror in her heart. She could only sit there gripping her fingers, telling herself over and over that she must manage to keep from breaking down before these strangers. Yes, they were strangers and they hated her.

The girl's lips became a tightly pressed line of crimson, struggling steadily itself but frequently trembling.

Mark was moving farther away very minute. Nearer and nearer New York and the ocean liner that was to put the Atlantic between them.

Five weeks made up of moments as long as each of these? Five weeks of torture and uncertainty? Suddenly she realized that the car had stopped. Mr. Travers was getting out.

"Be home around six," he said to her shoulder. "Needn't come here. Harvey will stop at the club and ride out with Summer." He moved clumsily as he got to the sidewalk and hurried away without a backward glance. The chauffeur looked questioningly toward Mrs. Travers.

"You may take us home, Harvey," the woman stammered as she spoke. "Such a day!" she murmured to Norma. "I had to rush away heavy shadows across the street. Norma walked a block, two blocks, with little notion of the direction in which she was heading. She was not familiar with this part of Marlboro. The streets were strange and they wound about irregularly. Houses were set far back from the sidewalks.

She was searching for a car line but none came in sight. She must have walked half an hour before she stopped uncertainly at a street intersection. The night wind was cold now. The girl drew her coat closer, shivering. It was a suit coat, not warm enough for December.

A block away she could see the gleaming lights of motor traffic. Suddenly a vehicle bulkier than the others loomed in sight. The Laurel Park bus line! With warm eagerness Norma hurried toward the lights. She was too late for the first bus, waited for the next.

"Do you go to Eighth street?" She asked the driver when she had climbed on board.

"No ma'am. Broad street's as far as we go. You can get a transfer."

"Thank you," said Norma. She took the slip of pink paper and crammed it into her purse. What difference did it make whether she got off at Eighth street or Broad?

One or two other passengers looked at the white-faced girl curiously. She stared through the window, unaware of these glances. Half an hour's ride brought them to Broad street. Norma followed the others out of the bus. She glanced up and down the street, then started walking westward.

Across the street the hands of an illuminated sidewalk clock came passing in other cities, but still Norma clearly. Seven forty-five. Norma was surprised to find it so late. Last night at this time she and Mark had been packing his traveling bags. Last night? It must have been years ago!

"I can't go on this way," Norma told herself. "I've got to decide what to do."

She had come to the end of her plans. Curiously during all the time she had thought about slipping away from the Travers home she had never planned the next step. Of course she must find a place to live. Somewhere Mark's father and mother would not look for her. Chris' apartment would be the first place they would think of—providing they made any effort at all to find her. Norma was not sure they would bother.

Still it was better to stay away from Chris.

The girl stopped at a corner and bought a newspaper.

"I ought to eat something," she remembered. She was not hungry but it would be foolish not to eat. She had scarcely tasted food during the past three days.

There was a restaurant down the street where Norma had often lunched, a cheap, clean place. One of a large chain of restaurants. She went there, found a table in an obscure corner of the big room. When the waitress presented the menu Norma ordered listlessly. A few moments later she could not remember what she had asked for. She hoped the food would be hot.

It was pleasant and warm in the restaurant. Norma opened her newspaper and began to scan the "Rooms for Rent" section. Then she heard her name spoken.

California Drives To Repeal Law

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 23.—An intensive drive for repeal of California's criminal syndicalism law through a state referendum is in progress under the direction of a "State Committee for the Repeal of the Criminal Syndicalism Law," with headquarters in this city.

The organization announced that 20,000 signatures have been obtained to a petition to place a repeal proposition on the ballot. By December, the required date, it will be necessary to have 111,000 signatures if the repeal is to be voted on.

Repeal of the law has been voted by unions representing thousands of laborers. The law was "designated to stimulate and break the labor movement," a statement by the committee charged.

Bartenders Are Flourishing

RENO, Nev., Sept. 23.—There is one profession that may have become passe in other cities, but still flourishes in true tradition in "the little city in the world." It is the profession of tending bar.

This city, with possibly 30 so-called "clubs" and night cabarets and rendezvous, is the capital and mecca for purveyors of "Mickey Fins," "Tom Collins," "Ryeblitz" and all the other concoctions so dear to the memories of those who didn't care

PRESENT SLUMP IS REPETITION OF 1921 ONE

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 23.—"Destitution, distress, bread lines, and soup kitchens in our larger cities are predicted for the coming winter, because of the unprecedented unemployment situation which the country now faces," one of the nation's leading dailies said—just ten years ago.

Newspaper readers, who have concluded that such phrases as "the depression," the "business strike," a "business upturn" and the like were coined for the present economic slump might be surprised to look through the files of September newspapers for 1921, for many of the most familiar terms of 1931 business news headlines may be found in virtually all of them.

The then secretary of labor, James J. Davis, estimated that there were 3,750,000 unemployed while economic losses to the nation for the year ending August 31, 1921, were estimated to be $8,500,000. Exports were declared falling and were said to have reached the vanishing point.

In October unemployed men were "sold" in Boston Common, while in New York hundreds of men joined the Spanish army for service in North Africa against the Moors, at 30 cents per day pay.

Then, as now, causes of the depression were generally a mystery with little unanimity on the question. Railroads were targets for severe criticism, freight rates often being blamed for trade decreases; the high price of steel and other building construction materials was frequently declared a fundamental cause of the depression.

President Hoover, then Secretary of Commerce in President Harding's cabinet, may well have taken the lead for his present unemployment relief campaign from steps taken by Harding in 1921. Having called an unemployment conference in Washington, and later appointed Col. Arthur Woods to direct a relief campaign, conducted in principle much the same as the current campaign under Walter S. Gifford.

Ciscoans At The University

By JAMES K. AVERA

"Ox" Blanton is working out daily with the varsity football team and promises to repeat of better his wonderful performance of last season. In Saturday's scrimmage between members of the squad, "Ox" was very conspicuous for good work in most of the plays.

"Bill" Smith is another Cisco boy who is a candidate for the varsity squad, and other contenders for the center position will do well to watch "Bill" because he is certainly in there fighting every minute.

Velma "Skipper" Morrison started working in the office of the Bureau of Economic Geology as stenographer several days before the university opened. She is studying architecture and worked in the Bureau last year while attending classes here.

Agnes Bearman is back on the campus again and is staying at the Alpha Phi house.

Grady Coates and "Dick" West are entering the university after having finished at Randolph last year.

"Jim" B. Farmer is registering in the college of Engineering of the university and will study Mechanical Engineering.

"Jimmie" Avera, formerly engineer for The Texas Co., with headquarters at Cisco, is re-entering the College of Engineering as a senior in Structural Engineering work.

Allen Boone and Milton Connolly are on the campus again and plan to resume their studies once more. Allen is studying Engineering and Milton is a student of Architecture.

Virginia Dabney registered Friday and is staying at Scottish Rite dormitory.

Charles Langford is resuming his study of chemistry in the university.

Quincy Lee was among those registering from Cisco Friday.

Campus News

The University of Texas opened last Friday with its usual long lines of students waiting to register. Many lines were so long that students had to stand outside the buildings and in some instances required hours to get to the desired window or office.

The large number of students was handled in a very orderly and fast manner by the members of the faculty and their assistants.

Saturday was only a repetition of Friday and those who failed to register or finish Friday were registered.

3,998 had paid their fees at the auditor's office by 7 o'clock Saturday night, this being the final step in registering. At the same time last year 4,118 had paid their fees, and there were 4,031 registered at the end of the second day in 1929.

This year's totals show a decrease but these figures are not final because many students have done all except pay their fees. They are waiting until the crowd thins out at the auditor's office to do this final act. There will be a number of late arrivals who will register Thursday and all of these later students will swell the enrollment total.

Alleged Robber Is Captured

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 23.—After a night and day spent playing hide-and-seek with Lincoln police, Riley Baker, 22, of Dallas, was captured and was held today in connection with the attempted robbery of a residential drug store here.

Baker wounded in an arm and chest, was surrounded in a cabin at a tourist park. He admitted, police said, his part in the attempted drug store robbery and also said he and his accomplice had robbed postal station No. 6 at Tulsa, Okla.

ENTERS CONFERENCE

GENEVA, Switzerland, Sept. 23.—Hugh Wilson, American representative, joined the five chief powers in a secret session on the Manchurian conflict tonight. Before entering the conference Wilson talked by telephone with Washington.

TRUCE MAY FAIL

GENEVA, Sept. 23.—Italy's proposal for a year's arms truce tentatively accepted by Great Britain and the United States, appeared doomed to failure today. The hitch arose over a proposal by Japan for adjournment of the disarmament commission.

The proposed German pact would mark a tendency to return to the pre-war system of alliances and agreements, as against the League idea of world-wide international collaboration of every nation.

As indicated by the German financial conversations of the past summer, the tendency of such a four power pact would be for the prime and foreign ministers to conduct their direct negotiations by visits to their different capitals, thus eliminating Geneva almost entirely as the "world capital."

Nevertheless, the League is not losing sleep. Instead, it is banking on the fact that up to the present time all outside efforts for peace or organization, disarmament agreement,

Soviet Plans Anniversary Fete

MOSCOW, Sept. 23.—Preparations already have been begun here to make the 15th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution, in Nov., 1917, memorable in Russian history.

The celebration of the first decade of the revolution in 1927, when representatives from all over the world participated, will be thrown into the shade by next year's publication.

If the present slogan calling for the completion of the Five-Year Plan in four years will be carried out, the anniversary would coincide with an announcement of a successfully fulfilled plan and would invest the occasion with additional glamour.

Labor organizations, scientific and cultural societies in all countries will doubtless be invited to send delegations to take part in the celebration.

An eminent scientist writes the head chemist in our Research Department:

"Chesterfield Cigarettes are just as pure as the water you drink"

THE WATER YOU DRINK is tested from time to time by expert chemists to make sure that it is free from all injurious substances—that it is pure.

So it is in the manufacture of CHESTERFIELD cigarettes. Expert chemists test all the materials that are used in any way in CHESTERFIELD's manufacture, to make sure that everything that goes into CHESTERFIELD is just right.

THE LEAF TOBACCO IS PURE. Long steel ovens—drying machines of the most modern type—scientifically "dry" and clean and purify the natural tobacco leaves by exact high-temperature treatment.

Then the shreds of cut tobacco, as you see them in your CHESTERFIELD, are again heated, cleaned and purified. From these pure tobaccos the cigarettes are made, and only the purest paper—the best that can be made—is used for CHESTERFIELD.

Cigarettes used to be made in an old-fashioned way, by hand. Now, no hand but yours touches CHESTERFIELD—another purity safeguard.

CHESTERFIELDS are made and packed in clean, sanitary factories where even the air is changed every four and one-half minutes—purity again.

ALL THIS CARE is taken to give you CHESTERFIELDS as nearly perfect as cigarettes can be made. Delivered in a moisture-proof, sealed package, they reach you just as good, just as pure as when they leave the factory. Good . . . they've got to be good—they're just as pure as the water you drink!
