DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

SELF DENIAL.—Whoever will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me. For whoever will save his life shall lose it; but whoever shall lose his life for my sake and the gospel's, the same shall save it.—Mark 8: 34, 35.

FREEDOM OF SPEECH.

A Kentucky judge has barred representatives of a certain newspaper from his court room because he believes that editorials published in that paper are libelous and in contempt of court. He declared that no representative of the paper would be allowed in his court room until the paper had retracted the statements complained of. The paper has appealed the case to the supreme court of Kentucky asking a writ of prohibition to restrain the district judge from enforcing his injunction against the paper.

The case involves much greater significance than the justice or injustice of the judge's charges against the particular paper. The freedom of the press to obtain and publish the news and its freedom of speech both to print the facts and to comment editorially upon the facts are involved. Freedom of speech has been the cornerstone of American independence, and out of the clash of ideas and opinions that has gone on for the past 150 years has come much of the progress that this nation has experienced. To abridge that right means simply to muzzle freedom of expression and deny the public the institution of the open forum wherein the interchange of ideas serves to shape aggressive national character and stimulate progressive action.

If one judge or any one other person is empowered to bar a newspaper from his courtroom or from any other public institution merely because to his mind the expressions of that paper's opinions are libelous, or derogatory that privilege, carried to its furthest extreme, means that one person is able to penalize the majority for its opinions and consequently to dominate what would otherwise be a liberty of mind. That is the question that is involved in the Kentucky case, a question intimately associated with the constitutionally guaranteed freedom of the press. The Kentucky appellate court is to determine whether or not the merits of the case upon which the district judge based his enjoining order justify the permanence of the order. If the newspaper is found to have overstepped its bounds and invaded other rights to the extent of obstructing justice, the judge's action may be justified on grounds that do not threaten constitutional guarantees. But, according to reports of the case, the jurist was actuated solely by his opinion that the expressions of the paper editorially were unfair and libelous and in that event he has forced an issue that is national in its scope and one that must be decided in the fight of what its effect will be upon the nation and not what influence it will exert upon a particular cause in a district court in the state of Kentucky.

ALGEBRA OF TAXATION.

"There will be a tax problem in Texas until taxpayers are convinced their tax dollars are buying one hundred cents worth of good government, and until the total tax bill is recruited equally and indiscriminately from the various interests of the state," comments the Editorial Digest.

The Digest continues: "In a state where justices-of-the-peace may earn two and three times the compensation given the governor and the attorney general, you may expect to find a tax problem. In a state where as many as twenty separate and distinct taxing and tax-collecting agencies levy upon and collect from the same people, the economist would be surprised did he not find a full-grown tax problem. In a state where the unit of government—the county—has retained all of the limitations imposed by horse-and-buggy transportation, where three county clerks serve a territory one could serve and where three sets of county commissioners do the work that one could do, it would be surprising indeed did the taxpayers' dollar purchase one hundred cents worth of efficient, economical government.

"The Texas tax problem is a compound problem in that it embodies two separate and distinct 'unknown quantities.' First is the 'X' that represents the minimum amount of money that citizens must contribute to secure a maximum of good government. To solve this equation, it is necessary to weigh the benefits of county consolidation, of city-county consolidation, of the elimination of unnecessary offices and the merging of others, of modernizing procedure and of plugging the holes through which waste and extravagance seep into the machinery politic.

"This done, but not until this is done, it is time to attack the rest of the Texas tax problem. When we have put our government in good working order, we can intelligently attack the problem of how best to raise the money necessary for its operation.

"When the first unknown quantity is found, the tax problem becomes a simple algebraic equation."

OTHER OPINIONS

IS BABSON RIGHT?
Most of the widely known statisticians who in other periods have registered "striking" success in analyzing conditions and forecasting developments have suffered reverses during the past two years. Their graphs have been accurate only insofar as they have pictured what has already occurred and in most instances have lacked oracular inspiration when they attempted to interpret the future.

In spite of this, however, one can not escape a feeling of elation as he reads from the pen of so well known an economist as Roger W. Babson an optimistic forecast that conditions are to be better soon. Mr. Babson had made his full quota of errors in his series of analyses, but when he says business and commodities are now at their lowest level, it is reassuring. When he says bank failures are decreasing and hoarded money is coming out of its hiding places it causes us to feel better. He reports, moreover, that industry is showing signs of recovery, the railroads in particular having begun the reconstruction of their operating methods which eventually will lead to their economic salvation. The farm situation has passed its worst stages, the economist believes, and this should be helpful to the agricultural interests if they are persuaded to believe it. The good old law of action and reaction, Mr. Babson believes, is going to operate to the advantage of everybody. Nothing could be worse than the last six months period, therefore, the next six months period will be better, according to this law.

Is Babson right? Nobody knows, of course, but it will do no harm to give him the benefit of whatever doubt there may be in our minds. During the past three months there have been many evidences of the beginning of improvement in the general economic conditions. Any improvement that may be noted is evidence that the bed-rock law has been reached and passed, and that is what all of us have been waiting for so impatiently.

Looking forward to the beginning of the new year the one thing we need more than anything else is confidence. Confidence in ourselves, confidence in our fellows, confidence in our communities and our institutions, confidence in our public governments and their officials. Confidence is stimulated by such reports as Mr. Babson's most recent analysis, which is distinctly optimistic in its tone.—Brownwood Bulletin.

igation of tammany office holders happens every two years. Now Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt has a republican legislature on hand and the practical politicians of the republican party are to continue the investigation of tammany but decline to permit an investigation of the government of up-state cities and counties. Some day the great cities will adopt the manager plan and then the practical politician may have their noses broken for a time at least.

A practical politician loves the "spoils" of its spoils. A way out in front as a democratic possibility for the democratic presidential nomination is Gov. Roosevelt. Hidden behind the scenes are the shrewd and ambitious gentlemen of politics and finance who prefer another candidate for the presidential nomination for reasons best known to themselves. Safety first is their slogan. Behind the practical politician of one section of the country are the gentlemen who would like to see the republicans retained in power; or a democratic chosen who would be safe, as regards their private interests, should an upheaval come and the republicans sweep from power. "Stop Roosevelt" is their game. Now Friday and Saturday in the city of Washington, on the banks of the Potomac, there will be something doing which will interest all democrats who are for the good of the people and all independents who would like to see a change in policies of government. Big guns of the democratic party will thunder and the convention city will be named.

A record will be made by a congress made up of a democratic house and a senate controlled by democrats and Sen. George H. Moses' "sons of wild jackasses." In 1896 it was Mark Hanna plotting William McKinley to the White House with the slogan: "Prosperity and a full dinner pail for the worker." Mark Hanna was the first national manager who tried the fat out of the kings of finance and the kings of manufacture in America. He put it over but it cost those who were thrown by the frying pan millions of dollars. They appear to have been collecting principal and interest since the time, through the enactment of class-privilege laws, when over the elephant happened to be a pig. This year no doubt the republican campaign cry will be "Down with the commune and the communist." Now what will be the slogan of the national standard bearer and who the man selected as the pig to succeed John J. Pendergast? This is to be the year of all years since 1896 in writing the political history of the republic.

In the Political Arena

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD
On the opening day of the new year there was another payless pay day for the 26,000 county and city employees of Philadelphia. The city treasury was without sufficient funds to pay the monthly payroll of approximately $1,750,000. Philadelphia is the second American city as to population and wealth. It is one of the republican strongholds of America. It has been absolutely dominated by the practical politicians of the republican party for years and years. Its tax rate is very high. Its municipal indebtedness has been very high.

Chicago had been a republican stronghold for years ruled by Big Bill Thompson and his political henchmen until bankruptcy faced the government. Then a democrat was elected to hold the bag. Now the Illinois legislature has been asked to enact a measure which will abolish the elective board of assessors and review and set up new tax machinery in the city of Chicago and the county of Cook. Bankers and civic advisors have held change imperative if Chicago and the county hovering on the brink of bankruptcy and deprived of any chance of tax collections are to escape ruin.

Republican politicians who are practical never investigate conditions in the city of Philadelphia. Republican lawmakers of Illinois never investigated the methods of Big Bill Thompson and his crew while Thompson was in power.

New York has a tammany governed city and the tammany are democrats. New York has had but one democratic legislature in a quarter of a century, but the invest-

STATES PASS 500 LAWS TO AID WORKERS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7. — More than 500 laws, dealing chiefly with employment, accident compensation, old age pensions and labor rights to bargain collectively, were enacted by congress and the 46 states holding legislative sessions in 1931. It has been announced by the American association for labor legislation.

The Wagner Act, adopted by congress, provides for advance planning of public works as a safeguard against unemployment in the future. This bill, together with one adopted by congress to appropriate funds to expand the Federal Employment Service, are regarded as definite and substantial measures destined to offset any further distress from unemployment.

With Delaware, Idaho, New Hampshire, New Jersey and West Virginia adopting old age pension legislation, the number of states with such laws has increased to 17. The first real Bill of Rights for labor in this country was adopted in Wisconsin in 1931. That state declares its policy to be freedom of collective bargaining, and denounces "yellow dog" contracts as contrary to public policy and void. Arizona, Colorado, Ohio and Oregon also declared "yellow dog" contracts void. Pennsylvania restricted labor injunctions.

Wisconsin also adopted notable amendments to its workmen's compensation law, and is the first state to increase the compensation rate to more than two-thirds of wages. The new rate is 70 per cent for disability in Alabama and Pennsylvania enacted amendments to provide double compensation for minors injured while legally employed, and other states made further provisions for the care of injured workers.

Enforcement of labor laws was consolidated in reorganized labor departments in Georgia and North Carolina, and in New Mexico, where state labor department was created for the first time.

BOUND TO BE READ

By H. ALLEN SMITH
United Press Book Editor

The new-born year begins auspiciously with two good novels from authors whose names already command a wide hearing. These two are Marjorie Chapman with "The Weather Tree" (Viking), and William McFee, with "The Harbourmaster" (Doubleday Doran). Both names are January book club choices. They will appeal to different appetites.

"The Weather Tree" is a pastoral tale of Tennessee mountain folk, worthy successor to the author's "The Happy Mountain." The writing of it has been a masterful thing. The idiom of its people is employed throughout. Here you come upon such words as clumflattered, hummicking, palamity, frosty, vicious, fossicking, trivvet and fraily.

It tells the tale of the mountain folk, Thelma Lane, of the coming of Hazard and Red Hill of the Highlander, Lynn Clayton, and of the subsequent tempest that arises in the lives of the plain, slow-tongued folks of the valley and hillsides. It is drama a plenty, a balancing humor, and a lazy, powerful rhythm. In the author's own words, it is a "vivid" piece of work.

William McFee's new novel is much longer, due mainly to the philosophical canterings of Mr. Spenlove, a Conradesque seaman aboard a tourist ship. The vessel is off Puerto Balboa and things have been happening this day in the town. Mr. Spenlove, wise and witty, gathers the passengers into a group on the top deck and tells the story of Frank Fraley, the harbourmaster. That story is the story of the book and has its setting in England, New York, Salonika and Central America. It is a book to be read slowly and earnestly, else much of Mr. Spenlove's practical philosophy will be lost in the forest of words.

A book to have around handy for occasional snatches of great writing is "The Anthology of English Prose," edited by Herbert Read and Bonamy Dobree (Viking). It contains 20 pages of brief excerpts from the writings of great Englishmen and Americans. The selections are divided into three sections, narrative, scientific and emotive. Under narrative are classified story-telling, history, autobiography and journals, biography and characters and letters. Under scientific writings are natural science, philosophy, theology, politics, law, strategy and tactics, sport and criticism. Under emotive writings are pathos, drama, history, comedy, controversy and industry, satire and invective, moralistic and occasional writings.

The editors explain that the excerpts have been chosen "not merely for their beauty or for their subject but because the words and sentences properly fulfill the function which the author demanded of them."

All this fuss-and-feathers over contract bridge, stirred up by the Albert-Lenz match, should create quite a sale for "Vanity Fair's Bridge Problems," by R. F. Foster (Dover). There are 100 problems and to be worked out with answers in the back of the book. The problems have been composed by bridge experts of two continents. The hands are presented attractively, the book is neatly bound and the price is $2.

GEORGIA TOWN CUTS EXPENSES AND HAS BIG BALANCE THROUGH CAREFUL MANAGEMENT

EDITOR'S NOTE—In these times when many other city governments are in dire financial straits—with payless pay days for city employees, huge current debts, threatened closing of schools, etc.—the remarkable story of what is being accomplished in the little city of Albany, Ga., is of especial interest. C. D. Tounslley, city editor of The Albany Herald, has written this exclusive article for NEA Service and this paper.

By C. D. TOUNSLEY
NEA Service Correspondent
ALBANY, Ga., Jan. 6. — Free of debt and complacently conscious of a big cash balance this Georgia municipality of 15,000 population wonders vaguely why other governments—city, county, state and national—are experiencing so much difficulty in balancing their budgets and are, in many instances, confronted with the necessity of raising taxes.

Albany starts 1932 with the lowest tax rate in many years, with a bank balance of $135,000, and owing not one cent of current accounts. Moreover, about $32,000 of uncollected 1931 taxes is due the city treasury.

Five years ago Albany owed current account of $128,000, had no money in the bank except a sinking fund balance was operating on borrowed funds—most of the time and was levying a tax almost 40 per cent larger than the 1931 rate. Another reduction of 20 per cent in the tax is indicated for 1932.

"How did Albany do it?" other cities have been asking ever since recent press dispatches announced that Albany had $9.20 per capita in the bank and no current indebtedness.

Mayor J. S. Billingslea's reply has been: "Keep the outgo within the limits of the income. That's the way to bring down taxes and get on a sound financial basis."

Many years ago the city acquired the water, light and gas plants. Until comparatively recent times they were operated at a loss or at least broke even. Then they began to show a small profit. Numerous futile efforts to buy them have been made by public utility corporations.

The utilities are operated by a commission of three, chosen by the city commission. They have managed so well that water, light and gas rates are as low as in other cities of like size, despite the $100,000 annual deficit.

Occasional pleas for lower rates are met with the answer that there are many citizens who own no property and pay no tax, and that their only contribution to the cost of government is through payment of water, light and gas charges.

Albany adopted commission government eight years ago. The city is governed by seven commissioners, one from each of 15 wards and 2 elected from the city at large. They are chosen for two-year terms, and each year they select one of their number mayor. The commission meets twice a month and is subject to call meetings at any time. The mayor is paid only $100 a month, the commissioners receive $10 for each regular meeting.

Actual management is left to the city manager, C. Q. Wright, a native of Albany, has occupied that position for five years, and much of the credit for the city's excellent condition today is given him. All city departments, except the water, light and gas departments, are under his control and supervision. Department heads keep him advised at all times of the activities under them. He has no assistant, not even a secretary.

The all-important schedule of estimated receipts which is adopted at the start of each calendar year is prepared by the city manager.

The past year's total receipts will be $3,000 in excess of his estimate on January 1. Disbursements will be $4,000 less than expected.

Despite the depression, no city employee has had his salary cut and by most departments the salaries increase periodically in accordance with a scale based in length of service.

Once the budget is adopted, the commission resists every effort to make expenditures not provided for. An appropriation is made at the start of each year for emergency use and this has always proved adequate to care for needs which could not be foreseen.

Four members of the city commission were re-elected recently and only one had opposition. There has never been the highest public hint of graft, nepotism or favoritism. Inhabitants of Albany look on their city as a corporation governed by a board of directors responsible to the voters who name a general manager to carry out their policies.

Any other city, of course, whether larger or smaller, can do what Albany has done, it is asserted here. Except for the item of public utilities ownership there is not a feature of Albany's governmental system that cannot be adopted in most other municipalities.

The same methods of efficiency, economy and honesty which have lifted Albany from the mire of debt to a surplus and have reduced the tax rate from 191 2 mills to 14 mills in three years, can be applied anywhere.

Probes Swamp Great Britain

LONDON, Jan. 7. — Thirty commissions and committees are now at work in Great Britain, investigating everything from liquor legislation to diet in cotton, cardrooms and furnaculois.

It is estimated that the total cost to the taxpayer of these 30 tribunals will be at least $150,000. Many of the commissions have existed for more than two years and have yet to make a single report.

Three are royal commissions, the other 27 more ordinary tribunals. The royal commissions are investigating laws relating to the sale and supply of intoxicating liquors, unemployment insurance, and malpractice. Other committees have such diverse subjects as street accidents, deep diving equipment, carriage of dangerous goods at sea, prevention of damage by Thames floods, and British Industries Fair site and buildings. Out of the reports of most of the committees legislation will be drawn up for submission to Parliament.

The Indian Statutory Commission headed by Sir John Simon, set up a record for expenditure by a Royal Commission. That commission cost the nation $240,000 and its report was considered obsolete shortly after it was drawn up.

Fishing Banks Once Part of Continent

BOSTON, Jan. 7. — Georges Bank, a 200-mile neck of submerged land which identifies a popular fishing area off Cape Cod, was part of the American continent 25,000 years ago, in the opinion of U. S. coast and geodetic surveyors.

The submerged land has several hills that come almost to the surface and are a constant menace to navigation. For this reason, the surveyors have been charting the strip and their picture of its profile is almost complete.

The survey has revealed several submarine valleys, which may have been river beds.

Paris Checks Her Foreigners

PARIS, Jan. 7. — Judgement day has arrived for all foreigners who have failed to get their working papers in order.

The government is making a thorough investigation of all workers from other countries, who have not complied with the French law regarding identity cards and labor permits.

According to the plans as initiated by the Ministry of the Interior every foreigner residing here will shortly receive a summons to present their identity papers and passport at the Police Commissariat of their arrondissement. In the event of having failed to comply with French regulations, disciplinary measures, from fines to expulsion to the gravity of the situation, will follow.

Periodical checkups and street roundups have been made from time to time ever since the war, but this is the first time that such a complete drive has been made by the government.

FIRST COUNTY MANAGER

HOPEWELL, Va., Jan. 6. — The first county manager in the United States is Roy S. Braden, former city manager here. He was elected to assume his new duties Jan. 1, in Arlington County. The county was granted manager government by grant from the state legislature.

Perseverance Wins Sentence in Jail

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 7. — Perseverance is the main requisite for getting into jail, in the opinion of Joseph W. Osborne, 56.

Osborne applied at the police station and asked to be locked up. He was ushered to a door.

The performance was repeated twice. Then Osborne had an idea. He walked to the front of the station and picked up a brick. He waited until he was sure the desk lieutenant was watching, then wound up as though to throw it through the large plate glass window in the front of the station house.

A flying tackle by Patrolman Thomas Caulfield saved the window, and Osborne, now all smiles, was led to a cozy cell.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified croscote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, croscote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to croscote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the croscote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

LIFE OF BRITISH ROYALTY IS NOT ALL BED OF ROSES

LONDON Jan. 7.—It's not all fun being royalty. Those public functions, one after another, day after day, only differing in their titles, become very tedious.

Here's what the British royal family recently had to put up with:

The King, the Queen, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, the Duchess of York, Prince George, Princess Mary, Princess Alice, and Lady Patricia Ramsay fulfilled between them 13 engagements in one day.

Although he remained until the early hours of the morning at the M'Nigh Baller party in aid of Queen Charlotte's Maternity Hospital, the Prince of Wales attended four engagements. The Duke of York also attended four.

The engagements included: The King, Received Admiral Sir Michael Hodges and Vice-Admiral W. M. Kerr in the morning, and Chancellor of the Exchequer, Neville Chamberlain in the evening.

The Queen: Opened the Salvation Army Hostel for Women in Whitechapel.

The Prince of Wales: Received Sir Ian Hamilton, Sir Frederick James, and Capt. the Hon. B. E. H. Clifford; spoke at the annual meeting of the Travel Association of Great Britain and Ireland; presided at the annual meeting of the League of Mercy, and visited the Christmas party of the "Not Forgotten" Association.

Princess Alice: Opened a new wing at the Abbey School Reading.

Newcastle — Bids asked for construction of Salt Fork of Brazos River bridge.

STERILIZATION BY VIBRATIONS IS PERFECTED

FORT WORTH Jan. 7.—Harnessing the energy of sound waves and applying it to sterilization of milk, fruit juice and serums, is the scientific contribution two professors of Texas Christian University have made.

Dr. Newton Gaines, of the Physiology department, and Dr. L. A. Chambers, of the biology department, have collaborated to bring about the new applications of sound. Their results were explained last week to the American Association for the Advancement of Science at New Orleans. Their achievements may revolutionize the milk industry.

In addition to using sound waves to sterilize, the professors have used them to kill frogs, water fleas, tadpoles and rats, and the energy may be harnessed to tear apart the germ cells that produce cancer.

The experimental apparatus looks much like the insides of a radio. It consists of a nickel tube, vibrating in a magnetic field 8,900 times a second. It gives off a musical note two octaves above the range of a piano.

The sound waves are concentrated in an inverted funnel pushed into it at the same time milk or other liquid to be sterilized move into the concentration point. In the little funnel, with sound waves tearing at everything in sight, the germs of the milk meet their death. The professors have only to learn now whether the principle can be carried out successfully on a commercial scale.

High Mortality. The sound waves, tests have shown, kill from 99 to 99.98 per cent of milk bacteria. These results were shown when more than 5,000 liters of milk bacteria were made. Slow motion pictures of the effect of the sound waves on water fleas reveal that the high frequency vibrations literally tear the little insects to pieces.

Dr. Gaines, in going to the University of Texas two years ago to work for his doctor's degree, concentrated his attention on sound energy. After long hours of work, he perfected the sound apparatus which has been found practicable in sterilization of milk.

At about the same time, Dr. Chambers was in Princeton university taking his doctor's degree in biology. Although writing his thesis on snails of the sea, he tinkered much with the idea of sterilization of milk with crystal sound sets, a different process from that of Dr. Gaines.

THREE KINDS OF LOVE

by KAY CLEAVER STRAHAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Ann, Cecily and Mary-Frances... The sisters have been orphaned since childhood. The grandmothers—known as "Rosalie" and "Grand"—have long since lost their wealth and the household is supported by Ann's and Cecily's earnings. For this reason, Ann, 28, and Philip, 26, and Cecily, 24, are still postponing their marriage, although they have been engaged 8 years.

Cecily, 22, is in love with Barry McKeel, an engineer, but when she proposes she refuses to name a wedding date because she cannot leave Ann with the financial responsibility of the home. Mary-Frances, 15, and still in school, strikes up an acquaintance with Earl DeArmont, stock company actor. She meets him secretly in several occasions. The company DeArmont is playing with disbands but he decides to remain in the city.

HOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXV
Mary-Frances' protestations to Earl might be taken by the unscrupulous proof of her capabilities as a woman's love for a supreme self-sacrifice. Though there is this to be considered: The most thrilling drama, with the most beautiful heroine, does come to an end after three or four acts. The curtain falls. People go home. The most exciting novel with the most amazingly bewitching heroine, as he read through to its end in time, and shelved, and another one can be begun. Plans were evolved for a girls' camp, chaperoned by the mother, in June. Evenings were lengthened toward tennis and swimming. Mr. and Mrs. Hill had their car and went for drives after dinner, and took Ermintrude and Ermintrude's friends, and rapped on the way home at thirteenth avenue for milk shakes and hot dogs. But when a true creative artist has labored long on a masterpiece she hesitates and hates the fury to turn it into a botch.

"Sure, I know," Earl rejoined. "But I kind of been thinking—see? Course, my first idea was to get it. But I don't know. I got my room rent paid up until the end of next week, and they don't ask you so much for meals around here. I could write a few letters and kind of wait returns, and maybe I could do something in the meantime with those damn—parliament—educational desks. No," as Mary-Frances attempted interruption—"wait, hon, leave me alone. A couple weeks aren't going to make so much difference the way or the other right now. I'm thinking that if I'd stick around about that classy little madville act of ours. Sure, I know," to prevent another attempted interruption, "the idea isn't appeal to you so much. But let the same, hon, I know it would be and go big—see? Big! Course, you had a happy home life here—anything—but you ain't see? And then you being so crazy about me and all. And you mean a lot to me, too—see? And I'm giving up to you straight—see?" and so on.

It made excellent material to present to Ermintrude the following day.
"He says he knows he isn't going to touch the pathway where he had his foot. His professional price—nothing amounts to anything for one another. He simply don't leave me, Ermintrude. I brought him to, but I mean too much to him, he says. He says I'm a woman and child in one. If I'll go with him, he'll go anywhere. Anywhere. But if I refuse, he'll stay right here by my side, and give up his professional career, and take any miserable, lowly work he can find rather than leave me. If I'll go with him—"

"Well, who said I was going with him?" I must say, Ermintrude—"Well, you talk about it all the time. All the time."
"I do not. Last Wednesday I just barely told you that he was possessing me to. And yesterday and today I just barely mentioned again. Of course, if you don't tell me to tell you anything at all, anymore, why, I won't. Or worse—" across the table from her. He was handsome and wise and strong and smiling, and he loved her. She smiled, too, and said, "Phil, dear, I adore this place. However did you find it, away out here?"

"A friend of mine told me about it. There's dancing, later, inside, if we care to stay."
"Let's! But—can we? It has been so long since we have danced. How long?"
"Too long. We do get into ruts. Sort of forget about good times to be had, don't we?"
"Perhaps. But during the winter there isn't much to do. We don't care for public dances."
"No. But we could go places and dine, as we're doing this evening, and dance, if—"

McKee Scheduled To Die Friday

HUNTSVILLE, Jan. 7.—Some time before sunrise Friday, Jan. 8, Ira McKee, lame-leg, will pay with his life for the slaying of W. R. Billingsley, Sparsburg merchant, in May, 1929.
All appeals for clemency, for McKee, have failed and unless Gov. Ross Sweeney grants him executive clemency, he will die on the same night as Albert Jackson, negro, condemned for the slaying of another negro in San Antonio.
Although resigned to his fate, McKee still protests his innocence.
"Dying is something we all want to get out of as fast as possible," he said, "but if I have to go I believe I can face the music without whimpering."
Evidence introduced at McKee's trial brought out the fact that Billingsley lost his life in an attempt to protect a widow and her crippled son when McKee allegedly was abusing during robbery of their hillside station.

What do the words mean, and what should the housewife do when she finds them on a particular can? EAGLES COME TO CISCO FOR CAGE SCRAP

The Abilene Eagles, strutting species of the Inter-scholastic League athletic menagerie, will invade the fair of the Cisco Lobos tomorrow evening at 7:30 in all the glory of their feathers in an effort to repeat when the court what they accomplished upon the gridiron this fall.

The Lobos, fresh from a triumph over the Ellisville five, a team also defeated by the Eagles in their first contest, lack a great deal being up to par for this encounter. Center and ex-Capt. Chuck Van Horn while able to play, is suffering from a painful side that cuts down his efficiency to a great extent while Cleo Ray, although recovered from the effects of a tonsillitis operation and as frisky as a yard full of kittens, still faces the possibility of a release that keeps him off prime.

According to the outcome of the teams' respective contests with the Ellisville crew the Lobos hold the edge over the Eagles. This fact is augmented by the advantage of playing at home. However both teams are matched apparently so equally that the outcome is a matter of doubt and prejudice and a fast and furious game from center to circumference is about the sole prediction that can be safely ventured.

The lineup for the Lobos will be the same as that which finished the contest with the Ellisville boys Tuesday evening.

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

SELF DENIAL:—Whosoever will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me. For whosoever will save his life shall lose it; but whosoever shall lose his life for my sake and the gospel's, the same shall save it.—Mark 8: 34, 35.

FREEDOM OF SPEECH.

A Kentucky judge has barred representatives of a certain newspaper from his court room because he believes that editorials published in that paper are libelous and in contempt of court. He declared that no representative of the paper would be allowed in his court room until the paper had retracted the statements complained of. The paper has appealed the case to the supreme court of Kentucky asking a writ of prohibition to restrain the district judge from enforcing his injunction against the paper.

The case involves much greater significance than the justice or injustice of the judge's charges against the particular paper. The freedom of the press to obtain and publish the news and its freedom of speech both to print the facts and to comment editorially upon the facts are involved. Freedom of speech has been the cornerstone of American independence, and out of the clash of ideas and opinions that has gone on for the past 150 years has come much of the progress that this nation has experienced. To abridge that right means simply to muzzle freedom of expression and deny the public the institution of the open forum wherein the interchange of ideas serves to shape aggressive national character and stimulate progressive action.

If one judge or any one other person is empowered to bar a newspaper from his courtroom or from any other public institution merely because to his mind the expressions of that paper's opinions are libelous, or derogatory that privilege, carried to its furthest extreme, means that one person is able to penalize the majority for its opinions and consequently to dominate what would otherwise be a liberty of mind. That is the question that is involved in the Kentucky case, a question intimately associated with the constitutionally guaranteed freedom of the press. The Kentucky appellate court is to determine whether or not the merits of the case upon which the district judge based his enjoining order justify the permanence of the order. If the newspaper is found to have overstepped its bounds and invaded other rights to the extent of obstructing justice, the judge's action may be justified on grounds that do not threaten constitutional guarantees. But, according to reports of the case, the jurist was actuated solely by his opinion that the expressions of the paper editorially were unfair and libelous and in that event he has forced an issue that is national in its scope and one that must be decided in the fight of what its effect will be upon the nation and not what influence it will exert upon a particular cause in a district court in the state of Kentucky.

ALGEBRA OF TAXATION.

There will be a tax problem in Texas until taxpayers are convinced their tax dollars are buying one hundred cents worth of good government, and until the total tax bill is recruited equally and indiscriminately from the various interests of the state," comments the Editorial Digest.

The Digest continues: "In a state where justices-of-the-peace may earn two and three times the compensation given the governor and the attorney general, you may expect to find a tax problem. In a state where as many as twenty separate and distinct tax-collecting and tax-collecting agencies levy upon and collect from the same people, the economist would be surprised did he not find a full-grown tax problem. In a state where the unit of government—the county—has retained all of the limitations imposed by horse-and-buggy transportation, where three county clerks serve a territory one could serve and where three sets of county commissioners do the work that one could do, it would be surprising indeed did the taxpayers' dollar purchase one hundred cents worth of efficient, economical government.

"The Texas tax problem is a compound problem in that it embodies two separate and distinct 'unknown quantities.' First is the 'X' that represents the minimum amount of money that citizens must contribute to secure a maximum of good government. To solve this equation, it is necessary to weigh the benefits of county consolidation, of city-county consolidation, of the elimination of unnecessary offices and the merging of others, of modernizing procedure and of plugging the holes through which waste and extravagance seep into the machinery politic.

"This done, but not until this is done, it is time to attack the rest of the Texas tax problem. When we have put our government in good working order, we can intelligently attack the problem of how best to raise the money necessary for its operation.

"When the first unknown quantity is found, the tax problem becomes a simple algebraic equation."

OTHER OPINIONS

IS BABSON RIGHT?

Most of the widely known statisticians who in other periods have registered "falling success" in analyzing conditions and forecasting developments have suffered reverses during the past two years. Their graphs have been accurate only insofar as they have pictured what has already occurred and in most instances have lacked accuracy in prediction when they attempted to interpret the future.

In spite of this, however, one can not escape a feeling of elation as he reads from the pen of so well known an economist as Roger W. Babson an optimistic forecast that conditions are to be better soon. Mr. Babson had made his full quota of errors in his series of analyses, but when he says business and commodities are now at their lowest levels, it is reassuring. When he says bank failures are decreasing and hoarded money is coming out of its hiding places it causes us to feel better. He reports moreover that industry is showing signs of recovery, the railroads in particular having begun the reconstruction of their operating methods which eventually will lead to their economic salvation. The farm situation has passed its worst stages, the economist believes, and this should be helpful to the agricultural interests if they are persuaded to believe it. The good old law of action and reaction, Mr. Babson believes, is going to operate to the advantage of everybody. Nothing could be more than the last six months period, therefore, the next six months period will be better, according to this law.

Is Babson right? Nobody knows, of course, but it will do no harm to give him the benefit of whatever doubt there may be in our minds. During the past three months there have been many evidences of the beginning of improvement in the general economic conditions. Any improvement that may be noted is evidence that the bed-rock law has been reached and passed, and that is what all of us have been waiting for so impatiently. Looking forward to the beginning of the new year the one thing we need more than anything else is confidence. Confidence in ourselves, confidence in our fellow citizens, confidence in our public government, and their official confidence is stimulated by such reports as Mr. Babson's most recent analysis, which is distinctly optimistic in its tone. — Brownwood Bulletin.

igation of tammany office holders happens every two years. Now Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt has a republican legislature on hand and the practical politicians of the republican party are to continue the investigation of tammany but decline to permit an investigation of their operating methods which eventually will lead to their economic salvation. The farm situation has passed its worst stages, the economist believes, and this should be helpful to the agricultural interests if they are persuaded to believe it. The good old law of action and reaction, Mr. Babson believes, is going to operate to the advantage of everybody. Nothing could be more than the last six months period, therefore, the next six months period will be better, according to this law.

A practical politician loves the "fleshpot" or its spoils. A way out in front as a democratic possibility for the democratic presidential nomination is Gov. Roosevelt. Hidden behind the scenes are the shrewd and ambitious gentlemen of politics and finance who prefer another candidate for the presidential nomination for reasons best known to themselves. Safety first is their slogan. Behind the practical politicians of one section of the country are the gentlemen who would like to see the republicans retained in power; or a democrat chosen who would be safe, as regards their private interests, should an upheaval come and the republicans sweep from power. "Stop Roosevelt" is their game. Now Friday and Saturday in the city of Washington, on the banks of the Potomac, there will be something doing which will interest all democrats who are for the people and all independent who would like to see a change in policies of government. Big guns of the democratic party will thunder and the convention city will be named.

A record will be made by a congress made up of a democratic house and a senate controlled by democrats and Sen. George H. Moses' sons of wild jackasses. In 1896 it was Mark Hanna plotting William McKinley to the White House with the slogan: "Prosperity and a full dinner pail for the worker." Mark Hanna was the first national manager who tried the fat out of the king of finance and the king of manufacture in America. He put it over but it cost those who were thrown in the frying pan millions of dollars. They appear to have been collecting principal and interest since the time, through the enactment of class privileges laws when over the elephant happened to be in power. This year no doubt the republican campaign cry will be "Down with the commune and the communists." Now what will be the slogan of the donkey. What is the name of the national standard bearer and who the man selected as the pilot to succeed John J. "Duck" Kelly? This is to be the year of all years since 1896 in writing the political history of the republic.

SWANS ON VISIT.

AURORA N. Y., Jan. 6.—A flock of wild white swans, that landed on Cayuga Lake, have attracted attention of sportsmen from miles around. The wild swans, a species reportedly near extinction, remained for several days. A special state game inspector was sent to protect them. The swans at times came close to shore.

In the Political Arena

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD
On the opening day of the new year there was another payless pay day for the 26,000 county and city employees of Philadelphia. The city treasury was without sufficient funds to pay the monthly payroll of approximately $1,750,000. Philadelphia is the second American city as to population and wealth. It is one of the republican strongholds of America. It has been absolutely dominated by the practical politicians of the republican party for years and years. Its tax rate is very high. Its municipal indebtedness has been very high.

Chicago had been a republican stronghold for years ruled by Big Bill Thompson and his political henchmen until bankruptcy forced the government. Then a democrat was elected to hold the bag. Now the Illinois legislature has been asked to enact a measure which will abolish the elective boards of assessors and review and set up new tax machinery in the city of Chicago and the county of Cook. Banker and civic advisers have held talk-change imperative if Chicago and the county hovering on the brink of bankruptcy and deprived of any change of tax collections are to escape ruin.

Republican politicians who are practical never investigate conditions in the city of Philadelphia. Republican lawmakers of Illinois never investigated the methods of Big Bill Thompson and his crew while Thompson was in power.

New York has a tammany government city and the tammanies are democrats. New York has had but one democratic legislature in a quarter of a century, but the invest-

TATES PASS 500 LAWS TO AID WORKERS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7. — More than 500 laws, dealing chiefly with employment, accident compensation, old age pensions and labor laws to bargain collectively, were acted by congress and the 46 states holding legislative sessions in 1931. It has been announced by the American Association for Labor Legislation.

The Wagner Act, adopted by congress, provides for advance planning of public works as a safeguard against unemployment in the future. This bill, together with one adopted by congress to appropriate funds to expand the Federal Employment Service, are regarded as the most important measures designed to offset any further distress from unemployment.

With Delaware, Idaho, New Hampshire, New Jersey and West Virginia adopting old age pension legislation, the number of states with such laws has increased to 17. The first real Bill of Rights for labor in this country was adopted in Wisconsin in 1931. That state declares its policy to be the elimination of bargaining and denounces "yellow dog" contracts as contrary to public policy and void. Arizona, Colorado, Ohio and Oregon also declared "yellow dog" contracts void, and Pennsylvania restricted labor injunctions.

Wisconsin also adopted notable legislation for its workmen's compensation law, and is the first state to increase the compensation rate to more than two-thirds of wages. The rate is 70 per cent for disability in place of the former 65 per cent. Alabama and Pennsylvania enacted amendments to provide double compensation for miners injured while legally employed, and other states made further provisions for the care of injured workers.

Enforcement of labor laws was consolidated in reorganized labor departments in Georgia and North Carolina, and in New Mexico, where a labor department was created for the first time.

BOUND TO BE READ

By H. ALLEN SMITH
United Press Book Editor

The new-born year begins auspiciously with two good novels from authors whose names already command a wide hearing. These two are Marjorie Chapman, with "The Weather Tree" (Viking), and William McPee, with "The Harbourmaster" (Doubleday Doran). Both volumes are January book club choices. They will appeal to different appetites.

"The Weather Tree" is a pastoral tale of Tennessee mountain folk, a worthy successor to the author's "The Happy Mountain." The writing of it has been a masterful thing for the idiom of its people is employed throughout. Here you come on such words as cumfattered, sumficking, palamity, frousty, fadacious, fossicking, trivet and rally.

It tells the tale of the mountain girl, Thelma Lane, of the coming of Ben Hazard and Red Hill of the planter, Lynn Clayton, and of the subsequent tempest that arises in the lives of the plain, slow-tongued folks of the valley and hillsides. It is drama a plenty, a balancing humor, and a lazy, powerful rhythm. In the author's own words, it is a "surgical" piece of work.

William McPee's new novel is much longer, due mainly to the philosophical wanderings of Mr. Spenlow, a Conradesque seaman aboard a tourist ship. The vessel is off Puerto Baibos and things have been happening this day in the sea. Mr. Spenlow, wise and witty, gathers the passengers into a group on the top deck and tells the story of Frank Freley, the harbourmaster. That story is the story of the book and has its setting in England, New York, Salonika and Central America. It is a book to be read slowly and earnestly, else much of Mr. Spenlow's practical philosophy will be lost in the forest of words.

A book to have around handy for occasional snatches of great writing is "The Anthology of English Prose," edited by Herbert Read and Bonamy Dobree (Viking). It contains 60 pages of brief excerpts from the writings of great Englishmen and Americans. The selections are divided into three sections, narrative, scientific and emotive. Under narrative are classified story-telling, history, autobiography and journals, biography and characters and letters. Under scientific writings are natural science, philosophy, theology, politics, law, strategy and tactics, sport and criticism. Under emotive writings are pathos, drama, satirical, comedy, controversy and industry, satire and invective, moralistic and occasional writings.

The editors explain that the extracts have been chosen "not merely for their beauty or for their subject but because they should properly fulfill the function which the author demanded of them."

All this fuss-and-feathers over contract bridge, stirred up by the Hubertson-Lewis match, should create quite a sale for "Vanity Fair's Bridge Problems," by R. F. Foster (Liveright). There are 100 problem hands to be worked out, with answers in the back of the book. The problems have been composed by bridge experts of two continents. The hands are presented attractively, the book is neatly bound and the price is $2.

GEORGIA TOWN CUTS EXPENSES AND HAS BIG BALANCE THROUGH CAREFUL MANAGEMENT

EDITOR'S NOTE—In these times when many other city governments are in dire financial straits—with payless pay days for city employees, huge current debts, threatened closing of schools, etc.—the remarkable story of what is being accomplished in the little city of Albany, Ga., is of especial interest. C. D. Tounsley, city editor of The Albany Herald, has written this exclusive article for NFA Service and this paper.

By C. D. TOUNSLEY
NFA Service Correspondent

ALBANY, Ga., Jan. 6. — Free of debt and complacently conscious of a big cash bank balance this Georgia municipality of 15,000 population wonders vaguely why other governments—city, county, state and national—are experiencing so much difficulty in balancing their budgets and are, in many instances, confronted with the necessity of raising taxes.

Albany starts 1932 with the lowest tax rate in many years, with a bank balance of $135,000, and owing not one cent of current accounts. Moreover, about $32,000 of uncollected 1931 taxes is due the city treasury.

Five years ago Albany owed current accounts of $176,000, had no money in the bank except a sinking fund balance was operating on borrowed funds—most of the time and was levying a tax almost 40 per cent larger than the 1931 rate. Another reduction of 20 per cent in the tax is indicated for 1932.

"How did Albany do it?" other cities have been asking ever since recent press dispatches announced that Albany had $3.39 per capita in the bank and no current indebtedness.

Mayor J. S. Billingsley's reply has been: "Keep the ougo within the limits of the income. That's the way to bring down taxes and get on a sound financial basis."

Salient features which have contributed to this city's improved financial position include:

Municipal ownership and operation of all public utilities.

Adoption of the commission-city manager form of government.

Careful preparation, the first of each year of a schedule of estimated receipts.

Adoption of a budget well within the amount of estimated income and scrupulous adherence to the budget.

The public utilities contribute about $100,000 each year to the operating expenses of the city.

Many years ago the city acquired the water, light and gas plants. Until comparatively recent times they were operated at a loss or at least broke even. Then they began to show a small profit. Numberless futile efforts to buy them have been made by public utility corporations.

The utilities are operated by a commission of three, chosen by the city commission. They have managed so well that water, light and gas rates are as low as in other cities of like size, despite the $100,000 annual profit.

Occasional pleas for lower rates are met with the answer that there are many citizens who own no property and pay no tax, and that their only contribution to the cost of government is through payment of water, light and gas charges.

Albany adopted commission government eight years ago.

The city is governed by seven commissioners, one from each of five wards and 2 elected from the city at large. They are chosen for two-year terms, and each year they elect one of their number mayor. The commission meets twice a month and is subject to call meetings at any time. The mayor is paid only $100 a month, the commissioners receive $10 for each regular meeting.

Actual management is left to the city manager, C. Q. Wright, a native of Albany, has occupied that position for five years, and much of the credit for the city's excellent condition today is given him. All city departments, except the water, light and gas departments, are under his control and supervision. Department heads keep him advised at all times of the activities under them. He has no assistant, not even a secretary.

The all-important schedule of estimated receipts which is adopted at the start of each calendar year is prepared by the city manager.

The past year's total receipts will be $3,000 in excess of his estimate on January 1. Disbursements will be $4,000 less than expected.

Despite the depression, no city employee has had his salary cut and in most departments the salaries increase periodically in accordance with a scale based in length of service.

Once the budget is adopted, the commission resists every effort to make expenditures not provided for. An appropriation is made at the start of each year for emergency use and this has always proved adequate to care for needs which could not be foreseen.

Four members of the city commission were re-elected recently and only one had opposition. There has never been the slightest public hint of graft, nepotism or favoritism. Inhabitants of Albany look on the city as a corporation governed by a board of directors responsible to the voters who name a general manager to carry out their policies.

Any other city, of course, whether larger or smaller, can do what Albany has done, it is asserted here. Except for the item of public utilities ownership there is not a feature of Albany's governmental system that cannot be adopted in most other municipalities.

The same methods of efficiency, economy and honesty which have lifted Albany from the mire of debt to a surplus and have reduced the tax rate from 191.2 mill to 14 mill in three years, can be applied anywhere.

Probes Swamp Great Britain

LONDON, Jan. 7. — Thirty commissions and committees are now at work in Great Britain, investigating everything from liquor legislation to dust in cotton cardrooms and furunculo-sis.

It is estimated that the total cost to the taxpayer of these 30 tribunals will be at least $150,000. Many of the commissions have existed for more than two years and have yet to make a single report.

Three are royal commissions, the other 27 more ordinary tribunals. The royal commissions are investigating law relating to the sale and supply of intoxicating liquors, unemployment insurance, and maladministration.

Other committees have such diverse subjects as street accidents, deep diving equipment, carriage of dangerous goods at sea, prevention of damage by Thames floods, and British Industries Fair site and buildings. Out of the reports of most of the committee-legislation will be drawn up for submission to Parliament.

The Indian Statutory Commission headed by Sir John Simon, set up a record for expenditure by a Royal Commission. That commission cost the nation $240,000 and its report was considered obsolete shortly after it was drawn up.

Paris Checks Her Foreigners

PARIS, Jan. 7. — Judgement day has arrived for all foreigners who have failed to get their working papers in order.

The government is making a thorough investigation of all workers from other countries, who have not complied with the French law regarding identity cards and labor permits.

According to the plans as initiated by the Ministry of the Interior every foreigner residing here will shortly receive a summons to present their identity papers and passport at the Police Commissariat of their arrondissement. In the event of having failed to comply with French regulations disciplinary measures, from fines to expulsion, to the gravity of the situation, will follow.

Periodical check-ups and street roundups have been made from time to time ever since the war, but this is the first time that such a complete drive has been made by the government.

Perseverance Wins Sentence in Jail

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 7. — Perseverance is the main requisite for getting into jail, in the opinion of Joseph W. Osborne, 56.

Osborne applied at the police station and asked to be locked up. He was ushered to a door.

The performance was repeated twice. They Osborne had an idea. He walked to the front of the station and picked up a brick. He waited until he was sure the desk lieutenant was watching, then he wound up as though to throw it through the large plate glass window in the front of the station house.

A flying tackle by Patrolman Thomas Caulfield saved the window and Osborne, now all smiles, was led to a cozy cell.

Fishing Banks Once Part of Continent

BOSTON, Jan. 7. — Georges Bank, a 200-mile neck of submerged land which identifies a popular fishing area off Cape Cod, was part of the American continent 25,000 years ago, in the opinion of U. S. coast and geodetic surveyors.

The submerged land has several hills that come almost to the surface and are a constant menace to navigation. For this reason, the surveyors have been charting the strip and their picture of its profile is almost complete.

The survey has revealed several submarine valleys, which may have been river beds.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

STERILIZATION BY VIBRATIONS IS PERFECTED

FORT WORTH, Jan. 7.—Harnessing the energy of sound waves and applying it to sterilization of milk, fruit juice and serums, is the scientific contribution two professors of Texas Christian university have made. Dr. Newton Gaines, of the Physics department, and Dr. L. A. Chambers, of the biology department, have collaborated to bring about the new applications of sound. Their results were explained last week to the American Association for the Advancement of Science at New Orleans. Their achievements may revolutionize the milk industry. In addition to using sound waves to sterilize, the professors have used them to kill frogs, water fleas, tadpoles and rats, and the energy may be harnessed to tear apart the germ cells that produces cancer. The experimental apparatus looks much like the insides of a radio. It consists of a nickel tube, vibrating in a magnetic field 8,900 times a second. It gives off a musical note two octaves above the range of a piano. The sound waves are concentrated in an inverted funnel pushed into it at the same time milk or other liquid to be sterilized move into the concentration point. In the little funnel, with sound waves tearing at everything in sight, the germs of the milk meet their death. The professors have only to learn now whether the principle can be carried out successfully on a commercial scale. High Mortality. The sound waves, tests have shown, kill from 99 to 99.98 per cent of milk bacteria. These results were shown when more than 5,000 slides of milk bacteria were made. Slow motion pictures of the effect of the sound waves on water fleas reveal that the high frequency vibrations literally tear the little insects to pieces. Dr. Gaines, in going to the University of Texas two years ago to work for his doctor's degree, concentrated his attention on sound energy. After long hours of work, he perfected the sound apparatus which has been found practicable in sterilization of milk. At about the same time, Dr. Chambers was in Princeton university taking his doctor's degree in biology. Although writing his thesis on snails of the sea, he tinkered much with the idea of sterilization of milk with crystal sound sets, a different process from that of Dr. Gaines.

Ann, Cecily and Mary-Frances can live with their grandpa. The sisters have been orphaned since childhood. The grandpa, known as "Rosalie" and "and"—have long since lost their wealth and the household is supported by Ann's and Cecily's earnings. For this reason, Ann, 28, Philip Ecroyd, young lawyer, still postponing their marriage though they have been engaged 8 years. Cecily, 22, is in love with Bar-McKeel, an engineer, but when she proposes she refuses to name wedding date because she cannot leave Ann with the financial possibility of the home.

MARY-FRANCES, 15, AND STILL IN SCHOOL, STRIKES UP AN ACQUAINTANCE

Earl DeArmont, stock company actor. She meets him secretly several occasions. The company amount in June. Evenings he decides to remain in city.

HOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXV

Mary-Frances' protestations might be taken, by the usual, as proof of the capabilities of a woman's love for supreme sacrifice. Though there is this drama, with the most beautiful heroine, does come to an end in three or four acts. The curtain falls. People go home. The exciting world, with the most amazingly bewitching heroine, be read through to its end in, and shelved, and another one be begun. Plans were evolved a girls' camp, chaperoned by her mother, in June. Evenings he lengthened toward tennis and swimming. Mr. and Mrs. Hill had new car and went for drives at dinner, and took Ermintrude Ermintrude's friends, and dined on milk shakes and hot. But when a true creature of has labored long on a masterpiece she hesitates and hates fury to turn it into a batch

"Oh, well," Mary-Frances simply flicked that away with a feathery gesture and a lifted shoulder and a turned-up nose. "Of course, if you think your mother knows more about love than noted poets like Laurence Hope, and Mr. Browning, and Ella Wheeler Wilcox and everybody, there's just no use in talking to me at all."

"Poets, noted or not," contended Ermintrude, "can't mean everything they write—they'd go cuckoo if they did. They just write different ways, hoping to please different people—or for some reason, I don't know why. But you don't have to believe every word they write, like it was in the Bible, do you? Besides that, I guess maybe there are a few people in the world worth taking advice from besides poets. And if you could hear what my daddy says about my mother, I guess, maybe you might think she was one of them."

"Who said I never took advice from anybody but poets?" Mary-Frances demanded. "I think your mother is an awfully nice lady, Ermintrude. But I guess she wasn't the toast of the south when she was a girl. Now, my grandmother—"

"I know. You told me. My mother didn't live in the south."

"Well, Rosalie did. In South Carolina. And I asked her just the other day how people knew for sure when they were in love, and all I have to say is that what she told me, and she talked for pretty near half an hour on the subject, certainly didn't sound much like what your mother had to say about being married 10 years and babies and all. And if age is all you go by, why, I guess Rosalie is maybe a little older than your mother."

Ermintrude, not barren of tact, remarked, "Miss Alderman was mad as hops when you cut basketball the other day."

"I didn't feel like rowding around," Mary-Frances replied, and sighed spectacularly. "I had some poetry to copy."

McKee Scheduled To Die Friday

HUNTSVILLE, Jan. 7.—Some time before sunrise Friday, Jan. 8, Ira McKee, a lawyer, will pay with his life for the slaying of W. R. Billingsley, Spangenberg merchant in May, 1930.

All appeals for clemency for McKee have failed and unless Gov. Ross Sterling grants him executive clemency, he will die on the gallows at Albert Jackson, a negro, condemned for the slaying of another negro in San Antonio.

Although resigned to his fate, McKee still protests his innocence. "Doing is something we all want to do off as long as possible," he said, "but if I have to go I believe I can face the music without whimpering."

Evidence introduced at McKee's trial brought out the fact that Billingsley lost his life in an attempt to protect a widow and her crippled son whom McKee allegedly was abusing during robbery of their filling station.

DR. MILES' EFFERVESCENT NERVE TABLETS

AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION NEWS

From the Office of the County Agent and The Home Demonstration Agent.

Guard your table, read the label.— Farm and Ranch.

Housewives will find new words printed in bold-face type, upon the labels of some canned peaches, peas, pears, tomatoes, cherries, and apricots packed this season and going on the market now. These words are, "Below U. S. Standard; low quality but not illegal."

What do the words mean, and what should the housewife do when she finds them on a particular can? The words mean that the National pure food law has been amended to authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to prescribe and formulate quality standards for all canned foods save meat and most meat products, and canned milk. The Secretary has already announced official standards for peas, peaches, pears, tomatoes, cherries, and apricots, and these standards are now in effect. The amendment, popularly known as the canner's bill further authorizes the Secretary to prescribe a designation to be printed upon the labels of canned foods that fall below the standards.

The canner's bill also gives the Secretary authority to define a standard fill for canned foods. Canned foods shall be considered as of standard fill if the entire contents occupy 90 per cent or more of the volume of the closed container. If a buyer finds the words, "Slack Filled," on a can, she will know that the food in that container does not occupy 90 per cent of the volume.

"A housewife with a limited amount of money to spend will be greatly aided in making her purchases of canned foods within the coming months if she will carefully read the labels on the containers," says Dr. P. B. Dunbar. "Nor need she fear that if she buys a can of food labeled with the substandard designation that she is getting unwholesome product."

"If the food actually were unwholesome, it would of course be illegal under the food and drug acts and subject to action under that measure. She need not hesitate to purchase a food branded 'Below U. S. Standard; low quality but not illegal,' because that food will carry the nutritive, if not the esthetic, value of standard canned goods."

The housewife need not look for the wording indicating a substandard product on any canned goods.

FAMOUS OLD STAGE PLAY RESURRECTED

You'll say "NO!" with a great deal of emphasis after you've seen the great talking picture "Ten Nights in a Bar-Room," the feature attraction now showing at the Palace Theater for this modern audible screen version of the famous old stage play is a powerful argument against the return of the Prohibition saloon. But the picture is not a preachment -- it is thrilling, gripping entertainment -- a real dramatic achievement. Superbly staged with an amazing blending of a galaxy of human emotions, it will hold you enthralled from the opening scene to the final fade-out.

William Farnum, the long famous stage and screen star, gives a magnificent performance as Joe Morgan, the whiskey-soaked wreck the last of a long line of "drinking and fighting Morsons" whose spectacular regeneration is brought about by the love of a little child six year old Patty Lou Lynd, the part of Mary Morgan with ardent realism for one so young. Her first scene with Mr. Farnum are delightfully human, and then as the story unfolds she becomes the pivot around which her father's regeneration center as being the only thing in life he loves strongly enough to atone his heritage as a fishing Morson.

When he believes his little girl to be dying -- killed by the saloon-keeper -- Mr. Farnum's transition from the hopeless bar-room bum to the fighting man who was once "champion of Cedarville" is a splendid contribution to his many outstanding characteristics. His emotional characterization is brought about by the love of a little child six year old Patty Lou Lynd, the part of Mary Morgan with ardent realism for one so young.

Included in the notable cast are John Darrow, Robert Frazer, Rosemary Theby, Thomas Jefferson, Lionel Schmeer, Phyllis Barrington, Sheila Manner, Harry Todd, Fern Emmet, Melbourne MacDowell, Kathryn Clara Ward, and Daisy Belmore. The adaptation was written by North S. Parker. Wm. O'Connor directed.
