Burnett today asked the Daily News to publish the following: "In his letter to the 'Daily News' which was published on Wednesday of this week, Mr. George D. Limits Raised

Tentative arrangements have been made to connect 250 isolated wells in Coleman county to pipe lines and oil is expected to be running from these wells in the immediate future. Removal of the Wichita Falls office to this city will bring at least three more families to Cisco at present, it was learned. The central location of Cisco as respects the holdings and interests of the Humble company in the state and the fact that the pipe line system of the Humble Pipe Line company converges here makes it an ideal location for the headquarters and the present move is looked upon as the first step in a program that will benefit this city to a large extent by retaining for it the location of a large unit of Humble investment.

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

THE LORD SUSTAINS:—They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary, and they shall walk, and not faint.—Isaiah 40: 31.

$1 TAX ON $3000 NATURAL GAS.

At present prices for Texas natural gas the state has to export 2,000,000 feet in order to collect $1 in production taxes.

The same 2,000,000 feet of gas is sold in the Mid-West for as much as $3000.

There's too big a spread between 21 3/4 cents per thousand and $1.50 per thousand, when Texas is on the small end of the horn for its tax revenues, in the opinion of Attorney General James V. Allred.

Mr. Allred has disclosed that small operators in the gas field have complained to him that the same companies which pay taxes on a 2 1/2 cent valuation—paying the producers only 2 cents, by the way—resell the gas across the state line to companies under their same ownership and by a series of boosters get the ultimate price up beyond $1 per thousand feet.

If these charges are proven in investigations he is now making, the attorney general will consider ouster proceedings against "a combination of powerful foreign utilities" thus preventing the state from getting what justly should go into its treasury.

It was a double barrel gun that the state of Texas aimed last summer, in the blast that swept chaos out of the oil industry.

Attorney General Allred has his finger on the other trigger now; and if such drastic action is going to be necessary to rescue the national gas industry as was required to save the oil industry, the second barrel should be heavily loaded.

The state treasury suffered heavily by the oil debacle, and is still feeling its effects. When oil touched bottom, the state got less than one-eighth the taxes it had received on $1 oil. Back at around 75 cents, oil is paying five times as much taxes as it did last June and July and part of August. Some of the present deficit is due to the fact that millions of barrels of oil failed to pay the state the tax rate on its reasonable value.

The state, out of its vast production of its valuable natural gas, is now getting taxes averaging only about $91,000 a year.

Operators in the industry say an average gas price for the nation should be about 10 cents per thousand feet at the well. They say that within the next two years, the export of natural gas out of the Panhandle alone will more than double the present production that is sold, and will exceed a billion feet a day.

Assuming these figures are generally correct, the state would, at this valuation, stand to collect nearly three-quarters of a million dollars a year on the exports of its valuable supply of natural gas.

That would begin to help the treasury.

AMERICA PROTESTS.

The United States government has sent a note to the Japanese and Chinese governments directly invoking American treaty rights in the far east and serving unequivocal notice that the American government will not admit the legality of Japan's occupation of Manchuria. This notification of American policy is a radical departure from the previous tone of diplomatic representations and indicates that the attitude of the American government is becoming indignation at what seems to be Japanese disregard of treaty structures and the rights of Americans in the world area affected.

The western powers, during the recent Manchurian difficulties and the aggressive, if not predatory, activities of Japan in that territory, have suffered in Oriental opinion. The once powerful prestige of America, Great Britain and their associated Occidental powers in eastern affairs has been materially weakened by its apparent failure to compel the respect of the Japanese who have gone forward with a program of conquest in ruthless disregard of the protests or influence of the western nations. The yellow man, at first amazed its becoming contemptuous. Is white supremacy to yield to the rising forces being generated among the almost one billion of yellow peoples who inhabit a vast region of the globe stretching from the Nipponese Isles to the Suez?

OTHER OPINIONS

JAP. FEW AND GENTLE

Most of us are disposed to condemn the Japanese in the Manchurian middle and there is probably no ethical defense to make of their course. But are we sure we would act about the same way if we were similarly situated? Japan has 40,000,000 people on some islands that have little more land than we have in Texas. And at least one-third of these islands is mountainous. There are few natural resources in Japan; no iron, no coal, no oil, no timber. Just across a narrow sea lies Manchuria that has all these resources in abundance. Besides the soil of Manchuria is almost virgin and produces prodigally. What little development that has been made has been done with Japanese capital. The island

Empire has invested more than a billion dollars in Manchuria. Manchuria has been governed, if you can call it government, by a crowd of looters and brigands. The deposed governor of that land would put to shame the exploits of Robin Hood, Captain Kidd, and LaSalle when it came to plunder brigandage and murder. There is no protection except at a price: Japan can give security. Joshua of old looked over Jordan and saw a land of milk and honey. Probably the Hittite and Jebusites were not developing Palestine as they should. Probably they were not planting vineyards and fig trees. The Cedars of Lebanon were not being used to build temples and there was no music of wheat harvest in the rich valleys. And so the Israelites went over and possessed the land. Some four hundred years ago some white people from overseas landed and established colonies along the sea coast of this country. They found the country inhabited by roving bands of red men who were content to have their women raise a little corn in isolated patches while the men hunted wild game in the forest. They built no cities, they dug no coal or iron. They bored no oil wells, nor constructed any highways or railroads. They were content and thought the country was theirs, given them by the Great Spirit.

But Puritan landing in New England, Quakers in Pennsylvania, Dutch in New York, Catholics in Maryland and Protestants in Virginia and the Carolinas decided that the Indians was not making use of the country as God intended and proceeded to drive back the red man from the land of the fathers. If he resisted, he was killed. All this was done in the name of Christianity and civilization. The Pilgrim fathers said their prayers before going out to take a pot shot at an Indian. The Catholics counted the beads on their rosaries, while the Protestants in the name of Luther Calvin and Wesley bartered with the Red Man, bought his possessions with beads and fire water and said their prayers regularly. We are not saying it was wrong to have brought the wonderful civilization of the white man to take the place of the wigwam and the tepee.

But the Jap has been doing a little looking over Jordan and he like milk and honey. His teeming millions must live and his little islands will not support them. He needs coal and iron and lumber and the fruits of the soil. His course may be more ethical than Joshua or the Pilgrims of New England or the Cavaliers of Virginia, but they could hardly be worse. Israelite and Gentile has, whenever powerful enough, taken what they wanted. Could we expect more of pagan Japan? —Marshall News.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON K. WAITE Shawnee, Oklahoma.

Clyde F. Ketter, managing editor of the Shamokin (Pa.) Dispatch says: Fear and hysteria followed an era of luxury throughout the trying years that have followed the World War and brought us to the present with an attitude of fear and trembling for the future.

The answer lies in judicious spending. Everywhere the attitude of cowardly hoarding is being abandoned for the better system advocated by financiers of making wise expenditures for things that will last. Soon we will emerge from the nightmare of depression and start on the broad, bright, highway of moderate and lasting good times. There have been other depressions. In the past one hundred and thirty years we have had thirteen of these lapses of prosperity. We have passed through seven of the ten years in the present cycle, and during the next three should forge ahead.

The temporary collapse of the world's business structure was caused by a combination of circumstances and only through courage and well-considered action can we bring about a return of prosperity. There are good years ahead!

That this is the time to talk plainly about local conditions, which now exist and those which are liable to arise if the citizens don't get busy.

There is no use in saying that conditions being faced by one city have not been faced by others, because they have and always will be.

The question is, will a city weather these conditions and come out of the ordeal a bigger, better and busier city?

This depends wholly upon the people there and the effort they put forward.

If the citizens have faith and will work, you can rest assured that they can make the future of their city what it should be.

Waiting for prosperity to hit a city is not the spirit a city should should have.

They should be on the job all the time, developing better things.

Citizens should never rest, but should keep on telling the outside world the advantages their city offers and tell it in a way that will appeal to them. It will accuse many of them to investigate and come to stay!

Gas Well Runs Electric Plant

KEUKA, N. Y., Jan. 8. — A million dollar electricity generating plant is under construction here as a direct result of discovery of natural gas in the neighborhood.

The plant will follow a unique system perfected in Switzerland for making electricity. Under the plan, gas-driven motors supply enough current to pump water to the top of a hill above Lake Keuka. A huge reservoir on the hilltop is kept full.

As the water is needed, it is allowed to flow down the hill through turbines. The turbine manufacture electricity for Central New York.

Gas is cheap, and the plan is described as economical and reliable. Engineers explain that if the pumping system breaks down, sufficient water is in the reservoir to operate the turbine for several days. The gas-driven motors develop 96,000 horsepower. The pumps will have a capacity of 8,000 gallons a minute.

DEER INCREASE BIG PROBLEM FOR COMM'N

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 8.—Like the old lady who lived in the shoe, the Pennsylvania State Game commission has so many deer children, it does not know what to do with them.

Estimates placed the number within the state at 1,000,000. Hunters killed only six and one-half per cent, or 65,000, during the 1931 season. The average annual increase is estimated at 150,000 fawn.

The deer are over-running the state. They are foraging among orchards and farm lands. They are killing the young shoots of forest trees. They are becoming semi-domesticated to an extent that some make farmers' barns their winter quarters.

Meat Affected.

The size of the herd is affecting adversely the quality of the deer meat, the weight of the animals, and the opportunity for improving the strain, a native Pennsylvania species of white-tailed deer.

In attempting to regulate the number of deer the Commission, which has full authority to "take what steps it chooses, is caught between two lines of fire. On one side are the farmers demanding that the herd be materially reduced and the deer chased back into the mountains. On the other side stand the hunters, demanding that their sport in no way be interfered with.

The doe provides the principal phase of the problem. They were placed under protection in 1907 and for 20 years were safe from hunters.

First Effort.

In 1928 the Commission made its first state-wide effort to reduce the number of doe by declaring a state-wide open season on the females. Injunctions brought by hunters organizations blocked the season in some counties. The season showed 5,000 doe and 20,000 buck killed.

The ideal condition the commission seeks is that maintained by stock raisers in the state. The cattle herd averages about 1,400,000 animals and 90 per cent of them are killed annually. Despite this large reduction, balance between the sexes is maintained and breeding replaces the gaps.

The situation is one of the commission's own making. Its conservation policy, its regulation of open and closed seasons, its control of the number killed by individuals and hunting camps, and its other restrictions permitted the deer herd to increase from a "palful few" in 1895 to its 1,000,000 size today.

Like Frankenstein's monster, the creation of the deer herd threatens to destroy the authority and the power of the commission. Extension of the open season on does appeared as the most available solution.

Replica of Old Fort Is Okched

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Jan. 8.—Dr. Albert Bushnell Hart, historian of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission, visited here recently and approved the correctness of the Fort Necessity site.

A replica of Fort Necessity is being built on the site.

Professor Hart is satisfied that the site is in the exact place where the fort was built. "I am willing to stake my reputation as an expert on American history on it," he said. "It has been a burning question among historians as to whether Fort Necessity was actually on the low marshy grounds or not," the professor said.

Hart, formerly of Sharon, Pa., was accompanied by Dr. Solon J. Buck, director of the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania.

The noted historian mentioned the running stream of water near the site as a necessity to the fort and that the openness of the country was in favor of the inhabitants. Cannon balls found in the ground indicate it was the center of a siege Hart said.

WILL DESIGN PAJAMA SUITS FOR LUNATICS

Gov't Aids in Valley Development

HARLINGEN, Jan. 8.—The Federal government has cooperated during the past year in the development of the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

During 1931, the government approved and started construction on several post offices in the Valley. The buildings at Brownsville and San Benito are under contract already. Others will be erected at Mission and Edinburg. The seven will cost approximately $1,000,000.

Funds also have been appropriated by the federal government for a citrus fruit by-product laboratory for the Valley, and also for a frost warning service both these services having been established. The government also expanded the work of the market news bureau in Brownsville.

During the past year, the Valley made its first shipment of citrus fruit in commercial quantity across the Atlantic and entered into competition with Florida for all the market of the country.

Scientifically Purer.

Something every smoker wants to know!

● Absolutely pure... that's what you expect in the things you eat and drink... and in the cigarettes you smoke.

"Chesterfields are as pure as the water you drink," a noted scientist writes. "There's no way to make a purer cigarette. Starting with tobaccos... the ripest, finest, purest leaf that grows is selected for Chesterfields. Mild to start with... Cross-Blending makes it milder still. Then it's wrapped in paper that is so pure it burns without any taste or odor.

The phrase "Scientifically Purer" is entirely justified. By our use of a highly scientific process which was worked out by Dr. Paul Gross, the Head Chemist of our Research Department, Chesterfield reaches a state of purity unmatched, to our knowledge, by any other cigarette.

In addition, scientists check every ingredient, every method. Even the factory air is washed, and changed every 4 1/2 minutes. More purity!

Notice, too, the clean, white, attractive package... moisture-proof. Chesterfields come to you as good and as pure as they're made. Good... they've got to be good! Change to Chesterfields and see.

WRAPPED IN DU PONT NO. 300 MOISTURE-PROOF CELLOPHANE. THE BEST AND MOST EXPENSIVE THAT'S MADE A WONDERFUL NEW RADIO PROGRAM!

Tonight... at 10:30... Chesterfield's Radio Program. Light a Chesterfield... lean back... and relax while Nat Shilkret's Orchestra and Alex Gray, soloist, charm away your cares. It's on the entire Columbia Network... broadcast from coast to coast... every night except Sunday. And the hour's 10:30 E. S. T.
