THREE KINDS OF LOVE

by KAY CLAVER STRAHAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Ann, Cecily and Mary-Frances Fenwick live with their grandparents. The sisters have been orphaned since childhood. The grandparents—known as "Rosalie" and "Grand"—have long since lost their wealth and the household is supported by Ann's and Cecily's earnings. For this reason, Ann, 28, and Philip Ecrovay, young lawyer, are still postponing their marriage, though they have been engaged 8 years.

Cecily, 22, is in love with Barry McKeel, an engineer, but when he proposes she refuses to name the wedding date because she cannot leave Ann with the financial responsibility of the home.

Mary-Frances, 15, and still in school, strikes up an acquaintance with Earl De Armount, stock company actor. She meets him secretly on several occasions. Mary-Frances has led him to believe she is 18 years old. He tries to persuade her to become his partner in a vaudeville act.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Ann did not need to listen; she only breathed a small, confused prayer to the gods of garage men that this particular knock in Phil's automobile might emanate from some source, any source, other than clogged piston rods. Phil's responses to that special species of knock were invariably, "He began by diagnosing the disease as fatal, since one mechanic named Jake Luca had left town, and went frantically on from there."

His procedure was to drive the car for a few hundred yards and stop it, and leap out, and open the hood, and peer despairingly into the insides of the thing, and with an air of suppressing much prophecy that this was the end. Usually, since there was nothing else to be done, he would get into the car again, and start it with difficulty, and go for a few hundred yards more before he leaped out and lifted the hood, and peered, and so on.

Cars, Ann had learned, suffering from this malady, are moody, hysterical things; they will knock like a woodpecker and then, once in a while, they will stop and refuse to go another step until, after a short rest, they will pick up with a spurt and stop knocking and pretend that nothing has ever been the matter with them.

If a garage is in sight they will recover completely—cars with diseased piston rods dread garages—until the place has been left miles behind. Then, worn out with the extra exertion of stimulating strength where there were only weakness and courage, they will break down for a time and refuse to budge. Ann knew her piston rods. But Phil was a proud man, and thrifty, and to drive a seemingly healthy car into a garage, and to subject himself, on his patient, to a charge of neurotization and four or five dollars, was a performance in which he would take no part. So they always flashed by the garages and broke down in some lonely spot on the highway. And then Phil would leap out, talking about Jake Luca, and open the hood and peer.

Stronger women than Ann have gone to pieces with less provocation than that afforded by piston rods. Conversation during calamity is heartless and footless, crippled and offensive. Ann stood, and watched the light of an oncoming automobile growing larger and larger. She found no encouragement in the fact of its approach. Another of Phil's conventions concerning piston rods was a refusal to ask for aid from other motorists. Jake Luca alone, in a world full of men, could repair piston rods, and Jake was leagues upon leagues away.

The lights grew larger still, and dangerous seeming, and Ann stepped out of the glare just as the car slowed and stopped, and a girl's voice called, "Hey, hey, Phil! Some more trouble!"

Phil had started the engine and had his car to its breast so that he could hear the knocks. Ann recoiled farther into the shadows. Letty stepped from the car, and crossed to Phil, and said, her childish voice raised high above the groans of the engine, "What is it, old dear? Piston rods again?"

Phil lifted his head, but he did not come back to a complete consciousness of the outside world—heartless, knockless world where piston rods were of secondary importance. A voice that he knew had greeted him, and he returned the greeting abstractedly.

"Hello, Letty," he said to Miss King, whose first name he was unsure of, could not really remember.

If one small cat slinks out of a bag, wisdom may attempt to capture. If dozens of sly black cats, loosed possibly on purpose and all at once, plunge forth to trip and skip and caracole into the night, confounding wisdom, courting and frolicking with folly, nothing much can be done about it.

Letty's next remark, addressed to Ann in the shadows, and made with one hand on Phil's arm, was, "Doesn't the poor darling have his fullest times with his old piston rods?"

Ann came forth and was introduced as Miss Fenwick to Miss King, and Miss King said politely, "Phil's told me a lot about you." Miss King's escort came along. His name was Mr. Smith—a nice easy name to remember, and he was glad to know everyone, or so he said. He disclaimed all knowledge of things mechanical, but offered to give Phil a tow, if Phil had a rope. Phil had no rope.

Letty said to Phil, "Say, listen, sweetheart-darling... Ann had retreated again to the shadows, so she might have been out of earshot; but Kenneth Smith was right there until he walked back to the sports car and climbed into it.

Phil said, "Never mind that, now, Letty," and she said, "Yes, but I want to tell you—"

Phil said, "Don't go, Ann. Stay here." And Ann kept right on going, and Letty kept hold of Phil's arm.

Kenneth said to Ann, "Some day, crush over there," as if he were in pain, and Ann said brightly, "Yes, it does seem to be."

Kenneth sighed; Ann did not. Kenneth offered, "She makes me sick, if I do say it. She used to be a swell woman, but since she's gone push on that sheik she's one wet snuff right. Can't see a heavy date; can't see but a couple dances after dinner; can't see a damn thing but sheiky and trailing him around. I'd feel, I'm bloated. I'm through; I'm not doing blood-bounding for a living. Not yet."

Ann said sweetly and with sympathy that she did not blame him in the least.

Kenneth opened the car door. "Won't you get in and sit down and wait?"

"Thank you," Ann accepted. "I'll get in and sit down," she sank into the wide depth of the seat, "but why wait?"

Kenneth said, after a moment, "I get you. I'd go in a hurry if his damn car wasn't busted down."

"It isn't," said Ann. "It's his damn" (from Ann's "stubbornness, the car would run well enough to get home if he'd run it instead of listening to it and looking at it. He'll have to, sooner or later. He has a knock in his engine—that's all. They will get home in good order, in time."

"Sure of it?"

"Positive. Listen to his engine. It will run."

"I'm on!" said Kenneth, and reached with a gesture of violence for the clutch, and he and Ann were off.

For a short time Ann gave herself over completely to the soothing, heart-easing luxury afforded by the absence of piston rods; but presently, when Kenneth had reiterated and told the world for the third time that he was through with, or off of, Letty King for life, she felt sorry for him and said that she hoped she hadn't made trouble for him, and that he was not going to be unhappy.

"Any time!" He said it twice, and added that Letty King gave him a pain in the neck, and invited Ann to call him Ken, or Kenny, or anything she liked but Mr. Smith.

He went on to say that he was accustomed to taking girls out for an evening and having them go cow-eyed over other men, writing notes and sending them by waiters, and that he had no intentions of accustoming himself to such activities from his girl friends. They could stand him up now, just once, after that he'd show them whether or not he was dizzy.

Ann repeated that she did not blame him.

Unexpectedly Kenneth preferred the suggestion that they park in a road they would reach in a minute, and take a turn or two at necking.

"One big evening!" Kenneth remarked.

Ann again was sorry.

"No, I didn't mean that," said Kenneth. "I don't go in much for necking myself. Oh, well, of course, I go in for it; but I don't get any kick out of it. Never have. Most girls do, though. That's all most girls care about. I just kind of thought it was a shame for you to have your evening wrecked. What a girl like you, so pretty and and all, can see in a wet snuff like that boy friend of Letty's, I don't know, if I do say it."

"I don't either," said Ann.

"He's a cold dish if ever there was one."

"I rather think so, too," said Ann.

"Letty gave me a bum steer then, as usual," he said. "She told me that you were engaged to him, and that he was trying to get out of it and couldn't. I thought she was lying all along, and after I saw you tonight I was certain she was. I'll tell the world you aren't hard to take, after Letty King. Yes, I was certain she was."

Ann was not the one to dispute with a certainty. "What a grand car you have," she said.

"She goes," he said carelessly. "If she won't, I have another that will. I go the same way with boys. Get a couple. One to run and one to keep in reserve in case of accidents or anything."

"How wonderful!" said Ann "always to have something in reserve in case of—accidents."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON THE FIRST DISCIPLES

Text: John 1:33-49. The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Jan. 10. The First Disciples, John 1:33-49.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of The Congregationalist.

The growth of Christianity in the world, particularly in the first three centuries after the crucifixion of Jesus when it advanced to that position of world strength in which it became the official religion of the Roman empire, is difficult to account for on a material ground. As a matter of fact, the advancement of Christianity to world power may have been at the expense of the simple religion of Jesus of Nazareth, and to the disadvantage of Christianity as a spiritual force working in the hearts of men. But the outward power could not have come without deep and wide foundations in inner thought and motive. The greatest stream can be traced to its sources in small springs, and the religion of the world, Christianity had its beginning in occasional and limited contacts.

Here in this first chapter of the Gospel of John the process is very simply yet very dramatically set before us. Men unacquainted with Jesus, who were afterwards to be in the inner circle of his disciples, discovered the richness and power of his life through personal contact.

Here we have two of these disciples standing with John, the forerunner, and as John sees Jesus in the distance he says to these two men, "Behold the Lamb of God." Immediately their interest was aroused. The two men followed Jesus, but were apparently hesi- tant to approach Him or to speak to Him. But Jesus, seeing them following, turned and asked them, "What seek ye?" They asked where he dwelt, and Jesus replied in the words that have become almost a watchword for a method of Christian evangelism. "Come and see." They went with Jesus to his dwelling place and stayed with him that day.

The two men who had heard John speak and who followed Jesus were fired immediately with the passion to bring other men into that wonderful experience that had befallen them. One of them was Andrew, and he thought immediately of his brother, Peter whom he brought to Jesus.

good things that we have found ourselves, that the fellowship of goodness has its growth.

Sunday Services at The Churches

HOLY ROSARY CHURCH

Mass today at 10 a. m. by Rev. M. Collins. The gospel read is taken from St. Luke 11:42-52. It tells of the Holy family, Jesus, Mary and Joseph going up to Jerusalem when Christ was twelve years old and how he was lost. Then the return to Nazareth where he as subject to his parents for thirty years. This is an ideal example for children and also for parents.

Liberalization of Libel Law Urged

DALLAS, Jan. 9. — Liberalization of the Texas libel law was urged here today by A. G. Mayse, publisher of the Park Morning News, at a meeting of the program committee of the Texas Press association.

The proposals will be discussed at the annual convention of the association at Mineral Wells in June and if adopted, efforts will be made to obtain legislative changes in the statute.

Mayse is chairman of the committee. The entire committee was present as follows: Luther Watson, Nolan County News; Walter Murray, Mineral Wells Index and other papers; Henry Reese, Gonzales Inquirer; Lowry Martin, Corsicana Sun, and R. L. Scott, DeLeon Free Press.

D RAILROAD LAND GRANTS READJUSTED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Sixty of the land grants to railroad companies, through which the Federal government gave away an empire transportation facilities might developed, have finally been adjusted and closed, says a report from general land office.

Of the remaining 12 grants are awaiting listing and selection of land by the companies certain isolated areas. There are "wild areas" yet to be surveyed and when this is done the task immediately adjusting these grants, given to the Secretary of the Interior 44 years ago, will be completed.

The 72 recipients of grants already received 132,000,000 acres of equivalent to 200,000 square miles, an area equal to the Atlantic from North Carolina to Nova Scotia. There remain to be assigned holders of these land grants 600 acres, or slightly less than square miles.

89 original grants made during the era of development between 1817 and 1871, 17 were forfeited because of failure to construct the contemplated lines. The immense amount of unsurveyed and unadjusted lands and unsettled claims along these lines prevented readjustments.

The task of surveying the western land requires the location of section and quarter sections and the proper mapping and delineation of records with relation to every fragment of land, and stupendous task already has been through two generations.

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

NEW YEAR GREETING:—The Lord bless thee, and keep thee. The Lord make His face shine upon thee, and be gracious unto thee. The Lord lift up His countenance upon thee, and give thee peace.—Numbers 6:24-26.

THE POULTRY BUSINESS.

The Breckenridge American points out pertinently that the lack of adjustment between supply and demand is responsible for the lack of a permanent year-round local market for Stephens county produce. The egg and poultry business is pointed to as an example of this condition. Farmers and poultry raisers in Stephens county, the newspaper says, are unable to market their produce with local dealers in an orderly manner simply because the poultry raisers have not equipped themselves to guarantee their market a supply consistent with their demands and dependable season to season. The grocerymen, who would prefer to purchase their supplies from local growers, are by necessity required to seek a source of supply upon which they can depend and having obtained such connections are loath to desert them in times of local flush production for fear of being cut off from the dependable source later on. Thus Stephens county money is being spent with produce concerns outside of Stephens county and the local circulation is reduced in that proportion.

Eastland county is in a similar position. Some years ago a poultry and egg cooperative was organized in this county and flourished for a time with the prospect of not only preventing such a condition of which Breckenridge complains but increasing the production of eggs and poultry in the district affected to a point where a large surplus of eggs and poultry products could be shipped out of the county, thus reversing the condition which is found harmful. The cooperative, for some reasons—primarily the lack of the very factor that the name suggests—declined, lingered and died. In its wake it left a burden in the shape of large investments in an accelerated industry. The poultry business was found to be more involved and requiring more specialization than at first realized. The prosperity of certain sections of California where great enterprises had been built up was an alluring picture held before the prospective poultrymen of this section and they entered into the plan with enthusiasm and without due respect for the work and thought that would be required. Poultry was regarded largely in the nature of a get-rich-quick scheme, and all that was necessary was to enlist a large number of farmers and others whose previous experience with hens was confined to the flock of hybrids and low grade strains clucking about the farm yard, and to select some high-sounding title like "The Egg Basket of Texas." That accomplished, and a few rods of wire fence run about a shimmery patch, and the business would blossom into a veritable gold mine.

But the lessons of experience have called to our attention the great amount of promotional and development work that preceded California's prosperous industry. We have seen that the start we made should have been less ambitious and more thorough. The flare-up of interest left disgust in its wake and the once alluring plan subsided like a bloated balloon. Poultry, like any other industry, requires a tremendous amount of work and thinking.

This county is still ideally suited to the business. Pushed along more conservative and careful lines the business in time would develop into a great asset. Depression has struck it like it has struck other business but depression will not last forever. The success of the Cisco Livestock Marketing association is convincing proof that cooperative enterprises, if conducted sanely, can succeed. There is a similar opportunity for the poultry raiser now.

IS THERE A MONOPOLY IN THE NATURAL GAS FIELD?

This is pertinent to the issues which have been raised in Texas courts and other agencies of government: Asking permission to take gas from their wells for the purpose of extracting the gasoline and using the residue in the manufacture of carbon black, three owners of wells in the West Panhandle field told the Texas railroad commission that five companies operating in the area had obtained a monopoly on the available market. They alleged that 80 per cent of the gas reserves of the field are controlled by these companies which have constructed and are now operating gas pipe lines from the fields to many consumers in cities in the Middle West. An early hearing was promised by the commission and Attorney General James V. Alfred has sent one of his assistants to the Panhandle to investigate the gas situation there. Things are happening every day in Texas or elsewhere. They are happening in and out of the courts of the Commonwealth. Texas has natural resources which are staggering to the mind. They are being rapidly depleted. Allegations of monopolistic control are uppermost in the minds of the people.

Now where do we go from here? Publicity, intelligent and non-discriminating publicity, should be the thing. If a campaign of real education is necessary then the signs of the times are that the campaign is on the way.

A LEADER IS ONE WHO LEADS
What is a "business leader"? The term is widely used—sometimes loosely. In opportune times, the "leaders of business" are extolled in tones that border on adulation. In times of stress they are sternly called upon to set things right or yield their scepters. But who are the "leaders of business?" Generally the expression is employed in such a way that the ordinary reader or hearer feels it has no application to him. Usually it denotes the one person at the apex of a far-reaching commercial, industrial or financial organization. Too

PRISON SYSTEM BENDS TO NEW ACREAGE LAW

By RAYMOND BROOKS
AUSTIN, Jan. 9. — The Texas prison system has bent its knee to the cotton acreage law, and surrendered one-third of its most productive money crop.

The system last year planted 20,315 acres of cotton. It has made plans to obey the acreage reduction law by this year turning over an aggregate of 4,900 acres in its various tracts, and planting it in something else.

On about 12,000 acres this year of the best cotton land it will strive to grow as much cotton as possible; and on the thousands of acres land year in feed and food crops, and the part diverted from cotton, it will grow large quantities of cane, peas, peanuts, potatoes, cabbage and all sorts of feed and food crops.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE

That business concerns that are selling something of everything but not enough of anything should turn their attention to better advertising. The right kind of advertising stimulates business.

Truthful, persistent advertising gets the attention of the readers and sets their thoughts moving in the direction of the merchandise or service advertised in a way that brings results.

Advertising holds—customers makes new ones, and turns fussy customers into satisfied customers. The modern business concern knows that good advertising is worthy of the thoughts of all thoughtful people and they read them item by item, because they show the way to greater saving.

People realize that the business concerns whose names they find in the advertising columns have left nothing undone to carry in stock the finest merchandise that is possible to be produced for the price asked.

The scheme of life is so arranged that some have merchandise and need cash while others have cash and need merchandise. Advertising provides the opportunity for them to meet.

The motive power of any business is truthful advertising. It is the great service that brings together the buyer and seller for their mutual benefit.

Advertising cultivates the habit of steady saving and has started millions of people on the road to financial freedom.

RE MALADY KILLS TWO ON PACIFIC COAST

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 9.—Botulism that rate malady which usually afflicts the Pacific Coast, has claimed two more victims, increasing Oregon's death toll within the last seven years. The most recent case death was a result of eating salted salmon—the first instance in this state where canned were not at fault.

William Levin, state board of health, who definitely stated the deaths to botulism, the germ in the stomach of salmon. It also died after eating salmon. According to authorities, the disease has two deadly foes—heat and cold. Every careful housewife combats the malady by thoroughly washing every bit of food. Another way is never to taste of food. It has a definite and odor. The sure prevention, however, according to Dr. Levin's health. Botulism bacilli will in boiling water—212 degrees Fahrenheit—but will die at 240 degrees Fahrenheit.

Every family has a "debt of blood" and is armed to defend itself. Even if the authorities punish a person for a criminal act against a neighbor the neighbor's family still will feel themselves bound to inflict a personal revenge. Sukru discovered that the vendetta habit was equally strong in other frontier provinces. One of the government's first steps to eradicate these customs has been to transfer into European Thrace a whole nomad tribe from the eastern provinces. The tribe, four thousand strong, traveled across the Black Sea, with their flocks and chattels, to their new home.

Your Electric Rate Is Always Going Down

Your electric rate has been going down—never up! Commodity prices go down, then up... and only recently have reached a point approximately on a level with 1913 prices. On the other hand, the unit cost of electric service has declined steadily, and on the West Texas Utilities company properties has been LOWERED SIXTY PERCENT during the last nine years, with the average rate to residential service alone showing a REDUCTION OF FIFTY-FOUR PERCENT! Commodity prices must decrease fifty-four percent even below present low prices—a long, long way to go—before they approach the path blazed by electric rate reductions.

The cost of electric service today is determined more by the customers who use it than by the company which produces it. As more power is used, over more hours of the day, its unit cost becomes less. Thus, the modern rate schedule is designed to share with you immediately the benefit of the economies resulting from a greater use of electricity.

The rate per kilowatt-hour declines as more kilowatt-hours of electricity are used. Additional uses of service reduce the average price per unit, to where now it is possible to cook with it economically. That is, the average customer, using fifty kilowatt-hours per month, now can increase his use of service to THREE TIMES that amount for only 10 cents a day additional cost on his electric service bill—or for the cost of only one medium-priced cigar a day!

Today's customer in the larger towns, living in the average-sized home and using fifty kilowatt-hours a month, pays a rate of only 7.8 cents per kilowatt-hour. Smaller towns cost more to serve, yet the highest rate for this same amount of service, in any town served by the West Texas Utilities Company, amounts to only 1.3 cents more. Customers having major appliances (ranges and refrigerators) earn a rate of approximately one-half that amount for all service used in the home—which includes lighting. The average rate for all residential service sold at this time is only 6.3 cents per kilowatt-hour, as compared with 13.7 cents in 1922!

Thus, automatically and instantly, electricity becomes cheaper every time you increase its use. Think of the many advantageous services by which you can benefit—without a material increase in your electric bill—through a more active use of your lighting and your appliances, or through the addition of major appliances!

The Humble Bridge club met Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. W. C. Daniel at her home in Humboldt. In the games, Mrs. M. L. McGannon won the high score, and Mrs. W. W. Wallace received the low score prize. The hostess served a lovely salad course at the close of the game hour.
Members and guests present were Mesdames L. C. Moore, Allan Wood, Lloyd Surles, W. J. Armstrong, P. D. McMahon, M. L. McGannon, J. R. Henderson, W. K. Essen, I. J. Henderson, W. W. Wallace, Pete Booth, J. R. Slaughter, and the hostess, Mrs. McDaniel.
CLUB MEETS WITH MRS. LITTLETON
Mrs. Vance Littleton was hostess Wednesday afternoon at the final meeting of a newly organized bridge club at her home on West Fourteenth street. The club is to meet every two weeks, and will be given a name at the next meeting. In the games, Mr. K. N. Greer won high score, and Mrs. L. P. Jones received the cut prize. An attractive color scheme of pink and green was used in the dainty salad course served at the conclusion of the games.
Those present were Mesdames A. L. Crowover, K. N. Greer, Lillian Greer, T. P. Jones, J. B. Pratt, W. L. Thompson, Miss Frances Nichols, and the hostess.
CO-HOSTESS AT ARTS CLUB MEETING
Mrs. L. J. Leech and Mrs. Lee Smith were co-hostesses Thursday afternoon at the First Industrial Arts club meeting at the home of the former on West Fourteenth street. The subject of the program was "Nature's Wonders", and interesting responses to roll call were on this topic. Mrs. H. H. Davis was leader of the program. Detailed discussions of "Carlsbad Cavern," by Mrs. T. C. Williams, and "Niagara Falls," by Mrs. W. W. Wallace proved intensely interesting. Mrs. J. D. Barker led in a parliamentary drill at the close of the business period. Tones of red and green were artistically combined in a colorful refreshment course, consisting of baked apples, cake, and coffee, served during a social hour.

Those attending were Mesdames E. H. Varnell, Pratt, J. Stuart Pearce, J. D. Barker, H. G. Bailey, H. A. Bible, N. A. Brown, P. J. Connelly, R. N. Clark, H. H. Davi, R. E. Grantham, B. E. Morehart, Rex Moore, A. J. Olson, E. J. Poe, W. W. Wallace, T. C. Williams, and Sherman Roberts.
ACCOUNT OF WEDDING GIVEN
The following account of the marriage of Mrs. Marene Barnes of Marshall, Texas, was married to Mr. Arthur H. Johnson of Eastland Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock in the Susan Steele room of the First Methodist church, the pastor, Dr. George W. Shearer reading the impressive ring ceremony.
The vows were taken before an approved altar banked with ferns and tall floor baskets of mammoth chrysanthemums. A large mirror in the background reflected the beautiful setting, and the morning sunshine streaming through the delicate tints of the triple church windows, before which stood an altar table holding a vase of sweetheart roses and lighted pink tapers.
The bride, who entered with the groom, was charming in a spring cope ensemble in the new sapphire shade with accessories in black. She wore a corsage of sweet peas, lilies of the valley and fern. The groom wore a genteel business suit.
Before the ceremony Miss Wilda Drago's violin choir gave Caprice Veronique by Kreisley, Lohengrin's wedding march as the processional and Love's Old Sweet Song during the ceremony. Mendel's wedding march was played as the recessional.
Those in attendance were Miss Alice Johnson and Mrs. J. B. Hunter of Cisco, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. McCarty and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Web of Albany, and the members of the Methodist church choir, with whom the bride has been intimately associated during numerous visits with her sister, Mrs. H. O. Satterwhite. Mrs. Johnson possesses a most charming lyric soprano voice, and has been heard on many occasions to the pleasure and delight of Eastland audiences. Not only for her musical ability is she appreciated, but for her most winsome and pleasing personality. Before Mr. Johnson's appointment as postmaster of Eastland he was a successful business man of Cisco and Eastland, where he numbers his friends by the score.
Mr. and Mrs. Johnson will be at home at 610 South Seaman street, after a short motor trip to New Mexico and points in West Texas.

WEST WARD P. T. A. HAS INTERESTING SESSION
At a meeting of the West Ward Parent Teachers' association Friday afternoon at the school building, a special plea for donations for the milk fund was made. Everyone may help in this beneficial project by dropping pennies in the milk bottles placed in the downtown stores and offices. Mere donations are urged since the money collected in the bottles this year has not been enough to cover expenses.
Mrs. P. R. Warwick presided over the business session in the absence of the president, Mrs. Homer Slicker. Mrs. A. E. Jamison read a paper by Mrs. A. J. Olson on "Trust" and Mrs. John Shorter talked on "Do I Cause My Child to be Nervous, Disobey, or Delinquent?" Puppets from Mrs. Johnston room acted out a story from their text book. There were about forty members in attendance.
