A QUICK READ OF THE NEWS

Drunken elephants kill four

Wild elephants strolled into a village in India, broke into a cluster of thatched huts, guzzled rice beer fermenting in casks and then tore the village apart in a drunken rampage, trampling four people to death and injuring six, a wildlife official said.

The herd of 15 elephants descended on the village of Prajapatibosti, 180 miles east of Gauhati, state capital of northeastern Assam, elephant expert Kushal Konwar Sharma said.

The animals trampled rice paddies and more huts before leaving the area.

At least 100 people have been killed in elephant attacks during the past year in Assam, where 5,000 wild elephants are estimated to be living.

Human encroachment and a shrinking forest habitat have been the main causes of the problem, Sharma said.

Seeing-eye goats allowed

The new community center in Waukee, Iowa, can legally hold up to 100 people and as many seeing-eye dogs and nanny goats as needed.

Goats? The wording was added by Economic Development Director Joshua Smith.

"I was watching the Discovery Channel and saw a program that said in areas where there is a seeing-eye dog shortage, they use nanny goats to aid the blind," Smith said. "I didn't want to exclude anyone."

Hacky Sacking on Plaza OK'd

The city of Santa Fe's Public Safety Committee has voted 4-3 to recommend allowing the Hacky Sack to be played with on the town Plaza.

The Hacky Sack is a golfball-sized bean bag that kids kick around like a midget soccer ball.

"Pretty soon, we're going to have a three-ring circus down there," said Robert Gurule, one of the three opposed voters.

City Councilor Peso Chávez, chairman of the committee, cast the tie-breaking vote.

During the public hearing, teen-agers extolled the virtues of the sack. One visitor from England, Nigel Thompson, called it a boon to tourism.

Mules thrash outmanned Roosevelt 62-0

By KEVIN WILSON
Journal Sports Writer

Two minutes into Friday's game, the Lubbock Roosevelt Eagles were punting from their own end zone. Three minutes in, they were behind 7-0. Five minutes in, the deficit was 14-0.

The other 43 minutes didn't go too well for them, either.

The Muleshoe Mules had 421 yards of offense, including 348 yards rushing, en route to a 62-0 thrashing of Roosevelt.

The win puts the Mules at 6-2 on the season, 2-1 in district. The Eagles now drop to 0-8 on the season.

"They're a struggling program," Mules head coach David Wood said of the Eagles. "They've got a new coach; I've been there."

Paired with last week's loss to Friona, the Eagles have now been outscored 106-0 in their last two games.

Muleshoe jumped out to a quick 7-0 lead on a 25-yard run from Danny Ramirez and a boot by Ryan Hodge. The Mules took only three plays and 52 seconds to put up their first score.

Only two minutes later, Ramirez answered the call again, taking the first play of the drive 23 yards for another score. Hodge's extra point made the score 14-0.

The Eagles appeared to have a glimmer of hope when their next punt was fumbled away by the Mules. Unfortunately, Roosevelt could manage only a 4-yard run and a 5-yard penalty before punting again.

With the punt down at their 32, the Mules took three running plays, one passing play and 1:12 to make the score 21-0. Brandon Broyles caught a five-yarder from quarterback James Barrett.

The Mules ended the first quarter with respectable game totals: 103 yards rushing for two scores and 28 yards passing with another touchdown.

Meanwhile, Roosevelt had minus 9 yards running, minus 2 yards passing and two illegal procedure penalties.

The second quarter didn't help the Eagles' predicament. Another punt by Roosevelt gave the Mules the ball at the 50.

Darrell Lewis started the Mules' fourth drive with a nine-yard run and Barrett threw his final pass of the game, a 26-yard completion to T-Bird Cox, who finished the game as quarterback.

Three plays later, Chris Vela ran the ball in from 10 yards, wrapping up a five-play drive.

The Eagles' next possession showed why they were already down 28-0. An incomplete pass and two illegal procedure penalties preceded an interception by Lewis. Lewis took the interception 15 yards for touchdown No. 5.

The Eagles got the ball right back but still could do nothing. Three plays and three yards later, the Eagles were punting for their sixth time.

Shortly afterward, the Mules scored their sixth touchdown, a 47-yard run from Lewis.

Two minutes later, the defense got on the scoreboard again. The Mules forced a fumble by Eagle quarterback Derek Lawless. John McClanahan fell on the fumble for the Mules' final score of the half.

After the first half, the Eagles really found themselves overmatched. They had gained 1 yard on offense, but lost 40 yards on penalties.

The Mules received the ball to start the second half and started to work on the clock. A 19-yard reception by Tyson Purdy capped a 5:11 drive.

Judd Glover, who had two interceptions against Shallwater, ended the scoring on a 26-yard run.

The Eagles recovered another punt fumbled by the Mules, but they could manage only 5 yards on their last drive. The two fumble recoveries were the only first downs the Eagles got.

"We just knew we had to come out and be focused," Wood said. "We didn't want to be sloppy, and we accomplished our goal."

The goal for the Eagles may just be a win — or a score, for that matter. The Eagles have not scored a touchdown since the second week of the season.

"Muleshoe's doing a great job," Eagles head coach Butch Phillips said. "They've got those kids believing in themselves."

The Eagles ended the game with minus 5 yards rushing, 8 yards passing and 45 yards lost on penalties.

The Mules have outscored their opponents 100-20 in district play. They will look to improve on that margin Friday against Friona.

Ebony Russ and Dave Jenkins discuss her duties as a part-time helper in his office.

Ebony Russ: I don't see racism here

By KELLY ADAMS
Journal Correspondent

Have high school students finally figured out that human beings can be any race, religion or color?

According to Ebony Russ, Muleshoe High School homecoming queen, the answer in her school is "yes."

"I have a lot of friends, and I never feel uncomfortable around them and in school," Russ said.

She said Muleshoe students think that friends are friends, no matter what their color; what they worry about is will their friends be there through thick and thin and through happy and sad times.

Dave Jenkins, principal at Muleshoe High, cites one big reason for the school's success and the students' getting along with other students: the district's parents.

"Parents are very, very supportive of their children and the school. The school is the focal point in Muleshoe," Jenkins said. "(And) race has never been an issue in Muleshoe since I started six years ago."

"There is only one thing I'm prejudiced against, and that is a poor attitude," he added.

A sizable Hispanic population makes Muleshoe more diverse than some small towns. The black population is very small.

Russ brought up a letter to the editor published in the Oct. 3 issue of the Bailey County Journal, and said she disagreed with the writer's allegation.

In the letter, Angela Reyes of Farwell suggested that a photo of Russ and her homecoming attendants appeared on Page 2 of the paper because of Russ' race.

Ronn Smith, the newspaper's managing editor, said there was a simple explanation for why the photo ran where it did.

"I didn't become aware that we had that photo until sometime around 2 o'clock Saturday morning, when most people were home in bed," he said. "I didn't want

Hope Chest to aid at Christmas

JOURNAL STAFF REPORT

A new group of Muleshoe volunteers is planning to be sure more local families have a memorable Christmas this year, and they need help to do it.

The group, allied with the Bailey County Ministerial Alliance, has christened itself the Hope Chest of Muleshoe. It won't be active just during the holiday season, but has selected the name "Hope for Christmas" to emphasize its yuletide project.

Cindy Coberley, one of the volunteers, said Friday that the group hopes especially to help families that may have fallen through cracks in the system.

She said the group intends to work with existing charities, such as the Angel Tree project, to coordinate efforts and try to make sure everyone is reached while avoiding duplications.

The group will try to supply food, gifts and even medications, Coberley said. To do that, they will need community donations, which can take the form of memorials or honorariums if the donors desire.

She emphasized that they are seeking referrals from anyone, and the group's screening committee will consider anyone. They will help with anonymous gifts if anyone wants to help a neighbor in that way, she said.

Referrals may be mailed to the group at P.O. Box 175, Muleshoe, called in at 272-5561 (Kay Swint) during the day, or called in after hours to Kay Mardis at 272-3349 or Chance and Cindy Coberley at 272-3250.

Growth hormone may be tied to weight gain

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL

HOUSTON — Hormonal differences that might help explain why African-American girls grow faster and taller than their Caucasian counterparts also could be stacking the metabolic deck in favor of weight gain in adulthood.

Researchers at the USDA/ARS Children's Nutrition Research Center at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston report that African-American girls have higher blood levels of the biologically active form of a potent growth hormone known as "free IGF-1" than their Caucasian peers.

The study, the first to report ethnic differences in involving Insulin-like Growth Factor-1, is reported in the September issue of the Journal of Pediatrics.

"This raises the question of whether high levels of free IGF-1 are accelerating growth in African-American children and whether these higher levels could be a factor in excessive weight gain if they persist once growth is complete," said Dr. William Wong, a Baylor professor of pediatrics.

The study was designed to gain insight into the reason African-American girls are more sexually mature, taller and heavier, with both more lean muscle mass and more body fat than their Caucasian counterparts.

"In addition to the higher levels of free IGF-1, the African-American girls had corresponding lower blood levels of two specific binding proteins. These binding proteins tie up free IGF-1 in the bloodstream, making it inactive," he said.

According to Wong, the liver's production of one of these binding proteins is inhibited by insulin.

"These results suggest that insulin might be involved in how much free IGF-1 is in circulation," he said. This connection is significant because non-diabetic, healthy, normal-weight African-American children also have higher blood insulin levels. Higher blood insulin levels are thought to predispose individuals to insulin-resistant Type 2 diabetes. However, even if diabetes does not develop, high insulin levels might contribute to the development of high cholesterol levels, weight problems and hypertension — all more prevalent among African-Americans.

"If we can unravel the molecular and genetic mechanisms responsible for ethnic differences in free IGF-1 levels, we might also discover factors that predispose African-Americans to high insulin levels and related weight and cardiovascular problems," Wong said.

Y2K: The Winter of Our Disconnect

What will happen in January 2000? How will the world function, or, better yet — how won't it function? Robert X. Cringely, host of the widely acclaimed Triumph of the Nerds and Nerds 2.0.1: A Brief History of the Internet, dissects, decodes, and de-bugs the Y2K dilemma in Y2K: The Winter of Our Disconnect.

In the one-hour program, Cringely's car breaks down near a small, rural town called Pleasantville, which becomes the backdrop for his explanation of how Y2K originated and how everyday people will deal with its repercussions. All those interviewed share a similar outlook concerning the Y2K threat — one should be as prepared as possible...but also flexible. Cringely says, "The most important thing to remember is that life will continue. In a Y2K crisis, your grocery will always accept your check."

Cringely ponders how the Y2K problem began, noting that the first computer programmers worked within "memory constrained environments." The Y2K crisis evolved because they needed to shorten their data as much as possible — instead of four digits, they used two. Now "99" will become "00" and computers will believe it is 1900.

Y2K: The Winter of Our Disconnect will be broadcast Tuesday, October 26th at 8:00 p.m. The program repeats Saturday, October 30th at 10:00 p.m. and Sunday, October 31st at 1:00 a.m.

The Children are Watching

Hosted by Emmy Award-winning actress Jane Seymour, The Children are Watching explores how parents — by their example — influence their children's behavior and life choices.

The Children are Watching focuses on four families, all with teenagers, and exposes the unintentional but destructive impact that the parents' negative examples have on their children. This eye-opening special dramatically illustrates to parents that they teach more with their actions than with their words.

For example, a mother with a history of becoming involved in destructive relationships unknowingly influences her 17-year-old daughter, who continues to forgive her lying, drug-abusing boyfriend. In another family, an absentee father struggles with the rage-filled teenage son he abandoned years ago. In another, a mother with repressed anger "passes on" angry and violent tendencies to her 14-year-old daughter. And in another, a father with a passion for fast cars unwittingly influences his 16-year-old son with his own aggressive and dangerous driving habits.

"It is imperative that parents realize the direct connection between their behavior and the kind of people their kids grow up to be," asserts Shapiro. "This special is for any parent who has ever asked, 'Why does my child act like this, and what can I do about it?'"

The Children are Watching can be seen Tuesday, October 26th at 11:00 p.m. on KENW-TV.

Jim Hartline, site manager of the Muleshoe Housing Authority since its inception, shows off the award he won recently as best site manager in the state.

Hartline wins statewide award

JOURNAL STAFF REPORT

Jim Hartline, site manager of the Muleshoe Housing Authority since its inception in 1978, has been named site manager of the year for the state of Texas.

He oversees 72 units of farm labor housing and 52 units at the senior citizen project in Muleshoe.

Hartline was nominated by the local housing authority's board of directors, secretary Beatrice Garcia, and Lance Smith, housing supervisor for the Lubbock district.

This award was based on satisfactory curb appeal of the units, how well maintained they are, tenant satisfaction and the results of inspections conducted by Rural Development, formerly known as the Farmers Home Administration. The agency is a branch of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The award was given at a training session and banquet Oct. 12-15 in Austin.

Site managers attend classes four times a year, and for about 10 years Hartline taught those classes around the state.

He and his wife, Shirley, have three sons, Mark and James of Littlefield and Bruce of Muleshoe. His granddaughter, Natalie Leal, lives with the Hartlines.

Researchers want corn to act more like sugar cane

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL
WESLACO, Texas — Scientists at the University of Wisconsin have been talking with scientists in South Texas about a sugar cane characteristic they'd like to see in corn.

Dr. Erik Mirkov, a virologist and microbiologist at the Texas A&M Agricultural Research and Extension Center at Weslaco, says certain sugar cane varieties grown in the Lower Rio Grande Valley support bacteria that actually take up nitrogen from the air and convert it to a form the cane can use for growth.

The Wisconsin scientists would like to transfer that ability to corn via biotechnology; they've been visiting with Mirkov in Weslaco to discuss the possibilities.

"What they'll have to do," said Mirkov, "is identify the gene, or complex of genes, in sugar cane that allows this bacteria to grow, then clone those genes and transfer them to corn so that corn can support the bacteria."

Based on his knowledge of sugar cane and genetic research, Mirkov thinks their chances of making the transfer are good. But how long such a project would take depends on the number of genes involved in the phenomenon, he said.

"If it's not a simple gene, meaning one or two genes, but many genes that are involved, it could take a lot of time and money to pull this off," Mirkov said.

But because corn is such a huge crop in the United States and so much money is spent annually on fertilizers for growth, the savings to growers could be staggering if corn could be made to supply its own fertilizer, or any part of it.

Dr. Bob Wiedendfeld, a soils and fertility scientist at the A&M center in Weslaco, said, "If this could be accomplished, it would be a major feat, dramatically affecting farm economics and environmental impact.

"Nitrogen fertilizer is a significant input, and it comes from oil. Use efficiency of applied nitrogen is poor, contaminating runoff and groundwater."

While the project is only in the talking stages, Mirkov says Rio Grande Valley agriculture also could benefit if the University of Wisconsin is funded for this project.

Since the northern scientists are experts on corn, not sugar cane, some of the collaborative work could be done at the Weslaco research facilities.

And the resulting science could mean economic benefits not just for corn growers across the country and the world, but for sugar cane growers as well.

"Certainly corn growers here could benefit if corn were improved in this way," Mirkov said, "but there's also the benefits that could arise from doing this type of work. Anytime you're doing basic scientific research, you never know what the benefits will be from the applied science that's developed."

Mirkov said that by learning the details of how the bacteria takes up nitrogen, how it converts it, and how sugar cane is able to use it for growth could lead to ways of increasing sugar cane's natural intake of nitrogen. That could reduce or potentially eliminate a grower's use of fertilizer, helping both the farmer's bottom line and the environment.

Health care is today's biggest military issue

During the past year I have visited our troops in the Balkans and toured every military installation in Texas. These visits provided marvelous snapshots of our armed forces today and the many challenges they face. At each stop I met our soldiers, sailors, airmen and their leaders.

The message was loud and clear: Health care for them and their families was at the top of their list of concerns.

The military health-care benefit is no longer much of a benefit. Our men and women in uniform, and their families, expressed valid complaints about access to care, unpaid bills, inadequate provider networks and difficulties with claims. Veterans are confronted with many of the same problems.

About 3.4 million American veterans depend on the Veterans Administration for medical care. This year the Senate has set aside $20 billion in funding for the VA, an increase of $1 billion over the president's budget request.

The additional funding will help the Veterans Health Administration address some recent challenges, such as a high incidence of hepatitis C among veterans, as well as long-term and end-of-life care. This increase also will provide additional funding for mental health services and prescription drugs.

CAPITOL COMMENT

U.S. SENATOR

There's more we can do for those still serving, too.

We have some wonderful young people serving in the armed forces. They are very patriotic and ask very little of us in return. After listening to their concerns, I introduced an amendment to next year's military spending bill that will upgrade the military health-care system and ensure that America's military personnel get the care they need.

I am pleased that the final bill approved by Congress last month addresses all the issues. It will go a long way toward fixing the problem and improving benefits under the TRICARE program. The changes include:

- Reducing claims processing time and providing incentives for electronic processing;
- Improving TRICARE management and eliminating red tape;
- Authorizing reimbursement at higher rates where required to attract and retain qualified doctors;
- Allowing reimbursements from third-party payers to military hospitals, based on reasonable charges, to allow the military to recoup their costs.

A little context for the concerns these changes address: Those who have served and are now retired were promised quality health care. At the same time, the military has downsized. While hospitals and clinics have closed, the number of personnel and veterans that rely on the system has remained fairly constant.

In addition, our armed forces today have more married service members with families than ever before.

At a recent conference on military health care, Gen. Dennis Reimer, the former chief of staff of the Army, provided a soldier's perspective on how important health care is to those who serve.

He said, "This is about readiness and this is about quality of life linked together. We must ensure that we provide those young men and women who sacrifice and serve our country so well, and ask for so very little, the quality medical care that is the top priority for them... We must help them or else we're not going to be able to recruit this high-quality force."

There is no single solution or quick fix to this problem, but we must begin now to ensure that we honor our commitments. This is a critical issue to recruiting and retaining qualified people in the military — which is, in turn, critical to the security of our country.

Food shortage isn't a matter of supply—it's politics

Should it strike us farmers as odd that from 1995 to 1998 an estimated 250,000 people died of starvation in North Korea?

I'm trying to think if I had one hungry day. How many times did I scrape half my supper into the dog bowl? Don't we always cook a little more than we know we're going to eat?

Restaurants commonly serve big portions. They bring out a nice little loaf of bread on a cutting board complete with a serrated knife. We eat one piece. What happens to the rest?

Well, I'm getting off the track. There's no point in kicking ourselves. If any of us had eaten one less meal a day, it wouldn't have fed a single starving Korean. That's always been a big flaw in the animal rights-vegetarian's reasoning, i.e. that if we fed less grain to livestock, somehow we'd be able to give it to starving people.

BAXTER BLACK

ON THE EDGE OF COMMON SENSE

The people aren't starving because we can't grow enough grain. They're starving because they are over there and the grain is over here.

Of course this isn't the first famine we have witnessed on television. In the 1980s, we watched starving Ethiopians during the terrible East African drought. We've seen Russia and India and the Chinese all struggle through famines. The poor of the Third World often seem to live from one meal to the next.

But back to basics. We have death by starvation on our planet at a time when food production is a virtual cornucopia, when transportation can lay uncountable tons of commodities anywhere in the world within days, and when there are no worldwide conflicts that can close shipping lanes or shoot planes out of the sky.

So how can starvation exist in our modern world?

The explanation given for North Korea's famine has been variously blamed on natural disasters, the collapse of their socialist economy, and their government's use of available money for weapons and luxuries for its elite.

In other words, politics and pride, greed and corruption. It's such an old story — the level of incompetence or avarice of those we put in charge, from Herod to Kim Jong II.

Sometimes I hear people comment, "It doesn't matter who I vote for, they're all the same." They aren't. It matters.

Had North Korea had different leaders, perhaps the gravediggers wouldn't have been near as busy. Of course, the corpses were light; starvation first takes the very young and the very old.

4-H working to mold tomorrow's leaders

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL
4-H is the Cooperative Extension System's non-formal educational program for young people.

4-H programs reach more than 6.5 million young people across the United States. The program combines the cooperative efforts of youth, volunteer leaders and state land-grant universities with federal, state and local governments and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The mission of the Cooperative Extension Service in conducting 4-H programs is to assist youth in acquiring knowledge, developing life skills and forming attitudes that will enable boys and girls to become self-directing, productive and contributing members of society.

The 4-H roots are deeply planted. The first 4-H emblem was a three-leaf clover, introduced sometime around 1907 to 1908. From the beginning, the three H's signified head, heart and hands.

In 1911, at a meeting of club leaders in Washington, the present 4-H design was adopted by approving the fourth H, health.

Otis Hall, state leader of Kansas, was responsible for the original working of the 4-H pledge. At the first National 4-H Club Camp in 1927, the state leaders officially adopted the pledge, which read:

"I pledge my head to clearer thinking
My heart to greater loyalty
My hands to larger service and my health to better living
For my club, my community,
my country."

The addition of the words "my world" to the last line in 1973 has been the only change to the pledge in more than 70 years.

Thirty Years Later, Some Things Have Changed, But . . .

I am not sure I recognize our house anymore. For the present, I've given up walking through the house in the dark because I'm still not sure what my toes may find in new locations on the floor! You see, we are redecorating.

I know that now. I thought we were just painting, which would mean taking things down, painting, and then putting things back up more or less in the same places.

Focus On Faith
Curtis Shelburne

No, we're redecorating. And, trust me, that's much different.

But I like it. I really do. I'm still not quite sure where I am living and what exactly has happened to what was once familiar, but I have decided that, though the old was okay by me, I very much like the new. I'll like it even more, and, I think, even better than the old, when it starts feeling more like mine, and that just takes time. Worn slippers are always better than new ones, you know.

But change can be a very positive thing, if for no other reason than it reminding us that, with regard to houses, what makes a house a home is something much more important than decorations. It's the quality of the relationships of the family living inside.

That's true of churches, too. This Sunday our church, the 16th & D Church of Christ, celebrates 30 years of loving, sharing, and caring in this community. I hope we've been a blessing as we've tried to lift up Christ and as we've worked to be a positive force for the unity of all God's people here. I know we've been blessed. This Sunday morning, at 10:30, we'll worship with lots of members, former members, and community and other friends. (Anybody who'd like to come is invited!) A former member, preacher's kid, summer youth intern, and good friend Dan Bouchelle will share the word with us. We'll enjoy a luncheon feast at noon, and Christian mimes Silent Witness will share their beautiful and unique ministry at 1:30. It will be a great day!

The grace of God and some wonderful people who have long since gone on to the church triumphant have made 30 years in this place possible. Lots has changed including many names, faces, and even, to a large extent, our style of worship. Much is different, but what is most important is what is the same.

We have a different preacher than we did at first, even though we've had the same one 14 years, and we've only had 4 in 30 years, but we preach the same Good News. We sing many new songs, but we worship the same Lord. We've changed some old traditions and started some new ones, but we're pardoned by the same blood and empowered by the same Spirit.

Change can be good. But the One who makes a church a living Body hasn't changed: God's Spirit.

Curtis Shelburne is minister of the 16th & D Church of Christ in Muleshoe.

Three Way falls to Whitharral Panthers after bopping Silverton

MAPLE—The Three Way Eagles were to host Cotton Center on Friday in a key District 3 six-man contest.

The Eagles fell to 3-4 overall and 1-1 in district play last week in a 50-16 loss to perennial six-man power and district rival Whitharral.

For the Eagles, it was the first time all season that they had been convincingly defeated. In each of the other Three Way losses, the Eagles had led in the second half and the contests could have gone either way.

Whitharral took the lead for good with a 20-point outburst in the second period. The explosion gave the Panthers a 28-8 halftime lead after the first period ended in an 8-8 deadlock.

Whitharral scored twice more in the third period to extend its margin to 42-8.

The Panthers rolled up 548 total yards, including 307 on the ground and 241 in the air. Three Way picked up an even 300 yards; 198 rushing and 102 passing. Each team turned the ball over three times; twice on fumbles and once by interception.

Whitharral scored first as Rocky Reyna sprinted 41 yards for a score with 4:02 left in the opening period. The PAT kick gave the Panthers an 8-0 margin.

Three Way responded immediately, as Alberto Valderas ran 24 yards for a score and Monty Kirby added the PAT kick to tie the game at 8-8 with 2:12 left in the first.

Whitharral regained the lead on a 41-yard pass from Jared Dockery to Steven López with 6:46 left in the second period. Josh Brooks added an 8-yard run and Dockery and López hooked up on a 42-yard pass to complete the Panthers' 20-point streak. The half ended 28-8, Whitharral.

Three Way's final score came on a 44-yard pass from Jimmy James to Marvin McCaul with six seconds to go in the third period. Kirby's kick made it 42-16.

McCaul finished with 123 yards rushing and Michael Soliz had 85 for the Eagles.

James completed 8-of-14 passes for 90 yards.

The Eagles had opened district play at home a week earlier with a dominating 72-26 victory over Silverton.

In that game, Soliz had 281 yards rushing to lead the Eagles, who broke open a close game with a 36-point explosion in the third period. Soliz scored six touchdowns, five on runs from scrimmage and one on a 70-yard kickoff return.

Kirby added three scoring runs for the Eagles, who attempted just 11 passes on the day.

Three Way took a 14-0 lead in the first period on a 29-yard run by Soliz and a 14-yard pass from James to Daniel Reeves.

Silverton cut the margin to 14-6, but Soliz answered with a 70-yard kickoff return. Kirby's PAT kick made it 22-6 with 4:48 left in the half.

Silverton scored twice in the next three minutes, as quarterback Nathan Francis hit Paul Segura on a 19-yarder and Isaiah Ivory on a 26-yarder. Converting one of two PAT kicks, the Owls pulled within 22-20 with 1:27 to play in the second.

Kirby's 1-yard scoring run 17 seconds before the half gave the Eagles a 30-20 halftime cushion.

But the Three Way defense held the Owls to just one second-half score, a 12-yard pass from Francis to Ivory. The Eagles scored 36 in the third and six in the fourth to close out the win.

After Friday's game with Cotton Center, the Eagles are home Oct. 29 to take on Amherst. The Eagles end the regular season Nov. 5 with they travel to Lazbuddie.

REBEKAHS

Noble Grand June Green called Muleshoe Rebekah Lodge No. 114 to order Oct. 19 at 7:30 p.m.

Chaplain Ruby Green gave the opening prayer escorted by Past Noble Grand Berni Marts.

Secretary Patsy Chance called the roll with 12 members answering. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Thursie Reid reported that Beulah Kelton is ill. Chance reported that Micky Montgomery is doing fine. It was nice to have Fern Davis at our meeting this week.

Chance, Marts Sylvia Lira and Mary Ann Ramírez "draped the charter" for our deceased sister Lucille Gross.

Reid closed the meeting with the Rebekah Creed and two verses of the song "An Evening Prayer."

JENNYSLIPPERS

The Jennyslippers met Oct. 12 at the Carrousel.

President Ruby Green presided and gave the opening prayer. The minutes were read and the treasurer's report was given. Both were accepted as read.

The quilt, garden spots and preparing brown bags for the Cranefest were discussed.

Cranefest organizers have approached Donna Kirk asking that the Jennyslippers make badges for the workers. Kirk was given approval to do that.

The garden spot is to continue through October.

Also, the spaghetti dinner and concession stand were discussed. Green reported that 28 "welcome packets" were almost ready to be delivered. Bobbie Harrison, Billie Downing and Green are responsible for putting the packets together.

Those attending the meeting were Green, Harrison, Kirk, Peggy Bruton, Joyeline Costen, Andrea Kemp, Ellen Ladd, Thursie Reid, Joy Williams and guest Diana Bermea.
