

THE MULESHOE JOURNAL

Dedicated to the Progress and Development of Bailey County and the South Plains of Texas

LITTERA SCRIPTA MANET—THE WRITTEN WORD ENDURES MULESHOE, County Seat of Bailey County, TEXAS, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1937

VOLUME 15 NUMBER 41

$21,000 APPROPRIATED TO PAVE HIGHWAY NO. 214

STATE HI-WAY COMMISSION ALSO APPROPRIATES $4,000 FOR UPKEEP OF ROAD FOR 13 MILES DISTANCE

Realization of North and South Highway Draws Nearer and State Officially Takes Over Maintenance.

That the State Highway Commission has officially taken over maintenance of 13.476 miles of State Highway No. 214 leading south from Muleshoe to Needmore, the sum of $40,000 having been appropriated for that purpose, and that a seal coat pavement of asphalt will also be spread as a toppling over the caliche base of this highway the same distance, is the information received by County Judge M. G. Miller in a letter received last Friday from Julian Montgomery, state highway engineer.

The Commission's minutes No. 14-248, on which the order is based, is as follows:

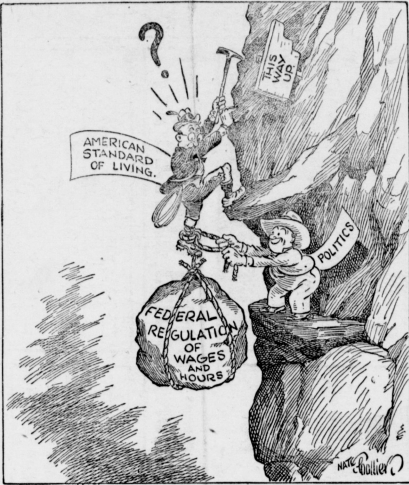

"In Bailey county, it is ordered by the Commission that that section of Highway No. 214 from the intersection of Highway No. 7 in Muleshoe south to Needmore store, a distance of 13.476 miles, recently completed as a WPA AIRWAY project, be taken over for maintenance, and that an appropriation of $40,000 is hereby made to cover cost of maintenance for the balance of this fiscal year.

"It is further ordered that an appropriation of $21,000 be made to cover the cost of placing an asphaltic base preservative on this section of the road this year to be done under the direction of the State Highway Engineer through the Maintenance Division."

"This information will come as good news to the citizens dwelling in the central and southern part of Bailey county, providing them with first class highway convenience for travel to the county seat.

SUBSCRIPTION BARGAIN DAYS NOW READY FOR YOU

Bargain days on various daily newspapers are now at hand, and the Journal office can save subscribers money on many of these subscriptions either singly or in conjunction with new or renewed Journal subscriptions.

While the cost of producing a newspaper has considerably advanced, the subscription price of the Journal is still being maintained at the same rate for the present. Some of the daily newspapers have increased their subscription prices, but using the clubbing rates this office is authorized to grant, subscriptions may still be received at real bargain prices.

This office can also save subscribers money on any magazines published in the United States, whether purchased singly or in groups. It is authorized to present several group magazine subscriptions in conjunction with the Journal at exceedingly low rates.

If the Journal office and save money on your reading materials for the next year!

THE RED CROSS DRIVE IN COITY BEGAN MONDAY

$275 Is Quota Asked; One-Half Funds Are Kept In County.

Bailey county Red Cross officials last Monday began the month drive for memberships in that national organization, according to Rev. R. S. Watkins, county chairman, and Cecil H. Tate, county roll call chairman.

The goal of memberships in Bailey county, at $1.00 each is a total of $275.00. This sum has been apportioned to the various communities throughout the county. Directors for each community and the sum allotted them are as follows:

Rev. R. B. Walden, Progress and Liberty $25

Jim Cook and W. E. Renfrow, Muleshoe $100

Mrs. Homer Green, Enochs $10

M. S. Shuttlesworth, Circleback $15

Rev. C. McMasters, Old and New Bull $15

Mrs. Russell Craft, Baleyboro $15

Mrs. W. L. Blaylock, Maple $15

Mrs. Henry Hanover, Goodland $15

Mrs. Henry Schuster, Fairview $10

Mrs. M. A. Snider, West Camp $15

Mrs. Claude Gage, Joyland $10

Mrs. W. B. Wagon, Longview $10

W. M. Pool Jr., Needmore $10

Emmett Brumblay, Stegall $5

W. R. Sower, Watson $10

Mr. Tate has charge of and will receive reports from the various communities throughout the program. Campaign will last until Saturday, Nov. 13.

CHECK COMPLIANCE RECORD

Farm operators who have participated in the 1937 Agricultural Conservation program are now checking their reports of performance with Cecil McLaury, county compliance supervisor, at the county agent's office.

This final check is being made with producers against local supervisors' reports to eliminate errors which would cause suspension and delay of payments.

Reports of performance will be submitted to the State office in shipments of 50, as completed.

FARMERS BILL NOW OUTLINED FOR CONGRESS

Propose Limit Of Acres And Penalties For Reductions.

The House Agriculture committee, Washington, agreed last Monday on the principle of voluntary control of wheat, cotton, and rice crops in the new farm bill coming before the special session of Congress, Nov. 15.

Chairman Marvin Jones said the group also has virtually accepted a proposal for compulsory control of tobacco.

The question of compulsory or voluntary regulation of crop production has been one of the most controversial before the committee, which is drafting a bill for presentation at the special session of Congress.

The skeleton bill outlined by Jones also provides for continuation of soil conservation payments, financing the new program by some form of tariff equalizing taxes, and setting up marketing quotas in emergencies.

It differs in many respects from a measure already drawn by Rep. Flannagan (D-Va) providing for compulsory crop control.

The Flannagan bill would operate chiefly by means of marketing quotas and the imposition of penalties on farmers selling crops in excess of those quotas.

Some sentiment was said to have developed for similar penalties for peanuts and potatoes. There also was opposition in the committee on the ground that if these commodities were given special treatment, it would open the way to demands for special handling of additional crops.

COURT OF HONOR FOR SCOUTS TO BE HELD AT LITTLEFIELD

Troops in this section of the district are making their plans to attend the Northwest District Court of Honor to be held here Tuesday evening, November 9 at the Presbyterian church, Littlefield. Floyd Coffman, District Court of Honor chairman announced.

Troops from Amherst, Sudan, Muleshoe and Anton as well as the troops from Littlefield will participate.

The troops from Littlefield under the leadership of Willard Street and Eugene Latimer are making plans for a demonstration of Scouting activities and are prepared to carry out the challenges that were made at the last Court of Honor in signaling.

Yellowjackets Sting Life Out Of Hornets At Sudan, Last Fri.

Muleshoe High school Yellowjackets defeated the Sudan Hornets football team in a fast moving, yet one-sided game played at the neighboring city, Friday afternoon of last week, in a score of 46 to 0. The Muleshoe second string played about half of the game. Players who made touchdowns were: Don Moore, two; Woodie Lambert, two; Frank Prescott one; Delbert Parsons two. Frank Prescott kicked three goals, and Charles Long kicked one.

Good team work was shown throughout the entire game, the Yellowjackets scoring on the third play of the game. A Littlefield man referred the game. A large crowd of fans from Muleshoe and Sudan witnessed the contest.

The local team will play their next match game Friday afternoon of this week on the local field with the Springlake High school team. The pep squad is planning to do some strong side line work according to the report, but Muleshoe expects to reverse the record in the forthcoming game.

Friday afternoon, November 11, the local team will play the Farwell team at Farwell. The neighboring city boasts of having one of the strongest teams they have had in years. They have not lost a game or been scored on this season according to the report, but Muleshoe expects to reverse the record in the forthcoming game.

McKelvey Well May Have Oil; Test Now Going On at Midland

The McKelvey oil test well drilling in southwestern Bailey county was down 4,609 feet late Tuesday afternoon, according to direct report received from the well. Drillers were said to be "conking" in sand and water, making little effort for headway until further orders were received.

Monday night parties interested in the well left for Midland with samples of the drilling contents for examination and tests. There was some indication that the bit had already gone through the Duguan pay, lowest known horizon of the Permian lime in this area and was now in the glauconite sand. Some gas has been contacted, though just what amount has not been made public.

It is said favorable indications are now present, and it is also reported that the J. O. Whittington interests drilling the well, are quite satisfied they are in an oil area, and in case this well should not prove a producer another may be started in that vicinity in the near future.

Some more leasing has been going on in that section during the past week.

No report of any consequence is available from the Enochs test well.

GOVERNMENT WILL PAY 50 CENTS ON THE CORN CROP

That a 50 cent crop will be made on the nation's corn crop this year, is the announcement from Washington last Tuesday. Testing 14% per cent shows that the grain may be seen in cribs on the applicant's own farm.

MULESHOE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE TO ENTERTAIN THE 4-H CLUB BOYS AND GIRLS; PINS TO BE GIVEN DECEMBER 8TH

Wednesday, Dec. 8 the 4-H club boys and girls of Bailey county who have finished all the club work for 1937, will attend the graduation exercise to be held at the Methodist church in Muleshoe.

Upon their arrival the Bailey County Home Demonstration council will entertain them with a tea. The exercises will be held and club pins will be presented by the council chairman. After the exercise, the Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce will entertain those who have finished their work with a free picture show. They will see Shirley Temple in "Wee Willie Winkle."

The parents of the 4-H club members are given a special invitation to attend the graduation exercise.

In order for the girls to receive a pin they must complete these goals:

Gardening Goals
Make the planting plan for the vegetables other than tomatoes, leafy green & yellow vegetables section of the family garden.
Plant 50 feet of vegetables other than leafy green or yellow per member of the family.
Conserve 15 containers of canned products and exhibit 1 jar of beets and 1 loans shall be filed with county rural rehabilitation supervisors.

Mr. Hauter, however, has made an urgent request that all applications be withheld until the counties in which this program will be administered this year have been announced. He said this policy will protect would-be applicants from acquiring false hopes, and also save county rehabilitation supervisors much unnecessary work. Counties in which the program will be administered this year will be made public in the near future.

The above information was received from Mr. Hauter by J. W. McDermott, rural rehabilitation supervisor, in Bailey county.

LOANS TO TENANTS, LABORERS AND SHARE-CROPPERS FOR BUYING FARMS ABOUT READY FOR ISSUE, IS ADVISE

First steps for the administration of the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant act, wherein money will be loaned to competent tenants, farm laborers, and share-croppers for the purpose of purchasing family-sized farms, are now being taken. L. H. Hauter, regional director of the Farm Security Administration, announced this week.

Details of an order, signed by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, provides that regional offices will be established with the Farm Security regional director as executive head and with one specialist in tenant farm purchase loans. The entire program will be handled through the regular Farm Security administration.

Mr. Hauter said the Secretary of Agriculture and county committees at an early date. Within each state the counties in which loans will be made will be determined by the Secretary of Agriculture after recommendations are received from these Farm Security Advisory committees.

Pursuant to the terms of the act, distribution of the $9,500,000 is based on farm population and the prevalence of tenancy in each state and territory. Loans will be made in approximately 300 counties during the fiscal year 1937-38, and the number of loans per county will not be less than five nor more than 100, except in states in which the total number of loans shall be less than five.

Applications for tenant purchase loans will be filed with county rural rehabilitation supervisors.

Applications for tenant purchase loans will be filed with county rural rehabilitation supervisors.

$500 Offered at Turk Show To Be Held At Plainview, Dec. 1-2

The fourth annual Southwest dressed Turkey show will be held in Plainview with cash prizes amounting to more than $500.00 to be awarded in the dressed and live divisions. The show is sponsored by the High-Plains Turkey Improvement association and the Plainview Board of City Development, with W. A. Painter as president of the High-Plains Turkey Improvement association as President of the show.

Other officials are R. Q. Silverthorn, president of the Plainview Board of City Development as Chairman of the Turkey committee and Pet Smith as manager of the show. The show, which is held in two divisions, the dressed division and the live division. The first day of the show will be devoted to judging and demonstrations.

On the second day the premiums will be awarded and the show placed in readiness for the auction that afternoon, at which time turkeys will be auctioned to the highest bidder.

Bailey county turkey growers have in the past been persistent winners of high premiums at these turkey shows and a good representation of growers from this county will participate in the coming event.

H. P. Griffin of Salt Lake City, Utah, will judge the show.

Past turkey shows at Plainview have done much toward improvement of quality in stock bred and fed in this area.

Truck And A Car Collide Near Bula One Charged Drunk

Tuesday afternoon midnight Dewey Kincaid of El Dorado, Okla., driving a 1934 Ford pickup, and Chester B. Setfitt of Bula, driving a 1934 Dodge truck, had a head-on collision about a mile north of the Bula school house in the southern part of Bailey county.

Local officials were notified and upon arriving at the scene found the occupants somewhat injured and both trucks badly smashed. Kincaid was brought to Muleshoe and placed in the county jail on a charge of having drunkly. The truck was badly skinned, bruised and thought to have been internally injured, according to report. He was found out in a field near the wreck by officials and when taken to town was given medical treatment by a local physician.

SINGING AT OKLAHOMA LANE

The Farmer County Singing convention will be held at the Oklahoma Lane schoolhouse next Sunday, Nov. 7, according to announcement of Lee Thompson, president of the association.

The song service will begin promptly at 10:00 o'clock in the morning, lasting all day, with a respite at the noon hour for dinner. Song leaders, and various musical organizations from various sections of Texas and New Mexico are expected to be present and take part in the day's melodious joyfication.

Each woman attending is asked to bring two dozen sandwiches, two pies and a cake for the dinner thus accommodating livestock and guests who may be present and without food.

Legionaires And Folks Will Observe Armistice Here Thursday Nov. 11

Members of the local American Legion are planning to celebrate Armistice day here with an all day program Thursday, Nov. 11.

They are planning to secure a speaker for the day and music will be furnished throughout the program.

Special numbers will be given as follows:

Two readings, Miss Tammie Mae Russell.

Vocal solo, Mrs Pat Babo

Patriotic numbers by the High School Glee club

E Piano solo, Miss Okla Mae Lawrence.

Male quartet by grade school boys, directed by Mrs. Curtis Taylor.

At noon a big basket dinner will be in order at the American Legion hall and all ex-service men and their families are cordially invited to attend and bring well filled baskets for the occasion.

CLEANERS AND DYERS TO HOLD MEETING IN LUBBOCK, NOV. 15

Lubbock, Nov. 2.—Cleaners and dyers from almost every town and city in Texas and eastern New Mexico will gather in Lubbock, November 15 and 16 to attend the annual convention of the Texas Cleaners and Dyers association.

Expert technicians will appear on the program to discuss the vexing problems that confront those engaged in the cleaning and dyeing industry. Interesting and educational exhibits will be displayed in order that attending delegates may readily comprehend the solution whereby these handicaps may be overcome.

MANY AT Y L SINGING

Singing last Sunday at Y L community was largely and widely attended, melody lovers from all over Bailey and adjoining counties being present to participate in and enjoy the revelry of sacred music.

Many song leaders and vocal organizations of different kinds were present and took part in the program.

A big basket dinner at the noon hour was an enjoyable feature of the occasion.

January Floods Reveal Strength of Red Cross

Aid Given 1,062,000 Persons Through Set-Up by Agency

The elasticity and scope of Red Cross disaster work is shown in a recent report on Red Cross relief measures during the unparalleled Ohio-Mississippi Valley flood of this year.

At the height of the emergency Red Cross relief offices were established in 182 inundated counties and in 146 counties where refugees were cared for, the report states. Eight regional headquarters offices controlled the 328 county offices, and were in turn supervised by the National Red Cross in Washington, D. C.

A statistical summary of persons aided by the organization indicates that the floods constituted the greatest peacetime emergency ever faced by the nation. The Red Cross gave some form of assistance to 1,062,000 men, women and children from January to August hundred of trained workers helped by thousands of volunteers administered to the sufferers.

A Red Cross rescue fleet of 5400 boats was organized according to the report. Emergency hospitals established totaled 300 and 2600 nurses were assigned to flood duty. In more than 1,000 refuge centers the victims of the flood were sheltered, clothed and fed. Through the Red Cross medical health program and the work of public health agencies sickness was kept to normal for the time of year in all inundated areas.

Because of this disaster experience the Red Cross was directed by the President of the United States, who is also president of the Red Cross, to coordinate the effort of all federal relief groups. Government and Red Cross officials met daily at the Red Cross headquarters building in Washington to plan relief measures and prevent duplication of effort.

"We were fortunate in having 56 years of disaster relief experience to call upon in meeting the emergency," Admiral Gary T. Grayson, chairman of the Red Cross, said.

It was found that 97,000 families composed of 425,000 persons had to have their resources supplemented or an entirely new start provided, by the Red Cross, the report stated. Red Cross emergency and rehabilitation assistance was as follows: rescue, transportation and shelter for 62,000 families; food, clothing and other maintenance for 15,000 families; building and repair for 27,000 families; household goods for 90,000 families; medical nursing and sanitation help for 15,000 families; agricultural rehabilitation for 10,000 families; other occupational aid for 3,000 families and other types of relief for 4,000 families.

"Credit for this largest peacetime relief operation in the history of the nation must go to the American people who contributed to the Red Cross relief fund of more than $25,000,000," Admir Grayson said.

During the year the Red Cross aided to the victims of 705 other disasters in 36 states, Alaska and the District of Columbia. The Red Cross financed the majority of these relief operations from money contributed through memberships during the annual Roll Call last November, since it is only in case of large scale disasters that a national drive for relief funds is made.

This year the Roll Call is from November 11th to the 25th. The Red Cross seeks a greater membership to meet its disaster relief and other service obligations during 1938.

Last year Red Cross Chapters gave vital help to 120,000 needy families.

Red Cross Replaces Farm Family Losses

The Red Cross gave agricultural rehabilitation to 10,116 farm families following the severe eastern floods of last winter. Types of aid included feed, seed, livestock, farm tools and machinery and other items essential to agricultural productivity. More than $299,000 was expended by the organization to meet these requirements.

In addition to occupational assistance, rural families hard hit by the flood waters were rescued, clothed, fed and sheltered by the Red Cross. Where it was necessary the Red Cross repaired and rebuilt outbuildings, barns and other structures. Medical and nursing care were provided and homes re-furnished.

Red Cross agricultural rehabilitation benefited nearly three times as many families as received all other types of Red Cross occupational rehabilitation combined.

Labor's advocacy of the Red Cross program is attested by recent state statements from William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America.

"Red Cross aims and purposes are highly commendable and deserving of the support of all classes of people," said Mr. Green.

"The activities and service of the American Red Cross satisfy a great need of the people, and I strongly urge that it receive the unqualified support of all during its annual Roll Call for members," Mr. Lewis said.

Women Will Attend Recreation Meeting At Lubbock, Nov. 13

Several of the Home demonstration club members of Bailey county plan to attend a district recreation meeting to be held at the Junior high school building in Lubbock, Saturday, Nov. 13. Each county will have a part on the program. Mrs. Grace Snider, county recreation chairman will have charge of Bailey county's part.

Plans have been made to have "Suggestions for a Christmas party." The Circleback 4-H club quartet, composed of Helen La Fon, Lucille Carlyle, Ina Richardson, and Maggie Lee Powell will be on the program.

Mrs. Happy Wagon of Longview will give a reading.

The West Camp club will have charge of table games.

Mrs. Tommy Galt and Mrs. Glen Thursh of Goodland will have charge of the decorations.

A bus will go from Bailey county and the chairman urges that every club in the county be represented if possible.

W. T. C. C. WILL NOT MOVE NOW

Following decision of Board of Directors to move headquarters of West Texas Chamber of Commerce from Stamford to Abilene serious objection was made by other officials and members and a court injunction restraining such action was filed.

It is now reported such move will not be made until and if the membership votes on it at the next annual meeting to be held at Wichita Falls next May.

Every Great Attempt is Glorious Even if It Fails

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

These are the commandments which the Lord commanded Moses for the children of Israel in Mount Sinai—Leviticus 27:34.
Good laws make it easier to do right and harder to do wrong.

TO MUCH GOVERNMENT

Start out tomorrow and canvass the county, asking every man you meet how many different divisions of government there are in the U. S. and it is safe to say not one will be anywhere near correct in his estimate.

For two years the job of counting the actual number has been under way and the result should make every taxpayer in Bailey County open his eyes in wonderment. The total shows that there are in this county 137,000 school districts, 20,000 townships, 16,000 incorporated cities, towns, boroughs and villages, 3,000 counties, and 8,600 miscellaneous sewer districts, park districts, levee districts, etc. It must be remembered that each of these 175,418 districts has its payroll, and also that each district has the power to tax.

This is, as all must admit, a most wasteful setup. There are at least ten times too many of these governmental subdivisions. Because they are centered in Washington, federal employees draw a concentrated fire of criticism because of their numbers; but, in reality, their numbers are insignificant when compared with the great army of overlapping employees of lesser political and governmental units.

Residents of every state cry aloud for economy in public affairs and reduction in taxes, and never turn a hand toward consolidating some of their units or cutting down on government, and abolishing those for which there is no real need.

Only last week the Texas Legislature spent approximately $200,000 for another special session in which practically nothing was done for the state in the way of providing needed revenue or cutting down unnecessary expenses. Much criticism is being heaped upon the session as a result. Some are being accused of being penurious, others of being in the pay of utility and similar corporations of great business magnitude. In the meantime pensions to old people, the blind and children, authorized by the citizens of the state will remain unpaid for a while until something is done some way to provide the necessary means. Taxpayers will walk to the public trough and pitch in assessments just the same, the tax-eaters will draw their salaries just the same, and economic conditions in many ways will not be improved.

Texas would be a good state to start something new; but it is not likely to do so, and, until there is a nation-wide move in the direction of economy, we must continue to live in a country that suffers from entirely too much government.

MORE MACHINES

A news report out of Chicago is to the effect that every corn-picking machine that was on the market was sold this year and that the manufacturers say they could have sold ten times as many if they had produced them. Of course, there was a bumper crop to be handled. Then, too, there was a scarcity of farm labor—let it be said to the shame of a country with such a vast army of unemployed. Probably not one cotton grower in the ears, husbs them and then leads them onto a truck may be the means of solving the farm labor shortage in the future.

Farmers in this part of the nation are not so much interested in mechanical corn-pickers; but they are vitally interested in cotton-picking machines. Probably not one cotton grower in a hundred or more would ever invest in one of them when they finally become perfected; but some of the machines will be purchased for custom use and will be hired by small growers.

Whether these picking machines of the corn and cotton variety will turn out to be profitable devices remains yet to be seen. Many years ago the threshing machine put hundreds of thrade-wielders out of work. The modern wheat combine cut the harvesting crew from around 20 laborers down to about five. The country survived the invention and labor elimination. Whether these new mechanical pickers will create a still greater army of unemployed for the taxpayers of the country to take care of remains to be seen. So far in the past, it seems new machinery has managed also to create new jobs. Whether pickers will be burdens or blessings is just now another question. At any rate the perfected cotton picker is not yet in our midst.

It is not generally considered logical that machines are the cause of unemployment, on the contrary they frequently open new lines of employment accommodating many who previously had been out of work.

A recent survey made by the machinery Institute, Chicago, find that factory employment today is 83 per cent above the 1899 level when little machinery was used, while population is only 72 per cent above the 1899 figure. Had there been no increase in mechanization since then a ninety-four per cent work week would be needed for factory workers to produce the goods necessary for the current standard of living.

WILD OR MILD?

The returns now seem to be in, and it looks like a tie. About half of the country's amateur weather prophets are forecasting another long, hard winter like the nation shivered through two years ago, while the other half contends that time-tried and long-tested signs all indicate it is going to be both short and balmy.

One half says the squirrels are storing more nuts than usual, and that means a hard winter; the other half contends wild duck and geese did not start south as early this fall, and that means a mild, open season. Some of them contend husks on the nation's bumper crop are thicker than their normally are, which indicates plenty of snow and ice ahead; others assert that moss is almost absent from the north sides of forest trees, and that mild winters inevitably follow this condition.

The Quality of Mercy...

Drawn for the American Red Cross by Laurence Wilbur

So they go, these amateur prophets of joy and gloom, about evenly divided in their forecasts of what kind of winter lies ahead. As long as they are evenly divided there is always the chance, of course, that half of them are bound to be right, but the average citizen around Muleshoe isn't being fooled by their predictions. He is putting his faith in order for whatever comes. If it is a mild season, he will be thankful. If it is a severe one, he is prepared to make the best of it. The only thing ahead that he looks forward to with dread is the coming of spring, when at least one-half of these amateur weather prophets will be chirping: "I told you so!"

WHY JUNK IT?

This day in time when it's stylish to be thrifty and the practice of economy is among our greatest virtues it's hard to understand why so many are wasting when there is no occasion for it.

For instance, take the housewife who hauls out perfectly good furniture, a stove or other pieces of household goods that are still serviceable and stacks the same away in cellar, attic, garage or barn when someone in the community would be glad to have it at a reasonable price. Or the farmer who does the same thing when he replaces old implements with new. Is that economy?

There are folks right around here who would be glad to get such things if you would tell them about it. And it would cost but a few cents to tell them—and sell them—through the columns of this paper.

You would not only be doing a real service to someone who could not afford to buy the articles new that you are practically throwing away, but it would net you a few dollars at the same time. It certainly will beat junking the things that are still serviceable to someone.

Jaunty Journalettes

The Muleshoe man who thinks he knows it all is trading on very small capital.

The average Muleshoe resident who lives past babyhood is not likely to be in much future danger of being killed by kindness.

Maybe more Muleshoe fathers would send their children to college if they knew the kids wouldn't come home and criticize their grammar.

Perhaps the reason some Muleshoe husbands don't lie oftener than they do is because their wives are sometimes too tired to ask questions.

Motherhood is about the only thing Muleshoe women can engage in now that is free from male competition—

ported to have given her boy friend, the thirty-second degree last Sunday night. Telling a chum about it next day, the friend remarked: "I didn't know women were Masons." "Oh, I'm not," she replied; "but that's the freezing point, isn't it?"

J. W. McDermott, manager of the local Resettlement office has recently been having some trouble with government papers issued farmers of this county. The other day he discovered they were being taken to the Fry & Cox blacksmith shop, where some were filed while others were being forged.

A tramp came to Mrs. Jess Osborns kitchen door a few days ago claiming he hadn't eaten for four days. "If you don't believe it, he said, 'just look at me lady. She did, and then exclaimed: "For heavens sake how do you do it? I've been dieting for the past two months and haven't lost a single pound!"

Clearly the municipality of "Heavenly Hurley" is coming to the front, and its mayor is beginning to feel his importance. Last week he received a letter addressed to the "Leading Grain Dealer, Hurley, Texas," and this week another addressed to the "Postmaster," that city. Local postmaster, A. J. Gardner, kindly referred them both to the mayor of that municipality. Folks around here may think Hurley was disbanded 15 years ago when Muleshoe came into existence; but evidently there are folks in El Paso and New York City who think different. Oh Boy! It may get the county seat yet.

What's Happening In Washington And Other Cities Of Importance

Secretary Henry Wallace has approved a 2,000,000 acre decrease in land planted to cotton for next year.

A federal law went into effect last Monday designed to ease restrictions on stock buying and lighten those on short selling. It reduces from 55 to 40 per cent the cash margin for purchases and imposes a 50 per cent margin on short sales.

Henry Ford has announced expansion plans of the Ford Motor Co., to the extent of $40,000,000 in additions to the Rouge river plant, enabling the company to manufacture many of the parts and accessories of its cars regardless of associated concerns. Included in the new project will be a giant 1,000-ton blast furnace costing $4,500,000.

The monthly income of the CIO is placed at $190,000. Recent financial report of that labor organization shows its expenses for 16 months totaled $1,745,068, all of which came from members in the form of dues and assessments. Details of the expenses were not made public, however, it is reported that approximately $960,000 of it was expended in recent strike activities.

Social security for more than 20,000,000 persons since February, 1936 cost $230,425,698 in federal grants. It was announced last Saturday. Public assistance grants for the aged, the blind and dependent children accounted for $214,494,571 of the outlay. The balance of $15,930,826 paid the cost of administering state unemployment compensation laws for 21,000,000 insured workers.

THE REASON HEADACHES ARE RELIEVED SO FAST

THE REASON BAYER ASPIRIN WORKS SO FAST
Drop a Bayer Aspirin tablet into a tumbler of water.
By the time it hits the bottom of the glass it is dissolving.
This speed of disintegration enables genuine BAYER Aspirin tablets to start "taking hold" of headache and similar pain a few minutes after taking.

All people who suffer occasionally from headaches ought to know this way to quick relief.
At the first sign of such pain, take two Bayer Aspirin tablets with a half glass of water. Sometimes if the pain is more severe, another dose is necessary later, according to directions.
If headaches keep coming back we advise you to see your own physician. He will look for the cause in order to correct it.
The price now is only 15¢ for twelve tablets or two full dozen for 25 cents—virtually, only a cent apiece.

"PRETTY good, eh! I should say, rather. But what's come over Bryce? This is entirely out of his line. Wonderful piece of work, though. Best he's ever done, and that's no mean praise."

A group of members was lingering in the salon of the Art club, discussing the fall exhibition which had opened that day with a private showing for "members only." David Bryce's "Portrait of a Young Woman" was the chief feature in the conversation. For the past 10 years Bryce had been exhibiting, and the public was familiar with his pictures of the sea and his boy groups. His work in these two fields was well recognized and appreciated. But on this occasion he had come in a surprise and the club was buzzing with curiosity. Bryce himself had nothing to say.

"A change is good for one, you know," he had laughingly replied when questioned. And that was all. Old Jim the caretaker, however, had his own opinion. "Mister Bryce's picture is an opinion which he kept to himself."

But some one was written in the stars for David, an altogether desirable someone, and one day he found her. He was walking through the business section of the city when he saw a girl with a sunburned nose emerge from an office building. The little patch of red attracted David and he followed her. The pursuit led through an alley slit between two blocks, down a flight of steps, and into a cafeteria. While he ate, he studied his companion covertly as she glanced interestedly about her. One day he rested upon David, quite impersonally, as they might upon any object confronting them, but David's heart stood still. They were beautiful eyes, candid and clear.

"She's a dreamer," thought David, "and her dreams are not ordinary." When Miss Sunburn arrived at David's reached for his check, although his meal was but half eaten. Food meant nothing just then. The important thing was not to lose sight of her, and David discreetly trailed, following as she took a short walk before returning to her office.

For a month this continued, and David had learned a little from his noon-day stunts. Miss Sunburn loved the sea, for several times they walk had taken her in the direction of the wharves, and he had noticed how her face had lifted to the sharp, salt air; once she had stopped to watch a solitary gull winging its way above ugly warehouses. She disliked her work, for she seemed to droop, her step lost its springiness, when she neared the office-building. She cared for pictures, for she had cut short her lunch one noon in order to view those on exhibition at one of the art shops.

One evening David turned into the River drive for a walk. The sun was just setting. The crimson-and-gold of the sky was reflected in the water, and a rosy glow diffused itself over everything. Suddenly he saw Miss Sunburn. She was standing by the rail looking toward the west. Her face seemed transfixed, lost in contemplation of the loveliness about her.

An inspiration came to David. He would paint her, just as he saw her there, for the Fall Exhibition. He worked steadily, grudging the time given to sleep and meals until the portrait was finished. Every line of her face and figure had been branded in his heart and the result satisfied even his critical eyes. The canvas, carefully wrapped, was sent to the Art club.

The two weeks that followed were wasted misery for David. He haunted the salon but Miss Sunburn did not come. He stopped going to the cafeteria for fear she might recognize him and spoil his surprise. The last day—would she come? She might be ill—he dared not think that. Half-past five and at six the doors closed. That little wing-tipped hat! Yes, it was. David felt strange; he would. What would she think of him? Would his daring offend her? He drew nearer, following her until she stood before the picture. They were alone save for one or two stragglers near the door, and Jim who was busily picking up discarded catalogues and pamphlets.

The girl was very quiet standing before the portrait. Then she turned surprised and a little frightened and noticed David. "It is a picture of me, but how did it get here and how could David Bryce know me well enough to paint me like that?" David drew her to a chair. "Don't be frightened. I am David Bryce. I saw you one evening on the River drive and painted you." Then with a rush David went on from his first glimpse of the sunburn and his fear that she would not come to the exhibition.

Jim had sneaked out the stragglers, discreetly overlooking David and his companion. "So that's the story. Hm! Well, there's one picture that won't be for sale, though there'd be many a one to buy it. I'll be wrappin' it up tonight for he'll be needin' it for the first thing in the mornin'. Them that's intended for each other generally finds each other, though it's queer the way things do happen." And thus ruminating, Jim stumped off in search of burials.

Goes to Yamboree

DENTON, Texas.—Wearing the green and white colors of her school, charming Miss Ayrne Mackey, sophomore from Gladeview, represented the North Texas State Teachers College at the Yamboree annual sweet potato festival held this year at Gilmer, Tex., Oct. 21-23.

Colleges To Have A Part In The Baptist Convention at El Paso

El Paso, Texas, Oct. 30.—Baylor University, whose great winning football team has been the national sport sensation of the year, and other Texas Baptist colleges will occupy another sort of limelight at the Baptist general convention of Texas here Nov. 8-12.

Reports of remarkable progress during the past year are expected to be heard from Baylor, Hardin-Simmons of Abilene—another Baptist school with an outstanding football team—Mary Hardin-Baylor of Belton, Wayland College of Plainview, Howard Payne of Brownwood, the college of Marshall and San Marcos academy.

The total number of students in Baptist colleges in Texas is 6,000 and the total fixed assets of the institutions are $8,600,000. The 5,000 Texas Baptists who assemble here for a week's convention are expected to renew their loyalty and support of these institutions.

President Pat M. Neff of Baylor—the largest church controlled university in the world—will report on Baylor's largest enrollment in its distinguished 92 years of service to Texas. Baylor's two branches are at Waco and Dallas, with the Medical Branches in Dallas. Under President Neff's administration, the debt at Baylor has been vastly reduced.

The Baptist general convention of Texas is the largest state convention of its kind in the world. Elaborate plans for entertainment of delegates and visitors have been made, including a trip to the latest wonder on the world, Caribbean caverns, New Mexico.

NEWS PRINT COST ADVANCES

Announcement has been made by the American Newspaper Publishers' association of the advance of $8.00 per ton in the price of news print, which means it will cost newspapers of America an estimated $25,000,000 extra for paper on which to print their news during the coming year.

It is officially stated that in consideration that newspapers do not make any money from their circulation; but rather subscriptions are listed as liabilities in the fact that they cost more than received by subscribers, which extra cost must be taken from the paper's advertising fund, its only source of revenue, that circulation and advertising rates will be due an advance not later than the first of the coming year.

Hippo Surprisingly Agile

Some people regard the hippopotamus as a very clumsy beast, more or less in the class of the common mo-o-ow as a fighter. Actually he is surprisingly agile when aroused and has large, sharp tusks in his huge lower jaw with which he can slash sideways with devastating effect. His weight sometimes amounting to four tons, is a formidable factor, especially when he is in his favorite element, water. On at least one occasion the hippo is reliably reported to have upset and crushed between his jaws a native canoe. He has been known to ram even a river steamer.

DESPITE GHOSTS AND HOBGOBLINS SCHOOL CARNIVAL SPONSORS GET $157; MISS JOE V. GOINS IS QUEEN

The annual Halloween carnival was held at the Muleshoe High school building Friday night of last week, with a large crowd attending and a total of $186.45 was taken in from the various attractions. There were expenses of $28.62 to be paid and $157.83 was cleared from the event, which amount will be used for athletics and supplies for the library.

Miss Joe V. Goins, sophomore class representative, was elected queen of the High school and Mrs. Flaudie Gallman had charge of the coronation. The queenly races closed promptly at 9:30 p. m., and the program immediately followed. Miss Nona, Faye Johnson freshman representative, was second in the queen's race.

A program was given in the auditorium by the first, second and fourth grade groups, under direction of the teachers. Mrs. W. C. Cox, Mrs. Ethel Fowler and Miss Orla Mae Lawrence. The play presented was very interesting and amusing, and attracted much attention.

The building was decorated appropriately for the occasion with black cats, witches, lighted pumpkins, black and orange crepe paper streamers and the regular Halloween fixtures. Booths were stationed in every room and in the halls, and many attending patronized them all. Outstanding features were the bingo stand, cat rack, ring-board stand, "hall of horrors," shooting gallery, novelty booth and many others, directed by teachers of the High and Grammar school.

MR. MORRIS CHILDREN IS HONORED WITH NICE SHOWER

Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Jim Cook, Mrs. L. S. Barron and Miss Helen Jones were joint hostesses at a surprise miscellaneous bridal shower given at the educational building of the local Baptist church in honor of Mrs. Morris Children, who was formerly Mrs. Peggy Rocket before her marriage August 5, at Albuquerque, N. M. The couple announced their marriage here last week.

The bride has been chief operator for the Southwestern Associated Telephone company in Muleshoe for the past four years and Mr. Children is connected with the Magnolia wholesale business here.

All guests present at the shower were seated in the entertaining room when the bride was brought in. She was taken to a table in the center of the room where many lovely and useful gifts were displayed. The gifts were opened and passed around for guests to view. Delicious refreshments of hot chocolate topped with marshmallows and wafers were served by the hostesses and favors of gold and white fall flowers were placed at the side of each plate.

Those attending were Mesdames W. B. Carles, Tye Young, Roy Jordan and daughter, Roy Janice, J. M. Reynolds, Bonnie Isaacs, Neil Rosary, Ray Griffiths, H. Douglas, Beulah Motherall, Ferrel Little, Alex Paul, Will Harper, J. J. DeShazo, Earl Ladd, Kate Yarbrough A. V. McCarty, J. Misses Tidwell Douglas, Alma Stewart and Elizabeth Harden.

Many who were unable to attend sent beautiful gifts.

Let's get down to ^{crank} Cases

To keep your car from growing old too soon... to make it run with that wonderful smoothness and pep it used to have when it was new... pay a lot of attention to the crankcase. That's where a motor's hardening-of-the-arteries starts.

So drain the crankcase—NOT your pocketbook, by refilling with Phillips 66 Motor Oil. It is Phillips finest, made from a costlier 100% paraffin base crude.

It meets the higher requirements of today's modern motors because it has the highest oiliness. Refined into it by Phillips painstaking modern process. Besides, it is extra clean and extra thrifty. No wasteful light parts to cook out or burn out. Hence the film is tougher and longer-lasting.

Clean, drain and refill with Phillips 66 Motor Oil. It's concentrated! ... This year's big value in car lubrication. Look for the Orange and Black 66 Shield.

W. B. McADAMS HAS "TOUCH-ME-NOT" ELECTRIC FENCE FOR PASTURE, IT'S EFFECTIVENESS DECLARED PERFECT

That Bailey county keeps abreast of the trend of modern times, is again indicated in the fact that the electric fence has invaded this political subdivision, one having been installed by W. B. McAdams a short time ago on his farm about a mile northwest of Muleshoe. He has about 3 1/2 acres pasture fenced with a double wire, electrically charged, which holds livestock within the prescribed bounds as efficiently as if the fence was made of barbed wire strands reaching 10 feet high. He says it didn't take his dogs and cattle very long to learn the "touch-me-not" system and to stay away from it. Several other farmers are said to be contemplating purchase of electrical fences of similar type.

It has been several years now since farmers first began experimenting with the touch-me-not fence, and, in some instances, it cost them several head of stock because their homemade mechanisms for furnishing the electrical current were improper. They didn't understand the system of getting the current turned on and off so as to keep the animals from "freezing" to the fence when they came in contact with it, the current being strong enough to frequently kill the animals. Instances are on record also where humans have met near death from the same cause.

After electric engineers got to working on the idea, a very simple system was worked out and has been in very satisfactory service now for some years past. Ordinary 110 volt current is used; but it must have a very low amperage for desired results; and there must be that off-and-on feature to the current. Some systems operate from storage batteries.

Electric fences are especially desirable for temporary pastures, to protect hay or feed stacks, fencing lanes, etc., only smooth wire is used and it doesn't take long to string it. If the current amperage is kept low, it is said there is absolutely no danger what ever from an electric fence.

McAdams says it is interesting to watch hogs and cattle graze right up to the wire; but they never touch it.

He declares it is an absolute cure for beechny stock and the best tamer in the world for a vicious gentleman cow. Sheep are about the hardest to tame, their wool tending to insulate them from the stinging effect of the current. Western farmers who have tried this kind of fence declare it cuts down the nuisance from coyotes and other wild animals who seek to get inside of pastures and destroy domestic stock. Animals, it is said, learn so thoroughly the stinging effect of electric fences, that often the owner may turn the current off for several hours or several days at a time without their ever attempting to cross the wires into forbidden bounds.

McAdams says the average electric outfit will take care of about 15 miles of fence, and it costs only from 10 to 20 cents per month for current. He predicts it will not be long before many other farmers of this section will be using the "touch-me-not" style of fencing.

RED CROSS OBSERVES NURSING ANNIVERSARY

1937 Marks 25th Year Of Public Health Nursing In Rural Areas

"Prior to inauguration of the Red Cross Town and Country nursing service in 1912, no national effort was made to bring nursing skill to the rural school," James L. Fisher, vice chairman in charge of domestic operations for the American Red Cross, said today in commenting on the silver anniversary of Red Cross public health nursing.

A plea for an increased membership during the coming Red Cross annual Red Cross call held from November 11 to the 25th, Mr. Fisher pointed out that Red Cross nursing courses in the field of public health nursing have been in continuous service this year.

"It is essential activities such as this which the American people support through membership in the Red Cross," he said.

In 1910 Lillian Wald, then head nurse of the Henry Street Settlement in New York City proposed that the American Red Cross organize in the field of rural nursing. Public health nurses were active in urban districts but a similar provision had been made to attend the health of the rural dweller.

Mrs. W. W. White said the Red Cross was most qualified for the undertaking through its long experience in converting human suffering into practical accomplishment.

Two years later the first Red Cross rural nurse set forth upon her rounds in a country in Massachusetts. Jacob Schiff, member of the Red Cross Board of Incorporators, and Mrs. Whitehead Field each contributed funds to start the project. Special courses of training for nurses resulted in young women who thoroughly knew the mechanics of this new job.

In 1918 there were 100 rural nursing services conducted by Red Cross chaplains and 18 months later the number of services had skyrocketed to 2,000 as the signing of the Armistice released a flood of War nurses for peace-time duty.

"Reorganization and consolidation eventually cut the number of public health nurses serving under the Red Cross flag," Mr. Fisher stated. "But as a group their efficiency increased."

Mr. Fisher called attention to a study of Red Cross public health nursing accomplishments since the service was begun. "Statistics show that in all nearly 3,000 services were established by the Red Cross," he said. "During the past 15 years 6,896 public health nurses were assigned to chapters, and a total of 18,009,000 visits were made to or in behalf of patients."

"Each year during the past 11, more than 440,000 rural school children have been found to have physical defects. Each year 180,000 of these children were helped through treatment."

At the present time there are 666 Red Cross public health nurses en listed in health work in various communities, and last year more than 1,000,000 visits were made on behalf of the sick.

"It has been our purpose from the first," Mr. Fisher emphasized, "to demonstrate that rural nursing was needed and could be organized. In many instances we have turned established community nursing services over to local health authorities. When this was done, we turned our effort toward opening up additional virgin territory."

Other Red Cross services supported by Roll Call memberships are life saving; first aid; disaster relief and the work of organized Red Cross volunteers.

Many Red Cross chapters carry on extensive civilian relief work. During the past year 120,000 needy families received this type of Red Cross help.

THE REST OF THE RECORD
By James V. Allred
Gov. of Texas

As I write this column the special session has been over two days. I regret exceedingly the uncertainties which come of the thirty-day meeting of the legislators. The sad and pitiful part of it is that nothing was done to help the needy people, the blind and our underprivileged children—withstanding repeated exhortations and warnings. Not only that, but Texas will lose several million dollars of Federal funds to carry on this program.

The people are confused and indignant over the outcome. Certain groups such as the representatives of special interests apparently are well content with the report brought me at the close of the Legislature by the Senate notification committee, which advised me rather gleefully they "had done their work well."

The question uppermost in the minds of the people, however, is "Who, or what, is to blame for these lamentable conditions resulting in the failure to provide funds for the social security program?"

Conflicting statements have been issued since the session by certain senators and house members. Some of the people are unable to fix clearly the responsibility. Why?

The present two-house system of the Legislature is made to order for manipulation and back passing by shrewd parliamentarians. This is not the first session to end with each house blaming the other. The difference is that with the changing and complex problems of recent years this condition has grown worse. Not all the members of either house are to be condemned; yet the good, the patriotic and the sincere members often find themselves condemned along with reactionaries and demagogues.

Lawyers will tell you that delay and time are the greatest aids to a man charged with crime. Delay and time are likewise the most powerful weapons that can be employed to defeat progressive legislation. Under the present legislative system these weapons are readily available and freely employed.

During the past session the people have witnessed a strange situation. The special session was called for the purpose of raising revenues for the needy. A powerful minority group declared no taxes were necessary and employed every artifice possible to defeat the purpose of the session. Certain newspapers criticized the call and advocated no taxes. Now that the session has ended we find that the spokesmen for the same minority group and for the same newspapers criticize the legislature for not passing a tax bill—the very thing they said should not be done.

I shall have more to say later concerning this session.

The untimely death of Judge O. S. Lattimore shocked the entire state. The beloved judge had served with outstanding distinction on the Court of Criminal Appeals for many years. Friends and close associates, as well as admirers from all walks of life, testified to the love and esteem in which Judge Lattimore was held as they solemnly gathered to pay final tribute to this distinguished son of Texas.

Faced with appointment of his successor, I chose Harry N. Graves of Georgetown who resigned from the legislature to accept the judgeship. He is one of the noblest characters I have ever known. Courageously and unselfishly, Judge Graves has served the people of his district and state for many years. He is prominently qualified for this great office and while I regret his patriotic service in the legislature will be ended, I felt that his outstanding service and character should be rewarded.

The appointment of a member of the Legislature to a judgeship was not without precedent. From the Forty-fourth Legislature, I selected Sarah Hughes of Dallas to fill a vacancy as district judge. She became the first woman judge in the history of Texas and her splendid record as district judge has won the admiration and acclaim of the Dallas bar.

BAILEY COUNTY WIVES TAKE GOOD CARE OF THEIR HUSBANDS; MUCH FOOD PREPARED FOR THE WINTER

Bailey county, located about the middle of the North and South Plains of Texas, has the reputation of being a very healthful country; but there are plenty of people living in this county who do not attribute all their boasted health to climate alone, contending much of it is due to the abundance and high quality of food raised here. For every dietician knows that the atmosphere is especially invigorating, have good appetites, and after these have been appraised, they generally have good digestion and assimilation of food. Every dietician knows that it is not the amount of food one masticates; but rather the amount that is assimilated into the system—converted into healthy bone and muscle—that counts for good health and sunny disposition.

If anyone, perchance, has a doubt as to the important part good food plays in the drama of good health in this county, they have but to look over some of the records kept at the court house in Muleshoe by Miss Alma Stewart, county home demonstration agent. Then it would be a good idea to go and visit some of the homes who have taken part in this food raising, preservation and consumption. As a rule, the inmates are an exceptionally healthy and happy folk.

Taking just a peep at Miss Stewart's records it will be found that the women and girls, members of last demonstration and 4-H clubs, last year had 132 adequate gardens; 150 farms had plenty of cows for needed milk; 25,203 quarts of fruits and vegetables were canned; 3,439 quarts of pickles were either canned or put down in brine; 6,833 quarts of meat of different kinds; 14,445 pounds of dried vegetables; 10,000 pounds of stored corn; 4,320 quarts of jams, jellies and preserves made—and all this done by approximately 225 club women and girls representing about 175 families.

No one knows the exact population of Bailey county at this time, it having been estimated all the way from 6,000 to 8,000 people; but taking as a basis of computation 800 families living in this county, and guessing the non-club families averaged putting up annually 375 quarts of fruits and vegetables, 50 quarts of jelly and jam, 50 quarts of pickles, 150 pounds of stored vegetables, 500 pounds of cured meat and 100 containers of canned meat, these figures would furnish a fair total.

General News Over Texas And Adjoining States For The Week

E. W. Marland, governor, has announced his candidacy for the U. S. Senate.

VOLUME 15 NUMBER 41

$21,000 APPROPRIATED TO PAVE HIGHWAY NO. 214

STATE HI-WAY COMMISSION ALSO APPROPRIATES $4,000 FOR UPKEEP OF ROAD FOR 13 MILES DISTANCE

Realization of North and South Highway Draws Nearer and State Officially Takes Over Maintenance.

That the State Highway Commission has officially taken over maintenance of 13.476 miles of State Highway No. 214 leading south from Muleshoe to Needmore, the sum of $4,000 having been appropriated for that purpose, and that a seal coat pavement of asphalt will also be spread as a topping over the caliche base of this highway the same distance, is the information received by County Judge M. G. Miller in a letter received last Friday from Julian Montgomery, state highway engineer.

The commission's minutes No. 14-248, on which the order is based, is as follows:

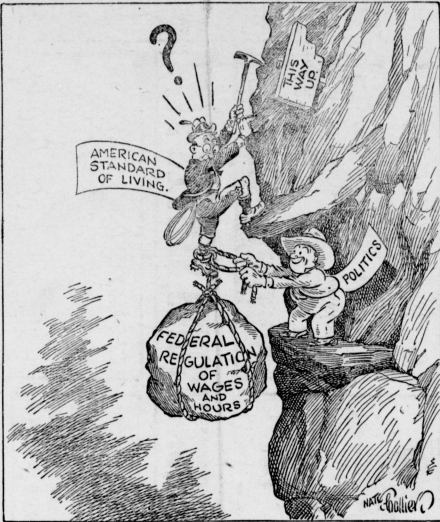

"In Bailey county, it is ordered by the Commission that that section of Highway No. 214 from the intersection of Highway No. 7 in Muleshoe south to Needmore, a distance of 13.476 miles, recently completed as a WPA and NRWR project, be taken over for maintenance, and that an appropriation of $4,000 is hereby made to cover cost of maintenance for the balance of this fiscal year.

"It is further ordered that an appropriation of $21,000 be made to cover the cost of placing an asphaltic base preservative on this section of the road this work to be done under the direction of the State Highway Engineer through the Maintenance division.

"This information will come as good news to the citizens dwelling in the central and southern part of Bailey county, providing them with first class highway convenience for travel to the county seat.

Mr. Tate has charge of and will receive reports from the various community chairmen. The membership campaign will last until Saturday, Nov. 13.

CHECK COMPLIANCE RECORD

Farm operators who have participated in the 1937 Agricultural Conservation program are now checking their reports of performance with Cecil M. Laury, county compliance supervisor, at the county agent's office.

This final check is being made with producers against local supervisors' reports to eliminate errors which would cause suspension and delay of payments.

Reports of performance will be submitted to the State office in shipments of 50, as completed.

Yellowjackets Sting Life Out of Hornets At Sudan, Last Fri.

Muleshoe High school Yellowjackets defeated the Sudan Hornets football team in a fast moving, yet one-sided game played at the neighboring city, Friday afternoon of last week, in a score of 46 to 0. The Muleshoe second string played about half of the game. Players who made touchdowns were: Don Moore, two; Woodie Lambert, two; Frank Prescott, one; Delbert Parsons, two. Frank Prescott kicked three goals, and Charles Long kicked one.

Good team work was shown throughout the entire game, the Yellowjackets scoring on the third play of the game. A Littlefield man refereed the game. A large crowd of fans from Muleshoe and Sudan witnessed the contest.

The local team will play their next match game Friday afternoon of this week on the local field with the Springlake High school team. The pep squad is planning to do some strong side line work. Interested citizens are urged to "witness the game and boost for the Yellowjackets."

Friday afternoon, November 11, the local team will play the Farwell team at Farwell. The neighboring city boasts of having one of the strongest teams they have had in years. They have not lost a game or been scored on this season, according to report; but Muleshoe expects to reverse the record in the forthcoming game.

FARMERS BILL NOW OUTLINED FOR CONGRESS

The House Agriculture committee, Washington, agreed last Monday on the principle of voluntary control of wheat, cotton, and rice crops in the new farm bill coming before the special session of Congress, Nov. 15.

Chairman Marvin Jones said the group also has virtually accepted a proposal for compulsory control of tobacco.

The question of compulsory or voluntary regulation of crop production has been one of the most controversial before the committee, which is drafting a bill for presentation at the special session of congress.

The skeleton bill outlined by Jones also provides for continuation of soil conservation payments, financing the new program by some form of tariff equalizing taxes, and setting up marketing quotas in emergencies.

It differs in many respects from a measure already drawn by Rep. Flannagan (D-Tx) providing for compulsory crop control.

The Flannagan bill would operate chiefly by means of marketing quotas and the imposition of penalties on farmers selling crops in excess of those quotas.

Some sentiment was said to have developed for similar penalties for peanuts and potatoes. There also was opposition in the committee on the ground that if these commodities were given special treatment, it would open the way to demands for special handling of additional crops.

McClevell Well May Have Oil; Test Now Going On at Midland

The McClevell oil test well drilling in southwestern Bailey county was down 4,600 feet late Tuesday afternoon, according to direct report received from the well. Drillers were said to be "coasting" in sand and water, making little effort for headway until further orders were received.

Monday night parties interested in the well left for Midland with samples of the drilling contents for examination and tests. There was some indication that the bit had already gone through the Duggan pay, lowest known horizon of the Permian lime in this area and was now in the glorieta sand. Some gas has been contacted, though just what amount has not been made public.

It is said favorable indications are now present, and it is also reported that the J. O. Whittington interests drilling the well, are quite satisfied they are in an oil area, and in case this well should not prove a producer another may be started in that vicinity in the near future.

Some more leasing has been going on in that section during the past week.

No report of any consequence is available from the Enochs test well.

GOVERNMENT WILL PAY 50 CENTS ON THE CORN CROP

That a 50 cent loan will be made on the nation's corn crop this year, is the announcement from Washington last Tuesday. Testing 14 1/2 per cent moisture content, the grain may be sealed in cribs on the applicant's own farm.

MULESHOE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE TO ENTERTAIN THE 4-H CLUB BOYS AND GIRLS; PINS TO BE GIVEN DECEMBER 8TH

Wednesday, Dec. 8 the 4-H club boys and girls of Bailey county who have finished all the club work for 1937, will attend the graduation exercise to be held at the Methodist church in Muleshoe.

Upon their arrival the Bailey County Home Demonstration council will entertain them with a tea. The exercises will be held and club pins will be presented by the council chairman. After the exercise, the Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce will entertain those who have finished their work with a free picture show. They will see Shirley Temple in "Wee Willie Winkie."

The parents of the 4-H club members are given a special invitation to attend the graduation exercise.

In order for the girls to receive a pin they must complete these goals:

Gardening Goals
 Make the planting plan for the vegetables other than tomatoes, leafy green & yellow vegetables section of the family garden.
 Plant 50 feet of vegetables other than leafy green or yellow per member of the family.
 Conserve 15 containers of canned products and exhibit 1 jar of beets and 1 gal. of onions.

Prepare and serve these vegetables at least 9 times during the year.

Clothing Goals
 Equip sewing box.
 Provide shelves or drawers for folded garments.
 Make hat stand.
 Check "Good Looks for Girls" 12 times.
 Finish school clothes.
 Repair five garments.
 Make pot holder; work dresses, or smock.
 Exhibit garments.
 All good 4-H club girls will write a history of their club work for 1937.

Boys 4-H Club Work
 Members of Boys' 4-H clubs who expect to receive pins as club members shall have submitted complete records of their work for 1937. Demonstrations which were started in 1936 and completed in 1937 shall be considered as 1937 work. Boys who have not completed their work at this time, but will complete the work and submit records during 1937 shall be recognized with membership pin if records are up to date at the time they are checked by the County Agent which will be before the 4-H graduation date.

LOANS TO TENANTS, LABORERS AND SHARE-CROPPERS FOR BUYING FARMS ABOUT READY FOR ISSUE, IS ADVISE

First steps for the administration of the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant act, wherein money will be loaned to competent tenants, farm laborers, and share-croppers for the purpose of purchasing family-sized farms, are now being taken. L. H. Hutter, regional director of the Farm Security administration, announced this week.

Details of an order, signed by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, provides that regional offices will be established with the Farm Security regional director as executive head and with one specialist in tenant farm purchase loans. The entire program will be handled through the regular Farm Security administration.

Mr. Hutter said the Secretary of Agriculture is expected to announce state and county committees at an early date. Within each state the counties in which loans will be made will be determined by the Secretary of Agriculture after recommendations are received from these Farm Security Advisory committees.

Pursuant to the terms of the act, distribution of the $9,500,000 is based on farm population and the prevalence of tenancy in each state and territory. Loans will be made in approximately 300 counties during the fiscal year 1937-38, and the number of loans per county shall not be less than five nor more than 100, except in states in which the total number of loans shall be less than five.

Applications for tenant purchase loans shall be filed with county rural rehabilitation supervisors.

Mr. Hutter, however, has made an urgent request that all applications be withheld until the counties in which this program will be administered this year have been announced. He said this policy will protect would-be applicants from acquiring false hopes, and also save county unnecessary work. Counties in which the program will be administered this year will be made public in the near future.

The above information was received from Mr. Hutter by J. W. McDemmet, rural rehabilitation supervisor, in Bailey county.

$500 Offered at Turk Show To Be Held at Plainview, Dec. 1-2

The fourth annual Southwest Dressed Turkey show will be held in Plainview with cash prizes amounting to more than $500.00 to be awarded in the dressed and live divisions. The show is sponsored by the High-Plains Turkey Improvement association and the Plainview Board of City Development, with W. A. Painter as president of the High-Plains Turkey Improvement association as President of the show.

Other officials are R. Q. Silverthorne, president of the Plainview Board of City Development as Chairman of the Finance committee and Pete. Smith as manager of the show. The show, as last year, will be held in two divisions, the dressed division and the live division. The first day of the show will be turned to judging and demonstrations. On the second day the premiums will be awarded and the show placed in readiness for the auction that afternoon. Four pickup time turkeys, will be auctioned to the highest bidder.

Bailey county turkey growers have in the past been persistent winners of high premiums at these turkey shows and a good representation of growers from this county will participate in the coming event.

H. P. Griffin of Salt Lake City, Utah, will judge the show.

Past turkey shows at Plainview have done much toward improvement of quality in stock bred and fed in this area.

Truck And A Car Collide Near Bula One Charged Drunk

Tuesday about midnight Dewey Kincaid of El Dorado, Okla., driving a 1934 Ford pickup, and Chester B. Stiff of Bula, driving a 1934 Dodge truck, had a head-on collision about a mile north of the Bula school house in the southern part of Bailey county.

Local officials were notified and upon arriving at the scene found the occupants somewhat injured and both trucks badly smashed. Kincaid was brought to Muleshoe and placed in the county jail on a charge of alleged drunken driving. He was badly skinned, bruised and thought to have been internally injured, according to report. He was found out in a field near the wreck by officials and when brought to town was given medical treatment by a local physician.

CLEANERS AND DYERS TO HOLD MEETING IN LUBBOCK, NOV. 15

Lubbock, Nov. 2.—Cleaners and dyers from almost every town and city in Texas and eastern New Mexico will gather in Lubbock, November 15 and 16 to attend the annual convention of the Texas Cleaners and Dyers association.

Expert technicians will appear on the program to discuss the vexing problems that confront those engaged in the cleaning and dyeing industry. Interesting and educational exhibits will be displayed in order that attending delegates may readily comprehend the solution whereby these handicaps may be overcome.

An elaborate entertainment program has already been planned and the Lubbock committee in charge of arrangements promises a full two day session, including the annual get-together the night of November 14.

MANY AT Y L SINGING

Singing last Sunday at Y L community was largely and widely attended, melody lovers from all over Bailey and adjoining counties being present to participate in and enjoy the revelry of sacred music.

Many song leaders and vocal organizations of different kinds were present and took part in the program.

A big basket dinner at the noon hour was an enjoyable feature of the occasion.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL GROUNDS GET WALK FOR ITS PUPILS

A concrete walk was put down last week on the local Grammar school grounds, extending from the school building to the street, furnishing good accommodation to pupils in its eight foot width, the improvements being made under direction of the Parent-Teachers association. It adds much to the service of the youngsters as well as to the appearance of the grounds.

This first improvement is the first of several to be made under direction of this organization on school playgrounds this year.

Africa will have 27 new radio beacons to guide flying boats.

January Floods Reveal Strength of Red Cross

Aid Given 1,062,000 Persons Through Set-Up by Agency

The elasticity and scope of Red Cross disaster work is shown in a recent report on Red Cross relief measures during the unparallelled Ohio-Mississippi Valley flood of this year.

At the height of the emergency Red Cross relief offices were established in 182 inundated counties and in 146 counties where refugees were cared for, the report stated. Eight regional headquarters offices controlled the 228 county offices, and were in turn supervised by the National Red Cross in Washington, D. C.

A statistical summary of persons aided by the organization indicates that the floods constituted the greatest peace-time emergency ever faced by the nation. The Red Cross gave some form of assistance to 1,062,000 men, women and children from January to August hundred of trained workers helped by thousands of volunteers administered to the sufferers.

A Red Cross rescue fleet of 5400 boats was organized, according to the report. Emergency hospitals established totaled 300 and 3500 nurses were assigned to flood duty. In more than 1,000 refugee centers the victims of the flood were sheltered, clothed and fed. Through the Red Cross medical health program and the work of public health agencies sickness was kept to normal for the time of year in all inundated areas.

Because of its disaster experience the Red Cross was directed by the President of the United States, who is also president of the Red Cross, to coordinate the effort of all federal flood relief groups. Government and Red Cross officials met daily at the Red Cross headquarters building in Washington to plan relief measures and prevent duplication of effort.

"We were fortunate in having 56 years of disaster relief experience to call upon in meeting the emergency," Admiral Gary T. Grayson, chairman of the Red Cross, said.

It was found that 97,000 families composed of 426,000 persons had to have their resources supplemented or an entirely new start provided by the Red Cross, the report stated. Red Cross emergency and rehabilitation assistance was as follows: rescue, transportation and shelter for 62,000 families; food, clothing and other necessities for 193,000 families; building and repair for 27,000 families; household nursing for 90,000 families; medical nursing and sanitation help for 15,000 families; agricultural rehabilitation for 10,000 families; other occupational aid for 3,000 families and other types of relief for 4,000 families.

"Credit for this largest peace-time relief operation in the history of the nation must go to the men and women who contributed a Red Cross relief fund of more than $25,000,000," Admiral Grayson said.

During the year the Red Cross gave aid to the victims of 103 major disasters in 36 states, Alaska and the District of Columbia. The Red Cross financed the majority of these relief operations from money contributed through memberships during the annual Roll Call last November, since it is only in case of large scale disasters that a national drive for relief funds is made.

This year the Roll Call is from November 11th to the 25th. The Red Cross seeks a greater membership to meet its disaster relief, and other service obligations during 1938.

Last year Red Cross Chapters gave vital help to 120,000 needy families.

Red Cross Replaces Farm Family Losses

The Red Cross gave agricultural rehabilitation to 10,116 farm families following the severe eastern floods of this winter. Types of aid included feed, seed, livestock, farm tools and machinery and other items essential to agricultural productivity. More than $599,000 was expended by the organization to meet these requirements.

In addition to occupational assistance, rural families hard hit by the flood waters were rescued, clothed, fed and sheltered by the Red Cross. Where it was necessary the Red Cross repaired and rebuilt out-buildings, barns and other structures. Medical and nursing care were provided and homes re-furnished.

Red Cross agricultural rehabilitation benefited nearly three times as many families as received all other types of Red Cross occupational rehabilitation combined.

Labor's advocacy of the Red Cross program is attested by recent statements from William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America. "Red Cross aims and purposes are highly commendable and deserving of the support of all classes of people," said Mr. Green.

"The activities and service of the American Red Cross satisfy a great need of the people, and I strongly urge that it receive the unqualified support of all during its annual Roll Call for members," Mr. Lewis said.

Women Will Attend Recreation Meeting At Lubbock, Nov. 13

Several of the home demonstration club members of Bailey county plan to attend a district recreation meeting to be held at the Junior high school building in Lubbock, Saturday, Nov. 13. Each county will have a part on the program. Mrs. Grace Snider, county recreation chairman will have charge of Bailey county's part. Plans have been made to have "Sug-gestions for a Christmas party." The Circleback 4-H club quartet, composed of Helen La Fon, Lucille Carlyle, Ina Richardson, and Maggie Lee Powell will be on the program. Mrs. Happy Wagon of Longview, will give a reading. The West Camp club will have charge of table games. Mrs. Tommy Galt and Mrs. Glen Thurst of Goodland will have charge of the decorations. A bus will go from Bailey county and the chairman urges that every club in the county be represented if possible. Pure gold is rated as 24 carats fine. For example 14-carats gold consists of 14 parts pure gold and 10 parts of some alloy.

W. T. C. C. WILL NOT MOVE NOW Following decision of Board of Directors to move headquarters of West Texas Chamber of Commerce from Stamford to Abilene serious objection was made by other officials and members and a court injunction restraining such action was filed. It is now reported such move will not be made until and if the membership votes on it at the next annual meeting to be held at Wichita Falls next May. Most deaths attributed to acute indigestion are caused by heart disease, says Dr. Claude C. Beck, Binghamton, N. Y., specialist.

SKINNY
spaces in your engine!

No gangway for mere fast-flowing oils. Instant safety with WINTER OIL-PLATING

Long, skinny oil passages. Pinhole filter screens. Almost invisible spaces between the parts—even in worn engines. There's what you care about against trying to flow all through your cold engine "instantly."

Even if some lappy claim to flowing as fast as your correct Winter grade of Conoco Germ Processed oil, what of it? ... They absolutely cannot OIL-PLATE your engine.

And OIL-PLATING is actually ready to lubricate long before any known oils faintly hope to circulate!

Before you even approach your cold car, OIL-PLATING is already up to the top of your engine, left there by Germ Process action.

This slippy PLATING of oil eases the job for starter and battery... wipes out ruinous Winter warm-ups for you. Your Conoco Mileage Merchant OIL-PLATES your engine with your correct Winter grade of Germ Processed oil and it goes weeks longer between quarts.

Write for "The Story of Oil-Plating" ... Dept. 4, Conoco, Ponca City, Okla.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

These are the commandments which the Lord commanded Moses, for the children of Israel in Mount Sinai—Leviticus 27:34.
Good laws make it easier to do right and harder to do wrong.

TO MUCH GOVERNMENT

Start out tomorrow and canvass the county, asking every man you meet how many different divisions of government there are in the U. S. and it is safe to say not one will be anywhere near correct in his estimate.

For two years the job of counting the actual number has been under way and the result should make every taxpayer in Bailey county open his eyes in wonderment. The total shows that there are in this country 127,000 school districts 20,000 townships, 16,000 incorporated cities, towns, boroughs and villages, 3,000 counties, and 8,600 miscellaneous sewer districts, park districts, levee districts, etc. It must be remembered that each of these 175,418 districts has its payroll, and also that each district has the power to tax.

This is, as all must admit, a most wasteful setup. There are at least ten times too many of these governmental subdivisions. Because they are centered in Washington, federal employees draw a concentrated fire of criticism because of their numbers; but, in reality, their numbers are insignificant when compared with the great army of overlapping employees of lesser political and governmental units.

Residents of every state cry aloud for economy in public affairs and reduction in taxes, and never turn a hand toward consolidating some of their units of state and county government, and abolishing those for which there is no real need.

Only last week the Texas Legislature spent approximately $200,000 for another special session in which practically nothing was done for the state in the way of providing needed revenue or cutting down unneeded expenses. Much criticism is being heaped upon the solons as a result. Some are being accused of being penurious, others of being in the pay of utility and similar corporations of great business magnitude. In the meantime pensions to old people, the blind and children, authorized by the citizens of the state will remain unpaid for a while until something is done some way to provide the necessary means. Taxpayers will walk to the public trough and pitch in assessments just the same, the tax-eaters will draw their salaries just the same, and economic conditions in many ways will not be improved.

Texas would be a good state to start something new, but it is not likely to do so, until there is a nation-wide move in the direction of economy, we must continue to live in a country that suffers from entirely too much government.

MORE MACHINES

A news report out of Chicago is to the effect that every cotton-picking machine that was on the market was sold this year and that the manufacturers say they could have sold ten times as many if they had produced them. Of course, there was a bumper crop corn to be handled. Then, too, there was a scarcity of farm labor—let it be said to the shame of a country with such a vast army of unemployed. The new device that gathers the ears, husbs them and then loads them onto a truck may be the means of solving the farm labor shortage in the future.

Farmers in this part of the nation are not so much interested in mechanical cotton-pickers; but they are vitally interested in cotton-picking machines. Probably not one cotton grower in a hundred or more would ever invest in one of them when they finally become perfected; but some of the machines will be purchased for custom use and will be hired by small growers.

Whether these picking machines of the corn and cotton variety will turn out to be profitable devices remains yet to be seen. Many years ago the threshing machine put hundreds of cradle-wielders out of work. The modern wheat combine cut the harvesting crew from around 20 laborers down to about five. The country survived the invention and labor elimination. When these new mechanical pickers will create a still greater army of unemployed for the taxpayers of the country to take care of remains to be seen. So far in this paper, it seems new machinery has managed also to create new jobs. Whether pickers will be burdens or blessings is just now another question. At any rate the perfected cotton picker is not yet in our midst.

It is not generally considered logical that machines are the cause of unemployment, on the contrary they frequently open new lines of employment accommodating many who previously had been out of work.

A recent survey made by the machinery Institute, Chicago, find that factory employment today is 93 per cent above the 1899 level when little machinery was used, while population is only 72 per cent above the 1899 figure. Had there been no increase in mechanization since then a ninety-four-hour work week would be required for factory workers to produce the goods necessary for the current standard of living.

WILD OR MILD?

The returns now seem to be in, and it looks like a tie. About half of the country's amateur weather prophets are forecasting another long, hard winter like the nation shivered through two years ago, while the other half contends that times-tried and long-tested signs all indicate it is going to be both short and balmy.

One half says the squirrels are storing more nuts than usual, and that means a hard winter; the other half contends wild duck and geese did not start south as early this fall, and that means a mild, open season. Some of them contend husks on the nation's bumper crop are thicker than they normally are, which indicates plenty of snow and ice ahead; others assert that moss is almost absent from the north sides of forest trees, and that mild winters invariably follow this condition.

The Quality of Mercy...

Drawn for the American Red Cross by Lawrence Wilbur

So they go, these amateur prophets of joy and gloom, about evenly divided in their forecasts of what kind of winter lies ahead. As long as they are evenly divided there is always the chance, of course, that half of them are bound to be right, but the average citizen around Muleshoe isn't being fooled by their predictions. He is putting his house in order for whatever comes. If it is a mild season, he will be prepared to make the best of it. The only thing ahead that he looks forward to with dread is the coming of spring, when at least one-half of these amateur weather prophets will be chirping: "I told you so!"

WHY JUNK IT?

This day in time when it's stylish to be thrifty and the practice of economy is among our greatest virtues it's hard to understand why so many are wasting when there is no occasion for it.

For instance, take the housewife who hauls out perfectly good furniture, a stove or other pieces of household goods that are still serviceable and stacks the same away in cellar, attic, garage or barn when someone in the community would be glad to have it at a reasonable price. Or the farmer who does the same thing when he replaces old implements with new. Is that economy?

There are folks right around here who would be glad to get such things if you would tell them about it. And it would cost but a few cents to tell them—and sell them—through the columns of this paper.

You would not only be doing a real service to someone who could not afford to buy the articles new that you are practically throwing away, but it would net you a few dollars at the same time. It certainly will beat junking the things that are still serviceable to someone.

Jaunty Journalettes

The Muleshoe man who thinks he knows it all is trading on very small capital.

The average Muleshoe resident who lives past babyhood is not likely to be in much future danger of being killed by kindness.

Maybe more Muleshoe fathers would send their children to college if they knew the kids wouldn't come home and criticize their grammar.

Perhaps the reason some Muleshoe husbands don't lie offener than they do is because their wives are sometimes too tired to ask questions.

Motherhood is about the only thing Muleshoe women can engage in now that is free from male competition—and plenty of women don't appreciate that distinction.

The best medicine lots of Muleshoe folks can take for a pain is the dose they take just before the darn thing stops of its own accord.

What has become of the old-fashioned Muleshoe man who used to argue that giving women the right to vote would purify politics?

Along about this time of the year when a Muleshoe man comes home and finds his wife reading the automobile ads—he'd better go back to work. Muleshoe boys now find that one of their greatest problems is what kind of birthday present to buy for a girl who doesn't smoke.

College, to the average Muleshoe girl is much like a washing machine. You get out of it what you put in it—but you would never recognize it.

No Bailey county farmer whose cow has had the colic can understand how a radio crooner can get $1,000 a week for making the same kind of noise.

Most Muleshoe women seem to be content by the time they reach 40, for by that time they've either got a husband or else quit worrying about getting one.

Joe Bill Absup says he can't quite figure it out: "Doctors say ice cream causes freckles, yet girls use cold cream to cure 'em."

E. H. Wood, local plumber, says the shower bath was probably invented by some fellow whose wife persisted in bawling him out for leaving a ring around the bath tub.

Carol Gosé says he is willing to dub as "the most useful citizen" in Muleshoe the man who will invent an auto carburetor that will make a car go 200 miles on a gallon of gas so one won't have to fill the tank while looking for a parking place here on Saturdays.

A female Sonagambian cotton picker came into the Famous store the other day asking for "flesh colored" hosiery. Miss Rose showed her some black ones, incidentally remarking, "We also have some pink and yellow ones for the white folks, if you prefer."

Chief of Police Perry reports a couple negroes fighting on the streets of Muleshoe a few days ago. Standing by was a little negro boy who kept screaming, "Daddy, Daddy!" The Chief rushing up asked the little chap which one of them was his father. "Das jes de point, mister. Das jes what dey's fightin' about."

What's Happening In Washington And Other Cities Of Importance

J. W. McDermott, manager of the local Resettlement office has recently been having some trouble with government papers issued farmers of this county. The other day he discovered they were being taken to the Fry & Cox blacksmith shop, where some were filed while others were being forged.

A tramp came to Mrs. Jess Osbornes kitchen door a few days ago claiming he hadn't eaten for four days. "If you don't believe it, he said, 'just look at me lady. She did, and then exclaimed: 'For heavens sake how do you do it? I've been dieting for the past two months and haven't lost a single pound!'"

Clearly the municipality of "Heavenly Hurley" is coming to the front, and its mayor is beginning to feel his importance. Last week he received a letter addressed to the "Leading Grain Dealer, Hurley, Texas," and this week another addressed to the "Postmaster," that city. Local postmaster, A. J. Gardner, kindly referred them both to the mayor of that municipality. Folks around here may think Hurley was disbanded 15 years ago when Muleshoe came into existence, but evidently there are folks in El Paso and New York City who think different. On Boy! It may get the county seat.

A federal law went into effect last Monday designed to ease restrictions on stock buying and lighten those on short selling. It reduces from 35 to 40 per cent the cash margin for purchases and imposes a 50 per cent margin on short sales.

Henry Ford has announced expansion plans of the Ford Motor Co., to the extent of $40,000,000 in additions to the Rouge river plant, enabling the company to manufacture many of the parts and accessories of its cars regardless of associated concerns. Included in the new project will be a giant 1,000-ton blast furnace costing $4,500,000.

The monthly income of the CIO is placed at $190,000. Recent financial report of that labor organization shows its expenses for 16 months totaled $1,745,068, all of which came from members in the form of dues and assessments. Details of the expenses were not made public, however, it is reported that approximately $600,000 of it was expended in recent strike activities.

Social security for more than 20,000,000 persons since February, 1936 cost $230,425,436 in federal grants, it was announced last Saturday. Public assistance grants for the aged, the blind and dependent children accounted for $214,464,571 of the outlay. The balance of $15,960,865 paid the cost of administering state unemployment compensation laws for 21,000,000 insured workers.

"PRETTY good, eh? I should say, rather. But what's come over Bryce? This is entirely out of his line. Wonderful piece of work, though. Best he's ever done, and that's no mean praise."

A group of members was lingering in the salon of the Art club, discussing the fall exhibition which had opened that day with private showing for "members only."

"A change is good for one, you know," he had laughingly replied when questioned about that was all. Old Jim the caretaker, however, had his own opinion of "Mister Bryce's" picture, an opinion which he kept to himself.

But some one was written in the stars for David, an altogether desirable someone, and one day he found her. He was walking through the business section of the city when he saw a girl with a sunburned face emerge from an office building.

While he ate, he studied his companion covertly as she glanced interestedly about her. Once her eyes rested upon David, quite impersonally, as they might upon any object confronting them, but David had stood still. They were beautiful eyes, candid and clear.

"She's a dreamer," thought David, "and her dreams are not ordinary. When Miss Sunburn arose David reached for his chair although his meal was but half eaten. Food meant nothing just then. The important thing was not to lose sight of her, and David discreetly trailed, following as she took her short walk before returning to her office.

For a month this continued, and David had learned a little from his noon-day study. Miss Sunburn loved the sea, for several times he had taken her in the direction of the wharves, and he had noticed how her face had lifted to the sharp, salt air; once she had stopped to watch a solitary gull winging its way above the warehouses. She disliked her work, for she seemed to droop, her step lost its springiness, when she neared the office-building. She cared for pictures, for she had cut short her lunch one noon in order to view those on exhibition at one of the art shops.

One evening David turned into the River drive for a walk. The sun was just setting. The crimson-and-gold of the sky was tinted in the west, and a rosy glow diffused itself over everything. Suddenly he saw Miss Sunburn. She was standing by the rail looking toward the west. Her face seemed transfixed, lost in contemplation of the loveliness about her.

An inspiration came to David. He would paint her, just as he saw her there, for the Fall Exhibition. He worked steadily, grudging the time given to sleep and meals until the portrait was finished. Every line of her face and figure had been branded in his heart and the result satisfied even his critical eyes. The canvas, carefully wrapped, was sent to the Art club.

The two weeks that followed were weeks of misery for David. He haunted the salon but Miss Sunburn did not come. He stopped going to the cafeteria for fear she might recognize him and spoil his surprise. The last day—would she come? She might be ill—he dared not think that. Half-past five and at six the doors closed. That little wing-tipped hat! Yes, it was. David felt strangely weak. What would she think of him? Would his daring offend her? He stood before the picture. They were alone save for one or two stragglers near the door, and Jim, who was busily picking up discarded catalogues and pamphlets.

The girl was very quiet standing before the portrait. Then she turned surprised and a little frightened and noticed David. "It is a picture of me, but how did it get here and how could David Bryce know me well enough to paint me like that?"

David drew her to a chair. "Don't be frightened. I am David Bryce. I saw you one evening on the River Drive and painted you." Then with a rush David went on from his first glimpse of the suburban to the completion of the portrait and his fear that she would not come to the exhibition.

Jim had shooed out the stragglers, discreetly overlooking David and his companion. "So that's the story, hm! Well, there's one picture that won't be for sale, though there'd be many a one to buy it. I'll be wrapped 't up tonight for he'll be sending for it the first thing in the mornin'! Then that's intended for each other generally finds each other, though it's queer the way things do happen." And then, turning, Jim stumped off in search of burlap.

Goes to Yamboree

DENTON, Texas.—Wearing the green and white colors of her school, charming Miss Ayne Mackey, sophomore from Gladewater, represented the North Texas State Teachers College at the Yamboree, annual sweet potato festival held this year at Gilmer, Tex., Oct. 21-23.

Colleges To Have A Part In The Baptist Convention at El Paso

El Paso, Texas, Oct. 30.—Baylor University, whose great winning football team has been the national sports sensation of the year, and other Texas Baptist colleges will occupy another sort of limelight at the Baptist General convention of Texas here Nov. 8-13. Reports of remarkable progress during the past year are expected to be heard from Baylor, Hardin-Simmons of Abilene—another Baptist school with an outstanding football team—Mary Hardin-Baylor of Belton, Wayland College of Plainview, Howard Payne of Brownwood, the college of Marshall and San Marcos academy.

The total number of students in Baptist colleges in Texas is 6,000 and the total fixed assets of the institutions are $8,600,000. The 5,000 Texas Baptists who assemble here for a week's convention are expected to renew their loyalty and support of these institutions.

President Pat M. Neff of Baylor—the largest church controlled university in the world—will report on Baylor's largest enrollment in its distinguished 92 years of service to Texas. Baylor's two branches are at Waco and Dallas, with the Medical Branches in Dallas. Under President Neff's administration, the debt at Baylor has been vastly reduced.

The Baptist general convention of Texas is the largest state convention of its kind in the world. Elaborate plans for entertainment of delegates and visitors have been made, including a trip to the latest wonder of the world, Carlsbad caverns, New Mexico.

NEWS PRINT COST ADVANCES

Announcement has been made by the American Newspaper Publishers' association of the advance of $8.00 per ton in the price of news print, which means it will cost newspapers of America an estimated $25,000,000 extra for paper on which to print their news during the coming year.

It is officially stated that in consideration that newspapers do not make any money from their circulation; but rather subscriptions are listed as liabilities in the fact that they cost more than received from subscribers, which extra cost must be taken from the paper's advertising fund, its only source of revenue, that circulation and advertising rates will be due an advance not later than the first of the coming year.

Lucille Carlyle will play a piano solo. The following members of the Circleback club will take part in a skit: Charles Duncan, Wanda Sue Wells, Mildred Simms, Ellen Black, Willie Jean Patton, Coy May Robison.

Hippo Surprisingly Agile Some people regard the hippopotamus as a very gentle beast, more or less in the class of the common moo-cow as a fighter. Actually he is surprisingly agile when aroused and has large, sharp tusks in his huge lower jaw with which he can slash sideways with devastating effect. His weight, sometimes amounting to four tons, is a formidable factor, especially when he is in his favorite element, water. On at least one occasion the hippo is reliably reported to have upset and crushed between his tusks a steamer. He has been known to ram even a river steamer.

DESPITE GHOSTS AND HOBGOBLINS SCHOOL CARNIVAL SPONSORS GET $157; MISS JOE V. GOINS IS QUEEN

The annual Halloween carnival was held at the Muleshoe High school building Friday night of last week, with a large crowd attending and a total of $186.45 was taken in from the various attractions. There were expenses of $28.62 to be paid and $157.83 was cleared from the event, which amount will be used for athletics and supplies for the library.

Miss Joe V. Goins, sophomore class representative, was elected queen of the High school and Mrs. Claudie Gallman had charge of the coronation. The queenly races closed promptly at 9:30 p. m., and the program immediately followed. Miss Nona Fay Johnson, freshman representative, was second in the queens race.

A program was given in the auditorium by the first, second and fourth grade groups, under direction of the teachers. Mrs. W. C. Cox, Mrs. Ethel Fowler and Miss Okla Mae Lawrence. The play presented was very interesting and amusing, and attracted much attention.

The building was decorated appropriately for the occasion with black cats, witches, lighted pumpkins, black and orange crepe paper streamers and the regular Halloween fixtures. Booths were stationed in every room and in the halls, and many attending patronized them all. Outstanding features were the bingo stand, cat rack, ring-board stand, "hall of horrors," shooting gallery, novelty booth and many others, directed by teachers of the High and Grammar school.

Let's get down to ^{crank} Cases

To keep your car from growing old too soon... to make it run with that wonderful smoothness and pep it used to have when it was new... pay a lot of attention to the crankcase. That's where a motor's hardening-of-the-arteries starts.

So drain the crankcase—NOT your pocket-book, by refilling with Phillips 66 Motor Oil. It is Phillips fine 4, made from a costlier 100% paraffin base crude.

It meets the higher requirements of today's modern motors because it has high-degree oiliness. Refined into it by Phillips painstaking modern process. Besides, it is extra clean and extra thrifty. No wasteful light parts to cook out or burn out. Hence the film is tougher and longer-lasting.

Next time, drain and refill with Phillips 66 Motor Oil. It's concentrated!... This year's big value in car lubrication. Look for the Orange and Black 66 Shield.

W. B. McADAMS HAS "TOUCH-ME-NOT" ELECTRIC FENCE FOR PASTURE, IT'S EFFECTIVENESS DECLARED PERFECT

That Bailey county keeps abreast of the trend of modern times, is again indicated in the fact that the electric fence has invaded this political subdivision, one having been installed by W. B. McAdams a short time ago on his farm about a mile northwest of Muleshoe. He has about six acres pasture fenced with a double wire, electrically charged, which holds livestock within the prescribed bounds as efficiently as if the fence was made of barbed wire strands reaching 10 feet high. He says it didn't take his hogs and cattle very long to learn the "touch-me-not" system and to stay away from it. Several other farmers are said to be contemplating purchase of electrical fences of similar type.

It has been several years now since farmers first began experimenting with the touch-me-not fence, and, in some instances, it cost them several head of stock, because their homemade mechanisms for furnishing the electrical current were improper. They didn't understand the system of getting the current turned on and off so as to keep the animals from "freezing" to the fence when they came in contact with it, the current being strong enough to frequently kill the animals. Instances are on record also where humans have met near death from the same cause.

After electric engineers got to working on the idea, a very simple system was worked out and has been in very satisfactory service now for some years past. Ordinary 110 volt current is used; but it must have a very low amperage for desired results; and there must be that off-and-on-feature to the current. Some systems operate from storage batteries.

Electric fences are especially desirable for temporary pastures, to protect hay or feed stacks, fencing lanes, etc., only smooth wire is used and it doesn't take long to string it. If the current amperage is kept low, it is said there is absolutely no danger what ever from an electric fence.

McAdams says it is interesting to watch hogs and cattle graze right up to the wire, but they never touch it.

He declares it is an absolute cure for breechy stock and the best tamer in the world for a vicious gentleman cow. Sheep are about the hardest to tame, their wool tending to insulate them from the stinging effect of the current. Western farmers who have tried this kind of fence declare it cuts down the nuisance from coyotes and other wild animals who seek to get inside of pastures and destroy domestic stock. Animals, it is said, learn so thoroughly the stinging effect of electric fences, that often the owner may turn the current off for several hours or several days at a time without their ever attempting to cross the wires into forbidden bounds.

McAdams says the average electric outfit will take care of about 15 miles of fence, and it costs only from 10 to 20 cents per month for current. He predicts it will not be long before many other farmers of this section will be using the "touch-me-not" style of fencing.

RED CROSS OBSERVES NURSING ANNIVERSARY

1937 Marks 25th Year Of Public Health Nursing In Rural Areas

"Prior to inauguration of the Red Cross Town and Country nursing service in 1912, no national effort was made to bring nursing skill to the rural stockhead." James L. Fieser, vice chairman in charge of domestic operations for the American Red Cross, said today in commenting on the silver anniversary of Red Cross public health nursing.

In a plea for an increased membership during the coming Red Cross annual Roll Call held from November 11 to the 25th, Mr. Fieser pointed out that Red Cross rural nursing rounds out 25 years of continuous service this year.

"It is essential activities such as this which the American people support through membership," he said. In 1919 Lillian Wald, then head resident of the Henry Street Settlement in New York City, proposed that the American Red Cross pioneer in the field of rural nursing. Public health nurses were active in urban districts but a similar provision had been made to guard the health of the rural dweller.

Miss Wald felt that the Red Cross was best qualified for the undertaking through its long experience in converting humanitarian ideals into practical accomplishment.

By 1918 there were 100 rural nursing services conducted by Red Cross chapters; and 18 months later the number of services had skyrocketed to 2,000, as the signing of the Armistice released a flood of War nurses for peace-time duty.

"Reorganization and consolidation eventually cut the number of public health nurses serving under the Red Cross flag," Mr. Fieser stated. "But as a group their efficiency increased."

Mr. Fieser called attention to a study of Red Cross public health nursing accomplishments since the service was begun. "Statistics show that in all nearly 3,000 services were established by the Red Cross," he said. "During the past 15 years 6,800 public health nurses were assigned to chapters, and a total of 18,000,000 visits were made to or in behalf of patients."

"Each year during the past 11, more than 440,000 rural school children have been found to have physical defects. Each year 189,000 of these children were helped through treatment."

At the present time there are 666 Red Cross public health nurses engaged in health work in rural communities, and last year more than 1,000,000 visits were made on behalf of the sick.

"It has been our purpose from the first," Mr. Fieser emphasized, "to demonstrate that rural nursing is needed and could be organized. In many instances we have turned established community nursing services over to local health authorities. When this was done, we turned our effort toward opening up additional virgin territory."

Other Red Cross services supported by Roll Call memberships are life saving; first aid; disaster relief and the work of organized Red Cross volunteers.

Many Red Cross chapters carry on extensive civilian relief work. During the past year 126,000 needy families received this type of Red Cross help.

THE REST OF THE RECORD
By James V. Allred
Gov. of Texas

As I write this column the special session has been over two days. I regret exceedingly the unfortunate outcome of the thirty-day meeting of the legislators. The sad and pitiful part of it is that nothing was done to help the needy people, the blind and our underprivileged children—notwithstanding repeated exhortations and warnings. Not only that, but Texas will lose several million dollars of Federal funds to carry on this program.

The people are confused and ignorant over the outcome. Certain groups, such as the representatives of special interests apparently are well contented with the report brought me at the close of the Legislature by the Senate notification committee, which advised me rather gleefully they "had done their work well."

The question uppermost in the minds of the people, however, is "Who, or what, is to blame for these lamentable conditions resulting in the failure to provide funds for the social security program?"

Conflicting statements have been issued since the session by certain senators and house members. Some of the people are unable to fix clearly the responsibility. Why?

The present two-house system of the Legislature is made to order for sly manipulation and buck passing by shrewd parliamentarians. This is not the first session to end with each house blaming the other. The difference is that with the changing and complex problems of recent years this condition has grown worse. Not all the members of either house are to be condemned; yet, the good, the patriotic, the diligent, the sincere members often find themselves condemned along with reactionaries and demagogues.

Lawyers will tell you that delay and time are the greatest aids to a man charged with crime. Delay and time are likewise the most powerful weapons that can be employed to defeat progressive legislation. Under our present legislative system these weapons are readily available and freely employed.

During the past session the people have witnessed a strange situation. The special session was called for the purpose of raising revenues for the needed. A powerful minority group declared no taxes were necessary and employed every artifice possible to defeat the purpose of the session. Certain newspapers criticized the call and advocated no taxes. Now that the session has ended we find that the spokesmen for the same minority group and for the same newspapers criticize the legislature for not passing a tax bill—the very thing they said should not be done.

I shall have more to say later concerning this session.

The untimely death of Judge O. S. Lattimore shocked the entire state. The beloved judge had served with outstanding distinction on the Court of Criminal Appeals for many years. Friends and close associates, as well as admirers from all walks of life, testified to the love and esteem in which Judge Lattimore was held as they solemnly gathered to pay final tribute to this distinguished son of Texas.

Faced with appointment of his successor, I chose Harry N. Graves of Georgetown who resigned from the Legislature to accept the judgeship. He is one of the noblest characters I have ever known. Courageously and unselfishly, Judge Graves has served the people of his district and state for many years. He is preeminently qualified for this great office and while I regret his patriotic service in the legislature will be ended, I felt that his outstanding service and character should be rewarded.

The appointment of a member of the Legislature to a judgeship was not without precedent. From the Forty-fourth Legislature, I selected Sarah Hughes of Dallas to fill a vacancy as district judge. She became the first woman judge in the history of Texas and her splendid record as district judge has won the admiration and acclaim of the Dallas bar.

MAY GET MORE STATE FUNDS
With the signing by Gov. Allred last Saturday of a bill passed by the recent session of Texas legislature appropriating approximately $800,000 more for operating school buses, Bailey county now hopes to obtain as much state funds for this purpose as was allocated last year, according to M. G. Miller county superintendent.

Ten school districts of this county last year received a total of $5,385.68.

W. F. CATO TAKES HIS LIFE
W. F. Cato, 50, former Garza county sheriff 10 years, was found in the bedroom of his home at Post Tuesday afternoon with a 45 calibre bullet through his heart. Officials said it was suicide. Cato figured prominently in the killing of a federal officer early in 1935. He was cleared of the charge; but had been brooding much over financial conditions recently, it is said.

First Corporation Tax
Congress passed the first corporation tax on August 5, 1909.

BAILEY COUNTY WIVES TAKE GOOD CARE OF THEIR HUSBANDS; MUCH FOOD PREPARED FOR THE WINTER

Bailey county, located about the middle of the North and South Plains of Texas, has the reputation of being a very healthful country; but there are plenty of people living in this county who do not attribute all their boasted health to climate alone, contending much of it is due to the abundance and high quality of food raised here. People living in this altitude, where the atmosphere is especially invigorating, have good appetites, and, after these have been appeased, they generally have good digestion and assimilation of their food. Every dietitian knows that it is not the amount of food one masticates; but rather the amount that is assimilated into the system—converted into healthy bone and muscle—that counts for good health and sunny disposition.

If anyone, perchance, has a doubt as to the important part good food plays in the drama of good health in this county, they have but to look over some of the records kept at the court house in Mulshoe by Miss Alma Stewart, county home demonstration agent. Then it would be a good idea to go and visit some of the homes who have taken part in this food raising, preservation and consumption. As a rule, the inmates are an exceptionally healthy and happy folk.

Taking just a deep at Miss Stewart's records it will be found that the women and girls, members of her demonstration and 4-II clubs, last year had 132 adequate gardens; 150 farms had plenty of cows for needed milk; 29,243 quarts of fruits and vegetables were canned; 3,439 quarts of pickles were either canned or put down in brine; 6,833 quarts of meat of different kinds; 14,445 pounds of dried vegetables of various kinds stored away and 32,000 pounds of meat cured and stored.

There were 6,235 pounds of nuts of various kinds, mostly peanuts, put away; nobody knows how much popcorn, 4,320 quarts of jams, jellies and preserves made—and all this done by approximately 225 club women and girls, representing about 175 families. Some record, eh?

No one knows the exact population of Bailey county at this time, it having been estimated all the way from 6,000 to 8,000 people; but taking as a basis of computation 800 families living in this county, and guessing the non-club families averaged putting up annually 275 quarts of fruits and vegetables, 50 pints of jelly and jam, 50 quarts of pickles, 150 pounds of stored vegetables, 500 pounds of cured meat and 100 containers of canned meat—these figures would furnish a fair total.

General News Over Texas And Adjoining States For The Week
E. W. Marland, Oklahoma governor, has announced his candidacy for the U. S. Senate.

The Texas mohair crop this year is valued at $9,250,000 coming from 3,024,000 goats.

Rosevelt Co., N. M., now has 10,000 acres under irrigation in its shallow water belt, according to W. G. Vanzant, county agent.

R. L. Malone, farmer near Roswell, N. M., produced 4,000 bushels of fine Valencia onions on three and one-half acres of land this year.

Cattle shipments to market from Texas are about one-third more than they were this time last year. Poultry shipments show similar increase.

O. S. Lattimore, associate justice of the Texas Criminal Appeals court, Austin, died Wednesday of last week from a heart ailment.

Homesteads on the Ropesville settlement tract have been entered from 160 to 266 acres each and will be leased to settlers for five years with privilege of purchase at the end of that time.

Stock raiders by bandits across the Rio Grande river from Mexico to the U. S. have been superceded by cotton raids, thousands of pounds of the staple being reported picked and stolen at night by thieves who cross the border.

A letter received this week from Edwin G. Erier, Keosauqua, Iowa, renewing his subscription to the Journal, remarks about poor crops in his section and many of them now going dry which had never done so before.

Harry N. Graves of Georgetown, for nine years a member of the Texas Legislature, has been appointed by Gov. Allred to succeed the late O. S. Lattimore, as associate justice of the Court of Criminal Appeals, Austin.

Fire of unknown origin did $15,000 damage to the Allen gin located between Lockney and Plainview last Sunday night. Rebuilding will start soon. With 403 prisoners booked during the past four months and 103 lodged in jail during October, Clovis, N. M., claims it needs a larger bastle.

of food prepared annually for family consumption in this county, it must also be borne in mind, that while some families who are non-club members put away practically no food during canning and curing season, there are also a few others who put away practically as much as do the club members, though club members as a whole will average much higher in their foresight preparation for winter food enjoyment.

When it is considered that members of these home demonstration clubs last year canned a total of 43,795 quarts of fruit, vegetables, meat and jams, to say nothing of the other thousands of pounds of food cured and stored, figures for the entire county will run up big.

Miss Stewart says there have been more and better gardens this year, and present indications are the total canning, curing and storing will be much larger for 1937 than it was for 1936.

Furthermore, these wives and daughters who are so intent on taking good care of their families, not only preserve an adequate supply; but they are also very careful in putting on the table the most healthful and well balanced diet, according to the latest scientific degrees of epicureans and dietitians, which calls for three different kinds of vegetables, one being leafy, one green and one starchy, daily; two kinds of fruits daily with citrus fruits or tomatoes served at least three times weekly; one quart per child and one pint per adult of milk daily; two servings of meat, eggs or cheese, or else beans or peas daily, also butler.

Surely there is no question but Bailey county wives take good care of their husbands and other members of their families. The contents of pantries and cellars are the best possible proof of that fact—and no wonder Bailey county husbands are proud of their wives. The "way to a husband's heart is through his stomach," and these wives know how to travel that route.
