

Football Season Now in Full Blast

Fall's crisp atmosphere calls to mind a countless row of pictures out of the memory of twenty-two men, attired in well padded suits, out on the turf fighting for the honor of the old school. For of all sports, there is none that leaves deeper impression upon the memory than football. With all that may be said against it, it will always remain one of the greatest of all American games.

Sports dopsters are filling the columns of the daily press with accounts of what is taking place in the training camps of the big colleges. High school boys are getting excited and learning that school time is not the worst season of the year in all respects. Somehow it gets in the blood.

The boy who spends his spare time through the fall undergoing the arduous training demanded by the game learns something of discipline, something of the value of team-work, and much of the meaning of loyalty. Early in life he comes to realize that the individual must give up many idle pleasures in order to arrive at the desired goal. He also discovers that it isn't the work of the stars, but the co-operative efforts of the entire squad, that puts over the winning touchdown. And above all, he comes to understand that loyalty to the team, and the school (which later may develop into loyalty to the employer, the community and the state) bring an internal satisfaction and pleasure that mere money can never buy.

Armistice Day Program a Winner

The Armistice day program sponsored by the Civic League here Wednesday was attended by a large crowd from all over the county. The American Legion and schools formed in parade line and marched thru the streets of the town then marched to the Baptist church. Following the flag man and the leaders of the parade came a Lincoln touring car and then a Chevrolet truck with the Health squad of the county. Many new cars were displayed in the long line. Then came the school children and the teachers. At the church a number of short addresses were delivered, each speaker realizing that he had but a short time to make his address put much into very few words. Supt. Smith, Mrs. W. A. Milligan, president of the League, District Judge Joiner, Miss Catherine Hagquist State nurse, Taylor White, W. P. Davis, Judge Kennedy and S. A. Goodson of the American Legion all made talks on topics of the day in an interesting manner.

Miss Ruth Hardin rendered a piano solo that brought forth many favorable comments. Judge Joiner's reference to the menace of the day as reference to teaching of evolution in our schools met with the hearty approval of the audience.

The Civic League is to be congratulated for their work. This organization is one of the important spokes of the wheel of progress of any city or county.

Muleshoe Girl Making Good at Clarendon

According to information received from the Clarendon College paper "The Clarco", Miss Helen Carles stands in eighth place on the honor roll for the first six weeks. We are always glad to learn of the young people from here making good.

Yellow Jackets Are Victorious Over Portales

Playing a superior brand of football on last Friday afternoon the local High school eleven decisively defeated "The Portales Hurders". The score being 17-0. This game gave the local townsmen their first opportunity of seeing the Yellow Jacket squad in action. The game was played on the local field and was witnessed by some two hundred enthusiastic fans.

The starting of the game found the Jackets kicking to the Hurders, who were defending the South goal. The entire quarter was marked by the terrific line plunging of both the teams, neither being able to score.

The second quarter opened with the ball in Muleshoe's possession on the Portales thirty yard line. A complete pass from McClure to Moeller netted 65 yards. On the next play Captain Hart plunged over the line for the first score of the game. McClure kicked goal. The remaining part of the period again featured terrific line plunging on both sides. The half ended with the ball in Portales possession in mid-field. Score; Yellow Jackets, 7 Portales 0.

The third quarter found both teams fighting hard to score, but neither seemed to have the necessary punch. During this quarter Muleshoe flashed as a strong defensive team, intercepting a few passes, and being very apt at recovering fumbles.

The final quarter was an exhibition of a spectacular aerial game. On the first play, Moeller punted 40 yards, and Lee recovered due to a fumble on the part of the Portales receiver. At this time the Jackets were going strong, and on successive line bucks carried the ball to within six inches of the goal; where they were held for downs. "The Hurders" punted 20 yards out of bounds Muleshoe took the ball again, and on four successive line blunges by Ed Hart, carried the ball over for the second tally. Moller kicked goal.

Portales received the kick-off and carried the ball back to their forty line. A pass to their left and netted them a twenty yard gain. Incidentally this was the only pass that the visitors completed. Here the Jackets tightened their defense and took possession of the ball on downs. On a lock-step formation Moeller gained twenty yards. The following play featured Johnson on a long end run for a forty yard gain. After being held for downs on three attempts, McClure fell back and drop kicked a field goal which gave the Jackets three more points.

The remaining part of the game found Moeller continually punting the ball deep into the enemies territory.

The game ended with the ball in the possession of Portales on the fifty yard line. Score: Yellow Jackets 17; Poatales 0.

The Yellow Jacket line presented a strong defense at critical moments, and were responsible for the decisive beating handed to Portales.

The visitors are to be commended upon for their pluckiness and well executed line plays.

Many Trees Shipped From Herford Soon

More than eleven thousand dollars worth of trees will be shipped from the Hereford Nursery to various points in Texas, Oklahoma, and New Mexico during the month of November according to Joe Landrum, business manager. Shipments will be sent to 396 customers during that month which is the largest number of individual shipments that have been sent from here in some time.

Grapes will be in the number of plants shipped. Peaches, plums and cherries, all big money crops, for the Panhandle are just about equal in number. Pears, prunes and apples come next and are about equally divided. It is unusual for so many orders of prune trees to go out during one month, according to Landrum. He predicts that this will be a big industry for this section within a short time as prunes thrive here.

Around $1,500 worth of fresh fruit was sold by the nursery during the summer months from the experimental orchards. Some three hundred varieties are being tested out here so that customers and tourists can see the varieties best adapted to this section. Hundreds of tourists and visitors visit the Herford nursery during the spring and summer and most of them are amazed at the large number of varieties of fruit trees that we produce here.—Amarillo News.

The above article will convince any one that the people of the Panhandle-Plains country are looking forward to the fruit growing industry. The Journal is very anxious for the Bailey county people to get in line and plant their share. This is a wonderful country for fruit if one will give it half a chance.

Henry Edmonds Buys Building

Henry Edmonds has purchased the old building and two lots on main street in front of the Whaley Lumber Co. The Muleshoe Tailor shop will occupy the building. One of the lots is a corner lot and is considered a fine piece of property. The Edmonds are making a success in the tailor business here.

NOTICE

The Civic League will meet in the home of Mrs R. L. Faulkner, Monday afternoon at 4 p. m. The president requests that every member be present as important business will be brought before the house.

Yellow Jacket Sextet Wins Over Olton

Playing a good game that was marked with accurate goal shooting, the Yellow Jacket Sextet defeated Olton here Wednesday. The Muleshoe team took the lead at the beginning of the game and at no time were in danger of being overtaken.

The first half ended with the Yellow Jackets holding the big end of the score that was 14 to 2.

At the beginning of the second half, Velma McDorman was substituted for Opal Morris. Opal had played a fast game as a forward.

As the game neared it's end the Yellow Jackers loosened up and allowed Olton to score eight points.

The fast team work of the Muleshoe sextet was a feature as well as the accurate goal shooting of Lea Green. The entire Yellow Jacket team played a brilliant brand of ball.

The visitors were outclassed in every department of the game, but are to be commended on for their clean sportsmanship.

The home team is being drilled for the coming clash with Clovis Friday night at Clovis.

American Legion Organize Post

Sunday afternoon a number of ex-service men met and formed the Muleshoe Post of American Legion. The following men are the officers: Post Commander, J. E. Aldridge; Vice commander, H. O. Smith; Adjutant, S. A. Goodson; Treas. George Dodson; Chaplain, Howard Carlyle; Sgt. at Arms, L. C. Jones. Executive Committee: K. K. Smith, Connie D. Gupton, and J. J. DeShazo. The entertainment committee, C. Taylor, S. A. Goodson, K. K. Smith, J. E. Aldridge and H. O. Smith.

On Monday afternoon after the organization of the post they had purchased a $2400 Legion home. This is what we call "going over the top" like they did during the World War. They purchased the old court house and will have it remodeled and seated for a real home and meeting place.

The next meeting will be held Nov. 19th.

The W. M. U. ladies met Tuesday with Mrs. L. S. Barron with ten members present. A lesson on child culture in royal service was discussed. Everyone enjoyed the meeting very much. An interesting business session was entered into after which the ladies adjourned to meet with Mrs. Brown next Tuesday.

The Public Nurse as An Asset to County

Great many people, not familiar with public health work, wonder what the duties of a county nurse will be. We have become so accustomed to associate the nurse only with bedside nursing that it is hard to think of her as needed in time of health. Because of uncertainty of this need in some peoples minds, perhaps it would be well to study the health nurse's program and plan of work to see if is one that can be made to benefit every part of county.

The phase of the work most familiar to the Layity is the school inspection. At this inspection the nurse weighs and measures the children, tests their vision, inspects their throat for possible tonsil and adenoid conditions and also for any defects of their teeth. Notice of any conditions found is sent to the parents, and they are advised to consult with their family doctor.

This inspection would be of perhaps very little value unless the nurse following the inspections made home calls to the parents of the defective children. All parents regardless of nationality and creed desire to give their children the very best chances and opportunities financially, educationally and physically consequently if the parents really believe that their child should have medical or surgion attention, they arrange to have it done. So many children are found to have some physical defect preventing their mental progress.

Baby Clinics are also organized in different parts of the county at which infants and pre-school children are examined. The medical profession is always very liberal in donating their services to this work. The aim of these clinics is to give the parents all possible aid to so care for their children that at the time of their entering school they will be free from physical defects. If any defects are found they are pointed out so they can be corrected early and so much more easily remedied.

Classes of instruction in home nursing and care for the baby are organized and carried on to a finish in different parts of the county among women and girls. This instruction can not be obtained in any other way except in taking actual nursing training. This instruction is particularly valuable in communities that would have difficulty in securing necessary service in time of need, because of distances, etc.

The nurse assists expectant mothers in every way possible, through literature secured from State Beard of Health, demonstration in care of the baby, etc. This is really the most fundamental part of the work.

In case of illness in a home the nurse will go there and insrtuct thru practical demonstration, to some member of the family how to care for the sick one.

Numerous other things come under the health nurse work. In every instance she is a teacher of health and prevention and good habits, and if she is able through these teaching to prevent a seige of typhoid fever, or an epidemic of measles or whooping cough in the schools, will it not be very much worth while.

If the public nurse's work is to prove a success she must however, receive full cooperation by the people in the county. She is a county employee, and as such should be made to feel that she has the support and good will of the people in the county.

Radio Program to be Given at Amarillo

Arrangements have been made with the Martin Broadcasting Station at Amarillo for a program to be put on by the local people. In the next few days the program will be arranged and made public. It will be advertise in the Amarillo News and a popular radio magazine. It is up to the people to get up the program and go to Amarillo and deliver it. With the assistance of our music instructor, the Roubinek brothers and other local talent with a speech we can give the world an evening of real entertainment. And let them know about Muleshoe.

Jackets Lose to Fast Olton Eleven

The Armistice football game between Muleshoe and Olton was the best ever played on the local field. It was either team's game until the final whistle blew. Up until four minutes of play the Jackets were in lead by one point and seemed certain to win. With these few minutes left, Olton took the ball on a punt and started a strong passing game. A pass from Dodson to Daughtery coupled with a forty yard run gave Olton the victory by a score margin. The score ending 18 to 13.

The game was filled with spectacular plays and with real football. Twice Moeller carried the ball over for a touchdown when it seemed that he had been thrown for a loss. In this game, Moeller proved his real ability to play football and it was he greatest of all that kept the Jackets in the lead most of the time. Moeller was the outstanding star but the others played excellent football. E. Hart and Johnson were both ill while playing and the handicap had to be overcome by two men. B. Hart carried the ball thru the line time after time and his timely gains played a superior role in Muleshoe's gains.

As Olton had a strong line plunging team, our team must be praised for their strong defense. The charging of the line by Olton brought to by it two players who shone out above any of the line men on either team. These men Fred Lee and Jimmie Cox are worthy of fair comment and bid fair to make the college team in the future.

During the entire season the Jackets have played superior ball for their previous knowledge of the game and with it they are playing as real sports. The Olton players are clean sportsmen and well deserved the victory.

The Jackets play only two more games this season and the support of the local fans is urged. The last two games have found the town 100 per cent present and the boys wish for this loyal support in their next tussels.

Abernathy Men Here Prospecting

J. W. Seale and S. H. McAlister of Abernathy were here Tuesday visiting T. E. Arnold and Ray Griffiths and looking over the city with the view of locating here. They are both live business men of our sister city. Mr. Seale is a baker and is thinking of moving here in the near future. We did not learn what line of business Mr. McAlister follows. They were well pleased with the outlook of the city and the wonderful development of the country in this territory.

PREVENT CHOLERA AMONG SWINE HERD

Approximately 4 per cent of the hogs on farms in the United States died of cholera last year, says the United States Department of Agriculture. In round numbers the loss amounted to 2,250,000 hogs valued at approximately $20,393,000. Nine states each lost more than 100,000 head of hogs from the disease.

While the disease is highly contagious and is difficult to control, the losses have been much higher than they should be, since a preventive serum is available, say department experts. This serum, used before animals get sick, combined with strict sanitation and thorough disinfection after outbreaks, is the most effective known control measure.

Dr. C. C. Lipp, a South Dakota veterinarian, urges a thorough cleanup if it has not already been done. All accumulations of cobs must be burned. Then remove the manure to fields where no hogs are allowed. If possible, the lots should stand vacant during the winter. Plow all yards early in the spring and give the hogs new temporary pastures for a time. Sprinkle the yards as soon as they are clean with air-slaked lime.

After yards have been cleaned and disinfected, the pens must get similar treatment. Scrape out all manure, feed and dried accumulations with a hoe or spade. Then spray floors, troughs, walls and partitions with a solution of sheep dip made by adding twelve tablespoonfuls of dip to each gallon of water. Use a spray pump if possible because it drives the disinfectant into the cracks and corners. Repeat the process at frequent intervals, allowing free circulation of air and plenty of sunshine. After completing the disinfecting the entire interior of the house should be thoroughly whitewashed.

Such a cleaning is not expensive and greatly reduces the probability of cholera next year. Even though no disease has been present on the place during the past season such a process is well worth while.

Essential Fall Factors for Success With Pigs

A special effort should be made at this season to keep the fall litters growing and thrifty. The sows and pigs should be furnished with shelter from the cold rains and the cold nights. Experience has shown purebred breeders that they cannot rely on the temperate winters and that shelter will prevent pneumonia, bad colds, and general unthriftiness. A moderate quantity of straw or leaves should be used for bedding—not so much that the pigs will not be able to get out of the sow's way.

When the pigs are old enough to eat feed them in a creep. A little shelled corn or skim milk is a good feed to start them on. Extra feed pays at this time, the animal husbandry men at Clemson college say, because the pigs are making a cheap gain and will be in good condition for weaning. Forage can be supplied at this time by rye and rape. It is especially desirable to have enough forage to carry the sows and pigs until freezing weather. If forage is not available, a more liberal use of a good protein supplement is necessary at this time because the hogs are depending on the feeder for their supply. Don't feed lice. A little time and trouble will rid the house and hogs of these parasites. Crude oil or a good coal-tar dip will give results.

Sows After Farrowing

The sows should be made to take some exercise and should be fed a mineral preparation consisting of 40 per cent lime, 40 per cent bonemeal or similar material, and 20 per cent common salt. To this may be added .05 to .1 of a pound of sodium or potassium iodide for every 100 pounds of the other ingredients.

The sow will get along best if she is not fed the first 24 hours after farrowing. Her first feed can well be the bran and shorts which she was getting before she farrowed.

Live Stock Hints

A horse eats nearly five tons a year.

If his head is left free, a horse that stumbles is less likely to fall.

To make a horse lift his foot, pinch the wart just above the knee.

There appears to be no economy in trying to raise pigs without grain.

Extra time spent with sows when due to farrow will pay big wages. Put in part of the night in the hog barn when necessary.

Lice should never be permitted to remain on the hogs any longer than their presence is known.

Under winter conditions fish meal is worth relatively more in comparison with tankage than when the pigs are on pasture. Likewise it has a relatively higher feeding value for young pigs than for well-grown shoats.

Discourage Rats Around the Farm

Rodent Is Robber and Pilferer and Lives Off of Various Products.

One of the pests with which the average farmer has to contend is the rat. He is by nature a robber and a pilferer, living on the products of the farm, and giving no return. The United States government says that this boarder who pays no board destroys more than $200,000,000 worth of crops every year. In addition to this money loss he is known as an active agent in the spreading of disease. This loss and the danger of spreading disease to stock and members of the family can be successfully and completely eliminated by the use of concrete in floors, basements and foundations of farm buildings. The rat's one impassable barrier is concrete floors and walls. These will stop him and effectually cut off his food supply. When this is accomplished Mr. Rat will hunt a more fertile plundering ground.

Rat Menace Lessened.
Where farm buildings are constructed of concrete the menace of the rat is materially lessened. If buildings are constructed with concrete floors, lower parts of walls, and especially concrete foundations, there are no pockets in which the rats can hide or make their homes. If the use of concrete is extended to the construction of the feeding floors the rat menace has been absolutely eliminated.

A concrete silo is ratproof because the rat cannot gnaw through its walls or get at the silage in any other way. The same is true of a concrete corn crib which is the favorite feeding place of rats. Thus the corn is saved for the stock or market. In a concrete poultry house the poultry are free from the danger of attack by rats. This will develop a feeling of security on the part of the hens, which will manifest itself in the greater number of eggs produced. With concrete floors and walls the entire place can easily be swept and kept clear of all accumulations under which an occasional rat might hide.

Rats Kept Out.
In a concrete granary there will be no rats to consume or destroy what the farmer has stored for his own use. The rat cannot gnaw through the floor or get in in any way excepting through the door. A concrete feeding floor or barnyard pavement prevents the rats from consuming the grain and feed distributed to the live stock.

Concrete should be used in the construction of farm buildings as far as possible. It certainly should be used in all foundations, floors and lower parts of walls of larger buildings. Smaller buildings should be entirely built of it. Concrete construction is ratproof. It conserves stock, grains, feeds and supplies. It saves poultry. It protects your family against diseases spread by the rat.

Plowing Deep in Garden Will Give Best Results

"Plow deep while sluggards sleep" is as true today as it was a hundred and fifty years ago, but it is a slogan which is not as frequently acted upon as it should be in gardens. It is said that in European gardens which are spaded, the garden is often worked two or even three spits deep, a "spit" being the depth to which a spade can be driven. Now this depth may not be necessary but a garden plowed or spaded ten inches deep will give enough better results than six-inch plowing to make the work well worth while.

At the same time the gardener should remember that in any work of this kind, increasing the depth of plowing must be done gradually. If the garden or field has been plowed only six and one-half inches deep, better increase the depth of plowing by a half inch or an inch each year, rather than increasing the whole depth all at once. Too much of the subsoil must not be brought to the surface at one time. As you turn the soil, bringing up an inch or so of new subsoil, mix the ground thoroughly with the new subsoil, and if possible with manure or compost. In the fall you will be able to get one inch in this way and then in the spring you can get a little more, and the following fall you can go down another inch if you choose.

"Well begun, half done," is so true in the garden that it is hard to pay too much attention to the plowing.

For That Rainy Day

I do not know of a method whereby returns from farming can be made uniform year after year. But I do know that it is possible for farmers to lay aside in years of good profits reserves upon which they can draw in years that are not so good. I cannot help but feel that too many farmers have reinvested their surplus earnings in high-priced land when they should have kept at least a part of them in more liquid reserves upon which they could readily draw in times of depression.—Secretary Jardine.

Don't Crowd Chickens

Avoid filling the chicken house beyond its capacity with chickens. Each bird ought to have at least eight inches of space on the roost. There should be one open nest to every eight hens or where trapnests are used, one nest will accommodate four hens if the nests are visited every two hours.

Manure Shed With Carrier Is Favored

Spreading Direct From Stables Is Best Plan.

It is generally conceded that spreading direct from the stable secures the greatest returns from manure. Manure as ordinarily handled is said to lose about one-half of its value. In many sections, however, every-day handling is impossible and in these cases proper handling can do much to conserve the fertility as well as to keep things shipshape about the barn. The greatest source of loss in the handling of manure are failure to absorb liquids by bedding, the leaching of soluble plant food from the heap and the burning up of organic matter through heating. These losses can be lessened by the free use of bedding to absorb stable liquids and the building of a compact manure heap which will lessen or prevent heating and leaching. A suitable clay or concrete basin to retain such liquids as do leak through still further reduces the loss. A roof is not necessary unless it is desired to protect the carrier track.

A cow produces about twelve tons of manure yearly. This will require approximately 500-600 cubic feet for storage. As much of the manure will be dropped in pasture you will have to determine the size required by the length of time elapsing between cleaning the pit. If there is opportunity to get the track well up it will lessen the amount of floor area required and at the same time secure a more compact manure heap. If the floor is to be driven on it should be made of one part cement, two parts clean coarse sand and four parts crushed stone or screened gravel and laid about eight inches thick. Use easy grades and a rough surface to prevent slipping as the horses haul from the pit.

Hog Influenza Is a New Ailment Among the Pigs

New diseases are constantly appearing among our animals, and the end is not yet. Hog "flu" may have existed for a long time, but was not recognized as a distinct entity in disease until quite recently. It spread among young swine at the stock show two years ago and during this interim has been reported throughout the United States.

Its present name is derived from the fact that it greatly resembles influenza as seen in people and horses. Young swine are most susceptible, and the mortality is not high. However, it is a disease that must be reckoned with in shipping animals for exhibition purposes, or for any other purpose. It may be recognized by high fever, cough, difficult breathing and congestion of the mucous membranes. Special treatment does not seem to be indicated; good care is the main thing. There is no biologic that will protect hogs against this disease, but the disease has not been serious enough to warrant anyone in refusing to exhibit because of hog "flu."—George H. Glover, Colorado Agricultural College.

Satisfactory Plan for Storing Late Cabbages

A good method of storing late cabbages is to pull them up, roots and all, and set them side by side, with the roots down, in a shallow trench several feet in length. As many rows may be set out side by side as are necessary to accommodate the cabbage to be stored. The roots should be covered with earth. Inclose the cabbage bed formed by the rows with a frame of rails, boards, or poles, or by driving a row of stakes into the ground. This inclosure should be about two feet in height. The frame should be banked with dirt, and the top, which may be made by laying poles across the inclosure, should be covered with straw, hay, or corn fodder. When it is desired to start using the cabbages, they should be removed, as needed, from one end of the bed. When the cabbages are taken out the roots should be left in place, as they will sprout and furnish the family with an abundance of greens in the spring.

Winter Care for Bees

Preparing the bees for their long winter vacation is a part of the fall program of work. Each colony should have a sufficient supply of food in order to winter through and make a strong brood before the honey flow starts in the spring. Put the colony in a packing case for protection from the cold before the ground freezes.

Farm Hints

Seed selection is crop protection.

Soil, like a horse, works best when well groomed and fed.

Of some six and a half million farm families in the United States 634,800 of them, or about one-tenth, have running water in their homes.

Breeding flocks should be mated, especially for early hatching. It takes two weeks after the male has been introduced before maximum fertility is obtained.

A large proportion of the poultry diseases are due to improper feeding. Feed nothing but foods that are in good condition. Keep the drinking water pure and fresh.

Community Building

Treatment of Color of House Important

It is rare that a house should present more than two colors, and there should be nothing facetious or faddish about their choice.

A house is lived in too long, and under too many conditions of weather and season, to say nothing of other circumstances, to be extreme in any way. It need not be so neutral as to forego all individuality, but it should on the whole be rather conservative than err on the other side.

The exterior should be neutral enough to serve as a peaceful transition between the surroundings and the interior furnishings and to sit harmoniously and quiet in its own grounds.

If the house is finished with smooth siding, such as wide boards or clapboards, it takes paint, but if it is covered with rough sawed siding, such as shingles or rough boards, stain should be used.

Stain is a thin material and will not successfully tint smooth woodwork, but it does penetrate deeply into the surface of rough wood. These are technically known as shingle stains, although they may be applied just as well to any wood or rough surface whether shingles or boards.

Paint should be used on smooth siding and trim where it will produce a film of weather resisting material on the outside of the boards, penetrating slightly into the wood fiber.

Planning Adopted by Kansas City Praised

Probably the most successful work of city planning, as well as one of the most extensive and beautiful residential communities in the United States, in the Country club district in Kansas City. The story of this remarkable achievement of its originator, J. C. Nichols, has often been told—among other places, in this magazine. But it deserves an occasional remembrance, says World's Work.

Mr. Nichols has demonstrated that beauty and good taste can be made to pay for he has been consistently successful over a period of 15 years. His community is growing in population at the rate of 2,500 a year. Automobile parking spaces that do not look ragged, accommodations for the unloading of motor trucks at retail stores without having the trucks harass traffic or be in sight at all while standing still, gasoline stations that are not ugly or loud—these, and a dozen other things that ordinarily contrive to spoil the most desirable neighborhood, have been brought under the control of art and robbed of their power to destroy the beauty of the scene.

Explaining Increase in Individual Homes

The average American man with a family is either living in a home of his own, or is looking forward to the time when he can do so. A rented house or a city apartment in most cases provides a temporary home only until such time as the head of the house can afford the privilege of fringing his own furnace, mowing his own lawn, and patching his own back-door steps.

This explains the constant increase in individual homes. Nobody needs to read up on building statistics to learn that there is a constant increase in sturdy, well-built houses. Go into any large city and ride around the fringe and one will find the landscape cluttered with partly completed houses. A little further out will be found subdivisions waiting for the building wave which will soon engulf them.

Luminous House Numbers

New innovations or adaptations to new uses of existing ones are without end in the building industry. An interesting application of luminous material to house numbers is one of the latest additions to the home owner's convenience. This is a number deeply embossed in an aluminum plaque 2 1/2 by 3 1/4 inches, the upper surface being coated with black enamel and baked, the lower surface being given a scratchbrush finish. Then the center portion is coated with a good quality of "Udarc" radium-luminous material. This is then inclosed in an aluminum frame with clear glass.

To Beautify Highway

In order to beautify and shade the main highways of the province of Quebec that are without trees, the provincial government authorities are planting 300,000 trees this year. In addition to beautifying the highways and providing shade in the summer months, the trees will help to preserve the roads by protecting them, to some extent, from the elements.

Facilities for Pleasure

More and more, as wealth increases, and leisure widens, superior facilities for pleasure are an asset of immense value to cities, states and even entire countries. As Florida and California capitalize their winter sunshine and warmth so Canada, New England and the Rocky mountain states turn their summer coolness into mints for cooling gold. Places that possess real advantages for good times are unwise if they do not make the most of them.

Recuperating From Drouth.

Texas will never cease to be a wonderful state. Two months ago a large part of the state was seriously suffering from the effects of a long drouth. The rains came too late for the cotton crop.

but in time for the grass to spring up and for fall feed crops to mature. The fields are covered with oats and rye and the stock are again sleek and contented. Business men report that business is "as usual" and that people have apparently forgotten the long drouth. About the only noticeable depression is in the auto trade, for many people who might have been buying new cars are using their old ones another year.

Not Voting Road Bonds.

About the only topic of general conversation in Austin now, aside from the weather, is about road matters and road contracts. The rumors, investigations and revelations cast a gloom over the public that is worse than a drouth or a prolonged rainy season. No one knows what to expect next and the people are appalled about all the expenditure of their taxes. The effect has been to stop the voting of bonds for road building, with the result that road building progress in Texas will be seriously checked. When confidence in those entrusted with public expenditures is destroyed or weakened, progress stops, not knowing which way to turn. Let us hope that the beleaguered atmosphere in Texas official life may soon be cleared.

Hotel Rest Rooms for Customers.

Leading dry goods firms at San Antonio and Dallas are doing something that might be tried to advantage by chambers of commerce or other organizations in smaller places. They are sending letters to select lists of customers telling them that when they come to the city they will find a room at a certain hotel ready for their use during the day without charge and without reference to whether they make purchases from the store. A card is enclosed that entitles the holder to all the courtesies of the hotel for the day at any time the party may be in the city.

Public rest rooms are usually cheerless places and expensive to maintain. Those who go there often have a feeling that the rooms are semi-charity institutions. Why not arrange with the local hotels to have rooms available during the day for the free use of those whose standing entitles them to such courtesies? The cost should not be great, and it would be good advertising for the hotels and for the towns showing this interest in out-of-town customers.

Personal Appearance an Asset.

We all know that it makes a person feel better to "doll up" a bit. The women do not put on finery and use cosmetics solely to please the men, but largely to please themselves. They have learned the value of personal appearance better than the men, although very few men fail to respond in better feelings to the influence of good clothes and attractive personal appearance. Every one knows that good clothes are a valuable business asset. Very few can get themselves in a proper state of mind for worship without putting on their "Sunday clothes."

Dr. J. G. Springer, superintendent of the Austin State Hospital, says he has found that most women with mental ailments respond to "beauty parlor" treatment, even when they are unresponsive to every other appeal. Often the most dejected and downcast become smiling and happy after beauty treatment. You owe it to yourself to look your best.

Band Music in Texas.

Fourteen bands from neighboring towns gathered at Lampasas recently and gave a massed band concert. A few years ago such a thing would have been impossible, for there were not many more than fourteen brass bands in Texas. Now every town of any consequence and most country communities have good bands taught by competent directors. Music dealers find that their best business is in band instruments and band music. Music in whatever form it appears evidences the culture of a people.

The Texas Pecan Crop.

Texas pecans are now being gathered and marketed. While the crop is short in some localities, the yield in the state is said to be about the average. Pecans are growing more in favor everywhere as a food and as a substitute for meat. Prices are becoming more stable and more in line with prices of other food products. Texas is destined to become as noted for its pecans as for its cotton, for pecans can be successfully grown in all parts of the state and in every kind of soil.

Civic Clubs and Service.

Civic clubs are being accused of praising themselves too much—of self-boasting. While there may be much of the "look-at-us" attitude in the methods of some of the clubs, they are showing the churches that to serve God one must serve his fellow-men.

Community Lines Lost.

Automobiles are fast destroying the imaginary lines that once divided town and country and separated communities from each other.

HOW TO GET RID OF CATARRH

A Simple, Safe, Inexpensive Method That Clears Out the Head, Nose and Throat.

There is no disease more offensive or disagreeable or no disease that will lead to as much serious trouble as catarrh. You can now get rid of it by a simple, safe, pleasant home remedy discovered by Dr. Blosser, a catarrh specialist.

Dr. Blosser's Remedy is composed of medicinal herbs, flowers and berries, which you smoke in a dainty pipe or cigarette. The smoke-vapour is inhaled into the air passages of the head, nose, throat and lungs and carries medicine where sprays, douches and salves cannot possibly reach. Its effect is soothing and healing and is entirely harmless. It contains no cubes or tobacco, and may be used by women and children as well as men.

If you suffer from catarrh, asthma, catarrhal deafness, or if subject to frequent colds, you should try Dr. Blosser's Remedy which may be had at any drug store; or if you desire proof of its beneficial and pleasant effect, send ten cents (coin or stamps) to The Blosser Co., 75 G. H. Atlanta, Ga., for a trial package.

Advises Ailing Women

"I was rundown in health some years ago and was advised to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," said Mrs. Effie Carter of 251 1/2 Rosewood St., Dallas, Texas, whose picture appears here. "It was recommended to me as the most reliable feminine tonic and I believe it is. It helped me in every way and I have heard a great many say that it did the same for them. I believe all who try the 'Favorite Prescription' will be greatly benefited."

All dealers. Tablets or liquid, or send 10c to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., for trial pkg. tablets and write for free advice.

Prudence's Daughter

THE BIG IDEA

SYNOPSIS.—PART ONE.—At a merry party in the studio apartment of Carter Blake, New York, Jerry (Geraldine) Harmer, Prudence's daughter, meets Duane Allerton, wealthy idler. He admires her tremendously, and she likes him. But Allerton gets a bit exhilarated with unfortunate results. Jerry, resenting his assumption of familiarity, leaves the party abruptly. The story turns to Jerry's childhood and youth at her home in Des Moines. Only child of a wealthy father, when she is twenty she feels the call of Art and asks her parents to let her go to New York for study. With some misgiving, they agree to her going. In New York Jerry makes her home with Mrs. Delaney ("Mimi"), an actress, who, with Theresa, a painter, occupies the house. Jerry takes an immediate liking to Theresa, who is talented and eccentric, and the two become friends. Jerry now devotes herself to Theresa, who returns her liking. Jerry poses for Theresa's masterpiece, "The Ocean Rider." Allerton calls on Jerry. The girl refuses to see him. At a hotel dinner Jerry sees Duane and refuses to change her attitude toward him. Jerry becomes convinced she has not the ability to become an artist. At a party Jerry again sees Duane, and will not recognize him. Theresa hints that Jerry should go home, and promises her a "present." Returning from an evening of gaiety, Jerry is shocked at hearing from Mimi she also learns that Mimi is Theresa's mother. The "present" Theresa had promised Jerry proves to be her picture, "The Ocean Rider." Jerry decides to go home. At home she is enthusiastically welcomed by her adoring parents. She wins their sympathies with the stories of her New York life.

CHAPTER II

Jerry Comes Into Her Own

Jerry seemed to settle again into the routine of every-day life in her Middle Western home without change. She shared in the work of the house as she had done before she went to New York, practiced her music, read a great deal, and drove out very often in the handsome little "Harmer" which was her personal possession.

Her return was hailed with a great lavishness of celebration on the part of her friends, for she had long been a leader in the particular little set she claimed as hers. Immediately she was made the occasion for a gay series of dances, dinners and parties. Little flirtations, inconsequential affairs, which had faded away and died upon her departure, struggled back into a semblance of rejuvenation on her return, and although they failed to stir Jerry to active interest, at least they played their part in whiling away the hours, and helping to occupy her thoughts, which were not happy ones for the most part.

Even with so much to amuse and engage her, the days passed slowly, and Jerry, for all the demands on her time, remained distrustful and preoccupied, almost listless. And Prudence drove herself well-nigh to distraction in her maternal anxiety to bridge the dangerous chasm between times past and times present, but all in vain she racked her fertile brain for things to stimulate Jerry's interest.

"Oh, my dear, you haven't taught me to dance for nearly two years!" she exclaimed one night, in the extreme of desperation.

Jerrold and Jerry broke into laughter over her abject submission to martyrdom for her daughter's sake. For Prudence found in dancing nothing but punishment and tribulation. Married life for her had been an intricate matter at best, having as she did the sacred shadow of Methodism for a background. The church itself had been the first shadow to cloud the heaven of their domestic harmony. Church, to Prudence, meant Methodist, and Jerrold, in the ardor of his young love, attended services with her in the beginning with some fair display of interest. His enthusiasm, however, was for Prudence only, not for the church of her affiliation.

When she asked him how he liked it he said: "Oh, very much," to please Prudence.

After a time, growing suspicious as to the depth of this interest, she pressed him further. Jerrold admitted at last that as far as he was concerned, he considered it no church at all, no real worship, no divine service. Prudence was shocked into speechlessness. But Jerrold, hard driven, stuck to his ground. He said the way the Methodists clubbed about the door and chatted and laughed was his idea of rank irreverence. And for a preacher to get down on his knees in the pulpit and talk in that offhand and familiar fashion to the Divine Being instead of reading respectfully from a book—he called it sacrilege. He was willing to go, to please Prudence, he was willing to shake hands, and discuss his wife's health and the state fair and the corn crop at the door—to please her—he was willing to follow through countless intimate paragraphs of extemporaneous prayer—but he did not call it church, and it was not his idea of worship.

Prudence wrote to her father. And her father wrote back, with that gentle and forbearing patience which seems more rare and more divine in the ministry than anywhere else, that Prudence must go with her husband. "We have learned," he wrote, "that there are lessons in stones, and sermons in running brooks. So if Jerrold finds no religion in our church, it is up to you to find it in his."

Prudence swallowed hard, but she did it.

It was not, as Jerrold frankly admitted, that he cared particularly about attending any church with a painful degree of assiduity, but when he had church, he wanted church, and not a Sunday morning reception without refreshments.

Of course Prudence had had to learn to dance. Having become an Episcopalian she could not plead the Methodist Discipline in rebuttal, and thus unexpectedly torn adrift from her spiritual backbone, she agreed with Jerrold, rather faintly, that it would be a shame for her to go through life sitting out every enticing waltz and luring one-step. She must certainly learn to dance.

She encountered difficulties from the start. A professional instructor was brought in to teach her. And after many painful, painstaking lessons, she managed to get around very nicely. But when Prudence, in fear and trembling, got on the floor with any other than the instructor, she had trouble.

"It isn't that I don't try," she told her husband despairingly, but eager in her own defense in the face of his derision, "I do try! I put my whole mind on it. I know exactly what I am supposed to do, I count every step, and I never listen to a word my partner says, and I keep both eyes shut so I won't be afraid of running into the wall! But I can't keep off his feet, nor from under them. You needn't laugh, either, for I can't help it."

When Jerry had come of an age to take a personal interest in her mother's social life, and to feel a personal responsibility for her public appearance, she shared this burden with her father. And at regular intervals, perhaps twice a year, the entire household was thrown into a tumultuous state of excitement with teaching Prudence to dance.

"Why can't you dance? Why can't you?" demanded Jerry earnestly. "Aunt Fanny dances beautifully, Aunt Connie dances, both the Twin Aunties adore it. Haven't they as much Methodist blood as you have? Why can't you learn?"

"I don't know," acknowledged her mother unhappily. "I certainly work hard enough to learn anything! I just can't, and that's all there is to it."

When Prudence, therefore, of her own volition and without coercion from anyone, voluntarily proffered herself as a willing sacrifice to learn to dance again, she was driven to desperation. To her surprise, to her great concern as well, Jerry only laughed, and would not accept such martyrdom at her hands.

"Nonsense, mother, you can't dance, and you don't want to. Why bother? You'd better just stick to Wesley and eschew the devil and all his works."

"Bridge, then," pleaded Prudence hopefully. "You really ought to teach me something, you know."

Jerry consented to add a few final touches to a course in cards which had already extended fruitfully over a period of twenty years, but she warned her mother to let no one inveigle her into playing for points.

"For do your level best, mother, you can still lose the family fortune a great deal faster than father can earn it, if you go in for points, the way you play it."

And so March blustered away, and April came, and May. And in all these months Jerry could not fathom that great mystery of what girls do, who have nothing to do, and go quite mad over doing it!

It was a morning late in May when she was called to the telephone. A girl of her acquaintance, Rae Forsythe, was going over to the other side of town to look at a house. She asked Jerry to go with her. Jerry, who had driven her own car from the time she was fifteen years old, was used to these invitations to go with her friends on errands to remote and inaccessible places. Jerry understood it very well, but her understanding was quite without malice. She did not blame them. She was sure if she had to go a long way to a strange part of town, and had no car of her own, she herself would invite as company for the occasion—one who had.

It's a crazy place to look for a house," she protested.

"Yes, but property is so much cheaper. We want to get house and furniture all for ten thousand, you see. And then, Grant has bought a drug store out by the university, and it will be much nicer for him. He can come home for luncheon," she explained with the pretty proprietary shyness of pre-nuptial days.

Following Rae's directions, Jerry drove slowly out along Central avenue and turned down Seventeenth street. When they came to the house, she stopped the car, and both girls turned about in their seats and looked at it.

It was not prepossessing. Set entirely too far forward in a small lawn at the top of a steep terrace, it stood very stiff, very square, very high, with an awkward square porch, clumsy square windows, the whole in grievous need of paint.

"Will you tell me," Jerry said plaintively, "why my Iowa builds itself such ghastly homes?"

"He said it was a barn of a thing," assented Rae. "But it is very cheap. He said—the real estate man, I mean—said it could be entirely built over for a few thousand. And it has good points, a garage in the back when we get rich enough for a car—just opposite the little park you see—on the car line—and quite near the university and Grant's drug store."

With these points to its credit, Jerry followed her distastefully up the steps of the terrace, and still more distastefully on the clumsy, stiff square porch.

"Why do they do it, Rae?" she wondered. "Such stiff, straight, stupid lines—the doors, the windows, the columns. Couldn't they put a little curve in once in a while for the same money?"

"Will You Tell Me," Jerry Said Plainly, "Why My Iowa Builds Such Ghastly Homes?"

"Beauty is very expensive," said Rae lightly.

"No wonder we all go off somewhere, to California, or to New York, if this is the best we can do for ourselves," Jerry went on gloomily. "I don't blame us. Fancy living in a thing like this! Not just one, either—all the inexpensive poorman houses are exactly like it. The gypsies do better in tents."

"Oh, bother the gypsies, Jerry; come on in and have a look." Rae opened the door with the key which had been given her, and led the way inside where they stared curiously about them, a frowning disapproval on their two young faces.

"People must have lived in it some time," said Jerry. "Probably they died, poor things. I don't wonder."

The house was divided with scrupulous exactness into four sections, rooms Jerry decided one must doubtless call them—to the left a stiff square parlor leading to a stiff square parlor bedroom beyond—to the right a solemn dining room, with a sober kitchen adjoining. The stairs rose in a direct and businesslike manner, without pretense or artifice, to the second floor, where there was another mathematical division of space, a bedroom, a bath to the left, two bedrooms to the right.

Jerry stared and stared. "Wouldn't you think they must have died, Rae?" she asked. "It would be like living in a cemetery, wouldn't it? Wouldn't you think that some time one of them would have taken a hammer to those walls, just to break the deadly continuity of the thing? Poor corpses, I don't blame you a bit. I think you're lucky."

Rae laughed at her. "You are funny, Jerry. But it is a horrid old barn of a house, isn't it? But then they are only asking thirty-five hundred for it."

"Cheap enough, unless one has to live in it," murmured Jerry. "I hold it against the state, Rae," she went on. "I almost wish I had been born in Arkansas, or Nevada, or Wyoming."

"But the whole street is like it. And the next one is worse, and the next still worse. Oh, some few houses are nice enough, I suppose, but in the main—hopeless! Our own used to be a funny, straight-up-and-down thing, too. We have pictures of it. They built it over when I was a baby. No, it is the state, Rae. We get that straight up-and-downness from the corn, I fancy."

Rae, intent upon her search for a home for herself and her young pharmacist, paid slight attention to her friend's plaintive ramblings. She looked about her, with growing disfavor. And while she looked, Jerry stood in the doorway, and stared with increasing amazement about the place.

"It couldn't be a home, you know," she said to herself. "It might do as a garage, even as a stable if one didn't love one's horses. One could call them stalls, dinner stall, sleeping stall, cooking stall—it's the way they look. And you know really it wouldn't be so hard to—sort of—switch things around a little—knock out a wall or two—twist that staircase about some way—and—"

Jerry's eyes narrowed speculatively. She drew vague little designs in the air with a gloved finger. A curious brightness came into her face.

"It is impossible," Rae said, coming back from her inspection. "I wouldn't have it as a gift."

"Thirty-five hundred. Is that what you said? Can I get it on terms? Let's go down right away. I have an idea."

CHAPTER III

The Summer Passes

Prudence and Jerrold had finished the soup and were starting with steak and potatoes when Jerry ran in that night, profusely apologetic for her tardiness. Her face was aflame with color, her starry eyes aglow behind the fringing lashes.

"Awfully stupid of me to be so late," she cried, tossing her gloves and hat upon a chair, and sliding deftly into her place at the table. "No soup for me, Katie. But be generous with the steak." She glowed around at her little family. "I've been having a heavenly time, mother—almost as exciting as teaching you to dance again. And that reminds me—Jerry put her knife down and turned about, facing her father. "I'll have to borrow some money, father—I don't know just how much—a thousand or so. Will you lend it to me?"

Jerrold was working with a refractory bit of sirlin and did not answer upon the instant.

"I will," proffered Prudence meekly. "It's awfully good of you, mother, but I think I'd better get it from father. This is business, you see, and it's impossible to be real businesslike with you, you're such a lamb. Of course, father, I can give you a mortgage on the 'Baby.'" Jerry always called her pretty roadster the "Baby." The first had been just "Baby," the second was "Baby Junior," and this latest and finest one of all was tenderly known as "The Third." "I can give you a mortgage on her, but I'm going to be awful busy, and I'll have to use her just the same."

"It might be interesting to know what you're going to do with it—the money, I mean," her father put in gently, when she paused for breath. "Not that it's any of my business, of course."

"Oh, I don't mind telling—not in the least." Jerry was impulsively generous. She pushed her plate back a little and launched into a graphic account of the day's excursion with Rae in quest of a honeymoon home. She described the "great grotesque barn of a thing" on Seventeenth street opposite Good park in no mild manner.

"Rae simply wouldn't give it a second look," she finished. "But you know, father, it looked pretty good to me. Lots of advantages, Rae said so herself—right opposite the park, on the car line, near the university—and lumber in it, heaps of lumber! Well, I got to figuring. You could pull out a few walls, and build in a few windows, and switch things around a little bit and paint it, and—sort of fess it up. I figured out a hundred things that one could do to it. Well, you can buy it for thirty-five hundred, spend say another thirty-five hundred in making it look human—and I'll bet you could sell that place for Ten Thousand Dollars!"

Jerrold was buttering his roll. "I'm sure of it," agreed Prudence.

"But why bother?" asked Jerrold, after a little. "Why go to all that trouble, and work, and expense—"

Jerry was amazed at his stupidity. "Oh, a dozen reasons, father! In the first place, Iowa ought to be ashamed of itself for permitting such a lot of these stupid, stiff, square houses, that no human being could possibly fit into. Well, then, it would make a lovely and adorable little spot of a place that is now simply an eye-sore and—a civic ulcer, as you might say. And once you get a real sweet, dainty home up there, it's going to make the rest of the block ashamed of itself, and first thing you know they'll all be doiling up a little bit, to keep up with Lizzie. 'Scuse the slang, mother—I'm so excited. And besides—Jerry's voice rose triumphantly—"think of me! I'm going to make a couple of thousand dollars on that job!"

Evidently Jerry has found something interesting. Is it the beginning of a career?

Tells Women to Avoid "Physics"

DR. CALDWELL AT AGE 85

To Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, it seemed cruel that so many constipated women and girls had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

While he knew that constipation was the cause of nearly all headaches, biliousness, sallow skin, indigestion and stomach misery, he did not believe that a sickening "purge" or "physic" every little while was necessary.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which regulates the bowels. A single dose will establish natural, healthy bowel movement for weeks at a time, even for those chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it is often months before another dose is necessary. Besides, it is absolutely harmless, and so pleasant that even a cross, feverish, sick child gladly takes it.

How Robert M. Koenig Found Remedy for Pimply Skin

For years my skin would break out every once in a while—and ointments did very little to help me.

I read a doctor's article stating that pimply skin usually comes from the stomach—and bowels not getting rid of the poisons.

I tried Carter's Little Liver Pills for a few days—and since that time my skin is smooth and clear. Now I tell my friends the right way of getting rid of a broken out skin—and also of steering clear of upset stomach and sick headache. Carter's are all you claim for them.

W. P. Davis Talks On Bula Territory

The writer has been quiet since he came to this part of the west.

The great trouble with the people of this territory is a constant trend to remain in the old ruts. Old way of doing, old way of farming remain the status.

The masses do not grasp the vastness of the great resources of the country surrounding Muleshoe.

Ignorance is about to swallow our land and country. When we say ignorance, we mean a misunderstanding among the people of this territory. Heat will make sudden expansion. Quick growth causes the untrained mind to become bewildered.

If you please the great fastnesses of this immediate country are yet hidden.

The property of these soils, the adaptability of this climate, the great storehouse of untold minerals and health possibilities. Open up vastness of thought which in the future we hope to discuss.

Newspaper Ethics People Should Read

Seldom a week goes by but some one asks regarding some news story they happen to know about, but which is not generally known to the public at large, and that person wants to know why it is not published. There is always a reason for it, and that reason generally is the simple fact that the story is not ready for publication. If anyone knows about it, it is generally because of leak in someone's confidence.

Of course it is the business of a newspaper to publish news, rather than to suppress it, and every newspaper wants news while it is news. On the other hand, there are times when it is proper to withhold certain news items for later issues. Sometimes the giving publicity to news items may hamper certain business deals, embarrass parties interested in them, or perhaps, interfere with the deal intirely. On such occasions, if the editor is advised, he will generally respect the wishes of the participating parties and withhold the story until the proper time for its publication. This is done as a matter of good business, and not for any reasons of partiality.

Every newspaper editor has the utmost respect for his sources of information. No reputable editor will betray that trust, and about the best way to temporarily withhold a story from a newspaper is to tell the editor all about it

Winter Comfort at Low Cost

To drive in comfort this winter you should have complete protection against rain, sleet, snow and wind. Only the finest closed car construction can give you that.

The Chevrolet Coach body is Fisher-built—the same construction used on the world's finest cars.

Doors and windows fit and stay tight to keep out wind and water. Rain or snow cannot penetrate the Fisher V-V one-piece windshield which gives you perfect vision and ventilation. Long semi-elliptic springs and balloon tires take the jars out of frozen roads.

Add to bodily comfort the safety of semi-reversible steering and equalized brakes and the assurance of a motor that always starts easily, and you can realize why Chevrolet spells winter comfort.

Yet you get all this in the world's lowest-priced Fisher Body Coach.

Let us show you the quality features of this fine closed car and explain how easy it is for you to own one this winter.

Goodland News

Yes, there is still more proof that Goodland community is being developed. The people not only express their belief in social life but also take their stand for spiritual growth, the foundation of true character growth. The people of Goodland and the people from the Maple Wilson and Figure 2 schools met Sunday Nov. 8, at Goodland school house and made preparations for the community Sunday school. The three communities decided to organize one Sunday school to study the Bible.

Last week the owners of the Figure 4 ranch sold the remaining portions of their black cattle to Messrs. Whaley & Lewis of the X ranch. This is the last remnant of the once big herds that grazed peacefully over this fine ranch of 26,900 acres which is now rapidly going under the plow to be converted to an agricultural purpose.

Lore for Dog-Owners

By Albert Payson Terhune

WHY YOUR DOG DOES STRANGE THINGS

"The Dog Turned Carefully Around Twice Before Lying Down."

OLD MAN NEGLEY had brought his slenderly compact little Dobermann Pinscher dog along with him to Vine street that day, for companionship in his tiresome round of lawn-mowing.

At noon the old man parked his lawnmower under a tree in the Vreelands' spacious back yard and sat down beside it to sample the contents of his dinner-pail.

The grass had been left to grow long in this part of the grounds. A little later it was to be cut for hay. At present it was wavy and starred with daisies.

The two Vreeland boys and a school friend of theirs sauntered past, toward the house, and stopped to say hello to the old man.

As they did so the Dobermann Pinscher decided to imitate his master's example by coming to rest in the tall grass. The dog turned carefully around, twice, before lying down.

"I wonder why he did that," said Phil Vreeland. "Why he turned around, I mean, before he lay down. I've seen lots of dogs do it. It's silly."

"Yes," agreed Old Man Negley. "It's silly. Just as silly as for you and me to dream we're falling off some high place and wake up with a start. But once it wasn't silly for folks to dream that. Our ancestors, a million years ago slept in high trees or on high rock ledges to keep out of the way of wild beasts. The fellow who fell down from that height in his sleep was due to get a broken neck or be eaten by those same wild beasts."

"That was their worst terror for maybe thousands of years. That's why we keep on dreaming it; so a professor-chap told me once."

"Well, my dog turns around for a reason something like that."

"For millions of years his ancestors used to sleep in the high grass at night. The grass stems were stiff. The ground was likely to have snakes or scorpions on it. By turning around the dogs brushed the stiff grass into a bed, and they scared away the snakes or the scorpions that might have stung them."

"Dogs, today, get that trick from their ancestors. Some of them turn around like that, even if its only a hearthrug they're going to lie down on."

"It's what the science sharps call a 'throwback.' It may be silly (now), but once it was a life-saver."

"There are a lot of things our dogs do because their ancestors did those same things for so long. For instance:

"Wild dogs and their wolf-brothers were about the only animals that ever have hunted in packs. They would pull down a deer or a buffalo or some other prey, and then the whole pack would fall upon it and eat it. They were half starved."

"Often there wasn't enough to go around, so the dog with dainty table manners didn't live long enough to have any descendants. He died of hunger."

"The strongest dog was the dog that could bolt his food fastest and in that way get the biggest share of it. He was the dog that left his traits to his descendants—his traits of gulping down his food in big mouthfuls without half chewing it, among other things."

"That's why dogs today bolt their food faster and with less chewing than any other animal does. A cat eats daintily. A dog gobbles. That is why it is twice as easy to poison a dog as it is to poison a cat. The cat examines first. The dog inherits the habit of bolting his dinner without stopping to figure out what is in it."

"Nature has helped out this trait of his by giving him gastric juices that dissolve almost anything, except poultry bones, that gets into his stomach. If you or I should eat the things a dog eats, and eat them as fast and without chewing, we'd be dead."

"Another thing about the old-time hunting packs of wild dogs: When a dog starts to bay the moon at night, you've noticed how one dog after another, for miles around, takes up the sound and passes it on. It isn't like that with any other animal. For instance, if one cow moos all the cows in town don't begin to moo.

"In the old times the leader of the pack would bay at night to call the rest of the scattered dogs together for the hunt. Wolves and wild dogs still do that. Every wild dog that heard the call would obey it, and he'd do more. He'd send along the call to any other dogs that might be in hearing distance of him, and they'd pass it on in the same way."

"It's the ancestor-memory of the hunting call that makes our own dogs bark or howl at night when they hear a neighbor's dog do it. And a mighty unpleasant throwback it is, when folks are sleepy."

Old Man Negley had tossed a mutton bone to his Dobermann Pinscher when he sat down. The Pinscher had not finished gnawing all the meat off it. Getting to his feet and trotting over to a flowerbed, he proceeded to bury the bone in the soft earth, shoving the dirt back into place above it with his black nose.

"There's one more throwback," commented the old man, nodding toward the busy canine. "When the wild dogs pulled down some prey that was too big for them to eat all at once, they knew the next dog or pack of dogs that happened to get the scent would finish the carcass."

"So the dog that had had enough to eat would bury the rest of the bones. He would come back later to dig them up and eat them, when he was hungry again. That was good common sense; and I don't doubt it often saved him from famine. When game was scarce, he'd just return to the place where he'd buried his dinner; and he'd eat it."

"To this day dogs do the same thing. That Dobermann of mine knows he isn't likely to come here again. He knows he's never in his life been let go hungry. But by old-time instinct he's burying that bone. Because a trillion of his ancestors did it; and they made it a part of his nature to bury bones he can't eat."

"Your dad was asking me how to stop his collie from running out after cars. That's another throwback. Wild dogs lay in the bushes or long grass. Deer or sheep or rabbits would scurry past. If the dog wanted a dinner, he had to give chase the first instant he saw the flash of anything rushing past him. It was his nature to give chase to anything that ran by. That's how he kept alive. It was his sport and his way of making a living. It got to be an instinct."

"In the brains of modern dogs (especially long-haired dogs, because they are nearest to the wolf and the wild dog) that instinct is still doing business. And a pesky nuisance it is."

"A car goes whizzing past, and instinct makes the dog chase it. Sometimes I wonder what they think they'd do with the car if they caught it."

"Yes, there's a reason for everything your dog does. Even if that reason is sometimes a million years old." (Copyright by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Carlsbad Still Popular

Before the World War, Carlsbad was probably the most famous spa of Europe, and 70,000 visitors a year journeyed there. After the war Carlsbad became Karlovy Vary of Czechoslovakia. Nearly 50,000 visitors stayed there last year, which was more than twice as many as the year before; five times as many Americans as English were there, a number eight times larger than the number of French.

POP CORN GOOD WINTER SUNDAY SUPPER

Popping Corn for Sunday Supper in Winter.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Though cornmeal is now used in other parts of the world, pop corn seems still to be a peculiarly American product. White, fluffy kernels of popped corn have been found among prehistoric Indian remains in South America and also specially shaped earthenware implements with a depression in the center and a long handle, evidently the equivalent of our modern corn poppers. In olden days in this country the grains were sometimes thrown on the hot coals, where they burst and bounded back on the floor for the children to scramble after. The varieties of corn best adapted for pop corn, methods of cultivation, poppers, and suggestions for making such pop-corn dainties as pop-corn balls are described in Farmers' Bulletin 553 which may be obtained from the United States Department of Agriculture.

Though pop corn is most often eaten between meals and as a sort of food accessory, it has a food value similar to that of the same weight of corn prepared in other ways. It makes an excellent breakfast cereal served with milk or cream, and is so used in many families. It is hard to imagine a better supper for a winter Sunday at home than corn popped over the open fire and served hot with melted butter or with milk and a little salt, and perhaps with apples or other fruit as a finish.

CANDIED BERRIES ARE IDEAL GIFTS

Homemade Confections Are Excellent Remembrances for Christmas.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Unusual homemade confections are always an ideal Christmas remembrance when one does not wish to spend very much money. The little jars with screwed-on lids in which salad dressing is often sold make admirable containers for gifts of this kind if they are decorated with bright-colored splashes of enamel paint or simple designs in black.

Candied cranberries are easily made. The United States Department of Agriculture recommends the following way of preparing them.

Candied Cranberries.

1 cupfuls of large 2 cupfuls water. cranberries. 2 cupfuls sugar.

Select large, firm cranberries. Make three small slits, each one-eighth inch long, in each berry with a point of a penknife. Boil the sugar and water together until clear. Allow this sirup to cool, add the berries and bring very slowly to the boiling point. The saucepan should be large enough to permit all the berries to float at the top of the sirup during cooking. If the berries are heated too quickly, the skins will burst before the sirup soaks into the pulp. As soon as the sirup boils, take the dish off the stove and let it stand overnight.

Next day drain the sirup from the berries and reduce it to about half its original volume by boiling. Cool the sirup, place the berries in it, heat again slowly; boil very gently for three or four minutes, and allow to stand for two hours or more. Then boil gently a third time for five minutes. Allow the berries to stand in the thick sirup overnight; warm once more, so that the sirup will be thin enough to pour easily, and drain the berries from the sirup.

Spread them on a clean cloth or oiled paper to dry. When dry, the berries should be bright, firm, plump, and semitransparent.

Jellied peel is another delicious confection which can be made from materials available practically everywhere. Either grapefruit, orange, or lemon peel may be used.

Jellied Peel.

5 ounces peel cut in thin strips 1/4 inch wide (grapefruit, orange or lemon). 1 cupful sugar for sirup. 1/2 cupful water for rolling strips. 1-2 cupful water for sirup. 1/2 teaspoonful salt.

Use strips of thick, soft peel free from blemishes from bright-colored, heavy, smooth-skinned grapefruit, lemons, or oranges. Add one quart of cold water, boil for one-half hour. Repeat this process until the strips have been parboiled three times, discarding the water after each cooking. The strips should then be tender.

Dissolve the sugar in the water for the sirup, in a small saucepan, add the strips of grapefruit or orange peel, and cook rapidly for about 20 minutes, then place an asbestos mat under the pan, and continue the boiling about 20 minutes longer, or until the sirup is all absorbed by the peel. Great care must be taken at this point that the sirup does not scorch, and the strips of peel must be turned frequently. Use a fork in turning the strips and in removing them from the pan.

Place the peel on waxed paper until cool; and, using the flat side of a knife, roll the strips in granulated sugar. Let the strips dry out for an hour or two, then wrap in waxed paper, and keep in tightly-covered tin containers until used. This confection should keep in good condition for two or three weeks, if stored in a moderately-cool place.

Candied cranberries, and jellied peel may both be used effectively for decorating Christmas cakes and cookies in place of cherries, citron, angelica, etc. Those who have preserved watermelon rind on hand may like to tint it green with harmless vegetable coloring, flavor it with a few drops of peppermint, and use it in combination with the red of the cranberries and the yellow jellied peel. Or the jellied peel may be colored with harmless vegetable coloring by adding a small quantity of coloring to the last water in which the peel is parboiled.

Dates stuffed with strips of grapefruit peel instead of with peanuts or almonds are interesting and new. When the date pit has been replaced by a strip of the peel, the date is closed and rolled in granulated sugar.

Use Left Over Cereals

Small amounts of left-over cooked cereal sometimes present a problem to the housekeeper. She could, however, put them into bread, muffins, or griddle cakes in place of part of the flour and liquid. She could use them to thicken soups, stews, or gravies or fry them for use like a starchy dinner vegetable, or to serve with sirup for a dessert, the United States Department of Agriculture points out.

Stale cake can be made into cabinet pudding, with custard mixture and a few raisins or prunes. Try drying it, rolling it into crumbs and sprinkling them through or over ice cream, whipped cream or custard desserts, says the United States Department of Agriculture.

HOW TWO WOMEN AVOIDED OPERATIONS

The Following Letters of Mrs. Thurston and Mrs. Beard Carry an Encouraging Message to Other Sick Women

MRS. ETHEL THURSTON
324 N. PINE STREET, LIMA, OHIO

Lima, Ohio.—"I want to tell you how your medicine has helped me. For weeks I suffered with awful pains from inflammation and I was in such misery that I had to bend double to get relief. I could not be touched or jarred, had awful pain all over my abdomen and could not touch my feet never ceased. I took treatments for some time and finally was told I would have to have an operation. I do not believe in operations, and I had read so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I thought I would try it before up. I soon began to feel that doing me good. The awful began to leave me, also the br I have a good appetite and i ing in weight. Taking the was the best thing I ever did ad-like it has saved my life and hesitate to say so to my friend- least it saved me from a d operation and I am still taking am willing to answer letters women asking about the medic —Mrs. ETHEL THURSTON, 324 N Pine Street, Lima, Ohio.

Mrs. Beard's Letter

Eddy, Texas.—"I will write you few words, thinking it will do some one else good. Two doctors said I would have to be operated on because for nearly twelve months I suffered from a weakness from which I could get no relief. I was restless and nervous and was not able to walk across the house. They said it was the Change of Life. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the newspapers, and as I could not get any help from doctors I thought I would give that a trial. I began with the liquid and it helped me some, then you advised me to take the tablet form and I began to improve rapidly. I have gained in weight from 105 to 170 pounds. I recommend it to all women with this trouble." —Mrs. M. E. BEARD, R. No. 1, Box 143, Eddy, Texas.

As a climax to long years of suffering, Mrs. Hattie Crane got so bad she couldn't sleep and there were days when she couldn't walk across the floor. At times she could scarcely breathe. She was faint and dizzy. She writes: "Tanlac brought immediate relief and six bottles were enough to rid me of my troubles and bring back the joy of living. My health is better than ever and I am so pleased with Tanlac I praise it to everybody."

Thorobred Trees--
 There's a Difference:
 Not every tree that grows will fruit in the Panhandle-Plains country. Tests carried out over a period of more than 20 years at Hereford, show that less than one half of 300 varieties planted in our test orchards are successful.
 Out of these 300 varieties we have a collection of trees that can not be equaled for the Plains.
 No where else can you find as complete an assortment of proven varieties--no one else has made the test.
 The trees we select will grow and fruit for you. We guarantee satisfaction or refund your money without a question.

Y L Tidings Transmitted

A most enjoyable evening was spent at the Y L school house Friday Nov. 6th where the teachers entertained about seventy five people of the community.

Many games were played. They were led by Mr. Boone. One of the games was an indoor track meet. The crowd was divided into two groups, namely The Do Little College and No Nothing College. After many games were played the teachers served hot chocolate, cookies and sandwiches.

After everyone had enjoyed the refreshments the Parents Teachers Association met in the home economics room.

When the meeting was over, O. N. Robison thanked the teachers for their splendid entertainment and expressed the community satisfaction with the progress of the school.

On the 12th day of December, the Commissioners court will give the people of this county a chance to vote on the stock law. This is an agricultural county, the land is to valueable to devote to cattle raising and we think we should have the stock law enforced all over the county. This would save the farmers thousands of dollars every year, and much worry. We understand that the people in favor of this law will make it an issue in the coming election next year. This is a farming country and the farmers should be protected, we think.

Some time ago we sent out straw votes on the hardsurfacing of county roads. To date we have only received a portion of these votes. Whether the people are for or against the $250,000 bond issue, should send in their vote and let the Journal see what the desire of the people is on this subject. We are willing to take the side of the majority. As the Journal wants to represent the bulk of the people of its county. One of the greatest counties in the U. S. A.

Knockers don't win. Winners don't knock. That's it, let's live up to that slogan.

We find it in everyday life. Some are always knocking while others take what ever comes and goes with a smile. We know it is easy to knock on someone or something but it is a problem to praise and uphold everything with a smile.

Joy in life is like oil in a lamp. When the oil gets low the wick is consumed, emitting a black vapor and sending forth only a lurid light which does not give any light. A joyless life away passes unprofitably shedding around only gloom and sorrow.

The Muleshoe Agriculture boys made a trip to Mr. Hennegan's, on the K. K. Smith farm for the purpose of looking his hogs over.

A man with a thick head of hair was the center of a ring of English farmers who were endeavoring to poke fun at his expense.

"Why" exclaimed one "you've got a head of hair like a stack of hay."

"Oh" returned Pat "that's what I was thinking, that accounts for so many donkeys around me."

Never be afraid to say "I don't know", When it is the truth.

Here is the Spirit that Wins the Game.

What you get out of the game depends on how much you put in it. Play fair, make no foul tackles. Always treat your opponant with respect.

If the game is going against you keep your head up, set your jaw and dig in. This is what test the stuff you are made out of.

Never lose your self-controll. Never stop fighting.

Learn to face opposition without flinching.

Never lose confidence in your self-controll.

The teacher was telling the class about the season.

"Now one of you boys tell me the proper time to gather fruit."

Cloy replied instantly, "When the dog is chained up, teacher."

Most of the things we worry about never happen anyway.

Today is the tomorrow we worried about yesterday, and all is well.

So Why Worry?

The second number of the Lyceum was presented Friday night Nov. 6th. It was greatly enjoyed by everyone present.

The Senior class has belts with M. H. S. buckles to sell to help pay for the annual. Every high school student is urged to buy a belt.

Dollie Lawrance motored to Clovis Saturday afternoon.

Delma McCarty visited friends and relatives here this weekend.

Lea Green spent Sunday with Dollie Lawrance.

Opal Morris motored to Clovis Saturday afternoon.

Several of the pupils are the owners of new fountain pens and Eversharp pencils that were given for getting subscriptions to The Saturday Evening Post, the Country Gentleman and the Ladies Home Journal.

Mrs. Hart- "I suppose Bill will feel quite put out when he comes home and finds the door locked."

Miss Dovie Morris was a visitor to our school last Thursday.

Mr. Reed: "Did the quiz knock you cold?"

Bill Elrod- "Yes, zero.

Cloye to McClure- "Why don't you drown your troubles?"

McClure- "Aw she can swim."

We heard an awful row in the picture show the other night.

Two half sisters were trying to get in on a single ticket.

Several of the Juniors have decided to become business men and women. They are advancing rapidly in advanced arithmetic.

Ruth- "Roland is very active isn't he? He always lights on his feet."

Dollie. "Nothing active about that his head is so light it always goes up."

(This was heard in the Freshman English class.)

Miss Kistler- "Is everyone ready to give his oral theme?"

Louise- "I threw mine away."

Reed- "Jimmie do you believe in war?"

Jimmie- "No, sir."

Reed- "Good, now why don't you like it?"

Jimmie- Because it makes history and I hate history."

Reed- Dollie, why didn't you study your Spanish last night?"

Dollie- "I had a sore throat and could hardly speak English."

Sophomore Newsnotes

Beth Mardis spent Sunday with Opal Mordis.

Our Sophs played a very important part in the football game last Friday. Three of them are Sophs including the captain. This shows how the Sophs shine.

Several of the Sophomores are out of school harvesting the crop and we shall be very glad when they can be with us again.

Every student is very industrious this week as the examinations come next week.

A great interest was manifested during the game last week by the townsmen and the school is greatly appreciative of the fact. It is thru cooperation of the school and town that athletics in a small town may be a success.

For the Armistice game, score cards were printed naming players, officials and displaying attractive adds of local business houses. The firms making possible these little cards are strong boosters for the school and community. The public can find value recieved for their incurred expenses at any of these stores and we people should help those that help us.

Know About This Better Farm Power Plant

If you haven't seen this simple, powerful, lightweight tractor—then you've missed the tractor sensation of the day. The very things in a tractor for which you have been waiting are found in the

John Deere Tractor

The Simple Tractor That Develops More Power with Less Weight

Power increased—weight decreased—the John Deere develops 15-H. P. at the drawbar and 27-H. P. on the belt—and it weighs only 4,990 pounds—hundreds of pounds lighter than other tractors of the same rating. It neither packs the soil nor mires down in fields that can be worked.

Hundreds of parts simpler. Take off hundreds of parts from the ordinary tractor, many of which create friction and require power—only then can you appreciate the simplicity of the John Deere. You don't need a mechanic to keep this tractor in good running order.

Remaining parts extra strong—the strength necessary to give highly profitable service has not been sacrificed in the John Deere. All parts are extra strong. The bearings, crank shaft, gears, frame, drive chains—in fact every part of this tractor is built to stand the heavy duty farm work—up-keep costs are mighty low.

All-around farm power plant—no tractor ever built is better fitted for drawbar and belt work. Its power permits operating machines of economical size. It is short, low, narrow and turns in close quarters. Its compact design fits it particularly for work in small fields and orchards.

DON'T FAIL TO SEE this remarkable farm power plant. We will gladly demonstrate its performance.
