Lea Pool Project Flows Gas, Crude

Gulf Oil Corp. No. 2 Huld Townsend, re-entry project, 3/4 mile east of Morrow production in the Townsend field of Lea County, N.M., flowed 339 barrels of oil and 53 barrels of water in 16 hours, plus gas at the daily rate of 1.05 million cubic feet.

Testing continued through perforations at 11,374-11,390 feet, which had been acidized with 1,000 gallons. It swabbed 60 barrels of formation water and acid water following the acid treatment, and it then kicked off.

Intrastate Truck Lines Win Second Fuel Cost Surcharge

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission has given intrastate common carrier truck lines another rate surcharge to offset increased fuel costs.

The action, coupled with an earlier 2.2 per cent surcharge, allows the truckers to add a total of 4.5 per cent to their rates.

Unless extended, the surcharge expires Dec. 31.

The additional surcharge was sought by the Common Carrier Motor-Freight Association, Inc. The Texas intrastate surcharge is below the 6 per cent authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission for interstate carriers.

The railroad commission order applies only to common carriers, those which transport a broad variety of commodities—not to specialized carriers like cattle truckers and oil field equipment haulers.

Most Rigs Roll Despite Protest Shutdown Call

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rocks and sniper fire were directed at a few truck drivers today, but the rigs kept rolling on most of the nation's highways despite a call for a shutdown protest over fuel prices and speed limits.

Scattered incidents of violence occurred in Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia and Pennsylvania. No injuries were reported.

A truck windshield was smashed by a rock dropped from an overpass on Interstate Highway 65 north of Nashville, Tenn. Police said it was not necessarily related to the shutdown.

Rifle fire flattened two tires on a truck traveling on Interstate 85 near Newnan, Ga. State police increased their surveillance along truck routes, but traffic was said to be near normal.

No Blockades Reported

There were no reports of highway and truck stop blockades that were prevalent in two shutdown protests last winter.

Spot checks in Ohio, a key state in past shutdowns, showed traffic was reported rolling as usual.

Truckers who support the shutdown demand lower fuel prices, higher speed limits and auditing of oil companies.

Overdrive magazine, a Los Angeles-based publication, called for the shutdown by the nation's 100,000 independent drivers, most of whom own and operate their own rigs.

Few Shots Fired

Overdrive supported trucker shutdowns in December and February which brought about an increase in freight rates and guaranteed supplies of diesel fuel.

Two shots were fired from passing cars into trucks on Interstate 75 early today in Kentucky, but no one was injured, police said. One incident occurred near London, Ky., and the other near the border with Tennessee.

Pennsylvania State Police said someone firing a high-powered rifle from a bridge shot out the windshield of a trooper's car on the Pennsylvania Turnpike east of Breezewood. The officer was uninjured.

Windshields of three trucks were smashed with rocks in Fayette County, Pa., and pickets tried to halt trucks along U.S. 40 and U.S. 19, authorities said.

Italy Ends Voting On Divorce Repeal

ROME (AP) — Italians finished voting today in a two-day referendum to decide whether this predominantly Roman Catholic country will retain or repeal its three-year-old law permitting divorce.

A decision either way could collapse the government of Premier Mariano Rumor.

Some 70,000 polling stations across the country closed at 2 p.m. and vote-counting began. Final figures were expected in late evening.

Results in 227 voting districts out of 69,728 showed 44,150 in favor of retaining the divorce law while 36,235 favored its repeal.

By Sunday night, 73.8 per cent of the 37.5 million registered voters had cast their ballots — 5.1 per cent fewer than at the same stage of the 1972 general elections.

Public opinion surveys before the referendum indicated a slight edge in favor of keeping the law, with up to 40 per cent of those under 30 in favor of it and almost as many over 55 opposed. But a late trend indicated many people were undecided.

A majority vote against divorce automatically would erase the law from the books. But either a yes or no decision may split the fragile center-left coalition government beyond repair, plunging Italy into another political crisis while the dominant Christian Democrats try to put together the country's 37th postwar government.

The repeal campaign was sponsored by the Vatican and the Christian Democrats, Italy's Roman Catholic party. It was also supported by the neo-fascist Italian Social Movement, a party whose support is normally considered an embarrassment.

Ranged against them were the other three members of the government coalition—the Socialists, Democratic Socialists and Republicans—plus the Communists.

Socialist leader Pietro Nenni warned that repeal of the divorce law would "upset present political relationships," a clear threat to take the Socialists out of the government. But a vote for retention of the law could subject Rumor to pressure from conservative Catholics to break with the leftists.

In the three years since Italy got its first divorce law, fewer than 100,000 couples have filed suit to have their marriages severed, and about 70,000 divorces have been granted. Grounds include a five-year legal separation, sentencing of a spouse to prison for more than 15 years and conviction of a sex assault.

Israelis Say Differences With Syria Wide As Ever

By BARRY SCHWEID

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli sources say the gap in the disengagement negotiations with Syria is as wide as ever despite a report by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger of some progress toward an agreement.

Kissinger reported progress after a nine-hour visit Sunday to Damascus, saying, "We have passed from the state of general discussion and consideration to a detailed and complete examination of all the elements of disengagement."

But after a 2 1/2-hour meeting between the American secretary and Israeli leaders, authoritative Israeli sources said Kissinger told Premier Golda Meir and her aides that the differences between the Syrian and Israeli terms for an Israeli withdrawal on the Golan Heights were as wide as before although the Syrians were showing a new readiness for a separation of forces.

The sources said Kissinger dwelt on "the alternatives to disengagement," evidently meaning another full-scale war. But Israeli Information Minister Shimon Peres indicated his government is not prepared to ease its terms. He told newsmen: "I don't think that any change is needed in Israel's basic attitude."

The Israeli cabinet was called into session today to discuss the latest outline of the Syrian position, and Kissinger was to confer with government leaders afterward. He returns to Syria Tuesday.

Kissinger told newsmen he was willing to continue negotiations between Jerusalem and Damascus "as long as there is hope of making progress."

If a disengagement agreement can be reached, it is expected to provide for an Israeli withdrawal from most or all of the territory captured in the war last October plus part of the Golan Heights half a mile on the Israeli side of the 1967 cease-fire line. Three strategic hills around Quneitra which the Israelis insisted on retaining probably would be turned over to the United Nations force that would man a buffer zone between the two armies.

There were more demonstrations from small groups of Israelis opposed to surrender of any of the captured Syrian territory. About 50 demonstrators shouted "Boo to Kissinger!" substituting Kissinger for Kissinger—as he left Mrs. Meir's office at midnight Sunday. A group sang patriotic songs in Hebrew, and some camped overnight to continue their protest.

When Kissinger visited Mrs. Meir earlier Sunday before his trip to Syria, about 200 demonstrators gathered at the premier's office and shouted: "Kissinger go home!"

Artillery duels intensified Sunday along the 40-mile Golan front, and a Syrian report claimed several Israeli soldiers were killed and a number of Israeli tanks and halftracks were destroyed on Mt. Hermon. But Israel did not confirm the losses.

Two shots were fired from passing cars into trucks on Interstate 75 early today in Kentucky, but no one was injured, police said. One incident occurred near London, Ky., and the other near the border with Tennessee.

Pennsylvania State Police said someone firing a high-powered rifle from a bridge shot out the windshield of a trooper's car on the Pennsylvania Turnpike east of Breezewood. The officer was uninjured.

LATE NEWS FLASHES

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. Judge John J. Sirica said today he will make public in about two weeks the final report by a panel of experts on the 18-minute gap in a crucial Watergate tape.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Nixon administration today asked Congress to boost the ceiling on the national debt by more than $25 billion to $505 billion.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon was quoted by HEW Secretary Caspar Weinberger today as declaring "there isn't any chance . . . whatever" that he will resign from the nation's highest office.

Planes Hit Village In South Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli warplanes struck south Lebanon today, and eyewitnesses said the ancestral village of United States Sen. James G. Abourezk took the brunt of the attack.

The Lebanese defense ministry said four persons were killed in Kfeir village, including a woman, her 6-month-old son and 8-year-old daughter; five other children between 2 and 8 years old were wounded, and five houses were destroyed.

A communique accused the Israelis of aggression.

The Israeli military command said its air force made a 20-minute attack on Arab guerrilla concentrations just north of the Israeli-Lebanese border near Mt. Hermon. The command said all planes returned safely.

Lebanese witnesses to the attack said six F4 Phantom fighter-bombers attacked Kfeir, a village of 2,000 people in the other foothills of Mt. Hermon. Israel claims it is a base for Palestinian guerrillas who raid northern Israel.

Six other areas in southeast Lebanon also were reported attacked. Beirut frequently was shaken by sonic booms during the action.

The Israeli air force has been hitting south Lebanon almost daily for a week. Nineteen Palestinian guerrillas were reported killed in earlier attacks.

Abourezk, South Dakota Democrat, received a hero's welcome home in Kfeir last year during a tour of the Middle East.

Tapes Subpoena Hearing Set Behind Closed Doors

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's lawyers are trying to persuade U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica that the White House should not have to give any more Watergate tapes to the special prosecutor.

Also today, Sirica takes up what to do with a report from a panel of tape experts on the 18 1/2-minute gap in one of the tapes Nixon turned over earlier.

Clouds crept up the Rio Grande Valley to Del Rio as overcast skies formed across Central Texas, but most other state points were under clear skies today.

Moisture from the Gulf caused the spreading cloudiness in southern sections.

Steady winds fanned far West Texas and the Panhandle. Before dawn, Amarillo reported gusts to 39 miles per hour.

Midland has a promise of hot temperatures with a 20 per cent chance of thunderstorms through Tuesday, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Air Terminal.

The high today will be in the middle to upper 90s, with an overnight low expected near 70. Tuesday's high will be in the middle 80s.

The high Sunday was 95, and the low this morning was 70.

Temperatures at dawn today generally were in the 60s and 70s with the cooler readings in the southeast, The Associated Press reported.

New Commuter Line Announced

DALLAS (AP) — Industrialist John Glover announced today formation of Jetstream Commuters airline service which will begin service May 20 between Dallas, Waco, Tulsa, Okla., and Oklahoma City.

Jetstream will operate five aircraft through Dallas Love Field which will be the airline's hub base, he said.

Clear Skies Push Mercury Toward Upper-90s Readings

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's lawyers are trying to persuade U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica that the White House should not have to give any more Watergate tapes to the special prosecutor.

Also today, Sirica takes up what to do with a report from a panel of tape experts on the 18 1/2-minute gap in one of the tapes Nixon turned over earlier.

A memorandum filed by special prosecutor Leon Jaworski on Friday immediately was placed under court seal by Sirica. The judge also said he had instructed all lawyers in the case and their clients not to discuss it.

The panel of experts presented Sirica its report on the 18-minute gap May 4 after almost six months of study. Lawyers in the case had been given until today to "study the draft and communicate with the panel about it."

The gap is in a recording of a conversation between Nixon and then-White House Chief of Staff H. R. Haldeman on June 20, 1972. Testimony at a hearing last winter disclosed that

Truck Strike Pooping Out

(Continued From Page 1A) Trucks were rolling at near normal rates in the state. Checks around the nation showed truck traffic was near normal today in Delaware, Maryland, Texas, Florida, Massachusetts, Indiana, South Carolina, Alabama, New York, South Dakota and Connecticut among others. Truckers groups in Minnesota, Nebraska and New Hampshire adopted a wait-and-see position on the shutdown call. A spokesman for independent drivers in Denver said the strike was working there but was not able to provide figures. Spokesmen for the scores of independent trucker organizations that sprang up during the last strike generally said they either couldn't afford to shut down or didn't think it would do any good. There were scattered reports from police and truck stops in the Midwest that truck traffic was down slightly early today, and some spokesmen for independent drivers said they were honoring the call. Men who claimed to represent 18 groups of independents said in Kansas City, Kan., Sunday night that they had just finished meeting with two federal officials and were going to shut down. But there was no immediate indication they were very effective. In Houston, Tex., early today, about 100 independent drivers pulled into a truck stop and shut down. But there were few similar reports received, and no reports of truck stops being blockaded or closed. Employees at major truck stops at Cordele, Ga., on Interstate 75, a main north-south highway, and in Bartonsville, Pa., on Interstate 80, the key east-west route into or out of the Northeast, said truck traffic was moving as usual. In Akron, Ohio, the Council of Independent Truckers, a main force in the last shutdown, said it wasn't supporting this one. And William Hill, national chairman of the Fraternal Association of Steel Haulers, the largest single group of independents, said he didn't believe there would be a strike. He said a meeting of independents Sunday afternoon in Breezewood, Pa., failed to produce support for a strike. But Michael Parkhurst, editor of Overdrive and the main pusher for a strike, also attended the meeting and he said 70 per cent of those present voted to shut down. He said they represented 30 groups in 11 states. Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp, who helped negotiate an end to the last strike, talked with the truckers at Breezewood by telephone and said later he thought most drivers would stay on the highway.

Chinese Premier Says He's Aging

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — Chinese Premier Chou En-lai is saying he's "not very well because I am old now," according to news accounts circulating here. The remark was reported Sunday to have been made at a guest house in Peking to visiting Pakistani Premier Zulfikar Ali Bhutto. Radio Pakistan said Chou, 76, was not at the airport Saturday for Bhutto's arrival because his doctors had advised complete rest but greeted Bhutto later at the guest house in the city. Bhutto met with Chairman Mao Tse-tung for 90 minutes Saturday.

Armchair Quarterback Nixon Playing For Big Stakes Now

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG (An AP News Analysis)

WASHINGTON (AP) — Armchair quarterback Richard M. Nixon was thrown for losses a couple of years ago when he tried his hand calling plays for two pro football teams. He's not doing much better as play caller for his Watergate team. The Washington Redskins tried a Nixon play at a crucial moment in their playoff game late in 1971 against the San Francisco 49ers. The play lost three yards and the Redskins lost the game 24 to 20. Three weeks later, the President had another suggestion, this time for the Miami Dolphins, who were in the Super Bowl against Dallas. It was a pass play that didn't work, and the Dolphins lost. It was all good fun and every football fan in America could envy the President and sympathize with him. But Watergate and the resultant impeachment investigation are not games. The stakes are Nixon's survival as President. The opposition is tough and members of his own team are rebelling at the President's play calling. So far, the President has depended on dramatic gestures to reverse the Watergate tide. But each time he has suffered greater losses. In contrast, special prosecutor Leon Jaworski and Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., have moved much more conservatively. The focal point of the struggle between the White House and the parallel investigations being conducted by Jaworski and Rodino has been the presidential files and particularly the tapes. As presidents before him, Nixon has resisted turning over his files either to the courts or the Congress. But beyond the legal arguments is a strategy aimed at the American people and designed to convince them that the President has told the full story of Watergate and that it shows he had no role in the cover-up. Both Jaworski and Rodino counter the President's legal arguments with claims he does not have the right to withhold evidence of wrongdoing, either his own or that of his aides. In releasing the massive volume of Nixon transcripts, the President hoped to quiet the demands for more tapes and documents. But the gesture forced him to reveal a side of his nature that touched off a new wave of calls for his resignation. And the demands for evidence are continuing. The Judiciary Committee is expected to issue another subpoena this week. But rather than pursue enforcement and precipitate a dramatic confrontation with the White House, Rodino has opted for a more conservative approach. The Judiciary Committee plans to issue subpoenas but avoid attempts to cite the President for contempt of Congress if he fails to comply with them. It's a less dramatic approach. But the cumulative effect could be to move the impeachment inquiry, in methodical steps, toward its ultimate goal.

Jury Selection Now Under Way In Combs Trial

Jury selection began this morning in the murder trial of Stephen Max Combs, 29. Combs is charged with the 1970 stabbing death of Vickie Berneathy, a 20-year-old North Texas State University coed. Thirty-five prospective jurors were questioned in 142nd District Court by Dist. Atty. James Mashburn and defense attorneys William B. Smith of Midland and Emmett Colvin of Dallas. Questioning of the jury panel was to continue this afternoon.

High Court Voids Number Of Wiretaps

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court dealt a sharp setback to the Justice Department today by invalidating a number of anticrime wiretaps because federal officials failed to follow the law. The decision could upset federal cases numbering in the hundreds, including organized crime and narcotics prosecutions. The case turned on whether the Justice Department under former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell followed the demands of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act in requesting wiretaps. The court held that Mitchell did not follow the requirements of the act in a series of wiretap requests that were signed by his executive assistant. The law specifies that either the attorney general himself or a specially-designated assistant attorney general approve wiretap requests. In other action today, the court rejected International Business Machines Corp.'s request for Supreme Court review of a lower court order that it chisel follow the demands of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act in requesting wiretaps. —Ruled 5-to-4 that the public

Chicago Transit Authority can refuse to accept ads calling for President Nixon's impeachment, even though it accepts paid political advertisements for such causes as election campaigns and antiwar positions. —Refused to hear a plea that universities discriminate against women students when they require them to obey dormitory curfews not imposed on men students. The wiretaps requests in question are made to federal judges, who must give approval before the taps can be made. Justice Byron R. White, writing for an unanimous court,

Rebels Propose Talks

ALGIERS (AP) — Rebel leaders in Portuguese Guinea today proposed "the immediate start of negotiations" with the new Portuguese regime to settle the conflict in the African territory. A statement issued here said the negotiations could begin "with or without a cease-fire" but warned the rebels were aiming for "the total liberation of our people." The statement was issued by the executive committee of the African party for the Independence of Guinea-Bissau and the Cape Verde Islands — PAIGC — after an "extraordinary meeting." PAIGC, whose guerrillas control part of the territory on Africa's west coast, was the first rebel group to accept the principle of negotiations. Independence movements in Angola and Mozambique, Portugal's two other African colonies, have rejected talks with the Portuguese junta of Gen. Antonio de Spínola.

Richardson Disturbed By Edited Transcripts

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — Former U.S. Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson says he is greatly disturbed by what he has read of the edited transcripts of White House Watergate tapes made public last week. "The dominance for survival as distinguished from a concern with what was the right course of action was certainly dismaying to me," he told reporters in an interview Sunday before he delivered the commencement address at St. Anselm's College. Richardson resigned as attorney general rather than fire original Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox at Nixon's direction. He said because he is a potential witness in impeachment proceedings against the President, it would be inappropriate

In a companion case the court permitted the government to preserve the evidence gathered in a number of other questioned wiretaps. Richardson said he favors continuation of the "constitutional processes" to determine whether the President should be impeached. He said he thinks the chances of Vice President Gerald R. Ford becoming President before 1976 are "a little better than even now." TAPES — (Continued From Page 1A) The missing portion deals with Watergate. In a preliminary report to Sirica last Jan. 15, the experts reported that a buzzing sound which replaced conversations was "put on the tape in the process of erasing and rerecording at least five, and perhaps as many as nine, separate and contiguous segments." Three days later, after hearings that produced 2,800 pages of testimony from 23 witnesses, Sirica turned the matter over to the grand jury, concluding that "a distinct possibility of unlawful conduct on the part of one or more persons exists here." On April 18, at the request of Jaworski, Sirica authorized a subpoena for tapes and documents covering 64 White House conversations. Jaworski said the conversations concerned Watergate and that he needed them for the trial of seven former Nixon administration and campaign officials in the Watergate cover-up case. The White House moved May 1 to have the subpoena quashed, saying Nixon has the right to keep his conversations private and had an obligation to protect the constitutional principle of executive privilege. The committee's subpoena covers conversations ranging from three days after the June 17, 1972, break-in at Democratic party headquarters in the Watergate office building to June 4, 1973, the day Nixon listened to earlier tapes.

'New' Gandhi More Pragmatic

By MYRON L. BELKIND NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, dressed in a yellow cotton sari, rose from her seat in parliament after midnight to defend her handling of the railway strike now in its sixth day. Across the chamber, more than 50 men—Communists, Socialists, Conservatives—tried to shout her down. The 56-year-old prime minister angrily outshouted them, and they sat back to listen to a one-hour lecture from the woman who ordered thousands of union leaders to jail in a fruitless attempt to block the strike. "To say our policy is anti-labor is the most preposterous statement that anybody could have made," she declared. "We are for labor, but even more for the country. The country's interests come first, and they are above the interests of any one section." The tough, extemporaneous speech and stubborn refusal to be shouted down illustrated what many here see as a new, more pragmatic Indira Gandhi. A year ago, she sponsored a law requiring private companies to pay a month's pay as an annual bonus to employees even if the company is losing money. Now, she is adamantly refusing to pay such bonuses to the 1.7 million workers on the government-run railways. A year ago, Mrs. Gandhi took over the critical wholesale wheat trade, saying a government monopoly would speed the country toward socialism. After President Nixon cut off economic aid to India during the 1971 India-Pakistan war, Mrs. Gandhi vowed never to ask the United States for assistance again. Last month, her government quietly told Washington it wants aid. For years, the Congress party pledged to break up large business empires in the name of socialism. In recent months these conglomerates have been receiving more and more industrial licenses. She said that what is guiding her policies now is "whether to go along the road of continuing to give more and more (to labor) when we have less and less." The country is short of food, fertilizer, petroleum products, steel, cement and most of all money to pay for vital imports. Political setbacks are compounding Mrs. Gandhi's economic problems. One state government controlled by her party fell in February because of a public revolt over high prices and official corruption, and a similar campaign is jeopardizing another state administration. Soviet Police Summon Dancer

LONDON (AP) — Russian ballet dancer Valery Panov was called to a police station in Leningrad today and friends in London said they feared for his safety. The former star of Leningrad's Kirov ballet company has been hounded by officials for the past two years since he expressed a wish to emigrate to Israel. He was dismissed from the Kirov and refused permission to dance professionally in Russia. Panov, 35, telephoned friends in London during the night and also said he had been refused permission to visit a brother in Vilnius, capital of Soviet Lithuania. In the past London friends had been able to contact Panov through his brother. His London contacts have been active in staging demonstrations at the Soviet Embassy by leading figures in Britain's theater and ballet world demanding that Panov and his wife be allowed to leave Russia. They said they were "desperately worried" about his safety.

They went from the altar to the polling station—and both voted for divorce. "I'm voting against divorce," said night watchman Pino Gungella, accompanied by his wife, Giuseppina. "When I want to divorce her, I'll take her home and kill her. That's how we do it here." Said his wife, laughing: "I'd divorce you tomorrow if I thought anyone else would have me. But they won't so I don't want divorce."

Prominent Demo McDonald Dies At Wichita Falls

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — Prominent Texas Democrat Charles C. McDonald died Sunday following a long illness. He was 89. McDonald was a former Texas Assistant Attorney General and secretary of state during the 1915-17 term of Gov. Jim Ferguson. McDonald ran for the Democratic nomination for governor in 1934 against two other Wichita Falls men who lived within three blocks of one another. They were Tom S. Hunter and Jimmy Allred. Allred went on to become governor. McDonald reportedly captured the East Texas "snuff" vote for Ferguson when he said: "There are only two truly great men—Levi Garrett and Jim Ferguson." McDonald was a 50-year Mason and 50-year member of the American bar, trying murder cases in 39 Texas counties in his career. Funeral services will be Tuesday.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Smelly Wool Cape Upsets Crocheter

By POLLY CRAMER
Newspaper Enterprise Association

Polly's Problem
DEAR POLLY — I crocheted a worsted wool cape but the dye in the wool (I think) gives such an awful odor I am ashamed to wear it. I do hope some reader can tell me how to eliminate this odor. — ANNE.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is business establishments that post a large "OPEN" sign when they are closed and may be for the night, the day or the season but the sign stays there. I have turned around, crossed a highway, parked my car and tried the door before discovering the store is closed. It seems they could be a bit more considerate. — MARCIA.

DEAR POLLY — Like Mrs. J. R. I also save those boxes that film comes in for cameras that develop pictures immediately. I use them for gift boxes and find them great for holding ear-rings, little pins, lighters and so on. This saves time and money spent buying gift boxes. — CATHERINE.

DEAR POLLY — I want to share a Pointer with women who wear wigs and have trouble holding them in place while combing and styling. I completely covered a heavy brick with bright colored felt that I glued on. After this was dry I glued my plastic wig holder to the center of the brick and have a non-sliding and attractive holder for my wig. — SARA.

DEAR POLLY — The plastic caps off prescription medicine bottles are very useful when used under the legs of chairs and tables. They slide easily and do not leave rust stains on the kitchen floor, for example. They come in many sizes. I have some silk shoe strings that were always coming untied. I now spray them with spray starch every so often and they stay put. — MRS. J. P.

DEAR POLLY — When crocheting with thin plastic strips such as used in making a handbag put an ice cube in a nonleaking plastic bag, rub your hands on this occasionally as you work and the plastic will not stick to them or together. — I.L.A.

Dear Abby

Spirits Don't Exist— Not Even In Kansas City

—By Abigail van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I don't know if you believe in spirits. I never did, but something happened that really got me thinking, and I don't know who else to ask about this.

When my husband was in Kansas City on a business trip he looked up an old girlfriend just for old time's sake, and she told him that I had visited her some years back under very mysterious circumstances.

Abby, I have never met this woman in my life. In fact, I have never been to Kansas City. Now here is where the spirits come in:

My husband swears that this girl is telling the truth and that somehow my spirit left my body and went to Kansas City to visit Agnes. He says that Agnes described me to a "t," even to the mole I have on my right cheek, so now I don't know what to think.

Can you explain this? I am all bewildered and confused.

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: I don't believe in spirits. Even though you've never been to Kansas City or met Agnes, perhaps Agnes has seen you or a picture of you. Or possibly you have been described in detail to her. Don't worry about it. There is no evidence that spirits exist, much less leave the body and go to Kansas City.

DEAR ABBY: I am 14. My mother remarried two years ago. The problem is that before she remarried, she used to spend all her time with me

WHAT IS THE TRUTH?

"Thy Word is Truth" (John 17:17)
by Bryan Bost

A young boy was at the point of death. His mother was on one side of the bed, and his father was on the other. His parents were estranged from one another. With his last act he took one of his mother's hands and one of his father's hands and joined them together. His last act was to bring his parents together again. His action can be described as reconciliation.

Jesus Christ died on the cross to bring us together with God. His death made reconciliation possible. Our sin has separated us from our holy God. As Isaiah 59:2 points out, "Your iniquities have made a separation between you and your God." The shedding of Christ's blood was necessary to forgive the sin that stood between us and God. Because Jesus died for us, we can be reconciled to (brought back together with) God. The final outcome of our reconciliation to God is an eternal home in heaven with him.

Consider these New Testament thoughts: "For in Christ all the fullness of God was pleased to dwell, and through him to reconcile to himself all things, whether on earth or in heaven, making peace by the blood of his cross. And you, who once were estranged and hostile in mind, doing evil deeds, he has now reconciled in his body of flesh by his death, in order to present you holy and blameless and irreproachable before him" (Colossians 1:19-22). "We beseech you on behalf of Christ, be reconciled to God" (II Corinthians 5:20).

Consumer Would Be Loser

There is no doubt the U.S. consumers will be the real losers if the Oil and Gas Energy Tax Act of 1974 is enacted by Congress.

This has been pointed out time and again by the experts and it is difficult to see how members of Congress and the consumers themselves can overlook it as they charge blindly ahead toward disaster.

Commenting on the House Ways and Means Committee approval of the bill, Frank N. Ikard, president of the American Petroleum Institute, said:

"Though the passage of this legislation would sharply increase taxes on oil companies, the real victims would be the nation's consumers. The tax measure would add more than $13 billion to the petroleum industry's already heavy domestic tax bill in the years 1974-79.

"Most of the added burden would fall on the domestic operations, making it extremely unlikely that the industry would be able to attract the high level of investment needed to strengthen our nation's energy position."

In other words, if the proposed bill becomes law, the nation will find itself right back where it was when the energy crisis was at its height. Would that the consumers could and would realize this before it is too late.

It still is not too late for the sound-thinking, fair, honest and reasonable members of Congress to head off the catastrophe at the pass.

Ikard said it has been estimated that the petroleum industry will need to spend more than $500 billion in the U.S. alone to meet the nation's energy needs in the years between now and 1985.

"The only way to find and produce oil and gas is to spend the increasing amounts of money it will take to do the job," he said. "If there is not enough money available, there just won't be enough energy. It's that simple.

This is the warning sounded by a recognized authority on the subject. Members of Congress can't say that they were not told in advance of the dire consequences.

It really is incredible, as Ikard says, that at a time when the U.S. urgently needs to speed up the discovery and development of its domestic oil and gas resources that Congress should be considering legislation which is certain to block that effort.

Such action definitely would not be in the public interest!

The United States should move forward toward a greater degree of self-sufficiency. It's up to Congress!

NEA BRIEFS— Of Trials, Tapes, Maybe Turpitude, And So Forth

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The American people are going to witness the impeachment trial of the 37th President of the United States even before the formal voting on articles of impeachment by the House of Representatives, and regardless of whether or not the House eventually does so vote.

When the House Judiciary Committee begins its public hearings on the evidence and on the charges, even though it is only the initial step in the impeachment process, Richard M. Nixon will be as much on trial as if the Senate were weighing the merits of a formal indictment by the full House.

With the entire nation looking on via television, attorneys for the committee will present evidence and witnesses, who will be questioned by members of the committee. The President's lawyer, James D. St. Clair, will be given the right to present his own evidence and witnesses and to question those of the committee, and while this will not be called "cross-examination," that is most certainly what it will amount to.

If the committee decides, on the evidence and the testimony, to recommend impeachment to the House — and, most importantly, if the American public, having heard and seen it all, concurs in the rightness of the decision — the ensuing constitutional processes may be almost anticlimactic.

The House would find it difficult not to adopt the recommendation for impeachment, and the Senate not to convict — assuming, of course, that no dramatic new evidence in the President's favor were presented to the Senate. But this is unlikely, for the time for the President to nip impeachment in the bud is now, at the beginning.

The fate of Richard Nixon may well be decided within the next few weeks.

1. The Puritans were responsible for portraying Jesus more in the humble, meek and gentle way instead of an understanding man of strength and firm character. The Bible leaves both impressions. PIPED MUSIC IN Subway Suggested

TORONTO (AP) — Veteran band leader Benny Louis wants to see piped music installed in the Toronto subway system and the Toronto Transit Commission is interested. Louis, who has been asked by the TTC to submit a report, says the speakers could be arranged in such a way that travelers who didn't want to listen to the music or news reports could easily move out of earshot. He said the system would cost $100,000 to install and $60,000 a year to operate.

BRUCE BLOSSAT And After All This, We Still Don't Know, Really

WASHINGTON (NEA) — In all the endless hurly-burly over Watergate, one crucial element has, astonishingly, been lost sight of. Final crucial responsibility for the June, 1972 bugging and burglary of the Democrats' Watergate headquarters never has been fixed. And it seems evident that even President Nixon and some of his former key aides do not know.

Along the way, the President, his onetime counsel John Dean and others had some quite specific ideas about how the critical guidance for the break-in might have been given. But they were never altogether certain, and seemed either unwilling or unable — or both — to pin down the blame.

We must remember that for our own guidance we have only the edited, transcribed versions of conversations on Watergate which the President held with Dean and others over a period of many months, starting in this instance from Sept. 15, 1972. Obviously, there were earlier conversations but analysts and the public have no access to them.

In summary, from a reading of pertinent passages in the released transcripts, it can be said that Mr. Nixon and others came to feel — after much searching discussion — that White House pressures exerted by former aide Charles Colson and/or Gordon Strachan (acting clearly in the name of Mr. Nixon's top aide, H. R. Haldeman), may have provided the decisive impetus for Watergate break-in.

Many times the name of Re-election Committee chairman John Mitchell is brought in, but in early conversations it is largely dismissed. Later on, however, there is a judgment that, somewhat weary at battling (so he has always said) a bizarre intelligence-gathering plan, he may at long last have bowed to represented White House insistence and said "go ahead," without a clear idea what that would mean.

On March 21, 1973, the day the President improperly describes as the first time he had any knowledge of real White House involvement in Watergate and coverup, Dean told him that in February 1972, Colson telephoned Jeb Magruder, a top executive at the re-election committee where intelligence work was centered for certain purposes, and said:

"You all either fish or cut bait. This is absurd to have these guys over there and not using them. If you are not going to use them, I may use them."

Later in that chat, the President says Colson "may well have been the trigger man where he just called up and said now look here Jeb go out and get that information. And (G. Gordon) Liddy and (E. Howard) Hunt went out and got it at that time."

At this juncture in the March 21 talks, Dean disclosed for the first time that Liddy and Hunt both were in Colson's office when the call to Magruder was made. He told Mr. Nixon he was so informed by Colson himself.

Liddy, of course, was intelligence gatherer for the committee and Hunt had a White House cubbyhole office as an operative hired by Colson for the so-called "plumbers' unit."

Liddy sometimes is portrayed as feeling unused and, in Nixon aide H. R. Haldeman's words "pushing to get something done" — and as saying on other occasions that he was pressed "without mercy" by Magruder to dredge up far more intelligence about the Democrats than the White House was getting.

Here enters the added pressure on Magruder from Haldeman's top helper and tie to the committee, Gordon Strachan. In the discussions, Mr. Nixon and others try to weigh its effect along with Colson's.

Haldeman, earlier portrayed as dissatisfied with committee intelligence and urging Strachan to so advise Magruder, sees the possible link to a Watergate bugging decision. On March 27, 1973, he tells the President Strachan's message to

Dear Editor:
I see where the House Judiciary Committee will hold some of its impeachment inquisition sessions on tv, a la Watergate. To Tell the Truth, Bewitched, etc.

Which quickly could prove that the low rating Congress has been getting in the public opinion polls lately is at least as high as it deserves.

And could be a help to Mr. Nixon's own rating in the polls, on the grounds that anybody with a mess of derogators of that caliber must have some good in him.

DON OAKLEY Columnist Re-Examines President's Miracles

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Foreign affairs is the one bright light amid the gloom surrounding the Nixon administration.

It is the one area the President can point to — as, not surprisingly, he has done again and again — and cite positive and lasting accomplishments: The ending of the Vietnam war, the bringing home of American prisoners, the improvement of relations with Russia and the puncturing of the Chinese bamboo curtain.

So well has the Nixon administration identified itself with innovation and achievement in foreign affairs that even Nixonophobes who urge the President's resignation or impeachment for other reasons generally give him high marks in this department.

Unfortunately, like many claims put forth by the White House, a closer examination reveals that President Nixon's record in the foreign field does not quite live up to its billings. The most important of all the claims is that Richard Nixon ended the Vietnam war. To do so, however, took him four years and the expenditure of as many lives and as much treasure as in his predecessor's three years.

If this is "ending the war," then the U.S. Congress should be credited with ending World War II when it declared war on the Axis on Dec. 8, 1941.

Actually, all that is ended in Vietnam is American combat troop involvement. The war goes on, and while Vietnam veterans are given shrift, American military aid to South Vietnam continues to the tune of more than $1 billion a year.

The Vietnam war is "over" only because we no longer pay any attention to it.

As for the breakthroughs in relations with Russia and China, the former were the beneficiaries of a bargain wheat deal in which American farmers lost tens of millions of dollars in potential earnings and whose adverse repercussions the American economy is still suffering from; and the latter have made it abundantly plain that it is they who will decide how far and how quickly relations with the United States will improve.

Rather than being like Commodore Perry forcing open the door of Japan, President Nixon was invited to China because the Chinese had decided that it was time to take out some insurance in the event of war with Russia. No matter who had been president in 1972, unless he was a real blunderer, he would have been credited with "bringing China back into the world community."

Granted that "rapprochement" with our erstwhile enemies is a notable and praiseworthy thing, what value is it if it is made at the expense of one's friends? Japan, surely of somewhat more strategic importance in the Pacific than South Vietnam, was delivered a series of unnecessary shocks by the Nixon administration that amounted almost to contempt on our part.

Without consultation with the Japanese to ease their fears or facilitate their adjustment, we unilaterally devalued the dollar in relation to the yen. Again unilaterally and without prior warning, at the height of the energy crisis we embargoed shipments of soybeans which the Japanese had already paid for and are vitally dependent upon.

The energy crisis also dramatically revealed the deterioration of the Atlantic alliance, when our Western European allies scrambled to disassociate themselves from U.S. policy and make private deals with the Arabs. At the height of the October war, U.S. planes air lifting equipment and supplies to Israel were forbidden to land at NATO airfields in Europe.

If this is accomplishment in foreign affairs, bring back Millard Fillmore.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association reports that about 85 per cent of all automobiles in use in the United States are equipped with one or more emission control systems. Air pollution caused by automobiles has consequently been greatly reduced compared to previous levels, and will continue to decrease as more new cars with emission controls replace older cars which have limited or no controls. Ex-Nixon Youth Saddened, Confused

By ANN BLACKMAN
WASHINGTON (AP) — Five years ago, dozens of young people flocked to the White House to serve President Nixon. They had sipped on the headiness of the 1968 campaign and were full of energy, ambition, ideas and ideals.

It had been, as one of them put it, "an extraordinary vantage point," a chance to be involved in the highest levels of government, a tremendous career boost, an ego trip beyond their wildest dreams.

Today most have departed, their rose-colored vision shattered or shredding at the seams. And they are bewildered, saddened, betrayed and confused by the complexities surrounding the Watergate scandal.

And, with the release of the transcripts, it is soul searching time again, more whats and whys and hows.

"You got so carried away in that place with a feeling of moral righteousness that it's understandable some thought what they were doing was good for the country," said one disillusioned former Nixon aide. "I found myself saying so many times, the bureaucracy isn't going to help these people. I'm going to help them with the power of the White House. But it was illegal. Where do you draw the line?"

"If you did it by the rules and regulations, you'd be there 25 years. We didn't have that time. So sometimes you'd fudge and say, 'The President wants this done.'"

Even so, the aide and most of his departed colleagues do not agree with Gordon Strachan, the tall, sad-eyed young man who fought tears as he told the Senate Watergate committee last summer that based on his experience at the White House, he had this advice for young people interested in government service: "Stay away."

The White House often pointed out that almost one-third of the President's staff was 30 or under. In 1969 a reporter interviewed some of 30 White House aides with the title of staff assistant, deputy secretary or research assistant. Today, only about a half dozen remain.

John R. Price, a former executive secretary of the Urban Affairs Council and special assistant to the President, left the administration in 1971. Price, now 35 and a vice president of Manufacturers Trust Co. in New York, was interviewed after reading the edited transcripts of Nixon's Watergate conversations.

Instinct For Survival
"It's very depressing there was not more leadership shown," he said. "The only things that come out is the instinct for survival . . ."

"The supreme irony of the Nixon years was brought home to me by a memorandum (Daniel P.) Moynihan wrote to Nixon just before he was inaugurated. The gist of it was that it was Nixon's task to restore confidence and respect to the office of the presidency and American institutions."

Then Price added: "It is time for the President to step aside in favor of Vice President Ford."

Of the dozen former Nixon staffers interviewed, all between the ages of 28 and 35, most said they left the White House with mixed emotions: proud of having worked for the president of the United States, sickened to see so many of their colleagues facing indictments, court trials and jail, and relieved not to have been sucked into the whirlpool themselves.

Lee W. Huebner, a former Nixon speechwriter, offered these reflections on his five years in the White House: "When I first came to Washington, it was a great, glittering, glamorous and exciting place. When I left, it was sad and depressing."

Transcripts Depressing
"Everyone who remembers what it might have been is saddened it hasn't turned out the way we wanted it to."

Huebner, 33, now working for the Whitney Communications Corp. in New York, said he finds it hard to talk about his feeling on working for the Nixon White House.

The transcripts of the Watergate conversations are, in Huebner's view, "one of the most depressing things I've read. People still have questions."

But of his experience in the White House, Huebner insisted: "It is an extraordinary vantage point. I feel lucky to have had the opportunity. I met a lot of fine people there. I learned a lot."

He smiled at the memory, then shook his head. He was disappointed, he said, that Nixon didn't take a more active role in investigating the Watergate scandal: "From the day after the break-in, we kept waiting for someone to raise the roof. I regret he didn't take a stronger role from the start in condemning it and cleaning it up."

"For a time, I was mad as hell I didn't know more," said Robert C. Odle Jr., a former Nixon staffer and official at the President's re-election committee who was the first person to testify before the Senate Watergate committee. "They could have taken me into their confidence, but I'm glad they didn't."

Odle, a strong defender of the President, takes offense at those who describe the White House "as a dark, fortress-like garrison where everyone went around with paranoia and frowns."

He scowled at the image. "It wasn't like that," he said, rising from his chair to pace around his ninth-floor office at the Department of Housing and Urban Development where he has worked since last summer. "It was a fine place. They were principled people, generally."

"There were few affairs, little adultery, little drunkenness. Many of the people were church-going. I think a few individuals went wrong. One or two things were done improperly, and people attempted afterwards to cover up these things."

Called National Tragedy
"You have to ask yourself in conscience might the people who covered it up not have done so if the vultures weren't waiting?"

In Odle's view, the edited transcripts "conclusively show the President had no more knowledge of the scandal than he said he had."

Should Nixon leave office or be impeached?

"I can't think of a greater national tragedy," he said.

Some of the young people who, like Odle, carried the title, "Staff Assistant to the President," have been unable to find a job or found potential employers wary of anyone with White House connections. They view themselves as victims of guilt by association, even in cases where no evidence has surfaced to connect them in any way with Watergate.

Jeffery E. Donfeld, 30, a former Nixon staffer who worked for more than four years on Nixon's drug abuse program, said he received less than red carpet treatment when job hunting last summer.

He received indications, he said, that congressional leaders had little interest in awarding high government positions to any attorneys who had worked on the White House staff during Nixon's first term.

At most of the law firms and corporations where Donfeld interviewed, officials insisted on knowing if he had done anything that would subject him to prosecution or unfavorable publicity.

"Talk about resentment and disgust," said Donfeld, who now works for a Los Angeles law firm. "The fact that I served the president of the United States and committed no illegal acts and shouldn't be able to get a high position in government, I resent that."

Bobbie Greene Kilberg, a Yale Law School graduate who worked on Indian affairs and other domestic areas, echoed the view of many former aides when she said that in spite of "the stupidity of Watergate," she has not lost interest in politics.

"I may run for state legislature sometime," said Mrs. Kilberg, now a vice president of Mount Vernon College in Washington.

What annoys her, however, is when people ask her to justify the individual actions of Watergate just because she worked in the White House.

"We've tended to socialize increasingly only with our friends," Mrs. Kilberg said. "I resent the feeling of having to defend the two years I spent in the White House as though it is something to be ashamed of, rather than the beneficial experience it was."

Midland Woman Falls Out Of Car

Elaine Margaret Clark, 21, was treated and released at Midland Memorial Hospital following a Sunday morning automobile accident.

She suffered multiple cuts in the mishap.

Miss Clark, of 1300 Cottonflat Road Space 17, was a passenger in a car driven by Debra Dee Leonard, 26, of the same address.

Officers said Miss Leonard was making a turn off Carter Street about 12:30 a.m. when the right door flew open and Miss Clark fell out. The car jumped a curb and struck the rear of a house at 1206 S. Pratt St.

Officers said about $1,000 damage was done to the house, which is owned by Zack Burrow Jr.

Brick-Wielder Hits, Robs Woman Here

Lola May Jackson, 37, of 211 N. Marshall St. was treated and released at Midland Memorial Hospital following a robbery late Saturday.

Mrs. Jackson told investigators she had been walking in the 100 block of North Jefferson Street after 11 p.m. when a Negro man hit her in the head with a brick and took her purse.

She estimated the loss at $13.

Midlander Hurt In Cycle Accident

Donald William Gallagher, 19, of 409 W. Hamby St. is in satisfactory condition in Midland Memorial Hospital with injuries he received in a Sunday morning motorcycle mishap.

He suffered multiple cuts and bruises when his motorcycle jumped a curb on the Dellwood Plaza parking lot shortly after 3:30 a.m.

Fuel diversification is important to you and your family.

But what is it?

Fuel diversification is the key to our being able to supply the electricity you'll need in the years ahead. It means using several kinds of fuel to generate electricity. Making the best use out of the fuels available to us. And reducing our dependence on fuels in short supply.

At Texas Electric, natural gas is our major fuel, with oil used on a standby basis. We foresaw shortages of these fuels and several years ago developed long-range plans to diversify to lignite coal and nuclear fuels.

We now have one lignite plant in operation and two others under construction. A nuclear-fueled plant is planned for operation by 1980.

One advantage of using lignite and nuclear fuels is that neither is being used extensively for any purpose other than the generation of electricity. A disadvantage is that it costs considerably more to build plants that use these fuels than gas-fired plants.

Even though it will cost more to provide electricity in the future, the cost will be less with lignite and nuclear fuels than with the alternatives available to us.

We're continuing the orderly development of our power system so that you'll continue having the electricity you need.

Homicides Exceed Traffic As Texas Weekend Killer

By The Associated Press

Homicides far outnumbered traffic smashups as the No. 1 killer during the Mother's Day weekend in Texas.

By midnight Sunday, at least 19 persons had died violently including 10 in shootings and a stabbing. Four persons drowned and one died in a plane crash.

The usual leading causes of Texas violent deaths—traffic collisions—had claimed only two lives.

Deaths occurring between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Sunday were included in the list.

A private plane attempting to land at a Madison County airport crashed Sunday, killing one person and injuring another.

Sheriff Richard Grall said Robert J. Reynolds, 25, of College Station died in the crash. Jeff Lee Reynolds, 49, of Lufkin was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital in Bryan.

Grall said the plane's landing gear hit telephone wires as it approached the airport causing the single-engine craft to flip over.

Investigators said John Janasch, 34, of San Antonio was killed Sunday evening when another man blasted him with a 12-gauge shotgun to end an argument. Officers charged a 55-year-old San Antonio man in that killing.

Three shooting deaths came at McKinney when two robbers forced an elderly store operator and two teen-agers to lie on the floor and then shot them to death about dawn Saturday.

Dallas, Houston Shootings

Officers identified the trio as Preston Broyles, 73, of Farmersville, operator of the store; and Gary Coker and Billy St. John, both 18, of Princeton, a community near McKinney.

Oscar Taylor, 39, of Houston died in another shooting. Houston police said the fatal gunfire came at the end of an argument with a woman.

Investigators searched for the identity Sunday of a man gunned down late Friday night on a street near downtown Dallas. Authorities said robbery apparently was the motive in that death.

Joyce McDonald, 47, of Dallas was stabbed to death late Friday during what police termed a domestic quarrel. Officers jailed a 45-year-old man in connection with the woman's death.

Perryman Man Drowns

Sherman Cassidy Davis, 35, of Perryton drowned Saturday while fishing from a boat at Martin Canyon area of Lake Hudson. Investigators said Davis tried to swim to shore when the boat swamped.

Officers said Jimmy Middleton, 73, drowned while checking a trout line in the Llano River about 17 miles northeast of Junction Saturday.

John L. Hollingsworth, 21, of Austin was killed early Saturday when his motorcycle collided with a car, police said. The smashup occurred during heavy fog.

James Earl Brinson Jr., 41, a Houston stevedore, was struck and killed by a car on the East Texas Freeway Sunday.

A 15-year-old girl was presumed drowned Sunday after disappearing in a strong Gulf Coast undertow near Matagorda beach. She was tentatively identified as Teresa Nunoz, Clark Galloway, 20, of Houston, drowned Sunday in an apartment swimming pool.

DISABLED GRADUATE — Jerrold D. Luckie, a patrolman with the Midland Police Department, was determined to get his diploma from Midland College Saturday night, even if it had to be from a strange-looking wheelchair arrangement. Luckie broke his ankle while playing baseball.

AFTER 20 YEARS— Teacher Soon Will Make 'Dream Trip'

CORDIA, Ky. (AP) — Mrs. Ruby Amburgey, who has been planning her "dream trip" to England for almost 20 years, will be going in July, thanks to two years of conviving by her high school English students.

Mrs. Amburgey has dreamed of visiting the home of her favorite authors—Shakespeare, Lord Tennyson, Wordsworth and Robert Browning—since 1956, when, as a teacher at the two-room Bearville School in Knott County she began saving for the trip. Since 1964 she has taught English to all four grades at Cordia High School.

But even more than that, she has wanted to pay a visit to St. Paul's Cathedral in London, see a list of American servicemen killed in action during World War II. The list includes the name of her late husband, Arnold Amburgey, killed in France in 1944.

Fate denied her the trip, however. Shortly after she began teaching, her father became paralyzed from a tumor on his spine. Her mother went blind from glaucoma, and her sister-in-law died and left Mrs. Amburgey with two young girls to raise.

Her father died last year and her two nieces now are finishing high school. She still cares for her mother.

But this week her dream came true. The 11 students in the senior class at Cordia presented Mrs. Amburgey with a check for $600. It was the result of two years of cake sales, mini-carnivals and profits from the school newspaper.

The two-year, money-raising effort was plotted in secret with the cooperation of Cordia's principal, Randall Smith.

The $600 check—which covers all expenses and spending money for a two-week tour of England—was presented to Mrs. Amburgey at a "class day" celebration Thursday night. It also happened to be Mrs. Amburgey's 53rd birthday.

She said, "I tried to speak, but I couldn't. I cried."

Two Odessans Shot In Gas Line Affray

ODESSA — Two Odessa men were shot Sunday morning following an apparent argument over who was first in a gas line.

Redolfo Lujan Payan, 30, is in satisfactory condition in Medical Center Hospital's intensive care unit with a chest wound. Steve Taveraz, 20, suffered wounds in both arms and was treated and released.

Police said the two were shot by a woman about 4:40 a.m. after they argued with her over who had arrived first at a self-service gas pump at a drive-in grocery.

No arrests have been made in the case.

Senate Heads Into Hot Battle On Bid To Kill School Busing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is heading into a bitter floor fight over renewed efforts to virtually kill court busing orders as a method of achieving school desegregation.

The first voting showdown on the issue will come Wednesday.

But there may be other tests before the Senate finally disposes of the massive $23-billion education bill serving as the vehicle for the busing battle.

The Senate was to resume debate on the standby energy bill when it convened today but turned to the education measure later in the afternoon and stay on it the rest of the week.

In the House, the Judiciary Committee on Tuesday will resume its closed-door staff briefings in the Nixon impeachment inquiry and continue them on Wednesday and Thursday.

Wednesday the House will debate the bill to compensate Mississippi poultry growers for destruction of contaminated chickens.

Expect Close Vote

Both sides expect the Senate vote on antibusing amendments to be extremely close.

Busing foes say they have the best chance ever to get through the Senate an effective provision to kill desegregation plans which make use of extensive transportation of grade and high school students.

Civil rights groups are mounting an all-out effort to defeat the antibusing riders.

They point out that Friday will be the 20th anniversary of the historic Supreme Court school desegregation decision and say it would be ironic if Congress marks the occasion by heavily diluting the rights guaranteed in that ruling.

The House, which acted on the education bill in March, included in it strong antibusing language similar to that which it has adopted previously.

The Senate always has stalled the antibusing provisions.

However, in the last big Senate fight on the issue, in 1972, Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., came within three votes of winning with an amendment to strip courts of the power to order busing for desegregation purposes.

In the new battle, the Wednesday showdown will come on an amendment of Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., to insert into the Senate bill the House antibusing provision adopted in March.

This provision would require the courts to consider many alternative remedies before ordering any busing. And then busing would be limited to the next closest school to the pupil's home.

It also would permit reopening of all previously settled busing cases and their re-determination on the basis of new limitations.

Showers Sprinkle North, Northeast

By The Associated Press

Occasional showers sprinkled the northern part of the continent from the Rockies to the New England states today, while clear skies ruled elsewhere.

Rain lessened along most of the central and north Atlantic as a cold front moved off the coast.

But Mt. Washington, N.H., was soaked by more than an inch of rain during the night, and gale-strength winds continued to sweep the eastern Great Lakes.

Overcast skies lingered west into the Ohio Valley and Great Lakes areas. And cold air from Canada chilled the upper Mississippi Valley, prompting frost warnings in southern Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Showers that developed in Wyoming spread into the Northern Plains, while snow was reported at higher elevations of the Rockies and parts of eastern Montana.

Fair skies prevailed west of the Rockies and from the Southern Plains east to the lower Atlantic Coast.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from a high of 82 degrees.

Navy Antimissile Gun Goes Haywire On Tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — A General Accounting Office report says the Navy's new Phalanx antimissile gun malfunctioned so badly in its first test earlier this year that it "threatened to sink" a California island and a friendly ship.

The report, released Sunday by Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said the radar-controlled, self-firing gun "trapped, locked onto and declared as a threat" the U.S. Navy ship USS Hollister.

Also, the gun's electronic aiming system zeroed in on Santa Barbara Island, off the Southern California coast, confounding the island for a fast-moving target, according to the GAO report.

While the Phalanx is designed mainly as a "last ditch defense" against enemy missiles, it can also fire on planes and other ships, the GAO said.

Aspin, a member of the House Armed Services Committee, said the initial tests cast serious doubt whether the Phalanx is worth any further funds "out of our already-bloated defense budget."

He added: "Certainly, we have no urgent requirements for an automatic gun that attacks islands and friendly ships."

The report indicated that the problem with the gun's electronic targeting system is mainly due to extraneous radar reflections of large objects nearby.

Gunmen Shoot Way Out Of Trap To Escape Police

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Police looking for the male members of the gang that pulled off the $20 million art robbery two weeks ago surrounded a lonely farmhouse near the village of Sonagh on Sunday, but two men inside escaped with guns blazing.

Only two of the 30 policemen involved were armed, and they did not return the fire. The fugitives raced across the fields to a highway, commandeered a passing Volkswagen and sped off in it.

Army helicopters joined the search in County Mayo in western Ireland, but no one had been captured early today.

Police refused to say whether they knew if the men were in the gang of four men and a woman that stole the 19 paintings from the country mansion of Sir Alfred Beit outside Dublin.

Cigarette Machine Robbed By Burglars

About $5 was taken early today from a cigarette machine at the East Front Tavern, 1301 E. Front St.

Police said the burglar broke a window on the north side of the building to gain entry.

GETS CAB FARE BACK— Angry Dave Hill Happy Over Win

HOUSTON (AP) — Dave Hill said it's all a misunderstanding. A mistake. Perhaps a misquote.

He's not mad at the Houston Golf Association.

"I don't have any fuss with 99 per cent of the members of the HGA," Hill said. "I've just got a fuss with one man."

The stormy, controversial Hill made the comments after a dramatic comeback victory in the final round Sunday, shooting a seven-under-par 65 for a 276 total and a one-stroke triumph over Steve Melnyk, Rod Curl and Andy North in the Houston Open.

Then he took off at the press. He particularly objected to an article in a local paper and said he'd like to meet the author. "I flunked English and he writes like I do," Hill said.

It all centered on comments Hill made Saturday. He said then the only reason he had come to this tournament was "to get even."

He had been refused permission by John Davis, executive director of the HGA, to withdraw from this tournament a year ago. He flew into town late Wednesday night, took a motel near the airport and said he "got up at five o'clock" to make an early tee time.

"I didn't know where the course was. I took a cab. It cost me $32. The cab driver couldn't find it either," he said.

He came back this year looking for an avenging victory.

I came on a dramatic final round after he apparently had fallen out of contention with a 74 in Sunday's morning round.

A double round of 36 holes was forced when Friday's play was rained out.

He played the front nine in the afternoon in 32, four under par. He dropped two birdie putts of 15 feet, two-putted for a birdie on a par-five and chipped close on the other one.

HGA President Bill Chapline, in making the presentation after Hill's victory, handed him a check and said:

"I hope this makes up for the cab fare we owe you."

Hill looked at the $30,000 check and replied:

"Hell, it even makes up for the plane fare."

Midland shortstop Ken Sotkiewicz went one-for-eight at San Antonio, but broke out of that "dreadful" slump by swatting two home runs to account for seven runs batted-in as the Bruins beat Amarillo's Gains, 8-7, in a one-man Mother's Night celebration at Cubs Stadium Sunday.

"The grand slam was the first I've ever hit," Sotkiewicz disclosed after the game. It came in the second inning and gave pitcher Mike Krukow all the runs he needed, but Sotkiewicz hit a three-run job in the fourth as Midland rallied for another four runs.

"I wasn't sure the first one would make it and I wasn't sure the second would stay fair," said the Georgia Southern U. graduate.

Both were wrong field belts for the left-handed hitting infielder. The first just cleared the left field fence over the First Savings & Loan sign, about 350 feet while the second was sliced down the left field line and cleared just inside the foul pole.

Sotkiewicz also had two singles to wind up four-for-five for the night, his biggest night of the season at the plate, and in the last two and a half weeks Ken has had some big ones.

Krukow, a 6-4, 205 pound righthander from California Poly at San Luis Obispo, as a result of Sotkiewicz' slugging notched his first Texas League victory with ninth inning relief help from Rick Ware.

"He was wild at times, but did a good job," noted Manager Walt Dixon.

The Cubs came up with three double plays and Krukow and second baseman Bill Huisman combined for a pickoff play with the bases loaded for the third out in the sixth to end Giant threats.

The lone Amarillo runs came in the fifth on Al Smith's double and Frank Zawatski's single and Rich Guerra's third homer, a lead off poke to left in the eighth.

Midland's four-run second began with two out when Joel Green reached on a bad-hop single over first baseman Tony Pepper's shoulder, Greg Collins singled to left and Huisman walked to load the bases before Sotkiewicz connected.

In the fourth, Collins walked, Huisman singled and Sotkiewicz made it 7-0. A walk to Bill Droege and Jerry Tabb's double into the right field corner finished off starter Rob Dressler, 1-4, and left-handed relief pitcher Bob Nolan walked Wayne Tyrone purposely and Bill Bright got the fourth run in on a grounder to second.

Nolan and Wade Carpenter combined to limit Midland to (Continued On Page 2B)

Celt's New Strategy Brings NBA Crown

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Boston Celtics Coach Tom Heinsohn had the last move, and it spelled checkmate for the Milwaukee Bucks.

In a championship series highlighted by the cerebral gymnastics, adjustments and countermeasures of a chess match, Heinsohn's 11th-hour tactical change paid off Sunday in the Celtics' 12th National Basketball Association title.

Old pro John Havlicek drew the Bucks' defense away from the middle, allowing Dave Cowens to shoot over and slash through it for 28 points as the Celtics buried the Bucks in the seventh and deciding game 102-87.

Cowens, while spotting Milwaukee's 7-foot-2 Kareem Abdul-Jabbar five inches in height, also pulled down a game-high 14 rebounds. Boston's 47-42 board control fueled a fast break attack which, along with ceaseless pressure defense, finally wore down the Bucks in the fourth quarter.

"This was the greatest series ever," exulted Heinsohn, a star forward for the Celtics during their dynasty of the 1960s.

Havlicek, voted the series' Most Valuable Player, sank only six of 20 shots Sunday after having averaged 28 points in the first six games.

But with the Bucks double teaming Havlicek almost every time he advanced to the front court, Heinsohn ordered the Boston captain to decoy Milwaukee's defense away from the middle.

Bucks' reserve guard Jon McGlocklin, who sank six of eight shots despite a painful calf injury, insisted the Celtics had shown nothing new.

But McGlocklin paid the Celtics full credit. "They outplayed us. They outthrust us," he said. "They're probably the most emotional team in the league. Maybe they're better than we are. Obviously they are. They beat us."

Williams Gains All-State Honors

AUSTIN — Midland High's Pam Williams was named to the all-state gymnastics team here over the weekend in the state gymnastics meet while Midland Lee took sixth place.

Miss Williams won a second placement in the all-around competition and second in the floor exercise to make the all-state team.

Lee's Janet Moore won third place honors in the vaulting event and Patti Roper, also of Lee, was fifth in the vaulting.

Tennis At MCC

Midland Country Club held a Mother's Day Tennis Tournament with Del Ruwwe and daughter Liz defeating Carolyn Hopper and son Bart for one title and Roberta Aldridge and son Craig defeated Louise Patterson and daughter Tanya took the other trophy.

Down 17 points midway in the third quarter, Abdul-Jabbar and Mickey Davis led the Bucks to within 71-68 as the fourth period started.

But Cowens touched off eight consecutive Boston points as the Celtics regained momentum.

Davis scored 13 of his 15 points in the second half.

"Everybody kept their poise," Heinsohn said. "They made a good run at us, but they had a good distance to come from and they expended a lot of energy trying to catch up."

"We were more aggressive," said Boston defensive ace Don Chaney who, despite foul trouble, helped hold Bucks playmaker Oscar Robertson to two baskets in 13 shots.

TAKE 2-1 CUP LEAD—

Flyers Bop Bruins

By RALPH BERNSTEIN PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Terry Crisp compared the frustration of his first three appearances in the Stanley Cup finals and the elation he feels this time around with the Philadelphia Flyers.

The 30-year-old Crisp scored the key goal Sunday in the Flyers' 4-1 victory over the powerful Boston Bruins, to take a 2-1 lead the best-of-seven National Hockey League championship series. The fourth game is her Tuesday night.

Crisp said the big difference between being in three Stanley Cup finals with the St. Louis Blues as compared with this set against the Bruins "is that I really feel we have an honest chance at the Stanley Cup this time." "When I was at St. Louis I was just happy to be in the final. We could have given 110 percent and still come up short. "We would have been happy then just to steal one or two games. That would have been just like winning the Stanley Cup. On this team there are 20 fellows not whistling in the dark."

The Blues, of course, got into the Stanley Cup by winning the playoffs in the NHL's expansion division. The Flyers had to knock off the New York Rangers, one of the league's original teams, in the semifinals. They won their division over a group that included another preexpansion team, the Chicago Black Hawks.

The 5-foot-10 inch Crisp, from Parry Sound, Ontario, said he was the most surprised guy on the ice when his shot at 15:43 of the second period zipped off Boston goalie Gilles Gilbert's stick into the net to send Philadelphia ahead 2-1.

Earlier, Boston's John Bucyk had muted the wildly cheering crowd of 17,007 with a goal at 1:03 of the opening period. Tom Bladon tied it at 10:27 on a 35-foot power goal off a cross-pass from Bobby Clarke. The Flyers wrapped it up in the third period on goals by Orest Kirzdrachuk and Ross Lonsberry.

Flyers' Coach Fred Shero said he felt Boston stars Bobby Orr and Phil Esposito were tired, adding: "And our centermen are laying on them. In past years we tried to keep the puck away from them. We believe now in

Red Fans Anger Astros

Shower Fallen Watson With Beer Cups

By NORM CLARKE Associated Press Writer CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati, the once-proud bastion of mild-mannered fans, got a black eye Sunday.

"They're maniacs," lashed out Houston outfielder Bob Watson, who was barraged with beer and ice as he lay dazed and bleeding from a collision.

Watson's angry words were echoed by his teammates following a pair of setbacks to the Cincinnati Reds.

"They talk about New York fans," fumed pitcher Don Wilson, loser of the second game despite a brilliant 14-strikeout effort. "What was the worst display of sportsmanship I've ever seen. They can't call themselves decent fans."

Fred Norman's five-hit, 5-0 shutout keyed the opener and Clay Kirby fired a two-hitter in the 4-2 victory in the nightcap. The sweep gave the Reds three victories in the four-game series. The San Francisco Giants invade tonight.

Watson slammed into the left field wall attempting a running catch of Merv Rettenmund's long drive. The crash opened an ugly cut under his eye and he slumped motionless to the ground. Rettenmund dashed around the bases for his first career inside-the-park homer. "As I ran up to him to get the ball, three cups of beer and ice came down on him," said center fielder Cesar Cedeno. "He was lying there bleeding and could have been blinded from hitting the wall. Wish I could have climbed up there with a ladder," he said angrily. About a dozen young fans were removed by police from their seats overlooking left field. The stunned crowd of 33,000 roared its approval. Several fist fights broke out between the escorted individuals and enraged fans. The spectacle disgusted Reds Manager George "Sparky" Anderson, who raced to the side of the fallen Watson. He exchanged bitter words with the taunting fans. "No one wants to see that," he said afterwards. "I was pleased the way the people cheered when they threw those guys out."

Ex-Reds infielder Lee May was among the most surprised at the trouble. "First time I've ever seen anything like that in Cincinnati. But you can't judge a whole crowd on a handful of idiots," he said. "Those guys ought to thank someone they weren't on the field," said Pete Rose. Overshadowed by the incident were the superb pitching efforts of Norman, 2-3, and Kirby, 2-3. Rettenmund supported each with a homer. Shortstop Dave Concepcion had a two-run homer in the opener. Kirby had a one-hitter until the ninth when Cedeno homered with two out.

CHICAGO NIPS METS—

Braves, Giants Divide 2

By FRANK BROWN AP Sports Writer

In the National League, the Atlanta Braves defeated the San Francisco Giants 5-1 in the first game of a doubleheader, but lost the nightcap 6-2; the Philadelphia Phillies trimmed the Pittsburgh Pirates 8-7; the Chicago Cubs edged the New York Mets 4-3; the Los Angeles Dodgers tripped the San Diego Padres 15-9 in 13 innings. The St. Louis Cardinals game at Montreal was rained out.

Braves 5-2, Giants 1-6

The 72ist home run of Henry Aaron's record-breaking career and two runs batted in by Dave Johnson carried the Braves to their victory in the opener, backing the three-hit pitching of Carl Morton.

Dave Kingman hit his sixth homer of the season for the Giants in the second inning of the second game.

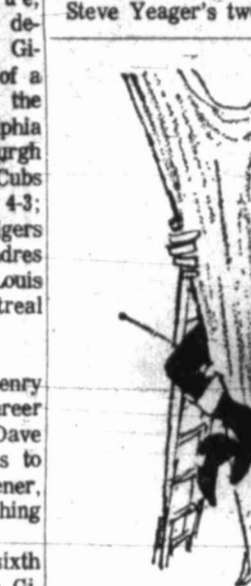

Phillies 8, Pirates 7

Mike Anderson drove in two runs with a sixth-inning homer and Del Unser drove in three others to carry Philadelphia past Pittsburgh.

Cubs 4, Mets 3

George Mitterwald's ninth-inning single scored pinch-runner Matt Alexander and helped Chicago beat the Mets and Tom capped a six-run Los Angeles 13th inning and carried the Dodgers to their fifth consecutive victory.

They told Ken Szotkiewicz when he got out of Georgia Southern U. that he'd never be a home run hitter. "But I didn't believe them and kept trying to knock it out of the park."

Then this year, it finally dawned on Ken that they were right, so he became a singles hitter... and the hottest one in the Texas League.

During one 10-game stretch, he collected 25 hits in 48 at bats for a .521 average, a surge that raised his average from .206 to .379, then Sunday night all those resolutions came unraveled as Socko hit a grand slam and three-run homer in the Cubs' 8-2 win over the Amarillo Giants.

"No, I'm not going back to my old ways," he claims. Both were opposite field homers for the left-handed batting Cub shortstop, "so I was just hitting what they were giving me."

Socko also cracked out a couple of singles, one that looped shyly into center and the other a shot through the middle that almost decapitated pitcher Bob Nolan.

That made it a four-for-five night and indicated his bat hasn't cooled off, despite a one-for-eight series at San Antonio.

Ken says, "The big difference between now and the past was that when I was on a good streak, I didn't really know what I was doing right. Now, I know exactly what I'm trying to do."

It also raises his average for the season to .380...

DALLAS (AP) — The future may belong to wonderchild Bjorn Borg of Sweden, but big John Newcombe capped a nine-month campaign Sunday to prove he's the current king of tennis.

The 29-year-old moustachiod Newcombe, looking much like a gunfighter with his duck walk and dark features, overcame a dazzling start by the 17-year-old Scandinavian sensation to capture the World Champions of Tennis 4-6, 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

Newcombe, who sacked $50,000, a diamond ring, a Cadillac, and a fur coat for his wife on Mother's Day, said "Nine months ago I wanted to win this (tournament) and become No. 1 and now I've done it."

In upping his prize money to $174,065 for the year, Newcombe became the second Australian to win this prestigious event. Ken Rosewall won the first two WCT finals and Stan Smith of the United States took it last year.

Newcombe, playing the spiritedly Sweden with the floppy Prince Valiant haircut for the first time, said "I think it's obvious that he's going to be one of the leading players for many years. He has certainly achieved a lot at an early age."

Obviously fond of his vanquished foe, Newcombe offered almost fatherly advice, telling the youngster: "I think there's a great danger of overplaying and I think because he's so good at 17 everyone wants him to play every week. If he's really smart about it he'll just take a month off now and then...

John Newcombe... On way to $50,000 jackpot

He's got plenty of time. The sportsman and champion as he hits the ball (so hard) he's going to have a lot of trouble with his arm in a few years unless he rests now and doesn't get the big head with success," Newcombe said. "There are so many young sportsmen around who get very big headed at 17 with a few...

wins. I don't know Borg that well but from what I've observed he appears not to be bigheaded... I think he's a pleasure to have around."

Borg, who won the biggest paycheck of his life with the $20,000 runnerup prize, said "He was too good for me. There is no doubt he is the No. 1 tennis player in the world."

The idol of the world's teenyboppers said he became physically drained after the first set. "I think today I was first a little bit tired in my body," Borg said. "The first set I played well, but he started playing better and better. I had pressure on me to hit a good return every time and that was too much for me."

Borg upped his winnings to $76,645 for the year in the match played before a sellout crowd of 9,071 in Moody Coliseum.

Newcombe said his next outing will be in the Alan King Tournament and then he will play World Team Tennis until Wimbledon.

Borg is off to help Sweden in the Davis Cup. He couldn't even have driven the Cadillac if he had won it for another three weeks. He'll be old enough then to get a driver's license.

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — (Ferguson) Jenkins, who had any major league baseball 1.88 ERA. We beat him and he had good stuff. If Ranger Manager Billy Martin wants to send him over here to put on a White Sox uniform, we'll take him.

Jenkins, seeking for the second time to become the major leagues' first seven-game winner this season, retired the first eight batters he faced before being tagged for four straight hits and three runs in the third.

Bucky Dent singled, stole second and scored on Pat Kelly's second homer of the year. Then Jorge Orta doubled and came home when Tony Muser singled.

"I'm surprised whenever I get a homer," said Kelly, whose biggest homer production in one season is nine. "Jenkins got the ball up and it went out."

But the White Sox seventh, when they scored two runs off Jenkins, proved decisive since Texas scored two runs in the eighth to pull within one run.

And John McAllen's five-hit pitching did the rest. In Shreveport, Harry Rasmussen had a one-hitter going until the seventh inning, after which the Captains got three runs across, two of them on a homer by Kent Jacobsen. But six key Arkansas hits had already insured a Traveler victory.

Louis Isaac broke open a 2-2 tie in the sixth inning with an error-producing single that led to three San Antonio runs, enough to beat El Paso.

Levi's Jeans Have History Back To Gold Rush Days

Levi's have been popular since 1850 when Levi Strauss arrived in San Francisco and discovered a shortage of hard-wearing pants in the gold fields. Strauss had a tailor cut several pairs from tent canvas he'd brought by ship from New York. They were so well liked that the '49ers looked for more of "those pants of Levi's." This was the birth of one of the world's most famous brand names and a style of garment that is recognized as an American folk costume.

Several early pairs of Levi's Jeans are part of the Smithsonian Institution's American Collection in Washington, D.C., and in other museums across the country.

Later Strauss switched from canvas to heavyweight denim made to his specifications. A special indigo dye was developed for the fabric and in the late 1860s copper rivets were added for greater strength. Levi's Jeans became the regulation garb for cowboys, railroaders, lumberjacks, farmers, construction men, oil drillers and others whose work was outdoors.

Levi Strauss died in 1902 but the business, which had been incorporated in 1890, continued to prosper. The original Levi's Blue Jeans grew in popularity—the only fashion item that has remained basically unchanged in 120 years.

After World War II, light blue denim sports trousers were introduced and their enthusiastic acceptance by the consumer spearheaded the evolution of new finishes, fabrics and fibers, which the company now uses. Levi's pants made from these can be found at Tom's Levi's, 35 Village Shopping Center.

One of the most popular styles of pants made were the White Levi's introduced in 1960 and made of cotton twill in a sand shade.

In 1964, the first true permanent press slacks ever made were introduced, which created a revolution in the garment industry. New fabrics, styles and colors are added each year and the process has been extended to include Levi's Jeans and shirts.

Perhaps because women and girls liked the hip-hugging Jeans for men, Levi decided to introduce a line of pants and sports wear for women, based on the design of the original Blue Jean.

All of these versatile popular styles can be found at Midland's Tom's Levi's, 35 Village Shopping Center. Manager Buddy Cole or one of the clerks will be happy to show you their vast stock.

Free Labor Offered At Hines-Wood

Free labor is being offered at Hines-Wood Upholstery, 5109 Andrews Highway, if you select your material from their in-store stock. When they re-do your furniture by selecting from the materials on hand, all you have to pay for is the cost of the fabric.

Seeing is believing, so visit Hines-Wood and look over the variety of colors and designs of upholstery materials. Or in order to select the exact pattern and color for your home, call for one of Hines-Wood's qualified people to bring samples into your home. After you select the fabric, the price quoted is the price of re-upholstering. Direct-from-the-mill buying enables Hines-Wood to pass the savings on to the customer. Besides, on approved credit, you may have up to 12 months to pay.

Or if price is no object and you desire something that is not in stock, you may select from 30,000 samples of fabric. Old furniture frames are generally better than most new ones. Hines-Wood can redo your frame with half the cost of a new piece of furniture and you will have a new, refreshing piece of furniture you will be delighted to use and show off.

Re-doing old furniture is fast becoming a popular hobby. More and more people are re-doing their own furniture. Hines is teaching a class in upholstery at Midland College and finds that the classes are quickly filled. The next class will start in September, so he advises that you register early in order to get in.

For those who do their own upholstery, Hines-Wood has a wide selection of fabrics, colors and designs in stock. Visit Hines-Wood whatever your upholstery needs. Whether you're a do-it-yourselfer, or want the experts at Hines-Wood to do the work on one piece or many, select your fabric from Hines-Wood, 5109 Andrews Highway, or call 694-8891.

Anybody who is having trouble keeping his head above water probably isn't on his toes.

Remember the good old days, when "Now you see it, now you don't" was magic? Today it's your life savings.

Bored are no trouble if you monopolize the conversation yourself.
The fellow who gets to the top is usually the one who first got to the bottom of things.
These days, "roughing it" is vacationing at a motel with black and white TV and no swimming pool.

Galbraith Draws Boos At Norman

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Harvard economist John Kenneth Galbraith drew boos and catcalls Sunday night when he made biting comments about President Nixon's problems during his commencement address at the University of Oklahoma.

Galbraith's sardonic remarks came one day after Nixon was greeted warmly at Oklahoma State University in Stillwater, where the President delivered that school's commencement address Saturday night.

Voice Drowned Out
"Thanks to Nixon, we know that the office of the President is that important," Galbraith told the audience, getting the first wave of boos and obscenities which drowned out his voice.

"Let us be suspicious of the man who identifies himself with every American virtue," he said. "I suppose what is most wrong with this country is Nixon himself."

Angered spectators shook their fists at the speaker, exchanged rounds of name-calling with those who applauded Galbraith and chanted "We want Nixon!" and "Go home, Galbraith!"

Shouting Match
At one point, those applauding and jeering Galbraith rose to their feet and staged a shouting match of cheering vs. booing.

"... I've had enough Watergate," yelled one angered spectator.

"Why don't you go home, you Communist S.O.B.," answered one of Galbraith's supporters.

"Just shut up and listen so we can, too!"

Several spectators and graduates said they were irked at the political nature of Galbraith's talk.

Bread Prices Fail To Drop With Wheat

WASHINGTON (AP) — The fall of wheat prices by 40.3 per cent since early January has prompted calls for bakers and supermarkets to lower prices.

Bakers in January called for limited export controls on wheat, predicting soaring prices this spring and then a bare granary before the bumper winter crop harvest.

Neither controls nor higher prices nor a complete disappearance occurred, although stocks are down to the lowest levels in 22 years.

Pressure On Bakers
Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, several congressmen and various wheat-interest organizations now are taking their turns in the spotlight by telling bakers to apply their economics to themselves and cut prices.

However, latest USDA statistics show, as usual, "the villain theory" is an oversimplification of reality in seeking to pinpoint the causes of prices.

For example, USDA market-basket figures for March show the farm value of wheat in a one-pound loaf of white bread fell 11.6 per cent from February at the same time as the retail price went up 4.6 per cent and the middlemen's margin rose 10.5 per cent.

Compared with three months before, the margin went up 6.1 per cent, the retail price went up 6.6 per cent and the farm value went up 8.9 per cent.

And again, compared with March 1973, the margin is the least percentage increase of three, with a 25.4 per cent cost at the same time that the wheat value was up 84.8 per cent and the retail price was up 59 per cent.

Rabies Threatens Foxes In Arctic

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — Seven foxes started attacking helicopters at Prudhoe Bay, the Alaska Department of Fish and Game began to worry.

An Arctic fox bounded across the tundra last week and attacked a helicopter. Five men killed the small animal and they now are receiving anti-rabies treatments, officials said.

Officials are worried a rabies epidemic is threatening the red and Arctic fox population along Alaska's north coast.

Soaring Money Costs Help Push Market Prices Lower

NEW YORK (AP) — Soaring money costs pushed the stock market lower in relatively slow activity today.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 1.96 at 648.48, and declines overpowered advances by about 3 to 1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

First National Bank of Chicago pushed its prime interest rate up this morning to 11.4 percent, while several other banks joined a move several days ago to raise their prime rates to 11 1/2 percent.

Brokers said there appeared to be no sign of a let up in the recent extraordinary rise in borrowing costs.

Consolidated Edison of New York, up 3/4 at 77 1/2, was the most active NYSE issue.

Washington (AP) — Tax Audit Failed To Uncover Milk Money Campaign Gifts, Kickbacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — John B. Connally may have assisted the nation's biggest dairy cooperative in a tax audit that failed to uncover the dairy men's massive illegal political donations and alleged kickbacks, the co-op's former lobbyist is quoted as saying.

Bob A. Lilly, former lobbyist for Associated Milk Producers, Inc., said Connally, then Treasury secretary and in command of the Internal Revenue Service, "may have resolved" the tax matter, according to notes taken by a lawyer who interviewed Lilly.

Connally writes IRS

Also, co-op lawyer Jake Jacobson once told the milk producers' leaders that Connally had written about the matter directly to R. L. Phinney, the IRS district director in Austin, Tex., an informed source said.

Phinney—a long-time friend and former business partner of Connally, acknowledged that he had been involved in the 1971 audit, but denied that Connally or anyone in Washington had contacted him about it.

Connally couldn't be reached and his lawyer, Edward Bennett Williams, declined comment.

Jacobson, once a friend of Connally's senior law partners, Marvin K. Collier of Houston, to handle the tax matter. Jacobson has testified to Watergate investigators that he checked with Connally in advance to "see if it was OK" to hire Collier, several sources said.

George L. Mehren, the milk producers' chief executive, is quoted in court papers as saying that Collier "got them off on that one but said he could not do it again." Collier, in a telephone interview, said his role was to give legal advice to the co-op.

Mehren and Lilly were interviewed by lawyers conducting an independent probe of the milk producers' political activities. The notes of those interviews were subpoenaed recently and made public in court records.

Also made public was a letter that Lilly wrote to Jacobson when the tax audit began. The letter was dated Aug. 26, 1971, a few months after Jacobson had enlisted Connally to help persuade President Nixon to raise milk prices. Lilly asked Jacobson to help again.

Lilly said Doyle Bond, an IRS agent from San Antonio, Tex., the milk producers' headquarters, was asking questions about some suspicious checks. Lilly said Bond had indicated he might get a promotion if he could "raise an issue over our questionable expenditures."

Those questionable expenditures may total several million dollars, recent disclosures indicate. But when the audit was over, nothing new had been uncovered—and the milk producers owed no extra taxes.

The IRS disallowed one deduction for the expenditure that Bond had discovered before the audit began—a $90,711.07 payment for a picture book of President Lyndon B. Johnson's messages to Congress, apparently printed at the request of someone in the White House and intended for use at a Democratic party fund-raising dinner in 1968.

Cost Producers Nothing

Although this expenditure was disallowed as a business expense, it cost the milk producers nothing at the time because the item merely was subtracted from the co-op's unclaimed deductions reserved for future years.

What the IRS didn't find included:

- $100,000 paid in cash to Nixon fund-raiser Herbert L. Kalmback in 1969. The co-op recently asserted that this donation was an illegal use of corporate money, and has asked for a refund.
- $91,691 or more in corporate money and services donated to Hubert H. Humphrey's 1968 presidential campaign. Although the IRS found none of this in its 1971 audit, another investigation by IRS agents in Arkansas turned up $22,000 of it after Connally left office. As a result, two top co-op officials have pleaded guilty to federal charges and a third is under indictment.
- $34,500 or more in corporate money for Humphrey's 1970 senatorial campaign in Minnesota.
- Unaccounted sums to other state and federal candidates, and to pay salaries and expenses for the milk producers' political trust.

In addition, there is recent evidence that the co-op also was paying huge sums as kickbacks to dairies that were reluctant to pay the high prices the co-op demanded for milk produced by its member farmers.

Federal law prohibits corporate spending in political campaigns and also forbids kickbacks of the kind the milk producers allegedly paid. Such illegal expenditures cannot legally be deducted on tax returns, but the IRS turned up none of this in its 1971 probe.

During a 16-hour test, it swabbed and flowed through a 14-64-inch choke, making 112,000 cubic feet of gas per day, no fluid.
