Ballinger Swings In Ol' Country Way

By JOHNNY VIRDEN

BALLINGER — When first driving into Ballinger on a Sunday afternoon, it seems as though residents rolled up the sidewalks on Saturday night and left them that way. One marvels at the quietness of this small West Texas town.

But as one approaches the square, fiddle and guitar music drift over the courthouse lawn. Down home favorites like "Pour Me Another Cup of Coffee" and "Little Rag Doll" cause the sparse crowd of country patrons to toe tap and clap to the rhythm of the tunes.

The picking and strumming comes steadily from under the shade of aged pecan trees, as men like Bud Montgomery, C. H. Hill, E. L. Doty and Charles Waller join together for this annual gathering of country musicmakers in Ballinger.

The musicians and the audience alike present a true picture of old West Texas culture. They have all worked hard in this grueling but beautiful land, and the music expresses a knowing appreciation of the land and the people.

And that is the way folks in Ballinger like it. Even if it's not the glitter and bang of a Saturday "Midnight Special," these people, both young and old alike, take their music and town, "clean like country water."

The defendants are accused of conspiring to obtain the psychiatric files of Ellsberg, former Pentagon analyst who leaked the Pentagon papers to the press.

U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell moved the jury selection process along briskly Wednesday, narrowing an initial jury pool of 120 to at least 65 persons. Gesell planned to question 37 more prospective jurors today. It is likely that defense and prosecution attorneys will select the 12 jurors and six alternates who judge the case from a final pool of about 85.

Only three prospective jurors were dismissed for doubts that they could be objective and give the defendants a fair trial. Daniel E. Schultz, attorney for Martinez and Barker, disclosed after Wednesday's session that his clients will be seeking work while in Washington for the trial. He said both their families in Miami are supported by their wives and

Butz says U.S. won't be dump for European beef

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — The United States "is not going to be a residual dumping ground" for imported beef from Europe, says U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz.

Butz said that although beef imports are up "we don't intend to sit here idly and see this done." However, he said he hoped mandatory quotas on beef imports could be avoided.

"We don't want to trigger retaliatory reaction," he told the National Conference on Public Service and Extension in Institutions of Higher Learning on Wednesday.

Butz said beef prices would be higher by the fall or "we're going out of the beef business." He said prices paid to ranchers for their cattle are down.

New Antirabies Serum Produced From Human Blood

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration says a new antirabies serum produced from the blood of humans instead of horses can provide safer treatment for persons bitten by rabid animals.

The FDA announced Wednesday that it has licensed the new "Hyperab" serum manufactured by Cutter Laboratories of Berkeley, Calif.

The company said the product would be available beginning in August but in limited supply, because of a shortage of human donors to provide blood containing rabies antibodies.

A Cutter Laboratories spokesman said the new serum can supplant the Pasteur treatment, which involves a painful and sometimes fatal series of injections of horse serum.

Many persons are violently allergic to horse serum and suffer a serious reaction if administered the Pasteur treatment.

Famed Farmhouse Causes Dispute

CUSHING, Maine (AP) — A farmhouse in this village made famous in paintings by Andrew Wyeth has become the center of a dispute between the artist and some local residents.
Wyeth's wife said Wednesday that "I had a hard time convincing Andrew to come back to Cushing this summer, and we're thinking of leaving permanently."
The controversy centers around the farmhouse depicted in Wyeth's "Christina's World." The structure was made into a museum for Wyeth's work in 1971. But it was closed last summer after two lawsuits and complaints from residents about the heavy tourist traffic.

mer white house aides H. R. Haldeman and Charles W. Colson, former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, Paul O'Brien, former lawyer for the re-election campaign committee, and William O. Bittman, lawyer for Hunt.
Dean and LaRue were St. Clair's choices, as were those on the waiting list except Colson.

In a letter to the committee St. Clair said all six witnesses he wanted could provide information on the March 21, 1973, conversation, in which Nixon discussed making payments to Hunt to keep him quiet, and a subsequent $75,000 cash payment to Bittman.

St. Clair described them "as critical witnesses to this inquiry on this issue."
However, Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., at a news briefing after the day-long closed-door hearing, said the committee already has sworn testimony from all of St. Clair's witnesses, given either in grand jury proceedings or to the Senate Watergate committee.

Rodino said that in discussions between St. Clair and John Doar, the committee's special counsel for impeachment, St. Clair had mentioned only Dean and LaRue as the two witnesses he intended definitely to call.

The voluminous documentary evidence the committee has received since May 9 is enough on which to form a judgment for or against impeachment, he said, and the decision to call any witnesses at all represents a concession to members who still have doubts.

"Mr. St. Clair has been treated with the utmost fairness," Rodino said. "The Democratic majority has accorded him many privileges. But we have a responsibility to conduct this inquiry in an orderly manner."
Rodino said he was not ruling out calling any of the witnesses on the secondary list and Railroad and Rep. Robert McClory, R-Ill., said they hoped at least Haldeman and Mitchell would be called. Both, however, are under indictment and awaiting trial on Watergate cover-up charges, making any testimony from them at this time unlikely.

Judge Denies Leigh's Motion For Dismissal

U.S. Dist. Judge D. W. Suttle this morning denied a defense motion to dismiss the drug case against Dr. Henry Thomas Leigh of Andrews and the defense began calling its witnesses.

The government rested its case Wednesday afternoon. Dr. Arthur R. Howard of Lubbock, a former Kermit physician who has medical and law degrees, was the first witness this morning. The defendant had 11 witnesses put under the rule instructing them not to discuss the case with anyone but attorneys.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Wayne Speck told the court that presentation of evidence would not be completed today.
Defense attorney Bert Smith, in his motion for dismissal, said the government had not proved its case against Leigh and that there was no evidence that Leigh was not acting in the usual course of a physician when he prescribed the drugs for the undercover agents.
Dr. Howard, a family practitioner, testified that doctors often prescribe drugs for addicts when they are trying to get them off the drugs.
He also said that patients often lie about their medical histories but the doctor must trust the patients if he is to cure them.
"Every day... we could be sued for malpractice because people don't tell us the truth," he said, adding that the doctor must trust the patient and "hope he believes us."
Wednesday afternoon's session began with the continuation of testimony from Johnny Griggs, who was a special agent for the federal Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs in August and September of 1971 when the buys were made.
He said he received two prescriptions from Leigh without undergoing any medical examination or giving any reason for wanting the drugs.
He told the court that he took the prescriptions given him by Leigh to a drug store at Lewisville to be filled by the next witness, Mrs. Wanda Burdick, the owner, operator and pharmacist at King's Drug at Lewisville. Mrs. Burdick said she filled the prescriptions brought in by Griggs.

Classic Comedy Film Night Set

"An Evening with W. C. Fields," featuring several of the great comedian's most famous motion pictures, is planned here Friday as a teen activity of the Midland Parks and Recreation Department.

The event is scheduled to begin at 9 p.m. Friday in Wadley Barron Park, West Cuthbert and North A streets. The two-hour program also will offer cartoons and Charlie Chaplin and Laurel and Hardy movies.

There will be no admission charge for the program. Free soft drinks will be served during the evening. Young people of the community are invited to attend, said Wes Perry of the Parks and Recreation Department.

James O. Jones, a pharmacist and owner of Jones-McDall Pharmacy in Andrews, testified that on Sept. 1, 1971, Leigh had phoned in a prescription for Desoxy and that he had filled it.
Michael R. McNeil, a pharmacist at the drug store in Andrews Hospital on Sept. 1, 1971, also said that he received a telephoned prescription for Desoxy from Leigh on that date. He said he filled the prescription.

Texaco Increases Gasoline Prices

HOUSTON (AP) — Texaco Inc. announced today a one-cent increase in its wholesale gasoline prices, effective last Tuesday.
The increase was attributed to higher costs of crude oil and imported petroleum products. Federal Energy Office regulations authorize such increases to be passed on to retail outlets.

Summit—Nixon Given Best Welcome He Ever Received In Russia

Soviets accorded Nixon a coolly correct welcome and Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny was the chief greeter.

Nixon's morning flight to the Soviet capital follows a round of consultations in Brussels Wednesday with America's partners in the Atlantic Alliance and the ceremonial signing of a declaration pledging wider cooperation within the alliance.

Belgium's ruler, King Baudouin, went to the Melsbroek military airport to give the President and Mrs. Nixon a red-carpet sendoff.
The Moscow summit generally was viewed as a means of maintaining the momentum of the Soviet-American detente launched by Nixon's May 1972 trip to the Soviet capital and fostered by Brezhnev's return visit to the United States last year. No major breakthroughs were expected this time.

Some agreements are reported ready for signing, such as one to expand commercial relations. But these seem mainly designed to show the continuing cooperation between the two countries.
Nixon and Brezhnev opened their talks in the late afternoon. There will be a state dinner tonight in honor of the President and Mrs. Nixon, more talks on Friday and Saturday, and then Brezhnev will take the visitors to a Black Sea resort near Yalta for the weekend.

The schedule Monday calls for a flight to Minsk, the capital of Byelorussia for a visit there and return to Moscow that night. There will be more talks on Tuesday, and the President is to leave for Washington Wednesday afternoon.

In what appeared to be a gesture to Nixon, the Soviet government on Wednesday freed one of Russia's leading fighters for civil rights, Maj. Gen. Pyotr Grigorenko, after holding him for five years in prisons and mental institutions. But meanwhile the government has rounded up more than two dozen Jewish dissidents in an attempt to prevent embarrassing demonstrations during Nixon's visit.

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
MOSCOW (AP) — President Richard Nixon got the best welcome he ever received in the Soviet capital today, but it was nothing like whistle stopping through the Nile delta.

Communist party boss Leonid I. Brezhnev stepped up at the airport to shake Nixon's hand. And thousands of Muscovites lined the streets in glorious sunshine to gawk in smiling silence at the motorcade racing into town — until security police pushed them back.

In the tall apartment building overlooking Yuri Gagarin Square, where Alexander Solzhenitsyn laid tiles as a slave laborer, people leaned out the windows on pillows to see the official Russian limousine and its flotilla of motorcycles pass down a broad boulevard lined with Soviet and American flags.

But those who tried to move out into the park or into the open space in front of the Sputnik Hotel for a better look at the American president, were herded under the trees or down the side streets by police with bullhorns intoning over and over again: "Nelya! Nelya!" — Not allowed. Not allowed.

With the despised "VVs," — special crowd control police wearing the Russian letters VV on their epaulettes — spaced a few feet apart all along Leningi Prospect, no one in the crowd was heard to venture either a cheer or a Watergate imprecation.

Nixon's ears weren't ringing with the cheers of thousands, as on a train trip from Cairo to Alexandria earlier this month during his triumphant visit to Egypt. But at least Moscow's man in the street knew well in advance Nixon was coming even if the exact times were not announced and police played a game of peek-a-boo to keep him from seeing them and them from seeing him.

Missing Cockatoo Back At Home

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Cecelia Evans, who offered a $1,000 reward last week for the return of her cockatoo, says the bird-napped animal is back in its cage—whistling, singing and dancing.

"A man called me and said, 'I think I have your bird,'" Mrs. Evans said Wednesday. "I went over, and of course it was my bird. It was so happy to see me that it kept kissing me."
She said the man, who lives about 16 blocks away and asked to remain anonymous, told her that he paid two teen-agers $35 for the white bird with sub-urban-colored markings. The man said he called Mrs. Evans as soon as he noticed her advertisement in newspapers.

Stratford Festival Overhaul Is Planned

By WILLIAM GLOVER
STRATFORD, Ont. (AP) — Extensive overhaul of the eminent Stratford Festival is being planned by a dapper chap named Robin Phillips.

"The challenge," he says, "is to open doors to the new and untried."

The changes in program, personnel and physical plant won't be evident until next summer. But he's aware a lot of Canadian eyes are sharply watching.

Phillips, you see, is English and when the governing festival board after wide search announced his selection as artistic director, an intense chauvinistic squall reverberated from the Maritimes to Vancouver. One superpatriot challenged him to a duel, bid ignored.

Prestigious Fiesta

For a country that has recurrent inferiority tantrums about its big neighbor to the south, the annual drama-music fiesta here has provided international prestige for Canada ever since instant acclaim greeted its 1953 birth.

His theatrical track record certainly puts 32-year-old Phillips well up among the oncoming theatrical generation's brightest contenders for glory. He quit school at 15 in the tiny Sussex town of Lynchemere "because even before I ever saw real theater I knew that's where I wanted to be." His father was a gardener, his mother "in sort of domestic service." With his sister, he put on juvenile plays in the family back yard.

The training gamut ranged from being with Sir Laurence Olivier at the first Chichester Festival season, being assistant director with the Royal Shakespeare Company to John Schlesinger and Peter Hall, then on to Exeter and London. There he staged "Abelard and Heloise" which didn't do well on later Broadway transfer. That didn't slow his spiraling rise.

In 'Forsythe Saga'

When not directing such stars as Mia Farrow, Joan Plowright, Richard Chamberlain, Geraldine McEwan and Elizabeth Bergner, Robin acted in the famous "Forsythe Saga" on television and in the title role of "David Copperfield" in 1970.

Such credits brought him to audition at Stratford in competition with a lot of other candidates.

"I didn't think I'd want the job initially," he says, "because the place was very successful in audience and finance and I didn't want that." Closer inspection and a country-wide tour of burgeoning theatrical activity persuaded him that there was both creative challenge here and an opportunity to focus a renewed national drama development.

During this season Phillips has been quietly probing, looking and preparing. The broad outlines of reform have been set and will be polished in the months ahead with another round of international talent hunting.

"There will be some people remaining," he says of one artistic priority. "Some are talented, but need a change. Others need a new place in which to be stimulated. Certainly there will be new designers, and many new actors."

At the heart of the plan is creation of separate actor pools for the main festival theater — which carries the big boxoffice burden — the Avon Theater where he intends to install a young company to concentrate on musical projects — and the Third Stage, which for several seasons has been developing as a showcase for experimental and native scripts.

Supervisory Echelon

Phillips has set up a supervisory echelon for each performing center. He personally will run the Avon venture, with William Hutt in charge at the Festival, and Michael Bawtree at Stage Three. Both the latter are Stratford veterans.

The biggest change in the physical plant will be that the famous upper stage in the Festival theater will be made mobile, so that the rigid restrictions it has imposed on productions can give way to "an anonymous space."

For the present, Phillips, with a smile, is keeping secret just what plays will be given during 1975. He intends, however, to intensify premiere impact by departing from the tradition of opening with a trio of classics in the central auditorium.

U.S. Farm Women Join City Sisters In Wanting Equality

CHICAGO (AP) — The nation's farm women appear to be joining their city sisters in wanting equality and the erasure of the "traditional role" of women.

According to a poll by Prairie Farmer, a leading rural magazine, farm women in Illinois and Indiana are two to one in favor of women taking any job they can handle. The ratio is three to one among women under 40 with some college training.

Better than three-quarters of the farm women polled felt their husbands should help out in the house at least occasionally. However, slightly less than three-quarters of the men actually did. Age was not a factor here. Young and old alike thought their husbands should pitch in.

In a separate poll, about one-third of the women questioned answer "no" when asked whether they would vote for a qualified female presidential candidate. Among farm women with some college, about one-quarter voted "no."

Cockatoo Home

(AP) — Cecilia offered a $1,000 reward for the return of a cockatoo, says the bird is back in his cage, singing and dancing.

She and her husband, who lives in a small town, were away and asked a neighbor to look after the bird with other children. The man, Mrs. Evans, noticed her advertisement.

Polly's Problem
We have not touched it since. I bought the regular full size even though the bed is queen size. This material was very expensive, was pre-cut and came in a sealed package. — CLARA.

DEAR POLLY — Ever try to get baked-on bubble gum out of your dryer? Try rubbing a little petroleum jelly on the gum, turn the dryer on "Hot" for a few minutes. You should find it quite easy to simply wipe the dryer clean with a soft cloth. — ALICE M.

DEAR POLLY — Children love to imitate their elders in both deeds and possessions. To keep your own keys out of the way of tempted little fingers provide a spare key chain with several outdated keys to be your youngsters own.

DEAR POLLY — Put an infant's tee shirt over the top of his coverall outfit instead of underneath. This keeps the shirt from riding up in the back and the garment also keeps troublesome coverall straps from slipping down over the infant's shoulders. — JUDY.

DEAR POLLY — My husband is allergic to any type wool pants worn next to his skin. Is there a way I could treat them so they would be like cotton? I once heard that glycerine would do this but do not know how to apply it. — BERTHA.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is trying to carry on a conversation with someone wearing sun glasses. I think it is very rude for people to keep them on unless they have an eye problem. Sun glasses are a wonderful protection in harsh sunlight but after entering a building when they are no longer needed, it is very distracting to try to talk to someone whose eyes are hidden behind these dark glasses. The expression in one's eyes are what makes any conversation either interesting or not. — MARIE.

DEAR POLLY — Do tell Helen who has trouble keeping her foam rubber mattress in place that I put a flannel sheet between mine and the springs. It has worked very well. — H.G.U.

DEAR POLLY — I had the same trouble as Helen with my foam mattress. I put an old fitted sheet on the box spring, a cotton mattress cover on the mattress and the bed pad and have no more trouble with it slipping. I do hope this works for her. — ANNA.

Dear Abby

—By Abigail van Buren

How Important Is Sex In Marriage?

DEAR ABBY: I've been dating a fellow (I'll call him David) for about three months. He's been giving me a big rush. He is one of the nicest fellows I've ever met. He is a successful professional man, good-looking, just the right age for me, treats me like a queen, and everyone who has met him thinks he'd be ideal for me.

The problem: David doesn't kiss very well. To be perfectly honest, it's more serious than that. When he kisses me, nothing (but absolutely nothing!) happens. Abby, I'm 25 and experienced (but no tramp), and I am not all that difficult to turn on.

Don't tell me to teach him. If he can't even turn me on, I'm not about to give him kissing lessons.

What should I do? I hate to give him up because he is by far the most eligible man I've ever dated, except for this fault.

LIBRA

DEAR LIBRA: How important I think it is doesn't matter. It's how important YOU think it is that counts. No one can (or should) make that decision for you. List your priorities in order of their importance and you'll have the answer.

DEAR ABBY: I am 38. My wife is 36. We've been married for 15 years and have two children, ages 13 and 10.

Ten months ago, my wife got a telephone call at about 7:30 p.m. She talked for a few minutes, and after she hung up she said a girlfriend of hers was in town and she was going to drive over to see her for a while.

I don't know why, but I didn't believe her, so I left the kids and followed her. I found the "girlfriend" was a man I knew. When they recognized my car, they went in different directions. After my wife returned home, we had a few words, but there was no big scene.

Since that night our marital relations have been very unsatisfactory. Either she doesn't feel well, she's too tired, too sleepy or it's "Please don't bother me." If she lets me touch her, she doesn't participate. Please answer before I do something foolish.

FED UP IN OREGON

DEAR FED: Either you didn't have enough words, or they weren't the right ones.

Level with each other. If she's emotionally involved with another man, you're both better off dealing with it. If it's only a bad case of the "Guilts," that should be dealt with. An infected wound doesn't just heal up and disappear. It erupts sooner or later. And the sooner the better.

DEAR ABBY: You will probably think I am some kind of nut for writing about this problem, but I trust your judgment, and know you have ways of finding out such things, so here goes:

Following a car accident and complications, my mother had her leg amputated about five years ago. Since then, she insists that the leg she had amputated pains her constantly.

Abby, I keep telling her it is all in her head because there is nothing there to hurt. She insists the pain is real.

I am at a loss to understand how this can be so. Can it?

FOOLISH

DEAR QUESTION: No question is foolish if it is sincere. The "pain" about which your mother complains is called "phantom pain," and it is very real indeed. Obviously, it only seems to be in the amputated limb because the nerve endings at the point of amputation have "set up" those sensations. Your mother should tell her doctor. He may be able to correct the situation.

Utah Couple Has Many Jobs

CHURCH WELLS, Utah (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Willie Koch are the jacks of all trades of Paradise Park, a trailer court they purchased 10 years ago in this desolate desert village 51 miles east of Kanab, Utah.

They operate the only fire engine and the only ambulance along the 77-mile desert stretch from Kanab to Page, Ariz. They also are the only deputy sheriffs in the area, and members of the Kane County Search-and-Rescue posse.

Although Paradise Park has 40 trailer spaces, its present population is nine families. There is no gas station, no store and no school. And until the Kochs came along, there had been neither a fire engine or an ambulance.

HOPING FOR REDUCTIONS— State Insurance Board Will Postpone Setting New Rates On Car Insurance

By LEE JONES
AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The State Insurance Board has decided to delay new car insurance rates until late fall in the hope that the gasoline shortage and lower speed limits might bring reductions.

Usually, the board holds its statewide car insurance hearing in mid-June or early July and puts new rates into effect around Sept. 1.

"I can't see a possibility of having the hearing before the last week in September," said Bill Harding, the board's chief clerk.

The board is insisting on getting the insurance companies' premiums and loss figures through the first three months of 1974, Harding said, and it will take until September to get them.

New rates probably would not take effect until at least a month after the hearing.

Auto accidents declined during the first quarter of this year because the gasoline shortage resulted in less driving and in a congressionally imposed 55 miles per hour speed limit.

Harding said the board had asked the Texas Department of Public Safety to provide accident statistics broken down by the 40 rating territories used by the board.

By the time of the hearing, he said, the board will have accident data for the first six months.

"It might be we could apply the insurance data to that... It is another tool we never had before. I don't know whether it will work, but it is a subject for speculation," Harding said.

Accident frequency is one factor used in determining rates. But it does not tell anything about actual claims paid by insurance companies or the average amount of each claim.

Harding said he did not know how much inflation might offset the benefits of a reduced accident rate.

Rates were last changed on Aug. 27, 1973, when the board approved a 4.3 per cent average statewide decrease.

Numerous companies have granted "deviations" or rate decreases to their customers, below the statewide rates set by the board. Harding said the reduced premium income would not cause the ratio of losses to premiums—a key factor in rate setting—to rise.

"What we do is adjust those to manual (standard) rates. The public gets the advantage of the rate calculations and also of the deviations," he said.

Schwartz Says Offshore Superports Big Hazards

HOUSTON (AP) — Unloading of oil off the coast of Texas points out the need for immediate building of a supertanker port for Texas, state Sen. A. R. Schwartz, D-Galveston, says.

The shifting of oil from giant supertankers to smaller ones could result in a massive oil spill or explosion, Schwartz said.

Mobil Oil Co., which unloads the tankers, denies the danger. Schwartz said the offloading is "a tremendous potential hazard to the environment, to say nothing of the hazard to the life of the people involved."

He called for the quick construction of a publicly-owned superport as recommended by the Texas Offshore Terminal Commission.

Schwartz said Tuesday he recently learned that large tankers are being unloaded about 75 miles off the Texas coast to smaller tankers, which in turn bring the crude oil to Mobil's Beaumont refinery.

"Any oil spills out there are not going to be reported or detected — You can't depend on the shipping industries to do it," he said. "Instead of taking that hazard, we ought to go ahead and follow through on the decision we've spent $500,000 to arrive at, and that's a publicly owned offshore terminal."

A spokesman for Mobil agreed with Schwartz that a deepwater superport needs to be built. "Lightering is really a very inefficient operation," he said. "It takes eight to 14 days while a supertanker can unload through an offshore monobuoy in 24 to 36 hours."

But the spokesman said Mobil has carried out hundreds of such lightering operations around the world without incident.

He said Mobil has conducted 11 offloading operations about 75 miles south of Sabine Pass since last January without oil spills or incidents.

Supertankers, ranging from 125,000 to 283,000 deadweight tons, pump oil into 50,000 to 60,000 ton vessels which are hooked along side, the spokesman said. The ships are protected from collision by a large, inflated rubber bumper he said, and lightering is safe.

Senate Watergate Committee May Ask Congressional Power Over Directives

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Watergate committee is being asked to recommend a congressional veto power over every presidential order, directive or proclamation.

The recommendation, an attempt to end so-called "presidential law making" under the president's emergency powers, was proposed to the committee by Dr. Arthur Miller, its consultant on issues raised by the Watergate scandal.

The report advised that the committee recommend enactment of a law "that will require the submission of every president's order or directive, by whatever name called, to be submitted to the Congress prior to its promulgation."

The report, made available to The Associated Press by sources close to the committee, proposed this for the committee's final report:

"The Select Committee further recommends that no such order or directive can have the force of law until both houses of Congress approve it by majority vote."

Since hundreds and even thousands of such directives are issued in any given year, the report recommended that Congress set up an office with the responsibility of approving routine orders.

"Congress could then devote itself to consideration of only those orders of the greatest importance or impact," the report said.

The report dealt mainly with ways in which Congress can reform its procedures so as to more effectively oversee the work of the executive branch.

"Future Watergates may be impossible to foresee or to prevent, but surely it is accurate to maintain that the risk of another complex of circumstances like Watergate would be substantially reduced if Congress became physically and structurally more able to perform the day-to-day oversight of the administration," the report said.

It said at the moment "Congress does not have the physical plant, manpower, professional staff, services and overall resources to enable it to operate in an increasingly complex governmental environment."

The report recommends Congress adapt the widespread use of computer technology and noted that the Watergate committee "scored a technological breakthrough" by using a computer to store large amounts of data.

Nixon Gives Red Union Stern Nuclear Warning

By BARRY SCHWEID
(An AP News Analysis)
BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The Nixon administration, in a presumptuous tactic, has put Soviet leaders on notice that it will not accept a nuclear disadvantage and is prepared to continue the arms race "as long as we must."

At the same time, the administration has taken the precaution of notifying the American people that they shouldn't expect too much in the way of weapons controls from President Nixon's Kremlin talks with Soviet Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev.

The double set of signals was flashed at a Brussels news conference Wednesday night by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

The United States probably retains an over-all weapons advantage because of its edge in deployed warheads and delivery systems, Kissinger said. But there has been a technological explosion since the 1972 interim nuclear arms treaty that puts pressure on both the big powers.

On the Soviet side, missiles with multiple independently targetable (MIRV) warheads may soon be deployed, Kissinger reported. But he added, "at what rate they will deploy them, it is not yet fully possible to foretell."

The secretary said that unless Washington and Moscow can agree on limitations within the next 18 months, it will be almost impossible to reverse the development of Soviet arms.

"It becomes harder with every passing six-month period," he noted grimly. "One reason, obviously, is the high cost of setting up a MIRV system."

Kissinger said the differences between the two governments on how to calculate their strengths to reach an agreed standoff are so great that a ban on offensive systems "will certainly not be completed in the form of any permanent agreement on this visit."

Moreover, he said, "it is impossible that there will be an extension of the interim agreement unless it is tied to some substantial agreement on multiple warheads, and that probably will also not be fully achieved at the summit."

He said an agreement in principle could emerge from Nixon's third annual meeting with Brezhnev, as well as a ban on some underground tests.

Critics Say U.S. Getting Little Soviet Technology In Detente Deals

By HOWARD BENEDICT
WASHINGTON (AP) — Detente has generated a steadily increasing number of U.S.-Soviet technology exchanges, prompting growing concern that Russia is shrewdly acquiring U.S. know-how to improve its military posture while giving little in return.

The situation is stirring a serious policy debate in Congress and among several government agencies. Many on both sides believe a new national policy on export controls is needed.

Critics contend many American companies, with approval of the administration, are selling computers, communications systems, precision ball-bearing machines and ship-building technology which have military application to the Soviets under what are supposed to be commercial agreements for civilian use.

Some officials charge the deals have advanced development of Russia's missile warhead accuracy by two to four years and its computer know-how by perhaps a decade. They say Russian missiles, tanks and military vehicles run on ball bearings based on American technology.

These critics say the Soviets may be soon competing in world markets with U.S. firms from which they purchased the technology.

America is getting very little Soviet technology in return, they say.

The technology-science cooperation agreement signed at the Moscow summit in May 1972 relaxed U.S. export regulations.

Many American firms, in their efforts to create new markets in the East, have signed far-reaching agreements with the Soviets.

Administration officials believe a strong technology exchange program is necessary to further detente and to achieve a favorable balance of economic and political advantages. But some officials, noting the U.S.-USSR wheat deal, admit the Soviets are shrewd bargainers and they have alerted American companies to keep their guard up.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., terms it a dangerous situation. He said preliminary study by the Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations, which he heads, indicates that Soviet experts are trying to acquire "significant technology ... which could have a serious impact on U.S. defenses."

"When we start holding hearings, I think the country will be rather startled at what is happening," Jackson said. "Unless we do something about this, there are going to be some shocking technology transfers."

Malcolm R. Currie, director of defense research and engineering at the Pentagon, is waging a campaign to warn U.S. industry of the pitfalls.

"The Soviets have become critically aware that their great deficiency is not in scientific knowledge but rather in production technology," Currie said.

"We therefore see what appears to be a carefully designed Soviet approach to acquire production technology," he said.

Especially disturbing to Currie and others are recent Soviet overtures to five U.S. aerospace firms: Lockheed, Boeing, McDonnell Douglas, General Electric and United Aircraft's Pratt & Whitney Division. The Russians are seeking jumbo jet aircraft and engines.

What the Soviets really want to buy, the critics say, is the technology that would allow them to build their own production facilities, now sorely lacking in the USSR.

The Soviets know how to build big jets. But Pentagon experts say Soviet production techniques would not allow the Soviets to produce them efficiently enough to compete on the world market.

The Defense Department, which is considering using such giants as Boeing's 747 as military transports, fear the Russians would use technology obtained in any such deal to improve their military airlift capability.

Boeing and Lockheed have signed protocol agreements to explore possible civil aviation projects with Russia.

Boeing said the protocol was "limited to the exchange of scientific and technical information." But the Soviet news agency Tass reported the agreement could result eventually in an American-designed aircraft plant in Russia and in the development of new passenger aircraft and helicopters.

Another concern of Pentagon planners is the National Security Council's recent approval for a group of U.S. computer companies to install an air traffic control system in Russia comparable to that used by the Federal Aviation Administration.

The U.S. team, headed by IBM, is competing with a French firm for the contract.

This would allow the Soviets to accommodate increased air transport and to compete with airlines of other nations for expanded international routes. It also would permit creation of the computerized military air traffic control system they now lack.

A leading congressional opponent of the sale of advanced computer systems to the Soviets or other eastern bloc nations is Rep. Ben B. Blackburn, R-Ga. He said American computers were sold to Russia as early as 1959, but that export restrictions limited the quality to systems available to the Russians elsewhere in the world.

But through the years, Blackburn said, American computer technology has funneled into Russia, either through direct sales or through other Communist-bloc nations.

Blackburn said the combination of U.S. and British computer technology has advanced development of the Soviets' multiple independently-targeted re-entry vehicles—MIRVs—from two to four years. This, he said, allowed them to take advantage of the SALT-1 treaty to advance the Soviet strategic posture in a time span unanticipated in Washington.

Despite owning this technology, Blackburn said, the Russians have failed in an effort to create a manufacturing base for third-generation computers.

"Consequently, the Kremlin leaders are asking our electronic and computer firms to create a Soviet productive base in which to manufacture third generation and advanced scientific computer systems," he said.

No U.S. company can sell technical goods to Russia without approval of the National Security Council, which gets recommendations on sensitive export licensing clearances from the State Department, White House Council on International Economic Policy and the Commerce Department's Bureau of East-West Trade.

Steven Lazarus, director of the Bureau of East-West Trade, concedes there have been conflicts between his agency and the Pentagon on questions of technology export clearance. But he insists the bureau is sensitive to national security and he sees "no evidence that security has been compromised."

Explaining why technical-export regulations have been relaxed, the bureau's Kenneth S. Yalowitz said "United States government policy has been predicated on the assumption that increased U.S.-USSR trade and technical cooperation would contribute to the expansion of constructive relations and complement on-going negotiation on disarmament and troop reductions.

"We want the USSR to look to the United States for the exchange of products and technology. To the extent that we succeed, we shall be improving over-all prospects for development of a mutually-beneficial relationship."

He acknowledged there has been some concern in regulatory agencies about the seepage of technology resulting from protocol agreements signed in the past two years between about 25 U.S. firms and Soviet organizations.

He said an amendment has been proposed to the Export Administration Act to require

U.S. firms and their foreign affiliates to report within 15 days any written understanding which could result in export of high-technology items.

Undersecretary of Commerce John K. Tabor said a goal of the United States is to obtain technology in the fields in which the Soviets excel.

"They have large programs with unique and valuable breakthroughs in metalworking, engineering, plastics, hydro-electric power and high voltage transmission techniques," he said. "Experts advise me they lead the world in development of magneto hydrodynamic power generators, which can generate electricity directly from coal combustion. Some authorities hold they are strong in research, particularly in the theoretical fields such as physics, chemistry and mathematics."

Tabor reported that since detente the U.S. has obtained some new technology from the Soviets, including a low-cost method of extracting magnesium and processes for cooling blast furnaces, remelting metals and smelting aluminum.

Major Cut In Ads On Children's Tv Programs Is Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Faced with the possibility of tougher government regulations, the television industry has recommended a major reduction in the time allocated to advertising on children's programs.

The Television Code Review Board of the National Association of Broadcasters suggested Wednesday that by Dec. 31, maximum commercial and other nonprogram time be cut by 16.7 per cent, from 12 to 10 minutes per hour, for Saturday and Sunday programs.

By Dec. 31, 1975, the board recommended an advertising time reduction of nearly 21 per cent, to a maximum of 9 1/2 minutes per hour.

For children's television Monday through Friday, an overall cut of 26 per cent in advertising time was suggested—from 16 to 14 minutes per hour by Dec. 31 and down to 12 minutes an hour by a year from then.

The industry's code board also recommended:

- Dropping advertisements of supplemental vitamins.
- Making a distinction between entertainment and advertising clear enough for a child to understand.
- Removing plugs for non-prescription medications from advertising aimed at children.
- No more omitting the fact that an advertised toy needs batteries.

Movie Producer Explains Why He Fell For Swindle

NEW YORK (AP) — Martin Bergman, producer of the police movie "Serpico," was explaining why he was among the widely known personalities who invested in a reported $100 million oil drilling swindle that could be the biggest of its kind.

"We believed the people, we saw the facilities and, when you look at the list, we were in good company," he said.

"The people," according to the Wall Street Journal, were Home-Stake Production Co., a Tulsa, Okla., tax-shelter oil drilling firm that was declared insolvent last September by the Securities and Exchange Commission and is under SEC investigation.

"The facilities," according to the Journal, consisted of five oil wells drilled on a vegetable farm near Santa Maria, Calif. in the late 1960s. The newspaper said one well was legitimate and 3,500-feet deep but at least three of the others were 500-foot dry holes.

Facilities included irrigation pipes painted with the consent of the farmer to resemble oil pipelines, the Journal said Wednesday.

"The list" of investors included some of the best company in the worlds of entertainment, law, finance and other fields.

According to the Journal, singer Andy Williams invested $538,000. At least a dozen present and former General Electric officials put in $3.7 million. Fashion designer Oleg Cassini supplied $57,000 and Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., $28,500.

Other investors were Jack Benny, Diahann Carroll, Barbara Streisand, Bobbie Gentry, Mia Farrow, Jonathan Winters, Tony Curtis, Faye Dunaway, Buddy Hackett, Bob Dylan, Alan Alda and Candice Bergen. Other investors listed included Paul Miller, chairman of the Garnett Co. and board chairman of The Associated Press; James R. Shepley, president of Time Inc.; former Florida Gov. Claude R. Kirk; Washington lawyers Earl W. Kintner and Henry J. Fox; Thomas S. Gates, former defense secretary and director and ex-chairman of Morgan Guaranty Trust Co.; federal judge Murray I. Garfein; Walter B. Wriston, board chairman of First National City Bank; Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., and Chester W. Nimitz, chairman of Perkin-Elmer Corp. and former Navy rear admiral.

The Journal said of $130 million invested, all but $30 million went astray.

Some alleged investors reached said they had agreed with business advisers that Home-Stake appeared to be a legitimate tax-shelter investment. Spokesmen for firms whose officers were allegedly involved said company policies were not involved in any way.

The Journal described Home-Stake as a "Ponzi Scheme," named after Charles Ponzi of Boston, who took more than $10 million from investors in 1919-20.

Such a scheme usually involves a promise of high returns on an investment. The profits paid to early investors are actually supplied from funds put in by new investors. Depending upon the scheme, however, some investors may profit.

The Journal said Robert S. Trippet, the lawyer who founded Home-Stake in 1955 and ran it until last summer, has consented to a court injunction against securities law violations without admitting or denying any charges by the SEC.

A SEC spokesman in Washington declined comment.

The Journal said at least one federal grand jury is due to convene soon in Los Angeles or New York to look into the case.

Telethon Leaders Still Vague About Watergate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic party leaders are undecided about whether to say anything about House impeachment proceedings against President Nixon in their 21-hour nationwide fund-raising telethon this weekend.

A party official called the question "very sensitive" and said that as of Wednesday no discussion of the impeachment proceedings was planned.

However, a preview of some of the material from the telethon, shown to newsmen Wednesday, disclosed references to Watergate and some of the related scandals of the Nixon administration.

The telethon, third by the Democrats in three years, will last 21 hours, starting at 9 p.m. CDT Saturday over the CBS television network.

Party leaders are a bit nervous about how much money it will raise in view of the difficulty both Democrats and Republicans have been having in raising funds in the aftermath of Watergate.

The last Democratic telethon, last September, grossed $4.3 million. It cost $2.1 million to put on, which meant a profit of $2.3 million divided equally between the Democratic National Committee and state Democratic parties.

For this weekend's show, costs have risen past the $2.5-million mark. Two-thirds of the profits will go to the states and one-third to the DNC for current expenses and to retire more of the party's lingering 1968 debt, now $2.5 million.

The program will include both live and recorded material, appearances by party leaders and movie stars, humorous spots and appeals for money.

Angry Parents Protest Banning Of 'God' Verse

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) — Angry parents have protested the banning of local public schools of a children's verse with the word "God" in it.

Superior Court Judge Joseph P. Murphy Jr. had ruled that use of the verse in public schools here was a violation of the Constitution's church and state provisions. He ruled June 12 in a challenge brought by the American Civil Liberties Union.

Armed with a petition bearing 1,400 names, 20 parents rallied Wednesday on the Sonoma County courthouse steps in this northern California town to sing the verse they demanded be retained in public schools.

"Thank you for the birds that sing. Thank you, God, for everything."

Six children led them through the kindergarten children in the Cotati-Rohmert Park school district sang it daily over their milk and cookies until Murphy's ruling.

"If this song goes, then next it will be the Christmas pageant, then God knows what else," said Dawn Sherba, mother of a kindergarten pupil at Waldo Emerson Elementary School and organizer of the protest.

The song appears in a music text approved by the state of California, and trustee Anthony Carbone wants the state to step in on the side of the parents.

Body Of Waco Girl Is Found In Ohio

IRONTON, Ohio (AP) — The body of Margaret Neil Howell, 22, of Waco, Tex., apparently killed in a traffic accident, was found on a Lawrence County hillside Wednesday.

Authorities said the girl, who was identified as a North Texas State University coed selling Bibles in the Ironton area, apparently drove off the edge of Ohio 93 north of Ironton and rolled down a hillside.

The girl was last seen alive by two friends Monday.

WELL, IT IS SUPPOSED TO WORK—

Talking To Plants Helps Them Grow

By ROBERT E. FORD
Associated Press Writer
If you believe a man loses his farming skills just because he hasn't done anything agricultural in decades, you're wrong. You ought to see the great, big red tomato on the vine beside our fireplace chimney.
This great production endeavor started a few weeks ago when we became caught up in this year's big fad—planting vegetables.
A good many city folks plowed up their back yards and began growing onions, squash, corn and things like that or trying to.

There is a spot about three feet by three feet at our place where nothing ever would grow, not even Jonsson grass.
Therefore, we reasoned, the soil must not be worn out by too many crops.
Well, sure enough, the tomatoes began to flourish and the first one should be ready to pluck in a couple of days.

It has not been easy. It's easier than growing cotton in the Dust Bowl, but there is work to be done.
As everyone these days knows, if you talk nice to your plants they will work themselves to death for you.
Carry that one step further and sing to them.
First we tried a few bars of that old pioneer favorite, "The Hell-Bound Train." Three blossoms fell off.
Perhaps that was an immoral song. We tried a verse of "On Jordan's Stormy Bank," halfway expecting the blossoms to lift themselves off the ground back onto the vines.

They stayed where they were.
We fear our voice will never get us on the stage of the Metropolitan Opera. But who would think that tomato vines are musical critics?
We are considering working out an extortion deal with the church. It will ignore all our sins if we promise never to sing along with the congregation.
Started sweet-talking to the plants and they began popping out with tomatoes. Now there are 14 of all sizes, which is not bad for four plants.
It looked like disaster had struck at one point in time.
Crop Doctor?
One of the stalks turned black and appeared about to die.
Called up our long-time friend, Monk Vance of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, to whom we turn in times of crop crisis.
He acted just like a doctor you've awakened at 3 a.m. to complain about your head cold.
"There's a lot of that going around now," he reported.
Like a doctor who tells you to take two aspirin and go back to sleep, Vance said give the plants an extra shot of superphosphate fertilizer. It worked.
The Agriculture Department, noting all this vegetable activity across the nation as well as in our back yard, made a survey to see what people like.
Most disliked are eggplant, turnips and okra. Around Texas, okra is a big favorite. Maybe the easterners don't know how to cook it.
Neither parents nor children like those three. Children additionally don't like asparagus, brussels sprouts, beets, squash, broccoli and cauliflower. You could add the rest of the vegetable family to the children's "against" list.
Grandpa Knew Secret
The easiest way to get a child to eat a vegetable is to put it in a bright wrapper and call it candy.
Back to talking to plants.
Grandpa used to raise just about the best crops in Baylor County except for people who farmed Brazos River bottomland.
Several persons noted that when he was alone on a plow or a planter, he talked a lot.
Finally accused of it, he admitted he was reciting Bible verses, praying a little and occasionally voicing a small sermon. Maybe that was why his crops were so good.
Which opens up possibilities. Perhaps a church, instead of holding bingo nights to raise money, could rent out the deacons who for a fee would go around and preach to discouraged vegetable patches.

A detective in Westland, Mich., Adam Kuryliw, believes he can learn to hear what plants say.
He is a polygraph expert and says plants give off water through their leaves just like people sweat. Sweating is one thing that activates the lie detector machine.
Kuryliw says that if a person even considers cutting down or burning a plant, the plant sets off the polygraph.
He borrowed a philodendron which sends the polygraph needle in crazy gyrations when it is pinched or hit.
One day when his wife was gone, he started asking questions of one of her plants and got no reaction.
When she returned, the needle started gyrations. She began asking questions and got no response until she asked if it wanted to be moved to the sliding glass door. The needle started jumping.
Our next report may be entitled, "The Giant Talking Tomato."
But would you have the heart to eat a vegetable with whom you'd had long, pleasant conversations all spring and summer?
Never!
If the day of the talking plants comes, we may all starve until someone invents artificial foods.
Anyone for a plastic watermelon?

Satellite System Helpful To Men Searching For Oil

RICHARDS ISLAND, Canada (AP) — A space age communications system is helping men searching for oil in this remote section of Canada's northland keep in touch with civilization.

Three oil companies are using a transportable satellite communications earth station equipped with a 10-foot dish antenna at this exploration site above the Arctic Circle to send and receive voice, data and teletype communications via the Anik Satellites. Both Anik and the portable station were developed and built by Hughes Aircraft Co., El Segundo, Calif.
Instead of depending on shortwave to attempt calls back and forth to the populated areas of southern Canada, some 2,000 miles away, the oil exploration teams communicate through the station, up 22,300 miles to the satellite, back down to an earth terminal near Toronto, then via landline to their home offices in Calgary. By reversing the procedure the home offices can contact the men working in the isolated outposts.

Former Humphrey, Mills Aides Take Fifth Amendment

By BROOKS JACKSON
WASHINGTON (AP) — The staff of the Senate Watergate committee says it has evidence Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey's former campaign manager helped engineer a scheme to funnel $137,000 in illegal corporate aid to Democrats, including Humphrey.

The campaign manager, Minneapolis attorney Jack L. Chestnut, refused to testify under oath about the affair on grounds he might tend to incriminate himself, the staff said in a confidential report.

Rebuttal Witnesses Due In Rock Festival Suit

DALLAS (AP) — Rebuttal witnesses were expected to argue today that Hunt County officials did not give the Dallas Peace Committee legal notice before they banned a 1971 rock festival planned by the group.

The group has filed suit in federal court here seeking $50,000 in damages against three Hunt County officials and asking that the officials be prohibited from banning similar gatherings in the future.

In testimony Wednesday before U.S. District Court Judge William M. Taylor Jr., Chief Deputy Norman Gray of Hunt County said legal notice of a hearing on the festival was served in 1971 to Richard Johnson. Members of the Dallas Peace Committee have said they never heard of Johnson.

Johnny Sante-Angele, a former worker for the committee, testified Wednesday that his legal adviser told him no permit would be needed for the gathering since fewer than 5,000 were expected to attend.

Gray told the court he had estimated a crowd of 10,000 persons, for whom there were no adequate sanitary and drinking water facilities at the private ranch near Interstate 30 where the gathering was planned.

Sainte-Angele testified that former Hunt County Sheriff R. W. "Red" Wood, one of the defendants, ordered persons at the festival to leave, and refused to let others enter the site on Aug. 20, 1971. Sainte-Angele said about 50 persons were arrested.

Another witness, William P. Stevens, said a law enforcement officer told him, "Dallas law and federal law don't apply in Hunt County, and nothing happens we don't want."

Wood told the court, "I never told them they couldn't have the demonstration. I just said I didn't want them to have it."

Others named as defendants in the suit are former Hunt County Dist. Atty. Larry Miller and County Judge Hollis Gray.

A spokeswoman for Humphrey said he had not seen the report and "he won't want to comment on it until it is in its final form."

Mills could not be reached for comment.

The report said both Humphrey and Mills had been asked to submit to interviews with one of the committee's members, but that neither had complied with the request.

Humphrey sent a letter saying that he knew nothing about the matters being investigated, Mills, after being asked twice to cooperate with the committee, sent word through a lawyer that he would do so at some later time, but so far hasn't arranged a meeting.

Humphrey also failed to produce all the documents sought by committee investigators, the report said, indicating failure of Mills and Humphrey to cooperate fully hindered the investigation.

The report, a copy of which was circulated to committee members Wednesday but hasn't been adopted.

One section of the two-volume report focuses on Chestnut's role in the payment of $137,000 to a Minneapolis computer-mail firm for lists of potential Democratic voters used by Humphrey and other Democrats in 1971.

The report cited no evidence that Humphrey or the others who benefited from the arrangement were aware themselves that corporate money was being paid for the lists, which were compiled for use in Iowa, Oklahoma, Kansas and South Dakota.

But it said $25,000 went for the computer-mail firm, and also had been employed secretly for eight months in 1970 by the milk producers, who paid him $625 monthly through another lawyer, the report said.

It said a partner of the computer-mail firm had testified that Chestnut told him it would be legal to accept the dairymen's corporate money to pay for the political lists if the company also received copies of them.

However, the report also quoted testimony from two former top officials of the co-op, Harold S. Nelson and David L. Parr, who said the dairymen had no use for the lists themselves, that documents were forged to cover up the political use of corporate money and that Chestnut knew about the sham. "We asked him to prepare the deal," Nelson was quoted as saying.

In the Mills campaign, the report said Mills personally solicited an invitation to speak at a farm rally in Ames, Iowa, Oct. 2, 1971. The affair was billed as a bipartisan gathering, but Parr testified that the dairy co-op took over its financing and promotion to tout Mills for president. Some $45,000 in corporate money was poured into the affair, which drew more than 7,000 persons, many wearing "Draft-Mills" lapel badges.

The head of the sponsoring organization, Gerald R. Pepper of the Iowa Institute of Cooperation, said Mills called him personally Labor Day, 1971, asking to speak at the rally.

Mills posed for publicity shots with the Iowans while he accepted their invitation.

One dairy co-op official who helped organize the rally was Joe P. Johnson, one of three co-op employees who drew a corporate salary and expenses while working on the Mills campaign, the report said.

Johnson later served as Mills' advance man, and then left the organization, Gerald R. Pepper of the Iowa Institute of Cooperation, said Mills called him personally Labor Day, 1971, asking to speak at the rally.

LULAC President Says Organization To Become More Politically Active

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — The League United of Latin American Citizens (LULAC) will become more politically active, its president said at the opening of the organization's 46th annual convention.

Joseph R. Benites of Phoenix, Ariz., the national president, said Wednesday evening this convention marked a turning point in LULAC history.

About 5,000 delegates, drawing an estimated 12,000 visitors to El Paso, are attending the convention. One official called it the largest gathering of Spanish-speaking individuals in the history of the United States.

Benites said efforts will be made toward "political education and political (voter) registration" of the approximately 16 million members of the Spanish-speaking minority in the United States.

Benites mentioned plans for informing these people about the voting records of their representatives at all levels of government and urging them to vote against officials who do not support governmental activity beneficial to them, regardless of party ties.

LULAC is becoming more politically involved "because we have learned that you have to address the political process" to get to the social problems

OC Administrative Positions Realigned

ODESSA — Bernard T. W. Sedate, dean of academic services at Odessa College, has been placed in charge of the student affairs office, records and registrar's office and a newly created student services office.

In other administrative moves announced Wednesday, Dr. Miles Eckert, formerly of Midland, was promoted from director of financial aids to director of student services.

Dr. Phil Speegle, OC president, said Eckert would assume some of the duties now handled by N. R. Vaught, dean of student affairs.

Eckert joined the 1968 Odessa College staff from Lee High School in Midland. Prior to that, he taught at Big Spring and was a counselor at McCamey High School.

TI Chief Says New Competition Would Hurt Airlines By $2 Million A Year

HOUSTON (AP) — The president of Texas International Airlines says possible action by the Texas Aeronautics Commission would damage his airlines' financial situation about $2 million a year.

Francisco Lorenzo told stockholders Wednesday the commission currently is considering an application that would provide "destructively competitive service over Texas International's routes to the Rio Grande Valley."

He said the possible action holds a serious threat to the future and quality of intrastate air-line service for many Texas cities.

Southwest Airlines has applied for authority to serve Harlingen.

The granting of such a request, Lorenzo said, would damage Texas International's financial situation about $2 million a year. He said this in turn would be destructive to the company's strategy of improving the quality of service now provided throughout the state.

He also stated that it is clear that a weakening of Texas International's financial position would likely rob Texas cities such as Brownwood, Laredo, and San Angelo of the substantial service improvements they have already received and would otherwise receive in the future.

Lorenzo earlier had told the stockholders he expected 1974 to show a modest improvement in financial results but that losses would be experienced if the carrier is unable to meet successfully the challenges it faces.

The Houston-based airline recently applied to the CAB for authority to expand its Texas-Mexico service to five additional resort cities on Mexico's west coast.

"Texas International's ability to continue to show improved financial results in the immediate future will be greatly influenced by the decisions of the Civil Aeronautics Board in permitting the airline to expand service from Texas to additional cities with high development potential," Lorenzo said.

Delegates To Take Up Powers Unit

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Constitutional Convention was expected to finish all but the general provisions article in final voting today.

Even after all articles receive approval, however, another vote will be needed on the entire document, and this is expected to fall short of the two-thirds majority needed on its first try.

Delegates were scheduled to take up a brief section on separation of powers at 2 p.m., then debate the judiciary article.

Some delegates were known to favor voting section by section on the judiciary article in order to isolate such controversial provisions as the merger of the state's top two appeals courts and the state's right of appeal in criminal cases.

The Submission and Transmission Committee voted Wednesday to give back to the convention, after all articles are approved, exactly what the convention gave it, rather than try to carve out for separate votes items that might cause rejection of the entire document.

After the first vote, which everybody expects to total less than two-thirds for approval, the committee will begin haggling over how to present the convention with something it will accept.

This could mean asking delegates to vote on everything except the separate submission of a prohibition against union and agency shops, for example.

Labor delegates are expected to hold out for this kind of presentation.

Mitchell Declares Dividend

HOUSTON (AP) — A 10 per cent common stock dividend in recognition of improved earnings has been declared by directors of Mitchell Energy & Development Co.

The board considered a cash dividend by deferred action, George Mitchell, chairman and president, said Wednesday.

However, he said the possibility of at least a modest cash dividend will be considered again in the near future.

The directors felt the interest of stockholders would be better served at present through earmarking profits for further oil and gas explorations than by receiving a modest cash dividend.

Mitchell Energy reported a 73 per cent increase in earnings for the 1974 fiscal year ending Jan. 31 which amounted to $9.5 million or $2.07 a share compared with $5.5 million or $1.21 a share for fiscal 1973.

The stock dividend would increase the number of common shares to more than five million. The dividend will be payable Aug. 9 to shareholders of record July 19.

Mitchell told shareholders following the directors meeting that higher prices for natural gas liquids and some benefits from the nationwide gas rate just reestablished by the Federal Power Commission will add further to fiscal 1975 profits which he previously had said should be up substantially.

Natural gas liquids could increase as much as 10 per cent, he said.

Mitchell said three new natural gas liquid processing plants will be built in addition to seven announced in May.

One of the three additional units will be built in Sutton County, he said, but the sites for the other two have not been determined.

Midland Resident Found Guilty Of Heroin Charge

ODESSA — Manuel Sotelo Marmolejo, 33, of Midland, was convicted here Wednesday in 70th District Court of heroin possession, third offense.

Marmolejo was indicted as a habitual criminal, and therefore the guilty verdict carries with it a life sentence.

W. L. Hoard of Midland, a Department of Public Safety narcotics agent, testified that a packet of heroin had fallen from Marmolejo's pocket when he was being searched Oct. 28, 1973.

Marmolejo was at another person's home where officers were searching for drugs after they had obtained a warrant. Eleven packets of heroin were found in the house.

Midlander Among Students At UT Theater Workshop

AUSTIN — Eddie Wornell of Midland is among high school students from across the state attending a high school theater workshop at The University of Texas-Austin.

Wornell has joined students from such divergent points as Wichita Falls, Corpus Christi, Texline, Beville, El Paso, Houston, Fort Worth and San Antonio at the 25-day workshop, which will culminate in public performances of three dramatic productions July 5 and 6. The productions are "The Cave Cat," an original one-act play by Ford Ainsworth which recently won the first play award of the Texas Educational Theater Association; scenes from Arthur Miller's acclaimed drama, "The Crucible," and four stories from playwright Paul Sills' "Story Theater," a series of imaginative improvisations based on familiar children's tales.

Jerry Worsham, drama director at Snyder High School, is the director of "The Cave Cat." Janis Layne Powell, former student in the UT-Austin drama department who now is acting instructor at the Neighborhood Playhouse School of Theatre in New York City, is directing the cuttings from "The Crucible." The "Story Theater" improvisations have Dorothy Dodd of the UT drama faculty as director.

Lynn Murray, assistant professor of drama at UT, is director of the theater workshop, with 14 other members of the drama faculty serving as workshop instructors. Participants in the workshop are studying acting, directing, dramatic literature, theater drama, lighting, makeup and stagecraft as well as wielding hammers, saws, needles, scissors, brushes and pliers in order to acquire experience and knowledge in all phases of theater, backstage as well as on-stage.

'The Imaginary Invalid' May Be Globe Theater's Hit Of Season

By ROGER SOUTHALL, Reporter-Telegram Staff

ODESSA — "The Imaginary Invalid" may well be the hit of the summer season at the Globe of the Great Southwest. The returns aren't all in yet, of course. The first production of the Globe's 1974 Summer Shakespeare Festival, an updated version of "Macbeth" (demon possession and exorcism), is just getting off the ground, so to speak, while the third production, the Bard's "Twelfth Night," doesn't even enter the performance schedule until next week. Nevertheless, it is fairly safe to state that Moliere's outrageously funny "Invalid" is probably going to be the show that packs 'em in between now and the close of the season in late August.

This won't come as any surprise, since other Moliere productions in the Globe's summer festivals of recent years have generally been the biggest successes at the box office. And certainly Moliere's comedic genius provides nice balance for the more serious Shakespearean productions offered at the Globe.

Still, the Shakespearean offerings are the summer festival's real reason-for-being, so that while a visit to the Globe for a performance of "The Imaginary Invalid" is recommended, another visit to see at least one of the Shakespearean productions on the boards this summer is equally worthwhile and recommended.

You could ruin "The Imaginary Invalid" if you really tried, I expect, but it would be hard. And, given a competent cast and thoughtful direction, the play can be a real charmer, at it is here.

Globe producer-director Charles D. McCally has chosen to stage the play broadly, with an eye to exploiting all its comic possibilities. More, almost, than any Moliere play, "Invalid" has a rhythm of slapstick throughout, with its stock intrigues and farcical situations. Actually, there were times when I wished that McCally had directed with a slightly more subtle hand, when the slapstick aspects became almost overpowering and tended to detract from the playwright's delightfully witty dialogue—and when that fine dividing line between high and low comedy was occasionally lost sight of.

Nevertheless, Tuesday's opening performance of "Invalid" had an audience that was as eager, as determined to laugh, as any I've ever seen, and laugh it did from start to finish. It was extraordinarily appreciative of cast's and director's efforts.

Although the Globe's summer festival has no stars, quite easily the "stars" of the Moliere play are Ritch Brinkley as Argan, a prosperous and robust Bourgeois who is determined to enjoy bad health, and Brenda Nickerson as Toinette, a saucy maidservant in Argan's household, who is determined to lead her master away from his hypochondriac ways. The confrontations of this strong-willed pair provide much of the hilarity in the show.

Brinkley is assertive and positive in his portrayal. Miss Nickerson displays great flair for comedy and a talent for the thrown-away line.

Assisting the two principals are a number of other highly competent players. Particularly able in their roles are Wayne Narey as Cleante, James Daniels as Monsieur de Bonnefoi; Timothy Jenkins as the slow-witted Thomas Diafoirus; Deanna Dunagan as Argan's avaricious wife, Beline; Patricia McColm as Argan's beautiful daughter, Angélique; Charles Pogue as Beralde, Argan's brother; A. D. Cover as Monsieur Purgon, a swindling physician, and Berry Eisenberg as Monsieur Fleurant. Other members of the Globe's summer repertory company are in smaller roles.

"The Imaginary Invalid" plays at the Globe tonight, with a performance of "Macbeth" to be presented Friday night. Saturday night's presentation will be "Invalid," and a Sunday matinee will offer "Macbeth."

'Happy Birthday USA' Celebration Scheduled

For the eleventh year, Midland will have a "Happy Birthday USA" celebration to highlight Independence Day here.

The annual July 4 event in Wadley-Barron Park is sponsored by the Col. Theunis Dey chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution. As in the past years, the upcoming event will feature children and young people in a parade of decorated bicycles and tricycles, a flag raising ceremony, a patriotic speaker and a program of patriotic music. The parade will form at the corner of Harvard and North A streets in advance of 10 a.m. on July 4, with the procession to begin at 10. The flag raising ceremony, speaker and musical program will follow the parade. Family groups are invited to bring lunches to the park for picnics following the patriotic observance if they so desire, said Mrs. Preston Lee, general chairman of the celebration. She and Mrs. George Van Husen, regent of the DAR chapter, stress that the celebration will be open to all Midland residents. There will be several divisions in the parade, among them one for pre-schoolers, one for children in grades 1 to 3, one for students in grades 4 to 6, and a miscellaneous division for older students and family groups. Mrs. and Mrs. David Essex will serve as parade chairmen.

The contest is one of few events in this area that caters to treasure hunting enthusiasts. Two hunts are scheduled each day. Anyone paying a $12.50 entry fee and having a metal

Rodeo, Old-Timers Meet Set At Pecos

PECOS — The annual "West of the Pecos" rodeo here next week will draw old-timers from a wide area of West Texas.

The old-timers reunion held in conjunction with the rodeo is scheduled Wednesday at the West of the Pecos Museum here.

Each year, pioneer West Texans, who remember the days of cattle drives, outlaws, the construction of the railroads and wooden oil derricks, gather on the porch of the West of the Pecos Museum here to sip lemonade, reminisce of the "good ol' days" and watch the rodeo parade pass by.

From all over West Texas and other parts of the State and nation they will come to relive and witness the one event that has been a focal point for most of their lives—the "West of the Pecos Rodeo," scheduled this year for July 3-6.

One old-timer boasts that he hasn't missed a rodeo in 46 years. Registration for the old timers event is scheduled to begin at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday in the lobby of the museum.

Jerry Reed Cites Classical Influences

By JAY SHARBUTT

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer-guitarist Jerry Reed graduated from country to national stardom because of network tv, but his Music Row headquarters here is still just a plain, white wood frame house. You need the address to find it. There's no sign outside. The proprietor, a regular this spring on NBC's since-cancelled "Music Country U.S.A.," is equally surprising in the flesh.

Debbie Patchell Top Vocalist At Southwest State

SAN MARCOS — Debbie Patchell of Midland, a student at Southwest Texas State University, recently was named outstanding female vocalist at the school. Miss Patchell was presented in an honors vocal recital near the end of the spring semester at the university. Earlier this year she was featured as a guest soloist with the Corpus Christi Symphony Orchestra and members of the Meistersingers of Edinburg, Tex. An alto, Miss Patchell was a member of the SWTSU choir which made a concert tour of Switzerland last summer. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. George Patchell of Midland.

Where some top performers here might cite only old-time country artists as their main musical influences, Reed, a fine guitarist, readily claims the late jazz guitarist Django Reinhardt as one of his. Mention Lenny Breau, an obscure, legendary Canadian known mainly to plectrum pros, and Reed lights up like Christmas: "Greatest guitar player I've ever heard, and I've heard some guitar players."

In short, Reed, a tanned, wiry native of Decatur, Ga., is among what Glen Campbell calls the "new breed" of country performers — artists equally at home not only in country music, but also jazz, blues and pop.

Like Campbell, who gave him his first network break on CBS in 1969, Reed is what you'd call a "crossover," a country performer accepted by country and noncountry music fans alike. Surprisingly, Reed doesn't want a weekly country music show of his own on network tv. "I don't like people to see it every time they want to see it," Reed said, sipping a cola drink in the small, eight-track office recording studio he uses to try out new song ideas or hear those of others. "I like to keep it important. Put it on network tv week in, week out, you're overdoin' it. The name of the ball game is going out and visiting those people. Fairs, concerts, that's where it's at."

Starring in specials is another matter, he said: "Now you're gettin' down to the nitty-gritty, talkin' my kind of language."

However, he laughed, "if I do a show, I'm going to call the shots because I'm the one who stands to lose the battle, the war. It'll be my head that'll roll or my career that'll suffer."

"The network'll always get another horse to ride."

Cattlemen Say They Face Disaster Unless Consumers Eat More Beef

By G. MICHAEL HARMON
KISSIMMEE, Fla. (AP) — supply and demand crisis faces a potentially disastrous more beef. Florida cattlemen say their industry consumers start eating a lot chase of more breeding stock they cut back on the calves they bought. Association, says prices will have to rise to between 40 and 50 cents a pound for calves before producers can again turn a profit.

Like their counterparts across the country, Wilson says he and other Florida cattlemen have been withholding calves from the depressed market, selling only enough to keep their heads above water. But Wilson says they can't hold on much longer.

"We are in a difficult position in Florida," he says. "We can't carry calves through the winter because we don't raise our own feed grain, and we can't afford the current prices for feed."

Former Journalist Turned Priest Likes Life The Way It Is

By RICHARD THOS. M. SEGERSON
MONONA, Wis. (AP) — One good thing can be said about news stories concerning dissatisfied ex-priests. They give some of us the impetus to reflect on our own priesthood. A recent article by Bill O'Shea, circulated by The Associated Press, did just that for me. It got me to thinking about the past 11 years of my life and helped me to realize once again how happy and satisfied I am as a priest.

definite advantages. This happy priest, incidentally, is a member of the class of 1967, like O'Shea. He experienced the gradual change to a freer seminary life as I did at Catholic University.

I gained many an insight by thinking about O'Shea's life and comparing it to mine. The first of these concerned the fact that I am almost the exact opposite of O'Shea. He described himself as a former priest turned journalist who looks back I am a former journalist turned priest who looks ahead.

We both agree that more freedom is good for seminarians and good for the priesthood. It gives young men a greater opportunity to associate with other people, to learn "what makes them tick," and a chance to develop a greater understanding and sympathy for people and their lives.

I obtained my degree in journalism from the University of Wisconsin in 1952 and worked as an editor of an employe magazine and as a radio newsmen for more than eight years. These were rather satisfying years for me because I usually had the feeling that I was doing something for other people — giving them a magazine to read or the news to hear.

I feel that I can speak for the majority of the 26 men from all parts of the country who make up my class of 1969 from Theological College, and I can honestly say that we came out of the seminary with a deeper understanding of and love for life, people, God, Jesus Christ, the Church and the priesthood. I am sure that the same thing is true of the four men who attended other seminaries and were ordained for the diocese of Madison with me.

Seminary training for me was a bit different than that experienced by men like O'Shea who was ordained in 1967. We were allowed more freedom and were not so "incubated," at least during the final years of study at Theological College of Catholic University in Washington D.C.

Some lay people still display the old "spoiled priest" syndrome and harshly criticize ex-priests without trying very hard to learn the reasons for their departure. For the majority of people, though, it is just an accepted part of life today and they go on quietly and as unconcerned as usual.

However, my first two years at Holy Apostles Seminary for Adult Vocations in Cromwell, Conn. were quite traditional without much freedom to come and go and with much Thomistic philosophy and Latin.

Voluntary workers from the Aeronautical Museum at Brentz, near Folkestone, southeast of London, found the plane about four miles from the former U.S. base at Manston. The remains of the plane were found 25 feet under the earth.

Even though I came to that environment from a rather free life, I actually enjoyed the confinement and probably would have left the seminary if it had not been that way. I needed this kind of life to give me my first real chance to discover a loving God and learn just what that kind of God meant for me personally.

Leonard Green, one of the recovery group, said "This is a mal steeped in skepticism and in drained of any religious sense." near-perfect condition and the tail assembly is complete. Then the federal government, faced with growing consumer complaints, slapped controls on beef prices at the retail level, upsetting the natural cycle of the supply and demand, Luttrell says.

"If the government hadn't stepped in, the increase in beef prices would have brought prices down anyway," says Don Kaplan of Bartow, who operates Florida's only major feedlot.

But even with the price freeze, consumer demand for beef declined as worldwide demand for feed grains increased, causing the price to feedlot operators to jump by more than 25 percent.

"Because of the increase in the cost of grain, the feedlot operator found he could not make money and pay 57 cents a pound for calves," Kaplan says.

Pat Wilson of Frostproof, president of the Cattlemen's Association, says prices will have to rise to between 40 and 50 cents a pound for calves before producers can again turn a profit.

"We haven't had a y cattle and land. Yet, but some of them are talking about it," says Jim Luttrell, executive vice president of the 6,000-member Florida Cattlemen's Association. "The crunch will come this winter."

And Florida cattlemen, like their counterparts across the country, responded to the increased prices by expanding their operation with the purchase of more breeding stock.

And while the price of calves was declining, inflation continued to push up the cost of doing business for the state's cattlemen.

Two years ago, wire for fencing cost $9 a roll," says Luttrell. "Today, it cost $36 a roll. Fertilizer needed to improve pastures has jumped from $50-to-$60 a ton to $100-to-$120 a ton."

"And the same thing has happened in the cost of grass seed, equipment and transportation to auction markets. Cattlemen just can't make a profit and operators, they certainly can't afford to lose money much longer."

"Say I pay 25 cents a pound for a calf that weighs 500 pounds," says Kaplan. "That's another 500 pounds before I can sell him. His cost in feed today is 40 cents a pound, or $200. That means I've got $325 in the animal. All I am getting from the meat packers is 35 cents a pound, or $350. That gives me a gross profit of $25. If I paid more than $125 for the calf, I just couldn't make it."

Wilson and Luttrell also urge supermarkets to promote beef sales through specials and price cuts, saying the only way to cut supplies and increase the price to cattlemen is to increase consumption.

"We can eat our way out of this crisis," Wilson says. "We have to convince consumers that meat is still a good buy."

Pat Seeks Privacy In Walking

By FRANCES LEWINE
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Late at night, when Pennsylvania Avenue is deserted, Pat Nixon sometimes leaves the White House to walk the quiet nearby streets.

Often she covers her blonde hair with a scarf so she won't be recognized, her daughter, Julie Nixon Eisenhower, reports.

The late-night walks, two or three times a week, are something new. In a Watergate-troubled time, the strolls offer the First Lady privacy, relaxation, an escape from the "hermetically sealed-in" and constantly bustling White House, says the youngest Nixon daughter.

Some evenings, Mrs. Nixon is joined by Julie. Others, she walks alone, save for the ever-present Secret Service agents.

Signs Of Strain
 Those close to the First Lady see the signs of Watergate strain.

She "feels very deeply about this," and sees in Watergate an attempt by some people to get "her husband's last pound of flesh," says a very close friend, Mrs. Helene Drown, who has known Pat Nixon for 35 years. They were teachers together at Whittier High School in California before the Nixons married.

"But I don't think Watergate has affected her any more than any crisis they've gone through in their lives," adds Mrs. Drown. "Pat Nixon's motto has always been: It's better to laugh than to cry."

The laughter, the good spirits are what the public usually sees. Hundreds of people who meet Mrs. Nixon in receiving lines find her a warm, friendly, smiling and responsive hostess.

"She goes merrily along as if nothing was happening," says Curator Clement Conger, who works with Mrs. Nixon to refurbish and replace White House furnishings.

"Hang In There, Baby"
 "She tries to relieve the tension," daughter Julie adds.

The First Lady's social secretary, Lucy Winchester, bears that out with a report about Mrs. Nixon carrying off a postcard showing a kitten clinging to a curtain rod. It was captioned, "Hang in there, baby." Mrs. Nixon took it to display in the President's bedroom.

The Nixons observed their 33rd wedding anniversary last Friday and Mrs. Nixon expects to observe two more as First Lady, Mrs. Drown says.

"She doesn't seem to think her term in the White House will be terminated."

Reporters think Mrs. Nixon, 62, is showing signs of strain and her press secretary, Helen Smith, admits that "it's a difficult time for her."

In the few times she has spoken out after being pressed by reporters, Mrs. Nixon has proclaimed "I'm full of faith and confidence... I'll have faith until I'm proven wrong."

When a reporter said, "This has been a hard year for you and you seem to be holding up marvelously... what is it that sustains you?" Mrs. Nixon responded:

"The truth sustains me, because I have great faith in my husband. He's an honorable, dedicated person. And when you know the truth, you have nothing to fear. I have a very positive outlook."

While criticism mounts against Nixon, almost nothing is said against his wife and partner in 28 years of national politics.

Except for the fact that she was a widely co-signer of the income tax returns on which Nixon was found to owe $476,000, Mrs. Nixon has not been linked personally to any of the President's Watergate-related problems.

Reads Transcripts
 Mrs. Nixon disclosed recently that she has read all of the published Watergate transcripts. "It takes 9 to 12 hours," she said.

Mrs. Drown says Mrs. Nixon felt that the Presidential tapes should have been considered "like personal, sensitive diaries... never to be released to anyone."

Julie Eisenhower, frequently the family spokesman on Watergate, has described her mother as "able to take things with a grain of salt. She's very philosophical and I guess she finds she can hold up under all this because she loves my father and believes in him."

It was a year ago that Mrs. Nixon expressed her faith and confidence in her husband on Watergate. When someone gave her a copy of a weekly Pennsylvania newspaper during a reception, she joked, "Well, I don't see Watergate on the front page. Something's wrong here."

Since publication of the transcripts, Mrs. Nixon is less inclined to joke about Watergate.

Once friendly and relaxed with reporters, she has become irritable with them.

"I'll pray for the press," she flung over her shoulder in turning aside questions on one White House occasion.

Mrs. Nixon reportedly is distressed at the news media's constant efforts to get her to discuss Watergate at social events.

"She wants to focus on the positive," Mrs. Smith explains. Mrs. Drown adds that Mrs. Nixon has complained to her that reporters ignored events at the White House and she wishes they would give more recognition to volunteers and other groups she entertains.

Just as President Nixon has sought friendly audiences for his public appearances lately, Mrs. Nixon also entertains apparently supportive groups.

Lots Of Mail
 Sometimes as often as three afternoons a week, she will have two events on her calendar to greet such visitors as the Daughters of the American Revolution or wives of a doctor's group.

Though she once traveled across the country promoting volunteer work, Mrs. Nixon now confines her efforts to meeting groups in the Washington area. Since the fall of 1971, her travels in the U.S. have been limited solely to trips with the President.

There seems to be general agreement that Mrs. Nixon spends an unusual amount of time on her mail, which is said to average as much as 3,000 to 4,000 letters a week.

She works an estimated four or five hours a day at it.

Julie says her mother is "a compulsive worker" and often spends four hours at night on her mail, staying up after an official dinner party.

Some associates think Mrs. Nixon works too hard. But Mrs. Drown explains "she's a perfectionist" and she "cares about people."

Opens Up White House
 When she first came to the White House, Mrs. Nixon promised to open it to as many people as possible — not just "big shots." And she has kept that promise, claiming to have entertained more Americans at social events and worship services than any other First Family.

"Meeting people" is the thing Mrs. Nixon says she likes best about being First Lady.

The First Lady sleeps only a few hours at night: is up and about at 7:30 a.m. Mrs. Drown explains that from Pat's early years — she was orphaned as a teen-ager — "she had no time to lounge around."

Reporters rarely hear of Mrs. Nixon seeing friends other than Mrs. Drown, whose husband is a publisher's distributor, and Louise Thompson Johnson, another old friend from Whittier days, whose husband for years was an oil company representative in Washington.

"But Julie says her mother has 'a nice circle of friends. I wish she'd see them more often.'"

Hearing Slated On Extradition Of Accused Pair
 SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Two Texas men charged with murder in the death of the wife of one of the men were to have a court hearing today to determine if they should be extradited to New Orleans where the woman was killed.

Samuel C. Corey, 39, and Claudius James Giesick, 26, surrendered Tuesday on arrest warrants after Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe approved their extradition.

Their lawyers said Wednesday they will fight the extradition unless their clients' $250,000 bonds are lowered. The lawyers also indicated they will challenge the validity of the arrest warrants.

Corey and Giesick are charged with second degree murder in the hit-and-run death of Patricia Ann Giesick. Mrs. Giesick is a former masseuse at one of Corey's massage parlors in the Dallas area.

The Giesicks has been married two weeks when Mrs. Giesick was struck and killed by an automobile Jan. 16 on a New Orleans street. The car did not stop.

The case was first ruled accidental but reopened when it was learned Giesick had taken out a $300,000 life insurance policy on wife just prior to her death.

Summer College For High School Dancers To Start Up On July 8

MILLBROOK, N.Y. (AP) — A summer "college" for high school dancers is the idea of age the chance to see what Bennett College and New York University.

The two schools will open a special six-week program July 8 to give students 13 to 16 years of age the chance to see what it is like to pursue a dancing career while seeking a college degree.

"It is very important that young people discover at an early age the degree of aptitude and commitment that will be necessary to succeed in company on the campus of dance," says J. Michael Miller, associate dean of NYU's School of Professional Studies. The teen-age pupils will train with NYU's professional dance company on the campus of Bennett College.

Chamber Meeting Time Of Recognition

It was a time of recognition when directors of the Midland Chamber of Commerce met for their monthly luncheon Wednesday in the Petroleum Club. A resolution commending Midland Community Theatre for its accomplishments in national and international theater circles was presented by Jerry Fullinwider, president of the Midland Arts Council.

The resolution was presented on behalf of the chamber board to MCT managing director Art Cole, president of the MCT board of governors LaDoyce Lambert and Jim Salners. Salners was recognized for winning the best actor award at last month's drama festival in Dundalk, Ireland, at which the Cole was named best producer in competition with plays singing "The Eyes of Texas" and also performed at half-time. Harrell Feldt, chairman of the chamber's Sports Committee, noted that the Lee choir, which will be one of the spotlighted choirs at an international music festival in Vienna, Austria, next month, benefited from proceeds of ticket sales in Midland to the game. About $1,000 was raised to help defray expenses of the choir's trip to Austria, Feldt said.

The choir still needs about $12,000 to completely pay for the trip, but director Henry Sellers said, "It's secure, we're going to do it."

Sellers also told chamber directors that the Lee choir had been selected to sing a special concert for the minister of culture of Austria and that the choir is searching for an appropriate gift for the minister.

Louisiana City Can Rate Tv Programs By Water Pressure

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — The boys at the Lafayette waterworks don't need television to know when it's halftime during the Monday night football game. They say they have a sure-fire method of measuring TV audiences—the bathroom habits of tube addicts. Jim Love, water department superintendent, says a graph until 9 p.m. when the gauging water pressure in the city dips during the commercials and plunges at show's end when viewers trek to the toilet.

Love said viewers apparently answer nature's call any time during less interesting shows, but he says the night "Airport" was playing "viewer interest increased to a point where the television commercials show up as regularly spaced, but radical, drops in water pressure." "At approximately 8:30, a bomb exploded in the airplane on the screen, and from then until 9 p.m. when the pilot gauging water pressure in the city dips during the commercials and plunges at show's end when viewers trek to the toilet.

Severe Flooding Causes Heavy Damage In Florida

By The Associated Press — Flooding had caused at least $12 million damage in the St. Petersburg-Tampa area alone as downpours continued into a fourth day today along Central Florida's Gulf Coast. Thunderstorms also damped the rest of the Eastern Seaboard. Fair weather prevailed over most of the nation west of the Appalachians. More than 2 inches of rain fell at St. Petersburg in a 24-hour period Wednesday, and McDill Air Force Base near Tampa measured 10 inches in the same period. Two tornadoes were sighted near St. Petersburg. After surveying the areas of worst flooding in Pinellas County, Gov. Reubin Askew said he was fairly confident the area would be declared a disaster area.

Love never has compared the graph's accuracy to that of the regular television survey outfits, but he chuckles at the thought of some irate politician whose opponent got a bigger dip in water pressure. "And now, fellow Americans, here's Congressman Blah—first in war, first in peace and first on the PSI poll."

M-Cubs-El Paso Action

SAFE AT SECOND—El Paso Diablos second baseman Gerry Remy is late with tag on Midland's Bill Droeg as he steals second in fourth inning of Wednesday's Texas League baseball game at Cubs Stadium. El Paso rallied in late innings to beat Midland, 11-4, and square series at 1-1. Midland concludes its homestand at 7:45 p.m. today against El Paso.

Diablos Square Series

Cubs' Bullpen Victim Of Stampede

By TED BATTLES
What started out as a delightful evening, with Midland jumping to a 4-0 lead in the third, ended distastefully when El Paso scored clusters of four runs in the seventh and eighth innings to beat the Cubs 11-4 in a Texas League game at Cubs Stadium before 1,000 Odessa Night fans.

Mike Weiss blanked the Diablos for five innings and was victim of a gift run in the sixth, but when the righthander ran out of gas in the seventh, the dormant El Paso bats came to life with vengeance against the bullpen.

Dave Collins and ex-LSU quarterback Mike Miley led the surge. Collins knocked in three runs with a triple and two singles while Miley lashed two triples and a single for two rbi.

Don Kirkwood, 6-2, survived a four-run Midland third to get the win as the Diablos squared the series. However, the tall righthander almost didn't get out of the third.

Midland's Bill Droeg climaxed a four-run surge with a two-run double and the Cubs had the bases loaded and with only one out when he finally got Steve Clancy, the ninth batter of the inning, to hit into a double play.

After that Kirkwood blanked the Cubs on four hits.

Bill Bright did manage to extend his consecutive game hitting streak to 12 with a fifth-inning single.

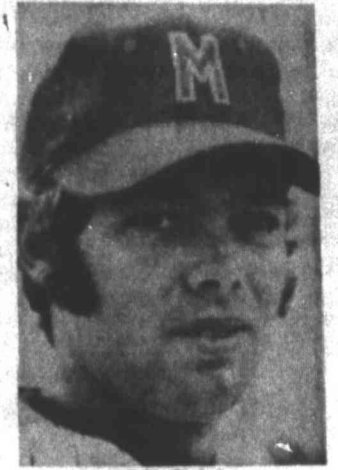

1D-THURSDAY, JUNE 27, 1974

Weiss had a two-hit shutout and a 4-0 lead going into the sixth when the Diablos scored a fluke run. Dave Collins singled to center, took second on an infield out and came home when left fielder Droeg and shortstop Al Zavala went into an Alfonso-Gaston act and the ball fell for a double. With two out, Collins scored easily. Then in the seventh, a walk to Dan Beerbower and Rocky Jordan's double to left-center knocked Weiss out of the box. Francisco Lopez was tagged for a single up-the-middle by Gerry Remy and Collins delivered a two-run triple that brought Paul Zahn out of the bullpen.

Miley's single to center put El Paso in front 5-4 before Zahn got out of it. The Diablos added four clinching runs in the eighth on Remy's single after a walk. Collins single inside third, Mike Miley drilled his second triple to right-center and an error.

Cubs Wind Up Homestand Tonight

CUB BRIEFS — Midland winds up its current homestand with a 7:45 p.m. game against El Paso today in Cubs Stadium and Manager Walt Dixon will send Dan Corder, 3-2, against the Diablos. El Paso pilot Dave Garcia will counter with lefty Jim Officer, 4-4. The Cubs go on the road for series at Amarillo and El Paso before returning home for a big series against San Antonio, starting July 5. . . . Al Zavala's arrival from Wichita relieved the Cubs' shortage of infielders and Wayne Tyrone was back in the lineup at third base. . . . Zavala arrived at 3 p.m. Wednesday and collected a couple of hits. . . . Tyrone, out with a cut finger Tuesday, was eager to get back in the lineup, "I pulled the stitches out myself." . . . El Paso second baseman Gerry Remy, Somerset, Mass., was named Topps' Texas League Player for the month of May after hitting .364 and collecting 14 doubles. . . . Jackie Brandt is out as manager of the Alexandria Aces. . . .

Rookies May Get Break

Miley Outcast After Signing Baseball Pact

When Mike Miley signed a baseball contract with the California Angels organization, he did so at the risk of alienating friends and family.

In Louisiana, a guy could lose his state citizenship and be banished from the premises for life for what Mike did.

You see, Mike had a year of eligibility left at Louisiana State University. If it were just baseball involved, Mike's signing wouldn't have been considered a "treasonable" offense, but it so happens, he was the starting quarterback on the Tiger football team as well.

And as everyone knows, football is as much of a religion in Baton Rouge as it is in West Texas. When Miley passed up his senior year, Watergate became yesterday's news, conceding to more pertinent problems.

Coach Charlie McClelland groaned, "Why can't baseball wait until a boy's class graduates like football does?"

Mike, who is playing shortstop for the El Paso Diablos, says he suspected what the reaction might be. "I'm just glad I got out of the state in a hurry. Still, they were pretty unhappy about it in Shreveport."

Miley had some pretty good reasons for signing, $9,500 of 'em in bonus money.

"But there was more to it than that. I figured my size was against me as a pro football quarterback," said the six-foot Miley. "And if I was going to play pro baseball, I figured I'd better get at it."

Mike was originally drafted as a high school senior by Cincinnati, but went the

Battle Scene

By Ted Battles

football route and figured to guide an outstanding LSU team this fall.

Miley probably would have broke into pro ball with either Salinas (California) or Quad Cities (Midwest), but an injury in Salt Lake City gave Mike his chance in El Paso.

Shortstop Rudy Meoli suffered an injury so Orlando Ramirez was called up to the AAA club and Mike debuted with El Paso. Although he already has three homers, he claims he's still feeling his way at the plate. "I'm hitting around .250."

Miley played semipro ball with Midland's Jerry Tabb at Boulder, Colo., knows Cub outfielder Bill Bright from LSU days and was a teammate of Arkansas pitcher Randy Wiles.

At LSU, he was a football teammate of former Midland High quarterback Paul Lyons, who made a benchwarmer of Bert Jones, and former Midland Lee quarterback Pat Lyons, who will be one of the candidates for his vacated quarterback post this fall.

"Pat has a lot of potential, but he also has a lot of competition," Miley appraises. "He was running No. 3 after spring drills." But LSU's quarterback problems aren't his worry anymore. . . . just his batting average and maybe a pardon from the governor of Louisiana.

Strike Will Help Grid Newcomers

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
DALLAS (AP) — Gil Brandt, a vice president for the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League, says a veteran's player strike "would be the greatest thing in the world that could happen to rookies coming to camp."

Brandt said that in the NFL Player's strike of 1970 some 250 rookies made teams in the American and National Conferences.

"Baltimore had 10 rookies on its team when it won the Super Bowl from us that year," Brandt said. "The rookies included Norm Bulaich, Billy Newsome and Jim O'Brien, who kicked the field goal that beat us."

Brandt said Dallas had 17 players that year on the rookie roster who ended up playing professional football—10 of them on the Cowboy Super Bowl V runnerup team.

"There's no doubt that the extended time in camp helped the rookies in their chance to make the team," Brandt said. "I guess Reggie Rucker, Cliff Harris, Duane Thomas, Pat Toomay, and Charlie Waters were the better players who made our team. There was also John Fitzgerald, now a regular center, and Mark Washington, hampered by injuries through most of his career."

Brandt said Miami had 12 first-year players in 1970 some of which formed the nucleus for the Dolphin back-to-back Super Bowl champions of the past two seasons.

He said "Buffalo had 18 first-year men who played for them in 1970. All through the league, there were a lot of guys who were lower round choices that made it."

Brandt's 1970 figures, of course, were compiled to serve as a warning flag to NFL veterans considering a possible strike before camp opens in July.

"When you have a strike, the door swings open for someone else," Brandt said.

Brandt said, "Anytime you have 10 rookies on your roster it's quite a thing and could happen again if there is an extended strike."

The Cowboys are touching all bases, preparing for a possible strike.

The club issued a statement Wednesday, announcing continuous tryout camps in Dallas and Ocala, Calif., and in Dallas for free agents. The tryout on the campus of California Lutheran College will begin Saturday, June 29, and run through Saturday, July 6. Another camp will begin Tuesday, July 2, and run through Saturday, July 6 on the campus of Southern Methodist University.

There's one stipulation for the possible Sunday heroes in this day of economic cutbacks: "Each player should bring his own workout equipment. . . . The Cowboys will have none available for loan."

Tonic For Minnesota

Rangers Good For What Ails Twins

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Rangers seem to be just the tonic the struggling Minnesota Twins need in the American League West.

"It's been a long time since we've won a series," said Twin manager Frank Quilici after Wednesday night's 9-4 victory over the Rangers. "In fact, it's been exactly a month—against Texas."

Minnesota took two out of three from the Rangers, mauling Texas manager Billy Martin's pitching staff for 42 hits, including 14 hits Wednesday night.

Tony Oliva collected four

RBI's in the outburst. He banged a three-run homer off loser Jim Bibby (10-10) in the first inning and added an RBI single in a three-run second inning.

"This is a hard infield and some of our hits would have been outs in Minnesota," Quilici said. "It's as tough an infield as we play on."

Vic Albury picked up the victory but Quilici was beaming over the relief work of Bill Hands, who allowed only two hits in three and two-thirds inning.

"It was his fifth strong outing in relief, and I think we'll start him next Sunday against Chicago," Quilici added.

Quilici said, "I guess I was selfish in putting Hands in the bullpen but we had to have somebody in there who was a stopper."

For Albury it was his third victory in 10 decisions. He gave up eight walks.

Texas' Don Stanhouse pitched seven innings of five-hit shutout ball in relief then was told he was going to the minors.

The Rangers decided before the game that Stanhouse would be sent to Spokane of the AAA Pacific Coast League for Stan Thomas, who has a 1-0 win-loss record and a 2.77 earned run average.

Only they didn't tell Stanhouse until after the game.

There was no comment from Stanhouse after the game about the turn of events.

For the sagging Rangers, it was their fifth loss in the last seven games and gave them a 7-7 ledger on a long home stand.

Eastern, Tower Post Wins In National LL

N. Central, Central To See Action

Eastern and Tower posted opening round victories Wednesday afternoon in the City National Little League Baseball Tourney at Henderson Park. Eastern blasted Western, 18-6 and Tower took an 8-2 victory over the Northern League.

Central and North Central drew first round byes, but were to be in action today in the big tourney.

Eastern pounded out 10 hits to Western's four with Woodie Johnson the winning pitcher while Jimmy Owens was the loser.

Johnson was effective in striking out six batters and added his own count with a double and three runs-batted-in.

Shane Kail and Ty Robertson combined for a double play for the Western nine.

Mike Coble went all the way for the Tower Orioles in tossing a five-hitter. Cole walked one and fanned four of the Northern Huskies.

Devin Ainsop of the Huskies had a double while Kevin Jezek had a two-bagger for the Orioles who took on North Central in today's action. Eastern tangles with North Central in the other game.

Tower had seven hits off Buddy Ritchie and Richie Haynes. The winners turned a double play from Coble to first baseman Terry Weir after Coble caught a line drive.

Holland Looks Unbeatable

By COLIN FROST

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Can anything stop Johnny Cruyff and his team of flying Dutchmen? That's the question at soccer's 1974 World Cup, and the answer, according to Argentine Coach Vladislav Cap, is no.

Cap saw his men take a 4-0 beating from Cruyff and Holland Wednesday night and said later of the Dutchmen: "They are the finest team I have ever seen."

The accent was on the word team. Many critics, and many coaches, thought that when they came here, Holland would prove a one-man band, with Cruyff the only thoroughbred.

It hasn't worked that way. However, Cruyff, with two goals against the Argentinians, remains the outstanding personality of this world cup.

He is quick to point out that Holland's results have been built on teamwork.

After rows in camp, mainly over money, the club has settled down to playing a team game.

Cruyff pinpointed this after the 4-1 victory over Bulgaria in the first round. "We are now playing like Ajax at their best," he told newsmen.

Cruyff played for Ajax before his record-breaking transfer to Barcelona last year. The Dutch team is packed with Ajax players, and Cruyff has settled quickly into a devastating partnership with his former clubmate, Johnny Rep.

With Cruyff's team heading for the top of Group A in this eight-team second round, Holland could face West Germany in the final at Munich's Olympic Stadium July 7.

The West Germans beat the powerful Yugoslavs 2-0 at Dusseldorf.

Manager Helmut Schoen brought in Ulf Hoessgen as a second half substitute, and he revitalized the German attack and set up a goal late in the game.

Socializing Ends, Competition Begins

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — International socializing will turn into on-the-field competition Friday when United States and Russian teen-agers begin seeking track and field victories for themselves and their countries.

The competition is restricted to men 19 or younger and women 18 or younger.

It will be third annual junior meet involving the men. The Soviets won the first meet in 1972 at Sacramento, Calif., 124-108, and the United States won last year at Odessa, USSR, 123-108.

In the first meeting between the women last year, the Russians won 74-71.

The teams were feted this week at a fish fry, barbecue and rodeo, and reception at the governor's mansion.

Both teams were outfitted in cowboy hats and blue jeans.

"It's just friendly competition," said Russian high jumper Sergei Senjukov.

American athletes include National Collegiate Athletic Association long jump champion Jerry Herndon, a UCLA freshman; another freshman, Ohio State's Tom Byers, who will run the 1,500 meters after winning that event and the 800 meters in qualifying races.

Lebanon May Ask Arabs To Renew Oil Cutbacks

By The Associated Press
Lebanon has decided to ask the Arab countries to reimpose oil production cutbacks if Israel continues to attack Palestinian positions in Lebanon in reprisal for guerrilla raids, the right-wing Beirut newspaper Al-Jarida reported today.

The paper said Lebanese Premier Takkiedin Solh will make the request at the emergency meeting of the Arab League defense council called in Cairo Monday to discuss the Israeli raids into Lebanon.

The council is made up of defense and foreign ministers of the league's 21 member states. A government spokesman said the premier was heading the Lebanese delegation to help impress on the conference "the urgent need for collective and effective Arab action to deter Israel."

The spokesman declined to comment on the report that Solh would seek renewal of the oil war.

Arab gunners and Israeli forces traded artillery fire across the Lebanese border on the western slopes of Mt. Hermon today, the Israeli military command said.

A communique said several mortar shells were fired from Lebanese territory at the Har Dov sector and fire was returned. No Israeli casualties were reported, the command said.

The Lebanese territory below Har Dov is controlled by the Palestinian guerrillas.

Three out of four Israelis believe the bombing of terrorist bases in Lebanon should continue, a public opinion poll indicated today.

So far, however, there has been no air action in retaliation for the Palestinian raid Tuesday in the town of Nahariyya in which four Israelis were killed.

Kennedy Criticizes Health Insurance Bill Backed By Nixon Administration

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., says a government-administered health insurance program is needed because private insurance companies have aggravated the nation's health care problems.

"The people's need for health is at war with the insurance industry's need for profit," Kennedy said Wednesday in criticizing an administration-backed health insurance bill.

Casper Weinberger, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, contended that the bill cosponsored by Kennedy and Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., would create a new bureaucracy of 25,000 to 45,000 persons to handle federalized health insurance.

He said the costs of such a bureaucracy "would approach the total administrative costs of the private health insurance industry." The Nixon administration's proposal would have private firms handle the national health insurance plan, under federal and state direction.

Both Kennedy said his bill and the administration's would each cost about $40 billion. He said that while the Kennedy-Mills measure would boost payroll taxes by about 4 per cent, the administration's proposal for mandatory insurance premiums amounts to "nothing but a disguised and hidden tax."

Congress is unlikely to pass any national health insurance bill this year, Kennedy said.

He added, however, that a "far-reaching bill can be sent to the President for his signature in the next year or two" if the administration remains committed to the concept.

Coca-Cola, Soviets Ink Agreement

MOSCOW (AP) — The Coca-Cola Co. signed a cooperation agreement with the Soviet Union Wednesday that includes the joint development of enriched nutritional foods, processing of tea products and production of various kinds of beverages.

The agreement will not introduce the familiar green bottle to the Soviets, however. A statement issued by the Soviet government and Coca-Cola said the American company's chairman, J. Paul Austin, has held discussions with Soviet officials about the possibilities of producing soft drinks in the Soviet Union.

Another American soft drink, Pepsi-Cola, is now produced in a Soviet bottling plant near the Black Sea. In return, Pepsi is marketing Soviet vodka and sparkling wines in the United States.

The Coke agreement also covers joint research and experiments in the growing of vegetables and fruits in wastelands, swamps and arid areas, as well as other kinds of environmental farming the statement said.

Austin signed the agreement with the chairman of the Soviet Committee for Science and Technology.

Rocket Launchings Again Postponed

WALLOPS ISLAND, Va. (AP) — Mother nature and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration fought another round today over the launching of 54 test rockets. NASA was the loser.

A NASA spokesman said the launchings were postponed for the fourth consecutive day because of cloudy skies.

The rockets, when they are launched, will test the upper atmosphere. In doing so, they also will light up the skies with a series of glowing clouds visible from Florida to Massachusetts.

Although a spokesman space agency would continue to schedule the launchings on a day-to-day basis contingent on twice-daily weather briefings, the National Weather Service-forecast cloudy conditions until the weekend.

NASA is working under a Monday deadline, the cutoff date for the launchings. If they aren't sent off by then, they will be rescheduled for later in the year.

The sequence of shots, which will continue for a 24-hour period, are now scheduled to begin at 12:50 p.m. EDT Friday, contingent on a weather briefing at 3:30 p.m. today.

NASA scientists called off the launching of a single rocket set for Wednesday night which was to have provided prelaunch information. It was rescheduled for 9:10 p.m. today.

The rockets, when launched, are expected to light up the sky beginning at twilight with clouds of pinkish-orange, fiery red, yellow-green and pinkish-white hues.

National Hookers Convention Held

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The first national convention ever staged by members of the world's oldest profession was a one-night stand in a church.

More than 300 persons paid up to $5 apiece Wednesday night to crowd into the sanctuary of Glide Memorial Methodist Church for the first national hookers' convention.

They applauded a three-hour program that ranged from bawdy songs to belly dancing to serious appeals for legalized prostitution.

The audience was made up mainly of young men and women sympathetic to the hookers' plight and included far more press than prostitutes. Most of the plunging necklines and outlandish hairdos were sported by men.

The festive affair was the brainchild of Margo St. James, a 36-year-old former prostitute who founded a local hookers' union called Coyote. She said the group was named for the crafty, promiscuous wild animal and also stands for "Call Off Your Old Tired Ethics."

Jean Powell, head of a Coyote-offshoot called Prostitutes of New York, said inflation and high unemployment was "making prostitution an economic necessity for many of the 20,000 known hookers in New York City."

The department's antitrust division had hoped for a Supreme Court decision blocking certain big bank mergers that the department considers potentially harmful to millions of bank customers.

The antitrust division prefers to see communities served by several banks and financial institutions aggressively wooing consumers with such things as free checking accounts, quick service on home mortgages and a willingness to make relatively high-risk consumer loans.

But the court Wednesday ruled against the department and paved the way for a major Seattle bank to take over a major Spokane bank.

Deputy Asst. Atty. Gen. Donald I. Baker said the decision does not mean the department will abandon efforts to block similar mergers with civil suits alleging violations of the antitrust law.

He said the department may turn greater attention to other ways of discouraging such mergers.

Dubbed "Operation Ground Assist," the 30-day project is designed to heighten safety awareness among pilots, mechanics, and supervisory personnel during the planning and other preparatory phases of flight before the pilot gets airborne. Visits will be conducted by FAA field personnel during peak hours of operation, including evenings, holidays and weekends, when exposure is greatest and most accidents occur. As many airports as possible will be covered, particularly recreational area airports, airports featuring fly-in events, and large airports having personal aircraft areas.

MANGUM, Okla. (AP) — Fearful Greer County residents searched today for a 225-pound jaguar that broke through its welded wire mesh cage about noon Wednesday at a wild animal breeding farm a mile west of town.

Geronimo, the 4-year-old cat, was purchased from the Holiday Island Zoo in Arkansas last week and brought here Tuesday by Mangum hotel owner Ruby Foster.

Mrs. Foster, who also keeps a leopard and a cougar on her 22-acre farm, said she bought Geronimo for what she hopes eventually will be an exotic animal breeding farm and zoo.

Tulsa animal handler Frank Reddie, who is associated with the animal farm project, noticed the big cat was missing shortly after its noon feeding.

Prison Reform Attempt Loses In Third High Court Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled Wednesday that prisoners do not have the right to have lawyers and a court spokesman said justices may issue orders then.

In another decision Wednesday, the court handed Justice Department trustbusters a setback with a 5-3 ruling upholding bank mergers in the states of Washington and Connecticut.

In the prison rights case, the court extended to prisoners some but not all of the constitutional guarantees of fair treatment which it had previously said must be provided in parole and probation hearings.

"Though his rights may be diminished, a prisoner is not wholly stripped of constitutional protections," Justice Byron R. White wrote for the majority. "There is no iron curtain drawn between the Constitution and the prisons of this country."

The court said a prisoner is entitled to written notice 24 hours in advance of his hearing, stating the reason for it and the evidence against him.

It said he should be allowed to call witnesses and present evidence "when permitting him to do so will not be unduly hazardous to institutional safety or correctional goals."

"Prison officials must have the necessary discretion to keep the hearing within reasonable limits and to refuse to call witnesses that may create a risk of reprisal or undermine authority," White wrote.

The opinion said allowing cross-examination would create "considerable potential for havoc inside the prison walls" and the presence of lawyers "would inevitably give the proceedings a more adversary cast and tend to reduce their utility as a means to further correctional goals."

In the case of an illiterate inmate or one faced with an unusually complex issue, however, the court said he should be allowed legal aid from the staff or a fellow prisoner.

Alvin J. Bronstein, an attorney for the National Prison Project of the American Civil Liberties Union Foundation, called the decision "a step backward which is going to create growing tension and problems for both prisoners and prison officials."

Bronstein said about half of the states now permit cross-examination as well as the unrestricted right to present witnesses, and more than half a dozen states permit legal counsel or provide substitutes such as law students.

Justice Thurgood Marshall agreed with the majority that states should not be required to assume duties as general manager of the Inn of the Golden West July 1.

McGehee resigned as executive director of the Odessa Chamber of Commerce's Conventions and Visitors Bureau—a position he has held for almost a year and a half. He will replace John Martin, who resigned as the Inn's manager in May to become manager of the Hilton Inn in Amarillo.

Inn of the Golden West owner Tom Roden made the announcement.

Before moving to Odessa, McGehee served as director of sales and public relations for the Gunter Hotel in San Antonio. He previously was manager of the convention department of the San Antonio Chamber of Commerce.

Teen Cigarette Smoking Increases
KANSAS CITY (AP) — Cigarette smoking among girls between the ages of 12 and 17 has been increasing while the rest of the population has cut back, says Dr. Luther Terry.

Terry is the former U.S. surgeon general who issued the historic report on smoking and health 10 years ago.

Terry said Wednesday that 15 years ago the incidence of smoking among girls was one-tenth as frequent as among boys the same age but that in the last two or three years have caught up with boys in intensity.

Standards Proposed On Diagnostic Kits
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration has proposed the first federal performance standards on glucose diagnostic kits used to measure blood sugar and detect diabetes.

The FDA said recent studies have disclosed that many of the more than 60 glucose tests now on the market are unreliable, leading to misdiagnosis of diabetes and delayed or inaccurate prescribing of insulin.

Justice Rebuffed In Try To Block Big Bank Mergers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department is searching for new ways to guarantee consumers the opportunity to shop around for the best deal in bank services.

The department's antitrust division had hoped for a Supreme Court decision blocking certain big bank mergers that the department considers potentially harmful to millions of bank customers.

The antitrust division prefers to see communities served by several banks and financial institutions aggressively wooing consumers with such things as free checking accounts, quick service on home mortgages and a willingness to make relatively high-risk consumer loans.

Mayors' New Chief Eyes Detente With President

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The new president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors has invited President Nixon to establish a reconciliation with city leaders and create "a domestic detente" on the urban front.

San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto, a Democrat, said the problems of the cities demand as much attention from the President as do international affairs.

Alioto took over leadership of the conference Wednesday from Norfolk Mayor Roy B. Martin Jr., also a Democrat, at the conclusion of the organization's 42nd annual meeting.

New Orleans Mayor Moon Landrieu was named vice president and Kenneth Gibson of Newark, N.J., was elected chairman of the advisory board, putting him third in line for the presidency.

If tradition is followed, Gibson will take over in 1976 as the conference's first black president.

The 350 mayors also asked both Nixon and the Congress to continue the New Federalism by re-enacting general revenue sharing at least a year before its expiration in 1976.

They called for an end to impoundment by the President of congressionally appropriated funds and sought quick passage of an $11.3 billion housing and community development act and $18 billion in transit subsidies over the next five years.

Administration emissaries to the conference said that was more money than the cities were likely to get in view of the battle against inflation through federal budget restraints.

The major debate Wednesday came over how future revenue sharing funds should be distributed: Under the current population formula or on a basis of need.

Dallas Mayor Wes Wise led a coalition of the major growth cities in defeating a move to ask Congress to give a bigger share of federal aid to cities which can demonstrate a greater need for the funds because of more acute poverty, blight and other factors.

Alioto declared that the cities have been orphans who still have to beg for help "while one Arab nation is promised unhesitatingly $100 million in economic aid and Israel and Egypt are offered untold millions in nuclear capability."

"The national administration persists in its apparent ignorance of the debt—the continuing debt—owed to the cities of this nation."

Then he moderated his tone, saying he wanted to work with the President as spokesman for the mayors, not bicker with him.

Alioto said he would invite Nixon to come to San Francisco in September for the formal opening of the final link in the Bay Area Rapid Transit system and hoped to confer with the President at the White House at least twice in the coming year.

Sunbathing In Buff Becoming Way Of Life At Venice, Calif.

By DAN BERGER beach in this Los Angeles district. The guys and gals have been taking off their clothes and authorities have been looking the other way.

"We've told the police that if the activity is pure nudity and nothing else... we don't feel there's any violation of state law and we have no desire to make arrests," said Asst. Los Angeles City Atty. Dave Perez. Councilman Arthur Snyder is trying to change things, however. He asked the Los Angeles city attorney's office to draft legislation this week and today the Police, Fire and Civil Defense Committee holds a public hearing on a proposed ordinance prohibiting beach nudity. Snyder heads the committee.

Even with committee approval, the bill would require at least 10 votes of the 15-member council to become law. Sources close to City Hall feel the bill hasn't got the necessary votes.

4,000 Naked Bathers

Steigley, 23, said Wednesday that more than 10,000 bathers and sightseers flocked last Sunday to his stretch of Venice sands, a flat, open beach adjacent to a residential area.

"Yeah, it was wall-to-wall people from this station to that one, over there," he said, gesturing 400 yards north. "I'd say about 4,000 of 'em were naked."

Katie, a shapely, 24-year-old waitress, explained why she likes bathing in the buff:

"You've always wanted to take your clothes off because it feels so free, but you always had the fear of being snatched up and thrown in jail," she said. "But it's just the greatest feeling to swim without a halter and sit on the sand without having that wet thing around you."

'Few Creeps, Geeks'

Katie said she gets accosted more than in the past and "sure, there are a few creeps and geeks who just stare, but I just say they've got problems. And there are people who say we'll get raped. Well, there are too many people around here for that to happen."

An attractive 17-year-old girl, also sans clothing, said:

"I've always wanted to take my clothes off at the beach because I like the feeling. But where I'm from, Queens, N.Y., you wouldn't think of doing such a thing. But once you do it the first time here, you notice everyone doing it and then it's easy."

Texas High Court Will Hear Alpine Dentist's Case

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court decided Wednesday to hear if a full trial is necessary on whether an Alpine dentist was justified in killing a college student who allegedly was stealing his car battery.

The high court will hear the case after it returns from its summer recess in early October.

An Alpine trial court threw out the $200,000 suit by the parents of Robert Howsley, who was shot to death by Dr. Harvey Gilliam the night of Oct. 26, 1971.

The El Paso Court of Civil Appeals affirmed the trial court decision, ruling that the justifiable homicide law clearly applied to the case and barred trial of the Howsleys' suit.

The law says one may kill to prevent theft at night.

In another case the Supreme Court granted $1 million in damages to a Houston woman, Elnora Spriggs Williams, who sued General Motors Corp. for allegedly designing a defective steering coupling on her 1963 Chevrolet.

She suffered injuries which cost her the use of both arms and legs when her car crashed into a guardrail on Interstate 10. She said she was approaching a "tenny-weeny curve" when she shifted her position slightly and the steering wheel spun "around like a top."

An auto mechanic, Lavert Larue, testified that the lock ring, a safety device to keep the coupling together, was missing and apparently had been missing for some time.

General Motors contended that such mechanical failures resulted from ordinary wear and usage. The car was six years old when the April 12, 1969 accident occurred and had approximately 60,000 miles.

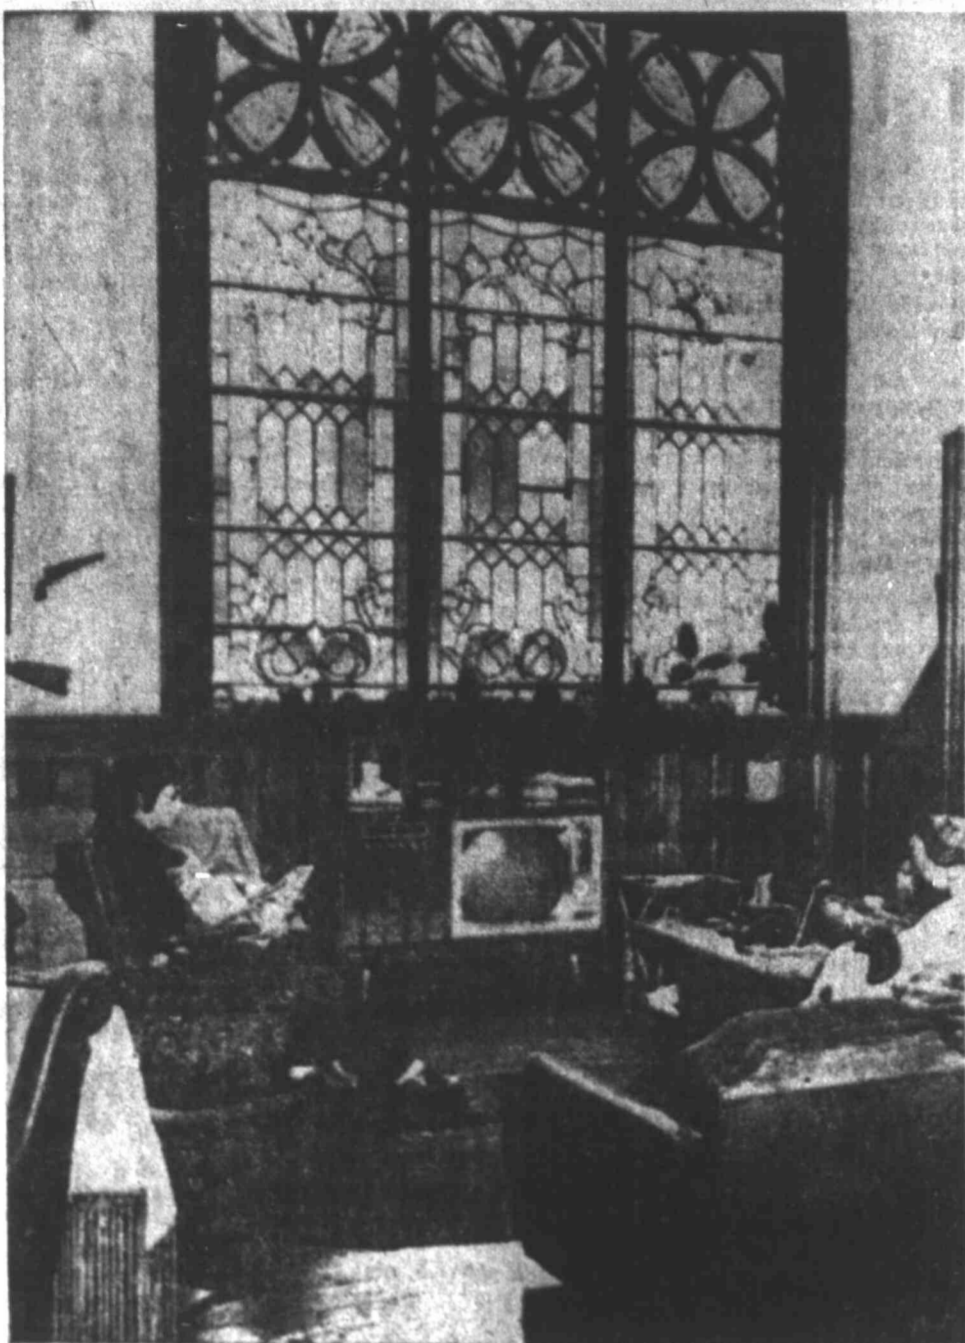

In other cases, the high court — Rejected a suit for damages against Gulf Oil Co. by the widow of Hope Birmingham, a crane operator who was killed in 1967 when the crane he was operating toppled off a drilling platform into the Gulf of Mexico near Mustang Island.

—Ruled 6-3 that El Paso lawyer Richard Ingram should have his license suspended for three years, rather than taken away for life, because $401 he withheld from a client was the first time he had stolen a client's money.

"While the appropriation of $401 of a client's funds, is a very serious matter, so is the complete loss of three year's God Of Marriage and three of the Supreme Court. But Greenhill wrote, "since go elsewhere; and the stigma justices said they thought the Mr. Ingram could not practice of the suspension will certainly trial judge abused his discretion at all for three years, whatever not be helpful to him in any clients he had will doubtless respect."

Former Alaskan Senator Gruening Dies Of Cancer

By JEFFREY MILLS as a functional declaration of mer Sen. Wayne L. Morse, D-Ore., was the only other Senate dissenter.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Sen Ernest Gruening of Alaska, one of the earliest and strongest congressional opponents of the Vietnam war, is dead.

Gruening, 87, died Wednesday night in a Washington hospital of cancer of the colon.

He was one of two senators to vote against the 1964 Tonkin Gulf resolution, which President Lyndon B. Johnson used as a functional declaration of war in Southeast Asia.

"All Vietnam is not worth the life of a single American boy," Gruening once said.

The resolution, approved by Congress two days after Johnson requested it, authorized in advance the President's using "all necessary steps, including the use of armed force" in Vietnam.

The resolution was approved unanimously by the House. For Gruening voted against all appropriations to the war effort until his defeat in the Democratic primary in 1968.

He crusaded for various causes, including population control and statehood for Alaska, during careers as journalist and public official.

A New York native, he was graduated from Harvard Medical School in 1912 but he never practiced medicine. Instead he worked 22 years as editor and reporter for various newspapers and magazines, among them the liberal magazine, The Nation, for which he was managing editor.

In 1939, Gruening was appointed governor of Alaska and promptly hung a prophetic 50-star flag on the front of the mansion in Juneau. "A democracy has no business having colonies," he said.

He was governor of the territory for 14 years and after statehood became one of Alaska's first two elected senators.

After a decade in the Senate, Gruening's age and resentment to his superdove stance caught up with him in 1968, when he lost the Democratic nomination to Sen. Mike Gravel.

Out of office at age 81, Gruening went back to journalism, rejoining The Nation as an editorial associate.

He launched a crusade against overpopulation, which he called "next to peace, the most serious problem mankind faces."

He continued traveling and lecturing until five weeks before his death, even though his cancer was detected nearly two years ago.

Odessan's Sentence, Conviction Upheld

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals Wednesday upheld the conviction of an Odessa man and, noting that 68 grounds for error were given in the brief, said it prefers quality rather than quantity.

The case, involving the Odessa robbery conviction and 39-year sentence of Arthur L. Phillips, was one of several West Texas cases affirmed, including one from Midland.

In commenting on the briefs in the Phillips case, prepared by Odessa attorney George M. Kelton, appeals commissioner Quentin Keith said that the court "has never failed to give full attention to any ground of error" but "the quality of presentation rather than the quantity is more effective."

"This court, having the largest case load of any state appellate court in the United States, is confronted with an appellate brief urging 68 grounds of error.

"This is an incredibly large number considering the relative simplicity of the fact structure of the case and the shortness of the trial."

Phillips was convicted in connection with the March 1973 robbery of a grocery store owned by Eldon H. Maney. Maney and a clerk, Susie Molinar, were shot, neither fatally.

About $350 was taken.

Phillips told his jury that he saw another man holding up the store and grabbed the gun away from him.

Fifteen of the points of error presented dealt with testimony allowed into evidence and 10 complained of statements made by the prosecutor during jury examination.

Others charged jury misconduct, failure of the court to grant a defense motion for change of venue, failure of the court to order a verdict of innocence and objections to state testimony concerning Phillips reputation.

The Midland case affirmed by the court Wednesday involved Caterino Ybarra, convicted here in September and given 50 years in prison for sale of heroin.

Ybarra sold heroin to state undercover officers during a two-month investigation in the Midland-Odessa area during the spring of 1973.

He was indicted on another count of heroin sale arising from that investigation and that case is pending.

Veteran Benefits Extension Okayed In Senate Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has passed unanimously and sent to the House legislation to keep benefits from expiring for four million veterans who served between 1955 and 1966.

The measure would affect immediately some 206,000 post-Korea veterans and 79,000 Vietnam-era veterans currently receiving education benefits under the GI Bill. Without the extension, their benefits would expire automatically after this week.

The Senate action came Wednesday as the Senate and House veterans affairs committees remained deadlocked on how much veterans' benefits should be boosted over-all.

It finally tastes as good as it looks

Weight Watchers® Frozen Dessert with new family pleasing flavor

When we first made Weight Watchers Frozen Dessert, we did everything we could to make it look rich and creamy, like ice cream. And it did. But no matter how much like ice cream it looked, you didn't like the way it tasted.

"Too dietary," you said. "Doesn't taste like real ice cream."

That's a tough order for a low fat dessert but we went back to work and created new Family Pleasing Flavors. They have a far more natural taste... much more like the real thing, and still have less than 1% fat.

We really are proud of our new Family Pleasing Flavors, because we found the way to give you a delicious frozen dessert that lives up to your expectations.

Mao Has Joined Battle Against Confucius

By JOHN RODERICK
An AP News Analysis
TOKYO (AP) — Over the past 2,000 years Chinese rebels unsuccessfully fought a daunting foe named Confucius. Communist revolutionary Mao Tse-tung has joined the seemingly endless battle.

To outsiders, the campaign being waged by the 80-year-old chairman of the Chinese Communist party seems a curious one, wrapped up as it is in denunciation of a recently dead Red hero named Lin Biao and entwined in the threads of political intrigue.

But to Mao — a scholar, poet, calligrapher, historian and political thinker — it is as significant and important as any past battle he has fought on his way to power.

For millions of Chinese still live by the ethical system handed down by Confucius 25 centuries ago, precepts which have seeped into the Chinese bloodstream.

The sayings of Confucius are legion. But essentially what he stood for was perfect order in human society. To achieve it, he advocated a freezing of the Chinese classes, a piece for everyone and everyone in his place.

Above all, he counseled loyalty — of sons to fathers, wives to husbands, of the ruled to the ruler, of the people to the emperor.

Through there were periodic uprisings — chiefly by peasants — in Chinese history, little changed. The new rulers applied the Confucian formula and stability returned. The first real revolution in 2,000 years is said to have been the Communist one, which swept Mao to power in 1949.

But was it? The intensity of the campaign against Confucius suggests Mao believes it has not yet succeeded. Confucius' hold on the Chinese heart and imagination remains largely unshaken. Until it can be loosened and thrown off, Mao's rival system, a mixture of the Chinese experience and the alien philosophy of Marxism-Leninism, cannot push up through the underground and grow roots of its own.

This, diplomats and China experts here say, is the central fact of the continuing and wordy movement against Confucius.

Others may see in it a devious intrigue, involving Premier Chou En-lai, or a stage for confrontation between the left and the right wings of Chinese communism.

But Mao regards it as a struggle for the survival of the body of political thought called "Maoism."

Branded As Traitor
Lin Biao, a shy, diffident man primarily a military leader, shot to the Chinese heights during the 1966-69 Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution.

Taking the lead, alongside Mao's wife, Chiang Ching, his personal secretary Chen Po-ai, and a handful of other radicals, he pictured himself as Mao's most faithful disciple.

He became deputy chairman of the party, and Mao's publicly acknowledged successor after the cultural purge ended.

over-ambitious schemer tainted by the ideas of Confucius. Except among the scattering of people who supported him — now driven underground — his influence is not believed to be great in the China of 1974.

But Mao counts on him, and the horror he believes was aroused by his treason, to serve as a bludgeon with which to beat the still animate Confucius.

His objective appears to be to convince the ordinary Chinese that a bright future is in store for him if he follows the road of Chinese socialism.

But Mao's dream of creating a new kind of Chinese human — mentally alert, politically intelligent and militarily adept — must compete with the deeply ingrained notions of the Golden Mean, of virtuousness, of tolerance — and passivity — which Confucius so successfully brought into the marketplace many centuries ago.

Mao admits the struggle against Confucius will last a long time, certainly for years after his own death.

Its outcome will determine China's course for perhaps another 100 years.

Under False Colors
The yellow-fin grouper often sails under false colors in order to survive, says Warren Zeiler, curator at the Miami Seaquarium. When frightened or in danger, this fish will instantly change its usually black color rather than chief villain, an to blend with its surroundings.

Distrust Grows Of Leadership

NEW YORK (AP) — Distrust is growing in American business circles about the concepts and techniques of economic management, especially in regard to inflation control. And with it grows a distrust of leadership also.

While formal surveys may not as yet prove there is widespread disillusionment about concepts and leadership, there is little question in discussions with businessmen that many harbor deep distrusts.

Many factors are involved, chief among them being:

—A wavering economic policy in Washington that suggests confusion rather than understanding. Repeated promises that conditions are bound to improve add to the doubts by suggesting hope rather than knowledge.

—The documented failure of monetary policy, as practiced today and on which the country now is relying heavily in the battle with inflation, to have a pronounced, prolonged impact.

—The conviction among practical businessmen that high interest rates are merely adding to their costs, and their prices, rather than discouraging borrowing.

—A feeling that the minds of economic leaders may be closed to suggestions and differing opinions, in favor of "textbook" theories.

The latter feeling is fueled to a great degree by the apparent determination of Arthur F. Burns, Federal Reserve Board chairman, to continue a relatively tight money policy to the brink of depression.

The refusal of the administration's new economic spokesman, Kenneth Rush, to discuss his views before congressional committees, adds to the feeling that the economic dialogue is being smothered at the very time it needs an airing.

The necessity for discussion of monetary policy, for example, is made startlingly clear by the record, which shows that the prime rate now is more than double that of seven years ago, a period during which prices soared.

The current rate varies from 11.5 per cent to 11.75 per cent, with one large bank at 11.8 per cent. In midyear 1967 the rate generally was about 5.5 per cent. It's rise since then has been accompanied by the worst inflation in a generation.

"There's no question about the ability of tight money to create a depression," argues John Beckett, chairman of Transamerica Corp. He adds pointedly: "Whether it can cure inflation is a moot point."

While Beckett is only one of scores of businessmen who hold such views, his opinions are particularly significant because his is a multibillion-dollar service company, heavily involved in insurance and consumer and commercial loans.

Beckett says interest rates are usually passed on to customers in the form of higher prices.

As do other businessmen, Beckett feels that monetary policy might work if it weren't aborted along the way. That is, if a depression were permitted — and Beckett says he is willing to accept it — inflation might be restrained.

"If a depression were permitted to run its course it would do the job, but the politicians won't let it." When the going gets tough, he said, the deficit spenders will step in and stop the cure — and add to future inflation.

"All inflation is, is the taxes you should have been paying all these years and didn't," he said. "The obvious answer is that you've got to run surpluses in government and pay back the debts we already have."

Other businessmen and financiers hold that higher interest rates are frustrating rather than aiding the nation's anti-inflation program. Some even maintain that an easy rather than tight money policy is the answer.

Kidnaping Defendant 'Slow', Psychiatrist Says In Trial

TYLER, Tex. (AP) — A psychiatrist has testified that one of three men charged in the abduction and shooting of a Georgia man has the reasoning ability of a 10-or-11-year-old child.

Fortune's sister, Sharon Stinson, of Phenix City, Ala., told the court her brother had not been in trouble before but spoke repeatedly of taking his own life when he was 11 and seemed to be disturbed again in his late teens.

The prosecution rested Wednesday after Hoover had testified he was abducted by three men and forced to drive to Texas on Sept. 13, 1973.

He was shot several times in a field near New Harmony, Tex., and left for dead, he said. He managed to get help at a nearby farmhouse.

They are charged in a 13-count indictment with kidnaping James Otto Hoover, a 56-year-old Columbus businessman.

Anker said Barfield, 22, suffers from a mental disability which could have affected his actions. He said Barfield, whom he examined at the Federal Youth Center at Engle-

Ex-Agent Reveals Dealings In Smuggling Plot Trial

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Former government undercover agent Cesario Diosadado has testified that he dealt with four of the five defendants on trial for plotting to smuggle weapons into Mexico.

Diosadado, now a supervisor with the Drug Enforcement Administration in California, said Wednesday he infiltrated the alleged smuggling ring with the help of Alfonso Cortina Ridriguez, who testified in the federal weapons smuggling case Tuesday.

Both said they discussed purchasing shipments of rifles, submachine guns and ammunition during meetings in Eagle Pass, Tex.

On trial are Richmond C. Harper, an Eagle Pass rancher and banker; Murray Kessler of Brooklyn, N.Y.; and Adler B. Seal, James W. Miller Jr., and Joseph Muzzuka, all of Baton Rouge.

Kessler was employed by Kent Steel Co. of New Jersey, and Seal and Miller are pilots.

Another defendant, Marion Hagler of Eagle Pass, was granted a separate trial because of ill health.

The men are accused of conspiring to smuggle weapons out of the United States for use in a scheme to overthrow a Latin American government, which federal prosecutors have reluctantly identified as Cuba.

Most of the defendants were arrested July 1, 1972, when federal authorities seized a DC4 airplane at the Shreveport airport and confiscated nearly seven tons of plastic explosives and detonators.

Odessa College Tax Hike Slated

A record budget, to be financed partially by a tax hike, was presented to Odessa College trustees Tuesday night.

The 1974-75 budget calls for spending of $4,412,067, an increase of $297,727 over the current budget.

To offset the increased funding, a tax increase of one cent per $100 valuation was recommended. The new tax rate would be 16 cents per $100 valuation based on 49 per cent of actual value. This is expected to bring in an additional $70,000.

Increased property value on the tax rolls and increased enrollment are expected to bring in an additional $160,000 next year.

Pay raises for all faculty members and all but one top active administrator are included in the proposed budget.

TRIAL TESTIMONY— Witness Says He Helped Bird Hide 100 Antique Guns

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — A Corpus Christi man who refused to remove his sunglasses testified Wednesday that he helped Jerry Joe Bird hide more than 100 antique guns.

The testimony came during the trial of Bird, 36, of Corpus Christi, on a charge of murder in the robbery slaying of Victor H. Trammell, 65, a farmer who kept a valuable antique gun collection in safes at his Harlingen area farmhouse.

Harvey Lee Palmer testified that Bird came to his home January 16, four days after the Trammell slaying, and asked if he could store some "stuff" at Palmer's home. Palmer said he then helped Bird haul two automobile trunkloads of items from a storage locker to his home. The items were first placed at the back of his home under some blankets, Palmer said. He said he then moved them into his attic the next day.

Palmer said he kept the guns there until January 21 when Nueces County officers came to his home and seized the guns after obtaining permission to search the house.

The man said he had read about the Trammell slaying before Bird came to his home, but said he did not know where the guns came from. He said he asked Bird where he got them and said Bird told him "I didn't know it wouldn't hurt me."

Palmer freely answered questions for Cameron County Dist. Atty. Fred Galindo, but became more evasive during cross-examination by defense lawyer Douglas Tinker of Corpus Christi. Palmer, a slender man with slightly long hair, wore sun glasses and refused a request by Tinker that he remove the glasses.

Earlier in the day, deputies hauled Trammell's valuable gun collection into the courtroom in four large boxes. There were about 65 rifles and perhaps more handguns in the collection.

One of the rifles was described as a Colt Patterson with a revolving magazine. One of the pistols was engraved to George West, a famous Texas Ranger captain. Another pistol was described as a "pirate gun."

Defense lawyer Tinker failed Wednesday on three occasions in his attempt to get a mistrial declared because of television cameramen photographing the weapons being carried into the courtroom and of the jurors as they entered and left the courtroom.

ONLY 25,000 LEFT Army Now Down To Last Draftees

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army is down to its last 25,000 draftees.

This represents only about 3 per cent of the Army's strength.

Draftees will be completing their two-year service and leaving the Army at the rate of about 5,000 a month during the summer and fall. Only a few will be left in uniform after that. But the last 85 draftees will not be discharged until June of next year.

Legal authority to induct men into the armed services died almost a year ago, July 1, 1973, but the Pentagon stopped issuing mass draft calls six months earlier than that.

In the last half year before the induction authority expired, virtually the only men drafted were reservists who had failed to meet their obligations.

Only the Army drew on the draft for manpower in recent years, although some of those who enlisted in the Marine Corps, Navy and Air Force were considered draft-motivated.

After a tough, uphill struggle, the Army topped its monthly enlistment goal in May and manpower officials say they believe it can continue to do so without sacrificing quality.

The Marines, however, have been unable to attract enough high school graduates to meet congressional requirements.

Because of the Marine problem, Pentagon officials said that total U.S. military manpower will fall about 6,000 short of the 2,174,121 figure planned for the end of the fiscal year that ends Sunday.

Some congressmen remain skeptical that the all-volunteer concept will work over the long term. But Congress has helped the Pentagon reach its all-volunteer goal by cutting the size of the armed forces to its smallest level since before the Korean War.

With the high school year ended, the Pentagon is looking for a surge of enlistments in the summer months. For June alone, it raised its goal to 44,520, up by more than 60 per cent over May.

Mexican Troops Told To Rescue Federal Senator

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Federal troops have been ordered to rescue a federal senator from the hands of a guerrilla band in the rugged mountains of Southern Mexico, the government said today.

President Luis Echeverria's administration rejected Wednesday night guerrilla demands, including a $4 million cash ransom—the largest ever demanded in Mexico—for the life of kidnapped Sen. Ruben Figueroa.

Figueroa, 66, was reported missing May 30 and the government said he was lured into a trap by guerrilla leader Lucio Cabanas, who has operated in the mountains of the state of Guerrero north of Acapulco the past six years.

Figueroa, also a candidate for Guerrero state governor for the Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI), reportedly had received a written message from Cabanas asking him for a meeting to negotiate an end to guerrilla activities, the government said.

Cabanas next sent a communique saying Figueroa and two companions, including his secretary, were being held hostages.

In a second communique two weeks ago, Cabanas demanded that all troops be pulled out.

The government quickly announced compliance.

Cabanas sent a third message to Mexico City newspapers Tuesday demanding the cash ransom, arms, freedom to political and common prisoners, plus publication of rebel songs and the texts of his communique denouncing the government.

Atty. Gen. Pedro Ojeda Paulada went on national television Wednesday to declare the government "does not deal with criminals." He called Cabanas' attitude one of "primitivism and cowardice" and urged him to set Figueroa free without conditions.

He also announced that President Echeverria had ordered the army to "do all it can" to rescue Figueroa.

A national television network in Mexico City said early today that troops already were swarming into the mountains hunting Cabanas' hideout.

Beauty Salon Doors Opened To All Sexes

By HOWARD ULMAN
HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) —
The bouffant and the beard may be seen side by side in Connecticut beauty salons now that a federal judge has opened their doors to all sexes.
"It might be fun. You never know who you'll meet in a beauty salon," said Marjorie Stevenson of Windsor, as she settled into a chair at a downtown salon.

She was having her hair done one day after U.S. District Court Judge Jon O. Newman ruled unconstitutional the section of a state law prohibiting hairdressers from serving male customers. The law allows barbers to cut the hair of both sexes.
In his ruling, Judge Newman noted that hair fashion has changed since the hairdresser law was passed 50 years ago.

"There is now in vogue among some members of the male sex a 'unisex' fashion whereby males desire to have their hair styled and cut longer in some more detailed manner," he said.
Angelo Bermudez, owner of the Michelangelo Beauty Salon

in New Haven, said he was concerned the ruling might be "an invasion of privacy."
"I don't think women would like to walk around in rollers and a bleached head in front of men," he said.
Bermudez said he would accept male customers and might do their hair "in a back room."
But most women contacted in a spot survey voiced no apprehension about sharing their domain with men.

"It wouldn't bother me in the least. My husband sees me in rollers and I have a man doing my hair," said Mrs. Enos Arnold of West Hartford, a patron at Nigrelli's Beauty Salon in Hartford.
Charles Nigrelli, the owner, disagreed.

LEGALIZED GAMBLING MAY COME TO TOWN—

Lady Luck Smiling On Atlantic City Again

By CHRIS CONNELL ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Once this was a posh resort where the wealthy summered in grand hotels overlooking the ocean and Boardwalk, where they strolled on Saturday nights in tuxedos and gowns. The times and leisure habits changed, and the rich left Atlantic City behind to jet to new resorts. The luxurious beach remained, but old hotels fell into disrepair, shops and nightclubs gave up the ghost and even the trains stopped running.

By CHRIS CONNELL ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — "We have better hope than ever now," asserted Norman Cohen, a 50-year-old lingerie store owner who doesn't gamble but fervently believes that with casinos, "Atlantic City will again be the playground of the world." "There's nothing like the gamble," claimed Cohen. "It seems before it was a dirty word to have gambling here. Now everyone is excited and everyone is in favor of gambling in New Jersey."

By CHRIS CONNELL ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — "We've created a climate where it is possible to speak about gambling and honest government in the same sentence," Albert A. Marks Jr., an influential stockbroker who presides over Atlantic City's main claim to fame, the Miss America Pageant, said. "Atlantic City's been on dead center for a long time. It needs a push, an infusion of capital, which has been lacking here for a long time. Somebody's got to light the fuse, and I think the fuse is casino gambling."

By CHRIS CONNELL ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — "Everybody says it's not the panacea, the cure-all. Baloney. Where else are we going to go?" asked Commissioner Mario Floriani, a career policeman who is the city's public safety director. "Right now that's our only salvation and I don't care what anyone says. It's a natural."

By CHRIS CONNELL ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — "We only have one shot at this," he said. "And if we blow it the first time, there'll never be another chance."

SENATE DISPLAYS OLD WAY IN TAX STRUGGLE

New System Of Doing Business On U.S. Budget May Take Work

By WALTER B. MEARS An AP News Analysis WASHINGTON (AP) — With Congress preparing for a new way of doing business on the federal budget, the Senate displayed the old system at work in its struggle over income tax cuts and reforms that never had a real chance of enactment.

House, and assert control over the balance between tax income and federal expenditures. So far, it is all on paper, awaiting President Nixon's signature. It will take some drastic changes in congressional habits to move from the blueprint to a real overhaul of the federal budget process.

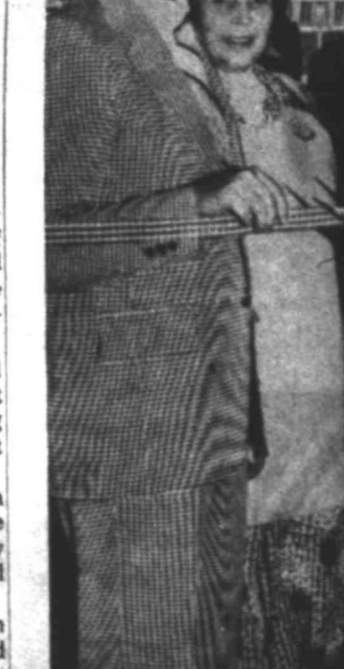

Among those traits are talk, delay and the use of key money measures as hostages to force action on proposals that otherwise would face certain veto, or wouldn't even come to a vote.

Basically, the bill for an overhaul of congressional operations on the budget would have Congress draft its own budget through new committees, instead of leaving that entirely to the president, and would shift the start of the fiscal year from July 1 to Oct. 1 beginning in 1976.

Congress would adopt its budget by May 15, revise it by Sept. 15, and finally, cut spending if necessary to stay within the budget.

Man Pleads Guilty In 1953 Murder, Draws 47 Years

ODESSA — A. L. Bates, 46, accused in the 1953 murder of a San Angelo man, pleaded guilty to murder in that case in 70th District Court Wednesday.

Judge C. B. Milburn sentenced him to 47 years in prison at the end of the hearing, during which Bates waived his right to indictment procedures. He was charged in the death of Daron E. Switzer, 31 at the time of his death, whose body was found in an Odessa motel on Dec. 3, 1953.

Bates had been a suspect in the slaying but had escaped police, who thought his name was Howard Lacey, which proved to be an alias.

He was charged here after he talked about murder with an employee at a Florida veterans hospital. Bates is reported to have said that he confessed to the crime after more than 20 years because it had been bothering his conscience all those years and he wanted to get it off his mind.

Sugar Loaf Mountain In Rio De Janeiro Is Getting A Shave

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Rio's famous Sugar Loaf mountain is getting a shave.

The barbers, dozens of men with scythes and herbicides, are stripping away grass that has spread over much of the hillsides overlooking Guanabara Bay and the Atlantic Ocean.

Years ago, the mountain's slopes were covered with lush forest. Tourists who embarked on Sugar Loaf's cable car hardly noticed the small area of Guinea grass that strived for life at the foot of the mountain.

The weed dried with the summer heat and easily caught fire. The fire killed other plants, but the grass remained rooted in the earth and showed up after rain.

The once insignificant grass spread over the mountain's surface, threatening the trees with extinction.

Alarmed by the situation, Rio's Institute for the Maintenance of Nature elaborated a reforestation plan, and Rio's Botanical Garden agreed to provide cuttings and seeds to be planted in the area. The cable car company put the plan into practice.

Operations started a year ago. The first measure was to separate the grass from the remaining trees to avoid new fires. Five-yard-wide clearings were opened throughout the area, isolating the trees and dividing the grass in 100-square-yard sections.

Workers are now spraying a strong herbicide on the grass, being careful to avoid hitting other plants which may be near.

"The process has showed excellent results so far," said Antonio Leite de Castro, director of the cable car company. "It has already been successfully applied to 50 per cent of the 3,300 square feet area hit by the grass. Approximately six more months will be necessary to wipe the weed out from the remaining half."

The minimum bet at all major U.S. race tracks is $2.
