GAO Says Don't Blame Congress For All Wasteful Spending WASHINGTON (AP) - Congress isn't at fault because $70,-000 was spent to find out how sweating Australian aborigines smell, or because more than $20,000 was spent to study blood groups of Polish pigs, the Gen-eral Accounting Office says. In fact, said GAO, Congress is not directly responsible for these or a number of other seemingly unusual projects funded with federal money.

For instance, there was the $29,361 for an odor measuring machine purchased for Turkey under an Agriculture Department research project; and the Smithsonian Institution's $15,000 study of lizards in Yugoslavia, $6,000 study of Polish frogs and $35,000 look at wild boars in Pakistan. The Polish pig-blood group study also had been undertaken by the Smithsonian.

The GAO comments were in a report to a number of congressmen who had demanded an explanation for projects disclosed in a March 1974 article by James D. Davidson, executive director of the National Taxpayers Union. His article, the GAO said Thursday, discussed "a number of seemingly wasteful government expenditures.'

The GAO, a congressional watchdog agency, studied 35 projects cited by Davidson, confirmed the existence of most and concluded that none were authorized specifically by Congress. GAO did not evaluate the merits of the projects, only identified the agencies that conducted them. "Based upon our research, we found that the examples cited were not line items specifically authorized by Congress but were included in larger appropriations and authorizations of agencies and departments." GAO official D. L. Scantlebury said in a letter to Rep. Robert W. Daniel Jr., R-Va.

Daniel has attacked the expenditures as "foolish programs" and directed particular criticism to the aborigine perspiration study. "No doubt some of this money could have been saved on the project if the State Department had prevalled upon Turkey to lend the Australians the odor measuring machine we purchased for them." Daniel said in a floor speech earlier this week. (The machine was used in an experiment designed to help measure food quality, the GAO said.)

The GAO report said the aborigine study was part of a Health, Education and Welfare Department project under a National Institute of Health grant, which, the GAO said, has not been funded since 1971.

The report said the study was "one of 16 subprojects concerned with zoophysiology in Alaska. The purpose ... was to learn about the adaption of man to his environment and invited a comparison of the Alaskan Eskimo with the Australian Aborigine and their stress reactions to climate."

Heart Study Tops List Of Accords

MOSCOW (AP) - President Nixon and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev achieved the first concrete results of their summit today, agreeing on three cooperative ventures, including research and development on an artificial heart.

The two other agreements involve cooperation in the housing field and in energy develop-

The two leaders, after the accords were signed, turned their attention to arms limitation. They discussed ways to curb antiballistic missile systems and nuclear tests for two hours and 10 minutes.

The agreement on heart research contemplates joint efforts to improve synthetic cardiac valves and to develop artificial hearts. Researchers from both countries also would seek ways to extend the operational life of cardiac pacemakers and would attempt to improve diagnostic techniques a i m e d at heading off heart attacks by early detection of blood supply disorders.

They also would try to develop instruments to detect and (See NEXON Page 7A)

Exciting Announcement!

Industrial development in Midland and vicinity moved into center stage spotlight Wednesday, with the announcement made by one of the nation's major industrial firms that it has taken an option to purchase approximately 700 acres of land seven miles west of Midland for possible construction of a fiber glass plant.

The firm is PPG Industries of Pittsburgh, Pa., a leading manufacturer of fiber glass, flat glass, chemicals and coatings, and resins.

The Midland plant would produce fiber glass for the plastics reinforcements market. It would be operated by PPG's fiber glass division, which is a major producer of fiber glass for plastics and tire reinforcements and for textiles.

The exciting announcement was made for PPG by Martin Allday, president of the Industrial Foundation of Midland, Inc., at the June meeting of directors of the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

DESPITE GRAND SLAM BY TYRONE IN NINTH

El Paso Trips Cubs, 6-5

Wayne Tyrone came up with two out in the bottom of the ninth and the bases loaded and hit a grand slam homer, which is the stuff of which Hollywood scripts are made, but this was Cubs Stadium, not Hollywood, and it left the Midland Cubs a run short as El Paso's Diablos survived the heroics with a 6-5

Tyrone, who missed the first game of the series with a deep finger cut, went into this game with a fever of 102-degrees, but Wayne's clutch hit was the only one the Cubs could manage during a game in which opportunities beckoned in every

and got away with it.

Dan Corder suffered the loss, but outside of a bad fourth inning, pitched brilliantly in going the route. Dan gave up six runs and six of the 10 hits he allowed in the fourth, but it was enough for the Diablos to inflict the third loss in six decisions on the righthander from California.

The game-winning blow turned out to be a two-run homer by Rocky Jordan to cap the fourth. As the Cubs head for Amarillo tonight, they could look back on a homestand in which they suffered five loses in seven games, yet lost no ground to the leaders after making up seven during an eight-game winning streak earlier. Still, with games at Amarillo and El Paso during the next week, the Cubs are going to have to turn it around. Despite the injuries, and absences, the big problem right now seems to be the relief pitching. When Manager Walt Dixon goes to his bullpen before the eighth inning, it's just like raising a white flag or declaring a forfeit.

Safeguards Needed

Schlesinger has indicated he would go along with an "agreement in principle" to limit deployment of advanced missiles with multiple warheads. But Schlesinger has said such an agreement would have to be safeguarded with means for verification to protect against cheating.

Key Pentagon officials widely hold that the Russians will not get down to real give-and-take bargaining until the last year of the temporary agreement, that they see no need to rush into another interim pact with possible hazards.

Defense officials began to grow concerned about prospects for real progress last fall when, they say, Russian negotiators took a hard line.

In essence, as these officials tell it, the Russians wanted to put stringent limits on all kinds of U.S. nuclear weaponry but refused to consider further curbs on their missile arsenal, including size and "throw weight.

Concern in the Pentagon escalated when Kissinger traveled to Moscow last March in search of a "conceptual breakthrough" to pave the way for a possible permanent SALT agreement during Nixon's visit.

$10 to $34

Although the breakthrough did not materialize, some Pentagon officials still are worried that Kissinger might be inclined to make compromises that could be detrimental, and that Nixon would agree in eagerness to score an apparent diplomatic triumph.

This worry appears to have abated in recent weeks, particularly after Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., publicly warned Nixon against any 'quick cosmetic agreement."
