Anti-Inflation Tax Possibility

Ford May Ask Levy In 1975

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is holding open the possibility of asking Congress for an anti-inflation tax increase in 1975 but won't seek higher taxes this year, Press Secretary J. F. TerHorst said today.

TerHorst discussed the possibility of a possible tax increase in answer to questions after announcing that the new Council of Wage and Price Stability will be headed by presidential counselor Kenneth Rusk.

Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simon, a member of the new council, has suggested the panel might have to fix wage-price guidelines. But TerHorst said, "The subject of guidelines has not come up yet."

Should the council want to impose guidelines, he said, it would have to win Ford's approval first.

Asked if the President might seek a tax increase in a move to dampen inflationary pressures, TerHorst said, "At this time, the President has no plans for asking for a tax increase."

He added that "it would be very unrealistic" to expect Congress to act on tax legislation in these waning weeks of its election year session.

When TerHorst was asked if Ford might propose a tax hike next year, he responded that it was "the sort of issue that a President always has before him."

"I think we'll have to wait" and see what happens, he said. Noting Ford will outline his 1975 agenda in a January State of the Union Address to Congress, TerHorst said "it would be a little premature" to speculate on tax action now.

Asked if he could not rule out a request for higher taxes on philosophical grounds, TerHorst said there come times when higher taxes are needed regardless of philosophical feelings and "it's just a practical governmental matter."

In another development related to inflation, Ford announced he has signed with some reluctance a $4.5-billion public works appropriation for the fiscal year that began July 1.

Noting the amount exceeds the federal budget by $80 million, Ford said he would ask Congress to act under the new budget reform law to defer that amount of spending for one year.

Many Offices Will Close For Holiday

Midland's banks and savings and loan associations, along with city, county, state and federal offices will be closed Monday in observance of Labor Day.

Oil companies and some retail firms will close for the day.

The Reporter-Telegram's business office will close at noon.

The Drivers License Bureau of the Department of Public Safety will be closed all day Monday.

OLD U.S. COAST GUARD STATION IN MILWAUKEE

Indians Still Holding Building Captured Three Years Ago

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Indians who captured Milwaukee's old U.S. Coast Guard station three years ago still stubbornly hold their enclave in a fashionable neighborhood on the Lake Michigan shoreline.

But they have mixed emotions about the take-over.

"It's been a moral victory; that doesn't mean anything as far as what it is doing for the community," said Reynold Denny, now a youth program director for the city's Indian Urban Affairs Council.

"It was never our idea to keep it," Denny said of the $300,000 facility between county parklands and the exclusive Milwaukee Yacht Club. "We wanted to highlight the lack of facilities in our area."

Denny was one of about 30

American Indian Movement members who took over the station's two buildings early on an August morning in 1971, set up barricades and declared the site Indian land.

They based their claim on 100-year-old treaty provisions that abandoned Indian property would revert to the native inhabitants. The Coast Guard had moved to new quarters and the federal government had not yet sold the land or shifted control of it to another agency.

Law enforcement officers never seriously pressured the Indians to leave, and the Bureau of Indian Affairs said it is attempting to gain control of the land.

The Indians established on the base the Indian Community School, which had an enrollment of 76 — from preschoolers through children of high school age — during the last academic year. Most are bused to the school from northwest Milwaukee, where most of the city's Indians live.

The school has been operated with the aid of various federal grants, including $145,000 from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Soggy Areas Hit By Rains

Non-stop rains hit already full and overflowed into low-soggy areas in Texas again today, causing further minor flooding at some points across the central part of the state.

There was no immediate word, however, of conditions as grave as those in some places the day before, when a man drowned after an 8 1/2-inch deluge at Kilbuck and 110 persons were driven from their homes.

As much as 15 inches of rain fell at nearby Harker Heights.

The National Weather Service at Midland Air Terminal measured a high temperature of 82 degrees Wednesday and a low this morning of 67.

The weatherman said the Tall City has a 20 per cent chance for moisture today and Friday. The maximum temperature today and Friday should be in the middle 80s and the low tonight in the upper 60s.

Continuing downpours today drenched the countryside across the state's midsection from Red River to the Rio Grande. Some of the heaviest rain, often falling at rates of more than 1 1/2 inches per hour, hit in several broad belts—from around College Station to Victoria, from near Hondo to south of Laredo and across the border into Mexico, and between Junction and Uvalde.

Another wet spot was Wichita Falls, where more than 3 inches of rain in about an hour and a half flooded low areas while the official moisture measurement was only .22 inch. Numerous streams ran bank-full and overflowed into low-lands. One of the most troublesome was the Llano River, which climbed 11 feet out of banks near Junction.

While the near-cloudbursts concentrated on broad areas through the central part of the state, lines of heavy thunderstorms also reached into Southeast Texas.

Lighter rains spread from North Central into Northeast Texas, and it was at least partly cloudy everywhere except for one or two points in the Panhandle and far West Texas.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 62 degrees at Brownsville, Corpus Christi and Galveston on the coast down to 63 at Amarillo in the Panhandle and 56 at Marfa in the West Texas mountains. The Associated Press reported.

Forecasts called for still more scattered showers and thunderstorms, particularly in the state's central and northeast sections, and little change in temperatures.

FIRE CHIEF SURE IT WAS NOT A BOMB—

Chattanooga Blast Kills One, Hurts 13

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Half a downtown block was left in flaming rubble today after an explosion which claimed at least one life ripped through a ghetto area — leveling two night spots and a church.

At least 13 other persons were injured.

"I'm sure that it was not a bomb, but I don't know just exactly what caused it," Fire Chief Harry Jett said of the rubble of four buildings which were ravaged by fire following the blast.

"I can confirm that they found at least one body in the rubble," said Police Sgt. Ronald Burnett. "That's all I know right now."

The victim, a man, was not immediately identified.

The body was discovered as workmen began searching the rubble of four buildings which were ravaged by fire following the blast.

"There was fire everywhere," said Patrolman Don Weller, one of the first at the scene. "The buildings were just leveled."

People In Street
 "There were three or four people scattered in the street, blown out onto the street, blown out or carried out," said Police Lt. Herbert Parker.

The fire was contained to four buildings but the flames kept emergency workers away from the rubble for several hours.

Jett said the blast cut a 200-foot swath of destruction through the area.

Buildings Destroyed
 The blast destroyed the Starlight Lounge, the Cactus Club, the St. James Baptist Church and a barber shop.

The explosion sent splintered bricks sailing through the area, damaging cars parked on nearby streets.

Search Launched
 GRAND PRAIRIE, Tex. (AP) — Police launched a manhunt today for a man wanted in connection with the critical wounding of a policeman during a pharmaceutical warehouse burglary Wednesday night.

At noon that day, Congressman Mahon will give a luncheon address to the Midland Jaycees and their guests at the group's regular meeting at the Rodeway Inn. The public is invited to the luncheon. Tickets are available from the Jaycees at $3 each.

Other dignitaries who will be here for the dedication include Adrian A. Spears, chief judge for the U.S. District Court for the Western District of Texas, and D. W. Suttle, a judge for the Western District which has its headquarters at San Antonio.

Also on hand will be Midland's 142nd District Judge, Perry D. Pickett, Midland County Judge Barbara Culver, Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. and K. M. Jastrow, into the sky as thick black smoke spread across the near-by Mississippi River and over residential areas of New Orleans.

The warehouse held diesel fuel, motor oil, lubricants and car tires. The fire was kept from reaching two aviation fuel tanks 150 feet away.

A fire official estimated 700 to 1,000 firefighters from Gretna, New Orleans and other communities fought the fire.

More than 30 fire trucks drew water from a sagging main and a fireboat pumped from the river. The Coast Guard shipped in 1,000 gallons of chemical fire-retardant foam.

Seven of the injured firemen were treated for minor cuts and burns. Another was in satisfactory condition at a hospital after suffering smoke inhalation.

The blaze began as three men were loading gasoline into a tank truck beside the warehouse. They escaped without injury when they saw flames spreading over the truck.

Turkish Cypriots Say They're Hostages In Greek Area

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
 PAPHOS, Cyprus (AP) — In the Turkish quarter of this coastal town, the men in the coffee shop talk of fleeing north to the Turkish lines 50 miles away.

"If we were permitted to go, we would not hesitate to go immediately to be in safety under the Turkish forces," said the high school music teacher. He didn't want to give his name for fear "of being taken off to prison like the 29 Turkish policemen from this quarter."

The English teacher said they handed in their guns to United Nations troops after surrendering because they ran out of ammunition. But he said that when peace negotiations broke down, they were at the mercy of the Greek Cypriot soldiers, most of them irregulars.

He said that the Greeks smashed in their doors and shop windows with rifle bolts and fired machine guns through the quarters, killing seven persons. One was a 3-year-old child who died with more than 30 bullet wounds, he claimed. The people of the quarter — others joined in the story — were taken to the soccer field for questioning, while "looters went through our houses taking what they could carry off. Radios, television sets, money, jewelry and gold."

"Now, we are hostages," said a baby-faced municipal clerk with no office to go to. "Everyone is frightened of what will happen. They keep asking when the Greeks will kill us. Why are they waiting?"

Paphos, 90 miles from Nicosia on the dry southwest side of Cyprus, has 10,000 Greeks and 3,000 Turks living apart in mutual suspicion. Since the Turkish invasion of northern Cyprus, the city has been shelled by a Greek gunboat, bombed by Turkish planes and hit by mortar and artillery fire.

Since the fighting ended almost two weeks ago, most of the people living in the narrow streets of the Turkish quarter have moved away from the Green Line separating the two communities and clustered protectively around their mosque, where a Greek soldier sits outside.

The mosque is closed. The men in the coffee shop say the Greeks stole the carpets and looted all the religious objects and the priest has not been allowed to return from his village.

Unlike many villages, there is electricity and water and the four wholesale grocers are permitted to bring food to the market. Food is plentiful at the moment, but money is getting scarce because there is no work.

The Greeks let shepherds tend their flocks, but others are not allowed to visit their lush flower and fruit gardens on the outskirts of town.

Telephone service has been disconnected for more than a month. Schools cannot open because most of the teachers did not return from their vacations, and the classrooms are full of refugees.

SEEKING TO CURB SPENDING—

Ford Is Ready To Accept Defense Cuts

By G. DAVID WALLACE
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has signaled his readiness to accept congressional cuts in the defense budget while his administration seeks to prune spending by other agencies in the effort to curb inflation.

Ford gave wage earners and bureaucrats the same advice for dealing with the double-digit inflation: tighten your belts, "watch every penny."

Administration aides said that as part of that belt-tightening process, the President would not resist defense spending cuts, which originally had drawn White House criticism.

At his first presidential news conference, Ford re-emphasized the drive to economize as his major inflation-fighting weapon, and underscored his opposition to wage and price controls. "Wage and price controls are out, period," the President said.

Inflation Question
The nationally broadcast and televised news conference Wednesday was dominated by questions about inflation and about the possible prosecution of Richard M. Nixon in the Watergate case.

Ford said he subscribes to what he described as the general American view that Nixon should not face further action. But he said it would be unwise and untimely for him to make any commitment now on what he will do if the former president is indicted.

He also said he will make the final decision, and does not rule out the possibility of an eventual presidential pardon should Nixon be prosecuted. "It is an option and a proper option for any president," he said.

The President said that to deal with inflation, the administration already has announced plans for a $5.5-billion budget cut during the year that ends next June 30.

Ford said that will ease the strain on the money markets, and in addition "I think it will convince people who might have some doubts that we mean business."

Collecting Ideas
In addition, the administration is collecting ideas from labor, management, agriculture and other areas to prepare for his economic summit conference Sept. 27 and 28, he said.

The approach he spurned was wage and price controls. Ford said he had discussed it with congressional leaders of both parties, that labor and management oppose it, and that it won't happen.

Some Democrats have complained that Ford's budget cutting plans would bear down on domestic social programs. But Ford said he wouldn't spare the Pentagon.

"No budget for any department is sacrosanct, and that includes the defense budget," he said.

Flatcar 'Corpse' Returns To Life
CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Four homicide detectives and six patrolmen were sent to investigate a train dispatcher's report of a body lying on a flatcar.

"A lieutenant who climbed aboard the flatcar turned white as a ghost when the man's head rose and the 'corpse' asked, 'Where am I?'" a detective said.

The man, very much alive, had been drinking in Erie, Pa., and had jumped on the flatcar to sleep it off, police said Tuesday.

said. Ford said he will insist that the nation remain strong militarily.

"But if there is any fat in the defense budget, it ought to be cut out by Congress or eliminated by the secretary of defense," he said. "In the meantime, all other departments must be scrutinized carefully so that they don't have any fat and marginal programs are eliminated."

The administration is probing virtually every part of the budget for fat, economic coordinator Kenneth Rush said in an interview.

And Roy L. Ash, director of the Office of Management and Budget, has been trying to hammer out a bipartisan approach to budget cutting.

This would involve agreements in advance between congressional leaders and the White House on where cuts can be made in programs.

Ford's statements about the economy brought a mixed reaction from members of Congress.

Chairman Wilbur Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee said he agreed with the President that wage and price controls cannot be reimposed now. But Mills said it is possible they will be needed in the future.

House Banking Committee Chairman Wright Patman said he didn't share Ford's confidence that voluntary wage and price guidelines would tame inflation, but was willing to give it a try.

On other issues, Ford said: —Administration economic advisers have suggested that if the economy worsens the government ought to provide more public service jobs. "We will approach this problem with compassion and action where there is a need for it," Ford said.

—His nomination of Nelson A. Rockefeller to be vice president and his statement on amnesty for Vietnam war resisters are not "views that fall in the political spectrum right or left," Ford said. "I don't think I have deviated from my basic philosophy nor have I deviated from what I think is the right action."

"I will probably be a candidate in 1976." The President called himself and Rockefeller a good team, "but of course the final judgment in this matter will be that of the delegates to the national convention."

—Rockefeller will take over Ford's responsibility of heading the subcommittee of the Domestic Council on privacy and will make a significant contribution to foreign policy formulation.

—A new attitude from Cuba toward the United States and its Latin neighbors could lead to U.S. re-evaluation of its policy. "But before we made any change, we would certainly act in concert with the other members of the Organization of American States," Ford said.

Hunt Is Pushed For Mexican President's Father-In-Law, Abducted By Guerrillas

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) — Police and troops searched through Guadalajara and Jalisco state today for the 83-year-old father-in-law of Mexico's president and the guerrillas who kidnaped him.

Officials would not comment on a report that the kidnapers demanded $1.6 million and the release of "political prisoners" in exchange for white-haired Jose Guadalupe Zuno Hernandez.

The kidnaping on a busy street in the middle of the nation's second largest city was the most daring exploit in a long string of guerrilla activities in Mexico in the past two years.

It put President Luis Echeverria in a tough spot since he has repeatedly said in the past year that the government would not negotiate with kidnapers. The guerrillas have killed several persons when their ransom demands were not met.

The police and the army set up roadblocks at major junctions and on the highways leading out of Guadalajara after Zuno was seized at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday at one of the city's busiest intersections, a few blocks from the Jalisco state government headquarters.

Witnesses said four men armed with pistols and submachine guns pulled the old man and his chauffeur from their car, beat the chauffeur to the ground, bundled Zuno into another car and sped away, spraying the area with tear gas.

various parts of the city identified the kidnapers as members of the People's Armed Revolutionary Front, which kidnaped U.S. Consul-General Terrance G. Leonhardy last year. The state government denied this, but the denial was suspect since state officials issued a false denial of a similar report when Leonhardy was kidnaped.

There was no comment from Echeverria. His wife flew to Guadalajara to be with her family as soon as word of the kidnaping reached Mexico City.

Zuno, a veteran member of the left wing of the party that has ruled Mexico since 1929, was a former mayor of Guadalajara and was governor of Jalisco state in the mid-1920s. He is a retired army general and has held several appointive government posts in the state.

Two guerrilla groups are known to be operating in Guadalajara, apparently independently. They are the Revolutionary Front, which released the American consul-general on payment of $80,000 and the freeing of 30 political prisoners, and the 23rd of September Communist League. The League kidnaped a young millionaire and the honorary British consul on the same day last October, killed the millionaire and released the consul unharmed, although no ransom was paid.

UNDER FORD'S AMNESTY PLAN— Saxbe Says He Doesn't Think Many Draft Dodgers Will Return To U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe said today that he doubts many Vietnam-era draft dodgers will return to the United States under President Ford's amnesty plan.

Ford has said that some form of amnesty will be offered draft evaders and deserters, and has asked the Justice Department and the Pentagon to make recommendations for such a program.

Saxbe, referring to his contention that amnesty should require at least an acknowledgment of wrongdoing by the individual, said he doubted many draft-law fugitives would take advantage of the offer because "they do not want to make this act of contrition. They don't want to have to come back and society doesn't cause crime, say 'We were wrong.'" Saxbe said in an interview on the NBC-TV "Today" show.

Discussing the nation's increasing crime rate, Saxbe said: "The problem is that we've tried to use gimmicks on crime. None of them have worked very well. We've got to go back to the old concept that

Midland Grandmother Wins Child's Benefits On Appeal

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal appeals court has reversed a lower court and ordered payment of Social Security insurance benefits for a Texas grandmother.

The Department of Health, Education, and Welfare had denied Mary A. Broussard of Midland child insurance benefits when she applied for insurance payments for herself and her grandson, Douglas Fox, upon the death of her husband.

HEW ruled that she was not entitled to benefits for her grandson because the Broussards had not officially adopted Douglas.

A three-judge panel of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed an earlier decision by Judge Dorwin W. Suttle upholding the agency's ruling. Judge Homer Thornberry wrote in an opinion for the court that the Secretary of HEW had applied too strict a

Most Juvenile Courts Viewed By Many As Little Else But A Farce

By TOM TIEDE
PHILADELPHIA (NEA) — Juvenile Court in this birthplace of democracy is a series of small and careless rooms in which hypocrisy and justice are administered in uneven measures.

Unlike adult court, the rooms are decorated with Boys' Life paintings which depict families cavorting on mountaintops and happy lads playing baseball.

Also unlike adult court, the defendants sometimes appear without counsel, they often do not understand the proceedings or even know the charges against them, and they stand all during trials as if it were naught but sentencing time.

It is in the view of many little else but a farce. The kids facing the bench are mostly poor, mostly black and mostly without even rudimentary safeguards.

The Supreme Court did decide (in 1967) that juveniles were entitled to Constitutional guarantees in court, about time, but in fact they are still little more than non-people facing a brief and often cruel kind of non-justice.

Unlike adults, juveniles in Philadelphia (and the rest of America), are not entitled to bail or jury and the conduct of court proceedings is haphazard and variable.

Hearsay is frequently allowed, public defenders seldom employ the adversary system and when it's all over, the punishments are not made to fit the crimes, but the children.

Legally illegitimate

At least one judge here says the whole proceedings are legally illegitimate. Lois Forer, named to the Philadelphia bench two years ago, refused to sit in family court because: "In fact, the juvenile is not a world of the child with its care and protection, or in the world of the adult with its rules and rights. The juvenile is in limbo, the place to which worthless things are relegated."

The same description might fairly be made for the whole system of juvenile justice in America. Police can arrest children for offenses — such as "incorrigibility" and "waywardness" — which do not even exist in the adult community. Children can be tried in proceedings so quick and hurried — judges regularly hear 30-35 juvenile cases a day — that only the written record remembers what has happened.

And even when they're not guilty of crime, but just unfortunate in their selection of parents, the kids can be sentenced to jails, farms, "schools," even mental institutions where they can be kept until adults decide another course.

Of course, the system is not meant to be so devastating. It is actually a charitable "reform" of the nation's original method of handling youthful offenders: the same way as adults. In an effort to remove children from the punitive courts, 19th century social experimenters created the concept of "juvenile justice."

And to a large measure, the change did extract many kids from the rubber hose and changing judiciary systems of the 1800s, but early hopes of treatment-oriented disposition of juveniles were dashed on the rocks of a slipshod society.

For seven decades after the first juvenile court, children were not considered people by the Constitution. Even the 1967 Supreme Court ruling has not changed this entirely. Children are still considered state chattel, when courts deem it necessary, they can be removed from home, at the say of a judge in 10 minutes, and be kept in institutions indefinitely for nothing more serious than school truancy.

So far has the original concept of juvenile justice fallen, in fact, that the country does not even have a good count of those kids who experience it. Officials can only estimate that each year 1½ to 2 million children under 18 fall into the hands of the law, perhaps 300,000 of them winding up incarcerated.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare estimates that one of six boys and one of nine girls will be arrested before age 18. For the majority, the middle class and up, the experience will be seldom more than temporary; for the poor it can be long and chilling.

Large American cities witness the tragic consequences of juvenile justice daily. Poor children of deceased parents are put in mental institutions because other facilities are full. Neglected youngsters are placed in "temporary homes," which turn out to be lockups, and occasionally escape by committing suicide.

Pushed Out

Kids deemed by lethargic school administrators to be "troublemakers" are pushed out of class, then swept off the streets by police, and sentenced to reformatories by judges who can think of no other recourse.

This is not to say the kids are all totally innocent. The FBI reports that almost half of all serious crimes in the nation are now committed by minors.

Age 15 is an especially dangerous juncture. They kill, beat old ladies, work junk. Fred Taylor, child advocate with the Washington-based For the Love of Children, admits: "Some kids have to be jailed, just as some adults must."

But do they have to be jailed from a courtroom where basic civil rights are violated? And do they have to be jailed in penitentiary ghettos where they are subject to sexual attack, brutal guards and inadequate maintenance?

There are better ways. And today, unless children are fortunate enough to have working parents, mistakes like this, given a child's lack of full societal rights, may escalate into incredibly entangled legalistic horrors.

When she was a juvenile lawyer, Judge Lois Forer says she used to hear the same plea over and over from kids in trouble: "No one will listen, no one will listen."

Indeed, the ears as well as the eyes of juvenile justice are too often closed to the ruination it provokes.

Ostensibly, the concept of juvenile justice is to nip potential criminals in the bud, to make the nation of tomorrow safer; in fact entire generations of angry kids have grown up knowing that convicted felon Spiro Agnew can go free but habitual truant Johnny Jones must pay — it is not a lesson of which the courts, the prisons or the public can be proud.

Toys Made To Help Retarded

By KILEY ARMSTRONG
MANSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — A "flying saucer" that rocks and turns and a plastic box with beads that bounce have been selected winners in a toy contest judged by retarded children.

Louis Boly, training director of the state's Mansfield Training School for the mentally retarded, said the toys will be used to reinforce learning in profoundly and severely retarded children. Playing with a toy is sometimes a more appealing reward than food, he said.

Toys designed for profoundly and severely retarded children must be safer and more durable than those on the general toy market.

Excellent Toys

"It has to be free from hazards such as something you can swallow or take apart. A lot of commercial toys are excellent, but they're not durable," Boly said in a telephone interview.

Boly said some educational toys "move too quickly. For the retarded child, it must be broken down into steps." Good toys must have color, form, movement and sounds that hold children's interest.

The rocking flying saucer, designed by James Catalano of Berlin, was declared an instant winner when the children "wouldn't get off it." The jumping beads toy was designed after a physical therapist requested equipment to help a child with balance problems learn to counteract slight movements.

The jumping beads toy, activated by static electricity when the box is rubbed, held the youngsters' attention and was easy to manipulate, the school judged. It was designed by Pamela Benjamin of Middletown.

Two-Way Benefit

The school will offer the toy designs to parents and schools across the nation, with the suggestion that mildly retarded or handicapped children in other schools produce the toys for the more severely retarded children. In this way the toys would benefit both those who play with them and those who make them.

Boly said that good toys for the retarded are not commercially available because it is unprofitable to produce them. However, the winning toys in the Mansfield contest could be manufactured for any child because of their durability and appeal, he said.

Boly termed the contest, sponsored by the school and the University of Connecticut School of Engineering, successful, and said another will be held next year.

"The toy contest was one to get people turned on to mental retardation and handicapped people," he said.

SEX Is Taboo On Auto Tags

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — You won't find "SEX" on a New York State license plate.

It's among 245 three-letter combinations listed as taboo by the state Motor Vehicles Department since January 1973 when three-letter, three-number plates became standard issue.

"It is based loosely on a list provided by the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators," a department spokesman said.

"There's a long list — I mean it's bigger than this. They see a lot of weird things. Then we say, 'That's not weird,' and we take it off," the spokesman said.

Wild Accident Family Affair

PRAGUE (AP) — An elderly man disregarded the red signal and rushed across the street. A car braked to avoid knocking him down, skidded, the back door opened and a shopping bag followed by a young girl spilled out. A spectator cried out and rushed towards the car, which landed undamaged at the curb. An old woman was crying in the car.

The careless pedestrian turned out to be the father, the driver son, the girl who fell out daughter, the spectator another son and the lamenting woman inside mother of one and the same family. All ended well. The car was unscathed, the girl got up on her own, they picked up the spilled purchases and piled into the car.

Park Reservations System Sidetracked

WASHINGTON (AP) — An experimental reservation system for national park campsites has been dropped by the National Park Service, at least temporarily, because of a rash of trouble in the first two months of operation.

A Park Service spokesman said Wednesday the agency will let an interim contract for the reservation service expire today. Campsite reservations made on or before today will be honored, but beginning Friday the sites will be available on the first-come, first-served system used previously.

The reservation system was launched July 1 with a new company, Park Reservation System, Inc., of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, handling requests for 2,000 campsites in 20 parks. An unexpectedly large volume of telephone inquiries overloaded the company's rustic staff and the local phone facilities at the outset.

The reservation system began working better as publicity emphasized mail applications and as telephone service improved, the Park Service said. But disagreements developed between the Park Service and the contractor over contract terms, and both sides decided not to sign a five-year contract that was planned as a follow-up to the interim agreement.

New VA Boss Has Souvenir

WASHINGTON (AP)—Richard Goodrich, incoming chief of the Veterans Administration, has been given a hammer as a souvenir from three persons who barged into his office and nailed the door shut so they could personally protest cutbacks in a GI education bill.

The three were arrested after the incident Wednesday and spent the night in jail, charged with destruction of government property, police said.

Police identified the three as Ellen G. Hawkins, 28, and Gerald Orrego, 31, both of New York City, and John E. Smith, 31, of West Hartford, Conn.

SOUTHEAST OF HUE— South Vietnamese Mount Counterblow

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — South Vietnamese troops launched counterattacks southeast of Hue today to drive off Communist forces menacing the area along Highway 1, the Saigon command said.

The command said North Vietnamese gunners shelled a dozen government outposts along the main north-south highway 13 to 15 miles southeast of Hue on Wednesday and overran three of the small posts.

Lt. Col. Do Viet, a command spokesman, said the attacks appeared to be a probe of government defenses in preparation for an attack on the La Son infantry base overlooking the highway.

Viet said the Communist forces fired more than 2,000 artillery rounds. He claimed that 120 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were killed and said government casualties were two killed, nine wounded and 50 missing.

It was the heaviest fighting in the region south of Hue in several months. The North Vietnamese have been waging a hard campaign in the northern part of the country, but it is taking place south of Da Nang, which is 50 miles south of Hue.

Soviet Cosmonauts Return To Earth At Night

MOSCOW (AP) — Tass reported with apparent relief today that the two Soyuz 15 cosmonauts were "feeling well" after their mission was cut short and they were forced to make the first night landing in the history of the Soviet space program.

Something evidently went wrong, though Soviet officials were not saying what it was.

The flight by cosmonauts Gennady Sarafanov and Lev Demin lasted only 48 hours, in contrast to the 16 days two other cosmonauts were up in Soyuz 14 last month.

Soyuz 15 also did not link up with Salyut 3, the orbiting space laboratory that the Soyuz 14 men spent two weeks aboard, although initial announcements said Sarafanov and Demin were continuing the work of the earlier crew.

And the customary reference to "successful completion of the mission" was absent from the Tass report today on Soyuz 15.

A further indication that something went wrong was the landing at night in what Tass said was a "difficult meteorological situation."

The Soviet news agency said Soyuz 15 came down late Wednesday night in northern Kazakhstan, several hundred miles north of the usual landing area. Although Tass said this was the "predetermined area," it added: "The search and recovery complex ensued in a difficult meteorological situation, speedy detection of the descent module and the evacuation of the cosmonauts."

"Medical examination carried out on the landing site has shown that Sarafanov and Demin are in good health," it added.

In its earlier announcement Wednesday that the flight was being terminated, Tass said Soyuz 15 approached the space lab many times but did not dock. A British schoolteacher who monitors space shots as a hobby said he observed the two space ships early Wednesday visually and the smaller — Soyuz 15 — was "quite some distance ahead, meaning, of course, that it had overshoot."

This aroused speculation that Sarafanov had exhausted his fuel reserve in maneuvering.

It was also assumed that the cosmonauts were testing equipment to be used in the joint Soviet-American space flight next July, in which a Soviet Soyuz ship and an American Apollo will join up in space to develop rescue procedures. But James C. Fletcher, administrator of the U. S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration, denied this.

Such a linkup has not been possible previously because the Soviet and American spacecraft did not have compatible docking equipment. Fletcher said the Russians told NASA that neither Soyuz 15 nor its predecessor last month had the docking mechanism to be used on the Apollo-Soyuz flight next year.

However, American astronauts training in the Soviet Union during the Soyuz 14 mission said at the time that they were briefed on the flight, and Soviet spokesmen said then that its main purpose was to test technical and hardware for the joint effort.

Warning Issued That Food Production May Not Keep Ahead Of Population

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — The world's agricultural production may not keep ahead of its population growth, even with the application of modern technology, the deputy director of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization warned the World Population Conference Wednesday.

Ray Jackson emphasized that in almost 40 per cent of the developing countries, food production has failed to keep up with population growth, and in almost two-thirds of the so-called Third World it has not kept up with the increase in domestic demand.

Consequently, he continued, much of the world has come to rely increasingly on the North American "bread basket," which now supplies more than half the world's wheat and other food grains and about 80 per cent of its soybeans.

But Lester Brown of the Overseas Development Council in Washington, D.C., warned that by being "a supplier of food to the rest of the world," the United States may be put in the position of having to decide who is fed and who starves.

North America is not immune to drought, frost and other vagaries of weather as well as economic and political disruptions, he continued.

Former Rights Worker Accused In Burglaries

HOUSTON (AP) — Lee Otis Johnson, 35, a former civil rights worker, was held in lieu of $80,000 bond today after being charged with burglary.

Johnson surrendered to police Tuesday night. He is accused of taking television and stereo equipment from two southwest Houston homes. The warrants were issued Aug. 12.

Johnson, a laborer, was released from prison after a federal judge overturned a 30-year sentence assessed him for giving one marijuana cigarette to an undercover agent. He served four years of his term, which began in 1968.

Damage Claims Approved In LA

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Los Angeles City Council has unanimously approved another five property damage claims resulting from the May 17 shootout between police and the Symbionese Liberation Army.

The claims approved on Wednesday amounted to more than $12,500 and bring the total approved by the council to nearly $18,000.

Five claims were denied and five more claims remain to be settled, Councilman Marvin Braude said.

The largest payment was $5,000 to Mrs. Minnie Lewis, who lived in the house where the SLA members battled police. City Attorney Burt Pines said Mrs. Lewis is legally blind and lost all her personal property in the fire which followed the shootout in which six SLA members died.

Proxmire Assails Rockefeller Record As King-Size Spender

WASHINGTON (AP) — When it comes to being a potential head of the government's anti-inflation drive, Nelson Rockefeller's shortcomings "stand out like a skunk at a family picnic," Sen. William Proxmire said today in a statement.

President Ford made no reference at a news conference Wednesday to such an assignment for his vice presidential nominee, but Proxmire, D-Wis., said there have been reports this would be the first big job given Rockefeller.

Proxmire called the former New York governor "an excellent choice" for vice president, a nomination subject to approval by both the Senate and the House.

But he said that "Rockefeller will have to reverse his field with a vengeance" at a time "when the country needs the kind of economic leadership that calls for restraint in public spending across the board."

"As governor, Rockefeller sponsored a huge public works program largely for highways, ran up the state's public debt, exploited federal spending programs, and increased taxes a mammoth 500 per cent," Proxmire said.

Proxmire, vice chairman of the Senate-House Economic Committee, also questioned whether Rockefeller with his inherited wealth, his reputation as a "military hawk" and his associations with big business was suited to lead a fight against inflation.

Letters being received by members of Congress in opposition to Rockefeller's nomination refer to him as a big spender during his 15 years as governor of New York and also as being too liberal.

New York Gets 315-Acre Estate

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — New York received a 315-acre Adirondack estate from the Post Foundation this month, and officials are wondering what to do with it.

The 28-building resort complex at Upper St. Regis Lake, formerly known as Camp Topridge, was owned by the late Marjorie Merrweather Post, heiress of the Post cereal fortune. It includes a main lodge and guest houses.

The State Office of General Services said on Wednesday that officials are conducting inventories of the facilities. One possibility is using the retreat for training seminars and meetings of state employees, a spokesman said.

Whether the remote lakeside estate will be opened to the public has not yet been determined, the spokesman said.

39 Persons Charged In Hobbs Drug Raid

HOBBS, N.M. — Twenty-four Hobbs residents, including two juveniles, and fifteen other persons have been charged in the largest single drug raid in this city's history, conducted by more than 90 New Mexico lawmen Wednesday.

The early morning raid resulted in officials from four law agencies serving search and arrest warrants at 24 residences. Suspects ranged in age from 15 to 64 years and charges were for the sale of heroin, LSD, Methadone, amphetamines and other narcotic substances.

A total of 80 narcotics counts have been filed against 39 persons, according to Police Det. Sgt. K. P. Wright.

The raids, which culminated three months of intensive investigation, were led by officers from the Hobbs Police Department, New Mexico State Police, Lea County Sheriff's Department and New Mexico Mounted Patrol.

The two juveniles netted in the raid were released to juvenile authorities, and the 18 adults who were arraigned before Magistrate Don Hallam in Hobbs Wednesday were reported still in custody.

Guilty Pleas Heard In District Court

Several guilty pleas were heard Wednesday in Judge Percy Pickett's 142nd District Court.

John Charles Cherry and Danny Ray Cherry, both of 2901-1-A W. Louisiana St., were given five-year probation sentences in connection with the theft of four halters and five brides from the Vaiton Smith and Hammond Padgett farms here.

Probation of five years also was given to Gary Strickland, Pete Sommer and Ruben Bustillos, all of Midland. They were sentenced in connection with the recent burglary of Midland Youth Center.

Terry Lee Burchers of Midland had his probation revoked and was sentenced to five years in prison for theft by bailie.

A probation of five years for Rita Bob Jones of Midland for passing a forged instrument, also was revoked.

Auto Burglaries Reported In City

Several burglaries of automobiles were reported to Midland police Wednesday, with the main object of attraction to burglars being tape players and tapes.

Charles Edward Thomas, 4000 W. Illinois St., told officers a tape deck and one tape had been taken from his car.

Judy Parker, 408 N. N. St., also reported that a tape deck and headphones had been taken from her car.

Katherine Caveny, 1409 W. Michigan St., reported that a tape player and four tapes had been taken from her car either Tuesday or Wednesday.

Rhonda Horton, 1403 W. Michigan St., told officers a tape player had also been taken from her husband's van.

$88 Shed Valued At $511.67 For Tax Purposes

COCOA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — When James Higdon purchased an aluminum utility shed for $88, he thought he was getting a good buy. The Brevard County tax assessor apparently agreed, valuing the shed for tax purposes at $511.67.

The only addition Higdon said he made on the shed behind his home was a floor, built out of scrap lumber.

"I would sure be glad to sell it at their figure," he said. "I would be glad to sell it to the tax assessor."

Suspect Charged In Laffoon Slaying

AUSTIN (AP) — An Austin man, John Gardner, 27, has been charged with murder in the strangulation death of Richard Laffoon, 26, whose body was found in Lake Travis July 12 with a concrete block tied around his neck.

Chief Investigator Jim Collier of the sheriff's department said, "Apparently Laffoon had hauled a load of cocaine to Austin. There was a mix-up on the sale, possibly a shortage of cocaine."

Collier said the drug ring in which Laffoon allegedly worked operated from "somewhere in the (Rio Grande) Valley."

Gardner's bond was set at $100,000.

He has been held in Travis County jail since July 16 on charges of possession of marijuana.

Odessa College Hires Midlander

Midland resident Stanley Carol Williams has been hired on a four-and-a-half month contract as an English instructor at Odessa College.

He received his bachelor of arts, master of theology and master of liberal arts from Southern Methodist University and a master of arts degree from Brown University in Providence, R. I.

Williams previously taught as a part-time ethics, marriage and family instructor in Corsicana and was an English instructor in Beaumont.

Six Young Inmates Flee; Four Return

RUSK, Tex. (AP) — Six teenage inmates walked away from the Rusk State Hospital late Wednesday night but four returned voluntarily.

Dr. Lex Neill, hospital superintendent, said the emotionally disturbed youths, ages 14 to 19, were not subject to security measures but were not supposed to leave the hospital without permission.

Houston Votes Lower Bus Fares

HOUSTON (AP) — Reduction of city bus fares for persons 65 or older has been approved by the city council.

Councilmen approved Wednesday a flat rate of 25 cents for senior citizens who ride at certain hours on the city-owned bus lines.

Regular fares start at 45 cents and can go as high as 65 cents for trips through four zones.

The new fare for 65-year-olds goes into effect Oct. 1. It will be effective all day on Saturday and Sunday and holidays and on week days between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. and after 6 p.m.

President, Wife Host Dinner Fete

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford and his wife hosted an informal dinner party Wednesday night for Cabinet members and top officials and led their guests in dancing for more than an hour.

The dinner began a few hours after Ford's first presidential news conference and he confessed that he had been nervous at first. But Ford said he quickly got over that and by the time the news conference was over, "I enjoyed it."

Vice President-designate Nelson A. Rockefeller and his wife, Happy, were among the 54 guests at the party and stayed overnight as the Ford's first White House guests.

32,256 Tennis Balls Are Stolen

CITY OF COMMERCE, Calif. (AP) — Tennis anyone?

If you need balls, a thief has 32,256 of them. Now sheriff's deputies are trying to find out who he is and where he's got them.

A spokesman said the man entered the Wilson Sporting Goods Warehouse in this Los Angeles suburb Wednesday. He brandished a .33-caliber revolver, tied up four employees and two customers.

With the help of a companion, deputies said, the man then climbed aboard a warehouse forklift and spent one hour loading 448 cases of tennis balls into a rented truck. Then he sped away.

Nothing else was taken, a spokesman said.

Mathematician Dies In Fall From Tree

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A Nashville teen-ager who was considered one of the best young mathematicians in the world has been killed in a fall from a tree in his backyard.

Killed on Wednesday was Gerhard C. Arenstorf, 17, who last month traveled to East Germany and tied for second-place honors on the first United States team ever to participate in the International High School Mathematical Olympiad.

Police said Gerhard was alone in the tree — a favorite climbing obstacle — when he fell about 20 feet to the ground. Authorities said Arenstorf broke his neck, shoulder and arm.

Subpoena Delivered Personally To Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — A subpoena for former President Richard M. Nixon's testimony in the Watergate cover-up trial has been delivered personally to Nixon, a Justice Department spokesman said today.

Spokesman John Wilson said a representative of the U.S. Marshal Service served the subpoena on Nixon at 8:10 p.m. PDT Wednesday at his San Clemente, Calif., estate.

The subpoena was issued in U.S. District Court here Aug. 15 at the request of John D. Ehrlichman, a former Nixon adviser, who goes on trial Sept. 30 with five others on charges of conspiracy and obstruction of justice.

Ehrlichman is calling Nixon as a defense witness.

Wilson said Nixon also was served with a subpoena seeking a deposition in a civil suit brought by 21 persons alleging they were illegally prevented from attending a Nixon speech in Charlotte, N.C., in 1972.

Cosmonauts Set Third U.S. Visit

HOUSTON (AP) — Russian cosmonauts Alexei Leonov and Valery Kubasov, prime crewmen for the joint U.S.-Russian space mission July 15, will make their third visit to the Johnson Space Center Sept. 9 for three weeks of training.

Six Russian backup crewmen will also make the journey, their second visit here, a National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman said Wednesday.

Plans call for the Russian and American spacecraft to launch separately, attempt to dock in earth orbit, then return to earth separately.

Rocky Sleeps In White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President-designate Nelson A. Rockefeller, who has been seeking to be elected president for about 15 years, slept in the White House on Wednesday night.

The former New York governor and his wife were invited to stay overnight by President and Mrs. Ford following a party for Cabinet members.

Offered a choice, the Rockefeller's picked the Lincoln bedroom. Mrs. Rockefeller said she hoped to see the ghost of Abraham Lincoln, which is said to appear occasionally.

'It Is Just Great!'

"Midland Memorial Hospital is a marvelous institution! I doubt if very many Midlanders know and appreciate what a wonderful facility it is!"

This was the enthusiastic observation of Mrs. R. W. (Ruth) McVay Jr. of Levelland, directed by telephone from a room in the hospital to the editor of The Reporter-Telegram.

"It is just great!" she continued, "and I just wanted to tell the people of Midland about it."

"And the Hospital Auxiliary members . . . they are wonderful. I am going to try to organize an auxiliary in our new hospital at Levelland when I get back home and am able to work at it. They provide so many extra services."

Mrs. McVay, who formerly managed an abstract company at Levelland for a quarter of a century, stopped lauding the hospital and its staff long enough to say that she has been in-and-out of Midland Memorial a number of times during the last four years, under treatment of Midland doctors, whom she also praised in every respect.

The hospital nurses likewise came in for their share of praise for their "wonderful care and attention beyond the normal call of duty."

"And all the other hospital attendants have been just wonderful," Mrs. McVay added.

The pastor of a Midland church also was praised for his interest and visits.

Neither did she overlook a number of Midland residents who "were thoughtful enough to call on me and offer to be of any possible service."

And you are most thoughtful and kind, Mrs. McVay, to express your gratitude to all concerned in this manner. Thanks!

'Anything But A Dawdler'

Women shoppers come in for a lot of conversation of one kind or another . . . but they get the job done and keep the stores open.

They are sometimes accused of taking too much time in making up their minds in shopping, but a Kentucky Utility Co. publication refutes this charge, as follows:

"Research experts say that the average American woman shopper is anything but a dawdler. She can scan and identify as many as 350 items a minute on supermarket shelves. And, she can make up her mind about what she wants in one-fifth of a second."

"No wonder label experts vie to catch that flashing glance and make it register their products."

'Try To Stay Together, Fellas'

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Jack Anderson and Les Whitten Say: Documents reveal Saigon horrors.

WASHINGTON — Rumors of injustice and corruption in Saigon have always been rife, but only rarely do secret documents from South Vietnam's own leaders confirm the existence of such sordid conditions.

The documents, directly from the files of Premier Tran Thien Khiem, show that prisoners were held without trial for up to five years and that others were acquitted but remained locked up.

In classified memos begging his ministers of justice and interior and the national police chief to discipline their underlings, the premier, a reputedly decent man, admits such horrors exist.

"Persons have been indicted and held for exceedingly long periods of time without being brought to trial," Khiem said. There are "191 prisons . . . in Chu Doc re-education center; many have been held for two to five years without trial."

Some suspects, including a "peasant woman from Ba Xuyen" were held without trial, then transferred to another camp where "they were virtually forgotten." Eventually, they were found not guilty.

But even those proven guilty may languish in prison, Khiem complained. "After being acquitted or given suspended sentences (victims) were nonetheless held in prison (in) An Xuyen and Chau Doc provinces." Some of these abuses, wrote Khiem, can be eliminated if "dishonest officials" are fired. Three-Point Program

In a three-point program, the premier urges his interior, justice and national police aides to accord suspects their rights and come down on recalcitrant police who "decrease the honor of the national police forces and prestige of the government."

Footnote: In fairness, it should be said that the police and the prison system in North Vietnam are worse. In our visits to Vietnam and talks with captured Communists, we have found little evidence that Hanoi believes in the humane treatment of prisoners. And the torture stories of U.S. POWs, for example, brought no call for prison reform from North Vietnamese leaders.

BEATLE BLUES: In a case with Watergate overtones, ex-Beatle John Lennon is being hustled out of the United States on a six-year-old hush-hush charge while more than a hundred aliens with similar or worse drug records remain. The singer-composer's major problem does not appear to be his 1968 guilty plea in England to unwitting possession of a small amount of 'hash.' Rather, his offense seems to be outspoken opposition to the Vietnam war and false rumors that he was going to lead a demonstration against Richard Nixon at the 1972 GOP convention.

We have learned that Lennon's serious troubles with the Immigration and Naturalization Service, a branch of the Justice Department, began after Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., began to find him troublesome.

In early 1972, Thurmond wrote a note about Lennon's activities to his friend, then Atty. Gen.

and seven other arrests. Another was described in Immigration files as one of "the largest suppliers of marijuana and narcotics" in his area. At one time, an alien himself admitted to a "heroin habit costing $60 a day."

Compared to these, Lennon looks like a choir boy.

Unlike many other foreign stars who make big money in the United States and run, Lennon has begged for permission to remain here. His musical enterprises have generated some $50 million worth of business and brought untold tax revenues to local state and federal collectors.

"The legendary singing star has summed up his feelings about the immigration mess and his love for the United States this way:

"Nobody came to bug us, hauled us or shoo us, so we decided to make (the U.S.) our home. If the Man wants to shove us out, we gonna jump and shout, 'The Statue of Liberty said, 'come!'"

Footnote: A spokesman for Immigration chief Leonard Chapman said the Lennon case is being handled in a "routine way." Retired District Director Marks declined comment.

However, South never opened four-card majors. Most five-card majorities would make an exception and open one heart, but South was going to rise and fall with a silly short club.

Everything might have been fine if good old West hadn't stuck in a nonvulnerable four-spade bid. North wasn't going to be shut out. He Blackwooded but settled for a six-club bid, in spite of South showing both missing aces.

East was too happy to double. He just waited and collected three trump tricks.

RAY CROMLEY Confusion Compounds U.S. Energy Problems

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Overnight it seems the federal bureaucracy forgot the lessons of the wheat deal with Russia — an arrangement through which we subsidized exports, created costly scarcities at home and cheated both farmer and consumer.

A major part of the problem, it later was discovered, was that one section of the government did not know what other sections were doing.

Crucial information never reached the people who needed it to make appropriate decisions.

This reporter now has learned that at the height of the gas shortage when it was apparent that there would have to be unprecedented power conservation and development efforts, when officials in concerned agencies were fighting to get all available materials to the energy industry, others, often within the same agencies, were approving major exports of these same scarce materials with direct and indirect subsidies to be paid by the American taxpayer.

Item: Already-approved nuclear power plants were behind schedule because of materials shortages — notably heavy reinforcing bars and specialized pumps and valves.

The domestic section of the Atomic Energy Commission, therefore, was working overtime to scrape up that equipment and get it to the plant builders. At the same point in time, the Export-Import Bank and the foreign section of the AEC were approving subsidies to speed the export of identical equipment, adding to the delay in plant building and slowing development of new electric power supplies here.

Item: While one government office charged with boosting U.S. oil production was attempting to ferret out scarce oilwell casing, off-shore drilling rigs and other essential equipment at skyrocketing prices, the Export-Import Bank was pushing for low-cost loans to subsidize exports. And succeeding all too frequently, according to men responsible for handling the energy crisis equipment shortage.

Item: The same cross-purpose problems have arisen in the subsidize-export vs save-for-domestic-use fights over geothermal, coal mining and refinery equipment, large centrifugal pumps of all sizes and supplies for building deepwater ports.

Even when there has been coordination, the loopholes have at times been ridiculous past understanding. For example, if heavy trucks were to be exported for some other purpose, say for use in iron or mining operations, no approval was needed. But the export of these heavy trucks, in short supply, handicaps the domestic energy.

Discrimination In Employment

Dear Editor: The No. 1 Unpardonable Sin these days is for an employer to prefer some particular color, sex, brain capacity, etc., when he is hiring.

This is called Discrimination and Discrimination in Employment has been outlawed by the acts of numerous lawmakers who, presumably, select their own helpers by throwing darts at a board full of names.

The only legally blessed Discrimination in Employment nowadays is refusing to hire anybody who won't split his pay check with a labor union boss. D. E. SCOTT Crossroads, U.S.A.

IN SOUTH KOREA — Campaign Of Repression Brings Desperate Action

By NEA/London Economist News Service. SEOUL (LENS) — President Park of South Korea wrote to the president demanding the withdrawal of the emergency decrees — the latter himself was a violation of these decrees — and threatening to hold an anti-government rally.

The president's campaign of repression against his country's dissidents is driving the survivors, it seems, to some desperate action.

The shooting came just after South Korea's military tribunals, which have swallowed up 135 alleged traitors since January, had claimed their most prominent victims so far. The offenses were the now standard ones of aiding a so-called student conspiracy and inciting rebellion. But the punishments appear to have been tailored to fit the prestige of the criminals.

The 77-year-old former president of Korea, Yun Po Sun, was judged as guilty as the rest but his prison sentence of three years was suspended for five years. The Catholic Bishop of Wonju, the minister of a Presbyterian church in Seoul and a professor of American history at Yonsei University were each given 15 years; the dean of Yonsei's theological college was let off with ten but the head of the Korean Students' Christian Federation got 20.

These sentences, light by recent Korean standards, had been seen as evidence that President Park was starting to respond, however marginally and reluctantly, to local and international protests against his increasingly repressive rule.

Last month, after demonstrations in Japan and discreet warnings from American diplomats, the death sentences meted out to Korea's best-known poet, Kim Chi Ha, and four student leaders were commuted to life imprisonment.

But nine lesser-known Koreans still remain under sentence of death. And, as if to refute any charges of leniency, the poet's lawyer was arrested and jailed last week for speaking too freely in his defense brief. There is likely to be less leniency after the death of the president's wife.

The arrest of the Bishop of Wonju, who has long been the most outspoken of Korea's Catholic clergymen, seems to have mobilized Korean Christians to a new level of political activism. The National Council of Churches, representing two-

Author Stresses Safety On Bikes

By ELLIE GROSSMAN
NEW YORK (NEA) — In "The New Complete Book of Bicycling" by Eugene A. Sloane, you will discover:

— that the Wright Brothers manufactured bicycles at one time;

— that 65-85 pedal strokes a minute is the most easily maintained pace for long trips;

— that in 1896 one John Kendrick Bangs wrote a farce called "The Bicyclers";

— that American Airlines will send you a plastic bag, for $3, to put your bike in for the flight;

— how to choose, equip, repair and dress for your bicycle; and more than you could ever possibly want to know about gear ratios.

What Sloane is stressing in the book, however, and in a current transcontinental promotion tour (pedaling into metropolitan areas from the airport) is bicycle safety.

Smartly outfitted in a blue-and-white striped seersucker jumpsuit, orange jacket — the better to be seen with — and double-padded mittens (for comfort and to brush broken glass from bicycle tires), the former public relations man expresses strong feelings on the subject.

"The Department of Consumer Education of HEW thinks it's really doing something for safety by just inexplicably, bike sales legislation for reflectors on an epidemic effect and after bikes. Reflectors are fine," he says, "but most people don't ride bikes at night."

"Forty thousand people are killed every year on bicycles, mostly kids between six and twelve, and accidents will increase because no one's teaching them how to ride safely."

Sloane, for example, always wears a crash helmet. "I have 50 different makes of crash helmets in my own private bike laboratory at home in Chicago." The miniature rear-view mirror attached to his glasses allows him to know what his "options are all the time. The drawback with it, and I only discovered this after the book was published, is that because it's only good for one eye, you don't have the depth perception and you can't gauge the speed of cars behind you."

He believes that children should pass a proficiency test to obtain a bicycle license and that parents should be able to revoke it.

"You insist that a 16-year-old get a license to drive a car," he says heatedly, "but you let him and younger children out in traffic on a bike with no training.

"I went to textbook publishers with a whole course designed to go into school systems: visual aids, test materials, etc., and no one would touch it. We can't sell what we're publishing now, they told me.

Well, you can't depend on parents or police departments to teach kids about bicycle safety, or even to check bikes for safety."

Though the hazards exist and he admits that "the more you expose yourself, the more likely you are to 'get it,' the fun and exercise aspects of bike riding are worth the risk.

"I try to do 30 miles a day to keep in shape," he says, "his blue eyes and tan skin clearly reflecting good health, "and I average five to six thousand miles a year. I've ridden in every western European country and in September we're going to France, to bike from Avignon to Nice."

At 58, looking 40, Sloane stopped riding a bike, like everyone else, when he got into high school because it was considered childish. "I only got on again when I was 40," he says, "to commute to work in Detroit."

He rapidly became addicted to bicycling as a way of life. At the time, such behavior was considered eccentric at best.

Then, inexplicably, bike sales just took off in '70. It was an epidemic effect and after he became the in thing for adults to do, it filtered down to teenagers.

Now, the Bicycle Institute of America, a trade association which estimates that there are 15.8 million Americans on bicycles. The industry itself is valued at $900 million.

Little wonder, then, that Sloane's book has sold 25,000 copies since publication in May, earning him $35,000 so far. His 1970 "Complete Book of Bicycling," which this edition updates, sold 125,000 copies, from which he pocketed $250,000.

He rides a $900 bike — which he accompanies him everywhere — much of it handmade, with a leather saddle that has 50,000 miles on it.

"It takes eight to ten thousand miles for the saddle to become comfortable," he explains. "The way to achieve that faster is to treat it with Lexol and beat it to death with a baseball bat."

The "end's" the thing in bicycling and Sloane advocates a leather saddle rather than nylon because, he says, "it will shape itself to your bottom, whereas plastic or nylon won't."

Knowing, Understanding Real Estate Terms Can Help Avoid Mistakes

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Knowing and understanding real estate terms can avoid misunderstanding in making preliminary decisions based on newspaper advertising and initial discussions.

If you know precisely what is meant, rather than having a general impression of the definition, you need not waste time looking at property that doesn't meet your needs. By request of Jon Hill, a project director of the Branigan Organization of Oak Brook, Ill., sent along a checklist of the most common terms:

—Primary Housing: Housing designed for permanent residency.

—Secondary Housing: Housing designed to serve as a second home or recreational-vacation home.

—Single-Family Detached Housing: Single-family dwelling which stands unattached from any other residential structure on a plot of land.

—Multi-Family Housing: Housing designed to accommodate more than one family with separate and distinct living units under one structure.

—Condominium: An individual, usually-owned cube of space in a multi-unit structure. When you purchase a residential condominium you acquire individual and absolute title to an interest in all common areas of the building and the land on which the building stands.

—Townhome: A type of multi-family housing in which you own the land that your unit is located on. The units may be built in clusters, generally resembling a large single-family detached home.

—Duplex: Two housing units combined into one single structure.

—Quadruplex: Four living units put together in one building surrounded by common-use grounds, such as sidewalks, driveways, landscaped areas.

—Amenities: Facilities and services that provide comfort and conveniences for community residents, and may include such facilities as a clubhouse, pool and tennis courts.

—Greenway: Open space, such as parkways, prairies or woodlands that are an integral portion of a community.

—Density: This refers to the number of living units per acre. There is a trend in today's market to consolidate housing in a community to achieve maximum open space, parks and greenways. The lower the density, the fewer housing units per acre.

—Planned Unit Development (PUD): A housing community with the following characteristics: dwelling units grouped into clusters, allowing an appreciable amount of land for open space; a mix of housing to include single-family detached, townhomes or apartments; higher densities than conventional single-family developments of the same acreage; and often part of the land used for nonresidential purposes, such as shopping and employment centers.

—Cluster Concept: Cluster is a way of planning and developing land that groups houses rather than spacing them regularly along gridiron and curvilinear streets. The remaining area is combined into common open space for the use of all residents.

—Satellite Community: A self-supporting, independent community developed within a metropolitan area.

Self-Made Sudanese Is Arab Example Of American Dream

EDITOR'S NOTE: Not all Arab-Americans are oil sheiks. A few self-made men in the Arab sphere rank among the world's leading entrepreneurs. One of these is Adnan Khashoggi, an Arab example of the Great American Dream.

By FRANK N. HAWKINS JR., KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — Well past midnight, the DC-9 smoothly touches down at Khartoum airport, unannounced except for the green stripe on the tail and the name Omartia in gold letters on the side. Two limousines are waiting.

A stocky Arab with twinkling eyes, his white robes flowing behind him, descends the ramp followed by American and Arab aides in Western business suits. The man in robes is Adnan Khashoggi, a self-made multi-millionaire from Saudi Arabia, the brains and driving force behind the Arab world's first multinational conglomerate, Triad. His name is not yet a household word. But he jets around the world in his private DC-9 and sees heads of state, juggles high finance and enjoys all the comforts and life style of the rich.

The scene here is repeated several times each week as Khashoggi, 38, jets from continent to continent building an empire and carrying the message of free enterprise with evangelistic zeal. Pilots of his luxuriously fitted plane estimate Khashoggi travels an exhausting 40,000 miles or more each month, visiting his various offices, homes and investments from Walnut Creek, Calif., to Phoenix, New York to Paris to Geneva, London, Beirut, Riyadh, Jeddah, Brazil and Indonesia.

"He practically lives on the plane," says one Khashoggi follower. That's not so hard. In the rear is a thickly carpeted bedroom that can sleep four and a full bath with shower. Forward is a wood-paneled office with telephone and wardrobe. In front of that, behind the flight deck and kitchen, is a living room seating 14 with a videotape television system. Khashoggi has two full-time American flight crews of two men each. The plane costs nearly a million dollars a year. It frees him from the restrictions of commercial airline schedules. Often he works during the day and flies at night.

Stopping in Khartoum for a few hours to check on his latest investments, Khashoggi visited a $200-million oil refinery and a $300-million cattle ranch, meat-packing and food-producing complex. Then he was off to Riyadh, then back to Beirut where his five children go to school and his lovely English-born wife Soraya, 27, makes her headquarters. Although the children are learning Arab culture and history as well as English, French and Arabic there, Mrs. Khashoggi says she doesn't regard herself as a Beirut resident. She says she lives wherever she happens to be.

Although Mrs. Khashoggi travels with her husband often, she has a growing reputation in Beirut as a professional photographer. Khashoggi himself has been mistakenly identified with Arab oil money. Virtually unnoticed, he has become one of the largest private entrepreneurs in the Middle East. Khashoggi got his start as a student at Chico State College in Northern California in the 1950s. His father, the personal physician to the late King Ibn Saud, sent him $10,000 to buy a car similar to those other Arab students had. Instead, Khashoggi put the money in the bank. "It's all memories now," he said in an interview on the flight from Beirut to Khartoum. "I had a contractor friend who told me about the tax advantages of leasing equipment. I got into that and the heavy truck business. I started marketing trucks in Saudi Arabia during summer holidays."

Heavy duty trucks, with large heavy tires and double radiator engines, were well-suited for hauling multi-ton loads through hot Arabian deserts. Khashoggi did so well with his investment that he eventually bought Kenworth, the company which made the trucks. With this success, Khashoggi broke off his education and went home. He became the well-paid representative for a number of American firms including Lockheed, Raytheon, Litton Industries, Teledyne and others, including Rolls-Royce of Britain and France's arms export agency, Sofma. Khashoggi's private wealth has been reliably estimated at $80 million, but when asked about this he says with a smile, "I don't owe anybody any money and I enjoy an element of mystery. So let your readers guess."

As a private entrepreneur, Khashoggi is driving to bring capitalism and free enterprise to the Arab world where royal and socialist governments control most of the wealth. Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1782, nearly 1,100 persons drowned when an English man-o-war sank while being repaired in the harbor at Portsmouth, England. In 1817, the first Abolition newspaper in the United States, the Philanthropist, was published in Mount Pleasant, Ohio. In 1901, the temperance crusader, Carry Nation, swung her hatchet in an attack on a New York saloon run by former heavyweight champion John L. Sullivan. In 1925, Queen Astrid of Belgium was killed in an auto accident in Switzerland. In 1943, Danish warships were scuttled at Copenhagen in an uprising against the Nazis during World War II. Five years ago: A Trans World airlines plane, with 113 persons aboard, was hijacked by Arab guerrillas and forced to land in Damascus while flying from Rome to Athens and Tel Aviv. One year ago: The White House announced that President Nixon would not comply with an order from Judge John Sirica to make tape recordings of Watergate conversations available to him for use by a grand jury. Today's birthdays: General Lyman Lemnitzer is 75. Actor Barry Sullivan is 62. ## Bush Says He's Not Disappointed In Not Being VP

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AP) — Republican National Chairman George Bush says he doesn't want to see former President Nixon prosecuted and that he's not disappointed at not being nominated vice president.

"I don't believe there is any mileage in pounding away at the last pound of (Richard Nixon's) flesh," Bush told newsmen on Tuesday at his vacation home in this Maine coastal community.

"I don't condone his actions, but in terms of hounding a person after this ignominy and this tremendously difficult experience, I would like to see prosecution averted."

Bush said he believed his view was shared by the "vast majority of Americans." Bush said he harbored no ill feelings at not winning Ford's nomination as vice president, a nomination that went to former New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller. "I have respect for Nelson Rockefeller. . . . I think President Ford picked an excellent man and I have no hard feelings at all," Bush said. The former Texas congressman and U.S. ambassador to the United Nations said Ford called him just before naming Rockefeller to the No. 2 post.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Bachelor, 25, Wants To Adopt A Child

By BETTY CANARY
Newspaper Enterprise Association

Polly's Problem
DEAR POLLY — I am a bachelor, 25, who wants to adopt a child. I have read in some magazines that other single males have done this but I do not know how to go about it.

I love children, know this is a great responsibility but am willing to assume it and feel I could do the job but would like to know how one goes about this. I do plan to get married some day when I find the right girl. I will be looking for an answer to my problem. — TERRY.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with buying an expensive coat and then finding there are no extra buttons attached. Often the buttons almost "make" the looks of a garment. When one is lost replacements can cheapen the looks of a coat that may have cost over $100. It seems that when paying that much there should be at least two extra buttons included.

I am also peeved about a recent experience trying to remove the price list that came attached to the window of a new car. Did I have the devil-of-a-time getting it scraped off with a razor blade — a little job that took about 45 minutes work. — MRS. K.H.

DEAR POLLY — and Lillie — I used 100 per cent moth crystals to remove a musty smell from valuable old papers. Generously sprinkle crystals in a brown paper bag, put the old papers in the bag and seal it. Leave for a few weeks. When opened the smell should be gone. — DOT.

DEAR POLLY — Lillie who has the old papers and Anne who has a cape with musty odors could put them in a box with that well-advertised product used in cat litter boxes. It is a splendid deodorant and I have found it has proven effective in so many cases. — MRS. D.A.

DEAR POLLY — When you have a vase that smells bad from flowers that have been left in it too long fill with water and add two or three of those fizzy tablets we take for colds. Let stand a few hours and rinse. The residue is gone and the vase has a fresh lemony smell. — SHIRLEY.

DEAR POLLY — When making pants that are to have elastic, run through the hem at the waist stitch down the seams on both sides for about two inches and you will not have them turning back as you run the elastic through the casing. — ELVIA.

Dear Abby

—By Abigail van Buren

Bride's Broken Beak Breaks Bank

DEAR ABBY: We drove 800 miles to attend the wedding of a relative. Our son was to be in the bridal party. The wedding was to take place at 4 p.m. on Saturday. On the Friday night before the wedding, the bride and bridegroom got into a fight and the bridegroom broke the bride's nose so the wedding was cancelled.

What do we do with the wedding gift we were going to take to the church? Who pays for the tuxedo our son rented for the occasion and never got to wear? And how about the motel bill?

I think the bride's parents who invited us here for nothing should help us out. Should we ask them?

STUCK IN ILLINOIS

DEAR STUCK: That's what you are. Stuck. Stuck for the wedding gift — unless you can return it. You're stuck for sure for your son's rented tuxedo, and you're stuck for the motel bill. And no, don't ask for the bride's parents to help you out. They've got enough trouble trying to comfort a bride with a broken nose.

DEAR ABBY: My husband died very suddenly not long ago. It was a terrible shock as he had been in the best of health and had no warning whatsoever. We had 43 good years together, which is more than many couples have, but somehow, I still feel cheated.

I was in such a state of shock when this happened that my eldest daughter took me to her home where I stayed for three weeks. When I returned to my own home, I was stunned to find that every trace of my beloved husband had been removed. Not one thing belonging to him remained!

My two daughters and one son (all married) took it upon themselves to go through my house and dispose of all their father's clothes. I broke right down and wept. They tried to explain that they thought they had done me a big favor.

Abby, wasn't it MY right to dispose of my late husband's things in my own good time? Perhaps I wanted some memories of him around. It's too late in my case, but please print this for others who one day may presume to do what my children did.

CRUSHED

DEAR CRUSHED: Please consider the motivation. They undoubtedly wanted to spare you what they thought would be an agonizing task. But you make a good point. Perhaps they should have asked.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 21-year-old male college student. I am being married in the near future. Both of us would like to have a big wedding and invite our many friends, but the cost would empty her parents' pocketbook.

My fiancée and I feel that the tradition that says her parents must foot the bill for the wedding is entirely outmoded, but I'm afraid her folks would feel hurt if my parents offered to chip in.

As it stands now, by future-in-laws feel a bit inadequate alongside my well-to-do family. If you can come up with a Newtimmers Meet

Mrs. Max Hendrick was the first place bridge winner when the Newtimmers Club met Tuesday in the Elks Club. Other winners were Mrs. J. W. Fitzgerald, second, and Mrs. Alvin Ochs, third.

Deadline Given For Publishing Wedding Stories

Thinking about having accounts of your engagement and wedding published in The Reporter-Telegram?

If the answer is in the affirmative, brides-to-be should visit the Women's Department of the newspaper and obtain information sheets and wedding forms in order to comply with the R-T policies on wedding stories, photographs and deadlines.

One of the new policy changes requires that wedding or engagement forms must be submitted before 5 p.m. Wednesday for publication in a Sunday paper.

Another important policy to be aware of is that wedding stories submitted more than five days after the wedding will not be published.

Taking Tours Of Historic Houses Suggested For Late Vacationers

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newstestares Writer

Late vacationers and those bored with activities enjoyed by their vacationing companions might opt for taking tours of old houses. Day trips or weekends at some historical places reached by train, bus or car can be rewarding junkets.

One might research a particular area or acquire a book. The recently published "Treasures of America and Where To Find Them" divides sightseeing of 5,000 houses, museums, buildings, monuments and historic sites into regional areas — you can see-saw from one state to another. The book with its hundreds of colorful illustrations provides a lot of incentive. You may find your favorite architecture in almost any area as the book indicates. Or you might enjoy a mix. For example, devotees of Victorian houses can find the quaint houses in almost any state. One built by silver king Horace Tabor is in Leadville, Colo., and another (with a 63-foot ballroom) built by copper king William Clark, is at Butte, Mont.

In Portland, Maine, there is one that reflects a blending of Greek, Italian and Romanesque architecture with an opulent flying staircase. A 30-room Victorian farm house with stenciled ceilings is an unusual treat for those in the vicinity of Fond du Lac, Wis., but there are interesting Victorian houses too at Franklin, Tenn., and in many areas of New England. At Hartford, Conn., there are some for literary buffs including the Victorian-Gothic where Samuel Clemens (Mark Twain) wrote "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn," and the home of Harriet Beecher Stowe ("Uncle Tom's Cabin"). Romantic types who visit the Williamsburg, Va., restoration of 50 buildings and 50 that were rebuilt can enjoy colonial architecture in all its forms. Nearby, too, is Carter's Grove Plantation (Georgian), the red brick mansion that has been called "the most beautiful house in America." Other Georgian houses are at Surry, Charles City, Amelia, Lorton, Chantilly and Richmond, Va.

But you're not out of it if you are visiting near Des Moines, Mo., where you can see Daniel Boone's Georgian house of blue limestone with its 30-inch-thick walls and the five fireplaces he is supposed to have carved. There is the elm, "Judgment Tree," under which he arbitrated Indian and white man disputes.

Georgian houses (1714-1820) of stone, clapboard and the more typical ones of brick, fan out from Portsmouth, N.H., where a number were built around 1750. At Annapolis one built in 1774 has unusual semi-octagonal wings.

At Fairmount Park, near Philadelphia, the variety of colonial houses includes a 1748 Quaker farmhouse.

Among the interesting wood colonials at Salem, Mass., is the Witch House where the trials were held. Dating from 1642 it should attract the ESP crowd. And there's the Winchester Mystery House at San Jose, Calif., whose owner was told by spiritualists to keep carpenters hammering to ward off ghosts. The 160-room house has

Highest Priced Sculpture
The highest price ever paid for a sculpture is the $300,000 given at the New York sale room of Parke-Bernet on May 5, 1971, for Edgar Degas' bronze Petite Danseuse de Quatorze Ans, executed in an edition of about 12 casts in 1880.

2,000 doors, 50 staircases and some 10,000 windows.

In particular, outdoor types enjoy the two-story log house built by Tennessee's first governor, John Sevier, prior to 1792 at Knoxville. And if one is in the area of Grand Isle, Vt., there is a cabin of crude cedar logs built in 1783 that is believed to be the oldest in the United States. Little Norway at Blue Moens, Wis., has a number of log buildings, some in the 12th-century Norwegian style.

A variety of houses reflect European characteristics. At West Liberty, Ohio, you can see a Flemish-style castle with its towers and tall spirals built by the charge d'affaires to Louis Napoleon. Another castle, the turreted German Boldt Castle, a conversation piece shaped like a heart, is located at Alexandria Bay, N.Y., and there is the Dutch Van Cortlandt Manor (began in 1680) at Croton-on-Hudson, N.Y. Not far from it is the Gothic Revival, Lyndhurst, that was the home of railroad magnate Jay Gould.

There are early Spanish houses at St. Augustine, Fla., and houses in the French Quarter of New Orleans that were laid out by the French in 1718 and embellished later by the

City Cuts Off County's Water
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — When Franklin County officials failed to pay a water bill, the City of Columbus shut off water to the county Auto Title Building.

After employes complained, it was found that the water bill, for $38.84, was among unfinished business on the desk of a worker who had gone on vacation. A flurry of phone calls got the water service restored.

Spanish. At Grand Rapids, Mich., there are 70 architectural styles.

And there are all those villages — the Amish at Lancaster, Pa., (165 homes), Shaker at Canterbury, N.H. (with its original 1782 meeting house). At Shelburne, Vt. (thirty-five 18th- and 19th-century buildings) and at Starbridge (40 restored New England structures). There is a Victorian Village at Cape May, N.J., and 150 rooms (17th- to 19th-century) at the Henry Francis DuPont Museum near Wilmington, Del., Bonaire.

that cannot be seen in one day. A real feeling of antiquity can be found at the San Miguel Mission in California where an adobe house (1300) is considered the last remains of the Anasazi Pueblo.

If one wants to see how the other half lived there are enough 70-room cottages of the millionaires' golden age to satisfy one's curiosity at Newport, R.I. Or visit the $400,000 Georgian house in Carson City, Nev., built in 1884 by Sandy Bowers, a Comstock Lode millionaire.

Chamber Directors Hear Study Reports On North Loop, North Route To Odessa

A report on studies being made by the district office of the State Highway Department, on the proposed routes for a north loop around Midland and a north road connecting Midland and Odessa, was heard by directors of the Midland Chamber of Commerce at their Wednesday noon meeting in the Petroleum Club.

Jim Whitson of Odessa, assistant district highway engineer, reviewed progress to date and said a public meeting on the connecting road proposal will be held Sept. 24 at Goddard Junior High School. A similar meeting on the Ector County segment is scheduled Sept. 26 at Odessa.

Public meetings on north loops around Midland and Odessa were held last month.

Whitson outlined the various steps which must be taken before final recommendations are filed with the Texas Highway Commission. Official public hearings on the various projects will be scheduled in both Midland and Odessa prior to that time, probably the latter part of next year, he said.

The construction project would be financed with money from state and federal highway user tax funds. The cities and counties involved perhaps would share in the purchasing of rights-of-way, Whitson said.

He said it would be at least five years, and perhaps even seven or eight years, before the projects could be completed.

William R. Harral Jr., of Midland, resident engineer, State Highway Department, showed color slides of aerial views of the areas in which the proposed highways would be built.

He said that a south loop around Midland is not planned at this time, since Interstate 30 presently is meeting this need.

Harral also explained that construction of the highway interchange project at the entrance of Midland Regional Air Terminal presently is shut down pending delivery of steel needed for concrete paving.

K. M. Jastrow, chamber president, told the board members that plans have been completed for the dedication of the new Federal Building and Post Office complex at 3 p.m., Sept. 6.

Durward Wright, Midland County commissioner, announced that the official dedication of the new Midland County Courthouse will be held at 10 a.m., Sept. 9, with open house scheduled the remainder of that day and the following day.

Martin Allday, president of the Industrial Foundation of Midland, Inc., advised the chamber directors that on-the-ground studies and surveys presently are being made by representatives of PPG Industries, which earlier this year took option on a tract of land near Midland as a possible site for a new plant.

LaDoyce Lambert, chairman of the chamber's Public Relations Committee, reported that nine of 16 Info Boards (large metal panels displaying pictures of Midland attractions) have been received from the manufacturer. Several of the boards already have been placed at highway rest stops between Midland and Abilene.

State Sen. W. E. "Pete" Snelson spoke briefly concerning the work of the State Legislative Budget Board, of which he is a member.

State Rep. Tom Craddick also was a guest at the board meeting.

Howard "Rocky" Ford, told his fellow directors that a publication of the American Association of Retired Persons lists Midland as the "safest" city from crime in Texas and 24th safest in the nation.

A framed resolution commending Robert E. Lee High School's Polo Team, winner of National Interscholastic Championship honors in competition held earlier this year at Pebble Beach, Calif., was presented to Coach Jim Stimmel. Copies of the resolution were presented by Harrell Feldt, chairman of the Sports Committee, to members of the team — Les Dorn, Alonzo Gallenda, Ryan Reddell and Harley Stimmel.

Birth Control Has Come Long Way Since '52

By WARREN E. LEARY
SHREWSBURY, Mass. (AP) — It was a time when people were trying to forget about Korea and the slogan of the day was "I Like Ike." Few talked about population problems.

It was 1952, and birth control didn't concern Dr. Min-Chueh Chang as he despondently walked into his boss' office to report the apparent failure of his fertility research.

Dr. Gregory Pincus listened attentively as Chang explained that his hormone work with rabbits and rats was inconclusive. Chang had hoped the hormones would increase fertilization, but instead they only seemed to stop ovulation.

"I was not pleased but Pincus was rather excited," Chang remembers. "He told me not to worry and to go on with my work. He was a man of vision."

Population Control Pincus' "vision" came in part from friends who had begun talking about population control and the need for improved contraceptives. What for Chang was failure, for Pincus seemed opportunity — the opportunity to develop a hormone compound that stopped ovulation and therefore acted as a contraceptive.

By 1954, Chang and Pincus had found two progesterone hormone compounds that female animals could take orally to stop ovulation, preventing pregnancy.

The birth control pill was born.

It wasn't the first hormone preparation that inhibited ovulation. The first was developed in the 1930s by researchers working with steroids. But these hormones were scarce then, and they couldn't be taken orally. The great achievement of Dr. Chang and Dr. Pincus was the development of a birth control compound taken by mouth.

Twenty years later, "The Pill" is a term synonymous with contraception. About 50 million women throughout the world use it, international government studies say.

Never before have so many people regularly used drugs as potent as hormone compounds for such extended periods. They do so although scientists argue about the side-effects of contraceptive pills and the potential dangers from long-term use.

The work by Chang and Pincus at the Worcester Foundation for Experimental Biology, in Shrewsbury, was only the beginning. Since then several new formulas for The Pill have been developed.

Today's pill basically is either of two female hormones called estrogens combined with one of six different progesterones. The progesterones are sex hormones that also can be used alone as contraceptives.

Combinations of these hormones in various strengths and dosages give users in many countries a choice among 25 to 30 brands.

It is an irony of science that sex hormones occur naturally in the body to set up and aid pregnancy, but when given in increased doses on certain schedules, prevent it.

Chang, who admits to having been born in China "about 60 years" ago, still does fertility research at the Worcester Foundation. He says he is more interested in basic research than social application, "but it is gratifying to know what came out of our early work."

Today's pills work largely by preventing ovulation — the production of eggs ready for fertilization — or by changing the lining of the uterus so that a fertilized egg cannot attach to the womb's side.

But scientists acknowledge that they do not know in fine detail what birth control pills do to a woman's body to prevent pregnancy. No one understands all the effects of tipping the delicate hormone balance.

Mrs. McCormick thought it would be and supported the research with donations which eventually totaled $300,000.

Pincus, who died in 1967, became the principal promoter of further research on The Pill. He went on globe-circling talking tours to raise funds and to encourage skeptical scientists and laymen to accept the efficacy of oral contraceptive pills.

The Pill's use has climbed steadily, particularly among women under 30 years of age. The only noticeable dip in popularity came in 1968 and 1970 when the hazards of The Pill received wide publicity.

The side effects throw a long shadow over oral contraceptives. Studies show that pill users run a greater risk than non-users of thrombosis — blood clotting in the veins that can be fatal — stroke, high blood pressure, gallbladder disorder and other problems.

Side Effects Some side effects appeared to lessen when second-generation pills with lower hormone dosages were introduced in 1968. But critics maintain that too much still is unknown about possible long-term effects, such as increased cancer risk or genetic problems in offspring.

Proponents of The Pill say the risks are minimal considering the social benefits. Millions of persons not born because of birth control pills would have added to today's population problems, they maintain.

A five-year analysis of health data on 46,000 British women was published recently by the Royal College of General Practitioners. Comparing pill users to non-users, the report concluded that risks from oral contraceptives were minimal.

Dr. Sheldon J. Segal, vice president of the Population Council and a noted researcher in the field of reproduction, says that within five years several new developments will be tested and marketed if they prove safe and effective.

Steroid Hormones Segal includes in his list of contraceptives in sight a male pill combining steroid hormones to arrest sperm production; removable clips or other devices to assure reversible vasectomies; and devices in the tubes carrying sperm from the testes that can immobilize or cripple the sperm cells.

For women, possible new contraceptives include devices implanted under the skin that can secrete antifertility agents for months; hormone-secreting intrauterine devices; and a monthly pill or suppository to bring on a menstrual cycle even if the woman has recently become pregnant, in which case the pregnancy would end.

Segal said in an interview that women also might see a monthly pill to suppress ovulation, a post-coital "morning-after" pill that can be used regularly, a pre-coital "night-before" pill, or a pill that can exactly regulate the menstrual cycle so the women can safely practice the rhythm method.

Mahon Says U.S. Moving Toward Balanced Budget

LUBBOCK — Congressman George Mahon told a Lubbock Chamber of Commerce group here Wednesday that a balanced federal budget is a matter of "biting the bullet and holding the line."

He said a balanced budget is possible with one four-letter word — will.

"The big question is, do we have the will and the determination to do it?" the chairman of the House Committee on Appropriations said in his informal talk.

He pointed to growing demands for revenue sharing, mass transportation, farm programs and health care, stating there is no end to these claims. "But I do believe we are moving toward a balanced budget in the near future," Mahon said.

Mahon bemoaned the $135 billion added to the public debt in the last six years and predicted that the national debt will total $400 billion by the end of the fiscal year.

"If we cut government spending, the pressures on the money market won't be so great," he said.

Numismatist Says Gold Coins To Increase In Value In U.S.

By ARTHUR H. ROTSTEIN
CHICAGO (AP) — Double gold coins and pieces of eight may be a bit scarce. But if you've got a few Czechoslovakian 1923 two-crown pieces lying around the house, you'd do well to hang onto them.

Or you might buy yourself some gold bullion.

Chicago numismatist Larry Whitlow says he believes gold coins will be the safer investment for Americans after Dec. 31 when they will again be able to own gold legally.

"Coins can only go up in value. They won't go down," Whitlow said on Wednesday. "They can only get scarce. Bullion has gone up. But it can also go down. It fluctuates."

As an example, Whitlow cited the Czechoslovakian coin. Last year it was worth about $250, he said. He values it now at about $500.

He said he foresees a considerable increase in the purchase of coins as well as a booming trade in gold bullion, and in the manufacture of small bars of gold bullion as well — perhaps in one and 5-ounce bars.

While the price of both coins and bullion will go up, Whitlow says coins also are safer because "with gold coins, you can look at them and often can pay for them on the spot. You can't always do that with bullion."

Bullion usually comes in large weights and the price would be prohibitive to all but large investors.

And finally, he said the small investor in particular may experience a problem in trying to resell bars of bullion.

"If somebody brings me a gold bar, I will have to make sure it is gold through and through, whereas a coin can be recognized immediately as the real thing," Whitlow said.

He discounted another quaking in gold prices such as that which occurred during the last three years — from $35 an ounce to its current $154 — but predicted that it will hit $200 an ounce soon.

Peace Of Mind Formula: 800-231-6946

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The formula for peace of mind 800-231-6946—is being taken back to 23 states and the Virgin Islands today by governmental representatives who hope to spread it around.

The formula is a toll-free telephone number. Runaways may dial it from anywhere in the nation to reach "Peace of Mind," a non-profit organization in Houston, Tex., and perhaps re-establish contact with home.

"We have to get that telephone number plastered everywhere in great big block letters," one official said Wednesday after the first of a two-day conference to coordinate efforts to make the number known.

Peace of Mind was set up in the wake of the murders of 27 youths in the Houston area last year. Many of them were runaways.

Big Bend Bash Vehicle On Display In Midland

Nickel - Chrysler - Plymouth Dodge at 3705 W. Wall St. will be the stopping over point for an American Motors Cherokee scheduled for competition this weekend in the Big Bend Bash, one in a series of off-road events held throughout the United States under sponsorship of the Sports Car Club of America.

Both the car and its mechanic will be at the Tall City dealership, now a distributor for Jeep, through noon Friday.

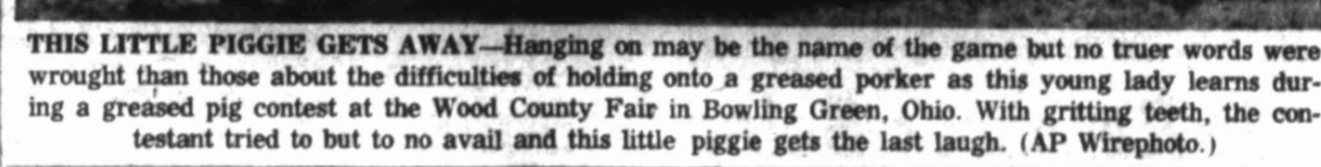

The Cherokee, driven by Gene Henderson and navigated by Ken Pogue, is the leading car in the series of events which have taken place in Washington, California, Michigan, Texas and North Carolina.

Last year's event started at Midland Air Terminal, continuing through Iran, Fort Stockton, Marfa and the Big Bend Country, terminating at Terlingua.

This year, the 400-mile race begins at noon Saturday in Alpine for a six-hour run, then begins again at midnight for a 12-hour drive through Big Bend and the Davis Mountains, ending once again at Terlingua.

Among the other cars competing in the annual event will be Porsches, Saabs, Camaros, Mustangs, Volvos and a four-wheel drive vehicle from General Motors.

Engineer Says Lo-Vaca Cut Gas In December 1972

AUSTIN (AP) — Chief engineer Eloy Soderberg of the Lower Colorado River Authority says an officer of Coastal States Gas Corp. told LCRA directors in May 1972 that his natural gas conglomerate would provide LCRA with "all the gas we needed."

But Soderberg said by December the firm had curtailed gas deliveries.

Soderberg testified Wednesday at a Railroad Commission hearing that the same officer, board chairman Oscar Wyatt, told LCRA officials they would be "ill advised" to join the South Texas Nuclear Project, because large quantities of less expensive gas was available. The board later decided not to join the project, a joint venture of Austin, San Antonio, Central Power & Light of Corpus Christi and Houston Lighting & Power.

The commission hearing is on a natural gas curtailment plan by Lo-Vaca Gathering Co., a subsidiary of Coastal States.

Appropriations Bill Is Signed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has signed a $3.2 billion appropriation for the Department of Transportation and related agencies.

The President also has signed a measure allotting nearly $50 million to support Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty and to meet operating expenses of the Board for International Broadcasting in the current bookkeeping year, a spokesman said Wednesday.

Shortage Of 63 Raw Materials Reported In U.S.; Price Hikes Are Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — American manufacturers are reporting shortages of 63 raw materials and are predicting further consumer-price hikes unless supplies are increased.

The industrialists blame the shortages on government price controls, safety and anti-pollution regulations, high interest rates, the energy crisis and growing world demand.

In a survey conducted by the Senate Investigations subcommittee, 258 industries replying reported shortages of raw materials, ranging from lime to gold to paper.

A shortage of petrochemicals, the broad category of petroleum-based materials used in manufacturing everything from phonograph records to clothing, was mentioned by 181 industries.

A lack of steel was cited by 106, various types of manufactured steel by 172, plastics by 104, paper by 101, nonpetroleum-based chemicals by 94, aluminum by 74 and copper by 62.

Summing up the manufacturers' responses, the subcommittee said the blame for the shortages must be placed on a general increase in international demand for materials and products; high interest rates and low investment returns; 2 1/2 years of government controls on prices, which made it more attractive to sell overseas; the lack of energy, and government requirements in the environmental and industrial-safety fields.

Soviets Set Off Nuclear Charge

UPPSALA, Sweden (AP) — A powerful nuclear charge was blasted underground today in the Soviet Novaya Zemlya area, Prof. Marcus Baath, head of the Uppsala Seismological Institution, reported.

The explosion was measured at 6.6 on the Richter scale, Baath said. An earthquake with a 7 reading would be a major one.

The explosion was probably the first multimegaton blast since the Soviets and the United States agreed in July to a ban prohibiting underground explosions above a 150-kiloton level.

Space Scientist Says Long Flights Can Be Tolerated

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — A scientist astronaut says muscle properly nourished and exercised will function just as well in the weightlessness of space as on earth.

"The muscle system will be protected and we can make flights of any duration," Dr. William Thornton told a group of fellow scientists Wednesday.

He delivered four papers at a Skylab Life Symposium in the Johnson Space Center. The symposium was attended by about 450 scientists.

Thornton came to his conclusions after studying experiments run on the nine astronauts who flew the three Skylab missions for more than 171 days.

He said it "seems entirely possible" to design devices which will provide the proper exercise for bone and muscle during very long space missions.

"Bone, like muscle, when properly stressed and nourished, will in all probability retain its strength," said Thornton, who is a physician.

Safe Return Of Refugees Being Sought By Cyprus Greek Cypriot Government

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Greek Cypriot government wants the Security Council to demand that Turkey let the Greek Cypriots driven from their homes by the invasion of Cyprus return and live under the protection of United Nations troops.

The plea was to be made to the council this afternoon at a meeting called at the request of the Greek Cypriots to "consider the grave situation in Cyprus. The council may also discuss including the refugee problem." The Greek Cypriots claim that 200,000 of their people are refugees from the nearly 40 per cent of the island that the Turkish invasion force has occupied.

Cypriot Ambassador Zenon Rossides also was going to tell the council that his government would let the U. N. peace-keeping force protect Turkish Cypriots in the Greek area if the Turks would let the U. N. troops protect Greeks in the Turkish area.

The council may also discuss including the refugee problem." The Greek Cypriots claim that 200,000 of their people are refugees from the nearly 40 per cent of the island that the Turkish invasion force has occupied.

Some council delegates said privately that the proposal could not get the nine council votes needed to endorse it, and they doubted that the Russians would submit a resolution to that effect.

Greece and the Greek Cypriots have embraced the proposal, but Turkey rejected it and demanded a renewal of the negotiations between the Greek and Turkish Cypriots and Turkey, Greece and Britain, the signers of the 1959 independence treaty for Cyprus.

A spokesman for U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim said that during his visits to Athens, Ankara and Nicosia last weekend, he noted a gap between the Greek and Turkish positions and did not expect negotiations to resume "in the near future."

The U. N. Command on Cyprus reported the island was completely quiet Wednesday, with not even minor violations

Hearing Called On Nuclear Plant

HOUSTON (AP) — A public hearing on Houston Lighting & Power Co.'s proposed Allens Creek nuclear power plant has been set for Nov. 12.

Tentatively it is planned at a school auditorium to be selected in Wallis, the Austin County town near which the plant would be built.

A three-member Atomic Energy Commission panel set the date at a pre-hearing conference here Wednesday.

Jaworski Draws Even Tighter Curtain Of Silence Around Nixon's Case Study

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
WASHINGTON (AP) — Special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski has drawn even tighter the curtain of silence surrounding his deliberations on the case of Richard M. Nixon. While leaving the next move to Jaworski, President Ford has said he will render the final judgment in any prosecution of his predecessor.

In the aftermath of Ford's statements at a news conference Wednesday, Jaworski and his staff not only declined comment but even refused to entertain questions.

Ford told his news conference he subscribes to the view of those who hold that Nixon should be spared from prosecution in the Watergate case that forced him from office.

Despite that, the President said Jaworski "has an obligation to take whatever action he sees fit . . . and that should include any and all individuals."

But Ford made it clear that he, as President, would make the final judgment in the case.

"I am the final authority," he said.

Asked if he would consider a pardon for Nixon if legal action were taken against the former president, Ford replied:

"Of course, I make the final decision. Until it gets to me, I make no commitment one way or the other. But I do have the right as President of the United States to make that decision."

The matter of Nixon's status as a potential defendant in the Watergate case was the opening question in Ford's first news conference as President. Ford clearly expected it. He had in hand for quotation his statement when he took office Aug. 9 that he hoped "our former president, who brought peace to millions, will find it for himself."

Rather than saying directly that he thought Nixon should be spared from prosecution, Ford chose to state his agreement with others who already had expressed that view, which he described as "the general view and the point of view of the American people."

Friends Of Former President Say He's Holding Up Well Physically, Mentally In His Seclusion

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Friends of former President Richard M. Nixon report he is preoccupied with legal problems but is holding up well physically and mentally in his virtual seclusion at San Clemente, the Los Angeles Times says.

The assessment of Nixon's private life in the Times account is based on statements from several persons who have been in contact with Nixon since his resignation. Most of the sources were not identified.

"Every one I've talked to says that Mr. Nixon is on top of things and that he is assessing his problems realistically," said Herbert G. Klein, former Nixon communications director who is now a Metromedia, Inc. executive.

"He has a lot of personal decisions to make — about what real estate properties to keep and other such matters," another friend was quoted as saying.

Chief Justice Rejects Bid To Delay Start Of Watergate Cover-Up Trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger has rejected a bid by former presidential aide John D. Ehrlichman for a delay in the start of the Watergate cover-up trial.

Ehrlichman, one of six defendants in the case, had requested the trial be put off until after Jan. 1. He argued he needed more time to prepare his defense and that he could not get a fair trial so soon because of publicity.

The trial originally was set to start Sept. 9 in U.S. District Court here but was postponed until Sept. 30 by Judge John J. Sirica at the suggestion of the Court of Appeals.

In denying Ehrlichman's request Wednesday, Burger said his decision was "not to be taken as intimating any view whatever on this issue presented by the order of the District Court or the action of the Court of Appeals."

Burger, whose duties include considering applications involving trials in the District of Columbia, added that "Doubts about the correctness of a District Court decision fixing a trial date in these circumstances, particularly after the Court of Appeals has reviewed the matter . . . are not sufficient to form a basis for contrary action by an individual circuit justice."

He noted that he could have referred Ehrlichman's request to the full Supreme Court, but said this in itself would have delayed the start of the trial to at least late October, since the court is in recess and will not reconvene until Oct. 7.

Other defendants in the trial are H. R. Haldeman and Gordon Strachan, both former assistants to former President Richard M. Nixon; former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell; and Robert C. Mardian and Kenneth W. Parkinson, who worked in Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign.

The Times account cited two basic problems for the former chief executive — his financial situation and the legal problems confronting him as an outgrowth of the Watergate case.

One source said the former president spends about $10,000 a month for mortgage payments, staff salaries and legal expenses, not counting personal living expenses.

1975 Oldsmobile Ninety-Eight Regency

Oldsmobile Announces 35 1975 Models With Emphasis On Smaller-Car Market

LANSING, Mich. — Oldsmobile has announced its 1975 model line-up includes 35 models with increased emphasis on the smaller car market. The new models are scheduled for display in dealer showrooms on Sept. 27.

Four new entries in Oldsmobile's small car line give the division the widest range of models and the broadest market coverage in the automaker's long history. The nation's oldest existing manufacturer of automobiles now offers models with wheelbases ranging from the new small-size Starfire at 87 inches to the family size Ninety-Eight at 127 inches.

In addition to the Starfire, three new entries in the compact Omega series have been introduced featuring luxury interiors and appointments not formerly available in this series.

All-New Car
Oldsmobile's Starfire is an all-new car for the division and features comfortable 2-plus-2 interior seating and sporty exterior design. It is available in one body style, a sport coupe.

The compact Omega series has been expanded to six models for 1975 with the addition of the Omega Salon available in the same three body styles as the base Omega — coupe, hatchback coupe and sedan.

Oldsmobile's mid-size Cutlass line-up in 1975 offers 11 models in four body styles — two coupe, hardtop coupes, a coupe, hardtop sedan and station wagon.

The 1975 Cutlass series includes the base Cutlass, Cutlass S, Cutlass Supreme, Cutlass Salon and Vista Cruiser.

Hearing Due On Pollution Report Plan

AUSTIN (AP) — An assertion that an honor system for reporting pollution has produced untrue data has prompted the Texas Water Quality Board to call a public hearing.

Dr. Walter Quebedeaux, Harris County pollution control officer, asserted at the board's July meeting that the self-reporting system in Houston had broken down.

"I know for a fact from personal experience that these reported values are not true values," Quebedeaux asserted.

"In all fairness to Harris County and to the entities that he (Quebedeaux) says were reporting data that was untrue, it would be in the interest of the public to have an open hearing," said board chairman J. Douglas Toole of Houston.

No date was set at once for the hearing.

Board Official Disagrees
Dick Whittington, the board's deputy director, said a review of records on hand showed "no evidence of fraud or deliberate deception or lack of honor on the part of the companies."

Jack Davis, general manager of the Gulf Coast Waste Disposal Authority, said Quebedeaux's assertions were "totally unfounded" and been rejected by the authority as "having no basis in fact."

He said Quebedeaux's data was based on 17 samples over a 12-month period, while the authority's data was based on 2,100 samples during the same time period.

"We feel most strongly that this vastly larger data base more properly defines the quality of treated effluent being discharged to the Houston Ship Channel," Davis said.

Necess Plan Approved
In other action, the board endorsed a preliminary application by the Neches River Authority for a $1.5 million Environmental Protection Agency grant for disposal of industrial wastes. The grant would finance a search for an acceptable site and help fund operations until the disposal operation became self-supporting.

INSURED FOR $150,000— Custom Agents Search For Missing Painting

DETROIT (AP) — U.S. Customs agents are searching for a Renoir masterpiece which disappeared somewhere on its way between London and its owner in Minneapolis.

Investigators said the transatlantic air passage took less than a day. But more than a week elapsed before the carrying case in which the Renoir was shipped reached its destination.

The painting, an oil known as "The Lady in a Flowered Hat," is valued by its owner, Minneapolis attorney Samuel Mason, at more than $100,000. He said it is insured for $150,000.

The carrying case in which the painting was packed left London on Wednesday, July 31, and arrived at Detroit's Metropolitan Airport about 5:30 p.m. on the same day aboard a Pan American World Airways flight.

The canvas, measuring 12 inches by 16 inches, was to be transferred to a Northwest Orient Airlines plane for the final leg of its journey to Minneapolis.

Authorities said the crate apparently remained at Metropolitan airport until 3 a.m. the next day.

The carrying case arrived at Minneapolis' World-Chamberlain International airport on Aug. 1 and was held in a "bordered" area for a week before being delivered to Mason, investigators in that city reported.

Following prescribed procedure for costly imports, customs officials were present in Mason's apartment when he opened the case on Aug. 8 and found it empty.

Customs officials at Metropolitan declined to speculate where and when the painting was removed from its carrying case.

They also were reluctant to discuss the delay or say how they handled the carrying case.

without exterior woodgrain appliques. The 455-cubic-inch four-barrel V-4 engine is standard.

The Ninety-Eight line-up includes a Luxury Coupe, Luxury Sedan, Regency coupe and Regency sedan. The standard Ninety-Eight sedan has been discontinued.

The front-drive Toronado has two models this year — a Custom coupe and a Brougham coupe. Both have a new rectangular opera window in the rear quarter sail panel for added luxury and more privacy for rear seat passengers.

The hardtop sedans have a new triangular shaped window in the rear quarter sail panel and the town sedans have an additional window in the rear door.

Hardtop and town sedans feature new uppers with more side glass for better visibility. The Custom Cruiser continues to be available in both two and three-seat versions with or

Texas Woman Will Be Honored Guest At Fele In Japan

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — As a child in Missouri in the early 1900s, Mrs. Dorothy Sappington remembers her mother telling her of an uncle who planted the first apple trees in a nursery place most people have never heard of—Aomori, Hirovaki, Japan.

Today, apples are the major fruit crop in the Aomori area, and next week Mrs. Sappington—the honored guest—will tell the Aomori Prefectural Apples' Centennial Celebrating about that uncle, Dr. John Ing.

"I'm amazed that after three generations the Japanese continue to admire my uncle," said Mrs. Sappington, 73, a widow who formerly taught school.

She remembers "Uncle John as a tall man, about 6 feet 2 inches, with a long grey beard and lots of grey hair," and she spent a month in the Salt Lake City, Utah, public library doing research on him for her speech.

Ing, a missionary with a doctorate from De Pauw University in Indiana, built the first Methodist church in the Aomori area, and he taught English, agriculture and German. Mrs. Sappington said Ing introduced asparagus, cabbage, tomatoes and gooseberries to Japanese farmers.

Town In Russia Imitates Riviera

SOCHI, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Sochi is trying to act like the French Riviera, with such watering havens as Vichy and Baden-Baden thrown in. It has come a certain distance, but Coney Island style crowds are choking up this workers' paradise.

A visitor from Moscow has to do a double-take to realize he's still in the Soviet Union. The spreading acacia, palm and magnolia trees along the well-tended streets and sidewalks hide much of the Communist party sloganry and the inevitable presence of Lenin.

The air is tropically soft and the Black Sea is inviting — after a painful struggle across stone-strewn beaches.

You might like to have a meal of fresh fish, instead of leathery beef, but fish is mysteriously hard to come by in Sochi.

Striking stone buildings, some with Corinthian columns, distract the viewer's eyes from traditional Communist-modern high rises, which look better here in the meridional sun.

An official guide book notes that pre-revolutionary Sochi was a "paradise in chains" and virtually neglected by Tsarist authorities who let malaria run rampant in the area. It was V.I. Lenin who "devoted special attention to the development of health resorts," including Sochi. And Stalin, who used to have a street named after him here, had his Black Sea dacha in Sochi.

The greater Sochi resort area stretches for about 90 miles along the northeastern shore of the Black Sea at about the same parallel as the French Riviera and Coney Island.

The "Pearl of the Black Sea" boasts numerous hotels, 450 restaurants and cafes and some 60 sanatoriums where Soviets come for rest and medical care including treatment at hydrogen sulphide springs originating from the lower levels of the Black Sea.

One of the sanatoriums, which is said by its officials to offer "average" facilities, is an elegant stone structure with Greek columned facade, luxuriant gardens, chandelier hung salons, a well furnished library, theater, dining room and spacious rooms. This is reserved for metallurgical workers, who can get a 24-day cure for as little as 48 rubles ($62).

Sochi has an off-season population of 264,000, which is sometimes nearly doubled in the summer.

Ford To Discover Views On Inflation Differ From Fed's

NEW YORK (AP) — In a series of late September conferences, President Ford will seek the anti-inflation views of the separate elements that make up the economy, the view of "everyone in the country, every part of America."

And in doing so he is bound to find that those views are not in such full agreement with existing policies, mainly those of the highly independent Federal Reserve Board, as was suggested by the previous administration.

The fact is that not all America is united behind Arthur F. Burns, the Fed chairman, who steadfastly — and some say, courageously — adheres to a relatively tight money policy as a deterrent to inflation.

The President will hear highly respected individuals ask in all innocence: How is it that high interest rates have failed to restrain prices, despite the almost theological belief that they do?

And furthermore, why has the nation's housing been sacrificed on that altar? Why have the equity markets been ripped apart for that belief? Why has business been denied capital and forced to borrow from banks?

Even if the answers aren't forthcoming, the President likely will have scored a political if not economic victory because he permitted the previously smothered suggestions, opinions, frustrations of so many to be aired.

The goals of the summit conference scheduled for Sept. 27-28 illustrates the failure of past attempts. It reduces the problem of inflation to the essential considerations:

—To "clarify" the present economic condition of the nation, to identify the causes of inflation, to consider "new and realistic" inflation restraints, to define "hardship areas" needing quick attention, and to develop a consensus.

If these are the questions to be answered, then it is obvious that those now in power feel that little has heretofore been answered or maybe even understood.

Perhaps the easiest of the goals will be to clarify the present economic condition. On that there appears to be a consensus: the country, the entire trading world, is in a precarious condition because of inflation.

Television Hassle Hits Knievel Jump

By JAY SHARBUTT
NEW YORK (AP) — The latest news on live tv coverage of Evel Knievel's rocket-powered leap over Idaho's Snake River Canyon is downright grim today. The networks don't plan any live coverage.

The Idaho Land Board held an auction Wednesday for rights to televise the great leap from state property on the north side of the canyon, where Knievel intends to land. It received no bids.

CBS Sports withdrew a tentative offer of $50,000 it had made on Tuesday, last Top Rank, Inc. promoter of the leap, carry out its threat to cancel the whole thing if live tv coverage is allowed.

Top Rank, a New York-based firm which plans to show the jump live on closed-circuit theater television, says it has paid Knievel $5 million to cover the leap and wants to protect its investment.

Knievel has leased private land on the south side of the canyon as his take-off point, but Top Rank isn't allowing live tv coverage from there. The jump is scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 8.

Robert Wussler, head of CBS Sports, said discussions were held with Top Rank officials until late Tuesday night and early Wednesday and they reiterated their threat to cancel if CBS stayed in.

He said the company's executives "were really getting a lot of heat from theater owners across the country and they had a very tender situation on their hands."

He said he finally decided Wednesday morning to pull out of the state bidding "because it got to be a larger issue than it ever should have become. But we've had an interesting time in the last 48 hours."

An NBC spokesman said his network turned down a Top Rank offer which, for $25,000, would have let NBC film the leap from the takeoff point, provided it didn't air the film until 11 p.m. that night.

Wussler said no similar offer was made to CBS Sports.

Ironically, ABC, which has given Knievel considerable national publicity, is airing a special next Thursday night about his leap, and is handling the closed-circuit tv production for Top Rank, says it still is negotiating with the company for delay of showing television rights.

Dark Skies, Rain Feature Nalion's Weather Pattern

By The Associated Press
Clouds and rain stretched from Central Texas to southern New England today and clouds smeared most of the rest of the nation.

Fresh flood watches remained in effect for parts of Ohio, West Virginia and South Central Texas.

Almost the entire Pacific Coast was blanketed by fog, but skies were generally clear in the Southwest.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 42 at Dickinson, N.D., to 87 at Yuma, Ariz.

Some other reports: Anchorage 61 partly cloudy, Atlanta 73 partly cloudy, Buffalo 61 cloudy, Chicago 61 partly cloudy, Cincinnati 70 light rain-shower, Cleveland 60 cloudy, Dallas 76 light rain, Denver 61 partly cloudy, Honolulu 79 partly cloudy, Indianapolis 64 rain-shower, Kansas City 61 clear, Los Angeles 64 partly cloudy, Louisville 71 light rain, Miami 83 clear, Minneapolis-St. Paul 63 cloudy, Nashville 75 partly cloudy, New York 71 cloudy, Philadelphia 75 partly cloudy, Phoenix 85 clear, Pittsburgh 71 cloudy, St. Louis 64 light rain, San Francisco 50 cloudy, Seattle 75 clear, Washington 75 cloudy.

THREATENS LAWSUITS — Don Branker of New York, a spokesman for promoters of Evel Knievel's Sept. 8 rocket leap over Snake River Canyon, warns that the promoters will file lawsuits if news media attempt live coverage of the event. Branker said Top Rank holds exclusive rights and it will seek "severe punitive damages" if anyone attempts to film it. The State of Idaho held an auction to offer television rights but received no bids. (AP Wirephoto.)

Caverns Reveal New Hours

CARLSBAD, N.M. — Carlsbad Caverns National Park Superintendent Donald Dayton has announced new visitor hours for the fall and winter seasons at the caverns, which also has a new chief ranger, Rodney W. Harris.

Harris, a former Caverns guide who has been park ranger at Capulin Mountain National Monument for the past 16 months, replaces Walter B. O'Neal who retired in July.

The new hours for the Caverns begin Wednesday. The Visitor Center will open at 8 a.m., and trips into the main cavern will be offered from 8 a.m. until 3:15 p.m. daily.

Dayton stressed that visitors desiring to make the complete three mile trip through the caverns should plan to enter the natural entrance no later than 2 p.m. once the new schedule goes into effect in order to have sufficient time for the Big Room portion of the trip.

He also added that the fall season is usually an excellent time to visit the park, since groups are smaller, the weather is normally mild and bat flights are the most spectacular of the year because of the normal seasonal increase in the size of the bat colony.

Long-Time Jazz Musician Says He's Only Beginning

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer
Ahmad Jamal is the name of a jazz pianist that we've been hearing for a long time. But he isn't so old — he's 44. He just has been playing for a long time.

Jamal took lessons with private teachers in his native Pittsburgh, played the classical composers and wanted to go to a music conservatory. But at 14 he said he was 18, joined the musicians' union and began touring with the George Hudson Band.

"I've never explored the full potential of my music. I'm just beginning to do that now. Now I just want to write music and play music."

Turned Down Work
"I've never traveled that much. In the peak years, in the 1960s, I could have been doing 365 days a year if I wanted to. I turned down a lot of work. I opened a restaurant in Chicago and spent a lot of time there. I got involved in businesses — lithographing, greeting cards, import-export, the restaurant. I was a record producer from 1969 to '72 and didn't take any work at all. I got into housing development projects and did a lot of community work."

"What I thought was difficult, which was performing, which I never totally enjoyed up to now, really is a much easier life."

"I was always better off financially concentrating on music, too. Always. I put together my trio in 1951. I think the reason it wasn't too difficult to get involved in other things was that I got tired of what was involved in trying to get ahead at a very young age. That was keeping the group together and trying to get known. We recorded for eight years before we recorded 'Poinciana.' We couldn't get the records distributed. They always said they didn't think they could sell instrumental music. One gets tired of all that."

"I'm traveling more than I ever did now. In Chicago the trio could stay in those jazz rooms for nine months and not move. Now I'm getting ready to go to Central and South America. There are a lot of things we just didn't do before."

Not Much
"Happily, I've never over-exposed myself. People haven't seen me too much."

Jamal records now for 20th Century Records. LPs are "Ahmad Jamal '73" and "Jamalca." This summer he cut "Jamal Plays Jamal," the first record he has ever made entirely of his own compositions.

"I always had an unusual arrangement with the record companies — now I think it's not so unusual. I always had complete control of my product. I don't believe in one person knowing everything but it is very nice to get ideas from people around you if you respect their opinions. It is important to have control over your product. I think artistically it is necessary and I think it is necessary to have a tremendous commercial success."

Grabbed Up
"Some people think that commercial means demeaning of artistry. Not at all. If it is valid, it is going to be grabbed up by a certain number of people, as Charlie Parker was. He was the ultimate artistic achievement and as a result his product is being commercially marketed even to this day."

Jamal's biggest commercial success has been a 1958 LP called "But Not for Me." It was recorded live on Cadet when his trio was at the Per-

Apology From DPS Dims Church Plan For Legal Action

DALLAS (AP) — The First Unitarian Church here voted not to take legal action against the Department of Public Safety "at the present time" after receiving an apology from the DPS director, Col. Wilson E. Speir.

The letter of apology was read Wednesday night at a congregational meeting. It was called to vote on a proposal to join other organizations and individuals in a suit against the DPS.

In the letter, Speir said a report stating that the church was subversive was completely inaccurate. He said the department does not now, nor did in the past, consider the church subversive, and there are no DPS files on the church.

References were made to the church in a report on Robert Pomeroy, a Continental Airlines pilot who protested nuclear power plant construction in Texas.

The church was mentioned in the report filed by DPS agent David Dimick as the site of a debate in which Pomeroy took part. The report said the church was "the sponsor of radical left groups" and was host to a workshop "where all major subversive groups in the North Texas area set up information booths."

Urologist Dies

MILLINOCKET, Maine (AP) — Wyland F. Leadbetter, 67, former president of the American Urological Association, died Wednesday after a short illness. He was chief of urology at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston for 17 years.

Belonging

"How can we enable every person to experience his relatedness to others and his rootedness in the land?" (John J. McMahon)

That is how many members of the Unitarian Universalist religious community would sum up their search for a meaningful sense of belonging.

But by no means all. There lies the special genius of the Unitarian Universalist approach to religion: it lays down no creed, no dogma. What it does provide is a fellowship in which individuals with certain common commitments can mutually support each other's personal religious growth.

Proprietor Of Famed Cottontail Ranch Campaigns For Seat In Nevada Assembly

By RICHARD E. MEYER

LIDA JUNCTION, Nev. (AP)—The woman rang the doorbell but didn't step inside. "I just stopped by to shake your hand and to let you know we're on your side," she said. "You have my vote —"

The woman paused. "—and you have my husband's."

Beverly Harrell thanked her. She'll need every vote. She might not be the only shady lady, or gentleman, in politics. But she's honest about it. Beverly Harrell is a madam. She runs a bordello. And she says so.

State Candidate Now

Five-foot, blue-eyed Beverly is a candidate for the Nevada State Assembly. That probably makes her the only madam in politics. At least, no other candidate anywhere in the off-year elections seems to be challenging the distinction. Some people hereabouts think Beverly might win.

Her chances? "Pretty fair, actually," allows Bill Bagdad, Esmeralda County probation officer, who stops in now and then at the Santa Fe Saloon in Goldfield, 15 miles up U.S. 95, for a beer. The Santa Fe is the oldest saloon in southern Nevada. It's one of the better listening posts in these parts, acres of sagebrush, mountains, old mines and ranches.

"She's a serious candidate," vouches Jim Grogan, proprietor. "In my considered opinion, she has a considerable chance." Grogan's eyes twinkle. "The nice thing about Beverly is that I don't think she would steal much."

Prostitution is legal here. Nevada leaves outlawing it up to each of its 17 counties. Only two have — Clark County, which is mostly Las Vegas, and Washoe County, which is mostly Reno. Others have gone so far as to declare it legal by county ordinance. Some, like Esmeralda, ban it from within five miles of their inhabited areas.

Arrives In Desert

Titan-haired Beverly Harrell came to Lida Junction, a fork in the road where U.S. 95 meets Nevada Route 3, seven years ago. It was in the middle of the Ralston Desert. Las Vegas was 2 hours south; Goldfield a quarter of an hour north, and Lida, a town consisting mostly of a million-acre cattle ranch, was 20 minutes west. At the junction were a two-mile airstrip, a clump of wind-bent trees and dozens of cottontail rabbits.

Beverly is a nice Jewish girl from Brooklyn. She is the daughter of an upper-middle-class family. She was educated at a private school and at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts. She became a dancer, singer, played Broadway, off Broadway, in musical comedies, road companies, "Oklahoma," "Finian's Rainbow," "As You Like It," "Snow White." And she went to Hollywood to become a star.

"I ran across a lot of people," she says. And they all noticed Beverly had another talent. "They all said I had managerial qualities." So she started a system of call girls, depending upon the vagaries of the business, she catered to movie actors, producers, attorneys, politicians and the police. "The upper echelon of Hollywood and Beverly Hills, you know."

Life Gets Complicated

But life got complicated. "Nip and tuck with the gendarmes, you know."

For the New York stage, Beverly had changed Harrell to Richards. For Hollywood, she had changed Beverly to Lori. When she fled the gendarmes, however, and drank in great gulps of Nevada honesty, Lori Richards became Beverly Harrell again. She opened the Cottontail Ranch at Lida Junction and called it "The Friendliest Place in Nevada." Of the 25 to 30 other bordellos in Nevada, she likes to think the Cottontail offers quality over quantity.

Leases Private Property

She leased a chunk of private property in the southwest corner of the junction under the wind-bent trees. She joined four house trailers with what she calls, with a straight face, catwalks. She installed a bar and rooms for a handful of girls. She advertised the airstrip as a convenience for private pilots. Her first day of business was Oct. 13, 1967. She was, she says, "thirtyish." She did well among denizens and flatlanders alike.

But the private land was expensive. Just 2,000 feet south was property owned by the U.S. government and administered by the Bureau of Land Management. Like the rest of the land to the horizon, it was barren. And it was available. Beverly paid the government a visit.

"I said, 'I am Beverly Harrell, and I own the Cottontail Ranch, a Nevada bordello. I would like to lease some land.'" In July of 1970, the Bureau of Land Management agreed to lease her its property at $100 a year for three years with an option to buy. And Beverly moved.

She added a fifth house trailer. She drilled a well. She built a front porch and stained it brown. She installed a library for her ladies — "from Schopenhauer," she says, "to Nietzsche."

She attracted the attention of, among others, Jack Anderson.

He said in his column: The United States government, upholder of law, order and the public health, morals and welfare, was the landlord of a bordello.

The Bureau of Land Management canceled her lease. Beverly Harrell appealed to the Department of the Interior Board of Land Appeals. "They didn't know what to do with me," she laughs. "So they put me in one little cubbyhole, and then in another little cubbyhole."

Loses Out In Fight

In 1973, she exercised her option to buy the property and mailed in a check for $935, the purchase price. That did it. Check declined. Appeal denied. Beverly hired a lawyer and sued. U.S. District Court ruled against her. In April she got an eviction notice in the mail, giving her 90 days to get off the property. "They said I violated my lease because I ran a bordello. Now keep in mind that I told them I was Beverly Harrell, that I owned the Cottontail Ranch, (and that) they gave me the lease knowing it was a bordello. . . . I did everything openly. . . . I did not misrepresent (myself). Everybody at the BLM knew who I was. But still I lost the case."

The eviction notice got Beverly Harrell to thinking.

"If any federal judge ruled honestly," she figured, "he would be saying Uncle Sam could indeed be the landlord of a bordello."

Teacher Rejects San Benito School System Hair Code

SAN BENITO, Tex. (AP)—A suspended elementary school teacher says he will not trim his hair to comply with the code of the San Benito school system.

Daniel Greenbaum, a teacher at Los Indios school, was suspended because his sideburns reached below his earlobe and his mustache dropped below the corners of his mouth.

Greenbaum said Wednesday he will request a hearing before the school board and plans to discuss the suspension with some civil rights agencies.

The San Benito hair code states that male pupils and teachers cannot have hair touching the top of a collar on a dress shirt, sideburns below the earlobe or more than two inches wide or mustaches dropping below the corner of the mouth. Several pupils were also sent home for failure to comply with the hair code, but Greenbaum was the only teacher.

MANY TAKE TESTS, BUT FEW ARE CHOSEN— College Crunch, Soviet Version

GENETIC NOTE — Soviet high school pupils are now going through examinations to see if they are fit to enter institutions of higher education. Here is a look at university exams in the Soviet Union.

By LYNN OLSON

MOSCOW (AP) — "I haven't done much of anything since June," Valery said wearily. "I've spent all that time — well most of it — cramming for exams."

Like hordes of other 1974 Soviet high school graduates, Valery was preparing for a crucial series of tests, administered nationwide in August, which determined whether he would be allowed to embark on a higher education.

Triumph For Some

For 540,000 students, the pressure-ridden exams in four or five subjects, culminating 10 years of study, ended in triumph. Those students — about 20 per cent of the high school graduating class — were admitted to beginning studies at the Soviet Union's 845 universities and institutes.

But there were thousands of others who either failed or did not score high enough to compete with other applicants at the institutions which they hoped to attend.

It's the college crunch — Soviet style.

A recent Soviet educational study said that on the average, higher schools accept one of three applicants, but the Ivy League schools of the Soviet Union, such as Moscow State University and the University of Leningrad, and some prestigious institutes and art schools have a much higher turn-down rate.

For those who are not admitted to higher schools, as the magazine Moskva put it, the experience is a "catastrophe of life."

Long Preparation

Soviet students start preparing for the entrance exams as early as three years before they actually take them, the magazine said.

"They do not imagine any other way for themselves," Moskva soberly concluded. "Not all of them know what speciality they will study but they have taken the institute for granted. Parents hire teachers for them who, in their opinion, know every question usually asked at the entrance examinations."

The exams, most of which are given orally over about a two-week period, are more important than the American college board tests because they're the prime criteria for college admission.

Komsomolskaya Pravda, a Soviet youth newspaper, has been critical of the exam process, claiming it "sometimes hampers the possibility to give an objective assessment of the knowledge and capability of young people entering institutions."

New Regulations

In an effort to overcome this problem, a new set of entrance regulations was issued two years ago demanding that students' high school grades and evidence of their work and "conscientiousness" be taken more into account.

The high school admission squeeze stems partly from the fact that the Soviet Union has taken such giant strides in making higher education, previously a privilege of the rich, available to many more of its people.

As a result, young people's expectations that they will go to higher schools have risen accordingly.

For the past few years, the Soviet Union has been trying to persuade some of its young people to opt for a job after secondary school graduation rather than try to go on to a higher school.

Yearning For Prestige

But, like their American counterparts, Soviet youth are increasingly shying away from the blue-collar or manual jobs and yearn for the prestige and the expected good employment won through a higher education diploma.

About half of the 4.6 million persons studying at higher education establishments do have jobs, attending classes in the evening or by correspondence. By Soviet law, they are given time off from their jobs to study and take examinations.

Of the 845 higher education institutions, only 62 are universities, a third not more than 10 years old. The remainder are highly specialized institutes, which concentrate on one of mechanical engineering to languages to cinematography.

Emphasis On Technology

But even the universities are professional schools by American standards. With strong emphasis on sciences and technology rather than on general and broad scholarship and learning.

The intense desire for higher education has spawned a wide variety of abuses in the application procedure. The Soviet press is constantly critical of the use of political power and connections by parents to gain special privileges for their children.

Because tuition and dormitory lodging are free, students aren't hampered as much by finances in getting an education in the Soviet Union as they are in some countries.

About 75 per cent also receive a government stipend, ranging from 40 rubles upwards, but in most cases, it's not enough to cover all expenses. Most students still receive money and food packages from their parents.

Despite official Soviet insistence that education is equally available to all, the majority of higher education students are children of white-collar workers made up 59.6 per cent of the total number of students, despite the fact that group comprises only about 21 per cent of the population.

Newspaper Cries Cover-Up In Texas Prison Shootout

HOUSTON (AP) — A pathologist who performed an autopsy on two Texas convicts killed in an escape attempt has ruled they died from officers' gunshot wounds.

He also expressed an opinion the shootings were justifiable homicide.

Meanwhile, a Texas newspaper has editorially accused state prison officials at Huntsville of a "cover-up" in the incident. It said the affair was following the pattern of Watergate.

Shot At Close Range

Dr. G. Shelton Green, a Harris County (Houston) assistant medical examiner, said Wednesday Fred Gomez Carrasco and Rodolfo Dominguez, who with two hostages died in an abortive escape attempt Aug. 3, were shot at close range.

He said Carrasco was shot once in the head and Dominguez twice in the head and once in the neck "by security forces."

Beeler Stands By Verdict

However, Justice of the Peace J. W. Beeler of Huntsville, who originally said Carrasco and Dominguez committed suicide, said the autopsy report doesn't change his mind.

"I never said directly that they shot themselves," Beeler said. "I said suicide and by just coming out of that building would be suicide."

Carrasco, Dominguez and another convict, Ignacio Cuevas, held more than a dozen hostages 11 days in the prison library in Huntsville before trying an escape. Cuevas was the only convict to survive.

As the convicts made their way with hostages to an armored car they had demanded they were confronted by officers who used fire hoses to overturn a wooden shield within which Carrasco and his partners held four of the hostages.

Officers said Carrasco and Dominguez shot hostages Elizabeth Beseda and Julia Standley and then shot themselves. Another hostage, The Rev. Joseph O'Brien was wounded.

Authorities said the hostages were shot at very close range. Mrs. Standley was shot four times and Mrs. Beseda once.

Although Green's official written report listed the two convicts' deaths as justifiable homicide, this is only an opinion since only a court of law could issue such a ruling.

Two inmates who said they were in the prison hospital, which formed one side of the courtyard where the shooting occurred, have charged officers killed the two men by kicking off their bulletproof helmets and executing them.

O'Brien, a Roman Catholic prison chaplain, has denied the two inmates were killed execution style.

Father O'Brien said Dominguez was shot by an officer 20 feet away after O'Brien called out that Dominguez was about to shoot the priest.

The San Antonio News charged in a front page editorial Wednesday "the cover-up by prison officials in the Carrasco prison seizure is a statewide scandal."

The News called for an open hearing by "an unbiased board of inquiry."

It said W. J. Estelle, director of the Texas Department of Corrections, "and all responsible should have been suspended for assigning Carrasco to a job in the prison chapel that made the whole seizure of hostages possible."

The newspaper further stated "the disclosure of the latest cover-up makes it imperative that Estelle be suspended."

A Walker County grand jury, probing the incident, heard more witnesses and viewed additional videotapes of the shooting. Deputy Dist. Atty. Don Kraemer said the additional tapes were of poor quality.

Interest Rates Taking Heavy Toll

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Every one but some bankers and regulatory officials deplore high interest rates, but so far nobody in power is doing much about them.

Meanwhile: —Americans are being forced to borrow heavily on their life insurance policies, which still carry an interest rate of only 5 or 6 per cent, versus double that for any other personal loan.

This low rate is made possible by the fact that the borrowers really own the money, it being the cash value built up in their whole life policies. Still, if it isn't paid back it reduces the value of the insurance.

Insurance Loans Up

At the end of June, the Institute of Life Insurance reports, loans totaled $21.32 billion, up 14 per cent from $18.71 billion a year ago, and the figure is still rising.

Since policyholders have first call on insurance company assets, the ability of insurers to invest in other areas is reduced by the rise in policy loans. And those other areas usually provide double the return.

There is another cause for concern by the insurers. Past history, they say, establishes as fact that those who borrow on their policies are more likely than nonborrowers to let their policies lapse.

—Small businesses are being put on the rack by high interest rates. Unable to pass on their added expenses as easily as can big business, proprietors and others are forced to absorb the sharp increases in money costs.

Short-term, noninstallment business loans of $10,000 to $25,000 rose in July to 11.47 per cent from 11.06 per cent a month earlier, according to the Federal Reserve Board. Additional charges also might be involved.

New business incorporations, as measured by Dun & Bradstreet, have fallen almost steadily since last September, one reason being the high cost or unavailability of financing.

Much the same situation exists in the equity market, where new issues of stock by beginning companies have been reduced to a trickle from a roar in just three or four years.

The equity markets can't support new issues because so much capital has been siphoned off into debt securities by the high interest rates available.

—Often overlooked is the fact that the prime interest rate isn't fixed rigidly at the announced figure. It varies so much that corporation treasurers and other executives can't make reliable projections about future expenses.

—Pension managers are getting perturbed. Pension funds traditionally were big investors in blue-chip stocks, which now sell at anemic prices since investment money has been attracted elsewhere.

This produces questions about the viability of some private pensions, should the stock market remain depressed for many months or years ahead.

Disguised Officers Are Trying To Become Victims

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — They didn't look like cops. Not the drunk who stumbled from bar to bar, nor the hippie, nor the old man with a hand-aged foot who hobbled about on a crutch.

But all are Albuquerque policemen who stalked the downtown area recently in hopes of being robbed.

Police officials credit the special detail with capturing 14 strong-arm robbery suspects in the two weeks it was on the street.

"We had officers made up to appear as old drunk men, Indians and long-haired individuals in an effort to cut down on a projected rise in strong-arm robberies in the downtown area," said a member of the detail.

"Many of the persons that were caught still don't realize they robbed a cop," said Lt. John Nelson. He said many of the robbers refused to believe their victim was a policeman even after being shown identification.

Each of the undercover policemen carried a radio and a pistol. Generally, they remained in sight of backup officers, although on one occasion a decoy officer was assaulted and robbed before assisting officers were even in position.

"We hadn't even had a chance to set it up and we were hit," one of the officers said. One of the two robbers got away.

"We are not showing money; we are not dangling it in front of anyone and we are not trying to entice anyone," Nelson said. "Our men are disguised to fit the profile of the typical victim of an armed robbery in that area."

Nelson said the disguised police officers make much better court witnesses than a real victim. "We have had a hard time getting strong-arm robbery victims to give us accurate descriptions," he said. "If they rob policemen we have fewer problems with prosecution."

Midwest Rains Described As Too Little, Too Late

By LOUISE COOK, Associated Press Writer

Too little, too late. That's the consensus about the recent rains that fell in the Midwest.

The experts say the moisture may help the soybean crop, but it's too late to do much about corn. Soybean and corn are two major grains used to feed dairy cows, chickens and beef cattle. If the price of feed goes up, so does the price of milk, poultry and meat.

No one is really sure exactly how much supermarket prices will rise, or when the boost will hit. The government already has upped its estimate of 1974 price increases, saying that at the end of this year, food will cost about 15 per cent more than it did in 1973. Earlier, the officials estimated a 12 per cent jump this year.

Americans may get a helping hand from Europe.

Petrus Lardinois, agriculture commissioner of the European Common Market, announced on Wednesday that the market will reduce purchases of U.S. corn and other feed grains by about 10 per cent in the coming year, leaving a greater supply for Americans.

"We think that when you have to cut back in your own consumption, especially of corn, that it is normal that we try also to do in our agricultural policy about the same," said Lardinois, who was in Washington, D.C., at the invitation of Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz.

Corn Report

The next government crop report isn't due until Sept. 11. The last report, issued on Aug. 12, said that the corn crop would be about 4.97 billion bushels, 12 per cent below last year's harvest.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture said Monday that a special midmonth review of the situation showed that rain during the first half of August "did not promote significant gains in corn production although soybeans could benefit from the moisture."

State and regional officials contacted in an Associated Press survey agreed, adding that the rain might help prepare the soil for fall wheat planting.

A spokesman for the Missouri Department of Agriculture said farmers in 20 counties have applied for low-cost federal loans because of damage to crops.

Neal Gunkel, assistant to the Illinois agriculture director, said rains have helped the soybeans — which are planted and harvested later than corn. But he predicted that the yield would be 15 per cent less than last year.

Reports from Iowa, the nation's top corn producer, showed earlier that more than half the crop was destroyed in some areas and officials said the rain came too late to help farmers recover.

Raymond Hancock of the Kansas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said the rain would help the 1975 wheat crop and needs soil moisture to enable the seeds to germinate and grow through the winter months.

Lawyer Is Retained By Richard Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon has retained Herbert John Miller Jr., a Washington attorney, to replace James D. St. Clair as his personal lawyer.

"It's no secret. I have been retained," Miller, a former Justice Department lawyer, said on Tuesday. "Beyond that, I have no comment."

St. Clair, of Boston, quit after Nixon resigned from the presidency.

Miller, 50, was assistant attorney general for the criminal division of the Justice Department from 1961 to 1965. Since then he has been a partner in the Washington law firm of Miller, Cassidy, Larroca & Lewin.

He was the attorney for former Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst and also represented two other Watergate figures, former White House special counsel Richard Moore and William O. Bidman, E. Howard Hunt's attorney, when they appeared before the Senate Watergate committee last year.

Open Production Set For Wheat, Cotton, Grains

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz announced this week that wheat, cotton, and feed grains producers will have no government acreage restrictions in 1975, the second straight year for wide-open production.

But wheat farmers may not increase plantings for next year's harvest from what they had in 1974, says the National Association of Wheat Growers.

"The assessment is based on reports that most areas have already made full use of available land and any increases in wheat acreages are likely to be offset by shifts to other crops because of favorable price relationships," the association said in its weekly newsletter.

OIL BOOM IS ON—The construction and operation of the Sedco K drilling platform in the Ninian oilfield in the North Sea, about 10 miles east of the Shetland Islands, is an example of the boom in oil exploration. The magic is back in "black gold" and the only thing that holds exploration back is the limited availability of men and equipment. (AP Wirephoto.)
