West Texas Gas Strikes Are Finaled

Discoveries have been completed in Pecos and Sterling counties.

Union Texas Petroleum Corp. completed No. 1-23 Herral as a Strawn gas strike in Pecos, 15 miles southwest of Bakerfield and 2 1/2 miles east of Ellenburger production in the Hokit field.

The calculated, absolute open flow was for 23 million cubic feet of gas per day, with gas-liquid ratio of 25,300-1. Gravity of the condensate is 58.2 degrees.

Completion was effected through perforations at 9,777-9,837 feet, which had been acidized with 2,750 gallons.

The project was drilled to 13,020 feet, and plugged back to 9,945 feet, in 5/8-inch casing seated at 10,018 feet. The following tops were picked under ground elevation of 2,913 feet: Wolfcamp, 9,310; Strawn, 9,337; detrital, 9,688; Woodford, 9,938; Devonian, 9,957; Fusselman, 10,312; Montoya, 10,350; Simpson, 10,490 and Ellenburger, 12,308 feet.

Location is 2,600 feet from north and 1,200 feet from west lines of section 23, block 127, T&STL survey.

Sterling Discovery

The Sterling Co. of Midland, No. 1-C McEntire, former Wolfcamp oil producer in the Credo, East field of Sterling County, has been recompleted as an unidentified gas pay opener.

Calculated, absolute open flow was for 700,000 cubic feet of dry gas per day, through perforated section at 7,300-7,474 feet, which had been acidized with 2,000 gallons.

It originally was drilled by Adobe Oil Co. and completed from the oil pay in July, 1972. Total depth is 7,550 feet, and the plugged-back depth is 7,539 feet. Ground elevation is 2,442 feet.

Location is 467 feet from north and east lines of section 17, block 23, H&TC survey, 13 miles northwest of Sterling City.

Midland, Terrell Draw Exploration

Exploration is planned for Midland and Terrell counties.

Diamond Shamrock Corp., Amarillo, plans to drill No. 1-3 Alice A. Shell as an 8,650-foot wildcat in Midland, five miles south of Stanton.

Drill site is 1,320 feet from north and west lines of section 3, block 36, T-2-S, T&P survey, abstract 1150, 1/4 mile east of Spraberry production in the Trend Area.

Terrell Venture

Belco Petroleum Corp., Midland, intends to drill No. 1 Pakenham Ranch Co., Ltd., as an 11,500-foot venture in Terrell County.

Drill site is 1,320 feet from south and west lines of section 57, block B-2, CCSD&RGNG survey, 12 miles southwest of Sheffield, one mile south of the depleted one-well Blackstone.

Iran Refuses To Cut Oil Prices

Shah Voices Strong Reply To President

By The Associated Press

The Shah of Iran rejected today President Ford's call for reduced oil prices. He called on the industrial nations to cut the prices of their exports first.

The shah, one of the leaders in the drive to increase oil revenues for the producing countries, told newsmen in Canberra, Australia, "No one can dictate to us, because we will wave a finger back."

Economic Indicator Declines

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government indicator designed to foreshadow future trends in the economy suffered its sharpest drop of the year in August, the Commerce Department reported today.

Most of the drop was attributed to sagging stock prices, but the index of leading indicators also was pushed down by the largest number of new unemployment claims for any month since March.

Gas Pipeline Plan Eyed

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A proposed $2.5 billion gas pipeline that would stretch overland 1,650 miles from Venezuela to the United States was under study today by a joint Venezuela-Mexico business conference.

The pilot project was announced Wednesday night at the closing session of the third annual Venezuela-Mexico Business Committee Conference here.

The pipeline would begin in Venezuela and extend to the Texas border, the announcement said.

Israelis Stage Raid

By The Associated Press

Israel sent a ground patrol into Lebanon today to search for guns and guerrillas, Lebanese officials said.

In other Middle East developments, a radical group pulled out of the main Palestinian organization, and three Dutch citizens were jailed in Israel on suspicion of security offenses.

The Israeli patrol crossed the Lebanese border before dawn and carried out a house-to-house search for arms and guerrillas in the village of Bida, authorities there said.

The search lasted an hour, then the patrol pulled out, covering its retreat to the Israeli border a mile away with machine-gun fire in the air, village officials said. No captives were taken.

The incursion came on the first anniversary of the 1973 war, coinciding with Yom Kippur, the Jewish Day of Atonement, and the 10th day of Ramadan, the month-long Moslem holiday of dawn-to-dusk fasting.

At the Chatila refugee camp outside Beirut, the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine announced its withdrawal from the Executive Committee of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Spokesman Abu Maher accused the PLO leadership of "treacherous pro-American tendencies" and said two other major guerrilla groups were contemplating withdrawal.

The PFLP, a leftist group known for hijacking Western airliners, is led by Dr. George Habash, a Marxist extremist. The PLO, the group that embraces the major guerrilla organizations, is headed by Yasir Arafat, a moderate who seeks a political settlement with Israel.

In Jerusalem, lawyer Felicia Langer said that three Dutch nationals were being held by Israeli police on suspicion of security offenses.

Mrs. Langer said they were all Arab affairs students from Leiden.

Police were not immediately available for comment.

1975 United Way Campaign Reaches 38 Per Cent Mark

The United Way of Midland's 1975 campaign for funds has passed the one-third mark, Bill Malone, campaign chairman said today at the drive's second report meeting in The First National Bank.

Contributions and pledges from the various divisions now total $204,928.84, or 38.1 per cent of the $538,400 goal.

One of the highlights of today's noon report meeting was the presentation of a corporate gift of $18,000 by The First National Bank. The check presentation was made by C. J. Kelly, the president of the bank, to Paul Rea, chairman of the campaign's Advance Support Division.

Another highlight was the showing of a film, "Perils of Pearl."

Malone said, "First National's continuing outstanding support of the United Way's 19 participating agencies sets a corporate example for other Midland firms."

Spurr Puts Off Court Action On Firing Until Probe Completed

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Dr. Stephen H. Spurr said today he will not contest in court his dismissal as University of Texas-Austin president until a faculty-student committee has finished its probe of the firing.

Spurr, who was fired Tuesday by Chancellor Charles LeMaistre, also told a news conference he thought regretted Frank Erwin of Austin "was a major factor" in the dismissal.

The fired president attributed his ouster to his insistence on running the internal affairs of

CRITICS APPEAR AT SENATE HEARING

Rockefeller's Interests Questioned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ahead of what he termed "a dynasty of wealth and power unequalled in the history of the United States," Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., put the national interest raised the question before the Senate Rules and Administration Committee, which is holding hearings on the nomination. However, he did not ask the committee to reject President Ford's selection of the former New York governor.

Helms said that proposals to put Rockefeller's vast holdings into a blind trust don't really get to the heart of the issue.

"If the nominee is ever faced with the problem of survival of ingrained dynastic values as against the survival of the national interest," Helms asked, "is there any human being on earth who can be sure what will survive?"

Helms said Congress must ask itself "whether we want the highest political offices of the land to be identified with one of the highest concentrations of private power in the land."

Helms said he asked to testify after reading press accounts that the panel had failed to probe deeply enough into Rockefeller's background and presented the committee with a long list of questions for Rockefeller about various activities dealing with his financial holdings, support of abortion reform proposals and wiretapping in the Nixon administration.

Rockefeller completed his testimony before the committee Wednesday and the panel began hearing from other witnesses today, most of them opponents to the nomination.

Committee Chairman Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., hoped to hear from all 15 public witnesses today and then suspend the confirmation hearings pending receipt of an audit of Rockefeller's taxes.

The witnesses included black activist Angela Davis, appearing as chairperson of the National Alliance Against Racism and Political Repression; leaders of the strongly conservative Young Americans for Freedom and Liberty Lobby; and persons on both sides of the controversy over abortion reform.

Although Cannon said it would be premature to predict the panel's action before it gets the audit and hears the public witnesses, Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va., said "I don't see any

Sunshine Returns To Permian Basin

Midlanders and their fellow residents of the Permian Basin and elsewhere in the state today were basking in their first full day of sunshine in almost two weeks. Although occasional drizzle and fog lingered at a few East Texas points, official weather observers pronounced the state's long spell of flooding at an end today.

The Midland forecast calls for fair skies and rising temperatures today and Friday. The high this afternoon is expected to reach into the low 80s, and the high Friday will be in the upper 80s, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Air Terminal. The overnight low should be in the mid 50s.

Wednesday's high in Midland was 72 degrees, and the early morning low today was 55 degrees.

Along and west of a north-south line from Wichita Falls to Cotulla skies were generally clear. It was cloudy to partly cloudy farther east.

Early morning temperatures again were a bit below normal for early fall, ranging from 50 degrees at Abilene and Dalhart up to 67 at Brownsville, according to The Associated Press.

LATE NEWS FLASHES

HOUSTON (AP) — An Air Force plane carrying 18,000 pounds of food, clothing and medicine for hurricane-torn Honduras took off today from Ellington Air Force Base after a 24-hour delay because of Defense Department red tape.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said today President Ford will support an amendment under which military aid to Turkey could be suspended.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford announced today he is nominating David K. E. Bruce to be U.S. ambassador to NATO and Gen. Fred C. Weyand to be the Army's chief of staff.

Kidnaping Threat Revealed Against Kennedy Children

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secret Service agents guarded the children of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy for more than a week because of a kidnap threat, a Treasury Department official said today.

The threat was so serious that White House counsel Philip Buchen gave his personal approval for the protection and was kept personally advised of developments, the official said.

A source close to the investigation in Boston said the threats were made against "all children of Kennedy blood."

Treasury Undersecretary Edward C. Schmults said a child of Kennedy-in-law actor Peter Lawford was also afforded protection for a short time.

Schmults said the kidnap threat was first received Sept. 18. Secret Service and police protection was provided mainly to Kennedy children in the Boston area, then phased out over the next week, Schmults said.

He said he could not provide details of the exact nature of the threat, whether it was received in the mail or by phone.

An FBI spokesman in Washington would say only, "We have received an unspecified threat on a member of the Kennedy family."

ers if he would declare his reasons for the dismissal, LeMaistre said that would depend "upon the circumstances in the future."

"I would prefer to see this ended, and no continuing controversy if that can be achieved. On the other hand, if circumstances require it, I am prepared to reveal publicly whatever is necessary to justify this action," LeMaistre said.

Spurr received a standing ovation earlier in the day from

Russians Announce Space Lab Ends Mission

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet space lab Salyut 3 ended its mission after three months in orbit, Tass announced today. The brief announcement said Salyut 3 had "completed its entire planned program of research work" and the recoverable module was separated from the station Monday and landed in the Soviet Union. Salyut 3 was launched June 25 and in July a two-man Soviet crew linked Soyuz 14 to the lab and spent 14 days aboard. Last month a Soyuz 15 mission approached the lab, but the automatic docking system failed to work and the cosmonauts cut their mission short and returned to earth. The Tass dispatch did not say what had happened to the non-recoverable part of the Salyut spacecraft, but the announcement ruled out any more space research for the lab. The world's first manned space lab was established in Salyut 1, which burned up as it re-entered the atmosphere in October 1971, after six months in flight. Development of space laboratories has always had a high priority in the Soviet program, and the Salyut was developed as a basic vehicle. It has four cabins and looks like a huge telescope with wings. Salyut 2 was launched in April 1973, but was never manned because it apparently lost its solar panels during the first few hours of flight and was crippled. The Soviets, who customarily say nothing of space program shortcomings unless they are self-evident, did not announce any trouble with Salyut 2 and said only that it had concluded its flight program.

Army Moves To Appeal Decision On Voiding Calley's Conviction

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — "I don't have a battalion to storm Ft. Leavenworth and take him out," one of William L. Calley Jr.'s attorneys said about the Army's efforts to stay a federal judge's order freeing Calley. "It's unbelievable to me that the Army would just out and out say they're not going to release the man," said J. Houston Gordon, the 28-year-old Tennessee lawyer who has been the driving force behind Calley's fight for freedom. "The judge's order is to release the man forthwith, and I understood that meant immediately." Calley, 31, remains in disciplinary barracks at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., today while the Army moves to appeal U.S. District Court Judge J. Robert Elliott's decision overturning Calley's murder conviction in the My Lai massacre of Vietnamese civilians. The Army has said it also will recommend that the Justice Department, which acts for it in cases before federal civil courts, move for a stay of Elliott's order to release Calley. The former Army lieutenant "will not be released from confinement pending a decision on these recommendations," the Army's announcement said. Elliott ordered Calley released once before, on bond last February, but that order was revoked by a higher court when the Army filed an appeal. Gordon said Calley learned of Judge Elliott's ruling by radio. "He heard it with a great deal of pleasure," the lawyer said. "I think he is pleased that finally during this entire ordeal, there has been something positive for him." Calley reacted "in a calm, cool and collected manner," Gordon said. Calley hopes to be released from Ft. Leavenworth "in a few hours, and not a matter of days," Gordon said. Kenneth Henson of Columbus, another of Calley's attorneys, said: "It's incongruous that you release draft dodgers and deserters and expedite their release and continue to imprison a man whom a U.S. judge said had his constitutional rights violated in his trial and conviction. If an appeal is made, it will probably be taken to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans. Calley was convicted 3½ years ago of murdering at least 22 My Lai villagers. He originally was sentenced to life imprisonment, but that sentence was later reduced to 10 years. Gordon said that if Elliott's decision to free Calley is overruled by the appeals court, he will take it to the Supreme Court. Elliott spent three months reviewing more than 80 volumes of transcript of Calley's court-martial, one of the longest in U.S. military history. He also watched hundreds of television tapes, and read newspaper stories, books and magazine accounts of the My Lai case. A key issue of his ruling overturning the conviction was pretrial publicity — that Calley was held up to the world "as a midget monster murderer who went about on his own slaughtering innocent civilians, willy-nilly, for the pleasure of the experience..."

59 Deserters Processed Under Amnesty Program

CAMP ATTERBURY, Ind. (AP) — Fifty-nine deserters have been processed at Camp Atterbury under President Ford's conditional amnesty program, an Army spokesman reports. The spokesman said the men had been processed, given undesirable discharges and released from the camp by Wednesday. They were informed of the length of alternative service they would have to serve and were told to report to Selective Service centers near their homes for specific assignments, the spokesman added. There was no indication how many would actually complete the alternative service to have a less undesirable discharge changed to a clemency discharge. The spokesman said calls from persons verified as military absentees totaled 800 by Wednesday afternoon and some 200 had entered the processing center.

Presbyterians Pick Negro Woman As Moderator-Elect

SHERMAN, Tex. (AP) — Representatives of the Presbyterian Church U.S. from four states have elected a Houston biology teacher as the first black and the first woman to hold the high church office of moderator-elect. Meet Omega Scion—our luscious compact for drivers who like the looks and comforts of imported touring cars. It's got the touches you like—but at an Olds price. Choice of three models.

Toronado—America's first contemporary personal luxury car with steel wheel drive. It pulls you around turns and along straightaways with outstanding traction. Toronado and Toronado Rougham models.

Cutlass Supreme—now our "like limousine" is big on luxury, yet it offers improved operating economy. One of eleven mid-sized Cutlass models—including wagons—that are right for the times.

98 Regency (below)—The most comfortable, most thoroughly luxurious Oldsmobile ever built. Magnificent "toe-cushion" look interior, and a distinctive new look in both side-window sedan and coupe models.

IT'S A GOOD FEELING TO HAVE AN OLDS AROUND YOU.

We raised the gas mileage in every 1975 Olds model.
Every '75 Olds has a new Maximum Mileage System that helps make it a better car in several ways. Our best mileage in years. Smooth-running engines. Fewer tune-ups and less routine maintenance. And—better exhaust emission control. The System represents the most advanced engineering and technology we can build into a '75 Olds. It includes a new catalytic converter (see below)—and a lot more. There's a new high-energy ignition, for a hotter spark and improved ignition performance. Also, Olds engineers adjusted shift points in transmissions. Installed low-ratio economy cases. And made GM-spec steel-belted radial tires standard. As you can see, we've done a lot to improve the gas mileage capability of every 1975 Oldsmobile.

New Catalytic Converter—designed for long life.
This "pod" full of platinum-palladium coated beads provides a new way to reduce most emissions—after combustion, in the exhaust. It does a more effective job—and it eliminates some of the gas-robbing, combustion-stage contaminants of the past. Best of all, it allowed Olds engineers to re-tune the engines to run smoother and give better MPG than last year.

ROTC Pr
Interest

By LOUISE C. Associated Press
Rising civilian unemployment and the fadeout of ROTC programs have prompted interest in ROTC programs. Enrollment campuses is up 25 from last year. An Associated Press showed the trend increased interest in ROTC programs spread across the country.

Partly Economic
Part of the motivation: Reserve Officers' Training Corps candidate scholarships, textbook allowances during their four years in college, a guaranteed job at the end of college, to serve for two years duty and must part in certain classroom drill programs. The end of the Vietnam War also brought an end to ROTC programs, forcing many colleges to discontinue them completely.

RETURNEES COULD RISK ARREST—

Amnesty Plan May Exclude Many

By BARTON REPPERT
WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice Department officials say President Ford's amnesty program may exclude Vietnam-era draft evaders and deserters who have become citizens of Canada or some other country.

In his proclamation on Sept. 16 putting the conditional amnesty program into effect, the President declared that "this program will not apply to an individual who is precluded from re-entering under 8 U.S.C. 1182 (a) (22) or other law."

Jack Colbourn, coeditor of the exile magazine AMEX-Canada, said he estimates about 1,500 of them are war resisters.

Regarding landed immigrants, Canadian government officials again contend they lack any figures specifically on U.S. war resisters.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Let There Be Peace
At Drive-In Movies

By POLLY CRAMER

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — My problem is with a sweating toilet tank that often leaves a puddle of water and at times an odor. Surely some reader has had the same problem and can help me solve mine. — MARIE.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with the impoliteness of people at drive-in movies. Some are constantly honking their car horns and making other noises while the picture is on. Also kids sit on roofs of cars and block the view of those behind them. If people would only be more considerate of those around them everyone would be happy and enjoy the movies more. — B. J.

DEAR POLLY — Do tell Penny who has fleas in her shag carpet that we have a dog and a cat. At one time we had fleas in our carpet so scattered flea powder over the carpet and left it there for several days and then I vacuumed it up and the fleas were completely gone. The flea powder did not harm our carpet but Penny could test an inconspicuous spot first to be sure. — BILLIE.

DEAR POLLY — To our sorrow our big Shepherd dog was let into the house before he was de-fleaed. I can tell Penny how to get rid of the fleas in her shag carpet. Set a dish filled with soapy water in the middle of the rug and then put a light over it such as a desk lamp or even a flashlight. The rest of the room should be completely dark. The fleas will be attracted to the light and jump right into the solution and drown. I also turned the closet light on in my bedroom, closed the door just so a slit of light showed and placed the dish of soapy water at the crack. I caught dozens of fleas this way. — D. B.

GIRLS: Families with small children should not use the flea powder treatment suggested by BILLIE. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — Years ago a doctor told me to apply ice or immerse a burned hand, for example, in extremely cold water for at least an hour. Oh how good it feels but while hurriedly cooking a meal who can take the time? It seems I manage to get all my minor little burns in spurts. Recently I took hold of a hot spoon. To relieve the pain I grabbed a small can of fruit juice from the freezer and just held it while I continued cooking. A few days later while mashing potatoes some of the hot mixture splashed on the back of my hand and I grabbed a bag of frozen vegetables and sort of wrapped it around my hand. The pain was soon gone and not a sign of a burn. If more time is needed just keep the package on the burn until you have finished your meal. — BERTHA.

Dear Abby

Hubby Tries To Date The Wife Next Door

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday the man across the street came up to me while I was outside and said, "Where is your old man?" I said, "If you mean my husband, he is at work. Why do you want to know?"

Then he said, "Because your husband has been calling up my old lady and trying to get her to go out with him."

I didn't know what to say next, so I said, "Well, he'll be home in about an hour. Why don't you come back and talk to him?" Then I went in the house and cried.

When my husband came home, I told him what happened. He said it was all a big lie, but he looked nervous and took off right away saying he'd be right back. He called me up later to say he wouldn't be home for supper.

Meanwhile, the man from across the street came over again for my husband. He said my husband had called up his wife again and asked her to say she must have been mistaken — that the guy who was trying to get her to go out with him was somebody else.

I don't know who to believe, Abby. If my husband had stayed home and faced his neighbor like a man, I would have had more faith in him. What do you think?

HURT

DEAR HURT: I think your husband has a lot of explaining to do.

DEAR ABBY: I recently married a lovely woman. She has two daughters, 15 and 17. They are fine girls, but they go around the house half-nude. They stand around in the kitchen in their shorty nightgowns with nothing on underneath, and often run through the house with nothing on top and very little below.

I asked the girls to please keep themselves covered, for the sake of modesty, and they looked at me like I was out of my mind.

My wife says there is nothing shameful about the body. I am now wondering if maybe I am wrong.

I can't help thinking that those young ladies should change their ways instead of the changing my ideas.

OLD GOAT

DEAR GOAT: You're not wrong. They are.

DEAR ABBY: That letter signed "stuck with the kids" could have been written by me. Fresh out of college, I got a dream job. Then marriage, and boom! Two kids, one right after the other. (Both accidents.) I resented them terribly for robbing me of my freedom. Then I felt guilty because I couldn't "love" them like a mother should.

I never hurt my kids physically, but emotionally I was destroying them and myself. I tried alcohol, drugs, even suicide. I wrote to you as a last resort, and your answer sunk in. I locked out with a terrific psychiatrist.

I'm glad you told "stuck" that a seemingly overwhelming situation can be dealt with and to get professional help — but fast! I pray that she does. It was my salvation. Thank you, Abby.

Twentieth Century Study Club Meets In Burkett Home

"Keys For Safety" was the topic for the meeting of the Twentieth Century Study Club Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Robert Burkett, 2406 Culpeper St.

Mrs. Robert Noah, president, presided for the meeting with Mrs. Joseph Mims leading the club collect.

The guest speaker, Sgt. Fred Johnson of the Midland Police Department, was introduced by Mrs. Raymond Monks. He spoke on "Burglar Proofing Your Home" and gave several ways in which one must harden the target to eliminate crime. "Time is a very important element against thieves," he pointed out.

A business meeting followed the program in which members were reminded of the Western District board meeting Oct. 11-12 in Pecos.

Hostesses were Mrs. Burkett and Mrs. Charles East.

LADYLIKE—Beautifully constructed coat is in brilliant yellow pure wool with pointed front sailor collar, fitted waist and slightly flared skirt. It is worn over a brown crepe de chine pant suit with the suit collar pulled out over the coat collar. Matching brown wrapped silk turban completes the look.

Gagliano For Fall Is Pure Elegance

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Woman's Editor

NEW YORK — Contemporary is the key to Gagliano design, and he glorifies the feminine form with the magic he possesses in his use of color, shape and line.

The look for fall '74 is completely modern, everything unstructured and done with elegance. Much of his success is his emphasis on quality, originality and the beauty of line, color and cut.

He designs his own prints and is inspired by the greats of modern art — Picasso, Monet, Kandinsky. Fabrics are all pure silks, chiffons, pure wools and flannels and mohair.

There is nothing funky or gimmicky in these clothes. They are ladylike, elegant and sophisticated.

Wrinkle Free
For a neat, wrinkle-free edge on a collar, first press the collar on the underside, then turn it over and iron the top. This causes all of the slack around the seam to appear on the hidden side of the collar.

Press Women's Meet Scheduled

LONGVIEW — The Texas Press Women, Inc., will meet for an executive board session Oct. 28 here.

Mrs. Holly Wood of Seguin, president, has outlined a full agenda of activities for the one-day session to be attended by 12 district presidents, 16 committee chairmen and the 10-member executive committee.

Attending from Midland will be Mrs. L. R. Goodwin, chairman of the spring convention of the organization scheduled in Midland.

The agenda items will include the selection of a regional director for New Mexico and Texas and a nominating committee.

Mrs. Wood will announce guidelines for the continuing participation in the National Federation of Press Women membership contest.

Newtimers Club Names Winners

The Newtimers Club met Tuesday in the Elks Club for bridge games and a luncheon.

The game winners were Mrs. James Lowe, first; Mrs. Lloyd Madden, second, and Mrs. Donald Gates, third.

Mrs. Max Domino was a guest.

Meetings of the club are held the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month. Reservations may be made with Mrs. William Bishop, 682-7780. Mrs. J. T. Gist, club president, may be contacted for information.

Lee Ann Burk Court Member

Lee Ann Burk, daughter of Mrs. Jeanne Burk of Midland and Bryan Burk of Houston, will participate as royalty in the Coronation Court and parade pageantry of Queen Patsy Eloise Festival at the Texas Rose Festival in Tyler Oct. 10-13.

Miss Burk is attending The University of Texas-Austin, where she is a majoring in interior design. She is a member of Alpha Xi Delta, Young Republicans and the Ski Club. She was a member of the Girl Scouts, French Club and National Honor Society while attending Lee High School and has been active in the Girl Scouts as a tutor for underprivileged children at Casa de Amigos 10 years. During the summer of 1973, she made a five-week camping tour of seven European countries with a group from Midland.

Miss Burk will participate in the Queen's Coronation of the Festival Oct. 10-11. "Memorabilia Americana" will be the theme of the coronation. She also will be honored at teas, dances and other social activities and will ride on a rose-adorned float in the Rose Festival Parade Oct. 12. She will be presented at the Queen's Ball, sponsored by the Order of the Rose, along with many other coeds from many states.

GUEST SPEAKER — Josephine Gray Mitchell of Fort Worth, founder of the Fort Worth League of Composers, will be principal speaker Saturday at the opening meeting of the Midland Music Club of the Texas Federation of Music Clubs. Mrs. Mitchell is a past fourth district president of the TFMC and has served as state chairman of TFMC's Texas Composers Guild. She has received state and national citations for her efforts in encouraging performance of music by Texas composers, as well as for her work in collecting and preserving Texas folk music. Active in Fort Worth musical circles, she also is a board member of the National Federation of Music Clubs and has served as national folk music chairman for the NFMC. The Saturday meeting will be a luncheon meeting in the home of Mrs. Charles B. Renaud, 1205 Lawson St.

Message To Congress!

The recent appearance in Washington of 181 independent oil operators who told their story to members of Congress in face-to-face visits, has to be one of the greatest and most effective legislative moves of the independent segment of the petroleum industry.

The 181 members of the Independent Petroleum Association of America (IPAA) and the Liaison Committee representing numerous state and regional producer groups, including the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, personally contacted almost all of the 100 members of the Senate and 435 members of the House.

Never before had such an ambitious, far-reaching effort been made by the independents. The impact was said to be tremendous. It simply couldn't have been otherwise.

C. John Miller of Allegan, Mich., president of IPAA, said in an address here Tuesday noon that this and one previous session "have convinced me that personal meetings between independent producers and members of Congress, friends as well as foes, is the only means of effectively communicating an understanding of the impact that such adverse proposals would have on industry operations, on future oil and gas supplies, on the consuming public, and on the security of our country."

The adverse proposals he mentioned included the depletion allowance phase-out and the excise tax proposal which has been approved by the Ways and Means Committee. These changes, he said, would extract approximately $12 billion from the domestic industry over the next five years. They are incorporated in a general tax reform act which the committee expects to report out early next week.

Miller stressed the benefits of such "eyeball-to-eyeball" discussions and cited some changes which already have resulted from the visits.

He made it clear also that the battle for survival must be continued and that independents and others must not get the idea that the legislative wars waged against the oil and gas industry have subsided. He said there are members of Congress who believe firmly that the oil industry "ought to be nationalized down to the last stripper well."

Miller's warning should be heeded by every person in the petroleum industry — for their own good and for the good of the nation. They must become involved in this continuing effort of constructive communication with government.

The IPAA president cautioned that independents no longer have a choice in the matter — if they want to stay in business.

"We have our work cut out for us," Miller said in his Midland address, "and I believe that if enough of us accept the challenge, we can win this political fight."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Jack Anderson Says: Curious coincidences cited between ITT and Chile.

WASHINGTON — Was International Telephone and Telegraph (ITT) behind the U.S. effort to undermine the late Salvador Allende's government in Chile? Consider these curious coincidences:

On March 21, 1972, we reported that the CIA and ITT had been "plotting together to create economic chaos in Chile, hoping this would cause the Chilean army to pull a coup..." The CIA spent $8 million, most of it on economic sabotage, to weaken Allende's government. The coup came exactly 18 months after we reported the CIA-ITT scheme.

Even before Allende took office, we also reported, ITT sent a secret message to Henry Kissinger urging American action to stop Allende. The Marxist leader had won Chile's election by a plurality, not majority. Under the constitution, therefore, the Chilean Congress would make the final choice between Allende and the second highest vote-getter. The CIA passed out $350,000 to bribe members of the Chilean Congress to vote against Allende.

ITT's links with the CIA were unusually strong. John McCone, a former CIA director, had become an ITT director. Among the ITT documents, which we uncovered, was an Oct. 9, 1970, report to McCone on Chile declaring: "Approaches continue to be made to select members of the armed forces in an attempt to have them lead some sort of uprising — no success to date."

Edward Korry, the former U.S. ambassador to Chile, operated the U.S. Embassy virtually as a branch office for ITT. The ITT documents in our possession show he described his anti-Allende activities to ITT's director of international relations, J. D. Neal. Korry's reports to ITT often were more candid than his reports to the State Dept.

While working behind the scenes with ITT against Allende, Korry spoke to Allende about a deal to pay off ITT and two copper companies in U.S.-guaranteed Chilean bonds. Under this plan, the United States would have had to make good on the bonds and would have wound up paying ITT a whopping $90 million. But Allende turned down the deal, according to Korry, for "ideological reasons."

We wrote a series of columns in March, 1972, describing how the CIA and ITT had conspired together to promote Chile's economic collapse. Kissinger personally assured us, however, that the scheme had never been carried out. On his word, we wrote that the plan received a "cool reception from the White House and State Dept." Now we learn that Kissinger, after telling us this, approved additional CIA expenditures to undermine the Chilean economy. The last million was approved as late as August, 1973, only a month before the coup. "Cuban Center" We also reported on March 30, 1972, the reasons that the CIA wanted to eliminate Army aggravated the problem by demanding thicker steel, which made it not only heavy but too wide for many roads.

Even on highways that were wide enough, the trucks had to stop for half an hour every 90 minutes to cool off the tires. Under a full load at 40 miles an hour, the tires began to burn up after 90 minutes.

A horrified Deputy Assistant Secretary Joseph Zengerle warned in an internal memo about "the embarrassment to the Army if we purchase a truck which cannot satisfy the specified load-carrying requirements."

Yet despite his warning, the Army began ordering trucks without fully testing the first model. Result: The taxpayers are committed to pay $16 million for 551 trucks and the cost could go as high as $29 million.

The Army, in a two-page defense of the goof-ridden vehicle, said the Vietnam experience indicated automatic transmissions were cost effective. The early re-ordering was done, therefore, to save money.

The tests, said the Army, were "successful." The truck was "rugged" and its defects were "more apparent than real." As for the tires, a 90-minute break was standard for such dumpers, said the Army.

"The tire cooling when placed in perspective is no problem."

Among World's Biggest American children are among the biggest in the world, generally topping European and African youngsters in both height and weight.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY (Newspaper Syndicate Association) The professor won the diamond lead with dummy's king to make his contract.

He led a diamond to his ace. If West had ruffed it would have been too bad but West had to follow. Then the Professor led his jack of hearts. East could do nothing better than to rise with the ace and lead the suit back. The Professor won with dummy's king, discarding a club from his hand; ruffed dummy's last heart; cashed his ace of trumps; and showed his hand. He explained: "I am going to play my last high diamond. West's best play will be to discard. Then I will ruff my little diamond and lead a trump. West will have to lead a club or give me a ruff and discard. Either way I will only have to lose one club trick."

VIEWPOINT— Chile's Generals Yet Have Long Way To Go

WASHINGTON (NEA) — One year after they ousted Marxist President Salvador Allende Gossens, Chile's military rulers remain far short of restoring normalcy at home or gaining acceptance abroad.

Chile's congress is no more. The Communist and Socialist parties are outlawed and other political parties are, by decree, inactive.

Constitutional guarantees of civil rights are suspended and violators of even the most minor laws are hauled before military courts.

On any given day about 4,000 persons are in jail, most on unspecified charges. As some are freed, others are rounded up by military raiding parties acting on information gained through interrogation of other prisoners, the sifting of old political lists, or simply on suspicion of neighbors.

Based on the militaryists' new "10-year plan of government" and the recent burning of the electoral rolls, it appears the return of a popularly elected government in Chile is more remote than ever.

Many of the militaryists' problems, however, have not been of their own making. The economy a year ago was in chaos. The treasury was drained by the necessity of importing food and other goods because local production had suffered from work stoppages and political skulduggery.

"We knew from the very beginning it would be a very difficult task," said Walter Heilmann, a former air force general who is Chilean ambassador to the United States. "Many people did not realize how deep the damage was."

Copper production now is up 30 per cent from the Allende years and this has promoted a good credit rating among international lending agencies. But higher oil prices have wiped out any real monetary gains.

Chile will have to import about $600 million worth of feed grains this crop year, but agricultural production is on the upswing too. This is due at least in part to an agriculture reform program that gives farm workers title to plots of land taken from major land holders several years ago. Technicians have been ordered to help the small farmers with advice on planting, fertilizing and cultivation.

Although the cost of living rose 174 per cent in the first seven months of this year, the rate of increase is slowing. During the last 12 months of the Allende administration, the cost of living rose 650 per cent.

Encouraging is the restoration of some industry to former owners. According to Chilean officials, there are 49 new foreign industrial investments in the country — mostly Japanese, some U.S. and one European.

These same officials estimate the gross national product by year's end will be up 8.3 per cent compared with a drop of 5.7 per cent during the last year under Allende.

Disease hurt beef production this year, but officials note that for the first time in memory fish, fruits and vegetables are being exported and housewives no longer have to line up at dawn outside the markets for these foods.

Efforts in other fields are more spotty. Telephones — one every three blocks — were installed with great fanfare in slums around the capital of Santiago, and streets were graded. But it is in these slums, which were hotbeds of leftist Allende loyalty, that soldiers have concentrated their midnight raids to flush out suspected resistance leaders and other critics of the new system.

Most observers agree there no longer is systematic torture and execution of political enemies. But as one woman put it: "The military and the civilians speak a different language and that becomes a problem."

Ambassador Heilmann goes to great lengths to explain the difference between the military twisting an arm or striking a skull with a rifle butt, which he says is accepted as a "police tactic," and what he called "special torture" involving electric prods, extended physical abuse and other forms of physical and mental duress.

"There is no torture in Chile today," Heilmann declares, adding quickly, "and remember, we have fired 15 officers for abusing prisoners."

Enrollment Increases During the decade between 1963 and 1972, enrollment rose from 1,400,000 to 2 million in private colleges, while the number of students at public colleges jumped from 1,800,000 to 6,300,000.

The Country Parson

"The best thing about some men are their noses."

IRREPLACEABLE ONE— China Without Chou? Who Will Replace Him?

By NEA/London Economist News Service

LONDON (LENS) The irreplaceable Chou En-lai, the world's longest-serving prime minister and China's longest-serving politburo member, looks on his way to being replaced at last.

His wife, who is herself a veteran Communist official, told a Nigerian delegation in Peking last week that Chou had effectively resigned after suffering a second heart attack.

He is not now expected to resume his normal punishing schedule ever again.

The timing of Chou's illness is unfortunate for sentimental reasons — the celebration of the Communist's 25 years in power in China on Oct. 1 would not be the same without him — and also for very practical ones. The Chinese plainly would have like to get some unfinished bureaucratic business out of the way before the anniversary; a new draft state constitution has yet to be approved and some high officials, including the head of state and the defense minister, have yet to be appointed.

The prescribed way of dealing with these matters is at a full dress meeting of the National People's Congress, China's nearest equivalent to a legislature; but no such meeting has been held for nearly 10 years. The conflicts which have prevented a convening of the congress since it was first proclaimed to be tomorrow four years ago seem at least partly to have been resolved.

But Chou's illness removes the one man capable of engineering the inevitable last-minute compromises — and introduces the problem of selecting his successor. All of which makes a congress before Oct. 1 pretty unlikely.

It is a reflection of Chou En-lai's prodigious workload that his job is now being performed by two men. Teng Hsiao-ping and Le Hsiang-nien, both deputy prime ministers and both Communist party members for nearly 30 years, have been taking turns on the meeting-and-greeting circuit.

Teng, who has received rather more foreign attention and made rather more speeches, is generally regarded as the front-runner for Chou's job. But Li is still one step up in the party hierarchy and a strong contender.

Neither may be a match for Chou En-lai, but either would assure China of a smooth succession as it is likely to get now that the indispensable has to be dispensed with.

It is unfortunate for sentimental reasons — the celebration of the Communist's 25 years in power in China on Oct. 1 would not be the same without him — and also for very practical ones. The Chinese plainly would have like to get some unfinished bureaucratic business out of the way before the anniversary; a new draft state constitution has yet to be approved and some high officials, including the head of state and the defense minister, have yet to be appointed.

Ford, Congressional Leaders Hold Meeting On Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has hosted congressional leaders of both parties to a White House meeting on foreign aid.

The meeting was scheduled today as pressure built in Congress to cut off military assistance to Turkey.

Turkey at the same time said its army could hold its own without American help.

Solid Waste Discussion Conducted In City Hall

Members of a hearing commission from the Texas Water Quality Board, holding a meeting to improve the state's regulatory system for industrial solid waste, told those present today that the Midland area doesn't have any particular problems with solid waste.

Foreign Oil Costs Bring Record Deficit In Trade

WASHINGTON (AP) — The high cost of foreign oil plunged the nation's trade into a $1.1-billion deficit in August, the worst monthly deficit on record.

The total trade deficit for the first eight months of the year is $2.1 billion, making it virtually certain the nation's trade balance will end 1974 with a substantial deficit.

Treasury Undersecretary Jack Bennett indicated Wednesday the government feels there is no cause for alarm, saying the big August deficit was "just in part a reflection of the added burden of oil imports."

Tax Revision Bill Could Help Average American, Spell Out Grief For Oilmen

By EARL C. CRAFT
WASHINGTON (AP) — If this year's big tax bill survives heavy cross-fire in Congress, many average Americans will see a tax cut while oilmen will see an old tax-saving friend, the depletion allowance, slowly die.

But all sides in the tax bill battle agree that's an extremely big "if" because the legislation is in trouble. Friends are having a tough time finding and keeping a consensus, while some strange-bedfellows enemies may just gang up and kill it quickly.

—Eike taxes for the oil industry, mainly by phasing out the percentage depletion allowance that has been a fixture in tax law since the 1890s and which eases petroleum producers' $2 billion to $3 billion a year in federal taxes.

—Curb tax shelters, especially in the real estate field where these are extensively used by investors.

—Ease taxes on capital gains, meaning profits from sales of assets such as securities or real estate held a certain length of time.

—Over-all, staff experts said it will be next week before firm estimates on the revenue gains and losses for the Treasury are ready for presentation to the committee.

But they guess there would be a net $400 million gain for the government when the bill's features take effect.

Committee Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., is pushing to get a bill passed by the House before the planned mid-October recess for the November elections. But the committee is deeply split over the major features such as the proposed boost in oil industry taxes.

Still pending are moves to reconsider such things as the new minimum tax on the wealthy, and a suggestion that a way be provided so that no federal taxes would have to be paid by a head of a household earning up to $3,500, or by others on a scale ranging to a married couple with four children and annual earnings of $4,000.

—The four remaining categories which are tabulated and used in subsequent adjustment of the monthly figures, are corporate profits; changes in consumer installment debt; changes in book values of manufacturing and trade inventories, and business formations.

Exerting an upward influence on the government index were a longer average work week, increased orders for durable goods and improvement in the price of goods relative to the cost of labor needed to produce them.

Also pointing to slower economic activity were a falloff in the number of building permits issued, lower prices for industrial materials and reduced orders for factory expansion and equipment.

—The House Administration Committee voted five-to-one today to match a Senate appropriation of $9,752 to fund the work of the committee. The total of $18,268 is half of what the committee requested.

Conflict-Of-Interest Rules Not Enforced, FPC Chairman Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Power Commission Chairman John N. Nassikas says conflict-of-interest rules have not been enforced on officials of the agency for at least the past four years.

He acknowledged Wednesday that at least 19 commission officials have technically violated the conflict-of-interest rules, but he said an investigation has found no real conflict affecting their regulatory activities.

Nassikas testified before a special House subcommittee on investigations looking into a General Accounting Office report alleging serious problems in the commission. The report said that for years the commission has not adequately enforced its own rules against officials owning stock in companies affected by commission regulation.

Even the officials responsible for reviewing financial statements of commission employees failed to file their own statements.

Nassikas accepted responsibility for the failure, but he said the regulations had been ignored even before he became chairman and before Claudius Fike became director of personnel programs in 1971.

However, he emphasized that neither the GAO nor the commission's internal investigations so far have uncovered "any violations of ethical standards in using public office for private gain, giving preferential treatment to any organization or person, losing complete dependence or impartiality of action and affecting adversely the confidence of the public in government integrity."

The officials still under commission investigation were identified only by job titles, including seven administrative law judges, among them the chief judge, Joseph Zwerdling.

Esther Seeger

Exchange Student Says City Nice But 'Very Flat'

By LUANNA CROW — has come here from Liestal, Switzerland. The 17-year-old Youth For Understanding student reports that the Tall Midland is "nice" but "very flat."

Asked how she had pictured Midland prior to her arrival, Miss Seeger replied, "I knew it would be flat, and I saw it as hot, a lot of churches and cowboys."

She noted "everyone here is so religious and goes to church every Sunday" while the Swiss are less involved in religious activities. Another difference she has observed is the abundance of religious denominations here, contrasted to the simple Swiss divisions of Protestant and Catholic.

Miss Seeger said schools in the two countries are quite different.

If her Swiss school, "every school day is different," she said. "We have about 12 subjects a week and we don't have the same subject every day like here."

"Mostly we have two or three hours for lunch, but we go to school until 5 or 6 p.m. On Saturday, we have school in the morning."

Asked which system she prefers, the 17-year-old exchange student observed the American system can get "kind of boring," Miss Seeger added, however, she enjoys the variety of elective subjects available to students here.

In Switzerland, she said, "we can only choose between four different types. We can have more math, music, economics or Latin."

At LHS, she is enrolled in English, government, speech, art, volleyball and Spanish.

Spanish will be a fifth language for Miss Seeger who speaks Swiss German at home. "In school, we have to speak high German like they speak in Germany. And we have to learn French and English," she said.

Miss Seeger said students in Switzerland attend primary school five years before moving on to "pro-gymnasium" which is divided into three levels of achievement as determined by an exam.

Students attend pro-gymnasium four years, with only the students from the "smart school" allowed to enter gymnasium, the Swiss equivalent of high school. Only "about 15 percent of the kids graduate from gymnasium," she said.

Miss Seeger said some students "go to school for eight years, then go into a profession and attend school just one day a week." How long they continue once a week "depends on the profession. Sometimes it's two years, or three or four."

Even the clothes students wear are different, she added, pointing out girls don't like to wear "short skirts or be dressed up." They prefer, instead, pants and jeans. "Most of us," she said, "don't wear make up."

Most of the Swiss boys have long hair, according to Miss Seeger, and students don't change outfits everyday.

Another difference in school she noted is the size. Her school in Switzerland has "five or six floors" and houses 800 students. She prefers the smaller size, saying the students "know each other better, are more familiar."

While in Midland, the Swiss student is staying with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cramer, their daughter Nancy and son Roger at 2904 Lockheed St.

No stranger to international travel, Miss Seeger has visited South Africa, Scandinavia, France, Germany, Spain and Italy.

When she returns to Liestal next summer, she will lack two more years of gymnasium after which she plans to attend a university, although she has not decided what field of study she will pursue.

'Alphabet Bomber' Suspect Is Named In LA Indictment

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 31-year-old Yugoslavian immigrant, accused of terrorizing Los Angeles as the so-called "Alphabet Bomber," has been named in a 25-count indictment.

Muharem Kurbegovic was charged by the county grand jury with 3 murder counts, 6 arson counts, 15 counts of violating laws on use of destructive devices and one count of willful and malicious burning personal property.

Superior Court Judge Raymond Choate set Oct. 2 for arraignment of Kurbegovic after the indictment was announced Wednesday. He was also ordered held without bail as he has been since his arrest Aug. 22.

Charges in the indictment stem mainly from an Aug. 6 explosion at Los Angeles International Airport in which three persons were killed and 35 injured in the Pan American World Airways section of the international terminal.

Fifty-seven witnesses appeared before the grand jury, including survivors of the blast that rocked the busy airport, shattering windows and scattering bodies and furniture.

Some arson charges stem from two fires last July 4 at apartment complexes in suburban Marina Del Rey.

Australia is the only continent in the world that contains only one country.

Archeologists Find Cave Underneath Pyramid Of Sun

By ALFONSO CHARDY
MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexican archeologists have found a cave underneath the Pyramid of the Sun used by the Teotihuacan about 300 A.D. which may shed more light about the origin and customs of the mysterious race, officials have reported.

The cave, running east to west and about 220 feet long and about 13 feet high, is 26 feet underground exactly below the center of the 630-square-foot base of the Pyramid of the Sun in the Teotihuacan archeological center 30 miles north-east of Mexico City. It was found by a team from the Mexican National Institute of Anthropology and History two years ago. But it has not been studied completely and the announcement of the find was not publicly made. Dr. Jorge Acosta, institute pre-Hispanic department chief director, told The Associated Press in an interview.

He said a great quantity of pre-classic period broken pottery and ceramics were found in the cave. No sorting of the pottery has yet been made. "But the study of the cave and the pottery may help us know more about the mysterious Teotihuacans whom we know very little of indeed," Acosta said.

So little is known of the people who inhabited the region that the original name of the place remains a mystery. Teotihuacan is an Aztec dialect name meaning "place of the gods." The ancient Aztecs, who arrived in Mexico about the 9th century A.D., already found Teotihuacan deserted but considered the city sacred. Acosta says that the origin of the Teotihuacan race is totally unknown. The enigma of the lost people may never be solved because of the lack of documents or codices about them, he said.

"They came and disappeared without leaving much trace," he said. But the discovery of the cave, he added, may help shed new light on the mysterious culture which built the massive soil and clay pyramids of the central plateau. The discovery of the sun cave was accidental after a heavy downpour which uncovered the opening of the tunnel-like cave, Acosta said. Longest Strait The Strait of Malacca, longest in the world, separates Indonesia from Malaysia.

A&M Engineers Think They Know Cause Of Cracking Pavements

COLLEGE STATION — The West Texas environment costs taxpayers large sums of money every year in highway repairs. Texas A&M University engineers, led by Dr. Robert L. Lytton, think they have found an answer to what causes the cracking pavements. The Texas Highway Department is concerned with the large mileage of roads experiencing the cracking that cannot be attributed to traffic or the quality of construction. "The first thing we did was to study the climate," Lytton said. "One of the processes we noted was the greater number of freeze-thaw cycles out there west of a line from Wichita Falls to San Angelo to Del Rio. These freezes, we found, would penetrate below the surface of the pavement into the base course, which is many times caliche in the West Texas area. "We took samples of the base-course material (under the pavement) from all over West Texas. After subjecting it to several freeze-thaw cycles, we discovered what probably accounts for a lot of cracking. "The base-course material would shrink more with each freeze-thaw cycle," Lytton pointed out. "An active clay mineral in the base-course is to keep in and all sorts of things

This in turn caused tension stresses that broke up the base. "When the base shrinks, it transfers the tension to the driving surface and the cracks work upward through the asphalt pavement," he noted. "Once you have a crack, the water begins to seep in and all sorts of things what we believe is a major cause of the cracking, this leaves us with two more problems to solve," he cautioned. "One — to prevent the cracking from occurring in the future — will require additives to the base-course like lime, cement or asphalt. The other is to find the best ways to repair the existing cracked pavements. "The Texas Highway Department has put in some test sections between Midland and Odessa which we have instrumented with devices that measure the activity of cracks that have been covered with experimental resurfacing materials."

He Popped Question While They Shined Combat Boots

EL TORO, Calif. (AP) — Station here. While some new brides kiss their husbands and send them off to work each morning, Darlene Foskey kisses her husband, Eddie, and then goes along with him to work. Eddie and Darlene Foskey are two Marines assigned to Weather Station at the Marine Corps Air Station here. Married while students at the Navy Aerographer's Mate School at Lakeland, N.J., earlier this year, the Foskeys requested and received a joint tour of duty at El Toro and now work on the same crew with the same shifts. Eddie, a native of James town, Ky., said it was an unusual situation when he asked Darlene to marry him. "I guess she wasn't really surprised that I popped the question," he said, "but I don't think she was expecting it while we were shining our combat boots. It wasn't very romantic of me," he admitted. Darlene, an attractive brunette from Albuquerque, N.M., also surprised her male-dominated class by graduating with a 98 per cent average. Her average was not only the highest for a Marine since the school opened in 1942 and fourth highest in the school's history, but also the top score for any graduate in the past eight years. For her scholastic achievement she was meritoriously promoted one rank higher than her husband, but according to Eddie, "It doesn't really matter that much because we strive to work as a team, both at work and at home." Commenting on her achievement, Darlene said she found one class ahead of his wife; but the obstacle didn't stop Darlene. Taking advantage of the Navy's system of self-paced instruction, she graduated three weeks ahead of her class to catch up with him. While at school Eddie was ment, Darlene said she found the school "challenging, but not extremely difficult." Darlene summed it up by saying, "We tend to stay separated from each other while on the job; for example, one of us will work in the teletype room while the other draws weather symbols on maps. Our coffee breaks and lunch periods are about the only times we really get together during the work day." "Little Thimbles" Macaroni cut into short lengths is called ditalini, which in Italian means "little thimbles."

15 Appointed To MC Posts

Expansion and skyrocketing enrollment at Midland College has resulted in a record number of new faculty and administrative appointments this year.

Among the 15 appointments is Mrs. Betty Land Gaines, a former part-time MC faculty member. She will assume full-time duties as a psychology and sociology instructor. Mrs. Gaines holds her B.F.A. and M.A. from The University of Texas at Austin and library certification from the University of Nebraska.

Coming to Midland from Huntsville, Gary Frank Brummer joins the MC faculty in the Department of Business. Brummer received his B.B.A. and M.B.A. from Sam Houston State University.

Ralph Eugene Long joins the Department of Mathematics. Formerly of Lubbock, Long holds a B.S. from Oklahoma State University, a M.A. from the University of Illinois, and will receive his Ph.D. in December from Texas Tech University.

Dr. Charles B. Wakefield, electronics and data processing instructor, comes to Midland from Austin. He received his B.A., B.S. and Ph.D. from U-T Austin. His M.S. is from the University of Washington.

Mrs. Betty Melzer Moore, a Midlander since 1966 and part-time instructor at the college, assumes full-time instruction. She holds a B.A. and M.A. from Texas Tech.

Leon O. Taylor, machine shop instructor, comes to MC from the Big Spring Independent School District where he was a metal trades instructor. He has worked 12 years in industry as an experimental machinist.

Dan William Ledbetter, welding technology instructor, holds a B.S. from North Texas State University.

Dr. David Lawrence Norton, assistant to the president for research and development, comes to Midland from Vernon. He received his B.A. from Howard Payne College and his M.Ed. and Ph.D. from the U-T-Austin.

The counseling staff expands with three new members. Ricardo Saldana, formerly with the Midland Independent School District, holds a B.A. and M.Ed. from Sul Ross State University.

Holding a B.A. and M.A. from Abilene Christian College and Ph.D. from Texas Tech, Dr. Robert A. Hawkins comes to Midland from Lubbock.

Mrs. Sally J. Issacs holds a B.S. from West Texas State University and a M.A. from the University of Texas at the Permian Basin.

Jerry P. Watson comes to MC from McMurry College in Abilene where he served as assistant professor in speech and drama. He received his B.A. from Baylor University and M.A. from Bowling Green State University.

Coming to Midland College as mid-management co-ordinator, Bill R. Barnes holds a B.S. from Angelo State University. Robert G. King, offset printing instructor in the vocational-technical program, holds an associate degree in business administration from International College.

Mrs. Marilyn Elizabeth Todd comes to Midland from Evanston, Ill., where she worked as a free lance illustrator while attending the Chicago Art Institute. Mrs. Todd holds a B.F.A. from the University of Oklahoma and a M.A. from the University of Tulsa. She joins the MC art faculty.

Ford Foundation May Reduce Grants By 50 Per Cent

NEW YORK (AP) — The Ford Foundation's board of trustees has voted unanimously not to dissolve the philanthropic organization, but the nation's economic punch may force it to cut back annual grants as much as 50 per cent.

However, the trustees decided at their regular quarterly meeting on Wednesday to postpone action on grants at least until their next scheduled meeting in December.

The depressed security market and inflation have dropped the foundation's assets from $3 billion to $2 billion during the past year.

Earlier in the week, foundation president McGeorge Bundy said the organization might have to be dissolved and its assets distributed unless a reduction in grants was ordered.

The suggested 50 per cent reduction would apply to the foundation's $202 million annual budget, but it would take a year for any cuts to take effect. Current commitments would be maintained.

Hebrews Observe Day of Atonement

NEW YORK (AP) — Today is Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement for Jews the world over.

The most solemn day of the Hebrew calendar and the conclusion of the High Holy Days, it is devoted to fasting and prayer. Personal faults are reviewed and God's forgiveness asked.

Yom Kippur began at sundown on Wednesday and rabbis here delivered sermons stressing ethical, moral and spiritual values and the need to apply them to gain world peace.

Many prayers called for memorial prayers for victims of last year's "Yom Kippur war" in the Mideast.

The holy day ends at sundown tonight.

Aviation Director Spells Out Details Of Proposed Air Terminal Master Plan

Highlights of a preliminary report on a proposed master plan for Midland Regional Air Terminal were reviewed by Col. Wilson Banks, aviation director for the City of Midland, at the Wednesday noon meeting of directors of the Midland Chamber of Commerce in the Petroleum Club.

Banks said the report recommends expanding the present terminal building by adding on to the facility in stages, as needed. A rough estimate, he said in answer to a question from the floor, places the cost at $1.1 million. No federal funding presently is available for airport buildings. Increased rental revenues might be expected, Banks said.

The overall plan as submitted could be achieved in three phases, the first visualizing long-range improvements keeping pace and with anticipated growth of the next 20 years. The second phase would include work done immediately and during the next five years. The third phase would be in the 10 to 15 year range.

Commenting on the present airport parking lot situation, Banks said present plans are to expand and improve the parking area as promptly as possible. He also intimated that limousine service to and from the airport will be back in operation "real soon." The service was discontinued by the prior operator several weeks ago.

Other master plan recommendations cited were (1) extend north-south runway by 2,600 feet to make a 9,500 foot full-strength runway; (2) retain runway 422 (additional runways not needed); (3) establish development control of 900-acre area immediately south of the airport for its protection in the future; (4) continue areas for fixed-base operators both north and south of terminal building; (5) develop cargo area within next 10 years.

As a special feature of the directors' meeting, a typical conference between an industrial prospect and Minute Men members of the Midland Area Sales Team (MAST) was presented, under the direction of Chairman Ron Schwisow. The questions asked by the prospect and answered by the Minute Men concerned location for plant, labor market, average wage scale, housing, opportunities and facilities for employe training programs, air transportation, and social and recreational facilities.

Terrorists In Argentina Sentence Five To Death

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — A right-wing terrorist group today threatened five prominent entertainers with death as the bodies of two more victims of Argentine violence were found and leftist guerrillas were blamed for the assassination of two more army men.

The Argentine Anti-Communist Alliance said it had "passed death sentences" against the five on grounds they were "engaged in disseminating Marxist ideas in artistic circles."

The five are singer Nacha Guevara, singer and composer Horacio Guarany, and actors Hector Allerio, Luis Brandoni and Norman Briski.

The alliance has claimed credit for the slaying of 11 leftist Peronist and Marxist militants in the last two months, including five prominent leaders.

Police said the bullet-riddled

YMCA the last 11 years and who is leaving Midland to become executive director of the San Angelo YMCA, was presented a framed copy of a resolution commending him for his tremendous contribution to the community during his residence here. The resolution was read and presented to Olin by Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr.

Charles Priddy, immediate past president, was named chairman of a committee to nominate chamber officers and directors for 1975-76.

President Kenny Jastrow said the chamber has agreed to join with the West Texas Chamber of Commerce in arranging and staging a meeting here late next month, at which John C. Sawhill, head of the Federal Energy Administration, would be the speaker.

A model of the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Library and Hall of Fame now under construction here was on display at the meeting. Homer Fort, executive vice president of the Museum, and Joseph L. O'Neill, chairman of its fund-raising effort, were guests at the luncheon, as were Mrs. Bummy Kent, president of the Midland Board of Realtors, and Senator W. E. "Pete" Snelson.

Reports were made by J. M. Fullinwider, Midland Arts Council; Durward Wright, Midland County; Steve Seay, SITCA; Jim Winget, Board of Education; Murray Paske, Midland College; Mark Martin, City of Midland; Martin Allday, Midland Industrial Foundation; W. J. Mewhorter, Early Bird Breakfast; Larry Hart, Christmas Parade; Harrell Feldt, sports committee, and Joe Campbell, Jaycees.

DALLAS (AP) — A man identified by police as Roger W. Gorham, 21, a mental patient from Dumas, died Wednesday in a 14-story plunge from a high rise office complex in northwest Dallas.

City patrolman J. G. B. Terrian said the building's 14th floor is still being built and no one saw Gorham leave the elevator there. He reported Gorham apparently dived through a window after trying to break it with an umbrella handle.

Officers found a two-page note in the dead man's pockets. It was turned over to the county medical examiner, who entered a verdict of suicide.

Officers said Gorham had been staying at a rehabilitation center here since his discharge last May from the Terrell State Hospital. A doctor told police Gorham had been treated for depression after losing his job.

Senators Endorse Oil-Price Appeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — A majority of the Senate has joined in sponsoring a resolution supporting President Ford in his appeal to oil-producing nations to lower prices. The resolution expressing the "sense of the Senate" was introduced on Wednesday by Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, with 53 Senate cosponsors. The Senate agreed to consider the resolution next Monday.

Getting To, From, Through Airports Big Headache

By EDWARD SHENKETT
Associated Press Writer

Airline passengers can fly from New York to Chicago in two hours and coast to coast in five.

But, as any seasoned traveler knows, getting to and from and through most major airports can be an annoying, choking sensation.

Approach roads are jammed. Taxi rides frequently are long and expensive. Parking lots are full. Ticket lines can be lengthy. Long walks to a departure gate or between terminals are common. It sometimes seems an eternity before baggage arrives.

The swift and reliable jet airliners, especially the wide-bodied jumbo jets, are attracting millions of new passengers each year. That adds to the airport saturation problem many cities are trying to solve with new, modern airports or expanded facilities.

Scheduled U.S. airlines carried 282 million passengers in 1972. The Air Transport Association forecasts more than 300 million passengers in 1980 and more than 700 million by the year 2000.

Automated "people movers," resembling miniature transit systems, now carry passengers around a few of the new airports, but the people movers haven't always worked properly. In the drive to modernize and expand airport capacity, computers have been installed in some places to handle baggage, but with mixed results.

Five cities — Dallas-Fort Worth, Houston, Kansas City, Tampa and Washington — have built new, modern airports in recent years, incorporating the latest technology. Other cities have tried, but have been blocked by environmentalists, by cutbacks in airline landing fees, by noise problems, and by financing troubles. Some cities have settled on the interim step of enlarging existing facilities, postponing the construction of new airports until the 1980s or 1990s.

The newest, largest and spiffiest U.S. airport is the ultramodern facility that opened last January halfway between the rival Texas cities of Dallas and Fort Worth. Larger than the island of Manhattan, the 17,000-acre, $600-million complex features the latest in computer-controlled people movers and baggage handlers.

Designed to accommodate eight million or more passengers in its first year, it eventually can be expanded to take care of 50 million annually.

Two airlines at Dallas-Fort Worth operate an automatic baggage system called "Docu-Tel," a 4,000-foot complex of rails and cars resembling a miniature roller coaster. The computers that drive the system frequently guided bags to wrong bins or off the edge of the beltway or sent carrier cars crashing into sidesteps with devastating results.

Another sticking point is the distance to the airport, 15 miles from Dallas or Fort Worth, a $14 cab ride.

Distance from downtown, 19 miles, is a sore point, too, at the new Kansas City International, which opened two years ago as the world's first airport featuring a "drive to your gate" processing system. Passengers and their baggage arriving at any of three circular terminals are never more than 200 feet from their aircraft. "The world's shortest walk to fly," proclaims airport brochures. A fleet of mini-buses efficiently whisks people between terminals and parking lots.

No "People Movers"

"We have no people movers or other automation here like Dallas-Fort Worth," said Howard Willoughby, Kansas City International's deputy director. "When we designed the airport we looked at various systems. The costs were horrendous, nothing really worked and nothing impressed us. So we designed the 'drive to your gate' concept to avoid such things as people movers."

Tampa's new $100-million International airport employs four computer-driven people-mover shuttles to take passengers from the central terminal to four satellite boarding areas. Maximum walking distance from ground transportation to a boarding gate is 700 feet.

Only Two Injuries

Since the airport opened three years ago, the shuttles have ferried 40 million people with only two persons injured in a freak accident caused by human error.

The modern terminal has six floors. The first level is for baggage, second for ticketing, third for shops, restaurants, hotel and shuttles, and the top three for parking 1,500 cars. The airport is handling about 5.2 million people a year and has a capacity for 20 million.

"As far as we're concerned, the airport has exceeded our expectations," reports Paul MacAlester of the Hillsborough County Aviation Authority.

The oldest of the new airports, Dallas International, opened in 1963, hopefully to relieve congestion at Washington National Airport. But its location 27 miles from the nation's capital earned it a reputation as a lonely Taj Mahal in the Virginia countryside.

Both airports are run by the Federal Aviation Administration and thus are subject to the whims of Congress, whose members prefer flying from close-in National. Thus, airlines were slow in scheduling flights into Dallas.

In 1965, two years after it opened, Dallas logged only 67,000 passengers and many called it a white elephant. But gradually it has come into its own as Washington area and international traffic has increased. The barring of jumbo jets from National and the restriction on takeoffs and landings between 10 p.m. and 7 a.m. helped Dallas raise its passenger load to 2.5 million in 1972.

Washington National, too, has continued to raise its traffic in its crowded confines along the Potomac, registering 11.7 million passengers last year.

Airlines normally produce as much as 50 per cent of a large airport's revenue, mostly through landing fees. An economic downturn and the higher cost of fuel resulting from the recent energy crisis have cut into airline profits and have forced major cutbacks in spending by airport users.

In some communities, new issues of general obligation bonds for the funding of airport projects are being put aside to permit financing of politically more popular measures such as school construction or urban development.

Egyptian Beer Biz Booms

By AHMED SHAWKI
CAIRO (AP) — The arrival of British and American troops to help clear the Suez Canal has added a new but familiar set of dry throats for Egypt's booming beer business.

Until their evacuation in 1956, British soldiers guzzled nearly three-fourths of Egypt's locally produced light pilsner, according to the brewery. But in the last 18 years, despite a Moslem ban on alcohol, Egypt has built up a mighty thirst of its own.

The nationalized Egyptian brewery, founded in 1896 to slake the thirst of British soldiers stationed in hot, sandy Egypt, last year sold 8.5 million gallons of beer. This year production was targeted for a 10 per cent increase.

The beer industry has captured a young, middle class Egyptian market that no longer frowns on alcohol as their grandfathers did. Brewery production manager Ramsis Awad also claims a large number of narcotics users are turning to beer rather than face life jail sentences.

Crowds of Egyptians line up outside the company's distribution stores to purchase bottles of Stella — the best selling of the company's four beers — at 15 piasters a bottle, or about 35 U.S. cents.

The government has no control over beer prices outside the stores. Once bottles arrive at grocery stores and restaurants, demand frequently doubles the set brewery price, Awad said.

The editor of the English language newspaper, The Egyptian Gazette, recently complained of not only the varying price of Stella but also its varying quality.

Awad admitted some bottles of Stella are flat by the time they reach the consumer, but said a shortage of proper corking material meant the company couldn't guarantee consistent carbonation.

Stella's shortcomings do not seem to deter Egyptian and foreign beer drinkers. One German reader shot back to the Gazette editor saying that Stella ranked second only to the Pyramids in the things he liked most about Egypt.

The brewery is reputed to be the oldest in the Middle East. It was founded by two Swiss brothers, the Pomontis, in 1894. Heineken of Holland bought 50 per cent of the company's shares in 1922. Then the government nationalized the business in 1963.

Production increasing

Last year the company earned 5.6 million Egyptian pounds or $15 million plus another 495,000 pounds ($1.3 million) from the 13 per cent of its production exported — about one third of it to the Soviet Union, Awad said.

The company is importing some $30-million-worth of new equipment to increase its production. Some of the new beer is aimed at the roughly 400 American and British troops living along the Suez Canal.

"We are currently sending about 5,000 bottles a week to the canal area," Awad said. "We plan to double that quantity because of the heat. Beer is essential for the boys."

English Teens Switching To Booze

LONDON (AP) — Soaring black market prices for drugs are making teen-agers switch to heavy drinking, says Marcus Grant of London's Alcohol Education Center.

The result is habitual drunks often as young as 12 or 13, Grant said. "It means that by the time these youngsters reach 18, the legal age for going into a pub, they are experienced drinkers and some are well on the way to being alcoholics," he said.

He called for special emergency advice service to help bewildered parents and teachers who find their children often drink five or six pints of beer in a session.

NOT ALWAYS BETTER — Two heads are not always better than one, especially when the two heads belong to one very poisonous tiger snake.

An Australian farmer found this 8-inch-long rarity on his property while clearing it. (NEA Photomat.)

Pear-Shaped Body Leads To Success?

By ROBERT TUCKMAN
LONDON (AP) — If you have a shape like a pear, don't let it bother you too much. You are more likely to succeed in life than most people.

At least, that is the non-caloric observation set forth in an article in "The Director" magazine, a journal of the British Institute of Directors.

Some of the pear-shaped people who have reached the top, says the article, are Napoleon, Gen. Charles de Gaulle, the late president of France, and British Prime Minister Harold Wilson, also Wilson's predecessor as prime minister and now British opposition leader, Edward Heath.

Burgundy Bottle Look

The article was written by John Byrne, managing director of a glass manufacturing firm, who noted that many pear-shaped people showed the qualities of intelligence and leadership.

The successful type, says the article, has the rather narrow shoulders and elongated limbs of the lean type, and the wide hips and somewhat pudgy chest and belly of the fat type.

In exaggerated form, the successful shape "is like a pear or an inverted top," says the magazine. It is also known as the "Burgundy bottle" look.

General de Gaulle was a good example of man so clearly pear-shaped that even a military cloak did not hide it, the article says.

And, it went on, Napoleon was very small and clearly pear-shaped.

Harold Wilson falls into the category also, says Byrne, adding that cartoonists always capture his pear-shape when they draw him.

As for Edward Heath, Byrne says he conceals his figure nicely when wearing conventional suits but illustrates the pear type pretty well when in his sailing outfit.

Couple Wed At Utica Zoo

UTICA, N.Y. (AP) — With champagne for spectators and a lone crow screaming overhead, Robert Shirley and Linda Ravenscroft were married — at the Utica Zoo.

Shirley, 23, is a fulltime zookeeper and his 20-year-old bride is assistant supervisor of the children's zoo.

The Unitarian ceremony was held on a grassy area between the zoo's Main Building and the Pelee and Primate Building. The bird entered from the Main Building's World of Wildlife section.

"It was mostly Linda's idea," the bridegroom said of the unusual setting. "But we both wanted an outdoor wedding."

Shirley is a June graduate of Cornell University and his bride, formerly of Middlebury, N.Y., graduated from Mckean Valley Community College. They met 15 months ago at the zoo where they were coworkers.

Today In History

Today is Thursday, Sept. 26, the 260th day of 1974. There are 99 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1777, British troops occupied Philadelphia in the American Revolution.

On this date:

In 1860, Turkey was defeated by the Russians at the Battle of Brailov in Russia.

In 1861, the Holy Alliance was formed by Russia, Austria and Prussia.

In 1867, New Zealand became a self-governing dominion within the British Commonwealth.

In 1916, the U.S. Federal Trade Commission was established.

In 1918, in World War I, the Allies launched an offensive that broke the German Hindenburg Line.

In 1966, President Lyndon B. Johnson collapsed aboard his private train after making 46 speeches on behalf of the Treaty of Versailles.

Ten years ago, The FBI, after an inquiry into recent riots in New York and eight other northern cities, said there had been no systematic planning or organization of the disturbances.

Five years ago, A military junta with leftist leanings overthrew the government of Bolivia.

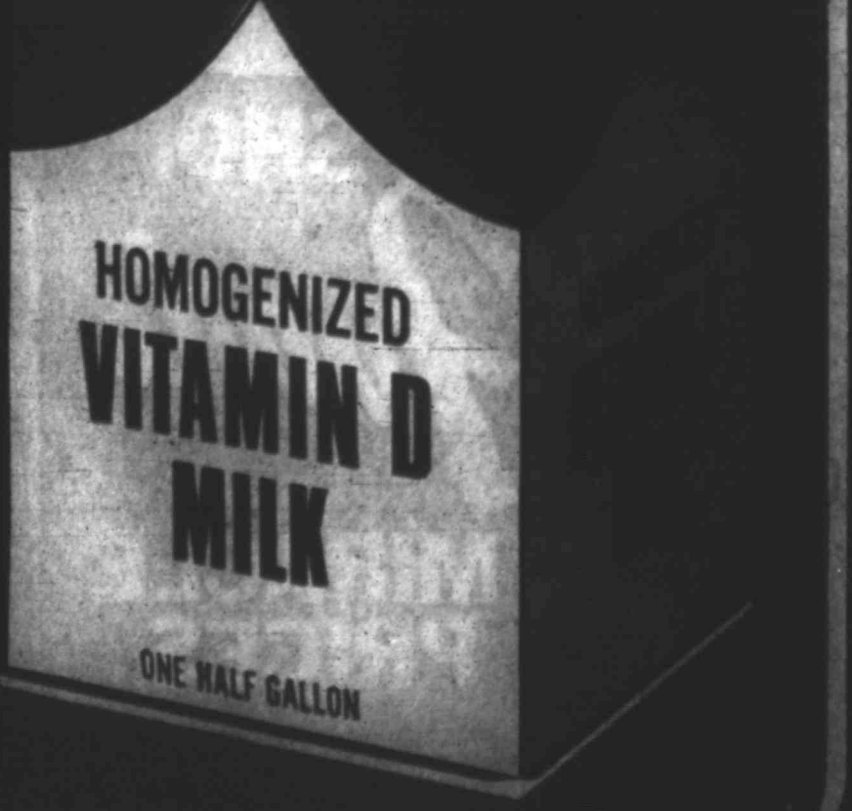

One year ago, The Southern Governor's Conference, concluding a meeting in Point Clear, Ala., elected a Black — Governor, Melvin Evans of the Virgin Islands — as chairman.

Today's birthday: Pope Paul VI is 77 years old.

Thought for today: The person who says he is willing to meet you half-way is usually a poor judge of distance — anonymous.

Tom Bradley Wins Respect, Cooperation As LA Mayor

GENERATION GAP — David Brown, 6, of Indianapolis doesn't let missing front teeth stop him from brushing. He bridged the gap by modifying his toothbrush to fit the situation. (AP Wirephoto.)

LEE MARGULIES
LOS ANGELES (AP) — A black man running a predominantly white city which in the not-so-distant past has been the scene of fearsome riots in its black and Mexican-American communities?

The mind races with possible scenarios . . .

The mayor attempts to right 200 years of wrong overnight. Radicals are given positions of power in the city government. Minority group members are given preference in all city hiring. Federal funds are channeled into the minority areas exclusively. Whites are outraged . . . and fearful.

Or . . .

The mayor sees where his political bread is buttered and kowtows to the white majority. He caters to the rich and powerful, afraid of alienating them and dooming his political future. The minority communities feel betrayed and call him an Uncle Tom. They are embarrassed . . . and angry.

Or . . .

The mayor is paralyzed by the diverse demands made upon him. Unable to appease one group without alienating another, he adopts a neutral stance. At best he is a figurehead, someone to be pointed to as a symbol — to the whites of their open-mindedness, to the minorities of what can be achieved.

Or . . .

Tom Bradley: 6 feet 4 and athletically trim with close-cropped hair and a wisp of a moustache. He's a former college track star, former policeman, former city councilman; now mayor of the nation's third largest city, one that is 18 per cent black, 18 per cent Mexican American, almost 60 per cent Anglo.

After more than a year as the first black mayor of a predominantly white city, the 50-year-old son of a Texas sharecropper has won respect and cooperation from most segments of this sprawling city of nearly three million.

Approval of Bradley is by no means universal. There are those who believe that his administration has been plodding and unspectacular. But more often heard is praise for the mayor's ability to pull the city together on major issues — from meeting the energy crisis with voluntary power cutbacks to public support for a rapid transit system bond issue —

"He's a black man in a city that's predominantly white and he has a tough job being a fair man to all his constituents. I don't always agree with him, but I have great respect for him."

Says Joel Wachs, a white city councilman who was one of Bradley's opponents in the primary election last year: "He's got people thinking in positive and constructive ways . . . He's been able to tap the whole community for the resources they have to offer."

Bradley is understandably proud of this harmony.

"I think it's gone unbelievably well," he says of his first 15 months in office. "It's difficult to define some of it. It's a question of mood — a spirit I see developing . . . There's a great deal of support."

Bradley's credibility extends beyond city limits. A poll taken last January for Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., showed the mayor was the most popular office holder in California. He also is president of the National League of Cities.

His supporters are discussing him as a Democratic candidate for governor of California in 1978 — or the vice presidency of the United States in 1976. A Kennedy-Bradley ticket is mentioned.

Bradley says such speculation is premature. But of more than 100 black mayors in the country, Bradley is reportedly considered by Democratic party leaders to have the most demonstrated appeal to white voters.

He was elected on May 29, collecting 56 per cent of the vote to trounce three-term incumbent Sam Yorty. It was a dramatic turn-around from four years earlier, when the Bradley ship was sunk by a Yorty campaign that appealed to race.

Part of Bradley's appeal is his dedication to the job. He leaves his home by 8 every morning and rarely returns before 11 p.m.

"He's the hardest working mayor I've ever seen," says City Council President John S. Gibson Jr., a councilman for the past 24 years.

cause of his commanding height, he became a football and track star and won a track scholarship to UCLA. While in college he began dating Ethel Arnold and later they married.

Bradley left school to join the police force, where he acquired a reputation for out-talking and out-running offenders but not roughing them up. His style was to conciliate — his hallmark today as mayor. He was a policeman for 21 years, rising to lieutenant. In his later years on the force he worked in community relations, trying to bridge the growing gap between the cops and the ghetto.

In the evenings he managed to earn a law degree. After leaving the department in 1961, he ran for the 15-member City Council from his racially mixed neighborhood and won. He was the first black elected to the body.

A few council members have complained that Bradley is expanding his authority too much, taking power away from the council.

"Yes, I'm one of those who have had that concern," admits Gibson, the council president. "But as I follow through and watch, I find Mayor Bradley gets things done quicker than the council would — by about a year."

'I don't always agree with him, but I have great respect for him.'

Durrough Murder Trial Halted

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Prosecutors and defense lawyers agreed Wednesday to dismiss an indictment against a murder suspect because of faulty wording.

The discovery of the technicality brought an abrupt halt to the trial of Fred T. Durrough, 33, who had been charged in the 1973 shooting death of Col. Henry Tyler at San Antonio.

Higher Coffee Price Proves Welcome Lift For Julio Suzuki

LONDRINA, Brazil (AP) — When North Americans and Europeans pay more for the coffee they drink, Julio Suzuki gets a welcome lift.

Suzuki, whose immigrant father cultivated silkworms in Brazil, makes his modest living growing coffee beans.

He has problems with leaf blight, rising fertilizer costs and aging coffee bushes. What trickles down from higher international coffee prices gives Suzuki 32 more money to pay his bills.

"The price of coffee has increased, but the expenses have too," Suzuki told a visitor to his farmhouse near Londrina, in the heart of Brazilian coffee country.

The fertilizer Suzuki buys comes from petroleum, and the price he pays has multiplied along with world oil prices. The antifungal spray he uses to fight coffee "rust" blight is made of copper, another increasingly expensive primary product.

Brazil leads the world in coffee exports, and that primary product is the South American country's No. 1 revenue earner.

U.S. Biggest Buyer

Brazil's No. 1 coffee buyer is the United States, which took nearly nine million of the 19 million sacks exported in 1973. Each sack contains 132 pounds of green coffee beans.

Suzuki is one of more than 250,000 Brazilian farmers whose 2.7 billion coffee bushes produce the beans.

Like Suzuki, many of the people who farm the rich, red lands of Sao Paulo and Parana states in southern Brazil are of Japanese origin. He said his father, who came to Brazil in 1933, was a silkworm supplier in Sao Paulo state.

Suzuki bought his coffee farm here in Parana state in 1952 and built a two-story wooden house on it. Since then he has acquired more land, and now he has a total of 28,000 coffee bushes on 104 acres.

"As they say, it's enough to live on," he said.

The farmer lives with his wife, two children and widowed mother in their four-bedroom home, which needs a new coat of blue paint. Their possessions include a television set, a telephone, a Volkswagen car and a Chevrolet pickup.

Suzuki said he has two regular employees who help with fertilizing, spraying and other chores. The two workers make

Kenya's Coffee Farmers In Bind

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Kenya's coffee farmers are in trouble. Demand for coffee on the world market is on the decline, and prices are at a low ebb.

In February Kenya coffee was selling at $170 per metric ton; two months later the price fell to $165 per ton. And the downward slide has continued. Kenya coffee is now selling at $128 a ton.

Kenya earns $100 million from coffee annually. While coffee production is holding at last year's levels, Agriculture Ministry officials are worried that low prices might cause output to fall off.

USDA Food Road Show Proposal Draws Fire

By DON KENDALL
WASHINGTON (AP) — A circus-tent road show with hymns and patriotic displays being considered by the Agriculture Department to calm public fever over food prices is producing a chill among some members of Congress and consumer spokesmen.

Ralph Nader called the plan "still waiting on official USDA approval—an attempt by Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butts to brainwash consumers."

Sen. George S. McGovern, D-

S.D., described the project as "Dr. Butts' traveling medicine show" and said the department should worry more seriously about the plight of farmers and consumers.

"Perhaps some of our older citizens and others on fixed incomes would prefer less electronic hoopla from the administration's public imagemakers and more substantive explanations why their food prices go higher and higher while farmers and ranchers are going broke and middlemen's profits keep increasing,"

McGovern said.

The comments followed disclosure Wednesday that an aide to Butts proposed the tent show and that it should visit cities across the country to correct what he described as "the distorted view" consumers are getting.

Rep. W. R. Poage, D-Texas, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, said the proposal is "not the kind of thing that would occur to me" and added he would remain neutral until he knew more about it.

But Rep. Spark M. Matsunaga, D-Hawaii, said USDA "has lost touch with reality" and will be a laughingstock if the plan is adopted. And Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., said it was an "outrageous idea" in its entirety.

A spokesman for the department's Office of Communication said numerous calls were received after the tent show plan was disclosed, most of them either wanting more information or in criticism of the plan.

No cost estimates were available, but officials said the proposal—still alive for consideration—might involve financial backing from the food industry.

As proposed, the show would be directed at convincing consumers that U.S. food prices are the lowest in the world and that Americans really are getting bargains.

The show would include pageantry and music calling attention to the American history of food and farmers, beginning with the Pilgrims and concluding with this fall's harvest, highlighted by prayers and patriotic songs.

Midland Youth Center Chatter

By GAYLE GRIMLAND, VICKI THROCKMORTON and LESLIE MORGAN
It's "Howdy Doody" time at M. H. S. this week and everyone should be at the height of friendliness to climax the friendliest week of the year. A dance, "Welcome to the Wild, Wild West," will be held from 8 p.m. to midnight Friday in the Youth Center, for the price of $1 a head. Come stag or drag in your most imaginative get-up; from dance hall girls and cowboys to Indians. Last week's dance was such a great success, so let's have even more out this week, since it's special.

Everyone is in suspense and anxious to find out who this year's Howdy Week Favorites are — so be at the dance to hear them announced.

Legislative Panel Visits El Paso Elementary School

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — The Legislative Study Committee on the Reorganization and Modernization of Public Education met here Wednesday to observe a new concept in instruction at an elementary school.

The committee watched youngsters learn their lessons independently at Vilas Elementary School. One member said he found the classroom atmosphere "relaxed" while another said he was impressed by the "informality" of the school.

Vilas principal Teresa Pena told the educators that "personalized education means each child works independently. 'Some children work better with flash cards. Some learn better by listening and some by feeling,' she said.

Mrs. Pena, a committee member, said the group did not discuss bilingual education or a proposal to study emergency public school financing.

Two District Scout Executives Named

Two new district executives have been named in the Buffalo Trail Council of the Boy Scouts of America, according to Scout Executive Steve Odum of Midland.

Arthur Hyman is the new executive for the Lone Star District at Big Spring, and Jerry G. Brooks is the new executive of the Comanche Trails District at Odessa.

The Buffalo Trail Council's headquarters are in Midland. Hyman formerly was associated with the Scout council at Killean where he was a lieutenant colonel in the Army. He has had extensive experience as a volunteer worker in Scouting.

Brooks moved to Odessa from Harlingen where he began his professional Scouting career in June 1970.

He was responsible for developing an "In School Scouting" program at Harlingen that enabled the Rio Grande Council to greatly increase the number of ethnic and low income boys reached with the Scouting program.

Cool, Wet Weather

Lingers In Nation

By The Associated Press

Unseasonably cool, wet weather persisted today over much of the South and West.

Scattered night showers and thunderstorms dampened southern California and parts of Nevada, Arizona and Utah. Rain and drizzle extended from East Texas through southern Georgia, mixed with a few thunderstorms.

Nearly 1 1/2 inches of rain soaked New Orleans through Wednesday.

Light rain also fell in Florida, New England and New York state.

$300,000 In Donations Halts Closure Of College In Illinois

By GERALD J. TAYLOR
MOUNT CARROLL, Ill. (AP) — Shimer College announced last year that a decrease in enrollment was forcing it to close the books on 120 years' tradition. It had lost 30 students.

But a clamor from students, faculty and alumni and $300,000 in donations forced trustees to take another look. So, a new academic year has started for the tiny liberal arts school known for its emphasis on classic literature and innovative teaching programs.

"We're so small that we didn't need millions to save it," said Ralph Hough, executive assistant to Shimer President Esther G. Weinstein.

"Now our biggest problem is convincing people that we're not dead. There was a lot of publicity when we decided to close, but no one's said anything about our staying open."

The school, which opened in September 1853, was slated to close Dec. 31, 1973.

Students, parents and alumni donated the money; administrators pared budgets and the registrar launched a direct-mail recruitment campaign.

"We had two $25,000 donations, but most of the money came in small gifts — $5, $10, a few $100 donations," said Hough.

Fall enrollment climbed back near 200, and the doors to the 16 aging buildings on the 40-acre campus stayed open.

"For a school of 1,000 students, losing 30 isn't a big thing," Hough said. "But here it was a disaster."

Hope For 400 Students

Officials hope the recruitment program will soon boost enrollment to 400.

The school boasts a one-to-nine faculty-student ratio, and offers little in the way of vocational majors, popular at larger schools.

It pioneered early entrance programs for bright students. To graduate, a student must pass comprehensive examinations regardless of class credits compiled in his studies.

Many students major in general education. Others follow prelaw and premedical courses.

Shimer is still not out of the woods, but it's no longer under the gun.

"We're no Harvard yet — financially at least, but everyone decided (Shimer) was too valuable to let it vanish," said Hough.

School Bus Hits, Kills Dallas Tot

DALLAS (AP) — A bus operated by the Dallas public schools struck and killed Richard Guerra, 6, Wednesday afternoon in front of his home in suburban Seagoville.

Sheriff's officers reported the youngster stepped from a private school bus, headed the opposite direction, hit him.

The 100 Club will have a meeting at 7:30 p.m. today in the Y. S. Everyone come, cause they're gonna discuss the club's projects for this year.

Thirty years before we developed new Peak Toothpaste, you probably used our secret ingredient.

It's baking soda.

Baking soda: the natural cleanser and sweetener that people used to brush with, and that dentists still recommend. Both for cleaning teeth and as a soothing rinse for mouth and gums.

Be prepared. Peak is 97% natural ingredients, principally pure baking soda. It tastes pleasant, but different. Be prepared. Peak leaves your whole mouth — not just teeth and breath, but even mouth tissues and gums — feeling different. Feeling naturally cleansed and sweetened. Naturally refreshed. Uncomplicate.

Try new Peak: the first modern toothpaste with the natural goodness of baking soda.

15¢ off on any size package of new Peak Toothpaste.

Operators Slate 29 Wildcats, 63 Field Tests In Basin Sectors

Ninety-two locations for oil and/or gas tests were planned for the Permian Basin Empire last week. Included were 29 prospectors and 63 development tests in field areas.

District 7-C of the Texas Railroad Commission, headquartered at San Angelo, reported 11 wildcats staked in that district, while seven were planned in the 26-county District 8, with offices in Midland.

Six wildcats were staked in South Plains sectors. The Midland RRC office reported 36 field projects.

Fifi Leaves Honduras Starving

By CHARLES GREEN

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras — No one in Honduras paid much attention early last week as Hurricane Fifi crept through the Caribbean sea.

It was just another storm to the 2.6 million people in this triangle-shaped Central American country.

Fifi is gone. But Honduras, a nation reeking of poverty, is flat on its back with Fifi's name etched forever in the national memory, the worst disaster in Honduran history.

The government estimates that 7,500-8,000 died. No one will ever know for sure how many died. The National Emergency Committee said another 100,000 are homeless.

No one knows how many people died of hunger after Fifi destroyed almost 50 per cent of the nation's food crops. The Hondurans were undernourished, hungry, in abject poverty, before the storm came. In their usual state of malnutrition they were not up to holding on for the three, four or five days it took for the floods to recede enough to get food and shelter to them.

With almost half this season's corn and bean crops gone, the poverty faces starvation.

Nation's average annual income is less than $200. Many peasants have almost no cash income; they live off their crops and by bartering. Beggers abound in the cities. Boys drop out of first grade to shine shoes to help buy food.

People were warned about Fifi. But few paid attention. Only 10 days before, Hurricane Carmen skirted the coast without serious damage. Even if the barefoot, poorly-clad people wanted to leave they had nowhere to go and no way to get there.

Measured against other killer storms, Fifi was just a kitten. The storm had sustained winds of 125 miles an hour with gusts up to 140 m.p.h. Carmen's winds gusted up to 175 m.p.h. and there was no large loss of life.

Fifi did her damage with water. She dumped up to 24 inches of rain in 36 hours on northeastern Honduras.

15-Foot Tides

As Fifi's eye trudged slowly offshore, tides 15 feet above normal rose in the mangrove swamps, blocking the flow of the rivers. The torrential rain suddenly turned tranquil mountain streams into raging torrents. The streams flowed into the Uluva, Chamelecon and Aguan rivers, and the rivers had nowhere to go except over their banks.

Damage throughout the country far surpassed the gross national product. Between 80 and 95 per cent of the banana crop was wiped out, with a loss of half a billion dollars.

People tried to help. But the aid pouring in from other countries in plane after plane ran into bottlenecks. Only 20 per cent of the railroad lines survived. There are few paved roads.

As the first week after the storm passed, the apd reports came in of outbreaks of dis-

Death Toll In Alpine Accidents Rises Alarming

By PIERO VALSECCI
MILAN, Italy (AP) — Amateur climbers are succumbing in ever greater numbers to the fascination of Europe's Alps, and the death toll on those treacherous slopes is rising alarmingly.
More than 700 persons lost their lives last year in Alpine accidents — 300 in Austria, 150 in Switzerland, 130 in Italy and another 120 in France.

With winter months still to come, more than 350 climbers have died in the Alps already this year.

Alpine experts from all four nations say the primary causes of these accidents are inexperience, inability and simple negligence.

"The mountain is treacherous and you cannot challenge it without knowing its tricks — the sudden changes in weather that turn paradises into hell," said a veteran French guide at Courmayeur, in the Mont Blanc massif.

He told of three French climbers who froze to death in a snowstorm on the Italian side of Mont Blanc. They had been wearing shorts and tennis shoes, he said.

"Some accidents of course are inevitable," said an official of the Italian Alpine Club. "But most are caused by inexperience and a crazy under-estimation of the mountain's dangers.

"Highly experienced climbers who can climb without a guide are rare," he said. "No other climbers should start out alone, ever on the so-called 'easy' routes."

Alpine authorities are examining the possibility of mass information services warning tourists about the dangers of the mountains. Should this fail, they say, they might be forced to ban inexperienced climbers from the more difficult Alpine routes.

The Italian Alpine club has more than 120,000 members, an increase of about 25,000 since 1970. But it says many of the members consider guides expensive and therefore expendable.

Guides on the most difficult routes charge up to $130 a day and $50 a day on the lower slopes.

"But life is worth this expense," said a French guide, "and any guide is cheaper than rescue operations ..."

The Italian Alpine Club spent more than $100,000 in 1973 helping members out of trouble. It charges nonmembers up to $350 for tricky rescue operations involving helicopters.

Iron Bars Do Not A Prison Make—For Vivian, Anyway

MONTVILLE, Conn. (AP)—that waiting for Vivian, one of "If anybody had ever told me I'd be standing around watching the sky for hours waiting for birds, I'd have told them they were crazy," said Mark Kearney, an inmate at Montville Correctional Center.

But one day recently, Kearney and Will Fellows did just

It proves that the men at the center are providing great care and training for their programs."

Vivian, in her second year of racing, came in virtually on a wing and a prayer, according to Fellows and Kearney.

She was "mud splattered" showing she had come down to earth during the flight and was so exhausted she was too tired to fly up into her own cubicle," one of her trainers said.

Weather was favorable in Sandusky when the birds were released, O'Connell said. But tornadoes developed along the way and some birds reported back almost two weeks later.

Kearney and Fellows said racing pigeons face hazards such as hawks swooping down on them and persons who shoot them.

The Montville loft is the only one at a penal institution in the country, said Warden Henry Karney. He said the loft is maintained at no cost to the taxpayer. It receives financial help from the center's Jaycee unit. Birds, which are expensive to purchase, were donated by members of the New London County Pigeon Club, consisting of about 15 individually owned lofts.

"It's a tremendously therapeutic project for persons confined," Karney said. "You have to be gentle with pigeons to be successful and I feel this has a pacifying, calming effect on the men. There's a lot of therapeutic value to racing pigeons. There's the competitive angle and then there's the hours of care and training needed to produce top-notch racers."

Bing Enjoys Good Life, Crosby Style

By DICK KLEINER
HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Perhaps as much as any one man, Bing Crosby is a symbol of Hollywood: ultra-casual, movie-oriented, light-hearted. And yet, quietly, he has all but abandoned southern California in the last few years. He was down here, from his home near San Francisco, to tape a CBS special. It was, he said, his first time in Los Angeles in the summer in around 10 years.

The Crosbys — Bing and his second family — live in a town called Hillsborough. They made the move when their three children were small. The presumption is Bing and Kathryn felt the environment was better for raising children. "We're only six minutes from the airport," Bing says. "I can take an eight o'clock plane, be at NBC in Burbank by 9:30. It's better for all of us up there."

Bing doesn't label it as such, but he's actually in a state of semi-retirement. He admits that he doesn't do much any more, at least much in the show business arena.

"I Don't Do Much" He hasn't made an album in a year; he made one single in that time, a recording of Tony Orlando and Dawn's hit, "Tea, a Yellow Ribbon 'Round the Old Oak Tree."

His last movie was "Stagecoach," in 1966. "I don't do much," he says. "Maybe a special or two a year, one of those American Sportsman shows for ABC, a few guest shots, some benefits, that's about all."

He's just taped a CBS special, Bing Crosby and Friends, which CBS will air on Oct. 9. That may be the sum of his tv work for the season, although there could be more appearances yet to be scheduled.

Despite his relative show business inactivity, Bing Crosby is hardly inactive in general. He has more interests than a bank.

He fishes. He hunts. He plays golf. He tends to his real estate dealings in Mexico and northern California. He raises race horses — "but I don't race them." He often goes to Africa in the summer.

"I love to shoot birds in Africa," he says. "It's great."

Hot Springs Save Herd Of Buffalo
WASHINGTON (AP) — While Americans in general are just now waking up to the possibilities of thermal heat and power, Yellowstone Park buffalo have been benefiting from it for generations.

A National Park Service report says that hot springs in the park are largely responsible for the survival of this country's only wild buffalo herd. Reduced to 23 animals in 1901, the herd now numbers over 600.

Dr. Margaret Mary Meagher, a research biologist, says that areas kept snow-free by the springs have been of great importance to the bison population during critical periods. The herd's chief hazard is severe winter weather and heavy snow. That's when the warm ground areas come in handy.

there — doves, things like that. I don't shoot animals any more; I've shot one of everything and that's enough."

It's a good life for a 69-year-old gentleman, who is one of show business' all-time greats. (At 69, he enjoys pointing out that he's 14 months younger than Bob Hope.)

Unlike many of his contemporaries, he makes no effort to conceal his age, nor to conceal the fact that he's beginning to look his age. (He may wear a toupee on occasion, but that's all.)

Eyes Still Sparkle There are lines on his face and the skin hangs loosely below his chin. And yet the blue eyes are still sparkling and the voice is firm, seemingly ready to burst into song at the drop of a boo-boo-boo.

What's most important is that he feels great. "The operation was serious," he says, referring to his major surgery some six months ago, "but I came through it fine. My last check-up was perfect, the doctor said, but they're keeping me on sulfa to prevent a recurrence. It doesn't bother me or my appetite."

As though to prove a point, he painted his corned beef sandwich with mustard and tore into it cheerfully.

He thinks maybe it's his second family that's keeping him feeling youthful. Bing has had two lives, with his two wives and two families.

Acted Like Newlyweds When Dixie, the mother of his four older sons, died in 1952, Bing was 47. He was 52 when he married Kathryn Grant. They proceeded to act like newlyweds in their 20s and they had three children. He likes to say he's been married for 37 years — 20 to Dixie and 17 to Kathryn.

Harry Crosby, who has just turned 16, is a serious musician, his father says. He wants to go to Juillard in New York when he finishes high school, and study serious music, or, at least, study music seriously.

Harry admires Bert Bacharach, and might like to try to emulate him.

Mary Frances, at 15, "is giving ballet a whirl." Bing says if she decides, later on, that she's not good enough to be a professional ballerina, then she'll switch to acting.

The youngest, Nathaniel — "I call him Nathy, but everybody else calls him Nate; he hates Nat, says it sounds like a bug" — is into sports.

Wouldn't Make It Today? "He's 12," his proud dad says, "and a pretty good athlete for 12. He plays baseball, football, golf and tennis. If he doesn't wind up playing some sport, he'd like to be a sportscaster."

He doesn't envy them their era. "It's too hard for kids to start in show business today," he says. "I came along at just the right time. There was nobody much singing then — Rudy Vallee, Russ Columbo, Will Osborne, one or two others. If you could carry a tune, you were in."

"Then I got lucky, got with Paul Whiteman for three years, and that was wonderful. "Today there are too many people, too much of everything. I don't think I would have made it, if I were a kid starting out today."

Everything You Always Wanted To Know About Personalized Auto Tags

By ROGER SOUTHALL

It may never become a national best seller but a book recently published in the Lone Star State is fast becoming popular with Texas readers.

The volume is "Who's Who on Texas Highways and Byways," and it lists in alphabetical order all the personalized auto license plates currently in use, and the names and home cities of the owners.

The book is the brainchild of Harriett Eaker Adams, an attractive blonde career girl from Houston who says she became fascinated with the personalized plates after she acquired a set for her own car, "AH HA," was her choice for her plates (luckily, no one else had got there before her with the same choice) and that perhaps influenced her decision to compile the book. Maybe, just maybe, she said to herself, "Ah, ha, I'll compile a directory of all the personalized plates in the state and become fabulously rich." Or words to that effect.

Well, she says, the volume has been compiled and has gone into its second edition, and it's all been great fun. But so far she hasn't become rich. She hasn't exactly lost money, but she hasn't made much, either.

"But have I ever learned a lot!" she says, a trifle ruefully. "I've learned so much that it exhausts me to think I might have to use it all!"

On a recent swing through North and West Texas (which included a stop in Midland) to publicize her book, the highly articulate and intelligent Miss Adams told a tale of goofs and errors (particularly with the first edition) that would melt the heart of the most calloused newsman—such things as omissions in the tapes of vehicle registrations which she obtained from the Texas Highway Department, lost or left-out pages in the book, printing and binding problems, all-night work sessions to meet deadlines.

Happily, most of the problems have been solved, and the book is now well launched as an indispensable item for Texas motorists who want to be "up" on their fellow motorists.

Miss Adams says that people who have personalized plates on their cars are an outgoing, friendly breed. "I have found most of them to be helpful and cooperative, willing to talk about their choices for personalized plates—in short, thoroughly approachable," she says.

In her volume, she makes three observations about owners of personalized plates:

1. They are not planning to rob a bank.
2. They are not worried about someone seeing their cars where they shouldn't be, and
3. They've got personality!

In the 1974 edition of "Who's Who on Texas Highways and Byways," the first entry in the alphabetical listing is simply "A" and the plate carrying that designation belongs to a Mrs.

(But Were Afraid To Ask)

Beulah Grace Adams of Eastrop. The final listing many, many pages later is "99WJR," assigned to William J. Miller of Dallas.

(In addition to names, phrases, initials and slogans, personalized plates also may carry numerical combinations—for example, a ham radio operator might choose to use his call letters on his vehicle license plates.)

The Who's Who volume lists the "word" or "letter" designations, first (A through Z) and then goes on to list "number" plates. (The number section includes plates that begin with "1" as in "I WILL" or "I TRAVEL," since the electronic tapes from the Highway Department treat the letter "1" as a "1"; similarly, the letter "0" and the number "0" are treated as zero.)

Miss Adams says the majority of people who purchase the book keep their copies in their cars so they can check on particular intriguing license plates as they drive the streets and highways. (Hopefully, a passenger and not the driver does the checking as they travel!)

In addition to giving a listing of the personalized plates, the volume also provides some background on the program, (it was signed into law in August 1965), lists the basic requirements for personalized plates, and includes an order blank for ordering a set of the plates from the Highway Department.

Miss Adams also provides a few interesting pages on some of the broad categories into which personalized plates fall (such as sports, special dates, advice, colloquialisms, ethnic designations, personal descriptions). And, she entertains her readers with anecdotes and brief stories about how some of the more unusual or interesting plates came into being. The volume contains a blank page at the back for other readers to fill in, telling how their plates "got that way," which they can then mail to the publishing offices in Houston.

The 1974 edition of "Who's Who on Texas Highways and Byways" is not generally available in bookstores, but it may be mail-ordered from Who's Who Inc., P.O. Box 27412, Houston 77027.

'I Do! I Do!' Held Over

ODESSA — Holdover performances of "I Do! I Do!", the season-opening production of the Permian Playhouse here, have been announced.

The production, originally scheduled to close this weekend, will have additional performances Oct. 4-6 at PPH, Odessa's community theater. The mini-musical, which has Barbara Iglehart and Terry Milligan as the stars and sole performers, was adapted from the Jan de Hartog play, "The Fourposter," by Tom Jones and Harvey Schmidt, the creators of "The Fantasticks."

Seat reservations for the Friday and Saturday night performances this week, and for closing performances Oct. 4, 5 and 6, may be made through the Playhouse box office, 310 W. 42nd St. The theater telephone number is 362-2339.

Educational Tv Nel In Alabama May Be Shut Down

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Alabama's educational television network, hit with charges of racial discrimination, may be forced to shut down, the general manager of the state Educational Television Commission says.

"The possibility of ETV ending for Alabama and not continuing is most definitely a probability," Robert Dob said on Wednesday.

The Federal Communications Commission voted tentatively last week not to renew the license for the network because of charges of racial discrimination in programming and employment. An FCC spokesman stressed that the vote was not binding and that a final decision has not been made.

Gov. George Wallace, who recently appointed a black to the commission, said the charges are no longer valid.

A spokesman for the state agency said the FCC based its decision on actions between 1967 and 1969, when the governorship was occupied by Wallace's first wife, Lurleen, and Albert Brewer. Any discrimination that did exist has been corrected, the spokesman said.

There were reports that Alabama officials have decided to close down the network rather than fight the FCC if the federal agency refuses to renew the license. But a source who has been in close contact with Wallace said no decision has been reached.

The source said the FCC action was viewed as merely a political attempt to embarrass the governor. The FCC has never blocked the renewal of an educational television franchise.

Sugar Imports To Be Increased

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says there will be a deficit of 600,000 short tons in the amount of sugar that U.S. areas are expected to supply under their quota this year. The shortage was reassigned to 29 foreign countries.

Officials said domestic beet areas would be down 200,000 acres; mainland cane areas (Florida and Louisiana) 350,000 acres; and Hawaii 100,000 acres. Puerto Rico, however, has been able to supply 80,000 tons more than indicated earlier, meaning a net domestic shortfall of 600,000 tons.

Summer Mummies, Septemberfest Featured In Texas Parade Magazine

Two Midland "institutions," Midland Community Theatre's Summer Mummies and the Museum of the Southwest's Septemberfest, currently are drawing notice statewide by way of Texas Parade Magazine.

The magazine, published in Austin, devotes space to the two Tall City entertainment events in its "Texas Talk" pages in the September issue.

The article on the Summer Mummies was written by Mary Frances Floyd, a teacher of English in the Midland public schools who is active in Midland Community Theatre both onstage and off. Mrs. Floyd says the article appears as she wrote it, except for such phrases as "Midland loves theater," "synphony, horseshoes or nearly anything recreational," or the concluding statement that "Texas' oil-patch oasis may be dusty and lonely and tough, but they're spreading their own brand of Texana around the world," which were added in Austin.

WHAT'S HER LINE?—Harriett Adams of Houston doesn't manufacture license plates, as the picture might suggest, but she does list them — personalized plates that is! Miss Adams is shown holding a copy of "Who's Who on Texas Highways and Byways," which she has compiled, listing names and home cities of all owners of personalized plates in the state. Her own personal plate is "AH HA," shown in place on her car. The two plates above it are cardboard mockups of plates used when Miss Adams appeared on a segment of "What's My Line?" television program.

The later refers to Mrs. Floyd's description of the Mummies' trip to Ireland last May to participate in the Dundalk Maytime Festival, at which the Midlanders presented a typical Mummies melodrama, "Peril on the Pecos."

The article is accompanied by a picture showing a group of cast members in the 1973 Mummies show. They include Dawn Dickson, Bill Heck, Kathy Turner, Harry Harrison, Brenda Gayle and Loretta Fitz-Gerald.

Southwest, is described in the Texas Parade article as one of "three of Texas' most enjoyable festivals." The others are Turkeyfest in Cuero and the Texas Folklife Festival, the official state folk art and crafts celebration, at San Antonio.

This year's Septemberfest on Sept. 7 was the sixth one held here and drew an estimated 10,000 or more persons to the museum grounds. The event is sponsored and conducted each year by Las Manos ("The Hands"), museum volunteer service organization.

ABC News Awaits Survey Results

By JAY SHARBUTT
NEW YORK (AP) — ABC News is awaiting the results of a year-long survey of what viewers might like to see if the network expands its weeknight television news show from a half-hour to 45 minutes or an hour.

But it doesn't mean ABC plans to break the half-hour news barrier soon.

The survey, says ABC News President Bill Sheehan, "is just an exercise because we really don't have any hope of expanding the 'ABC Evening News' right now. But we want to be ready in case the day comes."

He said the study, conducted by Frank N. Magid Associates, an Iowa-based news consulting and research firm, simply asks

"What are people looking for if the networks go to an hour or 45 minutes?"

He recalled that when an earlier survey was made of viewer preferences in half-hour network news shows, "what we found quite clearly was that people watching the early evening news broadcasts were looking for a pretty quick summary of what had happened that day."

"Now, what we're looking for is to find out if they just want more of that or whether there's an appetite for longer, analytical kinds of material or 'magazine' kinds of material."

The idea of a 45-minute or hour-long news show on weeknights has been discussed at the three networks for several years. But it still remains only a dream, with nothing definite planned, the networks say.

Until 1963, they only broadcast 15-minute evening news programs. NBC went to a half-hour in September that year, followed by CBS in December. ABC says it adopted the 30-minute format in January 1967.

Right now, the official line at ABC, whose weeknight news show is carried by 197 stations, is that an hour-long version of it will regularly appear within the next five years. But it won't predict which year.

CBS, whose evening news is carried by 194 stations, and NBC, its nightly news carried by 209, also predict hour-long network evening news programs in the future, but they also won't predict approximately when.

Bob Hope Did No Mugging Jokes On First Tv Special

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Hope was in Central Park last week, taping part of his first special for the new tv season. And while he mugged a bit, he wasn't mugged. He says he didn't even joke about mugging.

Was that at the request of Mayor Abraham Beame?

"No, he didn't ask for that," said Hope, whose show aired Wednesday night on NBC. "I just decided it'd be stupid to come in and start that kind of jazz. It's been done to death on tv in the last two or three years."

Some viewers may recall that former Mayor John Lindsay used to issue occasional pleas for comedians to cease joking about Fun City's muggings and other hazards and stress the positive side of life here.

Is Beame now also trying to tidy up Manhattan's tumbled image?

"Yeah," Hope said. "And I think we're helping, because the things we're doing on the show are all very positive. We're not doing any mugging jokes because that's the cheap, easy way to go."

He said Beame suggested doing the special in New York four months ago, when Hope was here to get an award from an organization called the Junior Achievers.

"The mayor was there and it was such a delightful occasion to see these boys and girls," he said. "It was exactly the opposite of the image New York has today."

"The mayor said, 'You ought to come back here and do a show.' I thought it was a marvelous idea and so here we are."

Arts, Crafts Show Set At Stephenville

STEPHENVILLE — The

eight annual Stephenville Arts and Crafts Show will be held Nov. 1 and 2 at the City Recreation Hall. The event, sponsored by the Zonia Club, Stephenville Recreation Center and the Stephenville Chamber of Commerce, has gained wide recognition as one of the finest arts and crafts exhibition and sales held in Texas. Attendance at previous shows has numbered well into the thousands and an even larger crowd is expected for this year's show.

On display and for sale at the show will be wood crafts, flowers, baked goods and handicrafts, plus oil, watercolor and pastel paintings, and drawings.

Of special interest to many will be the ceramic display at the show.

For more information concerning the annual show, contact Mrs. Ellen Fambro, 353 Lingville Road, or the Stephenville Chamber of Commerce at P.O. Box 304, Stephenville, 76801.

Important 20th Century Art Collection Currently On View At Fort Worth

FORT WORTH — One of the most notable assemblages of important 20th Century art under one roof is the collection currently on view at the Fort Worth Art Museum.

The exhibition, titled "20th Century Art From Fort Worth and Dallas Collections," marks the reopening of the museum following its $1,500,000 renovation and expansion which has been under way during the past year.

Formerly known as the Fort Worth Art Center Museum, the institution's full new name, The Fort Worth Art Museum, is intended to more clearly reflect its emphasis on the best of modern and contemporary European and American art.

The opening exhibition offers 139 works in a variety of media, marking the first time that top quality art from contemporary collections in the area has been shown together on such a large scale. In addition to generous loans from 24 private collectors, selections from the museum's permanent collection are displayed, along with outstanding examples from the Amon Carter Museum of Western Art, Kimbell Art Museum, Dallas Museum of Fine Arts and the Meadows Museum of Southern Methodist University. The show was organized by Henry T. Hopkins, former director of the museum, who became director of the San Francisco Museum of Art earlier this year, and who returned for the opening here as guest curator.

In characterizing the range of the exhibition in his introduction to the catalogue for the show, Hopkins wrote: "Almost every nook and cranny of the primary artistic thought of the century is represented — from Cubism to Conceptual, from Matisse to Minimal. Only the schools of Orphism, Futurism and certain aspects of Surrealism and Dada are missing."

"In some very special individual cases of widely recognized modern masters — Kandinsky, Mondrian and Picasso — local holdings are so extraordinary that they demanded extensive inclusion," Hopkins pointed out.

Works range from an important Picasso loaned by Mrs. Charles D. Tandy, to an impressive Jackson Pollock painting owned by the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts, to an Edward Munch canvas from the Kimbell Museum collection.

Hopkins stated that all collectors in the area who were approached, agreed to lend to this exhibition even though they were aware they were loaning objects which are almost beyond value. Since many of the works have never been shown publicly here, the exhibition provides a unique opportunity for the viewer to increase his education through exposure to original works comparable to those in the greatest museums in the world. The monumental resources available in Fort Worth and Dallas collections are not widely enough known even within the area, Hopkins emphasized.

This burgeoning interest in the collection of first twentieth century art is a recent phenomenon. Hopkins noted that more than half the works represented in the exhibition have been acquired during the past eight years and that as recently as six years ago only a few works purchased through the Dallas Museum of Contemporary Art which merged with the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts in 1964 documented the past-World War II period.

El Paso Civic Center Opens Series Of Musical, Dramatic Events Scheduled

EL PASO — A series of musical and dramatic events this week and next are officially inaugurating the Civic Center Theater in El Paso's brand new Civic Center complex.

The series began Monday night when the El Paso Symphony Association presented the El Paso Symphony Orchestra in the opening concert of its 1974-75 season, a season which will offer a total of eight concerts through next April.

The orchestra, under the baton of former El Pasoan Abraham Chavez Jr., presented the Richard Strauss' "Festive Prelude," Dvorak's "New World" Symphony, the Cesar Franck "Psalm 150" and contemporary American composer Samuel Barber's "Adagio for Strings" in the opening concert.

Chavez, formerly a member of the music faculty of the University of Texas-El Paso, now is professor of music at the University of Colorado and conductor of the university's symphony and chamber orchestras. He is a frequent guest conductor of American and European orchestras.

The second inaugural program for the new theater — and its first dramatic event — came Tuesday night with a performance of George Bernard Shaw's "Don Juan in Hell." The touring production starred noted actress Myrna Loy and actor Ricardo Montalban, joined by Edward Mulhare and Kurt Kaszner.

The third inaugural event on Oct. 4 will be a combination of music and drama. It is the new-from-Broadway musical, "Seesaw."

The two stars of the production are John Raitt, probably best-remembered for his starring roles in Broadway's "Carousel" and "Pajama Game," and Liz Torres, young Broadway newcomer who has had featured roles in several New York productions.

"Seesaw" is based on playwright William Gibson's drama, "Two for the Seesaw," which had a successful New York run in the 1960s. The musical adaptation, utilizing the two-character cast and single stage setting of the play, went on to win rave reviews from the critics and an Antoinette Perry ("Tony") award.

Tickets for next week's "Seesaw" are on sale at the Civic Center box office between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. daily.

The featured artist has been presented in more than 30 one woman shows in Texas and the New Mexico, including those at Midland Community Theatre and Gallery 1 in Midland. She has received numerous citations and awards for her unique and interesting work. She has had formal art study with Katherine Schieler of Santa Fe, Jan Herring of El Paso, Leonard Brooks of San Miguel, Mexico, Warren Brandon of Balboa, Calif., and Dr. Emilio Cabellero of Canyon.

International Competition Slated

BATON ROUGE, La. — The fifth International Competition sponsored by the Louisiana Watercolor Society is expected to draw entries from Texas and Southwestern artists, along with those by artists from abroad and throughout the U.S.

Cash prizes of $300, $200 and $100 will be awarded first, second and third prize winners in the show, opening Nov. 10 in the Louisiana Art Commission Galleries in the Old State Capitol Building, continuing through Dec. 8.

Milford Zornes, nationally-known artists-teacher, will be adjudicator for the show.

To be eligible for inclusion in the exhibition, works must be original paintings on paper in water-based medium, and must have been completed 7001.

There is an entry fee of $3 per painting, with no limit on the number of paintings submitted by an individual artist.

Paintings, accompanied by entry cards and fees, must be sent to the Louisiana Art Commission to arrive between Oct. 1 and Oct. 20. Additional information on the competition is available from the art commission, Old State Capitol Building, Baton Rouge, La.

Midland Artist To Exhibit Works

KINGSLAND — Paintings in various media and various styles by Midland artist Dolye Neal Ballenger will make up a major fall exhibition at The Gallery here next month.

The show will open a week from Saturday and continue through Oct. 20.

Kingsland's Gallery regularly represents Mrs. Ballenger in the Central Texas area and the selections of her work included in the upcoming exhibition reveal the versatility of the artist in oils, acrylics, pastels and watercolor. A group of pen-and-ink drawings with color washes also are to be on view.

Mrs. Ballenger's subjects are as varied as the mediums she uses to produce the movement and interplay of color and form in her imaginative expressions on canvas. Her works include landscapes, still lifes, abstracts and figures with emphasis on bold, fresh floral studies which manifest her love of flowers.

Fear Of Famine Spreads In India

By EDWARD CODY
CALCUTTA, India (AP) — Hunger officially described as the worst in a decade has gripped the back-country villages of West Bengal, raising fears of widespread famine.

The president of the state's ruling Congress party, Arun K. Mitra, estimated 1,000 persons already have died because of food shortages and diseases connected to malnutrition.

Thousands of villagers have quit their huts in hard-hit isolated areas to beg for food in cities and towns, their babies in their arms and their possessions in bundles on their heads. The state government has launched an emergency relief operation to keep them alive.

Other States Hit

"We shall deal with this situation on a war footing," pledged Sidhartha Shankar Ray, West Bengal chief minister, in an interview.

Scarcity also has attacked rural pockets in seven other Indian states, leading to predictions that New Delhi will have to get massive food imports soon to avoid famine in the countryside.

The predictions are reinforced by estimates from agricultural experts that the fall crop, mostly rice, will be sharply down in West Bengal and the rest of India because of broad areas suffering from drought and lack of fertilizer.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's government already has signed deals for importing about two million tons of food-grains through December, much of it from the United States.

But the International Wheat Council said last week she will need a total of three million to five million tons to get the nation by until next summer's wheat comes in.

More Aid Pledged

Mrs. Gandhi's envoys abroad have quietly made India's needs known in the hope of getting aid and concessional food sales or loans from the United States, Western Europe and the Soviet Union.

President Ford pledged last week that the United States will increase its world food aid but the quantities available are expected to be disclosed only at the World Food Conference in Rome in November.

Indian officials in New Delhi and state officials here in Calcutta have been reticent to cry publicly for help from abroad because the Indian public has been told since the good crop years of 1970-71 that the nation is virtually self-sufficient in food.

Nowhere has the scarcity hit harder than in the backward villages of the West Bengal countryside where landless farm hands have been caught in a vicious grip of high prices and unemployment.

Some have resorted to eating weeds, snails and frogs because they cannot get the traditional rice or even the less desirable crude wheat. Thousands have poured into towns to line up at cut-rate kitchens set up by local merchants.

About a month ago Kanai Kushi brought his wife and seven children to Calcutta, swelling its army of beggars, because there was neither food nor work for him in their village of Bergram, about 150 miles southwest of the city. They came by train without tickets.

"Even my employer, a mahari jotedar (middle-class farmer), was in difficulty," Kushi told a visitor to his campsite on a sidewalk.

The family's last real meal was a little rice and lentil soup handed out by a Calcutta shopkeeper. Mrs. Kushi added water to the mixture to make it go around for her 25-year-old husband and six children.

She only has six to feed now because a 6-year-old daughter died soon after the family took up residence on the streetside.

Annual Hardship

"The baby died eating all this rubbish," said Kushi. "We couldn't give her milk."

The plight of families like the Kushis has been an annual hardship in West Bengal for years during the lean time between spring planting and the rice harvest in late October.

But in past years thousands of landless laborers could count on rice loans from farmers to tide them over until harvest time, when they repaid the loans with their work. Or they could get enough food to squeeze by from government ration shops where grains are sold at subsidized prices.

This year, however, high prices — up 100 per cent to 40 cents a kilogram (2.2 pounds) in some areas — have enticed the farmers to sell their stocks to traders who take the food to cities where the cash is. Rice loans are out this year, and the landless can't afford the high market prices.

In addition, the government ration shops have been unable to give more than a few hundred grams a week — enough to eat for three days out of the seven — because of inadequate government procurement.

The result: hungry people.

Consumer Tastes Worry Dairy Farmers

By DON KENDALL
WASHINGTON (AP) — Soaring costs of production, fanned by general inflation, represent the main reason why dairy farmers are in trouble. But consumer tastes also are an underlying worry.

Agriculture Department officials say milk sold for the fluid market — that is, milk not used to make cheese and other manufactured products — declined about four per cent from a year earlier during the first half of 1974.

One reason was that retail milk prices jumped sharply last winter, reflecting gains in what farmers received for their milk. Last May, for example, a half-gallon container of milk in supermarkets averaged 80.4 cents nationally, up from 62.7 cents a year earlier.

There has been some decline for retail milk since last May, but not to the extent that farm prices of Class I fluid milk have dropped. The July average for retail milk was 78.4 cents per one-half gallon.

Meantime, the average minimum paid farmers for Class I milk under federal marketing orders dropped from $10.25 per 100 pounds last May to $8.39 per 100 pounds this month, nearly a 20 per cent decline.

Chain Saw Turns Stamp Into Turtle

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (AP) — A huge turtle reigns in the side yard of the Allen Boots residence.

Actually, the turtle was once a tree stump. The Boots intended to have it taken out, but instead a neighbor turned it into an asset in three hours by sculpturing it into a turtle with a chain saw.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Buttz announced last week he will hold a hearing on Class I minimum prices under federal marketing orders to see if something can be done to boost those as a hedge against rising dairy production costs.

Dairy producer representatives have called for higher federal supports the last year or two. Those are needed, they say, to head off further erosion of the U.S. production capacity, meaning that farmers will continue to go out of business unless something is done.

The Economic Research Service of USDA says retail dairy prices may decline further this fall and thus help boost consumption. But seasonal increases are due late in the year, which could mean a further setback in consumer demand for some milk products.

Consumption Declines

Per-capita consumption of milk, including all products generally has been declining for many years. The pattern for individual products, however, has been varied widely.

One significant increase in dairy consumption has been in cheese, averaging 8 pounds per person last year for Americans-type and 5.7 for others. In 1960 Americans consumed 5.4 pounds and 2.9 pounds, respectively, of the two kinds.

Butter output dropped 17 per cent in 1973 to the lowest level since USDA records were started in 1919. But manufactured products still utilized 51 per cent of the total U.S. milk output last year, down just one percentage point from 1972.

Thus, larger output of cheese and other products, including frozen desserts, nearly offset the huge slump in production of butter and nonfat dry milk.

Things Looking Up For Mutual Funds

NEW YORK (AP) — Times have taken a decided turn for the better in the last few months for the troubled mutual fund industry.

As the statistics clearly spell out, the credit goes to the glittering early success of the industry's newest product — the short term money market fund.

In the six-month period from March 1 to Aug. 31, investors have poured over $600 million more into the money market funds than they have taken out, according to the Investment Company Institute.

The March figure was $16.2 million. By August, it had swollen to $228.8 million.

Harry J. Guinivan, the institute's associate director, points out that that data includes only the nine money market funds which are members of the trade group.

Not included, for example, is the largest of all the money market funds, New York's Reserve Fund, which issued its first public shares in January 1973, and had grown to $366 million in net assets at the last count.

Guinivan estimates the number of such funds has reached 15 to 20 from only a handful at the start of this year.

"They're coming out so rapidly it's hard to keep track of them," he observes.

The funds invest in a sector of the financial world that few small investors took much notice of until recently, when double-digit interest rates suddenly thrust it into the spotlight.

In this market, big businesses, banks and the government issue and trade interest-bearing securities that resemble bonds, except that they mature in a few days, weeks or months instead of 20 or 30 or 40 years.

A traditional bar to small investors wanting to invest in these vehicles — Treasury bills, bank certificates of deposit, commercial paper issued by industry, and the like — has been the large minimum amount of capital required.

Treasury bills, for instance, generally require a minimum of $10,000, although one issue this summer was offered in $1,000 units. Certificates of deposit ordinarily start at $100,000.

What the funds do, of course, is to pool the money of investors, and thus they can offer access to the short term money market for starting minimum investments ranging from $5,000 to as little as $100 in a couple of cases.

People in the industry acknowledge the popularity of the money market funds almost certainly will fade quickly should interest rates come down to any significant extent.

Lower interest rates might well be accompanied by a better stock market, however. The question then for the fund industry would be whether it could attract once-burned investors back into common-stock funds.

Hand Of Man May Never Touch Part Of Isle Again

By DAVE RILEY

ASSATEAGUE ISLAND, Va. (AP) — The hand of man may have laid its last finger on at least part of this island paradise of deserted white beaches and bird-infested marshes.

Despite the crowded public parks at each end of the 33-mile-long pencil-shaped island off the Maryland-Virginia coast, most of the land still is inhabited only by wild deer and ponies, birds and hordes of mosquitos.

It remains much as it was when the first explorers lowered their sails in the new world.

Since it was first settled in the 1600s, Assateague Island has been the site of numerous villages, farms and remote estates, but nature has worked tirelessly to erase most traces of man's habitation.

Few Inhabitants

Except for some federal officials, no one lives on the island now. Only a few weary buildings, deserted Coast Guard stations and a lighthouse remain as a reminder of past occupations.

Roads are maintained only in the park areas at the north and south ends of the island. The rest of Assateague is under the guard of the federal government and the care of nature, which for centuries has been unhindered in making its alterations to sand dunes, marshes and pitifully temporary man-made structures.

After recognizing Assateague as a national seashore, the federal government is seeking to keep a small part of this island, which officials describe as the last untouched coastline on the United States' Atlantic shore, a monument to what America was.

The Department of the Interior is preparing to recommend to Congress that 12 miles in the center of the island be declared a wilderness area to forever bar man's interference with this unique natural setting.

Popular With Tourists

"We're reasonably certain the proposal will be made to Congress this fall," said J. C. Appel, who administers the fish and wildlife agency's game refuge at the south end of the island. "Then it will be up to Congress to decide if it meets the idea of what a wilderness area ought to be."

Part of Assateague is well known to the tourists who annually swarm across the bridges at each end of the island for hiking, fishing, crabbing, clamming and for the foaming surf that pounds incessantly on white beaches at the foot of towering sand dunes.

The state park at the Maryland end of the island, not far from the jumble of Ocean City, and the national wildlife refuge at the southern end adjacent to the little town of Chincoteague, Va., are packed each summer day by sunburned tourists who battle each other and the mosquitos for space under the sun.

But in the center of the island, where the wilderness area is proposed for about six miles north and six miles south of the Virginia-Maryland state line, only the hardiest of hikers experience the tranquility of walking the 30-foot-high dunes.

Ocean City, Md., used to be a part of this island, which once stretched from Virginia to Delaware. A 1933 storm carved a small inlet between Ocean City and what is now the northern tip of Assateague.

Many of those who back the idea of a wilderness area point to the crowded resorts of Ocean City as their idea of the ultimate evil that can befall any place situated on the ocean when man moves in with his bulldozers, his motels and his neon signs.

"We don't want more motels or condominiums," says Wheatly Watson, Chincoteague's new mayor and a motel owner. "We just want to keep what we've got."

Watson, who took office in August, says the little town can't take any more tax burden imposed because of the needs of the ever-growing tourist crowd. He says those who inhabit the campgrounds are worst because they need town services but they don't spend any money.

But Watson's views face considerable opposition from other town businessmen who, as motel owner Russell Everett put it, "are happy with things as they are."

'Federal Padlock'

Everett views the wilderness proposal as an effort to put "a big old federal padlock" on Assateague Island. He notes that if the proposal passes, a highway could never be built the length of Assateague, and just such a highway might some day be needed for Chincoteague's tourist trade.

"That section would be off-limits forever," Everett said, attributing support for the wilderness plan to nonresidents and conservation groups based elsewhere.

Over on Assateague Island — in the federal wildlife refuge at the southern end — cars drive slowly past white egrets that ignore the gawking faces and the binoculars aimed at them. One bird glances at a half-eaten sandwich thrown toward him. Nearby, tourists are preparing to take a wilderness trail that allows them to wind through the marshes in the air conditioned comfort of their cars. A man from New York is signing up his family for an evening cruise around the marshes.

And in his little house in the heart of Chincoteague, cluttered with photos, maps and charts of Assateague as it was, as it still is in its wild heartland, Nat Steelman, unofficial island historian, wonders aloud about the chance of preserving at least a part of the island.

Doctor Says Nixon's Clot Can Be Treated

By RICHARD SALTUS
LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon rested quietly in a hospital today and the former president's doctor says he thinks the dime-sized blood clot in his right lung can be successfully treated.

A hospital spokesman revealed the clot had passed through Nixon's heart before lodging in the lung. If it had blocked a heart artery, it could have been fatal.

Nixon's physician, Dr. John C. Lungren, said on Wednesday that the clot was a "potentially dangerous situation but not critical at this time. . . There is a very good chance of recovery, but it will take some time."

Nixon is expected to be hospitalized through next week, missing the Tuesday start of the Watergate cover-up trial in Washington for which he has been subpoenaed as a witness.

Lungren said Nixon took news of the gelatin-like clot "as he normally takes anything else — it's another problem." But the doctor added, "He has a hell of a will to live."

Such a clot — called an embolus — kills lung tissue around it. The size of the dead lung area in Nixon's case was not disclosed.

Several specialists not attending Nixon were asked their opinion on the severity of the clot.

"It's not life-threatening," Dr. Richard Lescoe, past president of the Los Angeles Lung Association, said of Nixon's clot.

A knowledgeable Washington, D.C., doctor warned, however, that "even though this clot doesn't seem to be severe, it doesn't mean it couldn't get worse. If a chunk of another clot broke off and got to the lungs . . . that might be it."

The clot is being treated with anticoagulants in hope of dissolving it and preventing new clots from forming.

The clot reached Nixon's lung after breaking off a larger clot in his leg, where it had been created by persistent phlebitis, an inflammation of the vein, Lungren said.

He said the greatest danger is that another clot might break off and move to a lung.

The mortality rate from pulmonary embolism varies greatly, according to medical sources. Depending on the primary cause, it can be anywhere from 1 per cent to 80 per cent fatal, they said.

Lungren said stress and fatigue suffered by Nixon since he resigned the presidency "may be a factor" in Nixon's physical problems.

But he suggested other causes are possible — simple inactivity or hypercoagulability of the blood (a strong tendency to clot) or even malignancy, including leukemia. He said tests were being performed.

Mary Prentice, a hospital spokeswoman, said the clot was small enough to easily pass through one of the two main pulmonary arteries that connect the heart to the lungs. If it had been large enough and lodged in the artery, death could have occurred in a few minutes or a few hours.

Nixon has had trouble with his leg and phlebitis for many years, and the lung clot indicates the circulatory ailment will continue to plague him. "He's going to be bothered with this the rest of his life," one New York lung specialist said.

The 61-year-old Nixon has no chest pain from the clot, Lungren said. Nixon entered Memorial Hospital Medical Center of Long Beach on Monday for a stay then expected to last seven days.

Nixon's wife, Pat, has been visiting her husband daily, driving to the hospital from their seaside villa in San Clemente, 50 miles south of Long Beach, a hospital official said.

Telephone calls, letters and telegrams continued to pour into the hospital, most expressing encouragement.

But several callers made threats, such as "Kill Nixon," "Let him die" and "I'm going to get him," hospital officials said. One told police Monday he had planted a bomb in the hospital.

Secret Service agents refused comment on the threats. Nixon is sealed off on the sixth floor of the hospital's west wing.

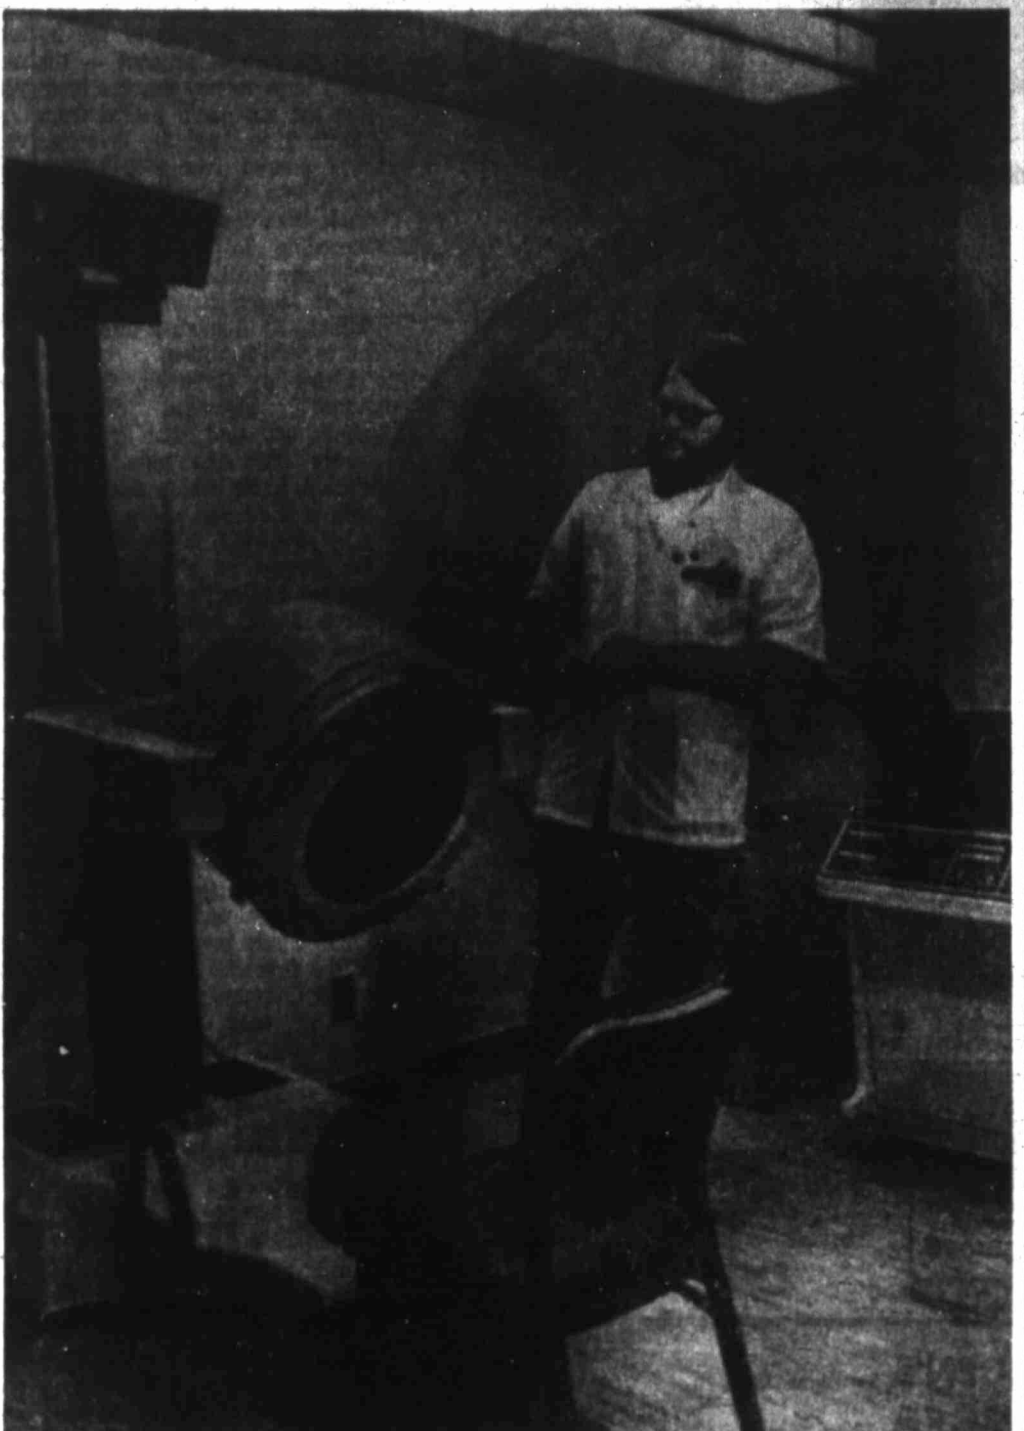

Nixon had been subpoenaed by defendant John D. Ehrlichman, his former domestic affairs adviser, and special prosecutor Leon Jaworski in the Watergate cover-up trial.

Jaworski has asked U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica to send an independent medical team to determine whether Nixon can testify or give a deposition. Sirica has not yet ruled on the request.

The clot was discovered Tuesday. Lungren said he did not know when the clot broke off.

President Ford "expressed pleasure that there was no imminent danger and that the former president is feeling reasonably well," said Press Secretary Ron Nessen.

Nessen said he knew of no plan for Ford to visit Nixon, although Ford will be in San Francisco Wednesday for a speaking appearance.

NUCLEAR CAMERA DETECTS NIXON CLOT— A technician at Memorial Hospital in Long Beach, Calif., stands beside a nuclear camera which was used to discover a blood clot in former President Nixon's lung. Nixon's doctor, in revealing existence of the clot Wednesday, said it is a "potentially dangerous situation." The control in the technician's hand is to lower or raise the camera. (AP Wirephoto.)

Texans To Use 'Secret Weapon' In Turkey Gallop

CUERO, Tex. (AP) — Supporters of this town's entry in a Texas-Minnesota turkey race have a secret weapon for the final heat on Sunday which begins with the Texas entry almost a full minute behind.

For the second year in a row, a turkey from Worthington, Minn., is racing a feathered counterpart from Cuero in what is known as the Great Gobbler Gallop.

Apparently, the turkey racing is as much for the townfolk's pride as it is for the birds.

Paycheck, the Worthington entry, completed the first 150-yard heat two weeks ago in Worthington in 57.3 seconds while Ruby Begonia II of Cuero crossed the finish line 59 seconds later.

Ruby first stopped to munch on some popcorn in the street and then, according to the bird's zealous handlers from Cuero, was blocked from the finish line by some Worthington kids who were chasing after Paycheck.

This year's winner will be the one which has the best overall time, including not only the Worthington performance but Sunday's heat in Cuero, where like Worthington the growing of turkeys is big business.

Is 59 seconds too big of a margin for Ruby Begonia to make up?

"Hardly," shoots back Ken Long, publisher of the Cuero Record.

Long revealed this week "we plan to make it up in fine order" with the use of a secret weapon. Pressed for a description, he said the weapon is a fishing pole with 10 or 12 rattlesakes taped to it.

"Supposedly, turkeys are afraid of rattlers. Hopefully, that (the weapon) is about as realistic as you can get," said Long.

He said also "it might be worthwhile" to sweep Gonzalez Street in downtown Cuero where the race is to be held for any stray bits of popcorn.

Ruby Begonia II is no kin to Ruby Begonia, the Cuero entry who won last year's gallop.

And, in reality, Ruby is a tom, or male turkey, leading Cuero's handlers to tag her also as "the boy named Sue."

The turkey flap started as both towns claimed to be the turkey capital of the world. However, this year's race is not held to decide which will be the capital.

"We've sort of stopped that. Cuero and Worthington have officially become sister cities," says Long. "They are the northern turkey capital of the world and we are the southern capital."

Rumsfeld Political Committee Didn't Register Until This Year

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
WASHINGTON (AP) — A 13-year-old political committee set up for newly appointed presidential aide Donald Rumsfeld did not register under the 1972 federal campaign reporting law until it went out of business this year, documents on file with the Senate show.

Rumsfeld's former campaign manager said the committee was not required to file under the law that took effect April 7, 1972. But officials charged with monitoring the act said the committee should have registered, if not when the law took effect, at least by 1973 when it took preliminary soundings on a possible Rumsfeld race for the Senate in Illinois.

Rumsfeld, a former House member who resigned from Congress in 1969 to join the Nixon administration, was due in Washington today for his new assignment as an assistant to President Ford. He is to serve as coordinator of the White House staff and schedule.

He has been U.S. ambassador to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Rumsfeld could not be reached for comment on the political committee, initially created in 1961 for the first of four campaigns for the House.

Reports filed last February show that the Rumsfeld committee had a balance of nearly $20,000 at the beginning of 1969. It had some income primarily from interest, and spent nearly $10,000 in closing out 1968 House campaign expenses before the reporting law took effect.

The law says a political committee must register if it "anticipates receiving contributions or making expenditures" of more than $1,000 during a calendar year.

Chicago attorney Donald Lowitz, who served as Rumsfeld's campaign manager in date for the United States Senate from the State of Illinois in 1962 and 1968, said the committee wasn't required to register because it didn't anticipate receiving or spending money, since Rumsfeld had resigned Congress and was participating in appointive positions.

However, committee records on file here say: "In 1973, the committee began to consider the possibility of its proposing that Mr. Rumsfeld be a candidate for the State of Illinois in the 1974 election."

The unit had a professional opinion poll conducted and arranged to hire an office manager but decided not to pursue it.

It paid $10,000 in outstanding bills, taxes and final accounting fees, contributed $3,057 to the U.S. Treasury and went out of business on Feb. 4. A final accounting of its activities for the previous five years was received by Secretary of the Senate Francis R. Valeo on Feb. 8.

When asked about the case, officials in Valeo's office said the committee should have registered within 10 days of the decision to take preliminary steps toward a senatorial campaign.

Senate Committee Told Pharmaceutical Firm Selling Drug That Causes Ulcers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A marketing as a prescription drug in the United States.

The drug is designed to replace the potassium lost by patients taking diuretics for fluid loss. Some medical experts say orange juice and bananas achieve the same result.

Tulane University medical professor F. Gilbert McMahon, a Cuiba vice president for three years, confirmed that it was he who tipped the FDA on May 26, 1972, of company studies showing that Slow-K caused gastric ulcers in monkeys.

Ciba had applied to the FDA on Aug. 27, 1971, for permission to conduct experimental studies with the drug prior to seeking marketing approval. McMahon, who spent eight years with drug companies and 24 years in clinical pharmacology and human research, emphasized that he was appearing under subpoena and that he had no ax to grind with the FDA or the pharmaceutical industry.

The Ciba monkey studies had been performed by Dr. Albert Earl in early 1965. He left Ciba in 1969 after 21 years with the firm.

Introduced into the hearing record was a memo prepared for, but never signed by, Dr. J. Richard Cross, then director of the FDA's Office of Scientific Evaluation, recommending that legal action be considered against Ciba for not submitting the monkey studies.

FDA investigators sent to check out McMahon's tip were told by Ciba on Aug. 18, 1972, that the data had been overlooked, according to the memo prepared by Dr. E. DeVaughn Belton, then head of the FDA's team investigating cardiovascular drugs.

"Although we recognize that the firm eventually submitted the data, it is our opinion that the firm has violated the law by omission of material information . . .," said the memo prepared by Belton.

Crout said on Wednesday he could not recall the memo or why he didn't send it to his predecessor at the Bureau of Drugs.

Connecticut Moves To Salvage State's Solid Trash

By J. THOMAS FAILLA
BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) — The first plant in a statewide program to turn Connecticut's trash into fuel, glass and metal will emerge here soon on the site of an abandoned forge.

Such a large-scale recycling operation, handling everything from cellophane wrappers to refrigerators in one continuous process, has never been tried in this country.

From the outside it'll bear the smart look of a modern, well-landscaped factory. On the inside a concoction of new and old technologies will give it the appearance of the house that Jack built.

A churning, whirring, gurgling collection of pulverizers, blowers, conveyers, emulsions and magnets will gorge daily on 1,500 tons of waste from a area communities, transforming 92 per cent of it into usable fuels for electric power plants and raw materials for bottlemakers and smelters.

Promoters, with fingers crossed, say it'll work. The state invested $1 million in a study and set up a special agency with bonding power to see that it does. And the area towns, which five years ago banded together with little more than good intentions to lick their mutual solid waste problems, say it had better.

"We knew at some point in time we wouldn't have a landfill left. Now all we have is anywhere from 6 to 18 months left," said John McCarthy Jr., president of the Interlocal Solid Waste Advisory Board.

The $30-million plant is the keystone of a $295-million plan to cope with solid waste statewide. Plant construction, slated to begin some time this fall, will take nearly two years. It will be the prototype of 10 similar plants around the state.

The plants will go into operation one per year, separating bulk refuse into reusable materials such as aluminum, glass and ferrous metals which will be sold.

The recovery will be the end point of a network of 45 centers where garbage will be collected and shipped to the recovery plants by truck, barge or rail.

By 1985, state officials predict, the plants will recover annually 60 per cent of its throw-aways. The state now only recycles about 5 per cent of its waste products, officials estimate.

In Connecticut and the rest of the East Coast, McCarthy says, there is very little space for burying garbage, or even the ash from incinerated waste. Residential land is expensive; other land may not be environmentally safe.

The area communities once considered a sophisticated incinerator to reduce the amount of trash and make a safe land fill. But McCarthy said it still didn't offer a solution to the often politically volatile landfill question.

More than 3.3 million tons of garbage — just over a ton per each state resident — went to Connecticut dumps and incinerators in 1972. It is predicted the amount will double in 20 years.

State environment officials say only one incinerator in Connecticut meets federal air pollution standards and 14 of the 144 landfills are considered environmentally sound.

To upgrade the existing disposal systems and build new ones along conventional lines to handle added volume would cost at least $342 million, the state estimates.

The Connecticut Resource Recovery Authority and the local towns have contracted with Garrett Research Associates of Livermore, Calif., to build and run the first plant and find markets for the recovered materials.

The plant will sit in an industrial section of this factory city, chosen for its easy access by surface and water transportation and its central position to the six to eight towns that will use it.

Trash will be brought to the facility by 60 trailer trucks per day from five transfer stations, 4 to 10 miles away.

All refuse will be poured into a 20,000-square-foot sunken storage area where it will await feeding through two automobile shredders.

Heavy-duty magnets then will extract ferrous metals from the heap. From there the refuse will move on to classifier towers where blowers and vacuums separate the lighter portion from the heavier.

The light portion will be sent through dryers in a final process to prepare a confetti-like material suitable as a supplement to oil in boilers at nearby electric utility plants.

Depending on the petroleum prices, the confetti will bring $12 to $15 per ton, McCarthy said.

The heavier fraction will pass through an amino acid-water emulsion where glass will be separated. The process, used for years in the mining industry, coats particles of glass with a chemical that causes them to float to the surface in a froth that will be skimmed, dried and shipped to a north-eastern Connecticut bottle manufacturer. The glass will make a low-grade, light green bottle. A $19 per ton price has been promised in a letter of intent from the company, McCarthy said.

Aluminum is pulled from the remaining refuse through the use of an electromagnetic force field that causes chips of the metal to jump off a conveyor belt into bins.

McCarthy said the aluminum will bring $450 to $510 per ton and the ferrous metals removed earlier will draw $94 per ton.

Users of the plant will pay $4 to $12 per ton to deposit their trash, but the authority hopes to refund some of the cost through sale of the recycled metal and glass.

From the reclamation plant, the remaining refuse, about eight-day truck loads, will be carted to a 65-acre landfill at a gravel excavation.

San Antonio Narcotics Officers Seize Two Pounds Of Turkish 'White' Heroin

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — heroin from nearby Mexico in recent years. "It was a real good lick," So said one of four city narcotics officers who participated Wednesday in the seizure of two pounds of Turkish "white" heroin which they said was delivered from the Detroit-Toledo area.

George Wilson, one of the officers, said the seizure evidences an alteration in underworld heroin merchandising in an area which has seen almost exclusively so-called "brown" wholesale one, with the value of the heroin to the wholesale dealer about $220,000.

"This guy would step on (cut) it two or three times more before he puts it on the street," said Wilson.

Wilson estimated the heroin would be worth about $500,000 to $600,000 if it were adulterated and put in street-size half-gram doses for the addict.

He said the seizure would put a substantial dent in the supply to San Antonio's known 15,000 to 20,000 addicts.

According to authorities, the organization of slain state prison rebel Fred Gomez Carrasco which dominated drug activity here in the past two years dealt in Mexican or "brown" heroin.

The Turkish heroin is an element with which authorities have not had to deal on a wide scale since it became scarce here several years ago with the downturn in Turkish activity and the availability of smuggled heroin from Mexico.

The two-pound Turkish heroin seizure is the largest single seizure here since federal agents found about 3 1/2 pounds of brown heroin last spring in a major thrust against the Carrasco organization.

The two-pound seizure is the biggest ever made by the city narcotics bureau acting without assistance from federal authorities. The biggest single seizure in the city's history was several years ago, amounting to more than 90 pounds.

Cotton Flat 4-H Plans Fund Raisers

Raising funds to build a new 4-H camp at Lake Brownwood was discussed at the recent monthly meeting of Cotton Flat 4-H in the M-Square area.

Mrs. D. R. Germany, home demonstration agent, and Charles Green, county agent suggested holding a garage sale and fair to raise money for the project.

Members also discussed club activities for 4-H week.

THIS YEAR, THERE'LL BE LESS SPACE TO STOP IN. YOU NEED A VOLVO MORE THAN EVER.

With more cars than ever on the road, there'll be less road than ever to stop in. So you should do your stopping with four-wheel, power-assisted disc brakes. And a pressure relief valve for the rear brakes to help prevent swerving. And in case of braking failure, you'll want a dual braking system with each circuit about 80% effective. You get them all in a Volvo. Don't stop with anything less.

SMU's Hardie Top-Seeded In MTC Play

Southern Methodist's Tim Vann won the Midland Tennis Club Invitational a year ago by defeating teammate David Bohrnstedt in the final.

You might think that would make the SMU sophomore the No. 1 seed in the men's singles... but David will take a second billing to George Hardie, another SMU team-mate. Seeded third is Kiyo Tanabe of Oral Roberts U. of Tulsa while Bob McKeena of Lubbock is No. 4. Skill, with more than 100 racquets competing, readings may be less important than stamina.

SPORTS

UT, Aggies, Baylor Get Seer's Nod

By HERSHEL NISSENSEN NEW YORK (AP) -- Any resemblance between this week's Top Ten and last week's is purely coincidental. So is any resemblance between this week's forecasting average and last week's.

Texas was the only team to beat Tech last year and this one will be no hand. Arizona State 23, Missouri 21; Missouri's Al Osovie played at Arizona State and used to be an assistant coach there and he's still helping the Sun Devils...

Sports In Spurts From Here 'n' There

An idea of how Texas A&M dominated LSU more completely than the 21-14 score indicates: Tiger safety Mike Williams had to make 11 sob tackles.

Battle Scene

By Ted Battles Jim Scott, who was a familiar figure on local basketball courts not too many years ago, called up to say hello while visiting in West Texas recently.

After attracting 12,787 fans for its Cotton Bowl game last week against Virginia Tech, and faced Saturday with playing before 85,000 at Columbus against Ohio State, SMU Athletic Director Dick Davis sees the handwriting on the wall.

We like the description of a 62-yard field goal attempt by Eastwood's Mark Bohanon in last week's game with Ysleta in the last minute of play. If good, it would have given the Troopers a 9-8 win.

Mike Belov, District 5-4A rushing leader at Odessa Permian last year, is showing he can do it in college, too. The UTEP freshman gained 168 yards in the Miners' 34-7 win over Utah last Saturday, his second 100-plus effort.

Bill Johnson of the Midland Cubs front office returned home (Catalina Island) after the recent Texas League season; but isn't sure he's ever going to go back after having his wallet (bulging with $120) picked in the Los Angeles airport.

team at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., but the way he's eating, he'll probably have to try out for the varsity soon.

Rival coaches are glad to see Dunny Goode is human. After going undefeated in New Mexico high school circles for 16 games, the former Midlander finally lost one last week when his Clovis team was knocked off.

Jack Steele showed Bob Reese, Jim Sexton and Bo Embrey how recently when he aced the 191-yard eighth hole at Midland Country Club.

And 1974 turned out to be a vintage year for baseball with Hank Aaron breaking Babe Ruth's career home run record, Lou Brock wiping out Maury Wills' single-season stolen base record and Al Kaline achieving the rarely reached 3,000-hit plateau.

Miller Eyes Record Aims For Nicklaus' Money Record

By BOB GREEN NAPA, Calif. (AP) -- Johnny Miller has a mission. "I want to break the record this week and get it over with," Miller said before setting out today in the first round of the $100,000 Kaiser International Open Golf Tournament.

Miller is only $4,159 short of that mark. He could break it by finishing as low as eighth in this 72-hole event on his home course. And if he misses here, he has two more chances, in next week's Sahara Invitational in Las Vegas and in the national team championship in Florida in November.

"I don't want to have it hanging over my head," he said. "I want to get it this week and get it over with. I know what I have to do.

Foreman Okays Oct. 30 Gash On Brow Barely Visible At Press Confab

By JOHN VINOGRU KIDSHASA, Zaire (AP) -- George Foreman has stopped dodging and weaving and says he'll definitely be dodging and weaving against Muhammad Ali on Oct. 30.

The heavyweight champion, whose break sporting-career eye cut postponed the $30-million title fight -- originally set for Sept. 25 -- displayed Wednesday what appeared to be a healing injury in one of two sessions with newsmen.

"I'm confident the healing is under way," he said. "If everything continues going on this way, I feel I'll be able to defend my title. The eye seems to have gotten right back to where it was -- almost."

Foreman faced the newsmen again and said flatly: "I'm fighting Ali on Oct. 30... I'm contracted to the promoters to fight on their date. I owe all the exhibitors a firm date." The statement followed a lengthy meeting between Foreman and promoter Don King, who apparently told the champion that closed-circuit television preparations and publicity could not be affected as long as he dodged setting a definite date.

Another Disaster

Area grid teams used the excuse of mud and rain to upset the prediction cart last week. In fact, they destroyed it. This corner played the Picking Game to the sorry tune of 21-11 for an overall season mark of 70-24 for a lowly .713 percentage.

Rotan, Brownfield, Abilene Cooper, Abilene High, Hobbs, N.M., Marfa and Grandfalls pulled off what I consider upsets last week while the rest I missed on pure hunches. For instance, Ozona fell 8-7 to Ballinger in a toss up contest while O'Donnell, Shallowater and Balmorhea were beaten in sound fashion as this corner just missed the boat.

Things appear to be a little easier this week, however, so the average should improve, but there are some key contests that will keep the guess work interesting.

Stanton meets Roscoe in a toss-up encounter while Crane travels to Denver City in another evenly matched contest. Lake View is at Ozona, which should be a thriller, and there are some other games that may be worth taking a look at, so let's get with it for week No. 4.

Tors, Crane, Buffs Get Nod

LAMESA 20, REAGAN COUNTY 0 — The Owls homecoming ends on a sour note when the high winds from the north invade Big Lake. I'll be there Friday night.

CRANE 10, DENVER CITY 7 — The Golden Cranes of Coach Joe Boyd will end a two-game losing streak against their first AAA competition.

STANTON 14, ROSCOE 13 — Homecoming will be just enough incentive for Coach Bill Young's Buffs to pull out a victory. Ted Battles will cover this one.

COAHOMA 21, McCAMEY 7 — The Bulldogs are ranked No. 1 and will remain there after this week. Bob Dillon will be there Friday.

SNYDER 34, ANDREWS 14 — Homecoming will not keep the Mustangs from losing four straight.

OZONA 20, LAKE VIEW 18 — Look for an upset here.

Hockey Exhibition Slated

HOUSTON (AP) — The National Hockey League St. Louis Blues meet the World Hockey Association Houston Aeros in the first exhibition game ever between teams of the rival leagues and Aeros Coach Bill Dineen says he expects a physical game.

"St. Louis seems to have patterned its team after Philadelphia," said Dineen, who guided the Aeros to the WHA's World Cup title last year. "Philadelphia was successful but you can't forget they have some talent." Philadelphia won the NHL's Stanley Cup last year with fast-starting, physical players who broke most penalty records in Stanley Cup play.

By TERRY WILLIAMSON This is that week in area grid circles known as homecoming weekend. You know — that's where school exes come to town trying to remember names of old buddies and football teams get so fired up they have a hard time finding the field.

There are three homecoming affairs on tap this week with two of the host teams rated as massive underdogs and the other thrown into the undecided list. In other words, it could turn out to be a dismal weekend for homecoming exes and football teams alike unless the annual bonfires generate enough heat to inspire upsets.

The Reagan County Owls of Big Lake, the defending District 7-AA champs, host the AAA Lamesa Golden Tornadoes in one of the homecoming affairs, and the Owls appear to have bitten off more than they can chew in this one.

Coach Wilburn George's Owls own a 1-2 record to date in what is considered a rebuilding year and the Tors will bring a 2-1 mark into the game although the Tors have been much less impressive than a year ago when the Wind Machine posted a 12-1 season mark.

George's Owls will send sophomore quarterback Jennings Teel in to direct the Reagan County attack and have been improving with each contest. If Teel can crank up the passing attack to his fine senior receiver Monte Barnes, the Owls figure to make a run of it. They also catch Lamesa looking past this week to the District 3-AAA opener in Snyder Oct. 4, but all-state candidate Melvin Robinson hopes to get untracked for the first time this season against the Owl defense.

Coach Tom Koger, the new headmaster at Lamesa, has been worried about the consistency of his offense and has openly said that his team has to be looking toward the Snyder game. After all, the Tor season rides on how they do against the Tigers.

Snyder, on the other hand, owns a 2-1 record, losing only 19-12 to Midland Lee, and the Tigers invade Andrews Friday with a No. 8 ranking among AAA squads. This could be another disastrous homecoming affair for the Mustangs, who own a hapless 0-3 mark under the direction of Coach Tommy Watkins.

Quarterback Jamie Mosley and running back Steve Duffy hold the key to the sputtering Mustang offense while the Andrews defense must find a way to stop all-starter Welton Cobb. That may be a task that is too much for the Mustangs.

The Stanton Buffaloes, losing their ninth place ranking among Class A teams after a narrow 7-6 loss to Rotan last week, try to rebound Friday in the other homecoming match. Coach Bill Young's Buffs are rated as a toss-up with Roscoe in this one, but Stanton is definitely hungry to get back on the winning track.

The Buffs received a severe blow two weeks ago when they lost quarterback Bill Howard to a broken ankle, but Coach Young insists that the injury had nothing to do with last week's loss. The Buffs moved the ball well enough to win the game, but a miriad of fumbles, bad snaps and other mistakes cost the game. Quarterback Gordon Eiland, Howard's replacement, played well last week and Vernon Brown could be one of the top runners in Class A ball.

Efforts from these two hold the key against Roscoe Friday.

The McCamey Badgers of Coach Joe Neill meet AA power Coahoma in another key area battle. It will be the third week in a row that the Badgers have faced a ranked squad, and Friday's engagement is against the state's top ranked AA squad. The Badgers lost the other two battles to Class A's fourth-ranked Rankin and AA's eighth-ranked Alpine.

Coach Joe Boyd's Crane Golden Cranes are eager for Friday night's showdown with Denver City. The Cranes have played three straight AAA squads, and this will be the first time to face a team in their own classification. The Birds defeated Fort Stockton before losing to Kermit and Monahans. Denver City, however, also has losses to AAA Lamesa and Seminole, and figure to be a strong opponent for the Cranes.

Rankin, who jumped from unranked to fourth-ranked in three weeks with lopsided wins, will be safe this week since the Devils draw an open date. The Devils have scored 88 points in three outings, second only to Seminole in area circles.

Reds' Only Hope Now Is For Unlikely Miracle

CINCINNATI (AP) — "Expect a miracle," urged the tattered clipping on the office bulletin board of Cincinnati Reds Manager George "Sparky" Anderson.

But the Reds are running out of time and miracles. Wednesday night's 4-1 victory over the Houston Astros renewed faint hopes.

The message is clear — win the remaining six games of the season and hope for an eleventh hour plunge by the Los Angeles Dodgers who lead by four games. The Dodgers lost to Atlanta 5-2 to keep the magic number for clinching the pennant at three.

The Reds kept their fading chances aglow behind a strong pitching performance by Clay Kirby and the torrid bat of young Ken Griffey.

Kirby blanked the Astros for seven innings before weakening in the eighth. The Reds staked him to a 3-0 lead after two innings, enabling the right-hander to win his 11th game against nine losses. It was only his fifth triumph in 15 career decisions against the Astros.

It maintained the Reds mastery over Houston. Cincinnati has won 13 of the 17 meetings. Jack Billingham, 19-10, attempts to become the National League's first 20-game winner of the season when he squares off against J.R. Richard, 2-1, tonight.

Griffey, the streak-hitting speedster who was a crucial contributor in Cincinnati's pennant push last fall, rapped out two hits, including a triple.

Shipped to the minors when his average dipped below .200 last spring, Griffey has returned with vengeance. Since he's been elevated in July he is hitting .320.

FROM TEMPE TO MINNEAPOLIS—Frogs Go From Hot To Cold

By BRENT KALLESTAD MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota football coach Cal

Stoll felt his Gopher team had reached the crossroads heading into the 1974 season.

After Minnesota's first two games, Stoll still doesn't know what direction the Gophers will take as he prepares for Saturday's visit by Texas Christian University of the Southwest Conference.

"We're further along on offense than I thought we'd be," Stoll said. "I thought perhaps our defense would have to carry us early in the season, but that hasn't been the case."

Minnesota's offense has been nearly all Rick Upchurch and Tony Dungy in an open 34-19 loss to Ohio State and last Saturday's 42-30 victory over North Dakota.

"We're still a young team and don't have much depth," Stoll said. "We have a more definite challenge defensively against Texas Christian . . . we'll have to be concerned with stopping their throwing game."

Texas Christian, also 1-1, has relied heavily on the passing of junior quarterback Lee Cook and the Horned Frogs all-purpose fullback Mike Luttrell.

"They are a Texas football team," Stoll said. "And they play good football down here." TCU, which was picked for seventh place in the SWC in a preseason poll, is regrouping its football fortunes under Jim Shofner.

"Basically our offense is the same as the San Francisco Forty Niners," said TCU Sports Information Director Jim Garner. "We throw to our backs a lot."

Minnesota opponents "have completed 63 per cent of their pass attempt against a seasoned Gopher secondary, which is sure to be tested by TCU."

JUDGE UPHOLDS NCAA RULING—

No Court Help For SMU This Time

By RICK SCOTT
DALLAS (AP) — Mike Smith, starting offensive center for the Southern Methodist University football team, won't be making the trip to Columbus for Saturday's game against top-ranked Ohio State.

The NCAA, maintained, and Judge Hughes agreed, that Smith was adequately represented by SMU officials who appealed the NCAA decision.

SMU's opening game this fall won a temporary injunction that allowed him to play in the Mustangs' first two games. That order expired with Wednesday's court hearing.

Smith acknowledged at the hearing that he accepted a rent-free apartment, in addition to the $110 per month housing allowance which the NCAA permits for married student athletes.

Smith's lawyer, Judson Francis, had no immediate comment on possible further legal action. He had asked Judge Hughes to order a full hearing at SMU for Smith on the charges.

NEW YORK (AP) — The World Football League bills itself as "the new game in town."

the founder and commissioner of the WFL.

But which town? The WFL, whose 12 teams began play 12 weeks ago and soon are heading into a mini-seasonal involving inflated attendance figures, is suddenly floundering, much to the dismay of league-builder Gary Davidson.

Davidson also created the American Basketball Association and World Hockey Association, whose franchises have likewise undergone numerous shifts and financial upheavals.

The league is shuffling franchises and owners around like some teams shuttle players in and out of the game.

As it stands right now, without any additional surprises, the league can handle the situation where we are right now.

In quick succession within the last week: —The Houston Texans, taken over by the league for a while, were moved to Louisiana and renamed the Shreveport Steamers.

"I didn't expect anyone to operate in the black," he said. "It would be very unusual for anyone to operate at a profit this first season, or for the first three years."

—The WFL took over the Jacksonville Sharks and gave the players the first paycheck they've seen in five weeks.

—Detroit, financed by the league for the past two weeks, said in its bankruptcy petition it had liabilities of $2.5 million, $1 million of which reportedly is owed to the league itself.

—The New York Stars made the move to North Carolina instead, taking up residence in Charlotte with a new nickname to be selected soon.

Davidson personally visited the Jacksonville players Wednesday morning, before their night game against Southern California in Anaheim, passed out game checks and admitted the players are still due pay for previous games.

"I expected there would be switches, but I didn't expect them to happen all at once," said the 39-year-old Davidson.

At the end of the 1969 season, all four Texas starters were ranked among the top 400 Southwest Conference rushers.

—The league is negotiating with a community group to buy the Sharks and keep it in Jacksonville, "which we think is a good football market," Davidson said.

Boston investor Upton Bell, head of the syndicate that bought the Stars, said Wednesday the Stars are in Charlotte to stay — but both he and Davidson stressed that the WFL wasn't abandoning New York permanently.

"We plan to come back to New York for the 1976 season when Yankee Stadium renovation will be completed," said Davidson.

Soviet Missile Destroyer Explodes, Sinks On Cruise

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — A Soviet guided-missile destroyer exploded and sank in the Black Sea on a trial cruise, Istanbul port officials said today. The semi-official Anatolia news agency said there were no survivors, but gave no indication of how many men were aboard.

The authoritative British publication Jane's Fighting Ships shows that a comparable American destroyer carries about 350 men.

Turkish naval sources said the ship exploded Wednesday but Anatolia said in a later report that the disaster occurred two weeks ago.

Turkish port sources said the destroyer belonged to the Kashin class and was attached to the Soviet Black Sea fleet. The Guinness Book of World Records says the worst peacetime disaster involving a military ship occurred in 1963 off Cape Cod, Mass., when the U.S. nuclear-powered submarine Thresher was lost with all 129 aboard.

The worst wartime naval disaster occurred in 1945 off Denmark when a Soviet submarine sank the German ship Wilhelm Gustloff, killing 7,700 men. Jane's says a Kashin class destroyer is 470 feet long, 32 feet wide, weighs 5,200 tons fully loaded, has four missile launchers, four antiaircraft guns, four rocket launchers and five torpedo tubes.

Kashin class destroyers were the world's first warships to rely entirely on gas turbine propulsion for quick acceleration, but they have been rapidly outdated by later classes. Jane's said 19 of the ships were built in Leningrad and Nikolaev.

U.S. Navy officials in London said they had no information about the explosion of the Soviet destroyer. The NATO southern naval command in Italy said it too had no information on the report.

A spokesman for the U.S. 6th Fleet in Naples said his headquarters also had no information, but pointed out that such reports normally would go to the U.S. Navy offices in Turkey.

Heroin Defendant Ogin Assessed Life Prison Term

Steve Ogin Jr., 1607 Walnut St., was given a life sentence in 142nd District Court Wednesday after being found guilty of the unlawful delivery of heroin. He had previous felony convictions.

Ogin was to wait 10 days before formal sentencing.

The decision on the life term by the jury took only 23 minutes. Jurors returned it at 2:18 p.m. Wednesday. The same jury had taken less than an hour to find Ogin guilty. That verdict was read by Judge Joe Mays at 4:40 p.m. Tuesday.

Ogin was charged with the delivery of heroin to Gerald Howard, a state undercover agent from Lubbock.

Previously Ogin had been convicted of possession of heroin and of burglary with the intent to commit theft. Both charges were in Midland County.

These convictions were considered during the punishment phase of the jury's deliberations.

Ford Said Considering Tax Slashes, Fuel Stamps For Low-Income Persons

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMIDT
WASHINGTON (AP) — Tax cuts for low-income persons reportedly are being considered by President Ford, while a fuel stamp program has been suggested to help them keep warm this winter.

Economic adviser L. William Seidman said tax reductions aimed at easing the burden on people in low-income brackets definitely are among the options to be considered in dealing with the economy.

Among the possibilities, Seidman said, would be a reduced rate of Social Security withholding for low-income persons. Meanwhile, Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp proposed a fuel stamp program to help low-income families pay their home heating bills.

And there were reports that Ford plans to name Treasury Secretary William E. Simon as his No. 1 economic spokesman in the future. The reports said the Simon announcement may come in Ford's speech at the economic summit conference to be held in Washington Friday and Saturday.

Shapp said witnesses before the Senate Committee on Aging have testified that many elderly Americans may have to choose between food and heat for their homes because of escalating costs of home heating.

John C. Sawhill, head of the Federal Energy Administration, said his agency is studying the possibility of an energy stamp program but declined to endorse any form of government subsidy to the fixed incomes of the elderly.

Schapp also recommended that federal payments to the poor and elderly be increased under existing Social Security and Supplemental Security Income programs.

Economic policies will be considered at Ford's economic summit meeting this weekend in Washington and White House aides said changes in the tax laws are being considered as part of the comprehensive Ford program on the economy.

There were indications that tax proposals being considered by the administration would include tax cuts for low-income and possibly middle-income persons, with compensating tax hikes elsewhere.

Funeral Services Held For Chambers

Funeral rites for Ollie Chambers, 76, 701 S. Carver St., were held at 3 p.m. Wednesday in the New Jerusalem Baptist Church here.

Chambers died at 10:15 p.m. Saturday in his home.

He was born Nov. 6, 1897, at Madison and married Susie Watson of Franklin in 1924. He had been a resident of Midland 22 years and was a farmer. He moved to Midland from Franklin.

Survivors include the widow, six daughters, Mrs. Naomi Coleman, Mrs. Arlene Calvin and Mrs. Eve Ellis, all of Midland, and Mrs. Vernal Audrey of Graham, Mrs. Margaret Jones of Ogden, Utah, and Mrs. Alva Mae Ward of Dallas; eight sons, Roland Chambers, Glen Chambers and Alonzo Chambers, all of Midland; and Marvin Gray, James Edward Chambers and Ollie Chambers Jr., all of Dallas, and Dennis Jackson and Ivy Chambers, both of Fort Worth; a sister, Mrs. Josie Bowers of Houston; 61 grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren.

Phillips Engineer Denies Drafting Clause Permitting Windfall Profits

WASHINGTON (AP) — An oil company engineer who served as a temporary adviser to the Federal Energy Office has denied drafting a regulation that gave the industry windfall profits.

The engineer, Robert C. Bowen of the Phillips Petroleum Corp., testified Wednesday as a House subcommittee held hearings on operations of the Federal Energy Office, now the Federal Energy Administration.

The hearings were scheduled to resume today with the testimony of John Sawhill, head of the FEA. He has told other congressional committees that Bowen was hired for technical work and never became involved in policy matters that might affect the oil industry.

Witnesses have testified at the current round of hearings that Bowen was instrumental in writing into allocation regulations a provision allowing major oil companies double compensation for crude oil price increases.

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of a subcommittee that oversees regulatory agencies, says Bowen's employer reaped about $2 million in double recovery benefits before the regulation was abruptly rescinded last June.

Bowen already has been investigated by the General Accounting Office and the FBI for a possible conflict of interest because federal law prohibits a government employe from advising on matters in which he has a financial interest.

The Justice Department ruled last August that it would not prosecute the case because any violation by Bowen was "insubstantial and technical."

In his testimony, Bowen said he did not know the origin of the disputed regulation but that drafts of it had been in general circulation in the agency for two or three months before it became effective.

The engineer said he did not know that it would have the effect of compensating an oil company twice for the same cost increase.

An earlier witness, however, produced for the subcommittee a sheet of paper on which he said that Bowen had shown how the regulation would work. Bowen said he recognized the handwriting as his but could not say what the figures meant.

Odessan Honored By Chamber Group

PAMPA — Gene Garrison, president of the Odessa Chamber of Commerce has been selected Chamber Manager of the Year by delegates attending the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Executives Association of West Texas (OCEAWT).

Garrison, who served as OCEAWT president in 1972-73, was cited for his work with the organization.

The delegates selected Odessa as the site of the 1975 annual convention.

Military Red Tape Slows Mercy Flight

HOUSTON (AP) — A mercy flight carrying 18,000 pounds of food, clothing and medicine for hurricane-torn Honduras still was on the ground at Ellington Air Force Base early today, tangled in Defense Department red tape.

Two truckloads of materials left Tuesday en route to New Orleans for shipment from there, but fireman said persons who doubted the trucks could not make a second trip.

The C130 transport plane was loaded with the supplies and preparing to take off under the assumption that final authorization from higher command was forthcoming, said Capt. Charles Dougherty.

"We just didn't have the authority to begin with," he said. "They went ahead with the idea that it (authorization) would be approved. But it never came."

The transport plane was ready for takeoff at 1 p.m. Wednesday as officers of the 704 Tactical Air Squadron vainly sought permission to fly.

Relief supplies are being collected here by the city fire department. Included in the supplies are 500 cases of baby food. Dougherty said some of the supplies was perishable.

Tons of food, clothing and other supplies have been donated here but firemen have had difficulty finding ways to ship the supplies to Honduras, where there have been reports of persons fighting over food dropped from helicopters.

Mrs. Langham, 91, Dies; Rites Friday

ACKERLY — Mrs. Carrie Dell Langham, 91, a resident of the Ackery area in Martin County over 50 years, died about 5 a.m. Wednesday in a Lamesa hospital.

Services will be at 3 p.m. Friday in the First Baptist Church here with interment in Ackery Cemetery. Officiating will be the Rev. Ross Payne of Cotton Flat Baptist Church of Midland, the Rev. Jim Moseley of the First Baptist Church of O'Donnell and the Rev. Don Long of the Ackery Baptist Church.

Mrs. Langham and her late husband farmed in the Ackery area prior to his death in 1953.

Survivors include four daughters, Mrs. Willie Poe and Mrs. Marvis Webb, both of Midland, Mrs. Laveda Nolen of Lamesa and Mrs. Louise Suthen of San Angelo; a son, Kenneth Carl Langham of Ackery; a brother, Almon Dummam of Big Bear City, Calif.; 10 grandchildren and 28 great-grandchildren.

Jack Garrett Dies; Services Saturday

William H. "Jack" Garrett, 68, died in a hospital at Big Spring at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday after an illness.

Funeral rites will be conducted at 2:30 p.m. Saturday in the Ideal Baptist Church, with the Rev. I. M. Woodard, pastor, officiating. Interment will be in Fairview Cemetery under direction of the Jackson Funeral Home.

Garrett was born Feb. 20, 1906, at Bonham, where he married the former Darrell Cooks. He had lived in Midland 14 years and was a veteran of World War II.

Survivors include two sisters, Choney Garrett of Quanah and Mrs. Marie Crumpton, of Midland, and a brother, Wilson Garrett of Bonham.

Palbearers will be A. L. Brown, Walker Cadd, Frank Blylock, B. W. Taylor, Roy Harris and Gary Gonzalez.

Arizona Women Injured In Wreck

ODESSA — Two Tucson, Ariz., women were in Odessa's Medical Center Hospital this morning following a car-car collision 5.5 miles west of Midland on Interstate 20 at 11:57 a.m. Wednesday.

Injured were Elizabeth Ann Briscoe, 37, and Anne Elizabeth McCutchen, also 37. Both suffered multiple contusions and lacerations and were reported in satisfactory condition this morning.

The vehicle, driven by Miss Briscoe, was eastbound when it ran off of the roadway and went out of control, according to investigating Department of Public Safety officers Ronnie Watson and Jim Moorman, both of Midland.

The patrolmen said the car overturned 3 1/2 times, coming to rest in the westbound traffic lane. Miss Briscoe was thrown from the vehicle.

Services Today For Mrs. Miller

Services for Mrs. Hazel T. Miller, 60, were to be at 4 p.m. today in the Newbie W. Ellis Chapel. Additional rites and interment will be at 10 a.m. Saturday in Woodridge, Conn.

Mrs. Miller died Sunday at her residence here.

She moved to Midland in 1966 from Woodridge. She was a member of St. Luke's United Methodist Church.

Survivors include a son, Raymond D. Miller of Biloxi, Miss.; two daughters, Mrs. Eddie Mae of Midland and Mrs. Charles E. Butt of Colorado Springs, and 10 grandchildren.

Kronholm Abductor Assessed 20 Years

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — James W. Johnson, 35, convicted of extorting $200,000 in the kidnaping of a bank president's wife, has been assessed a 20-year prison term.

U.S. District Court Judge Edward Devitt sentenced Johnson on Wednesday.

Johnson, a former building contractor from Burnsville, Minn., was convicted on Aug. 7 of extorting the ransom from the husband of Eunice Kronholm, 47. All but $80 of the ransom was recovered.

ANDREWS — Gonzalo Vasquez Jr., 9 months old, died Tuesday in an Andrews hospital. Mass was to be said at 4:30 p.m. today at Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Church here, with the Rev. Peter Vergunwen, pastor, officiating. Interment will be in Andrews Babyland Cemetery under direction of Singleton Funeral Home.

The infant moved with his family to Andrews six months ago from Lovington, N.M., where he was born.

Survivors include the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gonzalo Vasquez Sr.; a brother, Julio Vasquez of the home, and the paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jesus Vasquez of Mexico.

Bodies On Shrimp Boat Identified, Declared Victims Of Asphyxiation

PORT ARANSAS, Tex. (AP) — A Freeport couple and a man from Lake Jackson have been identified as the three persons whose bodies were found in a Gulf shrimp boat Tuesday.

The dead were identified as James Goodson, 36, and his 23-year-old wife, both of Freeport, and Richard Gonzales Obando of Lake Jackson.

Nueces County Medical Examiner Joseph Rupp said after examining the bodies Wednesday that there was no evidence of violence. He said the victims apparently were overcome by a toxic gas, possibly carbon monoxide.

The shrimp vessel Ethel O was found drifting about eight miles off the coast Tuesday with the three bodies in the refrigerator hold.

Early reports from the Coast Guard said that one man had been decapitated and two others severely beaten.

But Port Aransas Constable Ben Cash and Rupp both reported that the bodies were intact.

Cash speculated that the three may have been dead for three days because shrimp in the boat had rotted. Penrod Harris, agent in charge of the Corpus Christi FBI office, said the victims may have been dead as long as a week.

Authorities said the boat left Freeport Sept. 13.

Rotarians Hear Talk By Quinlan

A "business service" classification talk delivered by Warren Quinlan highlighted the meeting of the Midland Downtown Rotary Club today noon in the American Legion Hall.

Quinlan, a member of the club, heads Warren Quinlan and Associates. He has conducted Dale Carnegie courses in cities throughout this section of West Texas for a number of years and is well-known throughout the region.

He described the operation of his firm, the services performed and the benefits to be derived.

John Young, president of the club, announced that the annual steak barbecue will be held Saturday night, Oct. 5, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Tyler, 2207 Seaboard St. The event originally was to have been held tonight, but was postponed because of the recent heavy rains.

The club's regular noon meeting also will be held next Thursday, Young said.

Burger Released From Hospital

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger was released from Bethesda Naval Hospital today after five days of treatment for injuries received in a bicycle accident.

A Supreme Court spokesman said Burger, 67, would recuperate at "a resort area where therapy facilities will be available." He declined to say where.

The chief justice plans to return to Washington in time to preside over the opening of the court term on Oct. 7, the spokesman said.

Rally Try's Failure Leaves Stock Mart Weak, Listless

By GREG CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Disappointment over the failure of a rally attempt Wednesday left the stock market weak and listless today.

The noon Dow Jones average of 256.34 was down 1.74 to 254.60, and losses outweighed gains by about 7 to 2 in light trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts noted considerable pessimism on Wall Street over the market's prospects in the wake of its failure to sustain a brief rally Wednesday that greeted a cut in the prime lending rate by a series of banks, including two of the largest in the country.

Pan American World Airways was the NYSE volume leader, down $\frac{1}{2}$ at 26 $\frac{1}{2}$.

| Company | Dividend | Payable |
|----------------|----------|---------|
| General Motors | $.60 | Oct 1 |
| IBM | $.50 | Oct 1 |
| IBM | $.50 | Oct 1 |

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index was down $\frac{1}{8}$ at 65.27.

Brokers pointed out that the slow pace of activity was partly due to observation of the Jewish holiday Yom Kippur.

Deception, subject of a $25-million tender offer by Northern Electric Co., rose 2% to 124.

Exxon was off 1% at 39 $\frac{1}{2}$ as a broad decline in oil issues. Early last year the shares of the nation's largest oil company traded as high as 55.

The Big Board's composite index of some 1,500 common stocks was off 25 to 25.08.

Vintage Enterprises was the Amex volume leader, down $\frac{1}{2}$ at 2.

Permian Basin OIL & GAS LOG

11,431 feet. No other information was immediately available.

Location is 1,500 feet from south and east lines of section 34 (Aloka) gas pool.

Two Eddy Sectors Gain Extensions

Field extensions have been completed in Eddy County, N.M., J. M. Huber Corp., operating from Midland, completed No. 1 Allied-State Communitarian, a 3 1/2-mile south extension to Morrow pay in the Burton Flat field.

Official, calculated, absolute open flow was for 1.540 million cubic feet of dry gas per day, producing through perforations at 11,420-11,450 feet, which had been acidized with 4,500 gallons.

Location is 600 feet from north and 1,500 feet from west lines of section 14-21a-27c, five miles northwest of Carlsbad.

Morrow Extender Finished In Eddy

Morrow production was extended $\frac{3}{4}$ mile southeast in the Russell field of Eddy County, N.M., with completion of Cities Service Oil Co. No. 1-Z Government, assured second Wolfcamp well and 1 1/2-mile south extension to that pay for the field, 12 miles northeast of Carlsbad.

Calculated, absolute open flow was for 9.711 million cubic feet of gas per day, producing through perforations at 11,313-11,320 feet.

Drilled to 11,485 feet, it has 5 1/2-inch casing set on bottom and is plugged back to 11,440 feet.

Four-point tests on the Wolfcamp zone, through perforations at 9,219-9,303 feet were as follows: in 45 minutes, on a 4-1/4-inch choke, 420,000 cubic feet per day; for one hour, on an 8-1/4-inch choke, 500,000 cubic feet; for one hour on a 10-1/4-inch choke, 720,000 cubic feet; and for one hour on a 12-1/4-inch choke, 780,000 cubic feet per day.

Operator was preparing to calculate absolute, open flow from that zone.

Runnels Jennings Oil Strike Final

J. D. Tompkins Operating Account, Inc., Abilene, has completed No. 1-143 W. A. Ashton as a Jennings lime discovery in Runnels County, eight miles northwest of Ballinger.

It finished to pump 78 barrels of 36-gravity oil and 80 barrels of water daily, with gas-oil ratio of 250-1. Production was through perforations at 3,518-3,530 feet, which had been acidized with 10,000 gallons and 10,000 pounds.

The following tops were picked under ground elevation of 1,726 feet: Dog Bend lime, 3,538; Capps lime, 3,406 and Jennings lime, 3,000 feet.

Atoka Discovery Finals In Chaves

DEPCO, Inc., Odessa, has completed No. 1 Midwest-Federal as an Atoka gas discovery in Chaves County, N.M., 13 miles west of Caprock.

It gauged a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 2.20 million cubic feet of gas per day, through Atoka perforations at 9,277-9,305 feet, which had been fractured with 7,644 gallons and 11,406 pounds.

Drilled to 9,461 feet, it has 4 1/2-inch casing set on bottom.

Location is 600 feet from south and 1,900 feet from east lines of section 23-10a-20c.

Strike Indicated For Eddy Sector

Perry R. Bass, Midland, No. 41 Big Eddy, Eddy County wildcat, nine miles east of Carlsbad and 3 1/2 miles southeast of Bass No. 29 Big Eddy, recent Morrow gas discovery, has indicated production with the flowing of gas on a drillstem test in the Morrow.

Tool was open eight hours on the test taken from 11,280-11,431 feet. Through a 4 1/4-inch choke, it surfaced water blanket in 14 minutes, gas in 18 minutes, mud in 21 minutes, and condensate in 36 minutes. After 21 minutes, gas rate on a 4 1/4-inch choke was 4 million cubic feet daily, increasing to 4.6 million cubic feet per day at the end of the test, on a 16-1/4-inch choke.

The project is bottomed at 11,313 feet.

Outpost In Reeves Flows 4.5 Million

Gulf Oil Corp. No. 1-GU A T. Randolph, et al-State, one-mile north outpost to the football Chapman Deep (Fusselman) gas field of Reeves County, flowed an estimated 4.5 million cubic feet of gas per day for 2 1/2 hours.

Flow was through perforations at 15,587-15,665 feet. Operator was preparing to acidize and resume testing.

The test spots 1,200 feet from south and 1,900 feet from west lines of section 34, block 37, T-2, T&P survey, 3 1/2 miles southwest of Orla.

Completion Set For Howard Test

Tom D. Fowler was preparing to run production casing at No. 1-D Morgan, indicated 3/4-mile southwest stepout to Fusselman production in the Morgan Ranch, multizone field of Howard County, five miles southeast of Big Spring.

It indicated production with the recovery of 550 feet of 48.5-gravity oil and the 1,000-foot water blanket, which was heavily gas-cut, on a one-hour drillstem test from 5,995-7,742 feet. Gas, gauge not reported, surfaced in 45 minutes. Flowing pressure was 581-697 pounds; one-hour shut-in pressure was 4,041 pounds.

Test spots 540 feet from north and 1,900 feet from east lines of section 34, block 32, T-1-S, T&P survey.

The same operator's No. 1-E Morgan, also 5/8 mile southwest of production, was bottomed at 285 feet, preparing to run surface casing.

The test is 540 feet from north and 2,177 feet from west lines of section 34, block 32, T-1-S, T&P survey.

Bond Filming Blend Of Violence, Gentility

BONDED FORMULAT STILL WORKS
... Roger Moore, the latest 007

By DICK KLEINER
LONDON (NEA)—There will always be an England, bless it. They're shooting the next James Bond film, "The Man With the Golden Gun," at Pinewood Studios near here and I watched one of those typical Bondian brawls. Roger Moore is playing Bond again, and he is trapped in the dressing room of a belly dancer by the bad guys who try to beat him up.

The scene had been "choreographed" by the head stunt gaffer, Les Crawford, and Moore and the stuntmen went at it, full speed ahead. And then, after the brawl was over, one stuntman wiped his forehead and said to Moore, "Thank you very much."

During another take, one stuntman asked another to get him a cup of tea. As he was pounding his adversary's stomach, he looked at him and said, "Do you take sugar, luv?"

Perhaps that's the secret of the success of Bond films, the combination of semi-violence and typical British politeness. Whatever the reason, they keep rolling along. Co-producer Aubrey Broccoli told me there's no sign of any let-up in public enthusiasm for Bond movies and they plan to continue making them, one every 18 months.

Broccoli says the interest is worldwide, and he's had letters to make one in Russia.

"We've been invited to film there," he says, "by Russian film interests. But we won't do it unless they exhibit our films there and I doubt that will happen because we've never been too kind to Russia in our films."

This is Moore's second Bond film and he seems happy with the project. The rumor is that after he's done the four he's contracted to do he will be independently rich. It's worth a man's trouble, that goal.

He came out of the dressing room brawl scene hardly puffing. He keeps himself in good shape through a program of exercise.

"This kind of scene," he said, "is a lot easier than learning dialogue. Actually, I enjoy doing the fight scenes because I always win."

In between Bond films, he wants to give himself a change of pace — he's doing a drawing room comedy. There will be no brawls but there will be a lot of dialogue to memorize.

Moore says the Bond success he looked at. He was supposed to crush Moore with all his weight and he did. Poor Roger groaned under the tonnage and said, "Please! Remember, I have a wife."

You can get hurt making films. In this one, Christopher Lee, the British horror movie King, is Bond's nemesis, and he told me of his injuries.

Lee rolled up his trousers and showed me a nasty lump on his knee. It came, he said from his work in "The Three Musketeers."

"I tore the ligaments in my knee," he said. "I had five sword fights in the film and I got hurt in the first of the five. For the rest of the filming I had to hobble around with my knee strapped, doped up with pain killers."

Lee is again playing a heavy, as he did in "Musketeers," but he's grateful it isn't a horror heavy. He's done too many horror heavies and he'd rather not do any more.

I asked him what happened to the pilot he did with Sammy Davis Jr., in which he played the Devil and Sammy was the angel. Lee said it didn't sell, and he had heard that NBC was worried — "They were afraid the public might take it seriously, and figure Hell was such a nice place they'd try to get there."

As usual, there's a new leading lady for Bond in "The Man With the Golden Gun." She's Maud Adams, one of New York's (and tv's) top models. Swedish-born, she's a tall and fantastically beautiful girl.

I asked her if she had been a Bond fan, and she said with a smile, "Of course — everybody likes Bond and Donald Duck."

This is her fourth picture but her first big one. She says it's hard for her to get acting work because she is so well known as a model.

Many directors are anti-model, she says, "and I think justifiably so. Many models feel that because they know how to pose in front of a camera that automatically makes them actors. That's not so."

She says she knows her limitations as an actress, that she is still inexperienced — "But I'm beginning to feel more comfortable," she said.

The director of "The Man With the Golden Gun" is Guy Hamilton. He was wet-dressed — shirt, tie, jacket — in comparison to the usually sloppy American directors. Hamilton said I had just happened to catch him on a bad day.

They had to go back to work on the fight scene. Hamilton called them into action with these lovely British words: "All right, gentlemen. Let's have it nice and noisy, if you wouldn't mind."

Bedridden Man's Voice Goes Far

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — This was Bill Moyers Day in Oklahoma.

Gov. David Hall proclaimed the day to honor the Oklahoma-born journalist who was coming here for an invitational open house of the Oklahoma Educational Television Authority.

Moyers, a former press secretary to President Lyndon Johnson, was born in Hugo.

After leaving the White House, Moyers was publisher of Newsday at Long Island, N.Y., and later had a weekly television program with the Corporation for Public Broadcasting.

Recently he won an Emmy award naming him outstanding news broadcaster of the year.

Moyers, 39, began his career as a reporter for the Marshall (Tex.) News-Messenger at the age of 15. At 18 he was cited by The Associated Press for work on a fast-breaking news story. The AP picked up for national distribution.

system of controls. Frequency is tuned with a geared-down reversible motor controlled by his neck pressure.

The 15-meter beam antenna is rotated from a three-position chin switch. His lips turn power on or off.

He forms Morse code characters with breath sounds which are translated into electrical impulses at speeds up to 35 words a minute.

Jarman's courage, determination and the help of others are filling the long hours with the adventure of communicating with other "hams" near and far. He has reached points as distant as New Guinea.

When he was 22, Jarman broke his spine diving into a reservoir to save a child from drowning. He is paralyzed below the neck, unable to move except for his head.

His interest in radio was fanned in 1970 when the Barstow Amateur Radio Club offered to help any handicapped person become an operator.

Jarman had no experience in radio, but he responded. Studying and with tutoring one hour each Sunday for seven weeks from club members, he passed his novice examination and began communicating with the outside world, using Morse code. The Barstow radio club obtained equipment for him.

Ten months later he started studying for a higher grade license.

Other amateur radio operators, with transmitters and receivers in their cars, look forward to the cheery "voice of the desert WB6KYM" as they drive through the Mojave Desert southwest of Death Valley.

When emergencies arise, he can radio for help from the highway patrol, fire department and other agencies.

Now he is thinking about taking the exam for an advanced grade. Jarman spends about five hours a day on the air.

"I can't put into words how this means to me or express my gratitude to friends from the Barstow Amateur Radio Club," he said.

"Before they came along I could only read to pass the time, and was just about dead inside and out. Now, I feel a whole new world has opened for me — there is nothing like it."

Jarman has found other handicapped "hams" on the air waves and has given them advice and help.

He also frequently gives directions to travelers on the highway between Los Angeles and Las Vegas, Nev.

First U.S. Railroad

The first railroad in the United States was built in 1830 from Charleston to Hamburg, S.C. The first passenger train, "The Best Friend," made its initial trip in 1831. Newspapers reported: "The passengers flew on wings of the wind, annihilating space and leaving all the world behind at the fantastic speed of 15 m.p.h."

their pressures to the point that Sadat and King Hussein of Jordan could not readily negotiate with Israel through Kissinger.

Kissinger apparently has convinced King Faisal of his good intentions. The somber monarch, a revered figure in the Arab world, detests communism about as much as Zionism. Long a friend of the United States, his government alone has tried in oil councils to bring down prices, at least a little. Kissinger evidently will be given some more time to arrange Israeli withdrawals. But how much longer?

Kissinger's piecemeal diplomatic approach has several objectives:

—First, to avert the kind of crisis situation that sparked last year's Yom Kippur war. Principally, this involves setting the mood for negotiations by dealing separately with Israeli and Arab leaders and trying to arrange interim agreements by isolating the conditions the two sides are prepared to accept.

Ford Telephones Baseball Veteran

BALTIMORE (AP) — Detroit Tigers designated hitter Al Kaline got a congratulatory telephone call from President Ford after becoming the 12th player in major league history to record 3,000 hits.

"He congratulated me and said he was happy for me, and told me to be sure and stop in and see him when I was in Washington," Kaline said.

The 33-year-old ballplayer reached the milestone on Tuesday night in a game against the Baltimore Orioles and received the call from the President shortly before another game here on Wednesday night.

Soap Opera Begins 24th Year

NEW YORK (AP) — A soap opera called "Love of Life" began its 24th year on CBS Tuesday, having given viewers more than 5,900 daily crises to brood about since it first aired on tv on Sept. 24, 1951.

That's a record for televised weeping and gnashing of teeth. Producer Jean Arley did some teeth-gnashing of her own when asked to describe the show for those who work days and never see it. Like me.

"A capsule description?" she retorted. "Well, the story flows around Vanessa and Bruce Sterling in a town called Rosefield."

"There's so much going on — Sturm und Drang kind of things," she said, meaning turbulence and pressure. "I don't know how you'd ever capsule something like that."

The lead characters, portrayed by Audrey Peters and Ron Tomme, are a childless, middle-aged couple, she said. Bruce publishes the Rosefield Herald and Vanessa is a housewife who dabbles in real estate. Life was quite innocent when they began on tv. Nowadays any soap opera worth its suds is "relevant," meaning abortion, adultery, Lesbianism and crying without a license are dealt with forthrightly.

"We've come a long way and we're very frank now," Miss Arley says. "We've even had a story lately about a couple whose sex life went awry after a number of years and there was a sex therapy situation. Which is a big step from what it used to be."

Miss Arley said the show's writers have a rough idea of which way the over-all plot is headed as much as two years in advance.

"It's kind of a bare outline," she said. "We have a basic 13-week cycle, and that's broken down into weekly situations."

She said a given crisis or sub-crisis isn't necessarily resolved in a given time.

"It may not be resolved for a year, or it can wind up in two weeks," she explained. "It depends. Right now, we're dealing with corruption, a corrupt mayor. It's been on the last six months."

Do viewers gripe much about "boudoir hanky-panky?" "Sometimes very strongly," she said. "They think it's immoral or they say, 'Hoory!'"

You can get two sides. I think it depends sometimes on age or loyalty to a character with whom viewers identify."

Soap opera plots are more complex than the federal budget. But Miss Arley said her show's daily story pow-wows keep the authors from writing characters into boxes from which there's no escape.

Does she worry that game shows may someday kill off her soap opera?

"I worry about everything, all the time," she laughed. "You just hope you're doing the best possible job and that people are watching."

New Task For Kissinger Promises To Be Difficult

By BARRY SCHWEID
WASHINGTON (AP) — A year after the outbreak of the Yom Kippur War, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is about to head back to the Middle East to press for new Israeli withdrawals from conquered Arab territory. It is a mission tied directly to the West's thirst for Arab oil.

Kissinger's negotiating task promises to be as difficult as the shuttle diplomacy he used in achieving the Middle East cease fire late last year.

And it is made more urgent by the unspoken but evident risk of a new oil squeeze if the Arab states do not get the kind of territorial settlement they want.

In the months since the war there has been ample evidence of closer U.S. ties with the Arab nations. Nevertheless, Kissinger knows he is under the gun to try to protect the inflation-plagued economies of the United States and western Europe from any renewed Arab oil embargo or cutback this winter.

Kissinger has found in his exhaustive personal diplomacy that after four wars with the Arabs, Israel has a mind and will of its own despite dependence on the United States for military and economic aid.

Signaling this independent mood, with its troubling implications for the Kissinger mission, Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said at the end of a recent Washington visit "there will be no movement in terms of just giving back territory."

Rabin said there must be more, the beginning of an end to the Arabs' economic and diplomatic boycott of the Jewish state.

Sinai. A deal with Jordan would follow, according to the preferred Israeli script.

When Kissinger returns to the region next month, his ear will be tuned to clues that this is more than wishful thinking. In any event, he is determined to maintain the momentum that produced disengagements along the Suez Canal and on the Golan Heights earlier this year.

Hanging over Kissinger's head is the implicit threat that should Israel balk at yielding more occupied Arab land, the stalemate could trigger the sort of oil squeeze that brought gasoline shortages to America last winter, sent prices up and turned off the heat in western Europe.

No Immediate Danger Knowledgeable U.S. officials see no immediate danger of another war, but neither do they anticipate a complete agreement over any specific period. Soviet arms shipments have substantially improved the quality of Syria's forces. The United States is attempting to offset this by speeding delivery of Phantom jets to Israel and otherwise upgrading Israel's defenses.

By both U.S. and Israeli reckoning, Syria is considered the most dangerous prospective antagonist. The U.S. intelligence estimate is that Israel would triumph should they come to renewed conflict.

If Kissinger has a blueprint for an over-all Middle East peace settlement he has yet to reveal it. For the short run, at least, he is trying to shelve the Golan Heights territorial dispute as well as the touchy Palestinian refugee problem except to the extent that Jordan would represent west bank Palestinians in negotiations with Israel.

The question remains whether the radical Baathist government in Damascus and the Palestinian terrorists will step up
