"IS IT BETTER FELT THAN TOLD?"

This "better felt than told" system of religion is catching on among many uninformed people. While they do not want any feelings which might be produced as a result of rendering OBEDIENCE to Gospel, they are quite content to express their "joy" which they believe comes as a result of the "out-pouring of the Holy Spirit." When you ask these people how they know that this is the salvation which came from God they are quick to answer, "I just know how I feel." Many say, "I cannot explain it, I just know how I feel."

It seems quite inept to this scribe that a person could be so unable to explain HOW God saved him when man has been told that the GOSPEL is the POWER of God to SAVE. (Ro. 1:16) If a man is saved at all, he is saved by plumbing his life with the gospel of Jesus Christ, Any joy that man may know can only be the result of his knowledge of the scheme of redemption and his obedience to it. The nobleman of Acts 8 "went on his way rejoicing," says the writer Luke. However, one may know what produced that joy when he reads the entire story of Acts. 8. The nobleman had "Christ preached unto which was necessarily inferred that Christ's plan to save sinful man was revealed. AFTER he learned that plan and rendered obedience to that plan he had reason for joy.

My dear friends, have you rendered obedience to the gospel? Don't be deceived by emotions which are not the result of obeying the voice of God. The apostle Paul put it this way: "And to you who are troubled rest with us, when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels, in flaming fire taking vengence on them that know not God, and obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ . . " (2 Th. 1:7,8)

We would be most happy to further study the truth of God with you. If we could assist you in be-coming a child of God, through your obedience, we, would be pleased to assist you, even now. Meet with us at the Outhbert Street Church of Christ

Lamenting the fallen sparrow

Is technology doing the human race good, or doing it in?

That question persists after more than 200 years of technological innovation. Not many people argue any longer that if God had wanted humans to fly, He would have given us wings. But there are plenty of contemporary alarms against invention.

It won't surprise anyone to learn that Mobil believes technology does a great deal of good. It may surprise some people when we concede that technological advance takes its toll. Like many other things, technology is sometimes a blessing, sometimes a bane.

On this subject, we share the views of Dr. Hans Landsberg, director of the resource appraisal program carried out by Resources for the Future-a nonprofit corporation for research and education in the development, conservation, and use of natural resources.

At a symposium some time ago of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, Dr. Landsberg said:

"One is apt to view the more disagreeable aspects of modern life, including most prominently those due to the impact of technology, with partiality-often unconsciously. We take for granted that we may drink tap water, eat uncooked fruit or vegetables, and consume milk with no thought of falling victim to a lurking bug. We are reminded of our good fortune only when we travel in parts of the world that require preventive or remedial countermeasures....

"But, customarily, we fail to do much balancing of pluses and minuses.....

"We tend to overlook the fact that the chemical industry produces not only controversial pesticides, but also antibiotics and vaccines; that the automobile whose incomplete fuel combustion fouls the city air does, at the same time, enable us to escape its boundaries and to know the world in a way available a generation or two ago only to the daring or the rich.

"We are quick to lament the fallen sparrow, but slow to celebrate the fall of 'Typhoid Mary.' '

Responsible enterprise, Mobil believes, should not merely lament the sparrow's fall, but try to prevent it. Yet industry should not be-and need not be-deterred from striving to make technology a blessing for the earth and all the living things that inhabit it.

Food Shortages May Endanger Pet Population, According To Butz

By ROBERT E. FORD

Associated Press Writer Called Fido the Wonder Cat into our lap the other evening to issue a stern warning about Secretary Butz, the rat population and particularly about his eating all his dinner and not leaving any.

We call him Fido because when the neighbors gave him to us he was just a little ball of fur and for all we knew he was a baby Doberman Pinscher.

So we named him Fido although after a few weeks it became plain that we'd been fooled again.

The threat to Fido from Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz came in a little tiff Butz had with Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota. Sen. Humphrey suggested that Americans eat one less hamburger each neek to help feed the world by increasing the amount of available grain.

The theory seems to be that if we raise less cattle to be made into hamburgers, less grain will be needed to raise the cattle we didn't raise. Truly, it is a little complicated.

From the amount of meat we've been getting in our hamburgers at the corner drive-in, we don't see much saving.

Humphrey set Secretary Butz off on an oratorical skyride that even the silver-tongued William Jennings Bryan would have approved. "I wonder if some of those ill-informed; fuzzy-thinking dogooders who suggest that we eat one less hamburger per week to release more foodstuffs for the world are really serious," said Butz, who wants farmers and ranchers to get substantial progress increasing first onslaught on this noble goal by reducing our dog and cat population by 50 per cent. which likewise would suddenly release more grain for the

"If so, they could make the grain supplies by reducing by 50 per cent our horse population-which no longer pulls the plow or the dray.

"Now, I am not out to limit horse numbers or to cut down on the number of pets. I do not advocate such a thing. On the other hand, if some people are really serious about proposing that we cut back on hamburgers in order to feed the world, then I want to know how they feel about the horses and the dogs and the cats they

President Gerald Ford has not-been heard from on the subject so far,

He owns a Golden Retriever, presented recently by daughter Susan and White House photographer David Kennerly.

The kennel where Kennerly bought the dog wanted a pedigree from the prospective owner. Not wanting to identify the recipient, Kennerly would only say the future owner lived in a "big white house with a fence around it."

So we discussed with Fido the amount of food he eats and particularly the amount he leaves in his bowl. We believe that if all cats cleaned their bowls like we make the children clean their plates there would be a great grain surplus.

We are fascinated by these commercials showing cats leap-ing at a call that a certain brand of food is awaiting

Never have we seen, however, where the bowl was cleaned up by the cat.

We were about to take him to the vet when we discovered he was having dinner each night with a lady cat down the alley. There always was enough for two there also.

People who are good at figures tell us there are 600 million pets in the United States and they cost $17 billion annually to keep. People spend $310 million yearly at pet stores for kittens and puppies.

This seems very strange because our neighborhood generally blossoms with half a dozen signs at a time saying in handdrawn characters, "Kittens for "cheap" is added. All that is thrown away and new signs then read, "Free kit-my swimming pool?" He said most people think their pets are eating a lot when fed outdoors but the rats are getting the food.

McGurk said a family cat isn't much help because, "If a cat has an option of taking on an ugly rat and probably getting bitten or lying on your lap and eating pet food-you know

That's the way it is, dude, said Fido, as he snuggled down on our lap for a snooze.

Another Banner Week

This corner enjoyed another good week for an even .800 percentage hitting 44 and missing 11. Midland and Cooper were knocked off or it would have been much better.

Lee, Pack To Win

Midland Lee came up with a tremendous performance against Permian last week and should guard against a let-down. After all, Abilene beat Odessa and gave Midland High fits, but the Rebels have too much defense for the Warbirds so going with Coach Jim Acree's crew to post 21-8 victory. Midland journeys to Abilene to take on always-tough Cooper and even though the Cougars lost to Big Spring, they still play sound defense. Going with the Purple Pack to win, 21-7, to set up the big game with Lee the following week.

This one is a toughie. Tailback Johnny Houser is still hobbled with a knee injury and the Permian Panthers may be without the services of middle linebacker and tight end Daryl Hunt, who has an ankle sprain. San Angelo has not won in nine years over the Panthers. On a hunch, the Bobcats to snap Mojo hex, 20-13, on the Concho.

Odessa and Big Spring tangle in W. T. Barrett Stadium. The Bronchos finally have most of their injured players back so going with the Red Hosses to post 27-13 victory over Bob Burris' Steers.
