Texas Utilities Co. Makes Reduction In Power Rates

Applicable To July Power Bills

Letter of I. R. Kelso, President of Texas Utilities Company, addressed to managers of the Company, dated June 22, 1926, refers to the making of rate schedules as follows:

With the approval today of an Optional Power Rate effective July 1, 1926, applicable to July bills, Texas Utilities Company makes the fourth substantial reduction in rates within the past twelve months, viz: (1) development rate to municipalities; (2) flat reduction of one cent (1c) per kilowatt hour off of top rate of every lighting consumer; (3) flat reduction of ten per cent in power rates which was made effective last November; and (4) reduction in power rates under the above mentioned Optional Rate schedule effective July 1, 1926.

Development Rate Eliminated Demand Change

The engineering department has assembled a great deal of information for use of the Company in making schedules of rates and charges for electric service that would be of practical benefit and advantage to the territory served by Texas Utilities Company. The fact that Texas Utilities Company smashed all the rules governing the fixing of rate schedules at the time it published and put into effect its "development rates" has caused some confusion in comparing the development rate of Texas Utilities Company with rates published and charged by other companies.

In fixing the development rate, Texas Utilities Company eliminated the demand, or ready-to-serve charge, stating at the time the rate was published, that it was available only to municipalities. The Company explained that in supplying electric energy under its development rate without profit to the Company, it felt that the rate was entirely justified and that it would, in the end, prove to be advantageous to the Company as a result of the growth of the communities served.

Equitable Rates

The subject of equitable rates for an electric light and power company is one which is but very little understood, although it has received an enormous amount of consideration, in dealing with the subject of rate making, have found that, "the public generally is prone to believe that the proper rate for electric energy delivered is a fixed price for a given unit, precisely the same as it would be for a bushel of wheat." Likewise, courts and commissions have uniformly held that, "nothing could be further from the truth than this attitude of the public toward the subject of rate making."

It is generally recognized that there is a distinction between the lighting and the power rate which may properly be recognized in practice. Why there is a difference between lighting rates and power rates is not so generally understood, and although a demand rate as well as a minimum rate has been uniformly approved by courts and commissions as being perfectly just and equitable, the ordinary consumer is entirely unable to grasp the reason, and generally considers it to be an effort on the part of the company to get something out of him for which it has not delivered anything.

Rate Schedules Explained

The Company feels that it would be mutually helpful to the consumer and company if the managers would discuss in plain and non-technical language those principles which are universally recognized by all regulatory bodies and courts in fixing rate schedules. The public generally would not be interested in the dry subject of rate making, but many of the consumers of the Company would be interested in knowing something of the effort made by the Company to fix schedules of rates and charges which reasonably approximate justice as between the different consumers. A few principles which must govern electric rates, according to the decisions of courts and commissions in rate cases, and in which the public may be interested in connection with Texas Utilities Company rate schedules, are here referred to. They are stated in numbered paragraphs for each of reference:

(1) "The time and duration of use of the energy taken by the customer is of the utmost importance." (Account should be taken of this fact in the making of any rate schedule.)

(2) "The cost of current to the company is largely fixed, not by the amount used, but by the greatest amount taken at any period during twenty-four hours or by the peak of the load."

(3) "The necessary capacity of the plant and consequent investments in same is determined by the greatest amount of energy required by the consumers at any point of time in the year, and hence the cost of the plant or investment required in the business is determined by the peak of the load during the year."

(4) "The peak, both daily and yearly, is created chiefly by the lighting load. The power load is largely off peak. Hence it is for the interest of those using current for light to encourage the use of off the peak power as much as possible."

(5) "If all customers were on the yearly peak, equity would require that since all must in some manner pay a given return to the company, each should pay that proportion to the whole which his demand bears to the total demand, but the customers are not all on the daily or current peak, nor the yearly or plant peak. Hence, a method must be devised which will fairly distribute the plant cost of yearly peak between those who are on the peak and those who are not."

(6) "Every customer should pay all expenses which are incurred solely because he is a customer." (This should be taken care of by a demand charge or minimum charge.)

(7) "It would appear, the more one considers the question, that the important thing to be paid for is proper proportion by each consumer, is not the current used, but the capacity required. On this basis, practically all of the companies make a service or demand charge of a certain fixed price per kilowatt demand per month, with a sliding scale for current cost for all kilowatt hours use per month."

Optional Power Rate Explained
In developing the territory served by Texas Utilities Company, we have deemed it advisable to eliminate, insofar as practicable, the demand charge in building rate schedules. The advantage of our scheme of rates under this system, to the consumer, is that he is not asked to

Muleshoe Junior Boys Base Ball Club Wins Game From Sudan

On last Thursday week, June 24th, the Muleshoe Junior Base Ball Club went down to Sudan and defeated the Sudan Junior team by a big majority of scores in favor of Muleshoe. The score was to the tune of 9 to 27, can you beat that for a real race track. Moore and Alsop were the batterers for our team. When it comes to real ball playing our Junior team is always there with the goods. They have played several games this season and have won the majority of them.

Any one who has a fast team that you would like to try out just let the Muleshoe Junior team know of it and they will be ready to percolate on short notice. This team would honestly like to get to play some team that would interest them more so that they could show the Muleshoe people just what they could do if necessary to win a game. We have the Junior team, who has their match? (Sport Editor.)

Y. L. ANNOUNCEMENT

Sunday School at 10 a. m., at 11 a. m. a lecture, dinner on the ground at noon, singing in the afternoon, musical program at night by the Stamps Quartette. Everybody welcome.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The ladies of the Methodist church announce that they will serve dinner during the Bailey county Annual Fair. Please remember this announcement.

Joel Lee and family came in Wednesday, evening from Aspermont, where they have been visiting for the past few weeks.

Ozero Douglass, of Portales, N. Mex., was a visitor in Muleshoe last Tuesday.

Winn To Address Y L Parent Teachers Meeting July the 9th

By request of the president of the Parent Teachers Association of the Y L school community Welton Winn, of Lubbock, will address that association on the evening of July 9th at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Winn has given much thought to the schools of the rural communities of this state. He believes in making the Rural schools equal to the city schools, and has had considerable work along that line. While working with the State Department of Agriculture in 1916 he was selected out of quite a large number of men who were doing the same class of work, that is lecturing at farmers institutes over the state. He was selected to meet with the Teachers Institutes of the plains and tell the teachers why the Texas people wanted agriculture taught in the public schools of this state. Mr. Winn was assigned the entire plains section of the state and was finally sent down in the central western part of the state to carry on the same work. During this time he had the privilege of speaking to most all the Teachers Institutes on the plains and on down to the Wichita valley rail road, as they met one right after the other that fall. His presentation of that important subject was well received where ever he spoke.

Quarterly Conference At Y L Next Saturday

Our third Quarterly Conference will meet at Y L next Saturday, July 10th. Rev. D. B. Doak will preach at eleven in the morning, also at 8:45 at night. Business session of Conference will meet at two o'clock in the afternoon. Dinner will be served at the school building.

These services are for all. Come and get the benefit of all the services and enjoy meeting your friends and others.

Rev. Doak will preach at the Methodist church in Muleshoe next Sunday morning July the eleventh, and the pastor at the evening hour, and we will be happy to see you, your family and friends at both services.

Sunday School meets promptly at ten o'clock Sunday morning. Be sure to come and help your class win in the contest. One of the classes will sure win. You can win for yours, if you and all other members of the class will pull together. So make yours a one hundred per cent class next Sunday.

Don't forget you are a member of the League and that it needs your constant attendance. Be present Saturday and Sunday at all services. J. E. Payne.

Baptist W. M. U. Ladies Gives Weekly Report

The W. M. U. ladies of the Baptist church met Tuesday at the church with nine ladies present. Everybody was enthusiastic over the W. M. U. work in general. Mrs. Leighs visit to Plainview and her talk to W. M. U. members last Tuesday was an inspiration to those of our number who attended. After a short business session, a short round table discussion was enjoyed.

Society meets next Tuesday at the church with the Royal service program, with Mrs. Motherall as leader.

July 3rd Celebration Was A Grand Success

The Committee from the Civic League and American Legion are to be congratulated on the splendid manner in which they put the July Celebration over. It was well attended and everyone had a good time.

The main feature of the day was the big Pageant of Bailey County. Beginning with the days of the Indians and passing thru the various stages of progress up to the modern day of 1926.

The Indians in the parade were from Progress, diversified farming was put on by Hurley, and the cowboy days was put on by the boys and girls from below the sand hills and assisted by parties from all over the county.

Miss Katherine Neal as Queen of the Pageant and was crowned with a crown of roses by Judge Kennedy, Jesse West was King of the Pageant and all the attendants were beautifully decorated for the occasion.

NOTICE TO PUBLIC

The board of trustees of the Muleshoe Independent School District will meet Thursday afternoon, July 15, at two o'clock, High School building, for the purpose of receiving applications from those who wish to transfer into Muleshoe School District. All who are interested in transferring are kindly invited and urged to meet with the board on that date.

Moody-Ferguson Joint Discussion Monday Night

On Monday night July 12th at 8:30 a joint discussion of the Moody and Ferguson campaign will be had in the District Court room in Muleshoe. Taylor White will champion the cause of Dan Moody while Levi Pressly will represent "Ma" Ferguson. It is the purpose of the Moody and Ferguson forces to carry these discussions to the various voting boxes in Bailey County, program will be announced Monday night as to the dates and places. It is also the purpose of these parties to use only local talent in these discussions. The candidates for county precinct offices will be given an opportunity to make their announcements. Rev. J. E. Payne has been selected to preside at the meeting Monday night. Every voter in the county should come out and "root" for their favorite candidate. This will be a friendly discussion and the speakers have agreed that there will be no ill feeling and mud slinging, nor will they engage in any personalities.

C. of C. To Meet At the Elite Cafe Tuesday At 12

Matters of importance to come before the citizenship of Muleshoe will be discussed at noon Tuesday July 13th, at the Elite Cafe. Secretary J. E. Aldridge stated to a Journal reporter this morning. Every man that is interested in the future development of this city and county should be present at this luncheon. Each man is to pay for his lunch. Bring your visitors with you, they may have an idea that we need.

The Chamber of Commerce in your town is just what you make it. If you put nothing in it you will receive the same.

There is no other organization in any city that benefits all the people as much as the Chamber of Commerce. Muleshoe needs a real live organization. We have men here that are capable of putting over anything they desire, all they need is your cooperation.

Tell all the boys to be on hand Tuesday July 13th, at Elite Cafe at noon.

AT THE AGE OF 83

"Purges" and "Physics" Bad for Old Folks

While Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, knew that constipation was the curse of advancing age, he did not believe that a "purge" or "physic" every little while was necessary.

To him, it seemed cruel that so many constipated old people had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps to "regulate" the bowels of old folks. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but each dose helps to strengthen the bowel muscles, shortly establishing natural "regularity." It never gripes, sickens, or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

STYLES IN ACCESSORIES; SUPERB AIRY ENSEMBLES

MIDSUMMER is well supplied with pretty accessories, and by their means we can ring changes in our costumes and make two or three toilettes grow where but one grew before. But fashion is fastidious about the wearing of them—to proclaim our up-to-dateness we must obey her mandates. Better no little finishing touch than too many.

The scarf is the most popular and the most varied of dress accessories and is worn with tailored, afternoon or evening dresses and with sports clothes. It is made of light silks, sheer crepes and knitted weaves in silk fabrics and infinitely varied in design and colors. For wear with the tailored rhinestone ornament. A very smart substitute for this ornament would be one of the fashionable jeweled monograms.

If colors have a meaning (there is hardly an "it" about it), but if they have, then yellow spells joyousness. When the sun shines and floods the world with gold there is summer in the heart of most of us mortals, and when he shines on the coral sands and they reveal their exquisite, rosy yellow, the heart of woman longs to perpetuate that delicate and wonderful shade. It has been captured for her and has inspired superb gowns and wraps in which the mode culminates its summer achievements. Then, frock it is small, often vividly colored and worn like a man's muffler or tied up about the throat. It may be looped over at the front, or tied with a standing loop at one side, or simply wound about the neck and knotted at the side.

For afternoon, scarfs grow longer and wider and expand into airy shawls for evening made of squares of chiffon or silk—the latter finished with wide borders of double chiffon, usually in a contrasting color. Gayly colored scarfs complete the white or one-color sports dress—and here the hat-and-scarf-to-match idea has many devotees.

Midsummer has brought in organdie vestees and platted organdie collars there is the beautiful pale-gold shade called "sunni," rivaling coral sand—and all those orange and tangerine yellows that have done so much for sports clothes.

"Coral sand" is the shade chosen for the handsome but airy ensemble in which the modes blossom out as shown in the picture. Georgette crepe and lace in the same color are combined to make it and it is a noteworthy summing up of the season's most successful style ideas. Here is the very short skirt, flared by means of godets of lace, having a scalloped edge and elaborated by embroidery on the panels and band at the hemline. And here are the "V" shaped neck-line with embroidered band of crepe lar and cuff sets, cape collars of net and lace and fichus of these airy materials, worn knotted at the front or in the "V" shaped front, terminating at the girdle. Pique vestees with tailored suits are smart. Also the boutonniere still flourishes in the scheme of neckwear things. After these come bags which may match some other item in the toilette. Reptile skin bags worn with shoes of the same finish off the tailored or the afternoon dress, or when black shoes are worn for afternoon the bag may correspond with the color of the stockings or match the hat in color.

Newly arrived bags of black velvet with rhinestone ornaments reach the apex of elegance and three of them are shown here. The stunning "muff box" has a leather tab adorned with a for a finish, ending in long ties, and the snug waist which fashion has adopted with so much enthusiasm; altogether they make a beautiful gown. The graceful cape is made of the same crepe and has a yoke of lace set in about the shoulders, ending in vandyke points. The flaring collar of crepe is soft and edged with a crepe ruching. Crepe makes the rosettes that finish the bottom of the cape and the long ties that fasten it.

It would be a crime to wear a hat of less class than this ensemble wherever they are to go and the picture reveals a happy choice in headwear. It is a wide-brimmed picture hat of hair braid with a collar of velvet ribbon and two roses posed on the under brim.

KING OF THE CLOUDS

Melly had a great deal to do. She had errands to do first of all and then she had chores to do about the house.

She wanted to wash some things, too, and hang them on the line.

But before the day had commenced really at all, it started to rain.

"Oh dear," said Melly, "I did so wish it wouldn't rain today, and I have so much to do."

The King of the Clouds laughed hard when he heard that.

"I can't stop to consider her," he said.

"Why, if I stopped to consider every one who says something about hoping it won't rain I just never would have a chance at all."

"But people don't think of that. They all think it is such a pity I do not do what they want."

"They each think they are so important."

"Now I don't bother about any of them. If it is time for me to be about and if it is time for Mr. Sun to take a holiday it doesn't matter what any one says—there is rain."

"They may be planning a parade or a picnic or an all-day outing or a walking trip, but if I am going to rain I am going to rain."

"Now you see one of the reasons why I was called King of the Clouds was because I rained."

"A king should reign. Other kings reign, or rule. I rain and rule in my rainy fashion."

"Other kings spell the way they reign differently from the way I spell it."

"But the idea is the same. Oh, yes, I am a king who rains!"

"I'm sorry, of course, that Melly had planned to do so much and had wanted good weather."

"But I cannot help it. It is my day for raining."

"To be sure, there are those days when I cannot make up my mind."

"Those are the days when Mr. Sun will say to me,

"Oh, go on, King of the Clouds, rain, do."

"And I say,

"I don't want to, Mr. Sun. You shine, do."

"We both talk like this to each other and the people say,

"Is it going to rain or isn't it? It's one of those days when it is so hard to tell what it is going to do."

"But today I know. I must rain."

So the King of the Clouds rained or all he was worth—or rather very tearily for all he was worth.

It was then that Mahalla said something that greatly amused the King of the Clouds.

He had begun to rain harder, so that now he was really raining for all he was worth.

And Mahalla said, "He saw me coming and he began to rain harder than ever."

"That was for a joke, as I hadn't any umbrella or raincoat with me."

So, Mahalla, caught in the middle of the King of the Cloud's best (or worst) raining, went home soaking and dripping wet.

A funny sight she was when she went in the house. Her hat dripped water down her neck, her shoes squeaked with water, her dress was limp and drenched.

But she took a hot bath at once so as not to get cold. And Melly had to put off doing a good deal she had planned to do. The King of the Clouds was a king. He must do as he set out to do.

Community Building

Making the Home Town "Just a Little Better"

There are several things a fellow ought to do for the old town.

One step in the process will be to study the other man's town. Learn how he made his success. Use his methods where they will work to advantage. Mix a little brains with observation and improve on the past. Why shouldn't you put the plus on his success?

Then, too, one must line up the resources of the old town. Practically every place has some advantage. That should be capitalized to its full worth. Not in our likeness to other towns but in our differences lie the distinctive agencies that will insure success.

And not least among resources should be the good will of its people. Few towns put forth any real effort to cultivate the interest of their citizens. If people are interested they work for the town, usually for what they can get out of it. Our proposition calls for lining up everybody as a matter of patriotic duty.

The next step is to sell the town to folks outside of it. Don't be afraid to tell your town's advantages. When other towns advertise match the "ad" with one of your own. You don't sell much to other folks the process will add much to your own estimate.

So, boost the old town. It will add dividends and raise the place you live in to one of pride and satisfaction. It's a great game. Try it.—Kansas City Times.

Carelessness of City Visitors to Country

No longer are spring flowers the chief adornment of our country roads. The hepatica has had to yield place to the pop bottle, the wind flower to the wind-blown fragments of the Sunday supplements, the adder's tongue to the tin can.

Out of our cities pours an increasing horde of people who sally forth at dawn, after the fashion of tent caterpillars, to leave destruction in their wake. Accustomed to a life where the ever-ready "white wing" and the garbage collector function as regularly as the rising and setting of the sun, these city dwellers have little or no conception of the beauty and dignity of clean earth. They break down fences, strip flowering shrubs, and all too frequently lead one to wonder why the word "urbanity" ever came to mean what it is supposed to mean and why "civility" should have been the distinguishing mark of those who dwell in cities.

Our large centers of population sometimes wonder why they are so unpopular in the rural regions. One reason is to be found in the trash littered along our country highways.—Editorial in The Outlook.

Look to the Driveway

Nothing adds more to the beauty of any home than walks and driveways. These are nearly always built of concrete, and the pleasing light-gray color dresses up the appearance of the home surroundings in a delightful manner.

It is advisable that all walks, approaches and drives be constructed at the same time the home is built. Then the contractor has his material and equipment on the job and the cost of the work is lessened considerably.

In addition to lending charm to the home place, concrete walks and drives prove a boon to the housewife by eliminating the tracking of mud into the house.

Trees Not for Streets

It is a mistake to use a tree for street purposes just because it is rapid-growing, because most such trees are short-lived, weak-wooded and generally dangerous. Among such trees may be mentioned:

Silver maple—a maple that has quite pendulous branches and deeply cut leaves. The branches have dark bark.

Box elder—a maple with divided leaves. A more or less globular, low-branched tree.

Western catalpa—very short-lived. Flowers are very messy.

Also the following: willows, European ash, birch, Carolina poplar and tulip tree.

Clean Up Stable Manure

House flies are here with their perennial transportation program for disease germs. They specialize as common carriers of typhoid fever and diarrheal bacilli. They ply between the germ incubators and the dining room. What they lack in per capita horse power they make up in preponderance of numbers. Stable manure is the most prolific breeding place of the fly, a pair of which can become the ancestors of many million offspring in a single season.

Make Home Beautiful

It doesn't cost any more to make your home beautiful than to have it ugly—beauty is not gained by dressing the house up with scroll-saw ornaments, cut-up roofs, dormers and fancy-shaped windows. A well proportioned house looks beautiful without all these. Your local architect is experienced in these problems and can help you here. It will pay you to consult him.

FORECASTER BRINGS HAPPINESS BY DATA

Weather Man Gets All Sorts of Inquiries.

New York.—"Please," asked the timid voice of a girl over the telephone, "can you tell me whether June 17 will be fair?"

James H. Scarr, New York's veteran weather man, glanced at maps and records on his desk and pondered a moment.

"Why, that's your wedding day isn't it?"

"Yes," the voice faltered in surprise. "Yes, but how did you know?"

"Oh, I just surmised. I can tell you only this about the weather: you will always remember June 17 as the brightest day of your life."

This call came to the weather man exactly a hundred and seventeen days before June 17. It was impossible to forecast accurately what the weather on that date would be. Here is his reason for the answer he gave:

One Day to Worry—If It Rained.

"Our greatest enjoyment in life usually comes in anticipation. If I had told her it would be cloudy and rainy on June 17, she would have experienced 117 days of worry. But with what I told her she had 117 days of delightful anticipation."

"I figured that if it rained on June 17, there would be only one day of worry and that she hardly would notice the rain anyway in the excitement and joy of getting married."

Brides-to-be are among the 1,500 persons who daily call the weather bureau for information. On some days the office operator lists as many as 1,000 "busy calls."

People planning picnics 'phone, the tired clerk who wants to know which week out of several will be best for him to take his vacation; officials preparing for conventions call; managers selecting opening nights for new plays.

All Want Information.

Millionaires who want to set sail in yachts for distant points constantly are served by the bureau. Ships at sea keep in close communication with this and other offices.

The ice cream manufacturer wants to know the weather outlook for the week-end. If Saturday and Sunday are to be cool and rainy, he saves money by cutting down on the output. If clear and hot, he is ready for a big business. He likewise calls for daily reports.

The weather man often is asked if the moon was shining on a certain night months ago, whether the sun was shining, whether it snowed or rained or what was the temperature on such and such a date.

This information mostly is in demand for court trials of civil and criminal cases. The weather record plays an important part in many cases and on some days Mr. Scarr visits as many as seven different courts.

Firemen Rip Up Walk to Free Trapped Girl

Cleveland, Ohio.—Firemen and neighbors fought for nearly an hour to release a yellow-haired girl of three from a drain pipe in which she became trapped while at play.

Axes and picks tore up a cement sidewalk and broke into the clay drain pipe to free the child.

Just before supper Eleanor Banas was playing with her sister, Helen, eight, and some other children in a neighbor's yard. Near the back corner of the house the drain pipe from the roof had been broken off at the sidewalk. Eleanor was toddling along the walk when she stepped into the drain up to her hip. Immediately she set up a wail.

Neighbors came running. Men going home from work tried to help, but the shoe had been caught below the surface. Someone called the fire department.

Battalion Chief James Flynn showed her shiny things and got down on his knees to quiet her. Her wail subsided to only a whimper.

Snakeskin Jackets

Now in Vogue in Paris

Paris.—Snakeskin spats and pocket-books and now snakeskin jackets have made their appearance on the Champs-Elysees and at the Long-champ races. These startling reptilian coats, which are weird enough to make any serious drinker believe his dreams of pink and blue snakes have come true, are the length of a jacket and trimmed with fur at the neck and the hem. They are patterned to resemble the mottled skin of a rattlesnake, usually toned to light brown color. The snakeskin effect is produced by glazing the material.

$4,500 Red Diamond Found in Kimberley

London.—The rare find of a red diamond is reported from Kimberley, South Africa. This species is very unusual and is likely to fetch from $600 to $750 a carat. When cut the result will be a flawless stone of about six carats.

The gem at first glance might be taken by the uninitiated to be a very large ruby, as it is an entirely red stone without a bluish of any kind. Closer inspection, however, reveals that it possesses all the requisite properties of the true diamond.

BUREAU CLEANS UP WAR FRAUDS

Ten Millions Collected in Three Years.

Washington.—Many millions of dollars are involved in war fraud cases still pending before the Department of Justice. The war transactions section of the department, organized in 1923 to prosecute war frauds, has been disbanded, and the work will be completed by other branches of the government. Cleaning up war frauds will have cost the government $3,000,000 when it is completed.

The war transaction section since its organization has handled 770 cases. It has collected $10,912,871, and further payments totaling more than $400,000 are due during the present fiscal year. Judgments now on appeal before the courts total more than $700,000. About 250 cases are yet to be handled.

Of the 770 cases handled by the section, 401 have been definitely closed since July, 1924. Of these 16 cases have been paid in full, 47 compromised, 37 closed as uncollectable, 93 dismissed, 153 transferred to other agencies, 42 ordered audited, 4 paid in part, and 12 closed for miscellaneous reasons.

It is expected that at least 50 more cases will be closed before the end of the present fiscal year, June 30. It is likely that by the same time 50 more will be ready to be transferred to federal district attorneys for prosecution. About 150 more have been investigated and placed in suspended status pending decisions in test cases now in the courts.

BEST OF THE CADETS

William Clyde Baker Jr., of Clinton, Tenn., who won the coveted title of honor man at the United States Military academy at West Point this year. This is the highest honor that can be attained by any member of the corps and by accumulating 2,804.16 points out of a possible 2,956 points, Cadet Baker won it.

Weds Girl Who Found $2,500 Purse He Lost

New York.—Andrew Ragone married an honest and modest girl. Her name before the ceremony at the Roman Catholic church was Miss Rose DiConco.

Three years ago Ragone set out from his restaurant in Spring street for the Chatham and Phenix bank on Broadway, carrying a wallet containing $2,500 to deposit. When he reached the bank the wallet was gone.

With little hope that so much ready cash would be returned he advertised in newspapers, offering a reward for its return. The next day a girl called at his restaurant. It was Miss DiConco. She had found the wallet.

Ragone produced the promised reward of $300 and offered it to her. She refused to take it. She agreed, however, to go to dinner with him. Friendship in the course of time ripened into love.

"And the rest," Ragone stated, "is history."

Robs Fiancee's Home Day Before Wedding

San Francisco.—Private William Jensen, medical corps, U. S. A., and stationed at the Presidio here, was scheduled to appear before a minister to wed Miss Helen Hoeling. But all wedding plans temporarily were suspended when Jensen appeared in the police court to plead guilty to a charge of having burglarized the home of his prospective mother and father-in-law the night before.

Jensen confessed that after taking his fiancee and her parents to a theater he had escorted his guests home and later had returned and stolen some jewelry and an overcoat belonging to a brother of his fiancee. He called at his fiancee's home with part of the "stolen" articles. He told his fiancee and her family that he had observed a man trying to burglarize the premises and had overpowered the intruder and recovered part of the loot after a terrific struggle.

GIANT FLASHLIGHTS ROCK WHOLE CITIES

Aerial Photographers Use Powerful Light Bombs.

Dayton, Ohio.—When the convention photographer says "Hold it!" and pulls the chain of his flash pan, he discharges only a pinch or two of flashlight powder. But when Lieut. George W. Goddard, army aviator, takes a flashlight of a city he explodes bombs measuring as much as ten feet in length and weighing as much as fifty pounds.

The detonation is so great that it is not a few frightened girls who jump and blink but a whole city that is shaking and hundreds of thousands of eyes that are temporarily blinded.

Several night photographs from airplanes have been taken of Dayton and of Rochester, N. Y. Soon all of the nation's greatest cities are to be "snapped" as gigantic bombs are released over them with their warlike crash and rumble.

High Explosives Used.

The bombs are innocent looking affairs, resembling bolts of goods in a department store, but under the folds of cloth are separate compartments loaded with special high explosive powders concocted to give a quick brilliant light. Each of the compartments is connected to an electric fuse which explodes them all simultaneously.

The bombs are carried under the fuselage of the airplane and are dropped by the working of a lever as the plane reaches the designated point. There is first a discernible stream of sparks as the fuse burns and six seconds later comes the flare.

So efficiently are the bombs constructed and so accurately timed, that, although of such large proportions, they are exploded completely in as brief a space of time as one-fiftieth of a second. So complete is the explosion that there is no after-glow.

Too Quick for Human Eye.

Never has the minutest bit of the bomb's covering been found afterward. The flash is so quick that although persons on the ground see the illumination it causes, they do not actually see the flare itself. It is too quick for the human eye.

In Dayton and Rochester photographers also were stationed at various points on the ground, in spires and on tall buildings to take panoramas of the surrounding country by the light of the bursting bomb. Some of these pictures have been exceptionally clear and have approximated daylight photographic work. The photographic plates are usually exposed when the warning trail of sparks is seen and are left exposed until after the flare.

The shutters on the cameras carried by the planes in the test flights are usually four times as fast as those on the average commercial camera. Some of these cameras are between four and five feet long with 30-inch lenses, measuring nine inches in diameter. They take photographs measuring nine by twenty-three inches. The usual height at which these pictures are taken is 3,000 feet.

College Girl Writes With Pencil in Teeth

New York.—Although unable to use her hands, Henrietta Eldersheim, has passed through primary and high school and now is a student at Hunter college, doing all her written exercises with a pencil held in her teeth.

Her dream is to be a designer or a journalist, in which careers she would have to put her pencil to a more delicate use than she did in school.

Henrietta is inclined to think she has done nothing unusual in triumphing over such a handicap.

"People talk as though what I have done is remarkable," she said, "but it never occurred to me. I could not use my hands to write and I had to write to go to school and having nothing else I used my teeth."

Fever-Laden "Skeeters" Bite Army Volunteers

Washington.—Submitting voluntarily to bites of mosquitoes infected with dengue fever, 70 enlisted men of the forces in the Philippines have been mentioned in general orders for displaying "a high sense of duty and soldierly conduct worthy of emulation by others," the War department has announced.

As a result of the study of the infected men, army doctors have obtained valuable information for the treatment and prevention of the disease. The disease has now been reduced to slightly less than 20 in every 1,000, whereas in 1924 80 soldiers in every 1,000 in the Philippines suffered attacks of the fever.

"Back Seat" Driving Ruled Divorce Cause

San Francisco.—"Back seat" automobile driving is a just cause for divorce. The Supreme court of California has ruled so, in a case here.

Claude H. Harman sued for a divorce on the ground that his wife, Jessie, belittled his ability as a driver by constantly telling him from the back seat just how he should negotiate the dangerous curves ahead.

A lower court refused to grant a divorce, and Harman appealed to the Supreme court. The decree was granted.

THE WORLD'S GREAT EVENTS

ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

(© by Dodd, Mead & Company.)

Alexander the Great

A TWENTY-TWO-YEAR-OLD boy—undersized, red-headed, sickly—set out more than 2,240 years ago with the modest intention of conquering the world. And he did it.

The boy was Alexander, king of the little northern Greek state of Macedonia. He is known as Alexander the Great.

In spite of the brave resistance at Marathon and elsewhere the barbarous world-power of Persia, after conquering practically all of Asia, had again turned its hordes against Greece, sweeping the whole luckless country and well-nigh stamping out the last smoldering sparks of civilization. This outrage Alexander determined to avenge. His father, King Philip, had made himself practical master of Greece, and Alexander himself, coming to the throne at the age of twenty, had completed that subjugation. Then he set himself to the task of crushing Persia. The plan was laughable in its audacity. Alexander's army of invasion consisted of barely 34,000 men. The Persian emperor, Darius, could put into the field millions of soldiers.

Nevertheless, with his well-drilled 34,000 Alexander crossed the Hellespont in 334 B. C. and marched boldly into Persian territory. From the first he thrust aside the mighty but ill-organized resistance of the Persian armies and, as he advanced, his name spread terror among his foes and made his progress easier. He arrived at the ancient city of Gordium. There he was shown a chariot, whose pole was fastened to its yoke by a curious and intricate knot. He was told that, according to prophecy, the man who could undo that knot should become lord of all Asia. Many had tried and failed. With one blow of his sword Alexander slashed the Gordian knot in two. The prophecy was considered fulfilled and he was hailed as the coming Asian ruler.

Meantime, Darius, with a host of 600,000 men, marched against the youthful conqueror. Alexander lured him into the narrow valley of Issus, and there, where there was no room for the huge Persian army to deploy, he fell upon and routed it.

Onward marched Alexander, conquering everywhere, seizing Syria and Egypt and pushing ahead toward the Persian capital. Darius, with another incredibly huge army, opposed him at Arbela, but the Persian host fled at Alexander's first charge. The conqueror continued on his triumphant way, capturing all Persia and pushing forward to India. After stubborn resistance from the native king, Porus, he subdued the whole land.

Persia, as in the time of Marathon, was a more or less barbarous country. Greece was still the stronghold of culture and education. Wherever Alexander's conquests went civilization and learning went also.

Alexander was for continuing his onward march after the conquest of India, but his wearied soldiers refused to go farther into the unknown. When, reluctantly, he turned back, envoys from nearly every country in the world met him, offering submission.

Now that, as master of the world, he could rest, the less worthy side of Alexander's nature cropped out. He declared that no mortal man could have achieved all that he had and that he must therefore be a god, the son of Jupiter. He went on to assert that as mankind must, after his death, worship him as a god they might as well begin at once. Callisthenes, one of his wisest counselors, opposed the plan, declaring it blasphemous. Alexander had him tortured and killed. As a lad Alexander had had three tutors. One had taught him to believe himself a deity. Another had disciplined him severely and had striven to teach him humility. The third (Aristotle) had imparted to him the love of learning. Having practiced the precepts of the second and third tutors and thereby winning the world, he now turned to the mad teachings of the first.

He declared himself a god and believed it. He tried to make his army acknowledge him as son of Jupiter. He took to drinking heavily, and in his cups would boast loudly of his own greatness. On one of these occasions he claimed credit not only for what he himself had done, but for heroic feats performed by others long before he was born. His dearest friend, Clitus, remonstrated with him for these lies, and Alexander, snatching a spear from a guard, ran him through. Sobered by his own terrible deed the unhappy monarch declared himself, with some truth, not fit to live and tried to starve himself to death.

Soon after he was found weeping violently. A courtier asked: "Why should the divine conqueror of the world shed tears?" "Because there are no more worlds to conquer!" sobbed the king.

A three-day drunken orgy at Babylon in 323 B. C. threw him into a violent fever, and after a brief illness he died. He was barely thirty-two years old and had reigned but twelve years. In that time he had conquered everything except himself. The monarch of the world was the helpless slave of his own vanity and violent passions.

He died, and the world-empire he had built up was torn to pieces among his generals. But the civilization and learning that he fostered were destined to survive through all ages.

A New Decorating Material

You can now transfer the exquisite design from a wall paper pattern, in its original colors, direct to any piece of silk, chiffon, cotton or woolen material. This new process opens the way for many pleasing decorative schemes, at practically no cost. A butterfly, in all its colors, may be transferred from a piece of wall paper to the corner of a curtain or scarf; a rose, bird or flower—or any attractive design—may be placed in any position on the daintiest dress.

And all of these things may be done with the least imaginable expense and labor—no heating of irons, no fire, some or mussy details. TRANSFEREX, a new and remarkable compound that is positively harmless to the finest fabrics, enables you to do this easy and low-cost color transferring. Sold under an absolute money-back guarantee. Price, postpaid, $1.25 for a bottle large enough to make hundreds of transfers. Send your order at once.

Where Name Gamaliel

Occurs in the Bible
Two men by the name of Gamaliel are spoken of in the Bible. The periods in which they lived were widely separated. The name of the first is found in Numbers 1:10. He was the son of Pedabazur, a prince or captain of the Tribe of Manasseh, and he is here mentioned in connection with the census of Sinai. He again mentioned in chapters 2:20; 7:54 and 10:
23, the latter reference being to Gamaliel as captain of the Tribe of Manasseh at the starting of the Israelites on their march through the wilderness. The second Gamaliel was a Pharisee and celebrated doctor of the law, who gave sound worldly advice to the Sanhedrin respecting the treatment of the followers of our Lord. This will be found in Acts 5:34.
It is also learned from 22:3 that he was the teacher of St. Paul when the latter was a young man zealously devoted to Judaism. He is generally identified with the very celebrated Jewish doctor, Gamaliel, who was the son of Rabbi Simeon, and grandson of the celebrated Hillel. He was president of the Sanhedrin, the great council of the Jews, during the reigns of the Roman emperors Tiberius, Caligula and Claudius.

Science Vainly Seeks

New Sources of Silk
In spite of the enormous increase in the production of artificial silk, real silkworm silk is just as much sought after as ever, and is even more expensive than formerly. So much so that attempts have been made to find other insects to produce it.
Spiders have been tried, and other caterpillars besides that of the silkworm moth, but without much success.
The oddest source from which silk has been obtained is a shellfish, a sort of mussel, called the "pinna" and found in the Mediterranean.
This creature fastens itself to the rocks with fine and very strong threads, which can be spun into lovely golden yellow silk.
But it is not likely that sea silk will ever be a commercial proposition.
The thread is very short, the filaments being not more than three inches long.
Also, it takes more than three thousand of the fish to produce one pound of silk. Yet a little is produced and worked in Sicilian coast villages.

The Judge's Retinue

Mr. Justice Sankey, in the course of a lecture in London on old-time judicial customs, spoke of the days when a judge had to be accompanied by the sheriff with a retinue of 200 men when traveling from Newcastle to Carlisle to protect him from the raids of Scotsmen who sometimes came over the border to take off the judge for ransom.
In the passing of time, the sheriffs got "fed up" with this expense, and asked the judges to accept dagger money in order to provide their own escorts. To this day the custom prevails in Newcastle of presenting the judge on circuit with dagger money, the sum being one golden guinea.

Study of Revelations

The book of Enoch is an apocryphal book, first mentioned in the Epistle of Jude 14-15 and quoted by Clement of Alexandria, Origen and Tertullian. It purports to be a series of revelations of God made to Enoch and gives a history of the kingdom of God and the secret origin of laws of nature. It was much quoted in Jewish and Christian writings during the first five centuries after Christ; but disappeared with the exception of a few fragments about 800 A. D. The book furnishes information concerning Jewish theology and speculation during the centuries immediately preceding the Christian era.—Kansas City Star.

Thought in Lower Animals

Just as the monkey or orang-utan behave and think precisely as men do, so we find many animals, birds and insects thinking, and it is this capacity to benefit by the teachings of experience, the cultivation of memories and the power to reason clearly, quickly and logically that enables them to find ways and means for securing themselves in comfort during the coldest days of winter.
They do this in innumerable ways,
and many species appear to exhibit greater intelligence and foresight than man in preparing for the winter season.

Finest of All Oils

Watchmakers' oil, the finest of its kind in the world, is obtained from the jaws of the porpoise by the Passamaquoddy Indians, who live on the coast of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, and Maine. The jaws are hung up in the sun, and the oil as it drips from them is caught in cans, placed below. Only about half a pint comes from each jaw.
The oil commands high prices, and in late years it has become so expensive that its use in the delicate machinery of lighthouses has been abandoned.

To Test Pearls

In Paris not long ago a group of the world's greatest pearl merchants watched a French scientist pour gently a handful of pearls into a tube containing what appeared to be water.
Some sank to the bottom, but others floated.
"Gentlemen," the scientist said,
"you will find that the pearls light enough to float in this fluid are natural pearls. Those that sink are cultivated Japanese pearls," says Popular Science Monthly.

ENRAGED MOTHER KILLS SON WHO WANTS TO SLEEP

Angry Because Youth Fails to Get Up in Time to Go to Work.

Milwaukee.—Because Oliver Sullivan, twenty-one, chose to lie in bed instead of going to work, Mrs. Capitola Sullivan, forty-five, is charged with murder. The shooting occurred about 7:30 a. m. in the Sullivan home, a rough-board, tarpaper-sheeted shack, near the West Allis city limits.

No one saw the shooting, according to Oliver's father, Oscar Sullivan and two of his brothers, Ivan, thirteen, and Jerome, six, who were in the next room.

Oliver, a hard-working youth, who was to have been married soon to Miss Leona Temper, was employed at the Obenberger Forge company. He went to a party the night before and, according to his father, reached home about midnight.

Mrs. Sullivan became angry and enraged at her son, who took it good-naturedly and went to bed. His father took his part and drew Mrs. Sullivan's fire. Sullivan said his wife talked far into the night, working herself into a frenzy, and was still in a rage in the morning.

Father Takes His Part. When Oliver refused to get up and go to work, his mother declared she would get him up. The father again took the boy's part and ordered her to let him sleep. The altercation was resumed with vigor where they had left off the night before and the loud voices aroused Oliver, who started downstairs to act as peace-maker.

Mrs. Sullivan stood in the doorway between the kitchen and the living room when Oliver reached the foot of the stairs. She had the pistol in her hand, brandishing it as she poured a torrent of abuse upon her husband.

The foot of the stairway is in a bedroom, but only a skeleton partition of scantlings separates it from the living room. Oliver grasped the situation and stepped through between two upright scantlings to seize his mother from behind and get the pistol.

Mrs. Sullivan saw him coming, however, according to her husband and the boys, and whirled about, crying, "Don't you come near me or I'll shoot you, too." She backed away toward the front of the house.

Tried to Calm Her.

Oliver tried to calm her and apparently succeeded in inducing her to put the pistol back in the bedroom bureau, according to Sullivan. The father said he and the two younger boys went into the kitchen and Oliver and his mother went into the bedroom.

"I heard my wife holler, 'Keep away from me, or I'll shoot you,'" said Sullivan, "and then we heard the shot. I ran in and the boy was lying on the bed with his mother on top of him. I took the gun out of her hand and stuffed it under the mattress. She got up and started screaming and ran out into the yard."

Mrs. Sullivan fainted on the frozen earth of the front yard, but started up in a moment, screaming and moaning, "Oh, my God! my God! I've killed him! Ollie! Ollie! Ollie!"

Mrs. Helen Hedde, a neighbor, was passing when the shot was fired and ran in through the kitchen door as Mrs. Sullivan ran out the front. Mrs. Johanna Kloes was called by Ivan and she and Mrs. Hedde calmed the hysterical mother.

CHAPTER XVI
—24—

By GEORGE MARSH

Author of
"Tollers of the Trail"
"The Whelps of the Wolf"
(Copyright by the Penn Publishing Co.)
(W. N. U. Service.)

For two days the watchers of the trail waited in their ambush, but no hunters or search party left the post. Then, one morning, at daylight, from the thick scrub of the shore south of Ogoke, two men looked long through binoculars at the chimneys of the snow-blanketed cabins, and smiled into each other's wind-burned faces when they saw that from more than half there rose no smoke of cooking fires. Of the group of tips of bush Indians which had dotted the clearing in October, but two now remained.

It was the turn of the old Ojibway and two young Indians to stand guard on the trail to the game country. Michel and Steele were too far to the south to overtake Lafamme's men, so they struck straight back to camp, confident of the outcome—for old Wagosh guarded the trail.

That morning, as the stars faded and dawn broke blue and bitter over the eastern ridges, an old man with hate in his heart prayed for the coming of one for whom he had waited long. With hoods pulled over frost-blackened faces from which rose the steaming columns of their breath, Wagosh and his two companions shuffled back and forth on their snowshoes, beating their shoulders with mittened hands, for the stinging cold pierced their carbon capotes.

"It may not be that he will come today," said the old Indian in his native tongue, "but if a Frenchman, short, with legs that curve like a bow, comes with others, they pass and we follow, until they separate to hunt. Then you will take the others, while I follow him alone—for he is mine. Wagosh, the fox, will know what to do."

The Indians nodded. They had heard his story.

But this morning the watchers of the trail had not long to wait. As the lifting sun filtered through the forest, stabbing the blue shadows with lanes of light, Wagosh suddenly stopped the whispered conversation wfa:

"Bisan! shish!"

A Crouched in a thicket of young fir, their guns stripped of their skin cases, the three stiffened, listening. Presently to their straining ears drifted the faint click of snowshoes. Pushing aside some low branches the Ojibway peered down the trail in the direction of the sound. After a space of breathless waiting, his companions saw his arm tremble. Then, shivering like a man chilled to the bone, the old Indian turned a face fierce with passion, and whispered:

"Let them pass. He has come!"

Swinging rapidly up the trail moved the stocky figure of Black Baptiste followed by an Indian whose eyes shifted furtively to right and left as he walked. When the two had passed from sight, three shapes, leaving the trail, followed like shadows, on muffled shoes. Two miles beyond, where the fresh tracks of a moose crossed the path in the snow, and the hunters from Ogoke separated, Wagosh left his friends, to pick up the webbed imprints of the larger shoes of his man.

Then two still hunts started through the soundless forest—the stalk of moose, and of man. Over the new snow, as swift and as noiseless as a wolf after ptarmigan, the hunter of Black Baptiste closed in. Evidently in doubt of the direction of the movement of the air, the Frenchman stopped to test it with his bare hand. Then he went on, until the sudden lengthening of the stride in the snow indicated that the moose had scented danger and started to travel.

With a curse the hunter lifted both shoulders in a gesture of defeat. The shifting air had betrayed him. He turned from the trail he had followed and struck out in a new direction. Shortly, as he stopped and knelt on a knee to tighten the thong of a shoe, a voice straightened him to his feet with a jerk, nervously fingering the trigger of his gun. His shifting eyes searched the inscrutable spruce that walled him in. Trapped, helpless, he flinched from the expected flash of the hidden rifle.

"Drop the gun!"

The fingers of the Frenchman relaxed. The gun slipped to the snow at his feet.

"Marche!" The command snapped on the frosty air like a whiplash.

Slowly the henchman of Lafamme obeyed the order of his concealed enemy. Then a crouching figure, with half-raised rifle, stole from a clump of young growth and followed.

A hundred feet from the gun, Baptiste, shaking with fear and rage, turned desperately on his captor. "What do you want?" he demanded in Ojibway.

The black eyes of Wagosh blazed with exultation. The lean face in the hood was pitiless. At last he looked into the face of his man.

"You know me—Wagosh—from Woman river?" He bit off the words as a drill bites steel.

The swart features of Black Baptiste went yellow at the words. He remembered the father of the girl at his cabin.

Stiff with fear, his staring eyes watched the black muzzle of the moving death slowly sighted on his heart. Then, as his nerves snapped and he leaped in desperation toward the crouched figure, there was a loud explosion. With a groan the Ojibway crumpled to the snow.

The dazed Frenchman, stopped short in his rush, rocked on his feet—then stumbled forward, grasping his knife. As he hurled himself, with a downward slash, on the heap in the snow, he met an upward thrust which buried the blade of Wagosh in his body.

Then on the white floor of the forest, a man blinded by flame and powder, and one mortally hurt struck and slashed until strength left their arms and they lay together, hunter and hunted, motionless, on the crimsoned snow.

There Steele and Michel found them.

"Knife fight!" cried the Iroquois. "What happen to Wagosh gun?" He picked up the cheap trade-gun with its burst breech. "Ah-hah! He get snow een de muzzle an' she bust wen he shoot."

"Too bad, poor old man! He could have shot Baptiste at the ambush, but he wanted to settle it alone—tell him who he was, I suppose."

"Yes, he mak' dis feller drop hees gun—den he stop heem for to talk," said Michel, examining the trail of Baptiste. "Wen Wagosh shoot an' de gun bust, de Frenchman jump on heem wid de knife."

Michel gently turned over the frozen body of the old Indian, exposing the face, powder-burned and torn, beyond recognition.

"By gar! He fist heem widout hees eyes!"

"Brave old Wagosh!" Steele looked, and turned away, sick at heart. He had liked the simple-hearted Ojibway. "I tell you dat eet was all right. Old Wagosh watch de trail."

"Yes, the trail was safe with Wagosh. Now he can rest in peace. He did what he came to do."

"I wish heem noch game een deer Happy Huntin' Groun'," added Michel. And the two returned to their camp and sent a sled to bring in the body to be cached under logs until spring, when it could be buried.

Robbed of the joy and solace of her beloved violin; too restless to read, Denise St. Onge sat one evening with her father, her head resting on the back of her chair, her eyes closed. For a half hour the factor had brooded over his future, oblivious of her presence. Then, suddenly aware of her silence, he glanced curiously at the girl's averted face.

From the closed eyes tears traced their way down her cheeks while the sensitive mouth quivered with the misery of her thoughts.

"Denise! You poor child!"

"You must not mind foolish tears," she said. "I miss my violin so."

He shook his head at the subtlety, then voiced the course of his thoughts. "If only they win at Ogoke and rid the country of that scoundrel, this will be a strong post. He will not dare to close it—I will defy him to."

"Yes, but what of me?" she groaned. "I have given him my promise."

The face of St. Onge flushed with passion. "The day you married that man I would shoot him and then myself."

She went to the factor and sitting on the arm of his chair, stroked his bowed head. "No, no; not that, not that, dear," she soothed. "I am not worth it."

He suddenly straightened, and asked: "You will show me that letter?"

"Yes, if you wish it." Denise took an envelope from her desk and handed it to her father, who opened the letter and read:

"Mademoiselle St. Onge:

"You may be interested to know that the American, Monsieur Steele, honored us with his presence on his way home to Nepigon in October. As he was drowned in the Jackfish rapids, I am at liberty to say that I found him irresistible and was preparing to accompany him to the railroad, when Monsieur Lafamme surprised us in his cabin.

Rose Bernard."

Rising, the factor faced the girl the hand holding the letter shaking from his emotion.

"And you believed this woman—took her word against his?"

"Why not? He admitted that Lafamme surprised them," she answered in a strained voice, avoiding her father's eyes. "What does it matter now? I have given my word."

"Will you tell me this?" he demanded. "You loved this man when he left for home in September? I know, for you were happy."

Her black eyes met his bravely. "When he left here I believed in a beautiful thing—but that, somehow, has died."

"If it died," he answered, "why, when you thought him dead, did you cry night after night—I heard you in your room; I knew from your playing—why was the shock—the joy, so great when he returned to fight for us?"

She did not answer.

"I believe you love him still, in spite of what you say. He has loved you from the first; I could see it. He is sacrificing much for us—proving his love for you every day, and yet you allow this lie of a low woman to poison your mind."

With a gesture of hopelessness, she rose to leave the room, avoiding his eyes.

"I do not know if they can save the post," said St. Onge. "I may have to leave the company—a ruined man. But I tell you this, that the woman who throws away the love of Monsieur Steele will live to be haunted by regret."

She turned a white face at the door, as she said: "You forget that I have given Monsieur Lafamme my promise."

It was a "poudre day" at Ogoke. In the gray dawn a tall figure had left the scrub of the shore, miles below and out of sight of the post, to examine the trail on the lake ice, which led south to the Rouge and the Jackfish. Michel, had smiled with satisfaction to find that a sled had passed since the fall of snow two nights before. The mystery which ringed the doomed post, as the forest rings a clearing, was doing its work. Unnerved by the fate of those who had gone downriver and into the hunting country, never to return, the people were slipping away from Ogoke in the night as from a spot plague-ridden. The day of Lafamme was nearing its sunset. There could be few left, now, to drink his whisky. He was finished. The moment for walking in on the trader and Big Antoine was at hand.

As he backtracked to the camp, the bold features of the Iroquois, in his fur hood, lit with joy as he gazed over the victory they had won—won with the toll and sweat of two months' ceaseless effort. He smacked his lips at the thought of meeting Lafamme—the man who had murdered in cold blood—planned the ruin of Walling River—who had dared insult Denise.

It would be a sweet moment, that, when he looked into the faces of the pair of cutthroats, Lafamme and Big Antoine.

He swung along over his backtracks, his snowshoes raising the powdery snow like dust, engrossed in plans for the future. As he entered some timber, thick with young growth, a rifle flashed on his flank! The man in the trail took a step forward—swayed, as his gun slipped from his hands—then lunged headlong to the snow and lay motionless.

For a space, in the windless morning, the forest was without sound. Then a chickadee called, and curious, sallied down to inspect the still shape in the trail. Presently a moose-bird croaked. Again silence shut in.

After an interval there was a movement in the thicket of young spruce. Branches were parted, to make way for a swart face from which sinister eyes gazed on the stricken thing in the snow.

Gun thrust forward, hammer cocked, the assassin cautiously left his ambush. Standing over the still body, face down, with a knee curiously bent under, he laughed in triumph, as he kicked viciously with the toe of his snowshoe at the back of the hooded head. But at the movement, the lifted foot in its snowshoe was gripped and held, while the head and shoulders of the man at his feet lunged into his legs, carrying him with a cry of surprise backward to the snow.

Hammered by the shoes which trapped and anchored their feet, the two fought; one, desperately for his life; the other, for the settlement of old scores—and this shot from the spruce. But the strength and fury of the raw-boned Iroquois soon wore down the man beneath him who frantically strained and twisted to break the grip on his throat.

Mythical Greek Hero

In Greek mythology Adonis was a beautiful young boy, beloved by Venus and Proserpine. They quarreled about his possession, but the dispute was settled by Jupiter, who decreed that Adonis should annually spend eight months with Venus in the upper world and four months with Proserpine in the lower world. Adonis was fatally wounded by a wild boar, during the chase, and was changed by Venus into an anemone. She yearly mourned him on the anniversary of his death. Shakespeare has commemorated the love of Venus for Adonis in a long descriptive poem entitled "Venus and Adonis."—Kansas City Times.

Lesson for July 11

THE CHILDHOOD AND EDUCATION OF MOSES

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 2:1-19; Acts 7:22.

GOLDEN TEXT—Train up a child in the way he should go and when he is old he will not depart from it.—Prov. 22:6.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Baby Moses. JUNIOR TOPIC—A Little Girl Helps. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Training for Life's Work. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Blessing of a Religious Home.

I. Moses' Parentage (v. 1).
Both father and mother were of Levitical stock. Being from the same tribe, they had a common bond of interest and sympathy. Amram had the good judgment to choose for a wife a woman who possessed sympathies and ambitions in harmony with his own.

II. Moses' Birth (v. 2).
Two children were born to Amram and Jochebed before Moses—Aaron and Miriam. However, Moses was the first one that his mother was assured was to be the deliverer of the chosen people. There was something striking about this child which caused her to believe that it was sent of God. She saw that he was a "goodly child." In Stephen's speech (Acts 7:20) he asserts that the child was "exceeding fair," or fair to God. No doubt his mother believed him to be the deliverer of his people and instilled that truth in his mind from childhood. Because of this belief she had confidence that somehow God would save him from the cruel hand of the king.

III. Moses' Preservation (vv. 3-8).
Though Pharaoh's edict was in force, his mother's faith was such as to cause her to ignore it and hide Moses for three months. The hiding of the child was not because of fear, but because of faith (Heb. 11:23). It was her faith which made her brave to ignore the king's edict. Though Moses' mother had faith, she did not ignore the proper use of means. Pharaoh's plan was that every male child should be destroyed, but God had planned otherwise for this child. Perhaps the story of how Noah and his family were saved in the ark suggested to his mother the expediency used, namely, the ark of bulrushes. Doubtless she was familiar with the place where Pharaoh's daughter came to bathe, and believed that somehow through her the child would be saved. She placed the ark at the particular place where it would attract attention. It is interesting to note the steps as pointed out by another, by which God's plan was carried out.

1. The mother's wit.
She placed the baby at the proper place and at the opportune time. Then, too, Miriam was no doubt stationed as a watch to aid in the affair (v. 4).

2. A faithful sister (v. 7).
Had Miriam not been faithful, humbly speaking, Moses' life would not have been preserved and properly nursed and educated at the proper time. This should be a worthy example for every sister, causing her to exercise watch and care over her brother.

3. A woman's curiosity (v. 5).
This strange object among the flags attracted the attention of Pharaoh's daughter and she directed her maids to bring it to her.

4. A woman's compassion (v. 6).
When the ark was brought and opened the baby wept. That woman has lost her feminine instinct who is unmoved with compassion at the cry of a lonely, motherless baby.

5. The baby's tears (v. 6).
The tears aroused her womanly instinct, and at the suggestion of Miriam the baby's mother was hired to nurse her own child. No one can nurse a child so well as its own mother.

IV. Moses' Education (v. 9).
Moses was first educated at his mother's knee.

During this time his character took form. Here his mind was filled with the Word of God and he was made acquainted with the Jewish hopes and prospects. In these early years no doubt the indomitable purpose was fixed to suffer affliction with the people of God rather than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season (Heb. 11:24-26). Seeing by faith the destiny of her child, Jochebed made good use of her time.

2. At the Egyptian court (v. 10).
It was here that he became acquainted with all the wisdom of the Egyptians (Acts 7:22). This was of great importance. It peculiarly qualified him to be the lawgiver and historian of his people.

Our Present Lot
Of nothing may we be more sure than this: If we cannot sanctify our present lot, we could sanctify no other. Our heaven and our Almighty Father are there or nowhere.—D. Martineau.

Purity
If a man is so pure-minded that he will not have anything to do with people who are not pure-minded his purity takes him out of the category of humanity.—Henry Ward Beecher.

Great Personages of the Bible

By
REV. LEONARD A. BARRETT

Mary the Virgin

MARY THE VIRGIN was of royal descent from David. She was also a blood relative of Elizabeth, who was the wife of Zacharias, the priest. It was an unwritten law that only members of the royal families were permitted to unite in marriage with the priests. Though of royal blood, she was poor. Evidence for this is seen in that Joseph was a carpenter, which trade did not bring large financial returns; and also from the value of the gift Mary and Joseph offered as a sacrifice when they brought Jesus into the temple. The sacrifice consisted of a pair of turtle doves and two young pigeons, a small gift as compared with those of the wealthier class of her day.

One of the most interesting experiences in the biography of Mary was her attitude of mind and heart when she was informed by the shepherds of the important place her son would occupy in the future history of her nation. To her the information came as a great mystery. She could not comprehend why she should be regarded with such special favor. The writer of her biography informs us that instead of giving expression to her feeling in wild excitement and overstrained nervous tension, she remained eloquently silent. "Mary kept all these sayings, pondering them in her heart." No one but a mother knows the secrets which she hides away in the sanctuary of her heart.

Not only was the prophecy concerning Jesus locked up in Mary's heart; she also treasured there the mystery which surrounded her child Jesus. She could not altogether adjust herself to His dual nature. Truly He was her son, but He was also the Son of God. Pathetic is the incident for Mary when she discovered that after leaving the temple she had lost her son. She sought for Him diligently, but nowhere could He be found. Upon returning to the temple, hoping that she might find Him in the crowd, imagine her consternation when she discovered that Jesus, though but thirteen years of age, was occupying a distinguished place in the temple. He was arguing with the intellectual men of His day upon matters of the law. Even more mysterious was the reply of Jesus when Mary spoke to Him about His absence. "Knew ye not that I must be in My Father's house." After this incident, He returns to the humble home in Nazareth, but Mary, perplexed and bewildered, "kept all these things in her heart."

A mother's pride and confidence in her son is beautifully portrayed through an incident which occurred in Cana. The occasion is a wedding feast and the refreshments which were furnished for the feast had given out. Mary interceded with Jesus in behalf of the guests and the embarrassment was relieved by the first miracle which Jesus performed. The confidence which Mary had in her Son is expressed in her command to the servants, "Whatsoever He saith unto you, do it."

Upon another occasion Mary, mother-like, desired to speak with Jesus, doubtless upon a subject of vital concern to herself, but which Jesus felt was not as important as the work of preaching and healing. While Jesus was speaking to the crowds of people, Mary stood outside waiting for an opportunity to speak with Him. When Jesus was informed of her wish, He made a reply to His followers which was a frank declaration of His spiritual mission. Motherlike, Mary again "kept all this in her heart."

At the crucifixion, the concern which Jesus had for His mother is very beautiful and tender. He provides for her future care and gives her a parting assurance of His love and devotion. But Jesus, her Son, whom she perhaps never did thoroughly understand, was being crucified. Again, the only place where Mary could safely hide her sorrow and her pain was in the sanctuary of her heart.

This attitude of Mary, of hiding things in her heart, stands out as a very unique characteristic of her nature. The only safe place of sure retreat is the human heart.

The wisdom of the heart is many times more valuable than the wisdom of the mind. "Out of the heart are the issues of life." The lamps of courage, sympathy, and strength are lit within the temple of the heart. The real man is always, "the hidden man of the heart."

King Honors Proofreader

In recognition of his fifty years' work as proofreader and stereotyper at the British National Institute for the Blind, John Andrew Ford, who has been blind since youth, has received a message of greeting from King George. To Mr. Ford belongs the proud record of having written the whole of the Bible in Braille by hand—a task which involved some 21,000,000 blows with a hammer.

Made High Grade
The teacher in the Franklin (N. H.) kindergarten asked one of her young pupils what the eyes were for and was promptly answered "To see with." Another was asked what the nose was for and the answer was correctly given. Then she asked the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Watts, "What are your ears for?" The child replied, "To keep clean." She got a 100 mark.—Boston Globe.

COULD NOT PUT ON HER SHOES

Mrs. Daugherty Was so Weak

In a little town of the middle West, was a discouraged woman. For four months she had been in such poor health that she could not stoop to put on her own shoes. Unable to do her work, unable to go out of doors or to enjoy a friendly chat with her neighbors, life seemed dark indeed to Mrs. Daugherty.

Then one day, a booklet was left at her front door. Idly she turned the pages. Soon she was reading with quickened interest. The little booklet was filled with letters from women in conditions similar to hers who had found better health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I began taking the Vegetable Compound," Mrs. Daugherty writes, "and after I took the third bottle, I found relief. I am on my eleventh bottle and I don't have that trouble any more, and feel like a different woman. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to everyone I see who has trouble like mine, and you can use these facts as a testimonial. I am willing to answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Ed. DAUGHERTY, 1308 Orchard Ave., Muscatine, Iowa.

SAFFRON SKIN FROM SOUR BILE

SOUTH GEORGIAN DRIVES OUT ENORMOUS QUANTITY SOUR BILE WITH DODSON'S LIVER TONE.

After a long period of the worst form of weakness and the terrible feeling of sickness that comes from a system loaded with sour bile, Mr. Sam Puckett says: "When I kept getting those bilious attacks reckon I took enough calomel to kill a mule. Got worse all the time. Finally I turned saffron color all over. My wife happened to read about Dodson's Liver Tone in the Weekly Constitution, so we drove to town and got a bottle. It was like magic. It drove quarts of sour bile out of me as black as ink. From that day I have felt as if I had a new liver, and whenever I begin to feel weary and bilious, with no appetite, a dose of Dodson's Liver Tone puts me to rights."

This wonderful, quick-acting, liver starter ought to be in every household, if for no other reason than to stop the use of dangerous calomel. Dodson's Liver Tone is pleasant to take, even for children, and never makes you sick.

Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle costs but a few cents, and if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, you have only to ask for your money back.

Texas Utilities Co.
Makes Reductions
In Power Rates

pay a fixed service charge, which, in many cases, would work a hardship that, although justified by actual facts, would cause much complaint. It is true, that while we do not under such a scheme of rate making ask a fixed charge, whether current is or not, we do not ask that a higher rate be paid up to a certain proper proportional point than would be required in case of a demand rate scheme, and, further, in consideration of these higher prices being paid for this amount, the Company has very low rates for the excess. With the scheme for rate making just explained, the customer only pays for the actual current used, while with the demand charge plus the current use charge, he pays for the demand, regardless of whether any current is used or not.

It is merely calling attention to an obvious fact to say that any rate, regardless of how made, to be lasting has to give the company a reasonable return. The point, therefore, to be borne in mind when making a rate, is to try to arrive at a system so simple as to be readily understood by the customer so that he can check the current on his bills when he receives them, and also by this simplicity and ease application assist the company to eliminate all complaints caused through errors in billing.

In putting into effect the optional power rate the managers should see to it that the consumer is advised fully as to the difference between the present schedule of rates and the Optional Power Rate. To illustrate: If you compare the Optional Power Rate with the present power rate to a one kilowatt connection based on average hours use per day for a month (26 days of service), you will find that the saving under the Optional Rate will be substantially as follows:

65 hours use per month of installed capacity, or an average of 2 1-2 hours use per day, a saving of 5 per cent, 130 hours use per month of installed capacity, or an average of 5 hours use per day, a saving of 8 1-2 per cent, 195 hours use per month of installed capacity, or an average of 7 1-2 hours use per day, a saving of 10 per cent, 260 hours use per month of installed capacity, or an average of 10 hours use per day, a saving of 15 per cent, 325 hours use per month of installed capacity, or an average of 12 1-2 hours use per day, a saving of 18 1-2 per cent, 390 hours use per month of installed capacity, or an average of 15 1-2 hours use per day, a saving of 21 per cent, 455 hours use per month of installed capacity, or an average of 17 1-2 hours use per day, a saving of 24 per cent, 520 hours use per month of installed capacity, or an average of 20 hours use per day, a saving of 27 per cent, 595 hours use per month of installed capacity, or an average of 22 1-2 hours use per day, a saving of 30 per cent.

If the consumer had not used his connected capacity in case of an average of 1 1-2 hours use per day, his bill at the end of the month would be the same under the present rate as it would be under the Optional Power Rate. In other words, as already explained, the Optional Rate is intended to take care of the consumer who desires to use his service, and to encourage the long hour user to take electric service. As indicated, this is to the advantage of the light consumer and the short hour user as well as to the long hour user. The Company has seen fit to make it an Optional Rate in order not to put any customer on the demand rates who desired to remain on the present power schedule. The Optional Power schedule is as follows:

Applicable On All Power Service
As Follows:

$1.00 per month for each kilowatt connected (figured from manufacturer's name plate data) plus energy charges as follows:

First 60 hours use per month of each kilowatt connected 5c per K. W. H.

Next 120 hours use per month of each kilowatt connected 4c per K. W. H.

Next 240 hours per month of each kilowatt connected 3c per K. W. H.

Excess of 420 hours use per month of each kilowatt connected 2c per K. W. H.

Minimum monthly bill $1.25 for each kilowatt connected. In no case shall a connection be figured at less than one (1) kilowatt.

The Texas Utilities Company management takes pride in the fact that during the period of high prices due to the World War, all rates were kept within its franchise requirements, and that in the midst of a tremendous building program it has made a number of substantial reductions in rates within the past year.

Madrid.—By royal decree there are to be Sunday meetings throughout the land at which city officials must expound to adults of both sexes the principles of citizenship, public health and other matters.

Young men far from the parental home should be more than mildly interested in the announcement that it is now possible to send a check by telegraph in only seven minutes.

This world will be happier just as soon as it gets over the habit of counting the killed, wounded and missing after every holiday. And the way to get over that dismal habit is not to have any killed, wounded and missing.

Oil Driller Drops Dead

From Dancing Too Much
Chadron, Neb.—J. H. Merrill, driller for the J. F. Duthie oil interests, dropped dead from overexertion while dancing here. Because of his death, extensive oil drilling operations here have ceased temporarily. Merrill was well known for his work in developing wells in the Salt Creek fields in Wyoming.

A GREAT POULTRY REMEDY
Given fowls in drinking water or mixed in feed thoroughly rids them of all blood-sucking lice, all mites, fleas and blue bugs, destroys in them all intestinal worms and parasites. Its formula is unique and other ingredients known remedies for improving the appetite, purifying the blood, toning the system and increasing disease. Better prevent than try to cure. Contains no alcohol or poison. Can be given to all ages of chicks, old fowls and turkeys, any kind of weather with good results.
The cost is very small—only one dollar bottle will last 100 fowls more than 100 days. The manufacturers are anxious for all poultry raisers to try it 60 days at their risk on the following conditions: After using 60 days if your flock has not improved in health, produced more eggs—eggs that hatch stronger and healthier young chicks—come back to your dealer—he is authorized to refund your money.

Looks Like Joke on Bernard Shaw

Bernard Shaw is among the celebrities of today who are "hopeless" from the autograph hunter's point of view, who know that it is useless to bring out their little books and ask for his signature. Here, however, is the story of how Lady Swaything's children scored off him when they were young.

Keen autograph hunters, the young Montagus realized that to write to G. B. S. in the ordinary way was hopeless. So they composed a letter, in which they stated that they wished to call their new guinea pig "Bernard Shaw," but they did not like to do so without his permission, for fear he might object. By the next post came a postcard bearing the words: "I object most strongly," and the signature of George Bernard Shaw.—London Daily Chronicle.

An English visitor at the North shore was invited to drop in at White Court by a friend to see President Coolidge. Naturally, he was delighted over the honor.

"Are you spoofing?" he asked his host.

"Not at all," replied the latter.

"Do you mean that I may shake hands and converse with the President of the United States?"

"Yes," he was informed, "and you will have to do most of the talking."

Just before starting for White Court the Englishman called up his American friend. "I say, old top," said he, "shall I have to put on a morning suit to see your President?"

"No," he was told, "this is a republic. Come in your bathing suit if you have no other."—Washington Star.

New Zealand's Caves
Stalactite caves have been discovered near the head waters of the Waikato, New Zealand's principal river. They are stated to be superior to the Walthomo limestone caves, 120 miles from Auckland. The existence of these Waikato caves has been jealously guarded by the Maoris, as they used them as a burial ground for ancient tribal chiefs. The caves are magnificent in grandeur and brilliantly illuminated by millions of glow-worms. The Walthomo caves have a great reputation. They are illuminated by magnesium, and one is entered by a boat.—Family Herald.

ROAD NOTICE TO NON-RESIDENT LAND OWNERS

State of Texas, Bailey County, ss. We, the undersigned Jury of Freeholders, citizens of said Bailey County, Texas, duly appointed by the Commissioners' Court of Bailey County, Texas, at its July Term, 1925, to view and establish a First class Road from and to the points named below and having been duly sworn as the law directs, hereby give notice that we will, on the 5th day of September, 1925, assemble at the beginning point of said road and thence proceed to survey, locate, view, mark out and establish said road, beginning at a point where the North line of Section 24, Block X, of the W. D. and F. W. Johnson Subdivision intersects the North Right-of-way line of the P. & N. T. Railway; thence west along the section line between Sections 24 and 25, 20 and 21, 12 and 13, 4 and 5, all in Block X; thence continuing West on the section line between Sections Nos. 4 and 5 in Block Z to the Southwest corner of said Section No. 4; thence North on the section line between Sections Nos. 4 and 13 to the Northeast corner of said Section No. 13; thence West on the section line between Sections Nos. 13 and 14, 19 and 20, 29 and 30, 35 and 36, 45 and 46, all in Block Z, Bailey County, Texas, and ending at the Northwest corner of said Section No. 45 and the Southwest corner of said Section No.

And we do hereby notify W. H. Henson, C. M. Humphreys, A. J. Hays, William Kelly, Jacob Braun, First National Bank of Frederick, Oklahoma, A. W. Wells, Geo. W. Van Camp, Harry D. Huyck, Fairview Land and Cattle Co., Mrs. Anna E. Riser, William Dittman, J. C. Paul, H. R. Hamilton, F. N. Holmes, H. Berkson, Mary B. Darlington, Fred A. Schuermeyer, C. K. Warren, Sylvia E. Gray, William Lohmeyer, Elmer G. Gustafson, P. & N. T. Railway Company, John C. Burch and any and all persons owning lands through which said road may run, that we will at the same time proceed to assess the damages identical to the opening and establishment of said road, when they may, either in person or by agent or attorney, present to us a written statement of the amount of damages, if any, claimed by them.

Witness our hands this 25th day of July, A. D. 1925.

INTERNATIONAL SYSTEM

LONE STAR PORTLAND CEMENT

For Tallest Concrete Building in the World

In the construction of the tallest reinforced concrete building in the world—the Medical Arts Building in Dallas—LONE STAR Cement was used. Every barrel of LONE STAR Cement used on this job was tested and retested.

This is just one of the very many large engineering developments in Texas built with LONE STAR Cement.

The Galveston Causeway and the new $5,000,000 Santa Fe Building and Terminal development in Dallas are but two of the many well known projects into which LONE STAR Cement entered. During the past five years over 1,000,000 barrels of LONE STAR Cement have gone into Texas highways and another 1,000,000 barrels into Texas street paving.

That discriminating architects, engineers and contractors specify LONE STAR Cement for their jobs is not surprising, for this cement exceeds U. S. Standard Specifications by over 50%.

20 years' experience in cement making, combined with many years of painstaking research, has resulted in the perfection of the International Wet Blending Process. Under this system, the chemist and superintendent can always come within 1/20 of 1% of the quality at which they aim.

Yet LONE STAR costs no more.

It has our unqualified endorsement.

Irrigated Fruit

Makes Big Yield

T. E. Millen, one of our progressive farmers with an irrigated farm and orchard brought to the Journal office Saturday of last week a sample of his apples, pears and peaches. They were as fine as we ever saw anywhere in our life. Many thanks Mr. Millen. He had some of the clings and also the Alberta. Many people saw the fruit and several traveling men that make a great territory say they were the best ever seen in Texas.

Mr. Millen has several hundred bushels of Albertas in his orchard at this time. He will make some good money on his orchard this year. In the orchard he has one crab apple tree that he sold $10 worth of fruit off it.

This is a great fruit country, and under irrigation will make very large fruit.

Fruit can be successfully grown in the dry land districts, if the grower will take good care of his trees. For example Mr. Kistler has some very choice peaches grown on dry land. G. Kurz has some of the finest plums you ever saw in your life, raised without irrigation.

Newspaper Man Retires

With $50,000 Cash

Arthur Brisbane, probably the highest paid writer in the world and who is considered an authority on any subject upon which he writes, says that the country newspaper is an advertising medium that will do more toward increasing business for the merchant than any other means. Brisbane is a practical thinker and his thoughts are given to the public that they may benefit from his study and observation of hundreds of business enterprises. His support of advertising is summed up in the following concise paragraphs:

"A country editor, having worked for thirty years retired with $50,000 capital. He explained as follows: 'I attribute my ability to retire with $50,000 to the fact that I worked very hard and saved every cent—and to the death of an uncle who left me $49,999.50.'

"Ten thousand country editors could testify that there is more truth than humor in that anecdote. The most useful underpaid and earnest body of men in the Nation are the editors of country newspapers. The pathetic fact is that they would be highly prosperous men if business and advertisers realized the truth, that the country newspapers, in proportion to its circulation, is the best advertising medium in the country."

Sweet Potato

Expert Here Tonight

M. E. Bradley, of Portales, N. M. will be here tonight to talk sweet potato business to the growers, and those interested in the business. He has spent his life time with the sweet potato. He is the originator of the famous Bradley Yam. Introduced it into the Portales Valley and was greatly responsible for the success of the industry over there. He said, we had a better chance to make a go of the industry here than the people of Portales, as we had so much shallow water and such fine land.

If you are interested in seeing the potato business put on here in good style, come out tonight and hear what he has to say. Sweet potatoes can make Muleshoe one of the best known towns in Texas if the people will get right into the business, and do it under the supervision of an expert.

ROAD NOTICE TO NON-RESIDENT LAND OWNERS

State of Texas, Bailey County, ss. We, the undersigned Jury of Freeholders, citizens of said Bailey County, Texas, duly appointed by the Commissioners' Court of Bailey County, Texas, at its July 13th Term, 1925, to view and establish a First class Road from and to the points hereinafter mentioned and described and having been duly sworn as the law directs, hereby give notice that we will, on the 5th day of September, 1925, assemble at the beginning point of said road and thence proceed to survey, locate, view, mark out and establish said road, beginning at a point where the County line between Bailey and Farmer Counties cuts the Section line between Sections Nos. 15 and 18, Block "X" of the W. D. and F. W. Johnson Subdivision; thence south along the section line between Sections Nos. 15 and 18, 14 and 19, 13 and 20, 12 and 21 all in Block "X," Bailey County, Texas and ending at the Southeast corner of Section No. 12 and the Southwest corner of Section No. 21, Block "X."

And we do hereby notify C. C. Coffman, A. J. Hays, Walter Robson, H. R. Cress, J. H. Plummer, Chas. Wellsandt, Wm. Winklehake, Mary E. Wells, First National Bank of Frederick, Oklahoma, Jacob Braun, and any and all persons owning lands through which said road may run, that we will at the same time proceed to assess the damages identical to the opening and establishment of said road, when they may, either in person or by agent or attorney, present to us a written statement of the amount of damages, if any, claimed by them.

Witness our hands this 25th day of July, A. D. 1925.

It Isn't The Price You Pay!

Your Satisfaction is What Counts!

Satisfaction Means Many Things:

- 1 Prompt, courteous service (To save your time and temper)
- 2 Dependable goods of high quality (They have a reputation you can trust)
- 3 FAIR PRICE (That's good value)

But Price Comes Last

Two inferior articles cost more than one good one---and gives less satisfaction. You wouldn't buy mouldy cake because it's cheap, OR leaky dish pans and call them bargains. You want the most for your money---in service, satisfaction and price. We specialize in these things---

Experimenting in Egg Production.

The Chamber of Commerce at Brady is sponsoring a $10,000 chicken farm, the purpose of which is to show that there is money in the production of infertile eggs in that locality. The hope is that such a showing may be made that enough farmers will go into the business to ship a carload of eggs a day from Brady. Brady is already engaged largely in the turkey business and the farmers do not have to be shown that turkeys pay. Turkeys are a one season crop, the market lasting only through the fall and early winter months, but eggs are marketable every day in the year.

Weatherford Wants Music.

Weatherford is not satisfied merely to be known as the biggest watermelon market in Texas, shipping a thousand carloads a year. The city is considering the support of a municipal band by taxation under the new law permitting incorporated towns to levy a tax for that purpose. Weatherford has long been a place noted for its culture and for its interest in everything educational and upbuilding, and it should support its band liberally to sustain that reputation. About seventy Texas towns have already voted such a tax or are now considering it. An Austin music merchant says that the sale of band instruments has increased 300 per cent in Texas in the last three years. Texas likes good music.

Railroads Fighting Over Texas.

Not many years ago anybody who could organize a company and get it financed could build a railroad wherever he pleased. Since the government fixes and controls railroad rates and governs railroad competition, it also controls railroad building to prevent roads from overcrowding a territory. Several roads have asked for permission to build extensions into the prosperous plains country of Texas and the application of each road is being fought by the others that are either in the territory or wanting to build there. Some places urge that they are without roads and need railroad facilities close at hand without being forced to go many miles to a railroad. Other places charge that the roads they have, being without competition, do not give good service. The country wants all the railroads it can get because it gets better service with competition; the roads want to serve as large a territory and as many people as possible without competition. There is a big fight on in the Plains country over railroad building.

Consolation Over California.

Texas people who have been sweating in heat ranging from 100 to 110 degrees are getting some consolation out of the report that the thermometer has been at 114 in Sacramento and so high at Fresno that they have quit reporting it. Friends writing back say that the pleasure of sleeping under blankets does not compensate for the intense heat of the day. They are also felicitating themselves that they have escaped earthquakes so far. The Texas stay-at-homes are beginning to think that ours is after all a pretty good climate. Those who look ahead a bit say that in a few years the Magic Valley of the Rio Grande will surpass California in its tropical beauty, and that in the Davis mountains Texas will find all the delights of California nights without having to cross the deserts or sleep in the fear of an earthquake.

Candidates Announcing Early.

Already candidates for governor are announcing in Texas and it is about a year before the first primary. The prospects now are that there will be at least a half dozen candidates and probably none of them will hope to do more in the first primary than to get into the run-off primary. Politics in Texas is about the most uncertain game into which any one can go. The surprising thing is that so many are ready to run for offices that pay so little either in money or in honors. This column does not give political advice—in fact it stays clear of politics—but it is not amiss to advise the voters not to pledge their support to any one until it is learned just who will be candidates and upon what they will base their candidates. It is too early for issues to be formed.

Poor Letter Writers.

It is surprising the inattention that even business men give to answering letters. A Texas editor writes that only one out of a number of Texas editors responded to a recent request and added that "Texas editors as a rule must be poor business men. If I may judge from their attention to business letters." This writer has had about the same experience. Even where a card was enclosed for reply to what was to him an important matter only about one in three answered. Most successful business men make it a rule to give some kind of an answer to every letter that seems to solicit attention.

Short Corn Crop.

Dallas, Tex.— Estimate of the shortest corn crop in 30 years, following closely upon reports indicating exceedingly short wheat and oat yields, coupled with steadily declining condition of the cotton crop were regarded overshadowing factors in the monthly business condition report issued several days ago by the eleventh district federal reserve bank at Dallas. The low yield of feed crops mean that farmers will be forced to make heavy purchases of feed.

Duo-Reflex Hookup Further Improved

Another Stage of Audio Frequency Added to Three-Tube Set.

The popular duo-reflex circuit has been further improved by the engineers in the electric research laboratories. Another stage of audio-frequency amplification has been added to the three-tube set. This gives the circuit greater receiving range and more power on the distant stations. Simplicity of construction and ease of operation and tuning has not been sacrificed by the additional stage, and no extra controls, other than a rheostat, have been added to the circuit. The selectorformer can still be used in place of the variocoupler, or variometer and condenser that is sometimes used to tune the circuit. The selectorformer is essentially a fixed coupler for use in any circuit where a transference of energy must take place between the aerial circuit and the grid of the first tube. The tuning is accomplished by means of a variable condenser across the secondary windings in place of the inefficient method of taps on the primary and a variable secondary. In addition to reducing the losses that are usually present when taps are used, the selectorformer turns the reflex into a set that can be calibrated as to wavelength. The location of a station can be logged by the number of the dial where it came in and be tuned in at some future time by setting the dial at their former positions.

A Marked Saving.

A decided saving of tubes and battery current results by the use of this type of circuit. The equivalent of two stages of radio-frequency amplification, detector, and three stages of audio-frequency amplification, are obtained by the four tubes.

I have worked out a kink for winding low-loss coils of the plain efficient type. Instead of the usual bottle as a base for winding I employ a cardboard tube, writes a fan in Radio Digest. When winding coils on a bottle there is always a bending of the coil when you try to remove it for use. My way preserves the coil's desired shape.

To begin, place the end of wire in cut at A and bend under, inside the tube, then place pieces of paper tape, as shown in the drawing. When the coil is completed seal it with the tape. Then press on B and the base of the coil becomes smaller and the coil is easily removed. The coil does not slip while winding it.

SHORT CIRCUITS

Always connect telephones in series. A high-loss condenser is as bad as a leaky one.

Give the set a daily sun bath to keep down the moisture.

Heavily insulated wire may be used for the aerial as well as bare wire. A grid leak is essential to the proper operation of the detector tube. Shielding, when improperly installed, introduces excessive losses in a set.

Single-circuit sets will bring in stations just as strong as two-circuit ones.

Bare copper wire of No. 18 gauge makes a good connector between instruments, and is sometimes preferable to the harder busbar.

One of the most valuable accessories to a tube set is a switch by means of which the batteries may be readily connected and disconnected.

"TUCKAWAY" HATS POPULAR; LAST WORD IN SWEATERDOM

LIFE is just one hat after another in the career of the up-to-date young woman. Her collection of headwear, if exhibited altogether, would serve as a millinery calendar, besides reflecting occupations and pastimes. Here is a group of small hats that spell vacations, journeys, visits and motor tours. The mode commends them and calls them "luggage hats" or "tuckaway hats," and they are labeled sweater no longer as a single item in her wardrobe, but rather in terms of a collection which shall include a knitted blouse for every occasion.

Outstanding style attributes which bespeak the last word in sweaterdom may be itemized as follows: Long sleeves, smart necklines, novelty stitch, color diversity. Especially do the newer sweaters emphasize the long sleeve as evidence of being "the latest."

because they may be tucked away in a suitcase or other luggage and be taken along on any kind of journeying.

Nearly all these soft, collapsible hats are made of silks and many of them are machine stitched—the machine stitching done in several bright colors. Velvet pipings and facings, braided embroidery and ribbons embellish them, or trimming is made of the silk or satin used in the hat. Their crowns are made in four or more sections and sometimes velvet and silk, or satin, are alternated in these sections, but the dust-resisting qualities of silk or satin make them very practical. The favorite colors for general wear are black, brown, tan, brown and tan combinations and navy. The off-the-face brims vary in width and contour and may be adjusted to suit the face. Similar hats, in white silk or white and color combinations, are popular for sports wear, but they will vanish with the passing of warm

Indeed, according to the revised by-laws of the mode, a knitted slipper or jumper must be sleeved wrist length to be right.

As to necklines the choice is between turtle or V-neck, or convertible collar. As the autumn days approach, the turtle neck, with its high swathing manner, will be more and more appreciated. At present moment favor is divided between the informal cool-looking open V-necks and the high wrinkled effects, which carry lots of style, if not of comfort.

When one considers the novelty-stitch feature, there is much to think about. Shell, ripple, blister and ribbed stitch each contribute their best to the knitting of the modern sweater.

As to color, it manifests itself in beautiful pastel tones, in vivid solid shades and especially in combinations of unusual men. The now-so-popular balbriggan slippers feature exquisite monotone tints, pink, balse de rose and powder blue qualifying as favorites weather, while the dark silk hat will hold over into early fall.

Dressier summer millinery, which one must carry in a hat box or send ahead by parcel post, continues to be made of transparent braids or filmy materials and is rather simply trimmed. Velvet bindings, collars or sashes of velvet ribbon, ending in bows, are popular, and roses or water lilies set in a cluster at one side, indicate the survival of the fittest in flowers for late summer millinery.

Now that the separate skirt and blouse idea is the central theme around which much of present-day costume design revolves, knitted slippers, jumpers and the like have taken on a most pronounced air of importance. Indeed, so much so, that milady of fashion finds it the proper thing to consider the among the delectable daintier shades. The scarlet knitted jumper is also an expression of the mode. Color combinations are interpreted through heather effects, stripes and checks, and multi-color interknittings which baffle description.

One of the chief charms of the sweater here shown, which is an advance fall model, is its unique color combination which is attained through stripes of blended tan, gold and orange, the new random stitch being employed in the knitting thereof. This handsome model gives credence to advance information that conservative types of smartly tailored aspect will characterize the sweaters for the coming months.

HORSERADISH FLAVOR IN SAUCE FOR BEETS

Most Delicious When They Are Boiled in Skins.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Tiny, tender, new beets are most delicious to many people when simply boiled in their skins, peeled, and served sliced or diced with plenty of butter, and salt and pepper for seasoning. Medium-sized beets may be cooked so that they are also very good, and served in the same way. The time of cooking may be shortened by paring and dicing them before boiling. An acid flavor is often liked with beets, and sometimes when vinegar is used as the acid, a little sugar is added also. Various condiments combine well with the flavor of beets, particularly horseradish and ginger. The United States Department of Agriculture has found the recipes below satisfactory when these flavors are liked.

Beets With Sweet-and-Sour Sauce.

8 beets diced	4 tablespoonfuls butter (cream may be used instead)
1 cupful vinegar (dilute with water if very strong)	2 teaspoonfuls salt
1/2 cupful sugar (less if desired)	Few grains pepper
	1 tablespoonful flour

Boil the beets until tender. Mix all ingredients, cook until thick, stirring constantly. Let stand ten minutes over hot water to blend flavors. The sugar and vinegar must be properly balanced. If the amount of either is increased or decreased, the other must be changed accordingly.

For variety two tablespoonfuls of freshly grated horseradish may be added just before serving; or a few grains of nutmeg, ginger, or cinnamon may be cooked with the sauce. The addition of one-half cupful or more cream or rich milk imparts a delicious flavor and makes the sauce a beautiful pink color.

Apple Blossom Soup.

The addition of three cupfuls of rich milk, or half milk and half cream to the sweet-and-sour beets cooked as above will result in a delicately colored soup, resembling apple blossoms in color and of very good flavor. The mixture should stand for 15 or 20 minutes, and then poured through a coarse strainer to remove the beets, which are to be served separately at some other meal. The soup may be garnished with a teaspoonful of whipped cream or cooked beets cut in fancy shapes.

VEGETABLES SERVED RAW FOR CHILDREN

Everybody Needs All Three Kinds of Vitamins.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

"Have you had your vitamins today?" is one way of turning a popular form of slogan into a practical, thought-provoking question. Everybody needs all three kinds of vitamins in the daily diet, but in the family where there are growing children it is especially important to give constant attention to providing vitamin-rich foods regularly and in abundance. Liberal amounts of vegetables and fruits, particularly if eaten raw, are among the best sources of vitamins.

A salad once a day is a good medium for incorporating raw vegetables in a menu. Children can learn to like salads when they are very young—in fact, as soon as they are old enough to eat the various ingredients, which should be grated, shredded, or otherwise prepared suitably for them. If the dressing is not too sour they will usually eat a salad as a matter of course when they see the other members of the family eating it. Raw vegetable salads are quick and easy to prepare, and refreshing to eat. When there is only a little of this or that vegetable on hand, a salad disposes of all the odds and ends and enriches the diet.

To those of us who are accustomed to serving salads frequently, the idea of raw vegetables in salad does not suggest anything particularly novel. When we think of a vegetable salad, we usually have in mind such uncooked materials as chopped celery, sliced tomatoes and cucumbers, radishes, spring onions, water cress, lettuce, romaine, endive, escarole, chicory, Chinese or celery cabbage, or ordinary cabbage in cold slaw. Raw red and green peppers are often shredded or ground up and added to salads for their flavor and color.

Two vegetables which are more frequently served cooked than raw might well be added to the list of uncooked ingredients, the United States Department of Agriculture suggests, for it has been found that both are high in vitamins in their raw state. These are carrots and rutabagas or yellow turnips. White turnips may also be used raw, but the rutabaga variety is exceptionally valuable. Raw carrots, turnips and radishes are best when sliced very thin, diced or grated. When grated, radishes and turnips should be squeezed dry.

An infinite number of combinations may be made with these raw vegetable salad ingredients, according to the supplies available. Interesting color effects may be obtained by blending various vegetables. Some sort of leafy base or bed is generally liked in a salad, but is not indispensable. If there is a foundation of lettuce, cabbage, cress, or other green vegetable, however, it is intended to be eaten and not left on the plate! Cabbage is almost always available, even when lettuce is out of season.

All uncooked salad vegetables should be lightly sprinkled with salt, just as they are being served. The dressing used is a matter of individual preference. French, mayonnaise, or boiled dressing may be liked. Lettuce and other greens must always be cold, crisp and dry, otherwise the dressing will be diluted and will not adhere. Salad greens can be kept crisp and fresh, even without ice, by wrapping them in a damp cloth or paper, or by shutting them up in an airtight jar and setting them in a cool place.

CHERRIES EASILY CANNED OR PRESERVED

Fill the Jelly Glasses Carefully.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The family, of course, should not be stinted on fresh cherries, but if one has a surplus they may be easily canned or made into a delicious jelly by adding commercial or homemade pectin extract. To can the cherries, pack them in hot jars, and cover with boiling sirup. Use a thick sirup for sour cherries (one part sugar to one part water), and a medium sirup for sweet cherries (one part sugar to two parts water). Or, remove the pits, add sugar as desired, bring to the boiling point, and pack. If the cherries are packed cold the jars should be processed 25 minutes in a hot water bath, counting the time from the moment the surrounding water is actively boiling. If they are packed hot, a five-minute process is recommended to insure keeping and to create a vacuum seal.

Miscellaneous Circular No. 24, "Timetables for Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables" may be obtained while the supply lasts by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, and will be found helpful throughout the canning season. If one plans to make cherry jelly, using pectin, it would be well to send for Department Circular 254, "Home-made Apple and Citrus Pectin Extract and Their Use in Jelly Making," which is also free while the supply lasts.
