WHERE WILL IT END?

For the saloonkeepers who were put out of business by the advent of prohibition throughout the land, none has any sympathy. The saloonkeepers brought their punishment upon themselves. By their unwillingness to obey the laws made to regulate their business, after they were licensed by the law to carry it on and by their continued law violations they and their business became a stench in the nostrils of the public and they had to go. Now the same leadership among the people that made possible the growth of prohibition sentiment until the saloon was wiped out, is going into other fields and gives promof destroying its ability to accomplish things by extremes equal to those which destroyed the saloonkeeper and his business. Many things can be overcone.

Since the adoption of the Eighteenth amendment and the passage of the Volstead act, prohibition leaders, prohibitionists so called because they wanted to prohibit the sale of liquor, have become almost rabid in the use of the word prohibition and are seeking to prohibit everything.
