Alvin York, Hero.

(Wichita Falls Record-News.) Sergeant Alvin York faces the loss of his fine farm in Tennessee because he sees no way to meet a mortgage of $12,500 that will fall due this autumn. The outstanding American here of the world war who singlehanded captured 132 Germans in the Argonne on Oct. 18, 1918, has found the drop in corn and produce prices in the last year a much tougher enemy than that of the Boche machine guns. But if he loses his farm he will retain his self-respect, as under no consideration will be exhibit himself for profit, though to do so would net him far more than enough to pay off the mortgage. His religious scrupples and sense of patriotism will not permit him to capitalize his war record, which he calls "an act of Providence." And so today Alvin York is working in the fields, worrying how he will meet the mortgage and take care of his wife and Alvin Jr. Just when is a hero a hero?

Rising Star Shines. (Rising Star X-Ray.) Rising Star, with a proposed expenditure of $35,000 for paving is one of 310 states, counties, townships and municipalities announced within the past week as contemplating highway improvement to a grand total of $179,307,359.36. More than $1,000,000,000 is available for good roads and streets in the United States. This sum, large as it is, represents an increase over the highway revenues of 1914 of only about 150 per cent, while highway traffic has increased 450 per cent. There are now 2,500,000 miles of highways in the United States, of which only an approximate 100,000 miles are improved with modern pavements.

When compared to sums expended for luxury by the pleasure-loving public the American highway budget does not look so impressive. The people of this country spend $1,000,000,000 a year for eandy, $3,500,000,000 for automobiles, $1,000,000,000 for aucomobile tires, $1,275,000,000 for gasoline, $1,500,000,000 for carpets and rugs, $1,950,000,000 for cigars, cigarettes, tobacco and snuff, and $1.650,000,000 for jewelry perfumery and cosmetics. On the other hand the sums spent for roads and those expended for water supply improvements, three times those for sewerage work and fifteen times

THE PROPOSED TAX ON BANK CHECKS.

It is only in recent years that the people of the United States have taken to the practice of carrying small bank accounts, and of paying many of their smaller bills, as well as larger ones, by check. The banks of the county spent a good many thousands of dollars advertising the advantages of this method-its saving in time, its doing away with the necesssity of carrying large sums of money on one's person, its keeping money at work instead of in solitary confinement. And even today, with savings banks and others in practically every community, offering the advantages of a checking account to small depositors, we see long lines of persons waiting to pay gas bills, electric light bills, water bills, taxes and other accounts that might just as well be paid by check. Who knows how many working hours, in the aggregate, are wasted in this way, how much hazard people run of being robbed, how much idle money that should be working. It costs the country six dollars for a man to carry one hundred dollars in his pocket for one year. Multiply that by 20,000,000 or less than one-fifth of the country's population, and the result is $120,000,000.

Aside from the intolerable nuisance which it would be to affix a two-cent tax-stamp on every check, there isn't any question but that hundreds of thousands, if not millions of people who now carry checking accounts, would go back to the cash transaction system, entailing a tremendous loss all around. Moreover, people who begin to use a bank for a checking account soon learn that money can be made to earn money, and many of them begin to save. Again, not having much cash in one's pocket one is not tempted to spend foolishly. A checking account makes for economy, and helps to establish credit. Credit is the foundation of prosperity-that is, credit, plus industry.

The proposed tax on checks is indefensible. The intolerable burden of taxation is pitilessly before us every day as it is. To add to it would be an affront. Such a tax as the one proposed would come largely from the pockets of people of small means; the very ones least able to stand it.

If there must be a tax on checks at all, let it be on checks for amounts in excess of $100. That would at least free us of the menace of discouraging small bank deposits, and would bring in revenue from large transactions instead of small ones.

ANGER, THE DESTROYER.

Not very long ago a young fellow shot his sister, fired five shots at her husband, and then killed himself with the remaining cartridge. Men might assume that some profound cause was behind this tragedy of passion and murder. It wasn't. The boy killed himself and his sister as the climax of a quarrel over a dog. He had given the dog to her some months before, and when he wanted to go hunting he asked for it again. She refused, and he shot her. He didn't do this because he loved the dog so dearly that he couldn't live without it. He had probably beaten and kicked the animal many times in his life. And he didn't kill his sister because he hated her. He probably loved her, and in a gentler mood would have given a thousand dogs-all the dogs in the world-to save her life if necessary. He killed her because in that moment there was nothing so important in the world as having his own way.

Almost every quarrel among men is like this-because one of the combatants wants nothing so much as his own way. Men rarely quarrel for possessions, or for "the principle of the thing." These are merely excuses for passion. What they want is self-indulgence-and they mean to have it at whatever cost. They quarrel over things that were of no importance a little while before and that will shrink to their proper insignificance after the fighters' passions cool. Men see "red," lose all possession of reason, and do things for which a life-time of remorse and penitence can never make up, when they are angry.

It follows that we should, at all times, endeavor to hold ourselves from becoming angry. Anger has no reason, no soul, and oftentimes makes a monster out of an otherwise good man or woman. Self importance is really at the root of anger, and if we can only grasp the truth that no one of us is so important that the world needs us, or will miss us, there is little danger that we shall ever permit ourselves to become angry.

BUSINESS MEN ARE TAKING STEPS TO REVIVE TRADE WITH FARMERS; CAN LEARN MUCH FROM PUTNAM

Farming Community Fourteen Miles to the West is Going Steadily Forward Because the Merchants and the Bankers Understand the Need of Providing a Market for Agricultural Pro-

"Cisco has been lulled into insensibility with an oil anaesthetic."

This is the conclusion of some of the local merchants who have been studying the problem of rebuilding agricultural trade.

The fact that Cisco had lost much of its importance as an agricultural trading center was brought out very clearly to the merchants of the city when oil dropped to a dollar a barrel and drilling operations began to be suspended throughout the territory. It was then that they began to look around for the familiar farmer faces they used to see in the stores, and when they did not see them this question began to be discussed at Retail Merchants association meetings, at the chamber of commerce sessions and among the merchants wherever a few of them gathered.

There has been talk of cold storage plants, potato curing houses, truck market squares, a county agent, and other things which are calculated to bring the city of Cisco and the farmer closer together.

CAN LEARN FROM PUTNAM.

Cisco merchants and the public spirited citizens who have the welfare of the city at heart can learn much about the development of agricultural trade from the town of Putnam, 14 miles to the west. Last year there was ginned in Putnam 4,200 bales of cotton. The gin receipts in Cisco last year were 893 bales. Cotton which was picked within two miles of the city limits of Cisco last year was ginned and marketed in Putnam,

The trade territory of Putnam is being constantly enlarged and that little city is going steadily forward with a community development program that is making it a very popular trading point for the farming class of people.

One of the prime reasons for this and from Putnam to Baird is exactly splendid development at Putnam is the the same—14 miles.
