FARMER MUST GET MORE FOR HIS PRODUCTS

For many years agricultural economists and experts from the extension departments have been preaching greater production. Now they are preaching a new gospel, by inference if not with courage and directness. We've got to get more for the stuff we produce, rather than to produce more stuff, they say. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace is a frank advocate of the new school of agricultural economy, and even President Harding in his message tackled the trouble somewhat boldly. Says he:

It is rather shocking to be told, and to have the statement strongly supported, that 9,000,000 bales of cotton, raised on American plantations in a given year, will actually be worth more to the producers than 13,000,000 bales would have been. Equally shocking is the statement that 700,000,000 bushels of wheat raised by American farmers would bring them more money than 1,000,000,000 bushels. Yet these are not exaggerated statements. In a world where there are tens of millions who need food and clothing, which they cannot get, such condition is sure to indict the social system which makes it possible.

The farmer is more interested in finding an immediate remedy than in the indictment of a social system. The emergency tariff and the emergency credit laws have not been sufficient, and as the President himself says of the long crop and the consequent low price, "no legislation can cure that fundamental law." It seems to be up to the farmer himself to make the next move by way of restricted production. The cotton and tobacco growers began it, and the wheat producers of the northwest have made tentative efforts in that direction. Now the corn growers are trying to get together on a program.—Farm Life.

...and in this we have the hearty co-operation of legitimate wholesale concerns."

The agricultural committee of the Cisco Chamber of Commerce is working in closer harmony with Mr. Bush along all lines that will benefit agriculture in this part of the county.

ELKS LEAD IN FIRST ROUND OF TOURNEY

The Elks won the first round of the pool and domino tournament from the Knights of Pythias at the Elks Club Tuesday night. There were no checker players on hand, but there were two excellent exhibitions of pool and some exciting games of Dominoes.

In the first pool game, F. J. Huey of the Elks defeated Carter of the Knights of Pythias, 50 to 45. In the second game Jones of the Elks won from Spoon of the Knights of Pythias 50 to 43.

The domino games resulted as follows:

Agnew, Elks, 500; Roberts, K. of P., 345.
Johnson, Elks, 500; Eppler, K. of P., 445.

NARCOTICS ARE SEIZED BY CLEANUP OFFICERS

FORT WORTH, Jan. 17.—Narcotics estimated to be worth $5000 were seized here last night by the federal clean up force. The drugs were imported from Mexico. There were several arrests.

ARRESTER FOR GAMBLING.

Two Mexicans were picked up by the police this morning near the union station on charges of gambling. The officers secured a deck of cards, dice and some money as evidence.

BILL FOR BONUS IS SECOND OUT IN THE SENATE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—A decision to press first the allied debt refunding bill and next the soldiers' bonus bill was reached today by the Republican senators in their first conference at this session of congress. A second conference is called for tomorrow to discuss the details of the two measures.

Opposition to the bonus bill has developed, but it is announced officially that the motion to place the measure second on the list was carried by a large majority.

It is reported that the vote in favor of passing the bonus bill was 31 to 2. Several opponents to the legislation are withholding their votes. While the conference does not approve of the pending bill, some of the Republican leaders said the measure to be passed undoubtedly would follow the general principles of the measure before the finance committee.

SENATE VOTES TO AMEND FEDERAL RESERVE ACT SO AS TO APPOINT FARMER TO THE RESERVE BOARD

Charges of Graft in Connection With the Ordering of the Construction of the New District Federal Reserve Bank Building in New York Made by Senator Heflin of Alabama—President Said to Be Ready to Name Man to Represent Agriculture.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—The senate late Tuesday by a vote of 63 to 9 voted to amend the federal reserve act so as to appoint a farmer to the federal reserve board.

The senators who voted against the bill were Pomerene, Ohio, and Williams, Mississippi, democrats; Brandegee, Connecticut; Calder, New York; Edge, New Jersey; Keyes, New Hampshire; McLean, Connecticut; Moses, New Hampshire, and Wadsworth, New York, republicans.

Charges that there was graft in connection with the ordering of the construction of the new district federal reserve building in New York were made in the senate by Senator Heflin (Dem.) of Alabama, in the course of an attack on Governor Harding and other members of the federal reserve board.

JUDGE STARNES SAYS HE'LL MAKE HIS STATEMENT

County Judge C. R. Starnes this morning informed the Daily News that he would issue a statement either Tuesday or Friday in regard to the disposition made of the $495,000 worth of road bonds which were recently ordered turned over to the Fleming-Stitzer Roadbuilding company.

When told that the people in this part of the county were getting rather impatient over the road controversy, and that they were more than anxious to see actual work started on the roads, and especially the paved highway between Cisco and Ranger, Judge Starnes stated that within the past few days his time has been entirely consumed in looking after the interests of the county in the suit recently filed to declare all but $50,000 of the road bonds null and void, but that he would make a full statement within the next two days.

The judge did say that arrangements were in progress to pay the county script, and that his statement would contain all particulars.

LOCAL MEN CONFERRING ON COLLEGE QUESTION

A. J. Olson and the Rev. E. H. Holmes left today for Fort Worth, where they will confer with the trustees of Midland Christian College and with the educational committee of the Texas Christian Association in regard to the possibilities of locating the college in Cisco. Secretary G. C. Richardson of the chamber of commerce will go to Fort Worth tonight.

RUSSIAN DELEGATION HEAD NOT FULLY DETERMINED

MOSCOW, Jan. 18.—Either Premier Lenine, or Foreign Minister Chicherin will head the Russian soviet delegation to the Genoa conference, it was officially announced today.

SCOTCH GROW RELIGIOUS AFTER FISHING FAILURE

GLASGOW, Jan. 18.—A religious wave is now sweeping over the fishing villages on the East Coast of Scotland. Believing that the failure of the herring fishing season is a visitation for unrighteous living, the fishermen are pardoning the highway singing hymns and testifying in other ways to their religious fervor. There is scarcely a fishing village which is not affected.

B. S. HUEY IS ELECTED PRESIDENT OF CISCO PRINTING AND PUBLISHING COMPANY

The stockholders of the Cisco Printing and Publishing Company held their annual meeting Tuesday afternoon, and named the following directors, for the ensuing year: A. A. Webster, N. F. Payne, J. T. Berry, F. J. Huey and B. S. Huey.

At the meeting of the directors, which followed, B. S. Huey was named as president of the company and F. J. Huey as secretary and treasurer.

TO HOLD TRIAL OF BURCH IN MARCH

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 18.—Date for the second trial of Arthur C. Burch, indicted for the murder of J. Belton Kennedy, was set Tuesday for March 27. Burch, when asked by the judge whether that date was satisfactory, replied affirmatively.

WICHITA FALLS BANKER DROPS DEAD IN OFFICE

WICHITA FALLS, Jan. 18.—Thomas Jefferson Taylor, widely-known banker and oil operator of this city, who has lived for thirty-two years, dropped dead Tuesday afternoon at his office in a downtown building shortly after he had returned from lunch. Death was due to heart trouble. Mr. Taylor, who was 57 years old, has been prominently connected with local business activities for many years. For several years he has been identified with the First National Bank of this city as an officer and director. He is survived by a wife and seven children.

Jock Says His Italian Fiddle is Worth $1,200

There's a violin in Cisco that's said to be worth $1200. The owner admits that it's a good fiddle, even if it does look a bit rusty.

For probably $12 one could pick up in almost any pawnshop a better appearing violin, with more shiny varnish on it than this $1200 instrument, but two hundred years is long enough to make anything rusty.

"Jock" Ballantyne, the Scotch comedian with the Brunswick Harmony Boys, who came to Cisco with the Drury Petroleum Corporation party, is the proud possessor of this "fiddle." He handles it so tenderly as one of its age should be handled when he displays the markings inside, which state that it was made in 1734 by Gracino, a famous Italian maker of violins. But when Ballantyne gets to giving his imitation of the Scottish bagpipes, for so old a thing, we'll say he gives the old baby a good working over.

The aged violin and Jock will leave Cisco Thursday, enroute to their home in London, Ontario.

The question naturally arises, would any Scotchman give $1200 for any fiddle?

Radio Makes Great Stride When Two Messages Carried

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—What is said to be a long step for the science of radio communication was demonstrated at the engineers society building here, when a telephone and a telegraph message were carried simultaneously on the same radio wave length from a single wireless transmitting set and antenna. They were received also on the single radio set and antenna without interference or distortion, and brought to a clear, audible hearing. This accomplishment was demonstrated by Dr. Frank B. Jewett, chief engineer of the Western Electric company and head of the Bell system research laboratories.

DRILLING TO START AT ONCE NEAR NIMROD

D. T. Ives, contractor on the D. W. Burleson well at Nimrod, eight miles southwest of Cisco, announced today that the material was all on the ground and that the derrick would be up in a few days. The men who are to drill the well have established camp at Nimrod, and are ready to go to work as soon as the timber is placed. The well is on the Nodgrass lease, at the southern edge of town. Mr. Burleson has been in Dallas for several days, but he is expected in Cisco this evening.

DRILLERS GOING GOOD ON THE ROBERTS WELL

Satisfactory progress is being made on the Roberts-Murphy test, six miles west of Cisco, according to George Roberts. The drilling is now going on at about 1800 feet. While it had been hoped to get a little showing of oil at somewhere near this depth, no production is looked for under close to 3000 feet, where it is expected the pay will be encountered, as indicated by the logs of other wells in the territory adjacent to Cisco.

BABY BURNED TO DEATH AT TYLER

TYLER, Texas, Jan. 18.—The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Kelly was burned to death this morning when the house in which the Kellys were living on East Ferguson street was destroyed by fire.

Mrs. Kelly left the child asleep and had gone across the street to visit a neighbor. She had only been absent a few minutes when her attention was called to the fire too late to rescue the child, who was only 14 months old. The origin of the fire is unknown.

MARKETING IS THE BIG PROBLEM OF AGRICULTURE, AT THIS TIME SAYS R. H. BUSH, COUNTY AGENT

Starting With Two Watermelon Growers Associations in Eastland County, Mr. Bush Hopes to Demonstrate to the Farmers and Citizens of the County This Year That Intelligent Co-Operative Marketing Will Do a Lot Toward Solving Present Difficulties.

The greatest problem which the farmers of Eastland county are facing at this time is marketing, according to the opinion of R. H. Bush, the county agent. In arranging his program for the year Mr. Bush is laying a great deal of stress upon problems of marketing.

One of the steps in this direction is the formation of Watermelon growers association at Rising Star, and Carbon. At Rising Star the melon growers association is headed by George Gess, president; and J. W. Hancock, secretary. These men together with seven others constitute the directors of the association. A total of 125 acres of watermelons has been pledged by two members of the Rising Star association. The farmers in the vicinity of Rising Star are also interested in the formation of a potato growers association as soon as the state association is ready to handle the crop.

The melon growers association at Carbon is headed by J. H. Collins who is president. Mr. Duncan is the secretary of this association. These men together with several others constitute the board of directors. In all probability there will also be organized at Carbon a potato growers association.

The basis on which these organizations are formed is a contract between the members of the association which will insure the delivery of 11 of the commodity grown by each member of the association for marketing. The local associations are affiliated with a state association which directs the marketing of the product. In the case of perishable products the sorting, grading and packing is done at the local point of shipment. When this is done the state association is notified by wire of the kind, quality and quantity of the product. The state association which is in direct connection with the markets in every part of the country then sell the shipment and directs the local point where to route the shipment. In the case of non-perishable products concentrated at a central point is effected and there the grading and packing is done.

The organization of these state exchanges and the selling of the commodities through them will shorten the road between the producer and the consumer, prevent over supplied markets, insure every market being supplied so far as possible.

The farmers in Eastland county are facing the proposition of having to get a money crop to substitute for cotton. Mr. Bush declares. This is a considerable problem and has to be worked out according to the conditions in each particular locality. While live stock farming offers the most permanent basis for farcing in this or any other country it is not always practical. Mr. Bush points out. When herds have been depleted and foundation stock has to be purchased, a considerable amount of money is required for the live stock farmer to operate.

For the sandy land of the county, Mr. Bush is of the opinion that melons and potatoes probably offer the best money crops. If the proper marketing facilities are provided for these crops the grower can be assured of a fair return for the labor which he puts into the growing of them.

Mr. Bush believes that if two marketing organizations can be operated successfully in the county this year that a great step toward the solution of market troubles will have been made.

"We regard marketing as the biggest thing before us today," said Mr. Bush. "Before we can have any permanent prosperity in the country agriculture must be placed on the right basis. If the farmer is impoverished, the rest of the country will in turn suffer likewise. In these market associations it is not our purpose to cut out the legitimate wholesaler. We realize that he has a place in the distribution of farm products just as he has in the distribution of other necessary products. It is our aim to shorten the line between the producer and the consumer by the stimulation of the specu-

WEATHER FAVORS SPRING GARDEN PREPARATION

The beautiful spring weather that we have been experiencing recently is splendid for the preliminary work necessary to a successful garden plot. In order for gardening to be successful there must be a good seed bed prepared and a good hot bed built for the purpose of getting the seed properly started before the plants are set out in the garden.

A hotbed is merely a cold frame artificially heated by fermenting manure. Anyone who keeps a horse or has access to a stable can easily devise a hotbed and gain a month on the season in those parts of the South where winter is accustomed to linger in the lap of spring or spring is given to an occasional relapse after it seems to have started on a healthy and steady career.

The treatment and plowing of the manure is the main factor in a successful hotbed. While a cold frame is set directly upon the surface of the ground with possibly a little banking about it, it is necessary to dig a pit about a foot each way larger than the frame for a hotbed. An 18-inch pit is about the right depth, and fill it with fresh horse manure. The manure should be piled up until a sufficient quantity has been obtained, and turned over two or three times. It should be protected from rains. Pack the manure down by tramping upon it when it is placed in the frame, and when it is packed place four or five inches of good garden soil upon it, placing the frame upon the manure before the soil is put in.

Place a sash or canvas over the frame, and heat by night. The manure will start heating and continue to increase in temperature for the first few days. Wait until the temperature subsides to between 80 and 85 degrees, keeping a thermometer in the bed for observation.

The seeds should be watched carefully, but care must be taken not to soak them. It is best to water early enough in the morning so that the plants will be dry at night. On bright days the frames should be raised slightly in order to provide ventilation and not allow them to become too hot, as this is likely to make the plants spindling.

The should be covered in plenty of time to prevent chilling before nightfall. Plants grow like magic in a hotbed, and with a very little trouble as soon as a gardener becomes accustomed to their operation, which is only a matter of a few days.

Cold Frame is Useful.

For the larger portion of the South, the cold frame is an almost indispensable convenience of the garden, once it has been tried out and appreciated. It is particularly useful, not so much because of the protection from changes of temperature, which may not be feared in many sections, but for the protection of the seedlings from the heavy rains of early spring which otherwise might wash the seedlings out of the ground. Under the glass they can flourish despite deluges, and it is a simple matter to give them plenty of moisture by watering or leaving the glass off during a gentle shower.

It is not necessary to have a regular cold frame, such as professional gardeners use, to gain all the advantages, as any box with a glass top will serve the purpose. Old window sash can be utilized admirably, making a box to fit them and giving it a slight towards the south, which can be done by staking the south side deeper in the ground than the north, or by cutting or sawing the top to make the slant for the sash. Even a small box eight by ten inches with a pane fastened in it will serve a useful purpose in protecting small colonies of seedlings.

The regulation frames are made to the standard size of three feet by six feet, for which sash is easily procurable from any seed firm or sash factory, and is much preferable as the glass is set overlapping, and cross-bars, such as are in an old sash, do not collect water. As they are fitted to the frame, they slide off and on easily, or may be tilted for the purpose of giving air with little trouble.

MEETINGS

The annual roll call meeting of the Knights of Pythias will be held in the lodge room Friday, January 20, at 7:30 p. m. All members who possibly can are urged to be present. The first degree is to be conferred on a large class. Officers for the ensuing term are to be elected.

POULTRY MEN OF GRAYSON ELECT OFFICERS

SHERMAN, Jan. 17.—The Grayson County Poultry and Rabbit Breeder's association was shown to be in good financial condition when the annual report, following the December show, was read at the monthly meeting in Sherman Tuesday evening. Not only are all bills of the association paid, but a balance is left in the treasury, it was reported. The association owns 100 wire coops and other supplies which will be ready for the annual show in registration of Mrs. Clara Hall Kern as secretary of the association and election of officers for the year comprising one of the most important features of Tuesday night's meeting. In appreciation of Mrs. Kern's services with the association, which have extended over the past few years, while she has held the office of county home demonstrator, the association presented her with a gift of $25 in cash, and voted her a life-long member of the association with all dues paid.

The following officers were elected: Ed Moore of Denison, president; J. E. Pierce, Sherman, vice president; C. W. Kerr, Denison, secretary and treasurer; H. Y. Parrott, Denison, W. M. Kelly, Denison, E. M. Atfox, F. C. Chaffin and J. B. Pierce, Sherman, and B. F. Shepherd, Denison, directors. Mr. Parnott is chairman. With the exception of the election of Mr. Kerr to succeed Mrs. Kern as secretary, there were no changes in the officers.

Plans were made at the meeting for holding on the first Monday in February, an egg sale, for the benefit of poultry club girls and boys of Grayson county. Settings from some of the prize winning flocks of Grayson county breeders will be priced at about half their usual price to the boys and girls. Twenty settings have already been guaranteed for this sale, it is stated.

CANADIANS ARE WELL PLEASSED WITH THE SOUTH

Most of the Drury Oil Corporation party which includes more than forty Canadian investors and capitalists, are today making a trip through the oil fields at Eastland, Ranger, Ellaville and Breckenridge. The party left the Daniels hotel this morning early, and will return this evening in time for the banquet at the American Cafe, which is scheduled for eight o'clock. The trip is being made in several automobiles.

The Canadians in the Drury party have all expressed their appreciation of the hospitality extended them during their visit in Cisco. While they have had much business to look after, it has been found in which to get around over the city and the adjacent territory, and members of the chamber of commerce and of the Elks Club and Knights of Pythias Club have contributed to the pleasure of the visitors in various ways. The badges worn by all members of the party have been keys of admittance to all entertainments and to all clubs.

The Brunswick Harmony boys of London, Ont., who accompanied the party on the southern trip, have been worked overtime in providing music for the people of Cisco, and they will wind up their efforts tonight by giving a dance at the American Cafe.

They have given nightly concerts in the lobby of the Daniels Hotel, and last night they entertained a large number of Elks and Knights of Pythias who were attending the opening of the pool and domino tournament at the Elks club. Following this concert the trio of singers and musicians and a number of the Canadian party were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Webster, on Avenue I.

The banquet at the American Cafe tonight will be the crowning feature of the visit of the northern men to Cisco. Covers will be laid for about sixty persons, including members of the chamber of commerce and other citizens. The Canadians will leave Thursday afternoon for their homes.

FIRE DESTROYS HOME OF COUNTY JUDGE STARNES

EASTLAND, Jan. 18.—Fire at 2:30 this afternoon completely destroyed the residence of Judge C. R. Starnes in this city. The loss will run into the thousands of dollars, Judge Starnes carried $2700 insurance on the property. No one was at home at the time the fire broke out, and a piano was the only part of the household goods saved. The blaze originated in the kitchen.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS OF TEXAS IN MOST CRITICAL CONDITION OF HISTORY DUE LACK OF FUNDS TO PAY PER CAPITA

Letters From Teachers Declare They Have Not Drawn Their Salaries for Several Months, and School Trustees Write That They Are Unable to Borrow Funds From the Banks — State Comptroller Says January Tax Money Will Clear Situation.

AUSTIN, Jan. 17.—Public schools that the penalty became a part of the critical condition of their history. Because a great deal of the 1920 due to the lack of funds with which to pay the per capita apportionment, according to Miss Annie Webb Blanton, state superintendent of public instruction.

Letters from teachers, declaring they have not drawn their salaries for several months, storm into the state department of education. School trustees write that they are unable to borrow funds from the banks in their communities.

Lon Smith, state comptroller, declares that the situation will be clear after January, when the tax money begins flowing into the state treasury. The lack of funds with which to pay the per capita apportionment is partly due to the act passed by the last legislature in January, 1921, extending the time for enforcing the penalty against delinquent tax payers of 1920 to October 15, 1921, said Miss Blanton. The reason for the extension, financial officials of the state said, was to aid the tax payers during the stringent financial period.

Under the original act, suits could not be filed against delinquent tax payers until after October 15, instead of January 31; the penalty was reduced from 10 per cent to 5 per cent, and remittances of penalties was to be allowed. The attorney general, however, declared the latter two provisions unconstitutional and they were thrown out. His ruling was have paid their 1920 taxes. With the 1920 taxes will be paid the 10 per cent penalty which now has become a part of the tax.

"We have begun receiving communications from county attorneys about the filing of suits against delinquent tax payers," said Mr. Smith. "After January 31 the tax money will begin coming in and the state treasury then will have plenty of funds."

"After two weeks, the state probably will have enough money to pay on the school funds. If the teachers will only be patient until then, there will be plenty of money to cash their vouchers."

MEMORIALS TO DEAD EDITOR ARE SUGGESTED

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 17.—Friends and admirers of the late Henry Watterson, dean of Kentucky newspaper men, are advancing numerous plans for suitably honoring the memory of the dead editor. Kentuckians generally are interested in the erection of a monument or establishment of a memorial for him.

The Kentucky editors are using their papers in voting approval of the suggestions; prominent citizens in Louisville and elsewhere are writing to newspapers, expressing the hope that the movement will be carried to a successful conclusion.

Desha Breckenridge, editor of the Lexington Herald, says that "Kentucky would honor herself by a fitting memorial of his services to his adopted state and his fellow men."

"All Kentuckians owe an unpaid debt of gratitude to Henry Watterson for his superb leadership that was a most potent factor in averting the horrors of reconstruction," Mr. Breckenridge said.

In addition to the suggestion that a monument be erected to Mr. Watterson, advocates of other ways of honoring the writer's memory have proposed the naming of a city park for him or the erection of a memorial bridge in Cherokee park.

KATY TO SPEND THREE MILLION FOR TERMINAL

DENISON, Jan. 17.—T he Missouri, Kansas & Texas railroad's Christmas gift to the city of Denison was the announcement that the road would within the next eighteen months spend over $2,000,000 on a new terminal in Denison.

The announcement of the improvement was made on December 22. The new yards, when completed, will be the largest terminal west of the Mississippi river, officials of the company stated. The contractors will be at work on the terminal by January 15, officers of the Cummins Construction company, of Cleveland, Ohio, holders of the contract, have stated. Steam shovels and all the equipment of the contractors is arriving daily. A force of 350 workmen, mainly recruited from surplus labor in and around Denison has been hired and will report when all the builders' equipment has arrived.

The yards, which will be fifty tracks wide at the widest point and stretching three miles long, will be ready within eighteen months, according to the terms of the contract. The terminal will begin at the north-west city limits in the Fairview cemetery district, and running west will cover a section a half mile wide and over three miles long.

Much delay in freight transfers will be eliminated by the addition of the new yards, Katy officials announced.

A round house for freight engines, a small locomotive shop, capable of handling running repairs on engines; four oil storage tanks, each holding 55,000 gallons of fuel; a power plant; yard offices, and transfer sheds to hold 160 cars, are to be built within the yards.

An Expression of Thanks.

We do sincerely thank our neighbors and friends, and the good people of Cisco for their kindness and help in our time of our great sorrow, in the death of our dear brother, May each of you have just such friends as these, should such sadness ever come to you.

LEGION IS TO TAKE CENSUS OF EX-SERVICE MEN

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 16.—The most important meeting of the American Legion ever held between national conventions will be called in this city, January 20 and 21, to arrange for a census of every ex-service man and woman in the country. The plan that national commander Hanford MacNider will present to delegates calls for personal interviews by Legion canvassers of all veterans.

C. R. Forbes, director of the United States Veterans' Bureau will come as the personal representative of President Harding and Federal Judge K. M. Landis, of Chicago will be one of the speakers. All state commanders, adjutants and national executive committee members of standing committees and national Legion officials will be present. Representatives of the War and Navy departments will also attend. The national executive committee of the American Legion Auxiliary, an organization of women relatives of Legion members, will meet concurrent.

The census will be known as a service and compensation campaign and is modeled after the "Iowa plan," successfully used in that state when Mr. MacNider was commander there. After approval by the convention, the census will be taken at once. The country will be divided into districts, with a Legion committee to supervise. Districts will be small enough so that thorough canvassing can be assured. Legion volunteers will work under the committee and will visit every house and interview every veteran.

Questionnaires will be used to ascertain first, what form of adjustment compensation is preferred of the five offered in the pending federal bill. Veterans have the option of cash payment, pension insurance, vocational training, aid in buying a home, or aid in settling on land. Mr. MacNider has a plan whereby veterans will be given the option of turning their compensation payments into a general fund, to be administered by the Legion and out of which loans will be made to disabled, unemployed, or needy comrades. He believes this fund will total several million dollars. Canvassers in the census will ascertain how many veterans will lend money to this fund.

The subject of unemployment also will be considered at the convention and some means devised whereby the Legion can assist nationally in placing ex-service men in jobs. A committee will bring in a report on the memorial proposed in honor of the late F. W. [Name], who was killed while serving as Legion national commander.

CHAMPIONSHIP TO BE DECIDED BY PRECINCT GAMES

According to a decision arrived at by the director of athletics for the Inter-scholastic League in Eastland county in conference with the basketball coaches from the various schools in the county at a meeting in Eastland Saturday afternoon, all schools in the Cisco precinct that desire to enter basketball teams in the county championship contests must meet in Cisco Saturday, Jan. 21, at 2:30 p. m. or the purpose of deciding the winner from this precinct. The preliminary games will be played on the high school court at the high school grounds. The final game will be played in the evening at the Labor Temple.

The winning teams from the several precincts in the county will meet in Eastland, Saturday, January 28, to decide the county championship in basketball. The winning team at Eastland on that date will represent the county in the district championship contests.

LEGIONNAIRES CONDEMN THE DEBS PARDON

The local post of the American Legion held its first meeting under the newly elected officers Monday evening in the auditorium at the city hall. There was a good attendance, and a great deal of interest was manifested in the work of the Legion for the coming year.

Brief talks were made by the retiring post commander, Dean Sherry, and by the incoming commander, Creigler Paschal.

The post adopted a resolution commending the action of the state commander in condemning the pardoning of Eugene V. Debs by President Harding on Christmas day.

THE PURSUIT of BEAUTY

A BELLE OF BORNEO WITH TATTOOED HANDS AND FEET

A NATIVE OF THE AMAZON VALLEY

NATIVE WOMAN, FORMOSA—THE TATTOOING AND EAR-PLUGS

MOZAMBIQUE WOMAN MIXING FACE PAINT AND WEARING A MASK OF IT

CARVEN FACE OF NEW ZEALAND CHIEF

A BELLE OF INDIA WEARING NOSE JEWEL

All Over the World It is Sought With Eagerness, Although Ideas On the Subject Vary With All Races and Climes — Some of Its More Striking Oddities.

BY ROBERT TIGHE

THE pursuit of beauty has surely never been so eager as at the present time. So ambitious of pulchritude is the average young woman that she seems to have her personal charms perpetually on her mind. At frequent intervals, even in public places, she must pause to touch up her face with powder and paint.

Whether face-painting is to be approved of or not, there is no denying that it is a reversion to the primitive. Savage women the world over paint their faces. Commonly also they tattoo them. Perhaps we shall have tattooing next. Already the embroidered designs on transparent stockings give an effect that strikingly resembles the elaborate tattooing which adorns the legs of a belle of Borneo.

Fashions are queer. Just now there is a cult of slenderness, and what is deemed most desirable is a shape which a generation ago would have evoked pity for the woman lacking a "figure."

How different in Tunisia, where the ideal of female beauty is a Venus who cannot put on a mother-hubard without bursting the seams! In that country women diet not to achieve slenderness, but to get fat, and a weight of 250 or even 300 pounds is not uncommon. It is the custom for a man to give a girl an anklet many sizes too large, with a promise to marry her as soon as she is unable to slip it off.

In Abyssinia a like standard prevails, but with a specification that demands hips so enormous as to approach the monstrous. The bigger her hips, the more the lady is admired.

An African Face Mask

Speaking of cosmetics, one of the most remarkable is a paste which the women of Mozambique (southeast Africa) make from the pith of a tree. They pound it to a homogeneous mass in a wooden mortar, and spread it over the face in a thick mask. Being white, it gives them a ghastly aspect, but after being worn for a few days, it greatly improves the complexion.

Every woman, no matter how beautiful, wishes to be more so, and the instinct for cosmetics is not to be eradicated from the feminine bosom. Not long ago the chaplain of one of our penitentiaries testified that it was a common habit for the female prisoners to scrape lime from the walls of their cells, chew it to a paste and use it when dried as a substitute for face-powder. They would collect odds and ends of red cloth, steep them in water, and paint their cheeks with the fluid, to make them rosy. They would pencil their eyebrows with pieces of wood reduced to charcoal over a gas-jet, and would give a gloss to their hair with the fat of meat. Curl-papers they obtained by surreptitiously tearing out the leaves of library books, and there was one woman, a terrible character, who went to bed every night wearing a beauty-mask composed of bread and milk from her supper.

We are accustomed to regard a small mouth as rather desirable; at all events, it should be of not more than moderate size. But a view quite the opposite is held in Yezo, which is the northernmost island of Japan. There, among the Ainu, who are the aboriginal inhabitants (fairly civilized people) withal, a big mouth is esteemed a mark of beauty, and the women tattoo their lips in red, so as to make them look as if they stretched almost from ear to ear.

Tattooing A Mustache

The native Malay women of Formosa (an island now belonging to Japan) ornament their faces with broad stripes of tattooing which extend from the mouth, on both sides, to the ears, as if in imitation of a huge mustache. To add to the charming effect, their ear-lobes are pierced to receive cylindrical plugs of wood a foot long and an inch or more in diameter.

When, a short time ago, an East Indian maharane or queen, arrived in New York, much curiosity was excited because she wore a magnificent jewel attached to her nose. Untutored Americans who beheld this adornment were not aware of the fact that with ladies in her country the custom of wearing nose ornaments—suspended from the septum, or inserted through a ring of the nose—is as common as that of wearing earrings to be in the United States. And, when you think about it, why is one fashion not as sensible as the other?—both, of course, being barbaric.

Among "natural" peoples—those we are accustomed to call savages or ultra-barbarians—the men are more richly ornamented than the women. On the other hand, the men of highly civilized races prefer to decorate their women, reserving little in the way of personal adornment for themselves, unless they happen to be soldiers or courtiers. In all ages a striking and even gorgeous dress has been deemed appropriate to the military or naval officer.

An odd point worth mentioning incidentally is that men in the most civilized countries, when they wish to express in their costume high authority, usually wear petticoats—as, for example, in the case of judges, priests, and kings. The flowing robes of our Supreme Court justices are assumed to emphasize the wearers' dignity.

Deformities For Beauty

Savage men and women, generally speaking, will undergo any amount of trouble and suffering to beautify themselves. The Batokas (an African tribe) knock out their upper front teeth, with this idea in view. Certain natives of the Philippines file their teeth to sharp points—a custom not unknown among other primitive peoples. There are tribes of South American Indians that have skulls of supernatural shape, the deformations being produced by binding the heads of their babies.

The savage who has no clothes to embroider will take infinite pains to embroider his skin with tattooing. In New Zealand this kind of ornamentation is applied to the face with the help of knife-cuts, so that the effect is that of an elaborately carved mask, costing an immense deal of pain and years of labor.

The cannibal "black fellows" of Australia, who wear no clothes and in nearly every respect live as monkeys do, ornament themselves by cutting gashes in parallel lines across their chests and stomachs, using for the purpose a clam-shell or a sharp stone. To delay healing, they rub charcoal or ashes into the cuts, or allow ants to walk in them, thus causing them to swell into rough ridges. A youth, until he has acquired this sort of decoration, is not allowed to eat certain things, such as sels and lizards.

To the north and west of Patagonia dwell the Araucarians, a rather superior race of savages who remain to this day uncivilized, uncontrolled, and unchanged in respect to their ancient customs. They allow no hair to grow on their faces, and pull out with tweezers their eyelashes and eyebrows. The latter, curiously enough, they replace with painted eyebrows, executed in black.

Ear-Plugs And Nose-Bones

The practice of piercing the lips and ear-lobes for the insertion of plugs or disks of wood is common not only in tropical South America (where such plugs are often four inches in diameter), but in other parts of the world. Nowhere, however, is this kind of decoration carried to such lengths as in New Guinea, where the coal-black man-eating natives deform their features in the most extraordinary way, wearing bones a foot long through their noses and sometimes attaching to their ears weights which cause the lobes to hang below the shoulders. In that strange country the man who by artifice of the sort can make himself most horribly hideous is considered the most to be admired.

It may seem hard to believe, but it is a fact that the negro savages of Africa pay much more attention to keeping their teeth clean than does the average American or European. Furthermore, they devote more care and time to their hair and its arrangement than do the people of any white race. As a rule, too, they are clean, because they (in the tropics at all events) are naked. Generally speaking, it is the races (the Eskimo, for example) compelled by climate to keep their bodies covered that are dirty.

The African natives, as a rule, pay much attention to the toilet. Thus, for an instance, the Bongo woman keeps in her dressing-case not only combs, and lancet-shaped hairpins to hold her plaits in shape, but also tweezers to pull out eyelashes and eyebrows, rings, bells, and buttons—the last being stuck through holes bored in her lips and ear-lobes.

We do not think that frickles are beautifying and, to avoid being decorated in this way by the summer sun, our women have resort to parasols and other defensive expedients. Most remarkable, then, does it seem to us that the females of a certain primitive tribe in the valley of the Amazon should, for beauty's sake, paint large spots, resembling freckles greatly magnified, all over their faces.

Nails Of An Empress

In the National Museum at Washington is the painted portrait of a lady, a likeness of the late Dowager Empress of China, who sent it as a gift to the government of the United States. She is shown wearing a gorgeous collection of jewels. But the fact that she was a real lady is made obvious by her nails, which are eight or nine inches long.

There are tropical regions where—oh, the bliss of it!—the most beautiful clothes grow on trees, ready to wear. In the Nias and other islands off the west coast of Sumatra every woman has a new dress every day in the year. Two banana leaves crossed over the bosom serve in lieu of a waist, and other leaves of the same kind, hung from a belt, make an attractive skirt. One style of hat is made of two palm leaves joined above the head to form a helmet-like crest—the leaves being fastened to a head-encircling band of rattan. In one ear the belle of Nias wears the delightful and elegant "shirt tree." A section of its stem is cut, four or five feet long; a single lengthwise cut makes easy the removal of the bark in one place; the bark is soaked and beaten until soft, and then the scissoring of two arm-holes finishes the shirt or chemise.

SUIT ATTACKING THE VALIDITY OF COUNTY'S GOOD ROAD BONDS FILED IN 91ST DISTRICT COURT

Action Filed by O. F. Chastain, Frank Judkins and C. P. Chastain, Eastland Attorneys, as Taxpayers, Asks That All the $4,500,000 Issue in Excess of $500,000 Be Cancelled—Judge Starnes and County Commissioners Among the Defendants Named.

EASTLAND, Jan. 14.—A suit attacking the validity of the $4,500,000 of Eastland county good roads bonds has been filed in the district court. This suit is brought by O. F. Chastain, Frank Judkins and C. P. Chastain, as taxpayers.

The suit asks that all the $4,500,000 issue in excess of $500,000 be cancelled. Named as defendants are Eastland county, Judge Starnes, Commissioners Webb, Camp, Robertson and Stubbs...

The petition of the plaintiffs is, in part, as follows: "Plaintiffs further show the court, said bond issue is in contravention also of article 3, section 9, of the constitution of this state as amended by proclamation of Jan. 7, 1907..."

public roads provided that a majority of the property tax paying voters may so vote, not to exceed 15 cents on the $100 valuation in said county' and in this connection plaintiffs show the court that the taxable values of Eastland county for the year 1919 was in round numbers the sum of $24,000,000.00 and that a special tax of 15 cents on the $100 valuation will not authorize a bond issue in excess of $500,000.00...

"These plaintiffs further show the court that said $4,500,000.00 bond issue is null and void and illegal in that same is in direct contravention of the act of the legislature of this state, creating a road system for Eastland county, which said act was approved and became effective on June 17, 1920..."

The court that said $4,500,000.00 bond issue is null and void and illegal in that same is in direct contravention of the act of the legislature of this state, creating a road system for Eastland county, which said act was approved and became effective on June 17, 1920...

of building roads in Eastland county, and that by the direct provisions of said law, the said bond issue is illegal, null and void to the extent of its excess over said statutory limitation...

With regard to the levies made to pay the obligations created by the bonds, the petition says: "That in order to pay the interest and create said sinking fund the commissioners court on Nov. 5, 1919, levied a special tax upon all the taxable property in Eastland county in the sum of 24 cents per $100 of the taxable value of said county..."

"In this connection plaintiffs show the court that the assessed valuation of all real estate in Eastland county for the year 1919 was the sum of $11,854,430.00 and that said valuation did not justify a road bond issue to the extent of $4,500,000.00, and that measured by this article of the constitution alone, said bond issue is more than $1,500,000.00 in excess of said constitutional limit."

The petition asks that in the event that the courts hold that the constitution places no limit as to the rate of taxation which can be assessed to care for the bonds, then that all the bonds in excess of one-fourth of the assessed valuation of the real property be cancelled.

The bond is also attacked from another angle in the suit. It is sought to have all the bonds, in excess of an amount equal to one fourth of the "assessed real value of the property" within the county, declared null and void. It is stated that article 3, section 52 of the state constitution provides that counties cannot issue road bonds for an amount surpassing one fourth of the assessed real value of the property in the county. Says the petition:

"In this connection plaintiffs show the court that the assessed valuation of all real estate in Eastland county for the year 1919 was the sum of $11,854,430.00 and that said valuation did not justify a road bond issue to the extent of $4,500,000.00, and that measured by this article of the constitution alone, said bond issue is more than $1,500,000.00 in excess of said constitutional limit."

The petition asks that in the event that the courts hold that the constitution places no limit as to the rate of taxation which can be assessed to care for the bonds, then that all the bonds in excess of one-fourth of the assessed valuation of the real property be cancelled.

JAPANESE ALTRUISM

The agreements of the Washington conference are not flexible guarantees to advance into the stage of unselfish fraternalism. The growing intensity of the differences in China and the statement from Tokio that the charge against Japan's Siberian program is "crime," are straws in the Oriental wind. The supplementary statement that the questioning of Japanese neutrality in Siberia is the blandest reply that could be made.

The explanation that Japan has no other desire than that the Russians cease their internal strife, and that peace and order shall be established as soon as possible to permit Japan to withdraw her troops with a sense of relief sounds less convincing today than in 1917-1918. Japan will find some difficulty in persuading anyone outside official quarters in Tokio to believe that Japanese safety is assured only by the presence of a military force in Siberia. And she will find a smaller number probably to accept the statement that her only concern is for the good of Russia in Eastern Siberia that Japan may withdraw her soldiers from that quarter. That hangs upon a physical threat against the security of Japan which no one except interested Japanese have been able to see. Japanese plans in Siberia are being brought into the open.

OTHER EDITORS

Surely Not Serious.
(Ranger Times)

The suit to annul all except $500,000 of the Eastland county road bonds is at first glance the most startling of the many legal steps taken since discussion first broke out last summer.

That it is as serious as at first appears is doubtful, however. The attorney general's office must pass upon all bonds before they can be ordered for sale. Manifestly, this office will know all the limitations with which bonds are hedged about. If there were such an obvious limit placed in the state constitution, it would certainly be known, and permit to sell the bonds would never have been granted. It is simply inconceivable that lawyers skilled in this work could overlook such a provision.

Secondly, before brokers will accept bonds, they investigate all matters pertaining to them. High priced bond lawyers, whose reputation depends upon the validity of the issues they pass upon, are not going to overlook legal restrictions which make these bonds worth less than so much blank paper.

Certainly, even if the contention in the suit prove true, Eastland county will not repudiate an obligation of this kind, especially the bonds already sold and now in the hands of innocent purchasers. To do so is indefensible from the moral viewpoint and suicide from the standpoint of progress. For if this should be done, never again would the county sell another dollar's worth of its securities, and it would be headed on the highway which leads to obscurity.

Such things just are not done, that's all. With the single exception of this suit, the road issue seems to be approaching the way out of the woods. The question will settle the matter one way or the other if nothing else does. Construction of the Bankhead highway is to begin at once and the highway will be completed within one year, it is stated. This undoubtedly is the greatest forward step that has been taken since the bonds were first voted. For by this road, Eastland county towns become a part of the chain through which thousands and thousands of tourists pass each year, scattering money as they go. The construction, it is said, is in the hands of the biggest road contractors in the South, who will at once bring their machinery here and start work at three places simultaneously. In this connection, it is predicted by a Ranger man who should know, that every man who starts work will have it inside three months, because of the road work and the related activities.

That is a big thing in itself, and whatever the merits of the present road suits affecting other highways, they should not be allowed to interfere with the construction of this all-important road. Citizens of Eastland county should, if necessary, rouse themselves to prevent this. Crusaders, whatever their conscientious convictions, can go too far.

In Those Great Days.
(Houston Post)

Whatever the outcome, The Post is inclined to think that this East-West republican rev confirms what it has been saying about the fallacy of privilege, and how undesirable it is for a great party to ignore fundamental principles of government for consideration of material advantage.

If a political victory is nothing more than a permit or mandate for one group of Americans to exploit another group then our whole political system is unworthy of respect. For, be it remembered, there can be no such thing as a privilege that benefits one group which does not by the same sign benefit another.

When we had statesmen in those great days of the past, they were glorious advocates of great principles of government, and it was out of the welter of their contests that the Republic itself was fashioned.

With men adjusting their party affiliations upon the basis of material gain, the sordid standard of this day, there is little that is inspiring in our politics.

But since the producers of America have not to be the victims of both misfortune and injustice at present, we can not do less than sympathize with them.

Our Currency System.
(Waco Times Herald)

The suggestion is made from time to time that provision should be made by the Government to finance the agricultural industry.

With the proper currency system the agricultural industry would be cared for the same as every other industry.

The bankers in the small cities and agricultural regions should have the privilege of furnishing their customers with the regular course of business in a particular form of bank credit that is in demand in their respective communities.

The bankers in the smaller cities and agricultural communities should not be suspended to buy and pay one dollar for one hundred dollars for something that they can, with far less trouble and at only nominal expense, create out of their own credit.

The producers of wealth of all classes should not be denied the privilege of exercising their natural right to exchange the credit to which their intelligence, character, capacity and industry entitle them for the credit of their bankers, save a reasonable rate of interest on their respective loans.

Our "Flapper" Silver Dollar.
(Wall Street Journal)

A reader of the Wall Street Journal quite unconsciously, conceded the entire case in an attempt to reply to criticism of the design on the new silver dollar. He says that many people will consider the head on that coin beautiful, and that, after all, is only a matter of taste, upon which there can be no argument.

The design is only a matter of taste after the settlement of a much more important matter of fact.

Did the designer and those who finally passed upon the die have any real, concrete understanding of what was required? The head is intended to represent the Goddess of Liberty—a design used upon our coins, in one way or another, for more than a century. It was so used by the French to replace the head of Napoleon III. The head, then, is that of a goddess—not a department store.

"Flapper" A sculptor of genius would have put into the face some quality of divinity. He would have suggested divine wisdom, courage, pride and serene confidence in the triumph of freedom.

Looked at in this way the head on the new coin is merely that of a fairly attractive girl of 17, with a pleasing profile, whose immature chin and half-open mouth merely suggests the expression of her kind. If words were issuing from her lips they would hardly take the elegant language of "Line's bizzzy!" They would more probably be, "Say, listen!" The confusion of bright little ideas in the head of the artist, who did not indelicately expose the saleslady's ear. But why did he bob her hair?

As the thing stands it is simply one of a thousand versions current in almost any magazine cover. It represents a pretty girl, and is otherwise meaningless. It is beside the point to say that artists of genius are rare. We could afford to wait forty-four years for a new silver dollar.

We can afford to wait a few years longer in order to discover such artists. We have enjoyed the advantage of their service in the past and we need not despair of finding something worthy of a great nation.

So far as the stuffed eagle part of the design goes, it seems to have a hastily conceived substitute for the hopelessly silly "broken sword" at first offered. There might be something poetic to be said about a sheathed sword, in present peace conditions, if it were really necessary for a great military power to permit the vulgarity of parading its strength.

The eagle is merely conventional, in this case looking ridiculously bigger than the mountain upon which it is sitting, and basking in the rays of light from below, presumably from a steel lamp or a motor headlight.

The whole thing is bad. The coin should be immediately withdrawn from circulation and a new design undertaken, by a committee composed of choice, of a bank teller accustomed to handle and stack such coins, a historian, a poet, and the secretary of the treasury. A nationwide competition in designs would be of the highest educational value. It is not too much to hope that we can at least evolve something artistically above the level of the magazine cover.

One Moment, General.
(Democratic)

"We intend to give Texas one clean oil town" is the statement credited to Attorney General Barton on his return from Mexico where martial law has been in effect to stem the tide of lawlessness.

The efforts of the attorney general are commendable, if they are needed. It is difficult to reconcile the idea of lawlessness that demands such heroic measures with the reassurances which have come frequently from Mexico, protesting against the reports that the town was not all that it should be.

But the implication that the attorney makes in his statement as to "one clean oil town" in Texas is that other oil fields have been notoriously free from clean towns.

Breckenridge is nominated for the exception to Barton's half-spoken boom excitement, which at least paralleled that of Mexico, and saw much more money in circulation, has Breckenridge merited the reputation of a "bad" oil town.

The fact that outside aid has never been necessary and that open and flagrant law violation has never existed is due to the attitude of Breckenridge in the first place; its selection of capable officers and what might be termed its civic morale.

Most towns, experiencing an oil boom, are not eager for the wild license that is more the rule than the exception. Some are unable to prevent it, however, through lack of capable executives and in some cases, because of the presence of officers who could be "reached."

Breckenridge's mayor, several months ago, was offered $150 a day to permit gambling. He showed the man who made the offer the gate.

Breckenridge, through its attitude in the first and its ability to get men who could put that attitude in effect, has never been, from a standpoint of law violation, "another one of those oil towns."

Stronger Juries.
(Fort Worth Record.)

Now that the jury system is considered weak and ineffective, it would seem that the system of excusing prospective jurors ought to be rigid, like the military system during war time. Frequently one drawn for jury service is excused without much difficulty on his part. But during war time many a young man claims exemption, but it is not granted until the case has been well considered by the authorities at Washington. It is our opinion, that if the courts were more rigid in granting excuses to prospective jurors, the status of jury system would be improved to a considerable degree. It would do much in eliminating the professional juror and the questionable character, men to whom justice has little or no meaning, and instead the jury would be then composed of men and women, possessing ability and character.

It is probably obvious that under the new order the ablest and best, in fact, the most substantial citizens from all walks of life, could be selected for jury service, to see that superficial sentimentalism, emotionism and sensational oratory would not overpower justice, as has been the case too often in the past.

Especially is this true in criminal court, when a verdict is sometimes rendered in favor of one perhaps guilty of the crime, but the defendant is exonerated on account of a clever, sympathetic argument on the part of the counsel and adviser, an oratorical effort which carries the average jury as a storm does the limbs of a tree in summer.

In 1890, the late Judge Waite said that if criminal juries were composed of strong-minded men, crime would decrease in a large degree." That is true today. It is true at any time. There has been and is a portion of jurors not endowed with sufficient ability to render a verdict in a case in which there may be a moral question at stake, and consequently the cause of justice has been and is defeated on account of incompetency and moral instability. To maintain justice, to see that right wins over wrong, to see that the weaker portion of society is protected in legal actions, we must have men and women strong enough to render in favor of the right at any cost.

Buy Your Commercial Printing Where You Get The Best Results

If you are not operating under a time and cost system, why not come in and let us help you install one?

Many business men are under the impression that they are doing it when they place orders with out of town printers and stationers located in some of the larger cities.

So thoroughly has the traveling salesman for the large printing establishments sold many large users of printing on the idea that the local printer cannot supply his needs that a very large amount of printing has been going out of Cisco. We are not attempting to fix the blame for this condition anywhere except on ourselves, but we are making this public announcement that from this day forward there is not one dollar going out of this city for printing if we get a chance to stop that dollar before it gets to the city limits.

We Are Prepared to Meet the Printing Needs of Every Business in Cisco

That may sound like a rather broad statement, but we can back it up. The only printing used in Cisco that cannot be done to an advantage in the office of the Cisco Printing & Publishing Company is probably a small amount of lithograph forms used by the local banks. And even in these instances we can place the orders for this lithographing so we will make a small profit for our trouble and the bankers will not pay any more than they are paying today.

The men who founded the Cisco Daily News looked far into the future. They realized that an order to build here the right kind of a newspaper it must have coupled with it a commercial printing plant to cut down the overhead on the newspaper and to carry the burden of the expense while the newspaper was learning to stand on its own legs. Newspapers are not built in a day nor in a year. Foundations must be laid deep and well. They must be nursed through a period of trials and tribulations to the point where they can financially stand alone.

With these points in mind the Cisco Printing & Publishing Company installed the most complete commercial printing plant that is to be found anywhere in this section.

We want to tell you about some of the equipment you will find in our job shop:

More than 100 cases of up to date, practically new job type.

One 10 by 15 platen press with an automatic feeder attached. This is one of the most accurate and most rapid automatic feeder on the market.

One 8 by 12 job press used for envelopes, bill heads, cards, and all short run forms that this size press will take.

One two revolution tape delivery pony cylinder press taking a form 22 by 34 inches or printing a sheet 25 by 38 inches.

One thirty-five inch power paper cutter.

One Boston Wire Stitcher, motor driven. This is the same type of machine which you find in the largest binderies in the country.

One multiple punch complete with various dies.

One Round Cornering Machine and Single Die punch.

One Perforator.

All of these machines have individual motors.

There is not one of these machines more than two years old. Every one of them has been under the care of an expert since the day it left the factory.

Every piece of type in our job department is kept in dust proof steel cabinets.

In addition to the material and equipment already enumerated we have large quantities of brass rule for tabular work such as special rule forms, railroad tabular work, etc., borders, ornaments, and many other items too numerous to mention.

This most complete job equipment is supplemented at all times by our newspaper equipment. The job department has access to the Intertype machines which are almost a complete printing plant within themselves and also has access to newspaper type for poster work and for such other classes of job work as demand such type. There is also a power metal saw at the command of the job department.

Maybe a lot of this information about equipment is too technical to interest you. After all it is the results that you are interested in. This detailed information in regard to our machinery and equipment is given you in order that you may know that we are prepared to meet your needs. You can go into any large printing office in the country and you will not find the machinery very different to what you will find in our office. The only difference is that the larger office just has more of the same kind of machinery.

LARGE STOCK OF PAPER.

In connection with our mechanical facilities we carry the largest stock of paper to be found in this section. We have on our shelves the quality, color and quantity of paper that your printing requires.

We have tied up this money, and it represents more than the average layman ever dreams, in order to be able to give you service, to meet your ever printing need and to be able to make you the same kind of prices that the printer in the larger cities can make you.

You can be assured that we would not trust this investment to workmen who were not skilled. They are men who have made printing a life study and who have seen service in the largest printing offices in America. Their experience, their skill, their prompt and courteous service together with what we believe to be the best equipment to be found anywhere in this part of Texas is at your command. And the prices are no more.

Under such circumstances can you afford to send your work out of town?

If you are not using loose leaf devices in your bookkeeping department, let us show you what we have along this line.

SMALL STRAW HATS SHAPED WITH DROOPING FEATHERS WILL BE POPULAR

THIS TUDOR OF STRAW HAS A TRIMMING BAND AND HUGE BOW OF VELVET

WITH WHITE AFTERNOON FROCKS, BLACK PICTURE HATS ARE FANCIED

Big Black Hats with Dainty Afternoon Frocks - Showers of Gaura and Hackle on Small Street Hats - Velvet Bows on Straw Turbans and the Bows Bigger Than the Turbans - Trimmings Still Trail Overside.

HATS in every woman's estimation are the open sesame to the new season. Not frocks, shoes, or tailored suits—but hats mean springtime, or autumnlike as the case may be. And it is information about hats that is hardest to get in the weeks before a season actually opens. Milliners guard their secrets carefully. The makers of gowns and suits are always ready and willing to talk about coming styles, and to display advance models. Bootmakers are only too anxious to have it decided, weeks in advance, just what kind of footwear is going to be the fashion. But milliners are chary of giving out information. They want to make their big splash on opening day and thrill the feminine world with surprises—take woman so off her feet, so to speak, with the fascination of the new styles that two or three hats must be ordered sent home on the instant, for fear the precious things may be snapped up by somebody else before one has a chance.

But several of the most authoritative milliners have unlocked their treasure-vaults and allowed models of special charm and style value to escape for your delectation on today's page. Not only southland hats are these—tentative models hurried out to meet the demand for something summery to wear where summer breezes blow—but early spring modes; hats that are going to establish fashions for the months to come.

Crowns Much Larger
The tiny little hat crown, snuggling close to the head seems to have departed. All the spring hats have much larger crowns, and usually the line of the crown is soft, with drapery of one sort or another. Straw hats have crowns entirely covered with silk or velvet and sometimes the material that covers the crown is made into a big bow that serves for trimming. This effect is illustrated in the turban with a huge velvet bow across the front; a most dashing hat, ready to travel southward on some lucky head. Mostly velvet bows in this small turban and the bow has a very dashing slant indeed; up at one side, down at the other and with the soft folds of velvet held under a loosely twisted knot. The little turban is of mixed blue and black straw and the velvet brim-band and smashing bow are dark blue.

Another attractive traveling hat has a narrow rounded brim of mixed brown straw and the crown is covered with a bulging over-crown of brown tulle. A bias length of the tulle is folded into a narrow trimming band with pointed ends tied at one side and projecting beyond the brim. These large-crowned turbans with narrow roll brims promise to be very good style for spring. They are comfortable to wear and are becoming to almost every face; and they may be trimmed in several attractive ways: With crowns draped like the model pictured, or with little wreaths of flowers, leaves and grapes.

The Fascinating Empress Eugenie Hat
It is called also "the vamp" and you can pick it out at once among the hats presented today—the perfectly irresistible little affair tip-tilted over one eye and with a shower of feathers hiding the crown and trailing down to the right shoulder. There is something in the diminutive size of this hat, its saucy tilt, and the drooping trimming that suggests headgear worn by the lovely Empress of the French in the heyday of her youth and beauty, and so some milliner has named the cunning thing "the Empress Eugenie" style. As for it being also "the vamp"—will any girl will admit there is a vampishness about it in conjunction with those long earrings! The narrow brim has a clever turn from up to down and, of course, the feather trimming trails at the down side, falling toward the back of the shoulder rather than directly over

A NEW STRAW TURBAN WITH A BOW OF TAFFETA SHOOTING OFF THE SIDE

The ear. This hat is of reddish straw with black gaura, but the model will doubtless be copied in ostrich—perhaps red ostrich over a red hat, or blue ostrich over a blue hat—for the little chapeau is too captivating not to be a spring favorite.

Gaura and hackle are seen on the smartest hats for southland wear, rather than the softer ostrich, and a few models have coq arranged in curving, trailing fashion. But folds and twists of velvet on hats of straw are the smartest sort of trimming, if you want an early season hat that is not too elaborate and expensive. The velvet or silk, however, must be arranged without any suggestion of skimpieness; dash is the thing in such trimmings.

Black Hats With Light Frocks
Those who are really going southward, however, and are not just interested in practical turbans and small shapes suitable for early street wear up north, are considering the big picture models which are the true southland hats. Down in Florida it is summer time now; and in summer one wears big, shady-brim millinery of picturesque style. Smart little turbans are all very well for the Pullman—going down; but when one arrives at the summerland a smart little turban is of no more use than it would be at a summer resort in August, up north. For wear with summery afternoon frocks at Southern resorts there are ravishing picture hats in black. All black—not a hint of color even in a rose. These big black hats are stunning with lacy white frocks; or with any dainty light colored frocks of formal character.

Two of these big black hats are pictured; one of them showing the new mantilla veil draped at the back. This veil—so-called—is really a sounce of handsome lace, attached to the back of the hat; and the ends of the lace are wrapped around the shoulders. For wear with summery afternoon frocks at Southern resorts there are ravishing picture hats in black. All black—not a hint of color even in a rose. A TYPICAL SOUTH-LAND HAT, AIRY AND LACY AND WEIGHTED DOWN WITH ROSES

Lovely Are The White Lace Hats
The most entrancing hat on today's page has been kept for the last—a typical southland hat and summer-time hat of airy white lace, with pink roses and streamers. A most poetic bit of headgear too, by the way. Think of the way that fragile, lovely hat will have to be packed for safe conveyance to the summer-time squib. Over a wired foundation of white mullin in several delicate layers is draped the outer material (creamy silk lace), which trails down gracefully at the back, mingling with streamers of faint mauve. Toward the back, also, are grouped the large roses in pinkish mauve shades.

FLOOR LIGHTS AID IN MATCHING STOCKING SHADES
SOME thoughtful shopkeepers are putting in floor lights at the hostess counter so that customers can match stockings to shoes or to buttoned boot-tops in delicate shades without going through acrobatic feats. It is all very well to have lights along the top of a counter where silk hostess is displayed but either the customer must remove her shoe, to match it with silk hose, or high as she can in a narrow skirt. The floor lamp which throws a strong electric light on the ankles and makes it unnecessary to lift the foot from the floor is a splendid idea and one hopes all shops, in time, will have it.

Teach the Children to Guard Their Teeth

PROBABLY there is no duty harder to impress upon children than that of caring for their teeth. Very naturally children take their teeth for granted just as they do every other part of their anatomy. If hair and fingernails keep on growing and renewing themselves, why not teeth? Nobody cares a jot about teeth until several painful interviews with a dentist have taught him that it pays to keep them from going to pieces. And, of course, it is these painful interviews with a dentist that one wants particularly to guard against, in the case of little children. The less of an ore and a bogie the dentist man is to little folk, the better for childish teeth, parental nerves and everybody concerned.

Most mothers and nurses make the mistake of putting care of the teeth in the light of a stern duty rather than a pleasant duty. Have you brushed your teeth this morning, Tommy? Naughty boy, go straight upstairs and do it before you eat a mouthful of breakfast! Tommy, of course, gets the idea that attention to his teeth is a disagreeable and tiresome performance that grown people are always foolishly enforcing. He sees no particular reason for it—except tiresomeness—and he sneaks out of it whenever he possibly can. Probably if he sneaks out once too often, there follows a punishment more or less severe according to the temper of mother or nurse; and this does not make the tiresome duty any pleasanter to him. Rather the reverse. Another method of making Tommy take care of his teeth is the bribing method—always the resort of lax parents. For there is nothing more inimical to character in the making than the idea that things that must be done anyway as a matter of course are worth rewards. If one protests enough, the child who is paid for doing everything he does not want to do is going to get a distorted idea of duty which will injure his point of view all through life.

Children are imaginative and fanciful little beings. When a thing appeals to imagination and fancy they will take an interest they never accord to things that are plain duties. And if their precious little teeth can be made to seem to them very precious indeed—wonderful little pearls entrusted to their care; a beautiful treasure that is theirs to guard or lose, their whole attitude toward tooth-brushing may be changed. "See how bright my teeth are!" Goodness! Let's get the magnifying glass. No—how relieved I am, Grinder seems to be all right. Not going to lose him. And here's Prancer in front; sure you brushed him this morning? Doesn't he look a bit yellow? And so on. Each one of the little teeth has a name and the magnifying glass is part of the merry play. Grinder and Prancer and all the rest are carefully inspected every day for possible imperfections. Usually they are passed, as perfectly in form to chomp on a chocolate cream. Grinder and Prancer as interesting fellows—playmates in a way—are much more likely to receive faithful attention than just teeth—that have to be brushed, or somebody will scold. The difference is, in the appeal to childish imagination, and in making a story, and a play, of what would otherwise be a dreary duty.

Taps to the dentist should also be pleasant and intriguing things, rather than Awful Ordeals to which one is dragged after howls and protests, or on the promise of presents to come—bribes again! No dentist who knows his business will hurt a little child, and most dentists handle the little folk with delightful tact. The soft fillings that are sometimes necessary to preserve first teeth cannot possibly cause any agony. Deep excavations are not essential for such fillings which are only intended to last a year or two anyway—until the little teeth come out to make way for permanent ones. Grinder and Prancer if they show a speck must be filled at once, or they may crumble to pieces and not hold the space for the bigger teeth that are coming along—and the little jaw may lose its good shape.

These six-year molars, or recognize them when they appear. At six years the first permanent molars make their appearance. They are known as six-year molars, and they have come to stay. Many a mother thinks these molars are just part of the first (or "milk teeth") and is not particularly concerned if they develop specks or even good sized cavities. "They will soon come out anyway," thinks the mother, "so why put my own nerves and small Tommy's feelings through the torturing process of a visit to the dentist?" But the six-year molar is not coming out presently; it is supposed to remain with its possessor for life. Unless it is promptly attended to, the cavity will grow and by and by the tooth will crumble to pieces or ache so horribly that it will have to be extracted. Then, since it was a permanent tooth, there is nothing to fill up the space where it was. And gradually that space closes up as the years go on and other molars push their way along, each big tooth a little out of the place where it was meant to be. Sometimes the distortion of the mouth is so serious that a receding jaw utterly spoils the harmony of the profile. There will be fewer receding jaws in grown-folk of the next generation, for parents now are very careful about these six-year molars, watching them from the time they appear and having them filled the moment the least speck makes itself evident. Even if it is not considered necessary to fill the "milk" teeth, a child should be taken regularly to the dentist in order to have the

NOVEL MEANS TO MAKE WORK FOR JOBLESS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18. — Naval means are being employed by various cities and towns throughout the United States to provide work for the jobless, according to reports collected by Colonel Arthur Woods, head of the organization charged with carrying on work started by the recent national conference on unemployment.

Summaries of these reports show means used to be as follows:

Chicago has made a house to house canvass under the direction of 23 battalion fire chiefs, to compel householders to remove from their premises all combustible material and refuse, as a fire prevention measure. This campaign has created many short time jobs.

Dallas, Texas, took a church census of its population and each household was asked if some special odd job, painting, carpentry, gardening, or cleaning, could be furnished the unemployed, and a record was kept of the replies and addresses, with the result that a large number of days of work were secured for the most needy.

In Fort Wayne, Ind., advertisements were published in the newspaper, and the unemployed were asked to call out and send in blanks. These were turned over to the local employment agency, and local industries secured the help they needed.

Kearney, N. J., has an agent out every afternoon, covering the town, with several helpers, in automobiles. They visit buildings under construction, look over streets being paved, and call at all industrial plants and railroad shops, offering the co-operation of the local employment bureau, and ascertaining exactly what kind of help is needed.

In New York City, 103 social agencies have co-operated in relief work for the unemployed and have established a central bureau of registration to act as clearing house.

Pittsburgh contractors and employers have been urged to keep one or two men in each family on the pay-roll, and to hire to a large extent those living in the city who have dependents. Each ward in Rockford, Ill., has a committee with the two aldermen. These committees in turn have organized precinct committees with a member in charge of each city block. Personal contact like this has resulted in a very successful campaign to provide jobs and relieve distress, the report said.

Schenectady, N. Y., has taken care of its own problem by bond issues for public improvements, and the city officials are enforcing rapidly such ordinances as snow removal, which is done under city supervision and charged on tax bills of all delinquent property owners.

Atlanta, has formed a club of 500 citizens, each of whom has pledged the building of a dwelling to be rented at a reasonable figure, thus giving employment to many, and also helping the housing situation.

Boston has asked all employers to increase the number of their employees by at least one, and as many more as is possible.

New London, Conn., runs special entertainments in the theaters with local talent. The unemployed were allowed to sell tickets and retain a good percentage of the proceeds. Civil service rules are suspended in Cambridge, Mass., so that many persons can rotate in the same jobs.

Houston, Texas, maintains a gang of laborers ranging in number from 200 to 600 paying them $1.25 a day and if they have dependents, supplementing this by charity. Employers are urged to apply to the city for labor, which is supplied from this gang.

NEW JAPANESE CHARM THE RAGE
PARIS, Jan. 18.—Nette and Rintin, those funny little French dolls so long regarded as good luck charms, at last have a rival, who bids fair to be even more popular. He is Nikki, a chubby, plumpie, porcelain Japanese doll, with painted features and sleek hair, short, fat arms and legs full of character.

A pudgy hand holds a Japanese fan and his eyes and mouth are wide open as if in amazement at the approaching future. Nikki is regarded as the most attractive in the claim of charms which have appeared since 1914. His quitted satin coat gives him a friendly fireside air which endears him to everyone.

CONGRESS OF IRISH RACE IS TO BE HELD IN PARIS

PARIS, Jan. 18. — Promoters of the World Congress of the Irish Race to be held in Paris for one week beginning January 31, says it will be the greatest gathering of the Irish race since King Brian's historic assembly in 1014.

The various methods by which the 25,000,000 persons of Irish blood throughout the world can assist in the economic reconstruction of Ireland made necessary by the years of conflict, will be among the chief problems before the conference. The revival of Irish art, language and literature also will be considered.

One of the large halls in the center of Paris has been obtained for the sessions and an exhibition of Irish art will be held in another hall near the headquarters. The best known Irish artists are sending pictures for the exhibition.

Concurrently with the congress will be a representation of Irish Irish drama in French in one of the Parisian theaters and a concert of Irish music by one of the best known orchestras in Europe.

Many descendants of Irish exiles of the 17th century who played historic roles in France and other countries have responded to the invitation of the General Secretary, Miss Katherine Hughes, who will be present.

Five South American countries have already indicated a desire to send delegations. These are Brazil, Argentina, Chile, Bolivia, and Peru, while delegations from New Zealand, Tasmania and other remote countries are already on their way.

WILBARGER ROAD BONDS ARE TAKEN TO AUSTIN

VERNON, Texas, Jan. 18.—E. L. McHugh, County Judge, is in Austin for the purpose of submitting county road bonds for the approval of the Attorney General and registering them. The securities have been delivered in Vernon, and have been signed and approved. As soon as the approval of the State Attorney General is received the Wilbarger bonds will be sent to Chicago and payment for them received. This is expected to take place early next week.

LEGION TEAM LOSES FAST ONE TO SIMMONS

The 150 rooters who packed the Labor Temple Tuesday evening were amply rewarded by one of the fastest basketball games ever seen in Cisco or vicinity. The American Legion team of this city lost to Simmons College of Abilene, but the locals put up a scrappy fight, and the game was won by the visitors in the last two minutes of play. The final score was 32 to 27.

The play on both sides was rough, which was due for the most part to the small court. Men of the size of the Legion and the Simmons teams are seen to better advantage on a larger floor.

Cisco led at the end of the first half, 15 to 13. It was a nip and tuck affair during the last period up until two minutes before the final whistle. Then Simmons forced ahead with a number of brilliant shots, and the game was taken away from the Legionnaires.

To be able to hold one of the fastest college teams in the state to such a close score is some indication of the calibre of the Cisco team, and the Legionnaires feel that they can defeat any amateur team within a radius of 100 miles.

The Legion team goes to Abilene Friday for a return game with Simmons.

The Cisco team was composed of Herring and Sensabaugh, forwards; Robinson, center; McCord and Polsky, guards.
The Simmons line-up was: Tabor and Burk, forwards; Cowden, center; Hull and Collins, guards. Hunter was substituted for Tabor, and Foreman for Collins.

The point winners were as follows:
Cisco—Field goals: Herring 1, Sensabaugh 5, Robinson 1, McCord 1, Polsky 2. Foul goals: Herring 1, Polsky 4.
Simmons—Field goals: Tabor 1, Hunter 2, Burk 6, Cowden 1, Collins 2, Foreman 1. Foul goals: Tabor 6.

Williams, wife of a well-known farmer on Route 5, this place. "I kept getting headaches and having to go to bed," continues Mrs. Williams describing the troubles from which she obtained relief through the use of Cardui. "My husband, having heard of Cardui, proposed getting it for me. I saw after taking some Cardui that I was improving. The result was surprising. I felt like a different person."

"Later I suffered from weakness and weak back, and felt all run-down. I did not rest well at night, I was so nervous and cross. My husband said he would get me some Cardui, which he did. It strengthened me. . . My doctor said I got along fine. I was in good healthy condition. I cannot say too much for it."

Thousands of women have suffered as Mrs. Williams describes, until they found relief from the use of Cardui. Since it has helped so many, you should not hesitate to try Cardui if troubled with womanly ailments. For sale everywhere. E-32

HUMAN SKELETON FOUND IN HAWAII SOLVES PROBLEM

HONOLULU, T. H., Jan. 18.—Half of a human skeleton believed to be 250 years old, discovered on this island by a butcher, is being examined by Dr. Edward Handy, of the staff of the Bishop Museum in the hope that it may help solve the problem of the origin of the Polynesian race. The skeleton includes the major portion of a man's torso and is in an excellent state of preservation, especially the teeth. These are of unusual size and strength and give rise to the belief that the skeleton may be older than 250 years. Dr. Handy said. The spinal column also is preserved partially.

WALLACE REID AND LILA LEE IN "RENT FREE"

AMONG THE MOVIE STARS

HAROLD LLOYD AND MILDRED DAVIS IN "A SAILOR MADE MAN"

DORIS MAY PUTS OFF HER LOVERS IN "EDEN AND RETURN"

SYLVIA BREAMER

VIOLA DANA IN "THE FOURTEENTH LOVER"

"The Fourteenth Lover" — Sylvia Breamer — "Rent Free" — "A Sailor Made Man" — "Eden and Return"

"The Fourteenth Lover," concerns a speedy little flapper, Vi Marchmont, played by Miss Dana. Vi has thirteen suitors to start with and a father who wants her to concentrate on one. The one she concentrates on is the fourteenth, a gardener on her father's estate. He is a university man, but not considered eligible by the wealthy Marchmont family. And Vi is not considered eligible by the gardener. He does not like these society girls whose lives seem remote from ordinary human emotion. But Vi's emotion is very ordinary and very human. She knows she is in love, and she is ready to live in a hall bedroom if necessary to have the man of her choice. Her father steps in and discharges the gardener. Whereupon Vi prepares to fit herself to become a gardener's wife. She takes up book-keeping, sewing and other economic arts, and conspires with the gardener's mother to overcome his pride. This leads her into a scandalous adventure, but Vi finds the fourteenth lover is really her only love.

"Rent Free" In this picture Mr. Reid is seen as Duell Arndster, Jr., an artist—the son of a lawyer who wants him to follow the law as a profession. But Duell prefers to live in a dingy studio in New York for the sake of an artistic career. Through his inability to pay rent he is finally ousted out on to the roof by the irate landlady. He goes over the roof and finally ends up in a fine home, and the owner away, takes possession of a his quarters. He meets Barbara, who is also a roof dweller.

or and it later develops that she is the daughter of the man who owned the fine home, but who had died and left her nothing, because of the wicked influence of her stepmother. The artist, however, finds a new will in a dressing gown formerly used by the deceased father, which awards the daughter all his property and all ends happily after many complications caused by the homecoming of the stepmother and her count husband.

Lila Lee plays opposite the star. Sylvia Breamer is an Australian girl, the daughter of a commander in the British Navy. The roving life of her father made frequent changes of residence necessary; and as a girl, Miss Breamer lived for a year of more in Australia; New Zealand, New Guinea and the South Sea Islands.

At the age of fifteen, she went on the stage in Sidney, where her charm and her beauty captivated her audience. When the family eventually came to America, Miss Breamer joined the company in which Grace George was presenting Bernard Shaw's "Major Barbara." Since her first American venture, she has appeared in "The Argyle Case," "Bought and Paid for," "Under Cover," "Under Fire," and "Ready Money."

Miss Breamer's motion picture career began with the leading role in Charles Ray's "The Pinch Hitter." Since then, she has played leading roles in many photoplays, and has appeared opposite Cullen Landis and Will Rogers in their most recent pictures. With Cullen Landis, she shared honors in "The Man With Two Faces."

Mothers," and with Will Rogers she appeared in "A Poor Relation," and "Doubling for Romeo."

"A Sailor Made Man" The story opens at Abington Arms, an ultra fashionable summer resort. Here it is that the Boy, idle heir to twenty millions, falls in love with the Girl. The Girl is the daughter of a steel magnate. When the Boy asks the magnate for his daughter's hand, papa says, "Show me that you can do something besides loaf. GET A JOB!" The Boy sees a Navy recruiting poster and joins. He is met by the Girl who tells him they are to sail around the world and he is invited. The Boy hurries to the recruiting office to resign but is told that he is signed up for three years.

Six months later we find him a gob aboard a battleship off the coral reefs of Khalpuru-Bhandanna. All hands go ashore with a liberty party. As the Boy rounds a corner in the picturesque streets he meets the Girl, whose father's yacht is in the harbor. Both rejoice at their meeting, but the Rajah has feasted his covetous eyes on the Girl and instructs his men to capture her. A street fight ensues and the Boy is victorious.

Hearing a scream in the distance the Boy starts in pursuit, leading him to the Palace. After a number of uproarious moments in which the Boy throws the harem into disorder, gets mixed up in the Rajah's swimming pool, and beards the Rajah, himself he succeeds in rescuing the Girl and his prospects for a happy ending are good.

"Eden and Return" Oh, good gracious! Imagine having three beau crony about you and not caring for one of them? That was the predicament in which Miss May, petite star, as "Eden and Return" found herself in "Eden and Return." It is the story of a girl who is the daughter of a rich man and is the

and all are scorned by the much-loved Betty.

All three called for the purpose of asking her to become Mrs. B. and so Betty invites a girl friend over to her house and all they do is talk about feminine things until the boys get disenchanted. Betty, in the meantime, secretly wonders how she is going to escape to the man of her dreams and meet Jack Gray to whom she is so Presbyterian Auxiliary.

Circle One of the Presbyterian Auxiliary met Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. H. L. Winchell. Miss Alice Johnson led the devotional. The afternoon was spent in sewing. Mrs. Homer McDonald was appointed to meet with the committee from the other circle to arrange for the entertainment for the new minister. Mrs. M. D. Odum was appointed chairman of the committee to collect clothing for the Mexicans. Mrs. Carl White was named as one of the committee to gather clothing for the Southern Presbyterian Orphanage. Mrs. Winchell served cake and coffee.
Circle Two met with Mrs. T. W. Neel, and Mrs. R. A. McCarty. Nine ten members responded to roll call. The devotional was led by Mrs. R. H. Dorsey, and an interesting program from the Missionary Survey was given. The members pieced quilts for the orphan home, and in the contest to who could piece the first block. Mrs. P. S. Kauffman, president of the auxiliary of Abilene, and honor guest, won the contest. The circle is to send a box to the orphanage inFILES Valley. Mrs. Winchell served sandwiches, tea and wafers.

Missionary Society.

The North Circle of the Methodist Missionary Society met in a Bible study Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. E. Chaney. The study was on the women of the Bible. Mrs. Neal Turner, who had charge of the program, read a very interesting paper on "Historical Facts About Women, and Women of the Bible." Mrs. Ben McClinton discussed "Eve," and Mrs. Jack Walker "Rebecca." Then a general discussion was held on the three women in Genesis. A short business session followed, and the next meeting will be held the second Tuesday in February at the home of Mrs. T. P. Cochran. The hostess served charlotte russe on sliced pineapple, and cake.
The South Circle met at the home of Mrs. Baker, 701 West 7th, with a large attendance. The house was beautifully decorated in the society's colors, lavender and gold. A specially prepared program on Africa was given, and was both interesting and instructive. The Circle voted to assist the North Circle in serving the Rotary dinner. Pledge cards were distributed. The hostess, Mesdames Baker, C. E. Soles, Hicks, and J. M. Lane, served individual lemon pies, nut bread sandwiches, coffee, and candy. Those present were: Mesdames C. E. Soles, Hicks, H. O. STARNES SAYS COUNTY SCRIPT WILL BE PAID

EASTLAND, Jan. 17.—County Judge C. R. Starnes stated that the Fleming-Stitzer Road Building Company has assumed liability of the script issued some time ago by the county to the order of the road building company. This script is understood to total about $311,000.

Safeguards to protect the county's interests have been taken, the judge stated.

When asked when the script would be paid, Judge Starnes said he hoped to be able to announce full particulars concerning the script this week.

Part of Heart of Unhatched Chick Still Beating

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Part of the heart of a chicken that never hatched is still beating today, the tenth anniversary of its removal from the embryo and isolation by Dr. Alexis Carrell of the Rockefeller Institute. The tissue fragment is still growing and its pulsations are visible under a microscope, Dr. Carrell said. It grows so fast it is subdivided every 40 hours.
