CAMPAIGN OF EDUCATION AND REVISION OF TAXATION SYSTEM NEEDED IN TEXAS SAYS VINSON

AUSTIN, Jan. 25.—Texas needs a campaign of education, a revision of the taxation system and revision of the constitutional provisions relating to education to make the University of Texas a first class university, according to Dr. Robert E. Vinson, president of the university, in explaining the situation facing that institution.

education, so that our people as a whole may be brought into contact with dependable information any may become increasingly friendly toward this constructive function of state government.

The attendance for this year reckoning from commencement to commencement is already considerably in excess of the total enrollment of last year, Dr. Vinson said, in stating the situation. The present registration is slightly under 10 per cent increase over the total enrollment of the preceding year. It is interesting also to note that students are in actual attendance in the university from a total of about 215 out of the 250 counties of the state.

There will have to be a thorough-going revision of our state system of taxation, removing inequalities and bringing under responsibility the sources of revenue which are now escaping a fair share of the burden of state support.

The financial condition of the university this year as compared with last year is, in round figures as follows: Actual expenditures for current items properly chargeable to the general revenue for the year ending August 31, 1921, were $1,608,000, while the total appropriations available for like purposes for this year are $1,504,000, or $88,000 short of last year's expenditures, not taking into consideration the enlarged needs due to increased enrollment nor the demands for the natural and necessary expansion of university activities year by year.

"Now the result of all this has been to lower the morale of the university staff as a whole, a result which is altogether natural and to be expected. To be told that for two years the board of regents is prohibited from making any promotions or advancements, that for this period excellent work and real merit can have no consideration, that every one now connected with the university must expect to remain in exactly the same status, although men and women may be brought in from other institutions at such rank and salary as the board may determine, is all calculated to dampen the ardor of the most enthusiastic.

Up to this date sixteen resignations have been tendered since this bill became a law and we need not be surprised at many more offered before the end of the year. For the crowded condition of all institutions has created a demand for competent teachers of university rank, which is unprecedented, and men and women who have been placed under such discriminating restrictions are frankly in the market. The faculty is the university. In times of financial stringency that should be the last point to which economy should be applied.

After retiring from active politics he went to New York City where he became associated with several of the largest business corporations in the country. He served as a director on the boards of the Banker's Trust Company, First National Bank, Woolworth company, American Car and Foundry company, Sears Roebuck and Company and many others.

You Are Buying More Than Mechanical Ability When You Engage Our Services In The Production of Your Printing

It is impractical for every user of printing to know the innermost details of type arrangement, paper selection, color combinations and the many other things which enter into every effective job of printing.

The larger concerns located in more populous trade centers can afford to keep a man on a salary to look after such matters as this.

It would be easier for us and would require less of us if every user of printing who did business with us came to our office with exact specifications in regard to type, paper, ink and other such details. But we know that this is not practical. That is the reason we have a service department connected with our job department.

This department is conducted by the superintendent of our job composing room. Here you can always be sure of intelligent co-operation in the planning of your printing. You can be certain of helpful advice in regard to type arrangement, use of decoration, selection of papers and combinations of colors. If your printing falls short in any of these particulars you have not gotten full value for your money.

WE ARE ALWAYS BUSY, BUT WE ARE ALWAYS PREPARED TO GIVE YOU PROMPT SERVICE.

Our job department is busy, but we always have reserve capacity in both talent and equipment to accommodate a few more jobs. The busy printer can always give you better service—that's why he is busy — that's why he has extensive equipment and highly skilled men. That is why he can and does deliver printing that gets results.

We have equipped a job plant here that has few equals in West Texas, a plant containing $15,000 worth of the best printing machinery and type that can be bought. None of the equipment or type is more than two years old. We buy bond papers, envelopes and other supplies by the case lot and we discount our bills. You can be assured that when you come here for printing that you are going to get results that are equal to those obtained in the best offices in Texas. You will get a class of service that you cannot get anywhere else in this section.

If you are not already availing yourself of this economical, business building force, we want to invite you to become one of our family of satisfied customers.

If it is inconvenient for you to come to our office to plan your printing, telephone No. 80 and one of our men will meet you at your convenience with specimens of type and paper and will be glad to help you plan your printing.

We are here to serve you efficiently, economically and promptly.

Like New Frocks Negligees Grow Longer and Take To Themselves Flowing Sleeves - Orchid and Lavender Tones Fancied for Boudoir Wear - Lace a Feature of Winter Negligees.

FASHIONS in frocks always repeat themselves to greater or less extent in negligees, and modes in negligee wear are forever changing—discouraging to the woman who likes to reserve one special, expensive negligee for special occasions, like a week-end visit or a possible spell of invalidism. Before that expensive garment begins to show signs of wear, it has gone completely out of style and must be hacked around—to speak—as an ordinary every-morning petticoat, not suitable at all for its purpose; while something new and up-to-date is purchased for the best particular negligee.

This year there has been a sudden and disastrous change in negligees, as in frocks, for the woman who usually manages to bring her clothes up-to-date by little minor changes. The new negligees are much longer and their sleeves are a great deal bigger; two features that no contriving will effect in a last-year model with a short skirt and cunning little sleeves.

Bathrobes Last Word in Luxury
Take the pictured bathrobe for instance. See how it clings and drapes itself on the figure—yet the effect looks so simple of accomplishment! And what a difference between this exquisitely graceful bathrobe and the shapeless things one used to don after the bath; straight-up-and-down robes of printed flannel, with no lines at all and a cord girdle pulling in the fullness somehow, at any waistline one happened to strike, in knotting the cord. The pictured bathrobe is a lovely shade of apricot-pink, and the robe is lined with soft silk of creamy tint. Cord-bound slashes at either side of the wide robe make loose armholes, and the neck opening and fronts are also bound with the white silk cord. Fringe of this cord, adroitly placed, make the unusual drapery of the garment; one cord fastened to the front and another to some pleats taken up at the center back.

The corduroy bathrobes are gorgeous affairs, some of them elaborately embroidered and trimmed with bands of fur. A most beautiful model for a mid-winter trousseau is of white corduroy with white fox fur at neck and sleeves, and a bold motif of embroidery in white silk floss on the sleeves and pockets of the gown. Pretty little breakfast coats of corduroy in cerise, coral, Chinese blue or the just-now very fashionable violet, are in slip-on style, the wide kimono sleeves slashed underneath and weighted with silk tassels. The slip-on hangs straight from the shoulder and a cord girdle draws it in at a low waistline.

Sleeve Important Part of a Negligee
Most of the new negligees are entirely simple in line—just straight slips of rich fabric—but enormous and cunningly designed sleeves lend a distinctive touch to the simple garment. Some actually trail on the floor when the arms are lowered, the great quantity of soft material falling into lovely drapery when the arm is lifted. Of course, very expensive materials must make these negligees, for only soft, beautiful stuffs will take the correct lines. One of the pictured negligees has huge sleeves that are like nothing else than old-fashioned bolster cases, open at one end and attached to the arm by bracelets, the inner edge of the bolster case fastened to the side of the frock all the way down. Yet see what graceful lines these bolster-case sleeves take when the arm is lifted and lowered! This is an enchanting negligee of daffodil tinted radium silk and is a bit of morning sunshine all in itself! The straight slip, gathered into a curved neckband, is tucked by hand from hip to hem and a heavy girdle of pale green baccalite, passing through slashes under the bolster-case sleeves, holds down the filmy silk to the figure. The sleeves are attached to the gown all the way down its side-seams and at the shoulders there are pale green baccalite buttons which unfasten so the gown may be slipped over the head. Pale green baccalite rings, or bracelets, sewed to the sleeves, keep the drapery in correct position on the arms. Exquisite little boudoir slippers of daffodil brocade, soft as a glove on the foot, go with this negligee.

Ribbon Loops Effect Sleeve Drapery
The white Georgette and lace breakfast coat shows a very clever arrangement of ribbon which gives the suggestion of draped sleeves to a perfectly straight, simple garment. The coat is made of a length of the material, doubled over at the shoulders and slashed down the center front. Neck, front edges and side edges are bordered with silk lace in the cream white tone of the Georgette. Smart bows of orchid ribbon at back and front of the coat, and long twisted garlands of the ribbon connecting the bows catch in the lace-edged side of the coat and give an effect of draped sleeves. The coat is dropped over a slip of pleated crepe de chine, as the breakfast gown is not as transparent as its filmy coat suggests; and is much warmer for a chilly morning than it seems.

Still more informal—and obviously only for bed room wear—is the loose pair of orchid brocade, accompanied by satin mules of the same tint. Orchid is just now the favorite shade for negligee wear, and in the darker toned garments violets and purples lead in favor. The orchid negligee has most interesting sleeves which perhaps you can study out by a close scrutiny of the picture. Front and back breaths of brocade have been slashed open at the shoulder to within an inch or so of the neckline.

Fringed Lace and Net Tucking in a Dainty But Perishable Neck-Fixing To Dress Up A Special Costume.

and a length of soft-tens chiffon has been inserted in the slash to make the flowing sleeve. The sleeve is seamed down the underside and is in three-quarter length. The lower edge is picot-finished and silk tassels depend from the inner side. This sleeve and the slashed away part of the brocade gown, falling together in soft folds beneath the arm, make a most graceful drapery. Otherwise, as you perceive, the negligee is a straight, unshaped slip of brocade.

Callot's Striped Green Trouser Negligee
Trousers negligees are just as popular as ever, but not much has been said of them on today's page because they make a whole story in themselves and this time the chat is about new negligees of the draped, clinging type. But just a word about one trouser negligee that is the hit of the season in Paris. Callot Soeurs stand sponsor for it and their original model was in jade and white striped silk

DAINTY NECKWEAR Hints of Spring Days Coming

FRESH and pretty neckwear always floods the shops in spring-time. Every woman feels the inclination, when winter begins to wane, to freshen herself up in crisp, dainty neckwear fixings; and with the shedding of fur coats and fur scarfs collarless frocks—with the plain neckline relieved by only a string of beads—loses its smartness. Summer dresses, too—little costumes of gingham, linen, organza and the like, simply have to be daintified with neckwear touches and with cuffs and vestees; so all the really new and interesting conceits in neckwear make their bow about this season—in good time for the coming spring and summer. The simple, one-piece frocks that are to be just as fashionable all summer (judging by present style prophecies) make an admirable background for dainty neckwear belongings; and a great many of the new neckwear models are in shapes and styles to suit these one-piece frocks. Neckwear—that is: collar and cuff sets—will not be worn with tailored suits so much as with tailored frocks of serge and linen. And linen frocks, remember, are the bright particular feature of Palm Beach mornings. A simple one-piece linen frock, belted or sashed at a low waistline—and something extremely stunning by way of collar and cuffs. That's Madam's mode in exclusive and distinctive style for next summer.

In the shops are numbers of handsome cuff and collar sets in all shapes and materials. There are plain sets of fine linen lawn, hand hemstitched and there are sets with Madeira embroidery, English eyelet embroidery, or Italian cutwork embroidery. These sets are edged with Irish crochet. Then there are more airy sets, of sheer embroidered net, with bands of Val lace and sun. These are lovely with girlish dresses in pale color, tailored frocks of crepe. For a black crepe, with jade edge-bands and silk girde; now the Callot model has been copied in various other shades, but the style remains the same. There is a loose jacket, double-breasted and lapping far to one side; jacket-edge, sleeve edge and deep collar extending to the waistline all bordered with plain color to match the stripe in the garment. The trousers are so loose they suggest a skirt, and they are not gathered in at the ankle but fall full and loose, with a border of the plain color. A silk cord matching the stripe and border is tied loosely over the jacket at a low waistline.

The exquisite little slip of pleated Georgette and lace is supposed to go over a filmy nightgown if one moves about the room in that garment. Some of these nightgown slips are worn as nightgowns, but probably only as trousseau affairs, for nobody but a bride would be extravagant enough to wear such a costly and fragile bit of finery as sleeping garb. Embroidered net, real valenciennes lace and pleated white Georgette make the pictured slip, with ribbons in pale pink.

Bateau collars, or Jenny collars as they are sometimes called because they outline the wide, shallow rounded neckline so much favored by Jenny, are usually very dainty affairs, for severe tailored effects are too harsh with this rather severe type of neck opening. Such collars are of hand are cool—but they are troublesome, except when one is dressed up in one's formal best. It is not probable however, that morning dresses of linen and gingham will have these get-in-the-way-of-everything sleeves. They are too utterly impractical for ordinary use and there will be plenty of elbow and wrist-length sleeves to set off the pretty cuffs neckwear departments show now in profusion.

The main feature of all neckwear departments just now, of course, is the vestee—or gilet—or Russian tunic vest, as you prefer to call it. Some of these vestees are attached to slip-on gimpes; others are straight strips of fabric that you attach with more or less success inside the fronds of your bodice. Unless such a strip is sewed fast, however, and supplied with snap fasteners where the bodice opens there are apt to be unsightly gaps. The vestees attached to gimpes are much the best, for there is no bother about sewing, or about ripping out sewing when laundering; must be gone. Three very charming vestees for early spring wear are pictured, and very fresh and springlike are these dainty belongings, when straw hat is doled and winter furs laid aside!

The simplest looking vestee of the lot—the model with tucks and little frills—is really the most elaborate; for this set will have to go to a professional cleaner's to be freshened. The crisp little frills must be crisply pleated to look right—and no home-flattener, however clever, can achieve this even pleating. When somebody invents a little contraption which may be heated in a flame and then used to pleat narrow frills perfectly—just as you heat a curling iron and then make waves in your hair—a fortune for that somebody will be made! But no inventor seems to have turned his attention to this needed device yet. This tucked net and lace frilled vestee and collar are worn with a dark blue worsted sweater and the effect is dainty and charming. The vestee and collar of cutwork embroidery and lace accompany a one-piece frock of black velvet. The vestee and collar of embroidered net, machine embroidered and lace may be worn with a frock or with a sport skirt and sweater. These dainty accessories are worn all sorts of costumes now, and vestees are just as smart with costumes as they are with silk afternoon costumes.

These are lovely with girlish dresses in pale color, tailored frocks of crepe. For a black

THREE HUNDRED THOUSAND RAIL EMPLOYEES AFFECTED BY CHANGE IN THE RULES OF LABOR BOARD

Abolition of Penal Overtime Until After Ninth Hour and "Split Tricks" Are Among the Changes in Rules Governing Clerks and Terminal Employees—New Rules, Effective February 1, Supersede National Agreement.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—Abolition of penal overtime payments until after the ninth hour of work and authorization of "split tricks" instead of compelling overtime payments or two shifts for intermittent work over a span of more than eight hours are important changes of rules governing railroad clerical and terminal employees issued by the United States Railroad Labor Board last night.

The new rules, which become effective February 1, supersede the national agreement made by the federal administration with the Brotherhood of Railway & Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employees, which has been in effect since January 1, 1920. About 300,000 employees are affected.

Application of the new split trick rules and elimination of time and one-half pay for the extra hour are expected to save the railroads millions of dollars, labor board statisticians estimating that the amount would reach $15,000,000 annually. During the rule hearings, many roads testified that baggagemen, train announcers and other employees doing intermittent work, many of them young boys or aged men formerly paid $75 a month, were receiving $175 to $200 due to operation of the overtime rule. This overtime will now be eliminated.

The eight-hour day was retained in principle, however, as were collective bargaining and union recognition. The new rules cover all points in clerical working agreements not covered by rules negotiated between individual roads and their employees.

Time and one-half pay now applies only to the tenth hour of work or thereafter, and to hours worked if held on duty more than two hours when called for extra work. Sunday and holiday work will be paid at straight time, except where the railroad agrees to do otherwise.

Reopening of many small railway stations, improvement of service to small towns and on suburban lines is expected to follow the adoption of the new rule as to intermittent work. It will now be possible for the railroads to place responsible employees at the smaller stations at all train hours without the expense which they claim is now prohibitive, and which has resulted in the closing of many stations and the handing of others over to caretakers and janitors at some hours of the day.

The new rule announced by the board provides that where actual service is intermittent, eight hours actual time on duty within a spread of twelve hours shall constitute a day's work. When employees actually work more than eight hours within the span or when held longer than 12 hours to perform their work, they are to be paid time and one-half for the extra time.

Under the old national agreement,

Death Lurks in White Corn Liquor Says Pro Agent

LOUISVILLE, Jan. 23.—"The face on the burrow floor should be a skull, with crossbones under it, these days," declares George H. Blincoe, federal prohibition agent. "Death lurks in white corn liquor," he says. "It all contains fusel oil, one of the most deadly poisons. First-run moonshine is 'rank poison' yet the moonshiner who makes the stuff—first shots' is called by the legitimate distiller—doesn't trouble himself to distill it again, but sells it as it is for drinking purposes."

The prosecution rested when the court announced that it would reserve until Wednesday its decision on the argument as to Miss Preston's motive in making alleged conflicting statements under oath. ## ACREAGE NEAR GORMAN SOLD; TO DRILL SOON

The long desired move has come about finally, says the Gorman progress. T. E. Welch, and associates have a representative in Gorman at this time getting together some acreage for a well on the east side of town. We and a lot of other citizens have for a long time wanted to see a well drilled near town on that side and they have the same spot of ground in view. These people want the citizens to furnish them at least a hundred and twenty-five acres to drill upon and when the time comes they will have their geologist to spot the place. It will, however, be some place within a mile of the east side of town and will be drilled to the bottom of nowhairs or get oil. Only a few more acres are needed to make the proposition a go. The man on the ground has the matter well in hand and is looking to be able to spud in a very short time. Any citizen who has acreage in the desired territory and wants to see this well put down will do well to let someone know about it.

If there is a place in the country that has never had a test it is this immediate strip of country. It is close to the highest point in the county and is situated in a seemingly good formation. Gorman ought to all get behind the proposition and help put it over.
