Any movement tending to aid the farmer never fails to substantially benefit the merchant.

COUNSEL FOR CISCO MAN CHARGED WITH ASSAULT TO MURDER ALLEGED FAIR TRIAL IS IMPOSSIBLE HERE

In Support of Their Motion for Change of Venue Mahaney's Attorneys Present Statement From Ten Residents of County — State's Attorney Resists Application, and Arguments Are Being Made This Afternoon — Patterson and Wright Assist Prosecution.

EASTLAND, March 15.—A change of venue of the case of Newt Mahaney who is charged with assault to murder on L. J. Starkey of Cisco February 3, was sought this morning by Mahaney's counsel, Barker & Barker and Lee J. Kearley, when the case was called in the Eighty-eighth district court. Counsel for the defense contended that there was a prejudice against Mahaney in this county and that it would be impossible for him to get a fair and impartial trial in this county. They supported their motion with a sworn statement from ten residents of the county who stated that they did not think it was possible for Mahaney to get a fair and impartial trial in this county.

County Attorney Ove Overson resisted the application for a change of venue and offered testimony to show that the ten men whose statement the counsel for the defense had based their application upon, had no way of knowing the sentiment of the entire county on this case and that they were not prepared to say that Newt Mahaney could not get a fair and impartial trial in this county. The county attorney contended that there were plenty of qualified jurors in the county who knew nothing of the facts in the case and had no preconceived opinions about it.

The burden of proving that a fair and impartial trial cannot be secured in the county is placed upon the attorneys for the defense. They will begin this afternoon the introduction of testimony to support their application.

B. W. Patterson and Forrest D. Wright, who were selected by the Cisco bar to assist the prosecution in this case, are adding Mr. Overson. That there is a great deal of interest in this case is evident from the large number of people here from Cisco today to attend the trial.

BENDE RESENTS COURT'S ACTION

EASTLAND, March 15.—Three were arrested Sunday by Prohibition Enforcement Officer Bende and led in jail here for federal authorities were released yesterday afternoon following a habeas corpus hearing Judge Davenport upon application of the counsel for the men. Mr. Bende was out of the city yesterday afternoon and the county attorney's department state that request was made that the habeas corpus hearing be postponed until after Mr. Bende's return, and that the court refused to postpone the hearing, and released the men when there was no one to present any evidence against them.

Mr. Bende stated upon his return to the city that he had a confession from one of the men to a violation of the liquor law. He is looking for all three of the men for the purpose of arresting them.

TWO MEN ARE INJURED IN BRECKENRIDGE FIRE

BRECKENRIDGE, March 15.—When fire destroyed a five-room dwelling here Tuesday, Bill Jones received burns from which he is not expected to survive, and A. L. Johnson, another occupant, was badly burned. A can of oil exploded while the men were starting a fire.

SHERIFF KILLED IN RAID

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., March 15.—Sheriff L. L. Smith of Bradley county was shot and killed Tuesday moonshiners while making a raid on a still near Lauderback Springs.

GIRL INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT IS IMPROVING

KALAMAZOO, Mich., March 15.—Slight improvement was reported today in the condition of Miss Emaline Kwakernack, Western State Normal school student, whose skull was fractured when she jumped from an automobile driven by John E. Dodge of Detroit early Sunday morning. Dodge will be arraigned in municipal court Tuesday next on charges of driving an automobile while intoxicated and possessing, transporting and furnishing intoxicating liquor.

CONSERVATION OF PRODUCTS OF FARM PROBLEM

AUSTIN, March 15.—The two basic problems confronting the Texas farmers at the present time are how to conserve the products and how to market them. The products are the most valuable asset of the farmer, and the marketing of these products is the key to his financial success. The state market and warehouse commissioner said today.

As a solution of the first problem Mr. Ramsey advocates the bonded warehouse receipts, with one or more of these receipts to every commodity. "When a sufficient number of these receipts have been built," he said, "the farmers of Texas will enjoy a fuller measure of prosperity."

"Bonded warehouses, under close state supervision, provide a channel through which the products of the farmer reach the consumer without the assistance of the middleman. The warehouse gives the farmers of a community a chance to pool their products and market them cooperatively through a single agent.

"Tending the actual sale of the products, the farmer is enabled, through his warehouse receipts, to borrow money on the goods he has in storage.

"A bonded warehouse, or should have, a qualified grader and classifier of all the farm products stored in a warehouse, and the grader should have a license, since the law requires that the bonded warehouse receipts shall show the grade and class of all the goods in storage. The producer also will then know at all times the value of his surplus stock in storage.

Commissioner Ramsey advanced these arguments in favor of the bonded warehouse plan.

"It encourages the installation of a system in financing the entire crop; establishes a system of selling and fixes a definite system of buying for the farm, and for the family.

"It tends encouragement, by reason of close grading, to the raising of the grade of commodities produced.

"It reduces the final rate of insurance by 15 per cent in certain non-perishable products of the farm because of the supervision exercised by the department.

"The owner of the products in storage is protected from fraud and poor business management, since the warehouse examiners carefully go over the business transactions of warehouses under their jurisdiction.

The examiners inspect and supervise not only the physical properties of these products, but their methods of conducting business. If a warehouse corporation, is organized under the warehouse and markets law, and is found to be solvent, it is the duty of these examiners to close its doors.

"The benefits to be derived from the operation of this system are not confined to the producers themselves," Mr. Ramsey said, "but are enjoyed equally by bankers and business men in the communities where the bonded warehouses have been established, for each one of these individuals is interested in and dependent upon the stabilizing of the prices of the products which is the backbone of the nation's industries. The farmer always is hard pressed if his business is conducted in a loose and shoddy manner and every other business man is affected when the farmer is in difficulty.

"The warehouse division of the department has to do with the conserving of the farmers' products, the shielding of them from weather and safeguarding them against deterioration until such time as the market will absorb these products at a fair price.

"The department has within its scope the administration of laws dealing with co-operative marketing of these products and it is within its provisions to seek to enable the farmer to finance himself on the products he has grown.

JUDGE IS CONSIDERING CONTEMPT CHARGES MADE AGAINST AUSTIN MEN

AUSTIN, March 15.—Judge James R. Hamilton took under advisement the matter of the motion made by the grand jury here citing for contempt of court J. D. Copeland, police commissioner, and F. G. Reynolds, clerk of a fraternal order, alleging that the two men refused to answer questions concerning membership in the Ku Klux Klan when they were called before the grand jury in connection with the investigation into the killing of Peeler Clayton here last December.

TEXAS NEEDS TEN MILLION FOR HIGHWAYS

AUSTIN, March 15.—Texas needs about $10,000,000 for the proper construction and maintenance of its highways, according to J. D. Fauntleroy, state highway engineer. The available funds for the department are about $1,700,000, he said.

The following amounts are needed, according to Mr. Fauntleroy's statement: To match federal aid, $5,000,000; state aid, $2,000,000; for maintenance, $1,500,000; for support of highway department, $500,000.

To raise the necessary amount, Mr. Fauntleroy suggested an increase in the motor vehicle tax and a tax on gasoline and oil. There is already a tax on crude oil. In this connection, he said that Louisiana expects to raise from $2,500,000 to $4,000,000 by a tax on gasoline and oil.

"Surely, if such a small state as Louisiana can raise that amount, Texas, as large and rich as it is, could raise nearly $10,000,000," he said.

Without automobiles and motor vehicles of every kind, a state cannot expect to flourish in these times," said Mr. Fauntleroy. "Good roads are necessary for automobile travel and the people of Texas are entitled to the best roads in the country."

Unlimited possibilities for winter travel abound in Texas. If the highway system is properly developed, according to the highway engineer, points of historic interest, in which Texas is filled, are touched by practically all of the highway projects, he said, and only the building of good highways throughout the state is necessary to bring to this state an annual influx of many winter tourists. The tourists would bring money into the state and leave it with Texans, said Mr. Fauntleroy, with resulting prosperity for nearly every line of industry.

ESCAPE IN NIGHT CLOTHES

RENO, Nev., March 15.—Scores of guests escaped from the upper windows in their night clothes when the Riverside hotel, the largest here, was destroyed by fire early today.

ANOTHER REPORT BY GAS COMPANY

As a means of explanation, not because it is required by law, the Cisco Gas and Electric Company today filed with the mayor a supplementary report, which goes into detail on the item, "building," which was set down in the report required by the state and city of the value of $298,220.24. Some of the citizens of Cisco have maintained that this valuation was excessive, and some have given no consideration to the fact that this item includes gas mains and poles and wires, meters and transformers, according to P. W. Campbell, manager of the company.

In the report filed today, lands are listed at $11,018.25; machinery, $53,239.25; buildings, $68,757.50; poles and fixtures, $62,999.59; circuits, $24,305.80; gas mains, $77,899.55.

INDIANA MAN SURE HE HAS MARRIED NO MORE THAN THIRTEEN

INDIANAPOLIS, March 15.—Two more wives were added today to the list of matrimonial ventures of Isaiah Moore, who is under arrest here charged with bigamy and embezzlement. "I have kept a pretty good record of my marriages, and I am sure there are only thirteen," said Moore. He said he neglected to include one at Denver and one at Ridgeview, Md., and could not remember the names of either.

RECOGNITION OF HER RIGHTS WAS ALL THAT WAS SOUGHT BY U. S.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Recognition of her rights, not financial gain, was all that was sought at this time in the recent demand upon the allies' finance ministers for the payment of $241,000,000 expenses of the American army of occupation, it was stated today by high administration officials.

LADIES AUXILIARY TO AMERICAN LEGION MAY BE ORGANIZED

John William Butts, post, No. 123, of the American Legion, will hold an open meeting next Monday night, the time set for the regular meeting of the post, at which the wives, sisters and mothers of ex-service men will be the guests.

The primary purpose of the open meeting is to talk over the question of organizing a ladies' auxiliary to the post. These auxiliaries have proven popular in other towns and cities where posts have been organized, and it is thought such an organization will be an unqualified success in Cisco.

The meeting will be held in the auditorium of the city hall unless a later announcement is made of a change in location. Dean Sherry is chairman of the committee from the Legion on the ladies' auxiliary work, and he urges a large attendance of ex-service men next Monday evening.

VISIT TO THE EAST WARD SCHOOL LEADS A NEWS MAN TO BELIEVE PARENTS SHOULD VISIT SCHOOLS

In the way of a reminder, this is "Visit the Schools week."

The school officials and teachers of Cisco have gone to a great deal of extra trouble this week to receive visitors to the schools, and the patrons are not responding in the numbers they should. Every opportunity is given at the Cisco schools this week by the parents of the children attending to find out just what is being done in the way of their education, and it is felt that the parents should take enough interest to spare a little time to visit those grades in which their children are students, at least.

On the walls of the school rooms and on tables conveniently placed in the halls and in the class rooms are exhibits of the work done by the school children in different lines of study which are very interesting, even to the people who have no children in the schools, and it would pay any citizen of Cisco to make a visit to any one of the school buildings this week and give these exhibits the once-over.

At the East Ward school, which is the only one so far visited by the News, the teachers and pupils in every grade point with pride to the exhibits of the work the boys and girls have done during the present school year. E. B. Isaacks is the principal of this building, and the teachers are as follows: Mrs. T. C. Weir, first grade; Mrs. Helen Bernier West, second grade; Miss Lucy Kirtland, third grade; Miss Minnie Cox, Miss Ethel Cureton and Mrs. E. T. Ball, fifth, sixth and seventh grades.

In the first grade room the visitor

This I. W. Harper Is Not Man Who Made the Old Stuff

The I. W. Harper who was discovered dipping mash in a moonshining outfit one-half mile east of Cisco Tuesday evening by Special Officer W. B. Hicks disclaim any relationship to the man who made I. W. Harper whiskey famous in years gone by. A 30-gallon still and two barrels of mash were located in the raid and the case was turned over to the Prohibition Agent Tom Hendie of Eastland. Harper is already under bond on a charge of making whiskey.

BONUS BILL IS TO BE REPORTED BY CITY FOR LOCATION OF SCHOOL

WASHINGTON, March 15.—A soldiers bonus bill with the bank loan provision was ordered favorable reported Tuesday by the house ways and means committee. The vote was 19 to 5. Three Democrats, Kitchin, Garner and Collier, and two Republicans, Treadway and Tilton, voted against the measure.

By the same vote the committee rejected an amendment under which the bonuses would have been financed by a sales tax.

Secretary Mellon told the house ways and means committee that he would not feel it incumbent on the treasury department to advise loans not to loan money on adjusted service certificates, as they would be authorized to do under a provision of the compromise soldiers' bonus bill.

Comptroller of the Currency Clegg, in a letter of last week that if the bonus bill became a law he would advise national banks not to make loans on the certificates.

CHICAGO BLOCK BURNED AT LOSS OF TEN MILLION

CHICAGO, March 15.—A spectacular fire early today destroyed a block of business buildings just outside the downtown district, at a loss estimated from ten to fifteen million dollars. Every structure in the block bounded by Van Buren, Canal and Clinton streets and Jackson Boulevard was burned, a total of 21. The Burlington building, housing the Mercantile Trust Savings bank, was wrecked.

Firemen were kept busy fighting fires in a dozen different places, breaking out intermittently until nearly 5 o'clock, when the blaze was under control.

James McGovern, fireman, was hit by a falling wall and killed. Lieut. William Everett of an engine company was seriously injured, and an unknown number of the hundred thousand spectators were hurt by falling bricks, burning timbers and sparks.

APPROVAL OF PROPOSITION OFFERED BY CITY FOR LOCATION OF SCHOOL HERE GIVEN AT BIG MASS MEETING

The citizens of Cisco, in mass meeting at the city hall auditorium Tuesday night, expressed their approval of the proposition recently offered by the city of Cisco, through the local chamber of commerce, to the trustees of the Midland Christian College and to the educational board of the Texas Christian church organization, concerning the removal of the college from Midland to this city.

The Rev. L. N. Stubbins, pastor of the First Methodist church, stated that he favors the location of the college here from every standpoint. "It is estimated that every college student brings to a town $500 each year," he said. "With 500 students, this college would bring into Cisco $500,000. Besides the commercial feature, a college would give us cultural tone. It will help us financially, spiritually and intellectually. Let us all get back of it."

A. L. Mayhew stated that he would rather leave to his children such monuments as good schools and good churches than money, and offered his support to the location of the college in Cisco.

Dr. J. W. Gregory expressed the opinion that the location of this college was the most important question which the citizens of Cisco have had to consider for some time. "I would like to see this college come here," he said, "and I am at your service."

The meeting was not as largely attended as it should have been, but it was attended by representative citizens, and the officers of the chamber of commerce and the city officials are gratified over the expressions made by these present.

Sanction of the Movement by the Educational Board of the Texas Christian Church Organization All That is Necessary Before Papers Are Signed—Plans Will Be Made at Once to Have Estimates Made on the Cost of Repairing the Buildings on Britton Hill.

While the educational board of the state church organization has not yet given its sanction to the proposed move, it is thought that this approval will be forthcoming in a very short time, and plans will be made at once to have estimates made on the cost of placing the buildings on Britton Hill, currently occupied by the Midland school, in shape to receive the Midland school. The work of repairing these buildings, it is thought, can be accomplished within a very short time, since they were originally built for school purposes. There are some legal phases attached to the use of the property for college purposes, and these matters will be gone into at once so that there will be no entanglements. The trustees of the college have already approved the offer made by the city, through the chamber of commerce.

At the meeting in the city hall last night, A. J. Webster, president of the chamber of commerce, presided.

The first speaker introduced was the Rev. E. H. Holmes, pastor of the First Christian church of this city. The Rev. Mr. Holmes has taken a very active part in the negotiations with the Midland College, and has attended all conferences with the trustees of the institution and with the members of the state board of the Christian church. He outlined in a general way the plans of the city to secure the educational institution and gave in detail the provisions of the proposition made to the school. He expressed the hope that the citizens of Cisco would approve the action of the chamber of commerce in its efforts to locate the college here and predicted that in years to come the people would realize the wisdom of the city's action. "The location of the college here would be of greater benefit to the city and to the community."

Mayor J. M. Williamson was the next speaker on the program. The mayor urged the citizenship to get behind the movement to locate the Midland college in Cisco. "You may dream of growth and development in the coming years, if you do not make the normal life of the community."

"Nothing that has been brought up for the consideration of the people of Cisco in the two years that I have been stationed here," said the Rev. Howard, "has been half so important as the coming here of this school. If they are anything in the world for me to be a booster in this cause," he stated briefly a few of the many advantages of a college town, and said that the moral tone of any community in which is located a Christian school is better than that of the community in which no such school is located. "We want to keep step with every worthy enterprise that can be brought to our city," he said. "Let's be for this college—all of us."

Eugene Linkford, Cisco attorney, and president of the Citizens League, in discussing the influence of the college upon the city as a whole, stated that he was always ready to do what he could to encourage a movement for better education. "Success means brains," said Mr. Linkford, "and the better educated the people of any town are, the more successful they will be. If anything should interest the people of Cisco, it should be a college. He dwelt upon the benefits of a college town, stating that the people in such towns had a more refined and more intelligent look than the people in towns where the normal educational institutions were neglected. "Association with college trained men and women will prove of immense benefit to the citizens of Cisco," the speaker said. Speaking of the legal objections which might be raised in regard to the location on the city property of a sectarian school, Mr. Linkford said: "Technicalities in the law are not for the purpose of preventing good. Let us bring this school to Cisco some way or another."

W. F. Pulley, as a representative of union labor, gave his approval to the movement for the location of the college in Cisco. "People come to the school towns," he said, "and we want

MASSONS PURCHASE PROPERTY

EL PASO, March 15.—Massons have purchased a four-story modern hospital and half an acre of land adjoining it for an addition of $125,000. Members of the order and their friends subscribed $140,000 for the hospital and $10,000 will be held as a fund for new equipment.

COAL STRIKE SAID TO BE INEVITABLE

WASHINGTON, March 15.—A general strike in the bituminous coal industry on or about April 1 is inevitable, Secretary of Labor Davis and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, agreed Tuesday following a prolonged conference at which they discussed the situation growing out of the controversy between the miners and mine operators.

Mr. Lewis declared later that the operators were forcing the strike as a bold commercial ploy for which the public would pay. The miners' president reiterated his statement that the unions were prepared to open negotiations looking to the formulation of an agreement to take the place of that which expires next month.

President Lewis said the miners' union, regardless of any actions or reports of actions in separate districts, would insist upon a settlement of the new wage scale by means of a national contract in the central competitive field. The operators have refused to consider making such a contract.

INVESTMENT BANKERS DELIGHTED WITH CITY

Messrs. Thornberg of Toledo, O., and White, of New York, investment bankers, who have in the past handled many Cisco securities, were in the city Tuesday visiting the city officials, and making an inspection of the city and community. Both gentlemen stated that they were delighted with the situation here, and say that Cisco is the best town of its size in the state of Texas. They expressed surprise that such a good town was located in West Texas. While here Messrs. Thornberg and White made a trip to the dam site, and heartily approved the enterprise.

KANSAS BOUND TO LEAD

William Allen White, who has always known what the Kansans were up to, told them many years ago that they should raise less—well, less of what Kansas was raising at that time, and that they should apply themselves more diligently to the raising of corn.

But Kansas is not brought into line so easily as all that. They have raised and are still raising things out there that do not in the least resemble corn. There seems to be something explosive about the typical Kansan. You never can tell what he is going to do or say or think next. He defies regimentation and shifts easily from one extreme to another.

We call these things "extremes in other states." In Kansas they are the usual and casual events of the day. If Kansas water flowed up hill it would not surprise the Kansan. If his corn should grow a dozen ears on one stalk, the Kansan would not be surprised; he would tell the world that that's what he had ordered, and, of course, that's what he got. In that state anything may happen.

Comes now a twenty-one-year old girl in Kansas to announce herself as candidate for governor. Anticipating that no true Kansan will be surprised by this announcement, she outlines a platform to out-Kansas even Kansas. Bobbed hair, short skirts, and cosmetics are written somewhere into this platform, although it is not given out just how these promises are to be fulfilled. Will the lady governor make the bobbing of hair obligatory, or will it be left, as it is now in all the states of the union, to the whim of the owner of the hair?

A gubernatorial approval of short skirts and cosmetics for those who want them sounds interesting, and although it may be a long way removed from what we consider politics and public questions in other states in the union, it may be only the casual and normal thing for Kansas. They have a way of raising other things besides corn in Kansas and of succeeding admirably in what they undertake.

Kansas is bound to lead even if it is only in the matter of raising bobbed hair to an issue of political significance.

A BUNCOMBE BONUS

With as little hurrah as possible Chairman Fordney of the ways and means committee has presented a so-called bonus bill to the house of representatives. In 8,000 words the bill provides elaborate agencies by which compensation certificates and other grants are to be issued. In the last 24 words is the only reference to the means by which these certificates are to be redeemed and the program otherwise financed.

And there is hereby authorized to be appropriated out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated amounts sufficient to defray such expenditures.

No tax issue to pay the bonus is proposed, no bonds to finance it are suggested; the plain implication is that the $5,000,000,000 project shall be provided out of the "savings" of government. There are no savings in government.

The bill is a fraud upon the face of it. If passed by congress it will be vetoed by the executive, who has said he wants the whole plan delayed unless a tax on sales is levied. The president may or may not change his mind, again.

Thus the whole bonus plan approaches an inglorious conclusion. If there were any real courage or intellectual honesty in congress as a body the soldiers' demands would have been settled fairly and fearlessly long ago. If congress had the least semblance of statesmanship either it would enact a bonus law together with direct taxation on pay for it, or it would refuse point-blank to consider the proposition upon grounds of economic considerations or upon grounds of class-legislation.

To pass a bill granting a bonus without means for raising the money to pay the bonus is pusillanimous buncombe.

Personal Liberty
(Bess Murphy Drew in Denison Herald)

We all like to have our own way; the desire for freedom is apparently inherent with us, and we do not relish being bossed or forced into anything. Independence, we prize very highly and without it we feel bound about by insufferable chains of slavery, the result being that we languish under the yoke of enforced subjugation and exert our best effort to rout such an unwelcome constituted authority.

For this reason we frequently find that the mildest mannered persons suddenly show the most martial tendencies when their freedom is denied them. These persons whom the world is pleased to term "easy going" will fight for their rights when their independence is threatened, because everybody regards it as his birthright to have a will of his own and be permitted the free exercise of it.

A great many husbands do not seem disposed to allow their wives their rightful allotment of freedom and vice versa, wives are inclined to subjugate their husbands. Likewise do many parents unduly curtail the privileges of their near-grown children, while many children tyrannize their parents. In no case does this work to the happiness of the subject of such severity, as persons with minds of their own desire to live as free agents adhering to course to the reasonable conventions and laws which govern society.

And yet how many persons there are who do not realize the ineffectiveness of their severity; and how few there are who are disposed to believe that the independence which they deny their husbands, wives, mothers or whatever the case might be, is simply creating a breach between them and those whom they propose to love. Take for instance a wife with a husband who is an occasional evening away from home; or who, if she does allow it, accompanies the permit with a lecture on the losing of her spouse's immortal soul, and other dire consequences which befall the man who wants a little recreation in which his wife does not figure. Then too there is the parent, who because he or she is a parent, entertains the idea that his or her offspring has no mind of his own and that therefore his ideas are all false. And there is the adult offspring who seems to think that because her parents have raised a family they would enjoy sitting in a nice family jail all the rest of their lives, with their children taking charge of their money, buying their clothes without accepting so much as a suggestion from them, and virtually thinking and breathing for those able bodied heads of a grown family.

What all of us should bear in mind is, that as long as a person has life husband who to save his wife from worry over financial matters, requires her to come to him for money every time she needs a dime to spend, instead of settling upon her an allowance and giving her a clear insight into the family financial standing. Then there is the woman who with the view of preventing her husband from forming bad habits, will not permit him a quiet game of cards he has hope and interest, and that the normal human being desires, above everything else to be free, regarding the enemies of his freedom as impositions as shackles. Husbands love the wives who do not keep too strict a rein on them, and wives love husbands who do not exercise over them, the power of a despotic monarch. All of us admire and cheerish the friends who respect our opinions and who give us credit for having different though safe and sane ideas, and who do not make it their pattern.

Personal Liberty—not the new era free thought and unconventional action—but the authentic privilege which is granted us as sons and daughters of a vast and free country; in other words it is but our birthright as free-born Americans when we all desire.

Business and the Outlook
(Monday's Philadelphia Record)

Bank clearing last week show a large advance. Failure in February showed a decrease in number of 14 per cent from January, but except January and December they were the largest since the early part of 1915. The liabilities in February were only slightly less than in January, being swelled by the very considerable number of brokerage houses which had to close.

Shares of stock by number sold on the New York Stock Exchange were

60 per cent greater than a year ago, and the par value of bonds sold also showed a very heavy increase. The trade reviews of the Federal Reserve Board and the Bureau of Census of the Department of Commerce are generally favorable. The figures of the United States Employment Service are slightly better. The amount of building is much larger than it was a year ago. The Census Bureau says that "the increase in the price of farm products is having a far-reaching effect upon industry in general."

Confidence in the improvement of business is more general and stronger. Easier money conditions, advance in foreign exchange and the securities markets, and the sharp advance in grain, were bound to improve the feeling in business, and there is little more disposition to operate for the future. The steel plants as a whole are running at about 55 per cent of capacity, but buying has been mostly to replenish depleted stocks, and prices are a little weaker. Railroads, automobiles and agricultural implement makers are the leading customers. The approach of spring is having a good effect upon the dry goods trade. A Western jobbing house says: "Current wholesale distribution of dry goods showed a very slight decrease from the volume recorded the previous week, and was somewhat less than during the corresponding period of last year. There was a large gain in orders from road salesmen during the week." Hides are very dull, and prices two cents below the previous top level. Stocks of leather are accumulating, and the distribution of shoes last month was slow, and in many instances prices

SOUR STOMACH INDIGESTION

East Nashville, Tenn.—The efficiency of Theford's Black-Draught, a genuine herb, liver medicine, is vouched for by Mr. W. N. Parsons, a grocer of this city. "It is without doubt the best liver medicine, and I don't believe I could get along without it. I take it for sour stomach, headache, bad liver, indigestion, and all other troubles that are the result of a torpid liver."

"I have known and used it for years, and can do highly recommend it to everyone. I won't go to bed without it in the house. It will do all it claims to do. I can't say enough for it."

Many other men and women throughout the country have found Black-Draught just as Mr. Parsons describes—valuable in regulating the liver to its normal functions, and in cleansing the bowels of impurities.

Theford's Black-Draught Liver medicine is the original and only genuine. Accept no imitations or substitutes. Always ask for Theford's.

were reduced. The jobbing trade of the country is reported by buyers in New York as generally improving.

Steel orders are somewhat more numerous, but prices remain low. The plate business in Youngstown is small and the leading independent refuses to cut below the 1.65 cents base on 2-4 inch. The sheet market is active, and tinplate firm. Birmingham prompt pig iron bookings are large. Consumers are clamoring for supplies. Fifteen stocks are active, compared with five in July. Birmingham pig for export is under negotiation; it could be delivered on the continent for $25. The light rail demand in Pittsburg is better. Pittsburg nail producers have been guaranteeing prices, a practice not in force for some years. One Birmingham iron maker reports the best week's business for several months. The demand for wire products improves in Youngstown. Sales of pig iron in New York in the last week of February were the largest for the year. Prices of the line pipe in Pittsburg have been shaded, and a New Jersey pipe foundry operated to full capacity.

The last government wool sale occurred in Boston Thursday, and prices were 5 to 10 per cent above those of the February sale. In the West buying continues to drag, growers being very strong in their ideas of value. A continuance of profit taking in cotton caused periods of price yielding last week, though net declines were comparatively small. The tendency was downward on Friday and Saturday. Sales of print cloth in Fall River were 159,000 pieces. There was some quickening in the spring demand in dry goods, especially in wash fabrics and lightweight goods. The New England strike continues, but compromises have been reached in some cases. Sales of sheetings were better and there was a fair trade in certain lines of finished fabrics. Uncertainty about the course of the fall clothing market is causing more quietness in men's wear fabrics. Staple dress goods are quiet, but there is a fair demand for fancies and novelties. Unofficial estimates of wheat supplies March 1 depressed prices in the middle of the week. Early in the week May wheat almost touched the predicted $1.50. On Friday prices in Chicago dropped three cents or more on heavy selling in spite of an advance in Liverpool. Wheat was under heavy selling pressure on Saturday, with net losses of 1 1/2 to more than 3 cents.

The Boy Problem (Brownwood Bulletin)

Harvey Church, less than twenty-one years old, was executed for murder in Chicago Friday. He had killed two men in order to secure an automobile, and be able to "show off" before the people of his home town.

Most of the hardened criminals to be found in the jail and other prisons of the country are comparatively young men. George F. Hornsby, now awaiting execution of a death sentence in the Belton jail, is less than thirty years old. The prisoners who are sent to the state penitentiary from this county following conviction for various and sundry felony offenses are in a vast majority of cases young men, little more than twenty-one years of age.

These facts have a significance. Men do not become criminals overnight. They do not commit murder and robbery and similar crimes as first offenses except in rare cases. There is usually that preliminary training period of petty thievery, petty gambling, formation of bad habits and bad associations; and this period of training more often than otherwise ends in commission of felonies of more or less seriousness.

There are in Brownwood today a number of boys in the "teen age" who will end their careers in prison. The law of averages proves this to be true. And those boys may be found today forming bad habits, enjoying evil associations and learning the first lessons in petty crime, while indulgent parents are beguiled into thinking their sons are safe, and while indulgent citizens who observe the beginnings of waywardness console their consciences by the thought that it is "the other fellow's boy, not mine." Brownwood is a good town, and its boys as a rule are good boys. But business men and others who are down town continually and who have opportunity to observe much of the horrid life of the community when it is neither at school nor at play know that there are scores of boys here who are learning lessons of a most inwholesome type, and forming associations of a most degenerate sort. Brownwood is no worse, in this respect, than are other towns, but this fact does not relieve the situation of its seriousness. It is a community problem, and one that involves the character of the future citizenship of the town as well as the future lives of any of the boys. But it is more than that: it is a personal problem for every member of the community; for somebody, or a community of somebodies, is responsible for a neglect of a portion of the boy-life of Brownwood, and unless there is an awakening somebody will be responsible, somebody, for the creation of a robber, a thief, a gambler, a murderer.

Former Service Men and the Crime Wave (Temple Telegram)

W. A. Pinkerton, head of the Pinkerton National Detective Agency, declared Thursday in an interview at Houston that men who stayed at home during the war and became accustomed to unusual luxuries are responsible for most of the robberies committed these days, and not ex-service men, as is frequently charged.

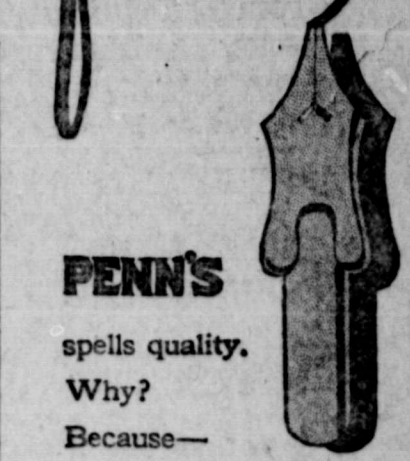

Mr. Pinkerton, whose business is that of tracing criminals and the origin of crime, is in position to speak with authority, and his words are welcome to the ears of those who resent the persistence of some newspapers in mentioning that the man under arrest is a former soldier (if that happens to be the case), whereas nothing is said about the absence of a service record of the man arrested if no such record exists. In other words, if the man arrested is a former soldier he is given credit for it; if he is not an ex-service man, then the fact that he did not go to war to gain familiarity with firearms and bloodshed is an unimportant detail.

There is nothing particularly wrong or unfair about such method of reporting, but the result is that the reading public notices the recurrence of the identifying phrase, "former service man;" whereas if this classification is omitted the man held is regarded as just a criminal or a poor unfortunate, and that's all. The "former service man" part of the description sticks in the mind, so every now and then the ubiquitous reformer arises to ask: "Did you ever hear of so many ex-soldiers being arrested as criminals?" He entirely overlooks the fact that nothing is said about the war record of the majority of men haled into police court, which usually means that they have no war record.

MEAT PATTIES

—A Dainty Dish When Cooked Properly

Whether of chopped meat or fish, meat patties should be properly cooked and served to be dainty. They should be fried quickly in very hot fat, in order to get a firm outer crust of rich brown. Then they come to the table like this, and piping hot.

Mrs. Tucker's Shortening is splendid for preparing this dish. It does not spoil the delicate seasoning of chopped meats. I want every housewife in the Southwest to try it.

AMONG THE MOVIE STARS

ALICE LAKE

Alice Lake—"The Ruling Passion"—"Handle With Care"—"Foolish Wives"—"My Boy"—Fritzi Brunette—Raymond McKee.

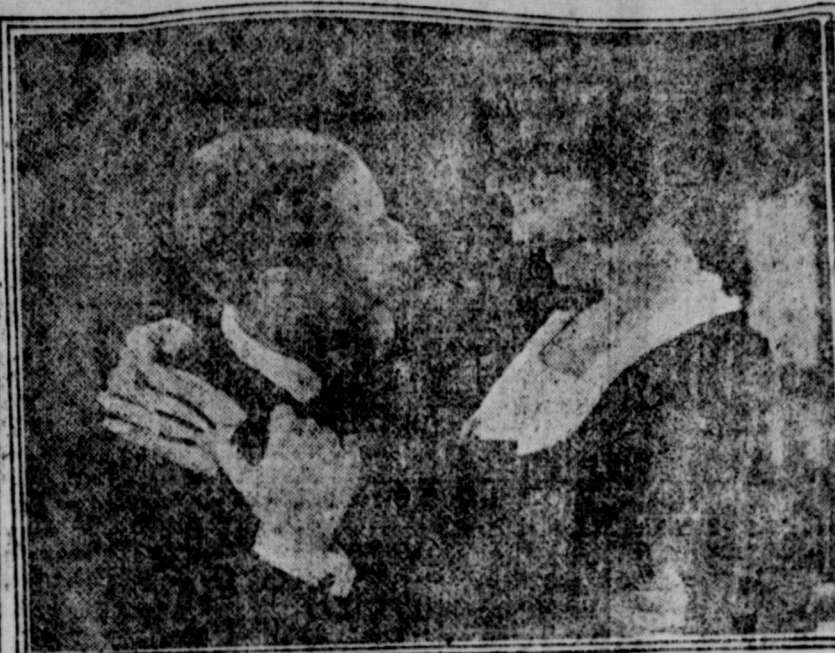

Alice Lake has shined like a meteor across the silver sheet in a manner so extraordinary as to stamp her as one of the great "hands" of the screen. Miss Lake is barely 22 years old. Prior to her first appearance in "Blackie's Redemption," as leading woman for Bert Lytell, her chief claim to recognition has been her work in slapstick comedy.

It is the strength of her work in "Blackie's Redemption." Miss Lake was re-engaged as Mr. Lytell's leading woman in his next picture, "The Lion's Den." She scored again in this. Next she was engaged as leading woman with Hale Hamilton in "Full O' Pep," again distinguishing herself by a remarkably clever and sympathetic performance of a difficult role. Miss Lake next made a brief excursion back to the comedy field, playing in short subjects for Christie. When work was begun on "Lombardi, Ltd.," Alice Lake was given the part of Norah. In this role, which called for emotional restraint, Miss Lake made a deep impression. She then appeared as the featured player in "Should a Woman Tell," "Shore Acres," "The Mad Wife," "Body and Soul" and "The Hole in the Wall." "The Ruling Passion." One often hears of people living a dual life. Usually they have a dual existence which makes them honorable by day-time and criminal by night. The rich clubman and stock broker or man of affairs may pursue honorable dealings in the broad daylight. He may be a representative of the most sterling integrity. Yet he may be criminally inclined at night. But here is a picture which presents a man leading a double life for the fun of it—or rather for the fun of retaining his health. George Arliss is the star—which is enough to state that it is superbly acted. He plays the part of a wealthy retired manufacturer of automobiles. At night he is the polished clubman, the man of social position. By day he is a worker in a garage. Thus his brushing with the common world makes him a philosopher and keeps him at balance with things. It is a change of environment. And he profits by it.

Doris Kenyon plays opposite the star.

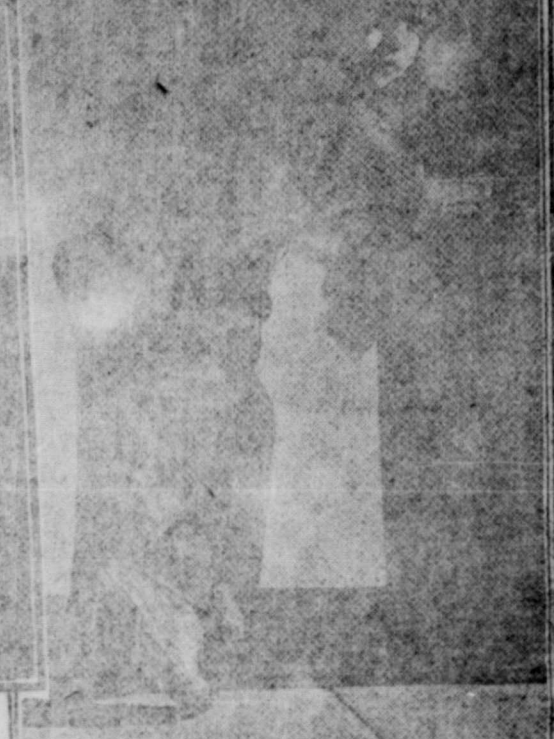

"Handle With Care" Jeanne Lee (Grace Darmond) is wooed by five men of widely differing

JACKIE COOGAN IN "MY BOY"

an appealing figure. Buffeted about by fate, he finds himself without a place to sleep or anything to eat in the bustling city of New York. Forced from place to place and finding no sympathy or help anywhere, it is up to the little chap to take care of himself, in spite of his tender age. And how he does it makes a very interesting picture.

Fritzi Brunette
Fritzi Brunette has been screened in numerous productions during the past seven years. "The Still Small Voice," "A Sporting Chance," "White-washed Walls," "The Woman Thou Gavest Me," etc., are some of her pictures. Her work with House Peters in "The Man From Lost River," is at once as appealing and convincing, that she totally loses her identity as Fritzi Brunette, and becomes Marcia, the girl in the story.

Raymond McKee
Raymond McKee is a veteran of the screen, having played before the camera for Edison as a child. The European War halted his career. On his return to the United States, he appeared on the stage in "The Phantom Legion" and "The Fortune Teller." Theda Bara cast for him to play the leading role opposite her in "Kathleen Mavourneen," her last picture. He then played leads with Shirley Mason and Eileen Percy. Since that time he has appeared with Hobart Bosworth in "Remuneration," and with Lon Chaney in "A Blind Bargain." In both pictures he played the leading juvenile roles.

CORINNE GRIFFITH AND DAVID TORRANCE IN "RECEIVED PAYMENT"

"Received Payment"—"Sky High"—"Just Around the Corner"—"Conceit"—Dickens Story in Films—"Adventures of Sherlock Holmes"

In "Received Payment," Corinne Griffith, the beautiful star, plays the role of Celia Hughes, a dancer. She has been brought up as the daughter of Starr, a butler in the household of Daniel Milton, a multi-millionaire. On returning from the road she meets Starr, who tells her she is in reality the granddaughter of Milton. Years before her mother had eloped with a man who was distasteful to old Milton and shortly after her husband had died. After the birth of her daughter she sent for Starr and asked him to bring up Celia as his own, and to keep the birth of the child from the grandfather, then she also died. Celia leaves the stage and is welcomed by her grandfather. In his household are various interests striving to get the old man's fortune. Blackmail followed by tense situations develop after the return of Celia to her grandfather. Kenneth Harlan is Miss Griffith's leading man and David Torrance plays the Daniel Milton.

"Sky High"
"Sky High" is a mix in the kind of role his devotees like best. He is seen as a Government Immigration agent, down in Arizona, trying to squelch a band of smugglers who are sneaking Chinamen through. And Tom mixes up the landscape considerably before he's through with them. To complicate the plot, the young immigration officer falls in love with the pretty Eastern-bred ward of the Western gang leader.

The big outstanding stunt is his dash through the Grand Canyon in an airplane—braving airpockets, skimming off the sides of the giant precipices and dropping from a rope into the Colorado River. Before that he rides Tony hell-for-leather right around the dizzy rim of the Canyon. Eva Novak, petite and popular, supports the star.

"Conceit"
William Crombie is a wealthy man who has always been able to buy anything he wanted. He is slowly losing the affection and respect of his beautiful wife through his persistent neglect. When the story opens another man is gradually usurping Crombie's place, and he is too much of a weakling to defend his own.

While on a hunting trip Crombie becomes separated from his companions and is lost in the wilderness. At the point of exhaustion he is found by a trapper who takes him, only to be rewarded by Crombie attempting to steal away the man's sweetheart. When Crombie refuses to fight the trapper for the girl, she turns from him in disgust. It is then that Crombie is awakened to the stern realities of life. He despises himself but determines to work out his own regeneration. How he overcomes both his physical and spiritual weaknesses is then shown in a manner that is at once interesting and thrilling.

Hedda Hopper and Wm. B. Davidson play the principal roles.

"Just Around the Corner"
"Just Around the Corner," tells the story of the Horibson family living in

CATHERINE REESE AS BELLA WILFER IN "OUR MUTUAL FRIEND"

New York's East Side. It is a story of family devotion, of the struggles of a mother, a daughter and a son to preserve the untarnished name of their family in the face of poverty and their ultimate triumph. Love, humor, misfortune, smiles and tears and smiles again all play their parts.

Sigrid Holmquist, the "Mary Pickford of Sweden," appears for the first time in an American picture. The picture is based on "Superman," a short story by Fannie Hurst that appeared in "The Saturday Evening Post."

"Our Mutual Friend"
The immortal Dickens' last complete novel, "Our Mutual Friend," has been made into a picture which tells a delightfully holding and amusing tale of mystery and misers, haunted houses and buried treasure. The picture is a Norwegian production and portrays with amazing faithfulness to the spirit of the novelist, that quaint and whimsical gallery of characters including old "Noddy" Boffin, proud and pretty Bella Wilfer, "Pa" Wilfer, Silas Wegg, the "literary man with the wooden leg," Mr. Venus, the bogy-

VOLA VALE IN "THE DUKE OF CHIMNEY BUTTE" preserver, the mysterious John Roke-smith and the rest of the typical, lovable Dickens creations.

Catherine Reese takes the part of Bella.

Fate and a pretty photograph started Vola Vale, vivacious Western girl of one screen, up the ladder of

SHERLOCK HOLMES, DR. WATSON, AND MRS. HUDSON IN "ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES"

SIGRID HOLMQUIST AND PEGGY PARR IN "JUST AROUND THE CORNER" of the rope. Her latest picture was with Fred Stone, "The Duke of Chimney Butte."

"The Man With The Twisted Lip"
A young wife, happily wed, summoned to an address, is startled to observe her husband as one of several occupants of an upstairs room in a strange house. Alarmed, bursting into the room with the police, no trace is found of the man seen at the observed window but an instant before. The police can give no explanation for the disappearance short of the supernatural. The man was in the room; they themselves saw him; his wife identified him; no physical way can be conceived for his swift exit.

This starts the plot of Sherlock Holmes' story, "The Man With The Twisted Lip," one of Conan Doyle's best. Probably no detective in fiction has ever held his place occupied by Sherlock Holmes—

No Candidates Have Lead Enough to Boast of Many Yet Fail to Recognize Wonderful Opportunity That Is Offered by The Daily News

PRESENT VOTE SCHEDULE CONTINUES TO BE IN EFFECT ONLY ABOUT TWO WEEKS LONGER.

For those who appreciate a genuine opportunity when presented to them, there is still plenty of room in the News' $6,000 "Everybody Wins" campaign, for new nominations. No candidate has enough of a lead to boast about. In fact, very few subscriptions separates the leaders from those farther down the list of contestants.

The opportunity is here RIGHT NOW but those who are actively trying are few in proportion to the generous plan under which these costly prizes are to be distributed and the various values of the gifts to be given away without a cent of cost to citizens of Cisco and West Texas.

Now, live candidates who are wide awake can enter the campaign and with a little extra energy, can push their way to the topmost round of the ladder of success.

Big Votes Given Away.

The present big vote schedule will be continued only a little more than two weeks longer. After that the number of votes allowed for each subscription will be very much reduced.

Right now, however, two three-year subscriptions will count 240,000 votes, a four-year subscription will give you 220,000 votes, a five-year subscription credits you with 290,000 and a six-year subscription will allow you 360,000 votes. In addition to that 100,000 EXTRA FREE VOTES are issued for every $15.00 turned in.

Because of the present liberal vote schedule, a very few subscriptions would be needed by any candidate, or a newly nominated candidate, to acquire the leadership for one of the big, beautiful speedy cars.

You now have a chance, a good chance, of securing your choice of the greatest and most valuable list of prizes in one of the shortest elections ever heard of in this great state. And all the big prizes are offered under the most liberal arrangements so it is not hard to win any one of them.

No Losers—Everybody Wins.

There will be no losers in this election. Every active candidate in the race wins either one of the motor cars or a sum in cash.

District No 2

District No. 2 includes participants residing outside of the city of Cisco. One of the big automobiles and just as many cash awards as there are active candidates will be distributed in District No. 2.

The Standing of Contestants as Totaled from All Votes Cast for Publication Up to Yesterday Noon.

The names of present candidates for District No. 2 follow:

Mrs. Oscar Comer, R. F. D. Cisco	137,250
Mrs. E. L. Carpenter, R. F. D. Cross Plains	145,175
Miss Willis Ervin, Rising Star	140,200
Miss Della May Gresham, R. F. D. Cisco	112,150
Mrs. W. M. Kurkkin, R. F. D. Cisco	110,500
Mrs. B. C. Lindley, Cross Plains	141,200
Mr. Eual Lieb, Albany	5000
Mrs. Fay Lockhart, R. F. D. Rising Star	7,125
Miss Maurine Orr, Putnam	139,150
Mr. Maurice Rubin, Eastland	5,000
Mr. L. J. Reynolds, Parks Camp	164,475
Mr. Earl Strickland, R. F. D. Cisco	43,925
Mr. W. A. Tate, Carbon	17,800
Mrs. O. P. Thornhill, Baird	5000
Mr. P. E. Trammell, Moran	5000
Miss Lillie Wragg, Harpersville	44,200

from five hundred dollars down. This makes a participant absolutely sure of a prize, for all know they are bound to win, if they make any effort whatsoever. With such a fair and liberal distribution of prizes why hesitate about sending in your nomination and starting your vote-getting? The prizes every one of them, are certainly worthy of your most heartily effort.

Time Flying Fast.

You can't afford to delay, merely thinking it over. You MUST ACT. GET INTO THE RACE NOW. And candidates already entered get busy. There are but a few days left of the big votes. NOW you get the most votes for every subscription secured. WAKE UP—LET'S GO.

HERE IS A PLAN TO GET VOTES

One Way to Get Votes.

There is one way to be assured of votes. That way is to get out after subscriptions. Subscriptions will win.

Here's a tip for candidates: Just because some one candidate has been working in a given territory is no reason why you shouldn't work there, too. No candidate can get all the subscriptions. Perhaps you have more personality, more salesmanship ability. Perhaps the prospective subscriber has changed his mind. Never give up. A non-subscriber is always a prospect. And a present subscriber is a prospect for renewal.

Count for More Now.

Candidates eventually will realize that work now will produce subscriptions which count for more. A subscription now is worth four times the votes it will be when the campaign closes. A lead secured now will be harder and harder to overcome as the time for the ending of the campaign nears.

This certainly ought to spur candidates to action. The hardest part of it all is getting started. Bear in mind that friends of a candidate will be willing to help once they know the candidate means business. If you demonstrate that you are in to win, your friends will rally to help you. But if you appear to be indifferent, they will naturally help someone who seems anxious to advance. That is just natural. It is human nature.

Must Show Interest.

Much of the candidate's success depends on the attitude assumed. One must demonstrate his interest. One who is serious is bound to find friends ready to help.

Now all you who are entered—carry on. This is the time to get a real start, to pile up a lead. This is the time for greatest activity. This is the time when subscriptions count for more.

ATTENTION DIST. NO. 2.

Several times in the last few days it has been called very forcibly, to the attention of the management of the Daily News and Weekly Round-Up, that, perhaps one reason that the $6,000 automobile and gold campaign is attracting so little interest in District No. 2 is because people living outside of the city of Cisco, who at first thought of entering the campaign have not done so because they had the impression that the outside territory was limited to the residents of Elastland county.

This is a very erroneous impression and the News wishes to correct it. District No. 2 includes all territory outside of the city of Cisco, either in Eastland or bordering counties. There are several good, live, towns and communities in this outside field in which there either has not been a single candidate enter the campaign or those who have entered have failed to poll a single vote.

This should not be the case as prizes identical in value to those given residents of the city of Cisco will be awarded to active candidates residing outside of the city. All active non-prize winners will receive twenty per cent of all money on subscriptions turned by them.

Isn't this the best business proposition you have received in a long time? Without investing one cent you can make as high as $1,300, in your spare time, in the next few weeks.

You can't lose; you can win mighty big.

YOU CAN WIN!!

Here is The Way

Every $15 club of subscriptions, either NEW or RENEWALS, will entitle you to 100,000 EXTRA votes in addition to the usual votes issued at the time each subscription (see regular vote schedule) is turned in.

This big 100,000 offer, coupled with the present liberal vote schedule, is the biggest and best vote offer of the entire campaign. Subscriptions are worth more votes these next few weeks than they ever will be again.

A $15 club may include subscriptions of any length of time up to six years.

A candidate has the privilege of turning in more than one club. Two clubs, for instance, would net you 200,000 extra votes. As soon as you complete your first club, you can start on your second.

Subscriptions may be secured anywhere. Candidates are NOT restricted to their own district. You can obtain subscriptions from friends and acquaintances in any district, any town, city or state.

The $15 does not have to be turned in all at one time. You can turn in the subscriptions as you secure them. Accurate record is kept at the Campaign Department. The 100,000 Extra Vote Ballots are issued at the close of the offer for the EXTRA votes due.

This 100,000 offer is the biggest and best offer that will be made.

If you have entered the campaign, here is your chance to make a fine beginning, and build your way to success. If you have just started, let this vote offer put you in the lead.

District No. 1

District No. 1 includes participants residing in the city of Cisco. One of the big automobiles and as many cash awards as there are active candidates will be distributed in District No. 1. The names up to the present time in District No. 1 follow:

REDUCED VOTE SCHEDULE.

Contrary to the plan usually followed, the News plan calls for a reduction of votes as the campaign progresses. In the News' campaign the last week is the least important because the subscriptions then count for so few votes. Live contestants who are on the job ought to be able to cinch one of the cars within the next few weeks, before the vote schedule is cut. It can be done. Perhaps you will do it.

HOBART BOSWORTH, ELLINOR FAIR AND FREEMAN WOODS IN "WHITE HANDS"

"A Stage Romance" - "The Prophet's Paradise" - "Gypsy Passion" - "The Barnstormer" - "White Hands" - Doris May.

WILLIAM FARNUM celebrates his return to the screen, after nearly a year's rest in Europe, by appearing in "A Stage Romance," a story adapted from Alexandre Dumas' play based on incidents in the life of Edmund Kean, the great English tragedian. Farnum, of course, plays Kean, and it gives him an opportunity to appear in several roles in which he has been seen on the speaking stage. The girl in the picture is Peggy Shaw, formerly of the Ziegfeld Follies, who supported Mr. Farnum in his new production.

"The Prophets Paradise" The story tells of the adventures of Howard Anderson, a young American, who is on a sight-seeing trip in Constantinople. For the purpose of swindling the youth, Hassard el Maroun and his tool, Kadir, arrange a fake slave auction, and lure the daughter of an American professor to the place. Threatening to kill the girl if she tries to get help, the conspirators place her on the auction block. Knowing that Anderson will pay well to save a conspirator from the fate of the harem. Their plans work out perfectly to a certain point, but Anderson declines to submit tamely to the extortion, and fights the guards. In the battle, both Anderson and the girl escape, but they are separated, and as he does not know her name he is unable to find her. How they discover each other again is a fascinating final chapter to a thrilling story.

Eugene O'Brien and Sigrid Holmquist play the principal parts. "Gypsy Passion" This is a special foreign feature film. The famous Madame Rejane appears in the east and brings to the character of Romany Kate, an old gypsy woman, her finished art. Her love for Mirka, her beautiful granddaughter, her hate of all things that would militate against Mirka's fate as decreed in the gypsy law, go to make a story of vivid dramatic interest. Whom Mirka loves, who is not of her race, is doomed to death and oblivion. Since her mother's death she was watched over and guarded by the she-bear, Poushi, and it is the great bear who defends her in one of the most terrific combats between a man and a wild animal ever screened.

"The Barnstormer" Joel Matthews (Charles Ray), was a country boy who was staggered. He passed most of his spare moments in his little bed-room in his father's modest farm home, experimenting with grease paint and powder and studying a work on "How to Make 'em Up." One day he determined to impersonate H. P. Black, moulding an appropriate nose from putty, donning a bedraggled wig and using his mother's switch for a beard. Completing his toilette, he set up his small camera, lighted the fuse attached to a pan of flash-light powder and waited for the explosion. The smoke penetrated the door cracks and Mr. M., in alarm, burst into the room. Failing to recognize her son in the bearded monster, she ran out screaming "Murder!" He snatched his shotgun and came near shooting his son before Joel succeeded in revealing his identity. Joel's chance finally comes and he makes good.

"White Hands" This is a thrilling tale of adventure in the African sands, having to do with Hurricane Hardy (Hobart Bosworth), the tyrannical, licentious Captain of a Mediterranean trade schooner. In the heart of the desert Hardy encounters Helen Maitland (Ellinor Fair), a helpless young woman, the last white survivor of a missionary band. With the cunning of a snake, the unscrupulous Captain plans to take the girl for his own, but she skillfully manages to keep him at a distance—at least for a while. The story hinges around the white hands of a baby—a bit of human driftwood—picked up by Roche, proprietor of a notorious cafe in a seaport town. The little innocent brings about Hardy's repentance, and saves Helen from a horrible fate.

The girl is forced to seek shelter in Roche's vile dive. Here she meets a young American whose spirit has been broken through drink and the corruption of Roche's place. Helen awakens the boy to a realization of his folly, and a pretty romance ensues.

Doris May Miss Doris May recently married Wallace McDonald, and they are keeping house in Hollywood.

"I've had to master the art of biscuit making and the lines of my new picture, 'The Foolish Age,' in the last few weeks. If you think it wasn't a struggle—"

Here her husband entered the cozy living room where Dainty Doris has set up housekeeping and joined in the conversation. "Well, I can vouch for the success of the former," he testified loyally "and from what I hear from the studio I guess she can manage to get away with the latter."

Miss May has been designated by Douglas McLean as the "ideal leading woman." "No girl can succeed," says Douglas, "unless she possesses good looks, ability to act and the ability to wear clothes. Miss May has all three."

Sid Smith "Aim high and you'll get there," has always been the motto of Sid Smith. And that it's a good one, Sid himself is proving, for he not only does neck-breaking, breath-taking stunts on the tops of Los Angeles' highest buildings, but he has reached the high position in filmdom.

Sid grew up as a circus performer—and ran away from home to join the circus. Then he went into vaudeville, and then served as a "double" in films—which means that, made up as some well known player, he took the risks that player ought to have taken—but wouldn't. It was lots of hard work and no glory for Sid—but now he says it was worth it.

His latest picture expresses exactly Sid's work and how he loves it—it's called "Up in the Air."

Lakes of "Liquid Millions" Near Point Barrow - Area Affected Covers Immense Amount of Territory - Discovered By Accident

BY VICTORIA HEWITT WRIGHT

Oil discoveries near Point Barrow on the Arctic Ocean led in an enthusiastic hopeful period of Alaska. Active operations are scheduled to commence this spring with the opening of navigation. A number of investigators went to the district during last winter by dog team. And these were followed by geological experts during the summer. These survey parties made extensive examinations and also locations. Others filed for prospecting permits at the United States Land Office for the District of Alaska. Representative men and well known geologists who investigated the oil seepage report favorably on these discoveries.

The existence of these vast oil deposits in the Point Barrow region has been known for years. But only recently has there been any effort to investigate the field. Point Barrow is now anticipated an oil stampede that will equal the gold rush to Nome in 1899, when 50,000 people rushed there in search of the precious metal. This time the stampede will be for "Liquid Millions." Notwithstanding the promising character of the oil reports, no one can estimate the value of the Arctic oil fields until wells have been put down. They may strike it rich or they may not. Arctic oil is a gamble just as the oil prospects of Texas, Arkansas and Oklahoma were in the early days. No one expected such great fields as have been developed there, although they also had evidence of oil.

Lakes of Oil Seepage Two lakes of oil seepage at Cape Simpson, on the Arctic Coast, have been surveyed. One contains ten and one-half acres and the other seven and one-quarter. Claims for this section have been staked in the names already has a large permanent citizenry. Point Barrow is known only as an almost inaccessible Eskimo village, on the Arctic Ocean and is the northernmost port for Arctic explorers, fur traders and venturesome whalers.

The Government cutter "Bear" makes the trip up from Nome at the opening of navigation, bringing mail and provisions for the entire population. The climate is extremely healthy. The natives enjoy outdoor life summer and winter, often going for weeks at a time without lighting a fire.

There is no timber in this locality and poles for making the stakes with which to mark the oil claims for the "Sourdough" group were brought in from the Mend River—ones hundred miles away.

How Discovered Alexander Malcolm Smith, known as "Scotty" Smith, because of his "Scotch burr," stumbled knee deep into a lake of oil in this locality about five years ago. It was with considerable difficulty that he scrambled out again. The smell of oil and the drip from his clothes caused him to investigate

"After prospecting, he reported the discovery to Washington. Rumors of this oil seepage spread all over the territory. But no steps were taken toward development until our Canadian neighbors began to open up their far north oil fields. Now sincere efforts are being made to develop the petroleum seepage on our side of the International boundary line.

"Scotty" Smith is not only identified with the oil, but his name appears many times on the map of Alaska, made by the U. S. Geological Survey. Smith Bay, Smith Lake and Smith River are each named for him. He is now sixty years young. For thirty-seven years this naturalized American (citizen of Alaska), has mushed over the northern trails. Sometimes prospecting, sometimes exploring new regions or dealing in furs, and at other times just enjoying life in the open. He knows the perils of pioneering. In an interview with him a few days ago he said he would rather be broke in Alaska than in any other place in the world. This demonstrates the fraternal spirit that pre-

The new Government railway that extends into the Matanuska coal fields, also connects with Fairbanks. This six hundred and one miles of new railway will be completed in the spring. Another branch of railway extending north from Fairbanks would solve the problem of marketing the oil from the north. Although pipings this distance seems like a formidable undertaking it will no doubt be done.

Obtaining oil in the territory for power and locomotion will have a beneficial effect on the forests of Alaska that should be conserved for uses to which timber alone is fitted. Instead of wasting it, as at the present time, for fuel. In Fairbanks, one plant alone consumed thirty thousand cords of wood last winter.

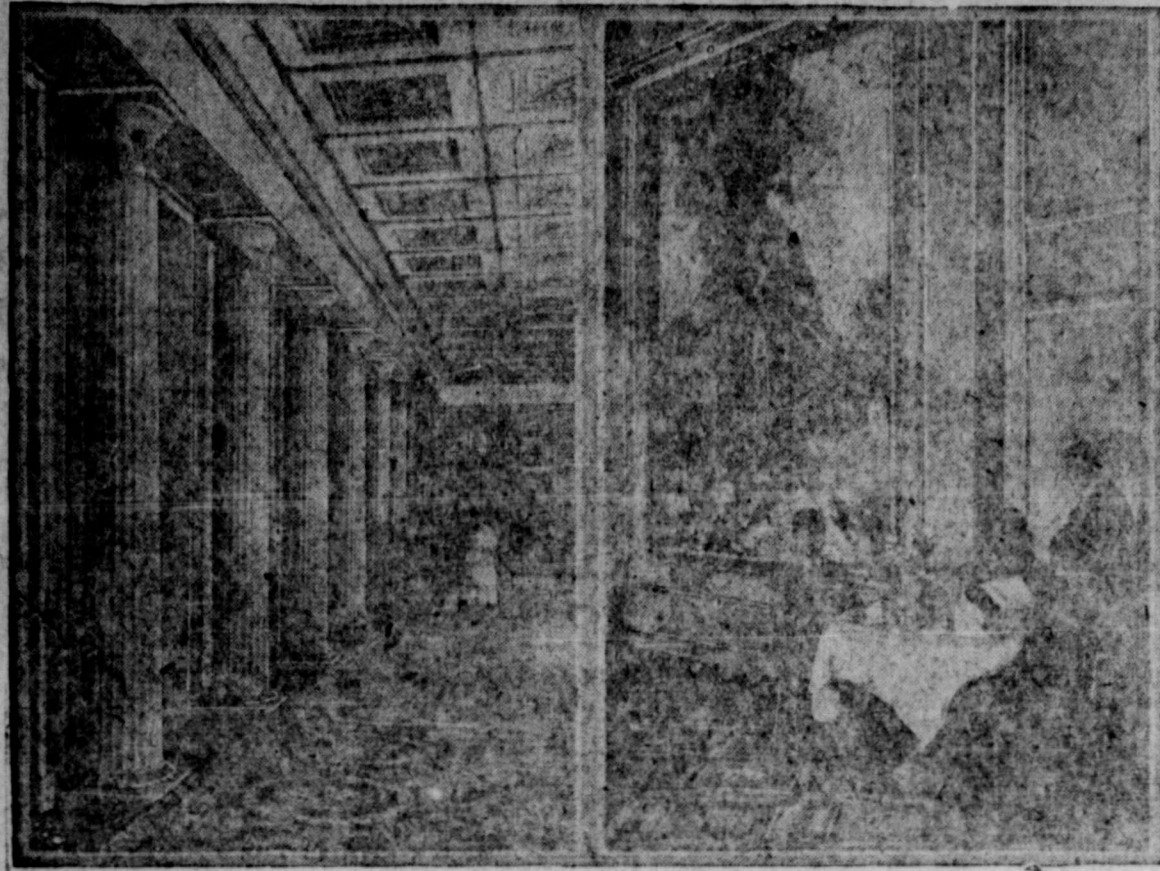

Herd of Caribou There is no appearance of desolation on the tundra in the summer time. Beautiful wild flowers bloom everywhere. The tundra is carpeted with acres of crimson, blue and gold—often rising and falling in the breeze like a silk coverlet. There is an abundance of fish in the streams. Thousands of ducks and geese have their breeding grounds in the Arctic North. This is indeed a hunter's paradise. One frequently sees caribou often rising and falling in the breeze like a silk coverlet. There is an abundance of fish in the streams. Decaying carcasses were found by geologists, in the oil lakes when they made the petroleum tests. It is supposed that the liquid resembled water so closely that the caribou naively wandered into the deepest parts of the oil and decaying vegetation and became exhausted before they could extricate themselves from the mire.

Under the head of petroleum, the report made by Colonel Alfred E. Brooks, of the United States Geological Survey, contains the following: "The petroleum produced in Alaska in 1921, as in previous years, was derived from a single patented claim in the Katalik oil field. This property is owned by the Chilkat Oil Company, which uses its entire product in its own refinery. Except for work done by this company there was no drilling in the Alaska petroleum fields. The staking of Alaska oil claims began in 1920 and continued in 1921." In the same report the following appears: "An examination made under private auspices of the long-known locality of petroleum residue near Smith Bay, about 100 miles Southeast of Point Barrow, is reported to have disclosed several large seepages. So far as known, these are the only new discoveries of petroleum seepages made in Alaska during 1921, though others are reported."

Although the Government has adopted a liberal policy with respect to oil locations, it should be remembered by those who anticipate going to the Arctic district, that a large amount of capital is necessary to carry on prospecting under frigid zone handicaps that obtain in the Barrow district. Honest investors, men of brains and pioneers are always welcome in Alaska.

In A Great Hotel? No. On A Ship!

WHEN the Great Eastern was built—even the present generation remembers her as the world's greatest ship 60 years ago—she was finished like a ship, with low-ceiled cabins. Nowadays they build steamships that have lofty interiors like a modern hotel, or metropolitan club. These pictures, taken on the latest ocean levigant to come out, the Homeric of the White Star Line, which is double the size of the Great Eastern, show the degree of spaciousness and luxury that the ship of 1922 has attained. The picture with the colonnade was taken in the ship's lounge, or social hall; the other is in the dining room, which seats 500 people at small tables.

SEVEN KILLED IN WRECK IN GEORGIA

Atlanta, Ga., March 11.—Seven persons were killed and nine injured when a passenger coach on the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic Railroad derailed near Union City. The car went off the trestle and fell 60 feet.

Thirty persons were in the coach, the last of the train, when one of the wheels burst. The trestle was reached and almost crossed when the car suddenly turned over, tearing away from the one ahead as it fell into the shallow creek.

Six men and one woman were killed and several of the injured are not expected to live. For hours rescue parties worked in the wreckage, releasing those imprisoned and removing the dead, the injured being removed to hospitals here.

TWO WIVES SURVIVE MAN AT LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, Cal., March 11.—When Edward Gilbert, mining expert, died at his home here Friday night he left two wives, one here and the other in Chicago, according to reports here.

Gilbert was said to have disappeared from home in Chicago 19 years ago. Then, it was reported, he went to Mexico, where he was married again. And for 17 years he kept the secret of his purported marriage from his second spouse.

According to the Los Angeles Mrs. Gilbert, she learned of her husband's first step into matrimony four months ago when she received a long distance telephone call from the Illinois city, the caller identifying herself as Mrs. LeClaire Gilbert of Chi-ago and asking that she be allowed to speak to her husband.

Today Mrs. Belle Gilbert, the Los Angeles widow, notified the Eastern widow of their husband's death.

The local Mrs. Gilbert said her husband had admitted having a wife in Chicago after she had told him of the long distance telephone message.

American Writer Gives Last Days to World Peace

KATRINA TRASK

WHILE the World's Statesmen conferred to determine what steps could be taken to make the limitation of armaments a reality, one American woman kept everlastingly at the task she set herself years ago—that of portraying the beauties of peace and the horrors of war.

Mrs. George Foster Peabody, known in many lands as Katrina Trask, who died recently, long keenly comprehended the torture of nations when war comes. So this master of the pen, in poetry and in prose, preached against war with all the vigor of her intense soul.

Katrina Trask Peabody's play, "In the Vanguard," originally printed in 1913 and today being reprinted for the eighth time, is one of her many writings which is pleading the cause of disarmament the world over.

"In the Vanguard" is the play which contains such oft-quoted sentences as: "Blow a man to pieces in the name of patriotism, and then try to patch him together in the name of humanity."

CALICE HEATH'S SLAVE

ALICE HEATH'S best friend at boarding school was a Southern girl named Pauline McCloud, whose father was Captain and part owner of a small fruit steamer, The Sea Gull. So it happened she was asked to join Pauline and her mother on their trip South with Captain McCloud. Alice's mother gave her consent, for she was not entirely satisfied with her daughter's health and felt that a sea voyage would do her more good than a winter's term at school.

Alice's favorite retort, "Right is right and wrong is wrong, and you southerners know in your hearts that it was wrong to keep slaves. The Constitution says 'All men are created equal.' Besides, what would you do about the people born in slavery? Would you expect the North to buy their freedom too? Any way, if the southerners had been willing to listen and discuss things there mightn't have been any war. Instead of using reason, you wanted to concede from the Union and break up the glorious United States."

"You Gif Me 'E' Cents"

Pauline and Alice were delighted. They were perfect friends and never quarreled, except about one thing, and that was the war; not the war just finished, they agreed perfectly about that, but it was the Civil War about which they had their arguments. "The Yankees sold the slaves to the South," Pauline would say hotly; "the Yankee slave-dealers from Maine and Massachusetts! Then they made the southerners give them up. Why didn't they offer to share the loss? Why didn't they buy back their old slaves?"

"I believe it's the slave's business and the slave's business," Pauline replied stubbornly. "Let them settle it between themselves. There are lots of slaves in the world and nobody worries about it except a few busybodies." "I'm shocked—and horrified!" Alice exclaimed. "Slavery to me is the most horrible thing in the world. What would Abraham Lincoln think of you if he could hear your remarks?"

because it always led to unpleasantness. "We don't want our trip spoiled," they agreed. They were going to make the love-liest stops on their way to the frontiers West Indies: Newport News, Palm Beach and Colon. It was after they had left Florida behind and were really on foreign waters that they found the cast-aways.

They were seated in a small open boat and waving something frantically. Of course the engine was stopped and the crew prepared to rescue the unfortunate. Alice and Pauline wild with excitement, hung over the rail and watched the rescue. It wasn't half as thrilling as they expected and soon the occupants of the little boat were safe on deck. Then the thrills began.

The strangest-looking collection of people one ever saw! "Indians from Yucatan," explained the mate after carrying on some sort of weird conversation with the leader of the party. "As far as I can make out they were turned adrift by some of their enemies." There was a big solid-looking woman, shaped like a stout square bottle wrapped in a gray blanket with red strips at each end; there were three men, an old shaggy wild one, a middle-aged quiet one and a slim young one, who looked more like a pirate than anybody ever seen of the sea. But what drew Alice's and Pauline's attention was the other member of the party, a thin copper-colored girl, with big wistful eyes shining out through her long uncombed locks her thin hand holding her miserable rags about her small frame. Alice went right up to the little girl, smiled at her and took her hand and squeezed it. Pauline said, "She looks half-starved. Come on and I'll get Cook to give her a bite to eat."

So they became very good friends in a very short time. Alice gave her a dress, and when they came up on deck she laid hold of the Indian girl's hand. The square woman quite startled them all by strutting up to the girl's and planting herself before Alice, she held out her hand and said very brokenly: "You gif me 'E' cents?" Alice was so scared she scuttled down to her cabin and grabbed up fifty cents and hustled back with it and gave it to the woman. "You're foolish to do that," said Pauline. "You didn't have to and now you've had nothing to show for it. If you'd waited until we reached South America you could have bought a lot with that money."

"She needed it maybe," Alice replied. "I want her to like me for the little girl's sake." As soon as Captain McCloud could, he brought his ship to harbor so as to get rid of his unwelcome passengers. "Good-bidance," said everybody, as the Indians climbed off the vessel. "His there!" called the mate. "Wait! Here's the child you're leaving behind."

The men shouted something and so did the woman but nobody understood until the mate climbed down and talked to the old man. When he came back he looked puzzled and shocked.

But to get back to little Pat's party. The next game was played with the children seated on the floor. Each child was provided with paper and pencil and told to draw a pig without looking at the paper. Can you imagine the funny sight they made—the children sitting with eyes tightly closed drawing away. But the pigs drawn proved to be even Juniper sights. A prize was given to the one judged to be the best.

A Saint Patrick's Day Party

LITTLE PAT had been born on the 17th of March, so every year on his birthday, his mother gave him a jolly party for him. This year she combined a surprise party with the celebration of Saint Patrick's Day. The invitations had been written in green ink on cardboard cut in the shape of shamrocks. When the guests arrived and Pat had recovered from his surprise, his mother announced a shamrock hunt. All over the house were hidden green cardboard leaves and the children had great fun trying to see who could collect the greatest number. It was almost like the old custom in Ireland of having the children gather the shamrock. The more barren and desolate the spot the more thickly this little plant flourishes. As early as the last week in February it may be found, but two weeks later there is not a county in the island where it may not be found in great quantity. It is picked and shipped to all parts of the world, the industry being fostered by the good Countess of

The Boys and Girls Matched Their Favors

THE MEDDLE

On many an evening little pig had heard his mother say, "As by the fire they sat and told the happenings of the day. That in their lovely woods the wolves could still be heard and seen—the kind Red Riding-Hood had met, with fangs so white and keen—But doubting much the story, little pig paid little heed To what his mother had to say, and very great indeed Were his surprise and terror a great wolf at last to see— He just escaped in time to hide inside the hollow tree!"

"Well, what's the matter?" demanded the Captain impatiently. "Why won't they take the kid?" The mate beckoned the Captain. Mrs. McCloud and the girls aside and then he said: "I don't know what to make of it but they all say that Miss Alice bought the little girl for her slave!" Alice gave a cry of horror and surprise and rushed. "I did not!" "Did any sign pass between you and the Indians?" asked Captain McCloud kindly. "Yes," Pauline replied, "she gave the woman fifty cents."

WHEN I had my picture taken, as you see, I was trying a new way of walking, and as soon as I learn to balance, I believe I'm going to like it. One certainly has more self respect walking with head up, than crawling over the sand like any common bug. I got the idea from a boy who poked me with a stick, and tried to make me "open up," that day I crossed the road. People don't seem to know exactly what my name is, as they call me all sorts of things. Some call me turtle, some cooter, and in the South they call me gopher, just because I sometimes burrow in the ground, like the curious little animal of that name, with the funny cheek pouches. My book name is tortoise, but most folks feel like they are putting on airs if they use that big word, so they call me terrapin—highland terrapin, to be exact. I have a cousin that lives in ponds, called a mud-turtle, a good name too, as he loves to lie in the mud at the bottom, and catch unwary minnows and frogs that take him for a mud-covered stone.

Sometimes he is caught by fishermen who are out for something with scales, and not a shell, and the fisherman who pulls in his line and finds a turtle on the hook, is generally considerably put out about it, as it is no easy job to get the hook out, as his jaws are tough and hard. And when he swallows the bait, he swallows hook, sinker, and all, and there is no telling in what part of his anatomy they are going to stop.

People make soup out of mud-turtles, but I have never heard of any one trying to eat a land terrapin, and I suppose that is one of the things I should be thankful for. Aside from being worried by dogs, and punched at by inquisitive humans, our folks have little to fear from natural enemies, as we have none. So there is no telling how long we may live. When

PORK CHOPS WITH APPLE SLICES

Wipe six fine pork chops and be sure they are clean and dry. Put a frying pan or iron skillet over a hot fire. When, almost smoking hot, lay the chops one by one in the pan till the bottom is entirely covered. Let them brown quickly (without scorching) on one side. Turn with a fork and when each chop has been browned and turned, lower the heat so that the cooking on the second side may be slow. Season with salt.

Have ready slices of apple, one large slice for each chop. (The apple should be cored but not peeled before slicing.) Lay one slice on each chop. Cover the pan tightly and cook slowly for about 15 minutes. This allows the chop to brown slowly and cooks the apple in the enclosed steam. Serve hot, one chop, with slice of apple, to each person.

If desired a sprinkling of sugar may be added to each slice of apple, but most people like the tartness with the pork.

In order to convey her admiration for the artist and her regret

YOU'VE often heard, I have no doubt, of being up a tree, And here both up and in one you the little pig can see. Of course there's something after him at once you'll all suspect. But what it is I'm sure that not a one of you'll detect. It's something little pig is mighty anxious to escape— It looks this time as if he's in a really ugly scrape. His friends, the beetles, point and cry: "It's coming very fast! You'd better get inside and hide until the danger's past!"
