TREATY FAILED TO PASS SENATE IS TO BE RETURNED TO WILSON; MAY DECLARE WAR AT AN END

SENATE REFUSED TO ADVISE AND CONSENT TO RATIFICATION OF VERSAILLES PACT PRESIDENT IS NOTIFIED.

TO VOTE WAR END NEXT

Seventeen Democrats Deflect From Administration; Owen Took President to Task for Letter to Senator Hitchcock; Republicans Gained 1.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—The treaty of Versailles failed to ratification for the fourth time tonight, and then the senate voted to send it back to President Wilson with a notification that it had finally "refused to advise and consent to its ratification."

On the decisive roll call the vote was 49 for ratification to 35 against the opposition numbering in its ranks 29 democrats who were unwilling to see the treaty go through with the republican reservations objected to by the president and three democratic and twelve republican irreconcilables. Twenty-one democrats quit the president's lead and voted for ratification, but the defection failed by seven votes of providing the two-thirds requisite to ratify.

Go to Voters Now.

The result was regarded everywhere in the capital as having put over into the political campaign for decision the long and bitter fight between the chief executive and the senate majority. A move to reconsider the vote and try once more to ratify collapsed in its inception, leaders on both sides agreeing that further ratification efforts would be a waste of time as long as the senate membership remains as it is.

Whether the president would return the treaty to the senate remained undetermined, but the republicans served notice that if he did it would expose for many weeks to come in a committee pigeon hole. In the vote of 47 to 7 by which the senate washed its hands of the subject and sent the treaty to the White House, the republican leaders had the support of the mild reservationists as well as the irreconcilables of their party, while the democrats voted almost solidly in opposition.

The next step planned by the senate majority is a declaration of a state of peace to relieve the action of the war status which the democrats maintain can be ended only by the treaty's ratification. A fight on that proposal probably will begin when the senate re-convenes Monday.

Four Months of Fight.

The roll call on ratification came four months, almost to the hour, after the failure of the three attempts at ratification on November 19. On that occasion, the greatest strength developed for ratification with the republican reservations was 41 votes, only seven democrats voting with the republicans in the affirmative. The vote against was 51, made up of 13 republicans and 38 democrats.

The resolution of Senator Lodge provided: "That the secretary of the senate be instructed to return to the president the treaty of peace with Germany signed at Versailles on the 28th day of June, 1919, and respectfully inform the president that the senate has refused to advise and consent to its ratification."

BERLIN PROTESTS JEWISH RESIDENTS IN PUBLIC OFFICE

A Sudden and Widespread Revival of Anti-Semitic Movement Felt in German Capital.

BERLIN, March 19.—A sudden and widespread revival of the anti-Semitic movement made itself felt today when at intervals throughout the day leaflets were distributed protesting against the presence of Jews in public offices, and attempting to inflame the public mind by cartoons picturing the German people as starving in a cage while well-fed and prosperous Jewish merchants look on and are made to say: "Don't feed the animals." Prominent Jewish residents are outspoken in expressing their serious apprehension over the recurrence of the movement at this time.

The Baltic troops, which made such a sanguinary departure from the city, are accused of taking a leading part in the anti-Semitic movement, and numerous inciting handbills are attributed to them. Among the anti-Semitic street speakers were Baltic officers and enlisted men. Since the first German revolution in November, 1918, it has been estimated that about 80,000 Jews from Russia, Poland, Galicia and East Prussia have come to Berlin. The Jewish population of the capital now is estimated at 210,000 persons. The great influx of Jews stirred up feeling because of the widespread circulation of reports that many of the Jews were speculating in foodstuffs and other necessities, and also operating as money lenders.

THINGS YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT CISCO

The missing paving on Main street has been discovered. The crew of street sweepers at work Friday morning found the brick highway after a few hours of excavation, and by a o'clock one could negotiate Fifth and Avenue and never suffer getting a single clot in his eyes. It was a fair day with high wind—which you probably hadn't noticed, owing to the absence of dust, which couldn't drift, because there wasn't any dust.

WEATHER FORECAST:

WEST TEXAS: Saturday and Sunday, fair; warmer Sunday. Oklahoma, and East Texas: Saturday and Sunday, fair; warmer Sunday. Louisiana: Saturday and Sunday, fair, probably fair Monday. Arkansas: Saturday and Sunday, fair, warmer.

sent to its ratification, being unable to obtain the constitutional majority required therefor."

On the roll call 21 democrats broke away from the administration ranks and voted for ratification.

The roll call follows: For the resolution: Republicans Bull, Calder, Capper, Colt, Curtis, Dillingham, Edes, Ellins, Frothingham, Hale, Jones (Washington), Kellogg, Kenyon, Keyes, Lenroot, Lodge, McLean, McNary, New, Pate, Phipps, Smoot, Spencer, Sterling, Sutherland, Wadsworth, Warren, Watson and Wolcott, 29.

By yeas: Ashurst, Beckham, Chamberlain, Fincher, Fore, Henderson, Kendrick, King, Myers, Nugent, Owen, Phelan, Pittman, Pomerehne, Ransdell, Smith (Georgia), Smith (Maryland), Trammell, Walsh (Massachusetts) and Walsh (Montana), 26.

Total for ratification, 49. Twelve senators, nine republicans and three democrats were paired. Three republicans and one democrat were paired against ratification and six republicans and two democrats in favor of ratification. The pairs follow:

Senators Newberry, Republican, Michigan, and McCumber, republican North Dakota, for ratification, with Senator Fritl, republican, New Mexico, against.

Senators Nelson, republican, Minnesota and Senator Harding, republican, Ohio, for ratification, with Senator Penrose, republican, against. Senator Cummins, republican, Iowa, and Townsend, republican, Michigan, for ratification, with Senator Poindexter, republican, Washington, against.

Senators Gerry, democrat, Rhode Island, and Jones, democrat, New Mexico, for ratification with Senator Smith, democrat, Arizona, against. With his motion for re-consideration pending, an adjournment motion by Senator Robinson was defeated 42 to 33 by a coalition of the Lodge forces, the republican irreconcilables and the mild reservationists together with four democrats, Gore, Reed, Shields and Walsh of Massachusetts.

On objection of Senator Brandegee, republican, Connecticut, President Pro Tem Cummins ruled Senator Robinson's reconsideration motion out of order.

After an ineffectual attempt by Senator Knox, republican of Pennsylvania, to get consideration for his resolution declaring the war at an end, the senate adjourned until Monday.

Announcing his support of the ratification resolution, Senator Owen, democrat of Oklahoma, who voted for ratification last November, sharply resented President Wilson's attitude toward compromise on the covenant and the criticism expressed in the president's recent letter to Senator Hitchcock of senators who favored ratification with reservations. The opinions of 45 senators as expressed by their votes should be respected by the chief executive, he said.

Regarding the president's statement that he could not see the difference between a nullifier and a mild nullifier, Senator Owen said: "Every senator comes under the sweeping conditions of the president for every senator, as far as I know has voted for reservation after reservation."

In seven hours of debate precedent in the senate, republican leaders declared themselves ready to take the issue to the people. From the democratic side several senators bitterly assailed the president for his stand and declared the administration could not afford to carry the issue as it presented itself today into the campaign. There was no reply from those who opposed ratification. The irreconcilables and administration democrats alike remained silent in the confidence that they were in complete control of the situation.

After the roll call, the mild reservationists republicans joined with the democrats to set the parliamentary stage for a reconsideration that

PINK BOLL WORM IS FOUND IN TRINITY BAY TEXAS DISTRICT

Government May Prohibit Planting of Cotton in This Section; Worm Also Found in Louisiana.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—Discovery of the pink boll worm in Louisiana and its reappearance in Texas caused the department of agriculture today to issue notice of a public hearing to be held here April 6 to consider the advisability of quarantining those states.

The department issued the following statement: "The determination early in February of this year of the establishment of the pink boll worm in southwestern Louisiana in the parishes of Cameron, Calcasieu and Jeff Davis, under circumstances which indicate that this insect has been present there for at least two years, and the distribution of cotton seed and cotton from this district during these years to various points in Louisiana and also in Texas, together with the re-appearance of this insect in the old Trinity bay district in Texas, have added very much to the seriousness of the pink boll worm situation."

"Hitherto this insect was known to occur only in certain restricted areas in Texas, and with the aid of federal funds and state co-operation, both in quarantine measures and in cleanup and general work, the insect has seemed to be a fair way to be exterminated, and there has been no real need of a federal quarantine."

"While the notice of hearing is drawn to cover the states of Texas and Louisiana as a whole, it is hoped that it will be possible, through the co-operation of the states concerned and particularly Louisiana, to limit the hearing to those states."

GUARANTY BANK GOES TO LOCAL INVESTORS; MISSOURIAN RETIRES

F. A. BLANKENBECKER AND GRADE GALLAWAY PURCHASE STOCK HELD BY H. P. FARIS, OF CLINTON, MISSOURI

MAY INTEREST OTHERS

Bought 32 Shares of Stock for Which They Paid $84,000; First Guaranty State Bank and Trust Co., One of Oldest Institutions Here.

The controlling interest in the Guaranty State Bank and Trust company of this city passed from foreign into local hands Friday when F. A. Blankenbecker and Grade Gallaway, both of Cisco, purchased the stock of H. P. Faris, of Clinton, Missouri, for a consideration of $84,000.

The deal was turned by Virgil Hall & company, local brokers, and is considered a financial achievement here. The stock bought conjointly by Blankenbecker and Gallaway consisted of 322 shares. It is probable that they will dispose of part of it to others but their intention is said to be to keep the control in Cisco.

The bank was formerly the Citizens' National bank and was one of the oldest in this city. Two years ago Faris bought control and changed the name of the institution to the one it bears at present.

Blankenbecker came here some time ago from Stamford and since taking up his residence in this city has made a careful study of local conditions with a view toward investing.

Gallaway was formerly a resident of Comanche, Texas. He and Blankenbecker allied their interests from the beginning. They are said to be also connected with the First State Bank at Wayland, Texas, and the First National Bank at Caddo.

The elimination of all possible waste in distribution, both by the manufacturer and the retailer, was urged.

SIXTEEN HUNDRED LONGSHOREMEN ON STRIKE GALVESTON

Went Out in Sympathy for Strikers in New York; Morgan and Mallory Lines Tied Up.

GALVESTON, Texas, March 19.—Receiving demands made last December, 1,500 coastwise longshoremen of the Morgan and Mallory lines, struck here today for an increase in wages to 80 cents an hour and $1.20 for overtime.

Nine hundred men employed by the Morgan Line failed to report for work this morning, while 700 Mallory Line workers quit their posts at the dinner hour.

First intimation of the strike came when H. M. Wilkins, agent for the Morgan Line, was notified Thursday that the men would not report for work today. No reason was given for the decision.

P. T. Rennie of the Mallory Line, tonight said he had received no demands from the men and judged the local strike to be in sympathy with the walkout of dock workers in New York.

M. J. Gahagan, secretary of the association, late tonight declared the men were striking for an increase to 80 cents for regular and $1.20 an hour for overtime.

OVER HUNDRED KILLED WHEN SOLDIERS FIRE INTO BERLIN CROWD

WAVING A HANDKERCHIEF SIGNAL FOR USE OF MACHINE GUNS HOTEL ALDON IN WAKE OF ATTACK.

TWO HUNDRED WOUNDED

Berlin Not Yet Succeeded in Emerging From Chaos Into Which It Was Thrown By the Kapp Revolution. Troops Have All Left the City.

STUTTGART, March 19.—Premier Bauer, Dr. Hermann Mueller, minister of foreign affairs and Herr Giesberts, minister of posts and telegraphs left for Berlin on a special government train at 8:10 o'clock tonight.

BERLIN, March 19.—Eessen surrendered this afternoon to armed workmen after violent fighting in which it is estimated that 300 persons were killed.

It is reported that communists have occupied five railroad stations to the east of Berlin and that troops are being rushed thither in armored cars.

COBLENZ, March 19.—Unconfirmed reports received here are that one thousand persons have been killed at Kiel. It is said the situation here is grave.

The communists are reported to be gaining headway in Saxony and Westphalia. A soviet republic has been proclaimed at Chemnitz and Plauen. At Leipzig the workmen and the bourgeois parties are said to have come to an agreement.

In the Ruhr basin the majority socialists have given an order to end the strike, but it is doubted if the order is obeyed by the communists. In the Ruhr basin the majority socialists have given an order to end the strike, but it is doubted if the order is obeyed by the communists. In the Ruhr basin the majority socialists have given an order to end the strike, but it is doubted if the order is obeyed by the communists.

COBLENZ, March 19.—One hundred persons were killed and more than 200 wounded in collisions in various quarters of Berlin Thursday, according to advices from the German capital. Eye witnesses of occurrences which took place outside the town hall tell of disorders and it is declared that in the suburb of Schoenberg 15 officers of the Baltic troops were literally trampled to death by the crowd.

BERLIN, March 19.—The waving of a handkerchief by a woman from an upper window of the Hotel Adlon after the departing Baltic troops this afternoon was the signal for a mob attack on the hotel and was followed by the firing of the troops on the crowd causing the death of at least three persons and the wounding of a score of others. The lobby of the fashionable hotel, which is the home of the allied commissions, became an improvised hospital, with patients stretched upon the marble floor.

Crowd, Jeered Soldiers. As the Baltic columns marched away from the center of the city they were jeered by crowds. As the end of the first detachment of soldiers swung by the people on the street immediately turned their attention to the Adlon, shouting and jeering. The residence of senators, representatives and other foreigners and as the abiding place of sundry junkies and profiteers.

Anticipating trouble, the management had put an iron grating in place between the outer doors. Observing the rush of the mob against the hotel a detachment of Baltic troops, turning at the Brandenburg gate to the Tiergarten, a couple of hundred yards distant turned a machine gun on the crowd and opened fire. Several witnesses assert that shots were fired from the crowd at the troops. The correspondent who was standing at the time at the entrance to the Adlon, failed to hear them.

Three persons who had been wounded outside were brought into the lobby, which was shortly cleared of the untouched invaders.

A Second Attack. Virtually the same scene was re-enacted 10 minutes later, when another detachment of Baltic troops, turning at the Brandenburg gate, fired departing shots from machine guns into the crowd in front of the Adlon. The grating which had been placed there, was torn down by the rush of the crowd to escape the bullets. A large number of casualties were reported, 15 wounded were brought into the hotel from the Unter Den Linden and Wilhelmstrasse entrances. Three of these wounded persons died later.

BERLIN, March 19.—Berlin has not yet succeeded in emerging from the chaos into which it was thrown when Dr. Wolfgang Kapp and his assistants by a coup d'etat took over the government a week ago. Although most all, if not all of the troops which formed the backbone of the revolt have left the city proper since the continued sporadically during Thursday night Friday. Many additional casualties, both in killed and wounded, occurred during this period.

In addition to further shooting, in which a number of persons were killed or maimed in front of the Hotel Adlon, three officers were shot dead and one officer was mortally wounded at one o'clock today by members of the security police stationed at the guard house

MAJORITY MAY DECLARE WAR MUST BE CHANGED, DECLARED BRYAN

NEW YORK, March 19.—William Jennings Bryan declared here tonight that his ambition was not to enjoy the honors of public office but to discharge, as fully as possible, his debt of gratitude to the American people.

It was the Nebraska's first pronouncement on the democratic presidential nomination since the announcement of his brother-in-law in Lincoln, March 9, that the "commoner" would not vote for United States Senator G. M. Hitchcock, if he was elected a delegate to the national convention. Mr. Bryan made known his stand in a speech at a dinner at the Aldine club, arranged in celebration of his 60th birthday anniversary by friends and admirers of all parties. The address was the first on a speaking tour that will embrace many states. After submitting "some conclusions drawn from 30 years of experience in the arena of politics," Mr. Bryan said: Reform After Reform Accomplished. "Even in my youth I had no doubt of the final triumph of every righteous cause and my faith is even greater now since I have seen reform after reform accomplished and great principles that were at first scoffed at, written into the un-repealable law of the land. "No one has been happier than I in the character and constancy of his friends or more generously rewarded for labor in the political vineyard. My ambition is not to enjoy the honors of office but to discharge as fully as I can the debt of gratitude I owe to the American people. "I am aware that my place in history will not depend upon what others do for me, but upon what I am able to do for my country, if a kind providence adds years to my life they will be spent in an earnest effort to aid in putting the American people in complete control of their government and to promote peace among all the nations, to the end that the conscience of our country and the world may more surely and more speedily overcome injustice and restore freedom among men the nearest approach to the divine measure of rewards. "Civilization Like a Mighty River. "Beware of the dam," was the subject of the Nebraska's address. Comparing civilization to a mighty river which will not be dammed, he listed obstructions which have been set away in his lifetime and those which he declared must go. In the latter class he placed the profiteer, private monopoly, obstacle to the wage earner's progress and the farmer's advance and the rules of the United States senate, which he declared should be changed so as to allow a lobby to close debate and compel a vote. "Some Bryan Remedies. He suggested three remedies that surpass all others in effectiveness: "Freedom of speech," "supplying of citizens with incorruptible channels of information," "a government bulletin, not a newspaper," and faith in the intelligence of the people. Nebraskan Speaks at Aldine Club at Dinner Given in Commemoration of His Sixtieth Birthday; Condemns Profiteers.

PLOT TO STEAL WHOLE UNITED STATES FIELD BATTERY FOR MEXICO

Senate Investigating Committee Hears Startling Tale of Attempt to Bribe Yank War Veteran.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 19.—An alleged plot to obtain possession of an entire United States field battery for the use of the Mexican government during the world war, was detailed to the senate sub-committee investigating Mexican affairs here today by Paul Francis Collins, world-war veteran and formerly supply sergeant of a Los Angeles artillery unit of the California national guard. Senator Albert B. Fall of New Mexico, chairman of the committee, said he would have the story investigated.

Collins told the committee he had been approached while the artillery unit had its headquarters here, by a man who at first said he was Juan Tolomasa, a naturalized Spaniard, and who later declared himself to be General Azvidio Freitas of the Mexican army. Collins said the man declared he had been ordered just as he was about to face a firing squad in Mexico on condition he would endeavor to negotiate for the artillery unit for his country's army.

He offered Collins $10,000 and detailed a plan for taking the unit's complete outfit, including three 3-inch field guns, caissons, wagons, many automatic side rifles and a number of horses, by motor truck to the Los Angeles county coast north of Santa Monica, and there load it on a schooner, Collins said.

On A Dull Day

By Elsie Endicott

It was a dull day at the seaside resort. In the first place, the weather was gray. In the second place, it was Wednesday, a day of wretched period between week ends. In the third place, Miss Harmon's boarders were all a little edgewise toward each other, having talked and smoked together until there were no surprises left among them. It is needless to say that they were all women. The men only came out from the city Saturdays.

There was Mrs. Ingram, who crocheted like mad all the time, and seemed never to finish anything; Miss Powell, who embroidered; Mrs. Adams, who merely gazed at the sea and yawned; Mrs. Gibbs, who played with her little dog, and Miss Stafford, who read constantly when she was not walking.

Every woman at Miss Harmon's disliked Miss Stafford without any better reason than that she was always among them and yet never of them. She was a teacher in the city, and had come to rest and read and enjoy herself in her own quiet way. She did not know how to play bridge or embroider or crochet, and did not care to learn, and she had a way of keeping to herself which the most prying spirit could not overcome.

In consequence, on this dull afternoon, Miss Harmon's sea-viewing porch bore two groups. Miss Stafford bore one and the rest of the women made the other. Miss Stafford was reading. She had been walking all morning and had not dressed for luncheon. She had on a shabby gray sweater and her damaged, flat-headed walking boots. Her dark, graying hair was mussed with the wind, and her skin showed a woful want of powder. Yet she looked reposeful and contented, and not unpleasant, in contrast with the better-groomed, better-dressed women at the other end of the porch.

Nobody was saying a word when a cab rolled down the street and stopped before the door. Out stepped a man. And such a man! Large, gay, fresh-colored, beautifully clad, and with such an air even when he paid the cabman, that every woman began to straighten and preen herself. But before he could do more than lift his hat and glance about him the door opened and Miss Harmon gathered him in.

Miss Harmon was old and dry and visaged like one of her own native rocks, but she had the ability to run a boarding house successfully, which comes of consummate tact, understanding and vast experience. She sat at a table and watched the new guest and introduced him all around, beginning with Mrs. Robertson, who was the dowager of the group, and ending, of course, with isolated little Miss Stafford. Miss Stafford lifted her shrewd eyes from an absorbing page and encountered the gentleman. She bowed; so did he. Then she returned to her book and he sat down by Miss Powell.

That night dinner was worth while. Everybody dressed for it. Miss Powell made a notable appearance. She sat at one side of Mr. Everett, and did her utmost to enchant him. Mrs. Gibbs sat at the other side and did her best. Even old Mrs. Robertson became quite lively. Certainly Mr. Everett was charming. He was so frank, so kind, so sympathetic, so entertaining. He was very tired, he said, and had come for a few days' change and rest, having left his business in competent hands. Miss Stafford went to her room and spent the evening, which had not been her custom. All the other women felt mildly exultant. The school teacher no longer kept herself out of the way, but was thrust out. Her "composure" had arrived in the form of Mr. Everett.

A walking party was arranged for the next morning, and Miss Stafford was not asked. It was evident that Mr. Everett did not care for her society, and he should not, gentle and courteous as he was. It is in fact, a pity that that night she dreamed of him asleep, and waking made glowing plans for the future.

Dismay, however, waited on the morning. Mr. Everett was gone. He had left good-bys for them all and had expressed regret at going, but he had been in such haste that he could not wait for breakfast. No, Miss Harmon

In The Law's Name

By Enos Emory

WHEN Littleby Hayes came in sight of the twentieth milestone of his life he decided that he would be a preacher. He was too small a man to hold his own with the other mountaineers in the business of fighting revenue officers and splitting rails; so perhaps his decision was flavored with wisdom.

Littleby was in earnest, it seemed. He went at the Scriptures like a hart at a water brook. He had to spell his way through the Bible. He tried hard to live up to its commandments. It was when he had read through the passage that tells us that it is not good for the male species to abide on earth mateless that he got into deep water. He quit preaching long enough to seek a partner for his sorrows. And, like a small boy in a candy store, he chose the biggest one he could find.

Lula Belle belonged to a family of people noted for being large, both in heart and in body, and who were said to be as rough as a cliff. Lula Belle was no exception. She was tall, too. She had hands that could twist a broomstick in twain; she laughed a great deal; she divided her black hair in the middle and tied it at the back in a knot as large—fully as large—as a green peach. She thought Littleby was very cute, and accepted him before he had time to refer to the Scriptures. All went well for a while, and then Littleby ceased to be cute. He grew into a charity fiend. He went to give the last spoonful of cornmeal to the last bacon rind, the last bit of everything to God's imposter, the poor. Finally Lula Belle, the Amazon, became ashamed of calling upon her kinsmen for help; then she began to tell Littleby with high scorn that he was only a husbandite. And occasionally threw small things at him.

Two incidents came along in quick succession. A son was born to them, and twenty years passed. The son was noted for his intelligence. The years endeared more and more the little gray preacher to the hearts of Blackfern's folk.

A stranger came to the neighborhood, a big, broad man adorned with a heavy black beard, a convincing manner, two big revolvers and the ability to shoot the spots out of the ton of spades at a name the distance. He said he was from the West, and showed a beautifully tanned hide to bear out the assertion, and seemed uncommonly interested in revenue officers. He called himself Buck. He said the name was enough for any decent man. A week after Buck had wormed his way into the good graces of the mountaineers like a caterpillar into the core of a Milan apple, a summer resort a few miles below received honorable mention in the papers. A big, masked person had walked into the lobby with a revolver, and collected three hundred dollars in cash and several gold watches.

The next morning the preacher's son, whose name was Grig, found an envelope that had been shoved under the door. It contained a round hundred dollars in banknotes, and bore on one side of it these words in a labored scrawl: "For the pore."

The little teacher preferred not to look the gift horse in the mouth. To him the hand of Providence was at work. He hastened to the nearest store with a borrowed wagon, bought a hundred dollars' worth of necessities, came back to Blackfern, and made a great many needy folk happy. He did this before the big notes from the summer resort reached his ears, and it was then too late to recall the deed.

"Grig," he remarked to his son, who was sitting in the door whitening aimlessly on a bit of white pine, "I'm shore bad disappointed, shore disappointed I had the best community in the whole kentry. But I find that I ain't. That's a thief amongst us. He's a bad p'tater, and he's liable to spile the whole barrel. But I know who done it. Grig—or I think it so strong it's the same as knowin' it. I'm a little man, and a preacher, but I'm a little man, with God's help I'm a goin' to take your rifle, and arrest Buck, and take him to town and turn him over to the law."

"You hain't a goin' to do no such a thing, pap!" declared Grig, the pride of his parents' hearts. "Buck'd snip you with a bullet quicker'n seat. Let

Two—And A Home

DAVID called Mother Moore from the car window to her husband, "Eat the apple pie that's cut, first. It's liable to mould, this hot weather."

David looked apprehensively around. If any of the depot loafers had overheard that injunction he knew the results. The parking order would be echoed and re-echoed loudly and indefinitely. He drew a breath of relief both at their absence and at the strong sense of freedom which possessed and permeated his soul.

Why, Maria and he had not been parted for 30 years before, and for the birth of their first grandchild in the nearby city, the separation would not now have taken place. But Mother Moore considered herself needed in that happy Boston home; and with many railings and directions, had departed for a few days' visit.

David was a joyful husband, but every one knew that the rather dreamy and impractical Pa Moore was under the domination, in household affairs, of his more energetic and able wife. Her ideas were as laws in all domestic matters.

Consequently, as David walked homeward to be, for seven long days, monarch of all he surveyed, life took on a rather free and easy demeanor to his active brain.

"Let's see," he ruminated. "I was to go to the Davises and get Mary Ann to come and keep matters straight, but I ain't going to. I'd rather be alone and live exactly as I please for once in my life, as he passed the Davis mansion with a defiant glance."

Mother Moore detested buttercups. She wasn't fond of having any flowers in the house, but she drew a straight and negative line for these blossoms. She detested them.

"Cluttery things! put lasting overnight and dropping their leaves everywhere!" Her husband loved the yellow bloom. So now, in utter abandon he gathered as many as he could carry and filled every vase, bowl and dish usable with them. This act of independence performed, he decided to reconstruct the interior of the living rooms. He hated stiffness and decorum as much as his better half loved them.

A Lesson In Efficiency

By Walt Gregg

LULA HOLMES opened her magazine wider and read the article once more.

"—and if all women would use their heads to save their heels!" she said, saying good-bye to the necessary steps they take during a day's duties would count more than they imagine."

"I suppose that's true," she mused. "Somehow I've made things run all right, but I might make it easier, I suppose—" and her thoughts drifted to the various things that clamored for her attention.

The little cottage that Jack Holmes and his wife, Ella, had been so happy in for a year, was a cozy, homelike place. To be sure, it was in order and, Ella enjoyed keeping it in order and, as Jack's business was a young one, she felt that her part was to avoid all expense possible.

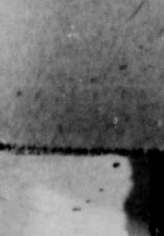

No love words or pet names found sweeter in her ears than "Little help-me," which Jack would call her when she proudly exhibited a new waist that she had made "all herself," or a new recipe that was economical but delicious.

All the magazines were eagerly perused for helpful "hints" in management of the little household. All of them did not prove satisfactory, but she would comfort herself with the thought that "experience is the best teacher."

Now here was a new wrinkle. As she started to prepare the dinner, "heads and heels" rang in her ears—"unnecessary steps," etc. She sat down to pare the potatoes and apples and plan after plan raced through her mind.

"Let me see, I'll burn all my parings and everything I can't save my steps out to the garbage can. Guess my heels are more important than the garbage for Jerry's heels! I'll count my steps and see where I can save the most."

In the midst of her resolves, the tea kettle boiled over and in her haste to set it back, the parings fell in all directions.

Just let things go and come down town and we'll go out to dinner somewhere for a treat."

Even as she kissed him good-bye she was saying over and over to herself: "Eleven cellar stairs, 10 steps from sink to refrigerator, 12 steps to garbage can, five from sink to stove, etc., and by the time night came her head was throbbing so she called Jack up and told him she felt unable to come down town and that he must get his dinner before he came home or bring it from the delicatessen shop."

A short time later Jack rushed into the little house and upstairs where his wife lay in solitary quiet. The doctor followed and when he announced that it was an occasion of overworked nerves Ella confessed the cause.

Then Jack told her that his patent had been granted and that Harriman had given his order and turned another big one his way—that he had ordered a little car "just for two" and had planned a swell dinner and theater afterwards to celebrate if she had been able to come down town.

"I shall have to censor all the reading material hereafter," he laughingly announced as he stroked her head.

"And I shall let my heels save my head and rest them in the auto," she murmured.

"I don't want a maid, Jack. It's nicer with just us two," she whispered as she nestled beside him on the arm of the big chair.

While Jack was pouring his coffee from the shining percolator next morning he cautioned his wife not to work hard that day.

THERE are many men who see the wisdom of the Sultan in disposing of his harem; but how does he do it?

CISCO IS HONORED.

WE CONGRATULATE the Rebekahs of the state of Texas in one thing: the selection of Mrs. J. D. Alexander as secretary of the state assembly in selecting her for the 23rd time as the state secretary. Mrs. Alexander has served long and faithfully in behalf of the daughters, and Cisco has been wondering if the quarter of a century of service would be awarded her again. At Fort Worth this week, she was named again.

Mrs. Alexander is one of Cisco's most prominent and brilliant women. She is responsible for many of the fine things this city has accomplished. The community rejoices in this honor, because it is a community affair. Any time the Rebekahs want anything from this city, all they have to do is to let it be known. We're certainly under many obligations for honoring one of our citizens.

CHEERING NEWS.

THE SALE of the local bank to local parties is cheering news. The Guaranty State Bank & Trust company has been one of the progressive institutions of the city, but with men who buy their groceries and their dry goods from local merchants running it, we can see greater progress for the institution.
Cisco banking institutions are the pride of the community, and now that they are all largely owned by local people, the quartette will sing in harmony for the Right Now city.

WORTH THE MONEY.

DR. BOX says the destruction of his signs in front of the Victory theater is worth all that it cost him. He paid the Young Business Men's league $5 for doing the work.

Dr. Box thinks now that the league should be called into action against all obstructions of the side walks on Main street, and make a thoroughfare that would be a credit to the community.

Obstruction of the walks is a menace in Cisco, and just why all should not be removed is often the question. They should be—once. The telephone company and the light company are both busy making plans to take their poles to the alleys. Now it is up to the other folks to comply with the regulation—and that means everyone—from the News office to the Victory theater.

Dr. Box and the News endorses the plan. What about it, Business Men's league?

CONGRESS is starting in now to investigate the United States Grain corporation, which has been thinking all this time it was just as safe from the probe "as the old wheat in the mill."

KEEP IT THAT WAY.

CISCO never looked better than it did Friday morning following the clean-up. The men who took part in the work certainly are entitled to a lot of credit, and the spirit that prompted everyone worth while to take some part in the affair is the very sort of thing that makes Cisco what it is.

Cleaning the streets was work, of course, but there was real pleasure in doing the job so completely. Once cleaned, the job is going to be easier the next time. It was a little thing as compared to some of the other municipal problems, but we'd wager that any other project, great as it might be, would be put over by the same bunch.

More power to them. May they continue to operate as the street department. Now that the work has progressed as far as it has, let Cisco keep it that way.

A STATE'S POLICE POWER.

CONGRESSMAN BLANTON warns the people that the eighteenth amendment has teeth in it, and that the fights of various states to legalize one sort of light booze or another is "merely spasmic liquor fits thrown in a dying tremor and are harmless."

There's many angles to the booze question. Everyone accepts as a matter of fact that the constitution of the United States can be amended—and it has been—with decisions of the court to support its legality. Just what rights the states have to say what is near beer and the amount of kick it may have in it is the pith of the rumpus which is developing in the several wet states.

As a matter of fact, there's frequently more kick in a jar of mother's canned peaches than would be found in three-and-a-half per cent beer. But that doesn't seem to be to the point. Does a state have the right to define what is intoxicating liquor for consumption within the state? There seems to be argument on both sides of the question. Certainly it is purely a matter of police power, and it is a well-defined policy in the United States that individual states have exclusive police power over matters which wholly concern the state. The Volstead act seems to take the police power away insofar as it effects hard drink. How about near beer?

During the war, the right of states to regulate railroads and public service companies was largely taken away as an emergency matter. Even some states protested then against that power being given to the federal government. But this power has been returned to the states, with certain limitations that many declare is not in harmony with state rights.

However, Mr. Blanton is right. The three-and-a-half-percenters have the alcoholic blues; but when a man's thirsty, he'll even drink hair tonic.

THIS SOLDIER GETS PAY CHECK BY AIR PLANE

EL PASO, March 19.—Private (first class) Tankersley, is probably the only man in the American army who receives his pay check via airplane according to the army aviation bulletin.

Tankersley is wireless operator at Hester's ranch, 90 miles east of El Paso on the Rio Grande. He is attached to the 104th Aero squadron.

To say him, it is necessary, the Bulletin says, to send the payroll down by one of the El Paso-Marfa border patrol planes. He signs the payroll and returns it to Fort Bliss by the next airplane passing his post. A few days later the money is sent to Tankersley by one of the aviators.

"Probably if a few of the companies in Mexico who are having such ill luck with their payroll would adopt this means of paying off, they would have less trouble with bandits stealing their money," the Bulletin suggests.

MADE MISTAKE IN DATE FOR DISTRICT COURT JURY

EASTLAND, March 19.—It was expected that some important litigation would be called for trial this week when Judge F. A. Hill convened court but it was found that a mistake had been made in issuing the venire for the jury for the week.

The venire facias made the jury returnable for this week on the 23rd day of March, which is next Monday. Hence the jury cases set were continued till later days as agreed upon or named by the court. However, these is a lot of non-jury business set for this week and the court is now busy on these cases.

WHAT NOT TO DO IN LONDON

Many of the Names May Be Misleading to the Stranger.

A. Powell in the Independent, (N.Y.) When you go to London don't make the mistake of seeking Temple Bar for liquid refreshments. Don't go to a "coffee house" for coffee—learn to do without it; and don't try to put up for the night, as one young American actually did, at Furnival's inn; it might be advisable to take out the life insurance there. Nor will the Inns of Court furnish you with hotel accommodation.

St. Clement Danes is not a dog show, but a church, and the Isle of Dogs is really a congregation of docks. Don't expect to find Limehouse as it is pictured in "Limehouse Nights," you may walk far there without seeing a Twinkletons. And, by the way, the Hop Exchange is not an opium den.

Don't ask where the "depot" is; and if you are seeking Shake-speare's birthplace, don't ask for a ticket to Stratford. A sailor we know tried this; he landed in the London suburb of that name, a wilderness of brick and mortar. He saw nothing of the birthplace, the Avon, or the bard, and the inhabitants themselves, seemed strangely ignorant of these things.

Remember—if you can—that as you walk east from Buckingham palace, the Mall becomes Spring Gardens Spring Gardens becomes the Strand, the Strand fades into Fleet street, Fleet street is lost in Ludgate hill, Ludgate hill runs on as Cannon street, Cannon changes to East Cheap East Cheap takes the alias of Great Tower street, and Great Tower street plumps you straight into the moat of Tower of London—and all without turning a single corner.

Where He'd Land.

Dusty Rhodes—I'd give me right shoe if I had wings like a bird.

Wearly Rambles—Nothing doing; look at the hard work you'd have to do to keep off a woman's hat.

STRANGE RESULTS OF EXCHANGE Man's Fine Becomes a Reward—Kroner Notes on Beer Bottles.
From London Daily Telegraph.

BERLIN.—The existing peculiar conditions in the international money market can produce strange and paradoxical phenomena. Here is a case in which the exchange actually transformed a punishment into a reward.

In 1914 a man from across the Baden frontier was arrested in Switzerland for smuggling. He was released on a bail of 5000 francs, which then cost him 7500 marks. For some reason the case dragged on, and was decided only recently. The accused was sentenced to a fine of 2000 francs and 300 francs costs. He received, as the balance of his bail, 1700 francs, which he changed for 24,000 marks. Consequently, his little adventure brought him in a net profit of 15,500 marks.

As one of the humors of the exchange, this deserves to be coupled with the case of a Swiss brewery which is said to have found it economical to label its beer bottles with Austrian kroner money instead of printing its labels.

A play will be given at the city hall auditorium, Saturday evening, March 20, at 8 o'clock for the benefit of the Cisco high school.

OPEN OPINIONS

McAllen, Texas, March 16, 1920. To the Cisco Morning News.

I am again in the California valley of Texas and am this morning enjoying the fine golf breeze and the sweet odor of the lemon and orange blossoms.

Where you can see cabbage and unions in every direction. There was 292 one loads of cabbage carried out of the valley Monday and we can see cars loaded at every switch. The oranges, lemons, and grape fruit are in full bloom and some six inches high. Cotton, up and beets, lettuce and carrots are being shipped now also.

This is the land of milk and honey, that is if you will just milk and rope the bees for the bees work the year around and some thing for the cows to eat all the time. Just remember that we make another trip to the valley, leaving Cisco the 27 of this month and I will enjoy talking with any one who is interested in seeing this country.

BAILEY TO OPEN NEW THEATRE AT EASTLAND

EASTLAND, March 19.—It is announced that on the night of the 31st of March, the new Connelley theater of Eastland will be open and that the christening of the theater will be a speech from Hon. Joseph W. Bailey, a candidate for governor, and long time friend of Mr. Charlie Connelley, the owner of the house. It is expected that the affair will be of some proportions and that a tremendous crowd will witness the opening as well to view the magnificent theater building as to hear Mr. Bailey speak. A public meeting will be held next Monday night for the purpose of organizing a Joe Bailey club for Eastland county.

SEEK REINSTATEMENT OF SLEEPERS ON FT. W. & D.

STAMFORD, Tex., March 19.—Reinstatement of parlor and sleeping equipment on trains numbers 1 and 2 on the Fort Worth & Denver railroad, between Wichita Falls and Amarillo, which was requested some time ago, will be contended for before the state railway commission this week. The West Texas chamber of commerce traffic department has sent a representative to the Austin meeting to submit figures showing that reinstatement is necessary for relief of congested traffic. It was pointed out that trains numbers 1 and 2 are always crowded, many passengers being compelled to stand for miles before being able to obtain seats. The reinstatement of these cars would serve to relieve the burden.

School Population Grows.

BROWNWOOD, March 19.—According to reports received at the office of county school superintendent Miss Carrie Heaves, the scholastic population of Brown county has increased not less than 30 per cent in a number of districts in Brown county. The increase throughout the county is very marked.

Business Man Enters Politics.

BROWNWOOD, March 19.—J. R. Looney, one of the leading financiers and business men of this city, and former mayor several years ago, has offered for mayor at the election in April. Mr. Looney consented to run only at the earnest solicitation of many friends. He is a believer in municipal ownership of public utilities.

A play will be given at the city hall auditorium, Saturday evening, March 20, at 8 o'clock for the benefit of the Cisco high school.

AMERICAN LEGION IS HONORED BY BANQUET

EASTLAND, March 19.—An interesting banquet was held at the Stanley cafe under the auspices of the American Legion of Eastland county and the Beacon Community club of Eastland, Thursday night. Aside from the splendid course of eats provided, there were some splendid speeches made to the 200 guests present.

The main object of the meeting was to confer together regarding the plans for getting funds for the erection of a large building for the Legion and Community club, the idea being to have only one building for the two organizations.

Judge E. A. Hill made the principal speech on the purposes and aims of the American Legion, and those present pronounced his speech one of the best heard in Eastland for a long time. The judge was apparently at his best and showed his deep concern for the boys who gave their lives for the cause of American manhood during the German war and for the men who are organized in the Legion to keep close to the cause and keep alive the great American spirit among comrades who offered to make the sacrifices of their lives, and all for the cause that brought America into that great conflict. His speech was greatly complimented.

Mr. L. E. H. Huber spoke effectively for the Community club. Earl Bender, the county clerk, acted as master of ceremonies, and made appropriate remarks. Committees were appointed to canvass the city for subscriptions and it is proposed to raise $15,000 next Saturday for the building fund.

DEFINES BEER BUT MUST WAIT ON COURT

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 18.—The Maryland house of delegates, without a roll call, adopted tonight the favorable report on the Jones three and a half per cent liquor bill, after reaching an understanding that the bill will be open to amendments on the 4th reading.

The bill was amended in the open house to meet Delegate Cambria's objections, and the changes were approved by Governor Ritchie. The amendment provides that the measure is not to go into legislation unless the United States supreme court decides that such states to enact or unless the supreme court decides the Volstead prohibition enforcement act unconstitutional.

Build Six Ships at Harriman, Pa. PHILADELPHIA, Mar. 19.—Six 500 ton tank steamships will be built at Harriman, Pa., this year.

Contracts for the vessels have just been signed. Work is to start within a few months. The entire capacity of the yard will be required to turn the six ships out on time.

LURE OF GAMBLING IS EVERYWHERE IN WORLD

The infinite number of ways in which young persons are lured into the sin of gambling is suggested dramatically in Vitagraph's current production, "The Sins of the Mothers." This picture, with Anita Stewart in the stellar role, will be presented at the Victoria theater today.

Miss Stewart appears in the role of Trixie Raymond, a girl who inherits the gambling instinct from a mother who is secret owner of a gambling resort. Mrs. Raymond seeks to shield the girl perpetually from all contact with games of chance, but even as a child the latter is accidentally lured toward the sin. First she comes upon a game of dice among boys and joins the game.

The mother, shocked to learn of the taint that is appearing in the girl's nature, sends her to a convent. After seven years, Mrs. Raymond takes Trixie home, apparently cured. But in a short time the girl again is drawn into games of chance. She attends fashionable parties where bridge whist is being played. Then she is a guest of a party in a tallyho race, upon which bets are made. Finally, she attends the professional races.

Through all these adventures Trixie gambles, gradually going deeper and deeper into a mesh of debt and misfortune.

The picture altogether reveals a dangerous method of gambling, which flourishes on all sides, constantly beckoning victims into the evil practice.

YOUNG MEN PICKPOCKETS ARE CAUGHT IN ACT AT EASTLAND

EASTLAND, March 18.—Three young men of Eastland last night were trying to be pickpockets if the reports from the sheriff's office are true. Leon Dooley was at the West Mall street cafe and was separated from his purse containing about $50. Some bystanders saw the entire transaction. According to the story of those who saw the theft, Carrol Reese, Dewey Dyson and Wesley Payne worked the trick and got the purse. Those who saw the theft are said to have made the young men, all of whom are about 19 to 21 years of age, pay back to young Dooley his purse and money. The miscreants were arrested and are now in jail.

Although Herman is willing, a Herman-Kilbane match seems to be just as unlikely as a Herman-Wilde fight.

Now that Kilbane has made such a poor showing with Benny Valger, Herman and his manager are sure that the featherweight champion would be easy for the bantam chief, and they are willing to make more liberal terms to get Kilbane into the ring.

Instead of 122 pounds, the limit for the featherweight class, Goldman is willing to allow Kilbane to come in at 124 pounds inside.

"But you'll have to put up a forfeit of $1,000 that you will make the weight," said Goldman. "If you are an ounce over the mark I'll take your money and give it to Benny Valger."

Kilbane answered that he thought he would weigh not more than 124 pounds, but that he would post to forfeit.

"Why, that's not a fair proposition," said Goldman. "That means that you will come in at catchweights. You can't expect me to go back to Herman and tell him to make weight. Matches are not made that way, as you very well know."

"Well, if Herman wants to fight me he'll have to agree to catchweights," was Kilbane's final answer.

Herman has evidently taken on weight of late or he would not be so anxious to tackle Kilbane.

The featherweight champion may be sliding back rapidly, but he still packs a hefty wallop in his right mitt, and he would be a dangerous proposition for any bantamweight to tackle.

Lightweight Champion Benny Leonard may box twenty rounds at the Juana before he returns to New York. Jim Coffroth, Jack Kearns and Tom Jones are interested in the promotion of bouts in the southern California town.

Coffroth thinks that a twenty round battle with Leonard as one of the principals would be a great attraction. Who Leonard's opponent will be has not been determined as yet.

Kearns, who is the manager of a promising lightweight named Eddie Mahoney, as well as Jack Dempsey, wants to put Mahoney in with Leonard, but Coffroth wants a man with a wider reputation.

Here is the complete list of Washington players who will take orders from president-manager Clark Griffith this season:

Catchers—Val Pincine, Gharfrity Carlson and Greenlee.

First basemen—Judge and Kelliher.

Second basemen—Shannon, Grover, Harris, Washburn and Watt.

Third basemen—Joe Leonard.

Outfielders—Clyde, Milan, Rice, Shanks and Roth.

McBride has been appointed field captain.

Pat O'Connor, who acted as coach of the Yankees during the first two seasons of the Huggins regime, is being mentioned as manager of one of the clubs of the Eastern league.

Pitcher Joe Boehling, formerly with the Washington club, will attempt a comeback this year. Joe quit baseball last year after a short stay with the Indians, but is willing to make another try at the game.

Doc White, former star southpaw of the White Sox and later a magnate in the Texas league, was an interesting visitor at the joint major league meeting in Chicago. Doc came up to meet old friends, and, incidentally, land a job as manager of Muskegon.

One of the old fellows asked Doc if it was true he had struck Ty Cobb out three straight times.

"I did that at Detroit one day," replied White. "Then we played a game in Chicago and I fanned him three more times. They took him out the next time and let Freddie Payne bat for him."

"But Ty certainly made up for it in later years. He used to murder me. I've never told that the reason he finally quit was because he was because he tried standing farther back, and waited for my hook to break."

"That's not the way I figured it out. He simply started hitting me when I began to lose my stuff."

"I was always more afraid of Sam Crawford than Cobb. Sam used to crash my offerings, and he had far more success against me than Cobb ever did."

Johnny Griffiths, Akron lightweight, met Marcel Thomas of France in a scheduled 12-round bout at the Salle Wagram club of Paris the other night.

Griffiths won in the 10th round. It was a one-sided affair, for Thomas was sent down eight times during the battle. On the last down Descamps, manager for Carpenter, who was in Thomas' corner, threw in the sponge as a token of defeat.

During the eighth round, when the Frenchman was floored by a stiff right to the jaw, an American from Philadelphia shouted to Descamps:

"Nothing doing on the hand. Put up or shut up," replied the Quaker City man.

"Well, you got me with my clothes off and I must shut up, as you Americans say," said Descamps. "But meet me tomorrow any time or place and the bet goes that Dempsey will never floor Georges Carpentier when they meet."

Bill McCabe, utility player of the Cubs and known as the "Captain of the Upper Berths," was one year captain of the St. Joseph, Mo., club in the western league. Like all minor league bosses, McCabe did his best to sell talent to the majors.

One day along came a major scout named Nick Malloy to look over one of the St. Joe pitchers, says a yarn by Malcolm McLean in the Chicago Evening Post. The twirler, a young chap, had been making quite a showing, and the big fellows had started to prick up their ears.

McCabe got the chap to warm up in front of the stand, in full view of the scout. The pitcher didn't have a thing that day. His showing was miserable. His speed wasn't there, his hooks didn't break half an inch.

Later McCabe got into a conference with Malloy. "The kid's a bear," said Bill. "He's got everything. I have to keep him slowed up. When he cuts loose he has so much stuff that no ball could stand it."

Oscar Dugrey, who played on two national championship teams, the Braves and Phillies, but lost out as a player because of a bad arm, has signed as coach and scout by Manager Stallings of the Braves.

When Babe Ruth hits a baseball, he hits it; and when he dresses for the golf links, he dresses. Busting Babe sailed forth for the links at Jacksonville, Florida, recently, and the natives thought that the aurora borealis had suddenly assumed human form and visited the city. He was attired in a blue serge suit, pearl gray trousers, a soft shirt of finest texture, a silken collar and a scarf that was the ultra, ultra, ultra in fashion. The lilies of the field, the birds of the air and the dandies of the animal kingdom in those parts are getting ready to cut their throats, for Babe has cornered the fashion.

Baseball is threatened with another law suit. Manuel Cueto, who was released by the Cincinnati Reds to the Rochester club last August as part of the $10,000 deal for outfielder Sec, did not receive a share of the world's series money. Cueto has engaged a lawyer to set forth his claim on the ground that he played with the Reds long enough to entitle him to a slice of the melon. Inasmuch as the money was paid to the Reds in October, Cueto probably will have to hale all of them to court in order to obtain a judgment. Even then he might find it hard to collect.

The Roman Catholic colleges of the east, famed as prolific producers of worth while ball toppers, have contributed heavily to the ranks of the Giants as they are at present arrayed. Bill Ryan, Chick Brown and Arnold Stutz come from Holy Cross, Frank Frisch and Jim McQuade from Fordham and Arthur White from the Catholic University. Also it will be recalled, John McGraw himself received much of his early training in baseball at St. Bonaventure's college. It was at St. Bonaventure that McGraw and Hughie Jennings first cemented the friendship that has lasted down through the years.

The International Amateur Athletic federation, which was formed in 1912 for the purpose of drawing up and agreeing on rules and regulations for international competition in athletics, to register world's Olympic and national records and to draw up a common amateur definition for international competition, is getting ready to start in where it left off at the outbreak of the war in 1914.

The most cheering piece of news that percolated into the Yankee camp so far this spring was that the long delayed check for the share of the world's series, won by the Yankees when they finished in third place last year, had been received at the New York headquarters of the club. Something like $457.85 per man was coming to the sterling athletes, who had been staggering along just one step in advance of the sheriff. The total amount of the check is $13,777.90 and 29 players are in the division.

President Broadon of the St. Louis Cardinals has announced that he will continue to issue free passes to the "Knot Hole Gang" even though each boy's complimentary ticket must be settled for with the visiting National league club on the basis of a bleacher admission fee. Last year 35,000 boys were admitted free to the Cardinals' games and Broadon says he hopes the number will be doubled. Making baseball fans in this manner is a wise move and should be taken up by the other big league magnates.

Frank Herbst, claimed by both the Pirates and the Mackmen, is in the training camp with the National leaguers. This is a case for the national commission to settle as soon as it is reorganized.

Club owners of the Pacific coast league have decided to admit boys free to their games two days each week and to admit the youngsters for a nominal charge on other days. It is a good move for the league.

FAVORS WALKS AROUND ALL BUSINESS PROPERTY

Commenting on the great street-cleaning movement inaugurated Friday by the Young Men's Business League, Mr. Carroll of the Carroll Motor Co., complimented the work highly, and added that he would like to see continuous sidewalk walks around prominent business lots whether they are built on or not. He favors a city ordinance that would compel such improvement, as being essential to the city's progress. And walks should be extended into the residence district so as to be negotiable in rainy weather.

TRIED RECIPES

Filled Cookies.
One cup sugar, half cup shortening, creamed together; then add one beaten egg, half cup milk and three teaspoons baking powder sifted with one cup flour, then add gradually two cups more of flour.

Filling—One cup chopped raisins, half cup sugar, grated rind of one lemon, three teaspoons flour and half a cup sugar, grated rind of one lemon, three teaspoons flour and half cup of lemon juice and water. Cook slightly until a paste is formed. Roll the cookies thin. Put in pan and put a teaspoon of filling on each, then put another cookie on top of each and press edges together.

Jellied Chicken and Veal.
Take a fowl or chicken and the end of a leg of veal. This cut jellies the best. Boil in separate kettles and turn occasionally while cooking. Do not have too much water, just enough to cover. When thoroughly done, remove and season by adding a little parsley and onion. Then remove bones and gristle and mix together the veal and chicken. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

Line a mould with sliced, hard-boiled eggs, and turn over them the chicken and veal. This is very palatable. This can be made also into chicken pie, or even into salad.

Water Lily Salad.
Remove shells from six hard cooked eggs. Divide eggs into halves, then cut into points, remove the yolks, put in bowl, season with one teaspoonful of melted butter. Refill the whites with the yolk mixture and arrange the halves on a bed of lettuce. Serve with cooked salad dressing.

Prune Cream.
A good way to use a cup of stewed prunes, that may be left, for a simple dessert, is to strain the prunes through a sieve, adding enough of the juice to make a cupful, and one cup of rich milk with pinch of salt. When heated to the boiling point in double boiler, add the yolks of two eggs, well beaten, one tablespoon of cornstarch, and one-third of a cup of sugar, all mixed with a little cold milk. Add one teaspoon of vanilla as soon as this has formed a custard. Cool and serve in sherbert glasses, with whipped cream and some chopped walnuts. A marshmallow gives a dainty touch to each serving.

Fairy Custard Pie.
To the well-beaten yolks of four eggs add three tablespoons of sugar, four tablespoons of shredded coconut, a pinch of salt, one teaspoon of orange extract and two cups of sweet milk. Mix well and line a pie tin with plain paste, pour in the custard and bake in a moderately hot oven until the custard is firm and crust brown.

TIMELY SUGGESTIONS WORTH WHILE

WANT to know how to establish a relationship between a skirt and sweater and thus make a good-looking costume for sports wear? Just have a long sash to match skirt and drape it around the sweater as illustrated in this photograph. This is a style note that should be borne in mind, for it promises to become more popular as the warm weather advances and the sweater girl becomes more prominent. Blue and green stripes form the big plaids in the skirt of tussah. The sweater is green and is striped in white. Other costumes on this order have collar and cuffs of the skirt material introduced.

The Broad Sash With a Difference.
The broad sash is in again, but it is different in that it is more a part of the frock than it was in former years. Then, too, the material of the sash is different—there being a more novelty ribbon and a great abundance of yard and are giving women designs based upon the designs that have been woven into beautiful materials and carved on pottery found in South American idea in designing is noticed on this broad sash which is draped around the figure and tied in a careless knot at the side. The colors introduced on the sash are black, bright red, green and yellow, and these add much character to the frock which is fashioned of natural colored tussah. The fringe edging the sash is made of black silk.

striped Japanese crepes, cotton crepes, nainsook, satins and delicately colored crepe de chine. It is of the latter material that this suit is made. The colors chosen are pink and blue. The crepe de chine is blue and the satin these can be fastened and unfastened in the twinkling of an eye. The button-trimmed tie of stockette is a little detail not to be overlooked, as are also the shaped pieces of the material simulating pockets.

The lower part of the frock is of white stockette striped with bands of the blue. These lines would prove equally stunning in a frock of linen made of a solid color or the combination of two, as here illustrated.

The Shorter Top-Coat.
"Just what shall I get in the way of a coat to wear over my one-piece frocks?" is the cry that is being made days unnecessary weight is avoided by every one. The next important note sounded in Spring coats is the color. Some of the colors are so bright that the onlooker wonders how some of them can be so daring. And if they aren't of a solid bright hue, they are sure to be made of some novel material. Surely nothing could be more conspicuous than this model, which brings to mind the checker board. The boldness of the design makes it unnecessary for the coat to be of brilliant colors, therefore, it is made of black-and-white velour. The lines are quite becoming, there being both a long and short waist line suggested, by the crossed belt and the line where the top meets the bottom portions. The generous collar may seem a little bit out of place at this time of year, but every separate coat boasts of a big collar. Of course, when the mercury soars this one can be unfastened and worn as a cape.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

To Make Good Buttonholes.
If, in making buttonholes, in white goods, you will use embroidery cotton No. 12, instead of plain thread, you will be surprised to see how much more easily they are worked and how much nicer they look.

I have a skein of it wound on a spool and keep it just for buttonholes, also for sewing on the buttons, as it is better. If you are teaching your young daughters the art of working buttonholes, try using this, and you will have a much easier task than by using cotton, for the thread does not knot and lies so much closer to the goods that your buttonholes look really good, even if you are not an expert.

Always keep on hand small brushes to wash vegetables with.

Save the gummed part of old envelopes in a small box. They are very handy to stick on anything you wish to label.

Always keep baking soda to clean your agate ware and cooking spoons, etc. It is also very good to wash paint with, a tablespoon to two quarts of warm water.

Always keep an old magazine handy by the sink to set a kettle on when you remove it from the stove. You can always tear the soiled page off.

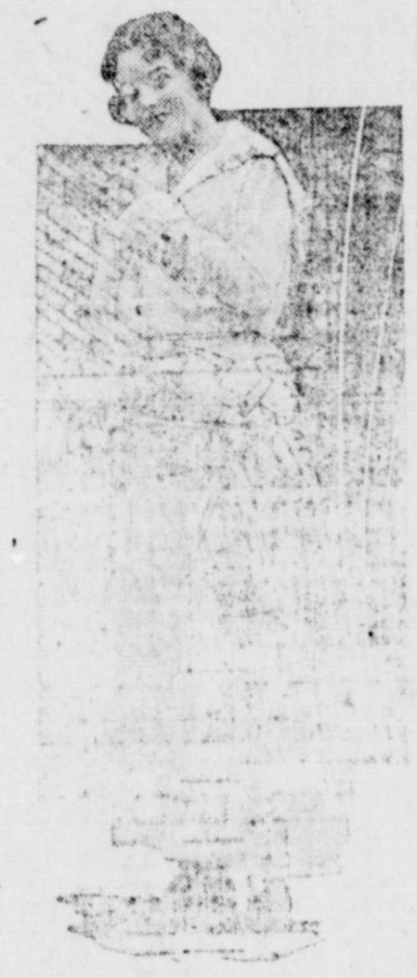

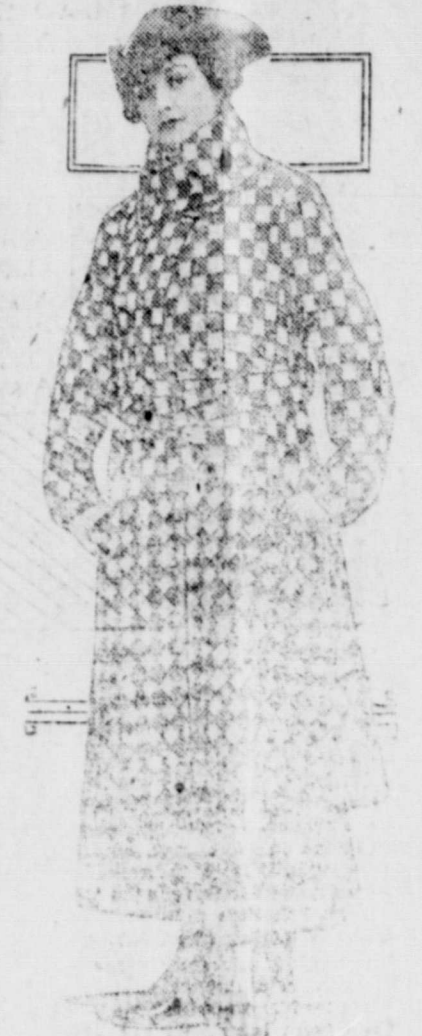

If potatoes scorch do not take cover all, but put kettle immediately into cold water until the burned odor has disappeared. Then remove potatoes, put into a clean kettle and finish cooking. You will find no burned taste if you do so.

A bottle of shellac is handy to paint over burns, and it gives instant relief. A flannel, wet with linseed oil and rubbed over the oiled cloth after it is washed and dried, will keep it in good condition much longer than washing with water alone.

If chocolate or cocoa gets on your fine table linen, wash with good soap and tepid water. If a coffee stain gets on a silk in cold water, wring, spread out and pour a few drops of glycerine on each spot. Let stand for several hours, then wash with cold water and soap. This is good for tea stains also. Soak iron rust spots well with lemon juice, sprinkle with salt and bleach in the sun for several hours.

For the dining room table procure some Chinese ivory bulbs from the florist put into large topped pitchers or vases, place in a dark closet until they are bodded; then gradually bring to the light. You will have a complete surprise for hubby some evening at dinner.

To line the clothes basket with cloth is a very good plan as it can then always be kept perfectly clean.

Dozens of buttons are employed to trim the frock. They outline the all sides of the tunic, and are matched with buttonholes placed at corresponding position on the opposite side of the tunic. They ornament the collar and front of the blouse, and are tubular in design. These buttons, by the way, are novel affairs, being made of bone and ornamented with an enamel design.

Even Pajamas Demand Hand Embroidery.
Pajamas are becoming more popular with the fair sex and for this reason they are being offered in more attractive styles. There are lovely ones of which edges the "pocket" with a decorative and floral collar. The two colors then are combined to embroider the plaid collar on the front of the jacket and the sides of the trousers. Truly, such a pair would be a wonderful gift to the girl who is collecting a trousseau.

Sub-Oh by Speckled!
Stockette is one of the best materials for spring frocks, and is here seen in one of the modish styles, the slip-on, that shows up well in the soft, clinging material. The clinging quality of the material, by the way, makes it necessary for one to use judgment before deciding to have a frock of the goods. That in one should be sure that one has a very stylish figure before attempting to wear the material. The style is one that is particularly suitable for the woman who has to dress in a hurry, for it boasts of three buttons and loops, and by having it of women who are clinging to the fact that the coat that has done service for the past few months has been too warm. The truth of the matter is that there is very little difference in the styles of the shorter coat compared with the far Summer. Perhaps the biggest difference is in the length of the Spring coat. A great number of the models are made quite short, just reaching a little below the hip lines, and others are as long as the coat shown, while a few, but only a few, reach to the bottom of the skirt. This shorter length is quite timely, for the longer the coat the more weight the wearer has to carry. With the approach of warmer and has a white crepe de chine crown to repeat the colors of the coat. A noticeable feature about frockers this season is that they are made on a much larger scale than heretofore.

PRETTY HOUSE FLOWERS--THE CALLA

THE calla comes to us from Egypt, where it grows in grandeur along the banks of the Nile.

When the river overflows its banks each year there is left a deposit of black alluvial soil, sometimes two feet deep, which is very rich in plant nutrition. In this wet loam the calla and other lilies of this country attain their yearly growth. When the water subsides and the hot sun once more parches the soil, the plants apparently die; but, when the wet season returns in the spring, they all sprout into renewed growth.

Calla lilies are propagated in many varieties. The common, old-fashioned strong-growing variety, C. Richardia Ethipica, or the Lily of the Nile, is the one we usually see in general cultivation. This is the lily we see peeping through the windows of the farmhouses as we motor through the country.

It is an easy matter to grow the common calla, but to flower in the house is not so easy. The general tendency by those inexperienced is to over-pot this lily. This is a mistake, because unless treatment the entire strength of the plant goes to produce great, rubber-like foliage; frequently it is so much over-potted that it seems to pine. Now, there is a practical reason for this. If you over-pot any plant the roots are too far away from the surface of the soil to receive sufficient air. Florists always shift their plants into larger pots as they develop. In all varieties of potted plants the roots always seek the outside of the soil, next the pot. In this way they have all the necessary air.

The most important point in flowering the common calla is the condition of the bulb when it is started in the fall. If the bulb is only half-ripened it will grow, but seldom flower. If it is not sufficiently ripened you may "warm-water it" and "manure it" to any extent, but you can not coax it to bloom.

Keep the plant setting in a warm, sunny window, and do not fail to wash the foliage twice each week.

DRAPING THE DRESSING TABLE.

WOULD you like to know what to drape a dressing table with?

Suppose you have just a chest of drawers and no mirror. Buy a triple mirror and fasten firmly to wall at back, letting the bottom rest on the top of chest. Buy either glazed or unglazed chints in some dainty coloring. Attach this to top of chest. It should be hung in pleats and edged with narrow silk ruffling to conform with color of chintz. The top of chest is covered with chintz which has a separate flounce attached to the same material. This has an edge of narrow silk ruffling. If you wish you might drape a stool with chintz which matches your dressing table.

Dotted Swiss or net makes an effective draping. The material is shirred in a band to fit dressing table, using glass knobs for the drawers. A mirror hangs above it.

An unusual treatment for a dressing table is to place it in a dormer window, where one gets the full light of day for dressing. It may be gracefully draped with linen or chintz.

For the more elaborate dressing tables taffeta might be used, and, personally we think the net, Swiss or chints is better.

SKILLFUL USE OF CREPE AND RIBBON.

One has to utter many words of surprise and praise when viewing a collection of hats this season. So varied are they in shape, materials and trimmings that it is impossible to say that any style reigns. A very dainty model that has many points of interest is this one of beige georgette crepe. The crepe has been skillfully shirred at regular intervals over a flesh-colored straw foundation. This faint color of pink casts a pretty light on the beige crepe. The underside of the brim is left uncovered, consequently the cheeks of the wearer are given an attractive hue. Pink velvet ribbon has been utilized in a unique fashion, as you will observe by examining closely the spray of wheat near the front of the hat. The single lines are made of outline stitches done in a silk. Long and short stitches in yellow and black straw foundation. This low form the pointed flowers.

GENEROUS USE OF THE MODISH IRISH CROCHET

That Irish crochet lace is a popular line of hemstitching falls in deep scalloping for lingerie is noted on this lops so that the fancy stitching is decorative. The material chosen for orative as well as useful. The rich gown is white nainsook of the best quality. Tucks across the bust one understands that the back is the same as the front. In fact, the only way to tell the one from the other is by the rosette of different colored ribbons placed to one side of the front.

LOST SIGNS, BUT IN GOOD CAUSE; GIVE CHECK FIVE DOLLARS

Victory Theater Willing to Pay Money Even Though Property Destroyed In Good Cause.

"Cisco has started something that we endorse," said W. M. Williams, manager of the Victory theater, and a member of the firm of Box & Williams. "Our check for $5 was given the Young Business Men's League following the removal of our theater bill boards on Main street during the clean up."

Two large bill boards placed in front of the theater got in the way of the league's cleanup squad early Friday morning, and they were removed. As soon as Dr. Box and Mr. Williams learned of it, they wrote out their check and passed it to the credit of the league. Of course, they regretted the destruction of their sign, but they felt that it was really a matter that would result in good for the city as a whole.

EVERY WOMAN THE NEW JUDIA Sunday :: Monday :: Tuesday

SHE MARRIED AN AVERAGE MAN

Life seems bright today. After all, Jim is a darling. If he is not always ready to see things my way, neither is he always unwilling to. And, come to think of it, I am rather a proposition. I mean, to a man of Jim's type, a woman of my type is a good deal of a problem. I often catch him looking at me with the expression a motherly hen might wear as she watches her supposed "chick" swim off into a brook, leaving her fluttering helplessly on shore.

Which shows that for all his apparent coming around he doesn't understand the thing in the least as I see it. He still regards it as a mere effort on my part to help over a hard place. He cannot yet see the fundamental truth that no man or woman, maid or wife, has a right to enjoy without the obligation of earning. And that congenial work is the greatest happiness in life.

STREET CLEANERS DID GREAT PIECE OF MOPPING-UP

Made a "Spotless Town" From One End of Main Street to the Other; Also Found New Civic Force.

The Main street of Cisco was cleaned and scoured from stem to stern Friday. Nobody knows this any better than the men or more who are musing battered heads and rubbing liniment on sore joints today. Nobody is any better pleased than those same fellows who had the will power to get out of bed at 5 o'clock in the morning, when it was still dark and a little chilly, and show that they meant business by pulling up their sleeves and going to it with brooms, picks, shovels or anything they could lay their hands on.

In future years when anybody comes to in a local assembly and claims that he is an old time resident of Cisco and that he has done his best toward its upbuilding, there will be those with white whiskers, who will go and tell him if he helped clean Main street in the March of 1920.

That is the significance of yesterday's work. It wasn't so much the cleaning of Main street, although that was a matter of almost absolute necessity. It was more a matter of Cisco making a definite mark on the world's map, a mark that will stand for quick strong action in a pinch. Cases found out, and Cisco will not forget.

Everybody who was there will know from now on just when he can rely on to go with him every step of the way in any kind of a project. And everybody there knows who was there, and that is sure was good exercise and sport while it lasted, and it lasted just about long enough.

The fire which blew up per se on Monday at 1 a. m. It was a long and earnest wait of about half a minute's duration. Everybody should have heard it, but most of those who didn't sleep down town would take a drink and get a warm drink.

At 5:20 there were about a dozen men scattered around in the "old" restaurant throwing down a little smoke to them over until breakfast.

At 6 o'clock about 20 men lined up in the street ready for duty. They went to it with brooms, and other implements of warfare and from that time on their ranks swelled steadily with the influx of those who had turned over one or two before getting up.

Mayor Williamson was one of the earliest on the job. He gave an advance showing of what will be done by the men of the court set this spring in the way of overhauling and mending a town like he was playing a nine-hole course on a June day.

Class Will reveal of the Texas Men's Business League was also among the first on the scene and got some of the military days to good use by wearing them.

Mayor Williamson and Will directed the work with one hand and swept with the other. There was a proposal to enter business block but everybody was so busy doing something they forgot to find out who was in charge and the proposal was so quickly put to rest that they couldn't give any more. But everybody helped everybody else and kept going.

Chief of Police Wiley Hutton was on the job with his patrolmen and succeeded in keeping traffic diverted from the Main street from 6 'til 11 o'clock. They did good work.

Owing to the shortage of print paper the good and noble deeds of all who took part in Friday's clean-up and the personnel in full cannot be published, but most of the merchants got out in front of their business places and did a man's size piece of work. Some of them didn't. Their sidewalks were swept by others, and their refuse cleaned from between the walk and curb.

After the dirt had been swept into piles it was shoveled into trucks and taken to the dump. The fire department then hove into view on the horizon and followed the lone street sweeper with its team of dust-gray mules with a stream of water that drenched the bricks and sidewalk to a ruddy red.

By 10 o'clock the work was practically completed. Much credit is due to the Hoop Supply and other companies for the use of trucks.

Early shoppers opened their eyes wide and uttered exclamations of surprise and wonder when they got their first view of the thoroughly renovated business district. And for a fact it was almost unbelievable that so much could be accomplished.

But it just shows what can be done when people quit talking and roll up their sleeves and go to it.

It's all over now, everybody's happy, everybody's satisfied and everybody is determined that the streets are going to stay clean as long as possible. If anybody is caught throwing any rubbish

WEST TEXAS C. OF C. BOOSTER WOULD LIVE IN CISCO; SEEKS HOME

B. F. Bennett, Field Representative, Finds Cisco the Sort of Town Would Like to Live In.

Quoting the historical Queen of Sheba, "the half has not been told," was the comment of B. F. Bennett, of Stamford, when he took a survey Friday of the many business and residence buildings being constructed and the street paving now in progress in Cisco. "It is a veritable beehive of industry, that gives the visitor the itch to become a member of the family," he continued. "I see possibilities here of the greatest magnitude, in this central city of the western world."

And this man viewing in admiration and admiration was B. F. Bennett, field manager for the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. For the past two years Mr. Bennett has been secretary of the Abilene Chamber of Commerce, and is said to have made one of the best secretaries that body ever had. But Cisco's progress just overwhelmed this booster.

It is only recently that Mr. Bennett resigned his Abilene position to take up his present work. The West Texas Chamber of Commerce embraces all that territory west of Fort Worth and San Antonio—covering about 150,000 square miles, and containing half the population of Texas.

Mr. Bennett is now touring in this territory in the interest of extending membership and with special powers in soliciting data of improvements and progress as material for publication in state, national and international magazines, for which are prepared by the chamber's special press agent, William Harold Wright of Stamford. He reports most enthusiastic interest in all the towns he has so far visited—even the very little towns taking very large membership.

Mr. Bennett will be here until next Tuesday, gathering local Cisco data on existing membership. In fact, Mr. Bennett wants to bring his family from Abilene to reside in Cisco if he can get a pretty nice little bungalow in which to house them.

He said that this was a better real estate and more easy of access from over his extensive territory. He did not say so. The News would reader could discern that he viewed Cisco as the central, conspicuous city of his vast territory, from Fort Worth to El Paso, and that Cisco is also close to health, happiness, prosperity, all and all else that is good.

What Cisco has a bungalow to offer this booster to get him located here?

quary the establishment by these states of quarantine prohibiting the growth of cotton in the areas actually known to be infected to limit the restrictions imposed under the federal quarantine to the areas actually determined as infected.

It is recognized that the extermination of this insect in Texas and also now in Louisiana is absolutely contingent on the prohibition of the growth of cotton in infected areas. The growth of cotton under restriction or other methods of control simply means the perpetuation of the pest, but no less certain, ultimate spread of the insect. Extermination is possible only when the infestation is just beginning and when the insect is scant in numbers and limited in distribution. Any postponement or limitation, therefore, of the effort at this time means practically the loss of the opportunity of extermination and an acceptance of the ultimate spread of the pest throughout the south. Success in this effort at extermination necessarily requires absolute cooperation of the states concerned in the measures outlined.

Promptly following the discovery of the infestation by the pink boll worm in the southeastern part of the state of Louisiana, the authorities of that state established a drastic quarantine prohibiting the growth of cotton in the infected parishes. It is hoped that the state of Texas will take measures promptly to continue the cooperation which it has hitherto given and, particularly to provide for the prohibition of the growth of cotton in the infected areas and for the reimbursement of planters as in the case of Louisiana.

With the streets from now on there are about 20 business men who are in just about the right frame of mind to take a day off if necessary to see that he picks it up.

NO NEWBERRY RETURN. JURY HOME FOR NIGHT

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., March 19. The jury in the Newberry election conspiracy trial was excused for the night by Judge Sessions at 5:50 p. m. Not the slightest indication as to the progress being made toward deciding the guilt or innocence of Senator Truman H. Newberry and others of the 93 defendants came from behind the locked doors of the jury room. The court had told the twelve men, however, to consider the case of each defendant apart from the others and the fact that this work was not completed by tonight occasioned no great surprise. All told, the men have been at their task eight hours and forty minutes.

TREATY FAILED TO PASS THE SENATE

would permit another vote on ratification, but the effort soon was abandoned when compromise democrats advised the republicans that they thought it futile to try to change seven more democratic votes. The motion to reconsider, made by Senator Robinson, democrat of Arkansas finally was thrown out on a point of order and no appeal was taken.

The lineup of the entire senate today was 57 for ratification to 29 against, including members paired. Four months ago the total tally was 42 for ratification and 53 against, with one seat vacant.

Eighteen democrats today changed from their position of November 1. Seventeen who then voted against ratification favored it today while one, Senator Shields of Tennessee, who voted for ratification November 19 and since has become known as an "irreconcilable" today, votes against ratification.

Of the democrats who switched to support the treaty, fifteen voted for ratification and two additional, Senators Gerry of Rhode Island and Jones of New Mexico, paired for ratification. The Republican Party, however, was divided. Fisher, Buchanan, Chamberlain, Fischer, Henderson, Kendrick, Kim, Nugent, French, Pittman, Russell, Smith of Maryland, Trammell, Walsh (Montana) and Wolcott.

In the republican ranks, the irreconcilables gained only one new adherent, Senator Pezrose of Pennsylvania, who voted for ratification four months ago but today was paired as an opponent of the treaty. Twelve republican "bitter enders"—Borah, Brandegee, Fernald, France, Gruney, Johnson (California), Knox, La Follette, McCormick, Moses, Norris and Sherman—voted today as they did four months ago, against ratification, while three others, Penrose, Fall of New Mexico and Poindexter voted in opposition, while Senator Fall was not present, but his opposition was announced.

In sending the treaty back to the president, the senate acted on the motion of Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the republican leader, who declared that to bring the question of ratification again before the senate would be a waste of time and would delay public business.

The democratic leader, Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, pleaded that the action be withheld a few days, because there "always is a chance of better" He added that if a reasonable deal brought no prospect of ratification, the move of the republican leader, might be concurred in with virtual unanimity.

Senator Hitchcock also objected to a request by Senator Lodge for unanimous consent to take another vote on ratification tonight, made after Senator Robinson's reconsideration motion had been ruled out.

Just before the senate adjourned, Senator Knox, republican of Pennsylvania, moved to take up his resolution, declaring a state of peace. The attempt will be renewed Monday under present plans and the republican leaders expect the resolution or some similar measure, he adopted. President Wilson has indicated his opposition of such a course, however, and should he veto a peace declaration the leaders are uncertain whether they could muster the necessary two-thirds of both senate and house to pass it.

The Knox resolution, introduced in December, provides for repeal of the declaration of war, for retention of certain concessions granted by Germany in signing the peace treaty and for a re-declaration of the hope of congress that some tribunal may be created to adjust international disputes.

RULES OF SENATE MUST BE CHANGED, DECLARED BRYAN

power and capacity of the people. He refused to "wait the possibility of revolution in the United States."

"If the people's will is obstructed the force that accumulates behind the barrier is the guarantee that it will be removed," he said. "Temporary damage is done in the transition from the abnormal condition, caused by the obstruction to the normal condition of progress, the blame is not upon those who remove the fetters placed upon the people's will but upon those who are foolish enough to deny to the people to have what they want in government."

What Nation Must Understand. "We can better understand the political situation which we have to meet today if we bear in mind three propositions:

"First, that greed and selfishness are always attempting to obstruct human progress."

"Second, that the sooner an obstruction to the public will is removed, the better for all concerned."

"Third, right always triumphs in the end."

Just now the world is recovering from the most desperate war known in history. Go grant that the lessons learned in the awful conflict may never be forgotten.

"We have learned at least one lesson, namely, that it is a mistake to require a two-thirds vote to ratify a treaty. A majority of congress can declare war; it ought to be as easy to ratify a treaty as to declare war."

Endorses League of Nations. The League of Nations with its nation a member, is the highest tribunal that has been conceived by the mind and heart of man, and our nation's influence in the league should be far toward making war impossible by advocating the spirit of brotherhood. Our nation's representative in the league should be elected in districts by popular vote."

Among obstructions which Mr. Bryan said he had seen swept away were efforts of predatory wealth to prevent direct election of United States senators by the people, efforts of the rich to prevent authorization of an income tax, efforts of money magnates of Wall Street to kill the currency law which removed the center of financial power from New York to Washington; efforts of powerful financial interests to stave off the coming of prohibition, and efforts to prevent extradition of war criminals.

"Woman's influence is needed just now to silence opposition to the prohibition amendment and to hasten the day of universal peace," declared Mr. Bryan.

"Woman's influence is needed throughout the world to oppose universal military training and prevent a referendum on war except in case of invasion."

OVER HUNDRED KILLED WHEN SOLDIERS FIRE IN BERLIN CROWD

at the Brandenburg gate. The police ordered an automobile bearing the officers, who were reported to have been members of the Berlin force which invaded Berlin, to halt. The crowd surrounded the car and the doors opened fire with revolvers on soldiers. An armored motor car appeared and the soldiers in it threw hand grenades into the officers' car and immediately the police fired with their rifles upon it. The three officers died and the other toppled over, wounded. Under Den Linden was crowded at the time, and the explosion of the grenades caused a panic. Six civilians were wounded by the burning missiles, and were taken for medical aid into the Hotel Adlon.

In the early morning two persons were killed and several were wounded in disorders which ended in street fighting.

Much Disorder During Night

There was much disorder last night in the working sections of Berlin in the workmen's districts east and north of the city, and even in the semi-fashionable Schoenberg section.

NEW INTERNAL REVENUE DISTRICT FOR TEXAS

WASHINGTON, March 19.—Consolidation of the two internal revenue districts in Virginia and organization of a second district for Northern Texas, has been authorized by the president. In announcing the change, the internal revenue bureau explained that the re-organization would make easier the handling of tax collection work in the newly developed territories of Texas. Headquarters for the new Texas district will be established at Dallas.

It was reported that 12 unarmed army officers leaving Schoenbergers on a truck were dragged off the vehicle by a mob and severely beaten and several of them killed.

Reports from cities and towns in various parts of Germany, told of continued operations by radicals, but in some of the cities the radical movement seemingly is waning and workmen are returning to their jobs. That is especially true in south Germany.

Expert Failed to Arrive. The expectation had been that President Ebert and his ministers would arrive in Berlin today to join Gustav Noske, minister of defense, and Dr. Schiffer, minister of justice, and all them in their efforts to stabilize the situation. Information from Stuttgart, however, is that the departure of the Ebert government to the capital has been postponed and that its appearance here cannot be expected until Sunday and possibly not until next Tuesday.

According to present plans the national assembly members will leave Stuttgart in time to attend a meeting of the assembly in Berlin on Tuesday. Hope had been entertained that with the overthrow of the short-lived Kapp regime conditions prevailing in normal times, might return, but most of the strikers in Berlin continued today to absent themselves from their jobs. Consequently the population still was experiencing difficulty in obtaining supplies.

Until the disturbed national situation will remain stable. Some of the railroads have made attempts to resume service, but their efforts have not proved altogether successful.
