

MIDLAND LAIN'S '35 CONVENTION

Barrow and His Moll Reported in Midland Early Today

OFFICERS TOLD GIRL WITH GUN PROTECTED MAN

Man Gets Out of V-8, Gun in Pocket, Buys Fags

Officers from Midland westward are keeping strict vigil today for Clyde Barrow, Southwest's Public Enemy No. 1, and his gun moll Bonnie Parker, following a report Barrow stopped at a Midland restaurant this morning and bought cigarettes while his companion held an itchy finger on a gun pointed in the general direction of two men inside the place.

H. E. Smith, piano tuner and reporter for Dallas Sheriff A. C. Francis he positively could identify the man as Barrow, saying he had known Barrow and Bonnie Parker for 15 or 16 years, Barrow having played with Smith's children numerous times when a child.

Angelo Smyrie, restaurant proprietor, said he saw the car, a Ford V-8 sliether to a stop in front of his place, as the woman driver evidently almost passed before seeing the Silver Grill cafe was open, and discharge Barrow, who had a gun in his right hip pocket. He put his hand over the gun as he walked in the door, and the woman stayed in the car, a gun held in her hand, Smyrie said.

"The man asked for cigarettes, naming a popular brand, threw down a quarter and a dime, pocketed his cigarettes and answered an affirmative to the woman's 'Hurry up, we're five minutes late.' He turned on his heel and went back to the car, whose engine had been kept running. The two drove away fast, taking West Wall street."

Smith, who walked in soon after the man, said he noticed Barrow only after entering the cafe. "I turned my head," he said. "Barrow would have recognized me, and that might not have been healthful for me. I was pretty scared. I took a look out the window and saw Bonnie. The Ford was a V-8 with yellow wheels. She had a machine gun in the trunk and kept looking in where we sat and then up and down the street. Where were they going? How should I know? I didn't ask any questions. I've known them for 15 or 16 years. Barrow used to play with my kids when he was a boy. He lived in Oak Cliff, Dallas, and I lived on the other side of the city."

Officers were non-committal, saying they had no information from officers to the east, and knew nothing of the matter except what they had been told by Smith and Smyrie. Officers investigating the west, reporting to officers west of here first.

R. HAMILTON IS IDENTIFIED TODAY
DALLAS, May 9. (AP)—Raymond Hamilton today was identified as one of the beards who entered and robbed the Grand Prairie bank March 19 of $1500.

Identification marked the initial step of the state's efforts to send the desperado to the chair. J. T. Waggoner, president, and J. T. Yeager, cashier, said "That is the man."

GOAT PRICES RISE
SAN ANGELO (AP)—About 20,000 goats are reported to have been bought in recent days in the Rock Springs country. Due to heavy losses during chilling rains this spring prices have risen 25 cents a head to around $1.25 for short nutton goats.

MAY FISH IN WISCONSIN SUPERIOR
SUPERIOR, Wis. (AP)—A. D. Gillett, secretary of the national seaway commission, will invite President Roosevelt to visit a waterway demonstration next summer and to fish in the famed Brule river. Former presidents Herbert Hoover and the late Calvin Coolidge have fished in the Brule.

Two Killed, Four Injured In Cleaning Plant Blast

Clyde and Bonnie Reported Here Today

Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker, shown above in a playful mood, were reported in Midland early today. H. S. Smith and Angelo Smyrie reported a man and a woman, both armed, as stopping at a Midland cafe to purchase cigarettes. This picture was found in a raided hangout of the pair.

JUNE ROBLES IS REPORTED IN CHI.

CHICAGO, May 9. (AP)—Police received a mysterious telephone call saying June Robles, kidnaped from Tucson two weeks ago, was safe here. A man's voice instructed the girl's parents to bring $25,000 to Chicago, and await further instructions.

Several Planes at Sloan Field Today

Several ships, both army and commercial, were landed at Sloan field during the day. Col. Fisher and his pilot, Sgt. Henderson, were in a C-27, Bellanca transport, and were en route to Kelly field, San Antonio, from Roswell, N. M.

A Douglas amphibian was landed by Capt. M. H. McKinnon, en route from the east coast to Rockwell field, Calif.

Col. Ir. Longenecker and Capt. Thad V. Foster, eight corp area officials, were here on an inspection trip. They will continue to Lordsburg, N. M., from here.

A commercial ship, a Fleet piloted by L. L. White, was also landed. White is en route to Abilene from his home at El Paso.

County Judges Will Meet at B. S. Friday
BIG SPRING.—A meeting of 15 drought stricken West Texas counties has been called for 10:30 a. m. Friday by County Judge Ocie Miller, Judge Jones county.

BUY'S OWN POLICE RADIO
LEICESTER, Mass. (AP)—Policeman Owen Rafferty has his own answer to the crime wave. Modern criminals must be met with modern police tactics, says he. And so, at his own expense, he has equipped his automobile with the latest police short-wave receiving set.

TRY TO OBTAIN INSULL'S BOND

CHICAGO, May 9. (AP)—Samuel Insull's friends scurried about today to raise $300,000 bond bail to obtain the ex-utilities magnate's release from jail. They hope to have the required sum late today.

In the bed next to Insull's lay George Rogalski, 13, accused of abducting and causing the death of a two-year-old girl.

Funeral Today for Nitro Blast Victim

JLAINVIEW, May 9.—Bits of the body of W. H. McKinney, some picked up 300 yards from the spot where a nitroethylene explosion decimated the truck he drove Monday, will be buried today at Strawn.

C. L. McKinney, his brother, said the cause of the accident was not known. The brothers had made 400 quarts of the explosive at Odessa in the plant of the Independent Eastern Torpedo company.

To Begin Work on Five New Wells

Work on five new wells in Ward county will begin soon. The California company will begin work immediately on its No. 3 D. B. Durgin well located 2,310 feet from the northeast line and 1,650 feet from the southeast line of section 15, block 34, H. & T. C. Railway survey, Ward county. This well will be drilled with rotary tools to a depth of 2,526 feet. This location is on a 640 acre lease.

Farrell and company will begin work immediately on four wells (Nos. 5, 6, 7 and 8) located on the 80 acre Bennett lease in section 16, block 34, H. & T. C. Railway survey, Ward county.

Late News

LONDON, May 9. (AP)—A French airliner with six persons aboard was found wrecked in the English channel with all passengers dead. Croydon airport announced.

JACKSON, Miss., May 9. (AP)—Bishop Jany Cannon Jr. failed to obtain $5000 from the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, expenses of his recent trial at Washington on charges of violation of the corrupt practices act. It was learned.

GALVESTON, May 9. (AP)—The end of the strike of 8000 longshoremen is believed to be near, as shipowners considered reduction of the new wage scale demands made by the International Longshoremen's association.

FORT WORTH, May 9. (AP)—W. T. Waggoner, 81, owner of Arlington Downs, is in critical condition following a relapse. He has a chronic heart ailment.

FORT WORTH, May 9. (AP)—A six-pound daughter was born here to Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt, son of the president. No name has been chosen.

WASHINGTON, May 9. (AP)—The navy department admitted failure of the giant airship Macon to prove efficient in the naval war games.

WASHINGTON, May 9. (AP)—The United States is still open to approach by European debtor governments with suggestions for debt negotiation. It was announced from the White House.

CHICAGO, May 9. (AP)—It was announced that Insull is to be arraigned Friday.

PARIS, May 9. (AP)—France is considering a partial war debt pay-out, it is believed, if Washington will accept it, reliable circles close to the government said.

Mrs. Harvey Sloan, president of the Midland County Health board, spoke to the Lions club today on the subject of cancer. The exhibit to be shown is to be postponed because of the failure of the machine to work.

A committee of Joe Chambers, M. C. Ulmer and Dr. John B. Thomas was appointed to nominate club officers for the coming year. These will be elected the last Wednesday of the month and installed the first Wednesday in June.

Women of the Catholic church served.

Tumbleweeds Stop The Erosion of Soil
DALHART (AP)—Two great preventative of disastrous wind erosion of soil on the north plains are the lowly tumbleweed (Russian thistle) and the goat-head, sometimes called cow-head burr, a vine that covers the earth when unseeded. Nearly everyone is familiar with the tumbleweed, which, when mature, is a great, round, waxy mass that tumbles before the wind. Tumbleweeds when cut at a stage before the stickers harden, are excellent hay.

Some sort of vegetation on the ground is necessary to stop wind erosion, farm leaders point out, and if crop stubble, wheat or the like cannot be left fall weeds should be left until after the high winds of the following spring.

The sandy B. M. Kendall farm near Dalhart is one example of wind erosion being prevented by goat-head burrs while tumbleweeds held the soil on the Sheppard farm at Conlen, east of Dalhart, which otherwise would have lost 50 per cent soil fertility, it is believed. The sub-soil or "hard-pan" of this section is not soil, has little or no plant food, and will sustain virtually no vegetation some farmers have accumulated during scourges of disease among the primitive people.

Former Midland Rodeo Personnel Man Joins London

Included in the personnel of the party which will leave Fort Worth Saturday night on a special train en route to the Tex Austin world championship rodeo in London, England, are Jay Dee Amburgay and Maner Gaylor of Midland and T. J. Richards of Marynal.

Richards, well known as an excellent rider, was assistant aviation instructor at Sloan field for several weeks and was head instructor during the time when Harold Becherer, former field manager, had a broken arm, caused by being struck by the prop of his plane.

Allen Holder, another Midland man, is expected to leave with another group of contestants from Cheyenne Saturday. The two groups will merge at Detroit for Canadian inspection and proceed to Montreal, the sailing point.

Exhibit for Petrol Exposition Shipped

Midland's International Petroleum exposition exhibit material was shipped Monday by the chamber of commerce. The exhibit will be erected Friday afternoon and will be ready when the big oil show gates open Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. Midland is said to be making the strongest bid of any city in Texas at this time for oil business.

Cattle Moving Is Nearing the End

SAN ANGELO (AP)—The next 10 days is expected to see the end of the movement of cattle from West Texas to northern grass. J. W. Henderson, Jr. loaded out 1,000 head at Barnhart for Kansas.

Prices remain at around 5 cents for steer calves and 4 cents for heifer calves. The country appears to be getting sold out of feeder cattle and there is not the carry-over of heifer calves of 1933. Alvin E. Neal of San Angelo, one of the biggest orders buyers in Texas, shipped 80 carloads of cattle north on orders the last two weeks. He paid an average of 5 cents for steers and 4 cents for heifers.

Byron S. Hunter of the Missouri Livestock commission company at St. Joseph received 42 head of steers from Sugg Brothers at Sterling City at $45 a head.

Bruce Drake of Ozona sold 100 aged cows for Pauly Ferner in Ozona to B. H. Yeager of Putnam at $16 a head.

The Pitchfork Land and Cattle company of Spur sold 1,000 heifers, delivery June 1, 1-2 cents a pound, delivery June 1.

No Jones Children Enrolled in School

QUITTAQUE (AP)—There aren't any Jones children in the Quitaque school district.

Among the more than 400 names compiled during the recent school census not single Jones was listed, according to Clement McDonald, publisher of the Quitaque Post.

Miss Dresden is now making an investigation of counties which are most in need of relief work by reason of drought, storm or other abnormal causes, and it was known certain by relief officials in Midland that this county would share in the work relief program being mapped out by the state director.

87 Men Trapped In German Mine

BUGGINGEN, BADEN, Germany, May 9.—A flaming shaft of the Buggingen Potash mines formed a temporary crypt Tuesday for 87 trapped miners, throwing this village into sorrow and suspense.

With the shaft hermetically sealed because of fire and gas hazards, the blocked entrance must be regarded as a tombstone for two weeks while the blaze burns itself out.

To the sealed entrance children and widows of the victims took floral offerings and prayers.

That the workers met swift death from carbon monoxide fumes after the mine timbers collapsed Monday, short-circuiting the electric system, is regarded as a fact.

Flames and dense smoke trapped the men on the 260-foot level.

Six rescue workers were taken to a hospital in a serious condition after having been overcome.

Andrews Test Drills Today Below 4,014

Fuhrman Petroleum corporation, Boner et al B-No. 1, center of the northeast quarter of section 25, block A-43 public school lands, Andrews county, was drilling Wednesday below 4,014 feet.

The plug was drilled at 3,995 feet and standstill. Oil men are watching this well closely, as the structure, compared with other wells of the area, indicates production within 150 feet or less, it was said by oil men Wednesday.

Has Shipped Half of South Texas Onions

LAREDO (AP)—The Laredo district, which a few years ago gained fame as the largest shipping center of Bermuda onions in Texas, has shipped more than half the Bermuda onions grown in South Texas for the season of 1934. Of 2,187 carloads shipped to April 28, the Laredo district moved 1,077. Total shipments from this area this season are estimated at 1,300 carloads.

It is expected that shipments from the Laredo territory will end by May 10. To April 30, the Raymondville district had shipped 461 carloads, the winter garden district 278, the coastal bend district (Corpus Christi section) 316 and the Wilson-Karnes counties district 66.

The federal-state marketing service, established at Laredo April 6, to furnish quotations and other information on Bermuda onions, was closed May 2, by A. M. McDowell, and moved to Corpus Christi to remain until onion shipments end late in May.

Stokes Club Girls Plan for Contest
Six Stokes club girls planned dresses for the county clothing contest, scheduled for June, at a meeting of the 4-H girls club at the school house, Monday morning. Cotton materials, valued at more than 25 cents a yard are to be used for tailored dresses for general wear. Designs were selected by the girls.

The next meeting will be May 23 in the home of Lois Parker, 23-room demonstrator. The club will help with the improvements. A picnic lunch will be spread at the noon hour.

ROTES OPPOSED BY AMARILLO'S BID FOR MEET

Howard Payne Prexy Is Made Head of Organization

ABILENE, May 9. (AP)—Midland landed the 1935 session of the Forty-first district conference of Rotary International at a breakfast this morning.

The Midland Rotary group, comprised of 30 of the total enrollment of 31 members, made an impressive campaign for the honor of entertaining the 1935 convention, and was voted by a strong margin against a strong bid made by Amarillo.

Dr. Thomas H. Taylor, president of Howard Payne college of Brownwood, was unopposed for district governor.

ROTARY VICE PRESIDENT AND DELEGATES ROBBED
ABILENE, May 9. (AP)—Ed R. Johnson, Roanoke, Va., vice president of Rotary International, and six other delegates to the annual district Rotary conference at Abilene were the victims Tuesday of a prowler who entered their rooms at a hotel and made away with $350 in money.

Heaviest loser was Lewis D. Fox, secretary of the Fort Worth club, who was robbed of $150. Johnson lost $72 and four members of a Midland delegation $122. They were Winston P. Borum, Fred Wemple, Percy J. Mims and T. Paul Barron. R. W. Lindsey of Wichita Falls lost $5.

The prowler evidently worked with a pass key, entering rooms on which the night lock was not fastened, officers said.

PUBLISHERS SPEECH TURNS THE TIDE
ABILENE, May 9. (AP)—An address by T. Paul Barron was credited with turning the turning point in Midland's convincing of Rotary delegates they should hold their next convocation at Midland.

The publisher was frequently interrupted in his speech with cheers and laughter, "but with less demonstration than I expected," as he humorously told the gathering.

Assisted by the ballyhoo antics of several club members, including the Rev. Winston P. Borum, W. Ly Pratt, A. Wadley and Fred Wemple and Barron, the Midland party secured a strange hold on the gathering of the convention, and had Amarillo, the other city bidding for the convention, bested early in the campaign. The Midland baseball club, which won a 4-0 game over the Moose-Sims team of Abilene, helped the Midland cause.

It is estimated the 1935 convocation, which likely will be held in May, will bring about 500 Rotarians and Rotary-Anns to Midland, some of whom will be here as long as four days.

Hearing on Habeas Corpus Advanced

AUSTIN, May 9. (AP)—The Texas supreme court advanced to Friday, May 11, a hearing on habeas corpus proceedings brought by M. M. Travis, Harry Mathews and Gregg, for testing the validity of rules requiring oil refinery reports.

Attorney General Alfred will appear as state's counsel. The case involves the contested refinery law known as House Bill 99.

4-Year-Old Boy 'Staggers' Into Police Station

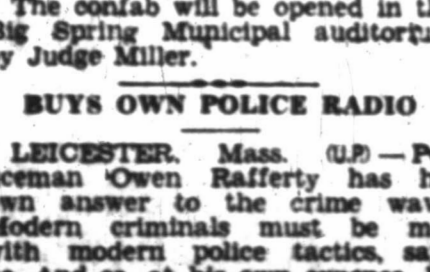

BIG SPRING.—Officers have become reconciled to throwing adult drunks into the basins, but when a four-year-old boy became intoxicated, it takes their breath away the same as the next man.

A four-year-old boy staggered into the police station Monday afternoon, announced his parents were drunk and he was a like condition.

He was taken home by a policeman and told to play around the house. He almost beat the officer back to the station.

WE MUST FIND WAYS TO USE OUR LEISURE

There's a middlewestern business man who owns a small factory, and ever since last summer he has been an ardent hooster for NRA. So a little while ago he decided that he ought to make another cut in working hours at his plant, and he asked his employes whether they preferred to work a five-day week or six days with shorter hours each day.

To his amazement, they voted overwhelmingly in favor of the six-day week. And when he asked them why, a spokesman told him:

"Well, the boys figure they won't have much use for that extra day if they do get it. They'll just hang around the house, doing everything from putting up screens to weeding the lawn and minding the baby. So they figured they'd rather work the six days."

Now here is a little angle to this problem which most of us probably hadn't thought of before. Maybe it means that some men find their wives harder taskmasters than their bosses, and maybe it just means that people hate to get out of an accustomed groove; but either way it seems to indicate that there really is some reason for all this talk about the necessity of training people to make profitable use of their leisure time.

Whatever may happen to the NRA, it is probable that the trend toward a shorter working week is going to continue for a long time to come.

That means that the average man will have more spare time in the future than he ever had in the past. Less of his life will be filled by his job; more of it will be his to do with as he sees fit.

TO BE REMEMBERED

Few public men in American history occupy a niche quite like the one reserved for the late William H. Woodin. A great many others have stepped into important jobs in time of stress and acquitted themselves well; but none of them ever brought quite that combination of jaunty and unworried good humor to the job—and never was that particular quality so badly needed as it was in Woodin's time.

We all had the jitters, when Woodin took over the treasury secretaryship; we had them bad, and the whole stream of finance seemed to have turned into a horrible whirlpool. And there, all of a sudden, was Woodin, perpetually smiling an elfin little smile, and being so happy and high-spirited about things that he suddenly had us persuaded that things weren't so bad after all. He banished our jitters, in other words, simply by showing that he didn't have any jitters himself. We owe him a good deal for that job.

FUTURE FLIGHT

Prof. Auguste Piccard, the dauntless Belgian who flies up into the stratosphere for recreation, believes that man may some day solve the problem of interstellar travel and make round trips to the moon or to some of the planets.

It is his notion that this may become possible, not through the use of rocket engines or by firing huge projectiles from gigantic guns, but through discovery of the secret of disintegrating matter. He says that the disintegration of 120 pounds of lead, for instance, would provide ample energy for a round trip from the earth to the planet Mercury.

Now all this doubtless sounds remarkably like a pipe-dream, and it probably shows that scientists, no less than any other men, have moments in which their imagination goes on the loose.

But it makes a nice picture, anyway. Dizzy or otherwise, it's something to look forward to.

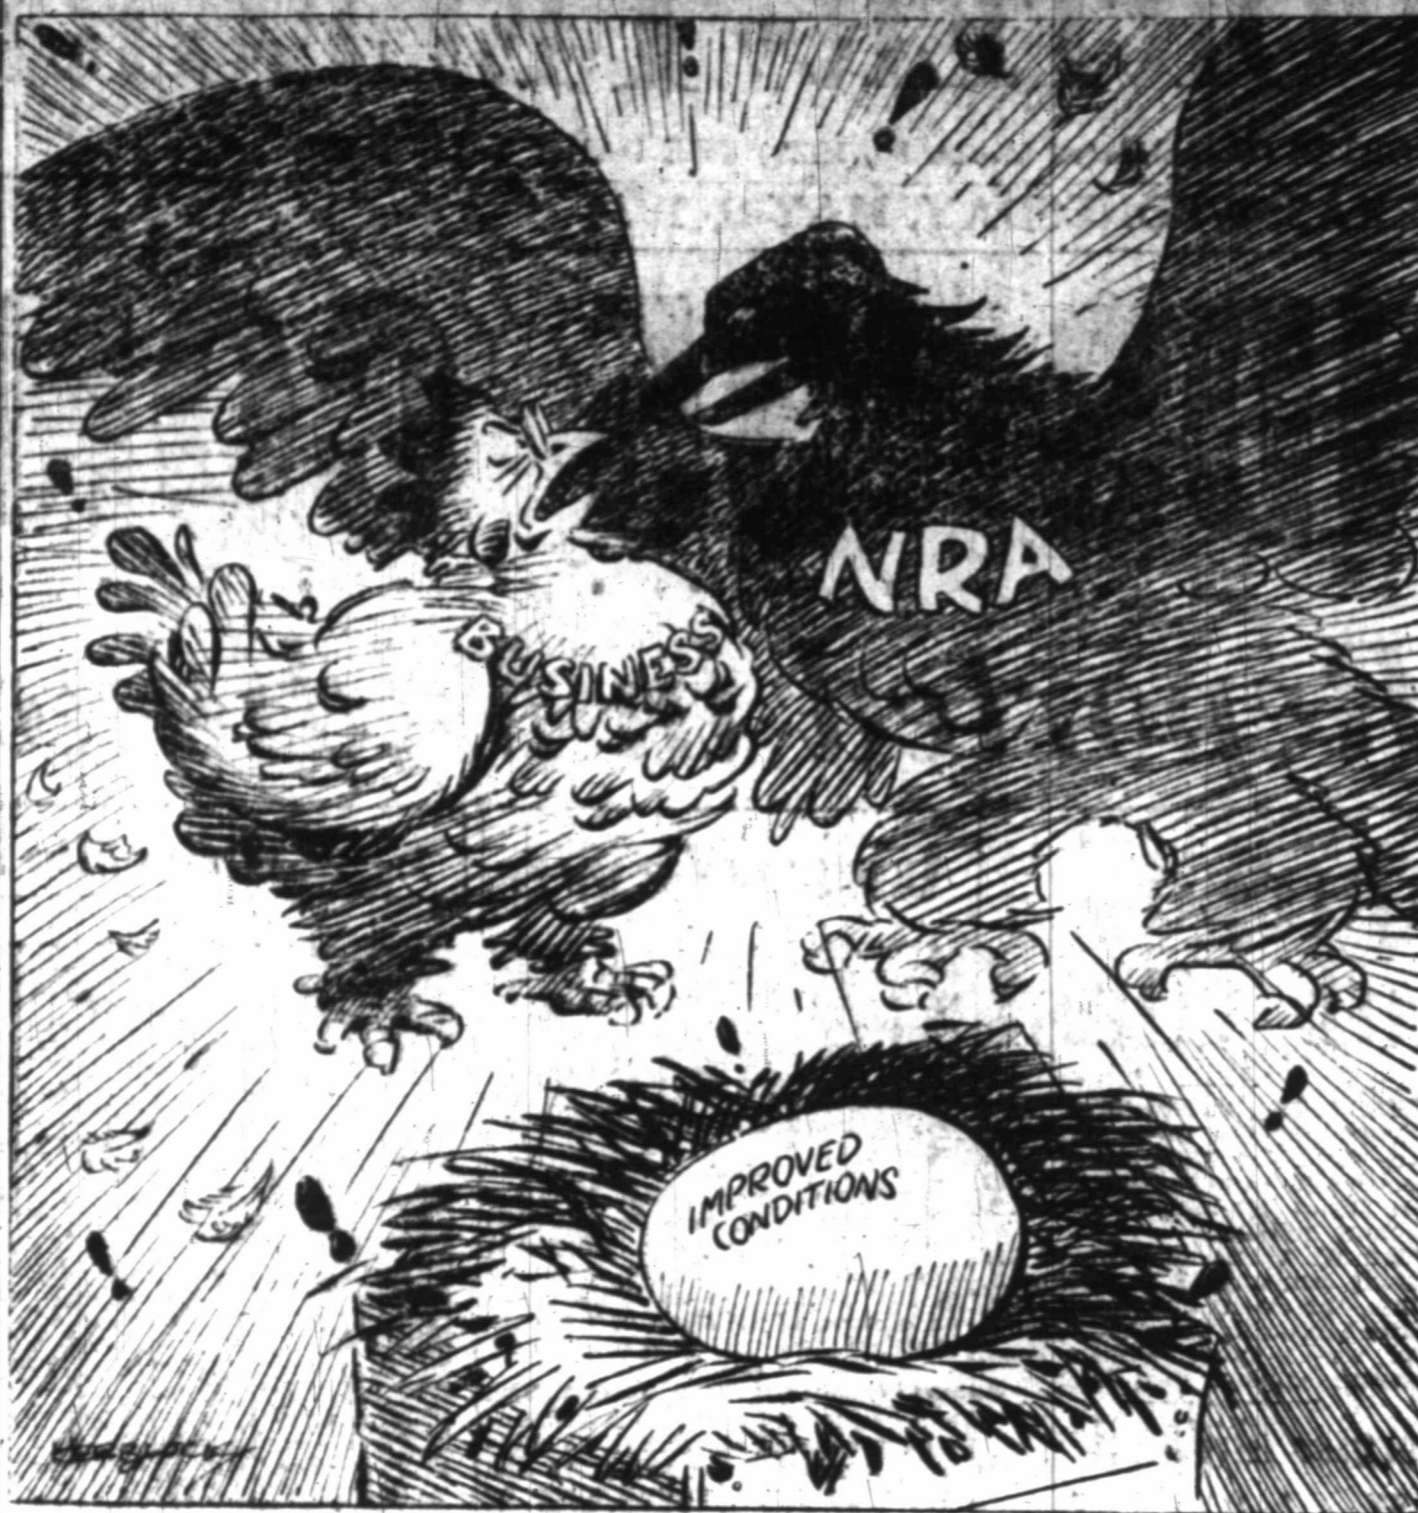

Northwestern University professor calls congressional investigators "scopotropists." That's the advantage professors have over those who know only how to swear.

Side Glances by Clark

"But, Henry, there isn't supposed to be any town here according to our road map."

There Seems to Be a Dispute About Something

The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.)

The four clowns of the Rotary club, Fred Wemple, T. Paul Barron, Preacher Borum and Percy Mims, were cleaned out while at the Rotary convention. They made a complaint to the manager of an Abilene hotel, saying someone entered their room at night. When they get a little older they will realize that excuse expared a natural death about 20 years after the demise of Methuselah. The case had all the earmarks of standardized poker until it was found that Fred had lost some of his clothes, when gossip went a step further and accused the losses of the four to the strip variety of the game.

H. E. Smith, who expects to be confined to the jitterspatic ward of a hospital for the next few days, said he wasn't certain whether Bonnie held a machine gun trained on the Silver Grill this morning or whether it was a cigar. In telling Jimmie Harrison about the case he said he had known the gun moll for quite a spell and that he knew for a positive certainty she carries a clara Tommie gun and smoke a 45 calibre cigar equipped with a shock equalizer. He got Jim mixed up on the story—so much so that the newspaperman came in walking on his hands and hung up his pants instead of his coat before starting work on the yarn.

In landing the Rotary convention for 1935, Midland put over a unique departure. Instead of the serried-up, applying of giggle song, to acrobatic adam's apples, the delegates put their wives to bed and started a poker game that soon had everyone in debt to them. A trade-out was arranged, with Midland getting the convention, and debtors keeping their walking canes and left hats and getting back their 100's.

NOTE: A "blancket" assessment look care of those above mentioned gentlemen who lost.

To get away from serious matters and to the ridiculous;

A famous scientist was present at a dinner at which one of the guests began to deride philosophy. The speaker declared rudely that to him the word "philosopher" was but another way of spelling "fool." "What is your opinion, professor?" he asked smiling. "Is there much distance between them?"

The gentleman addressed surveyed the man across the table keenly for a moment, then responded: "Sometimes only the width of a table."

Chauffeur: "This, madam, is the hand brake—it's put on very quickly, in case of emergency."
Madam: "I see—something like a kimona."

Golfer (far off in the rough): "Say caddy, why do you keep looking at your watch?"
Caddy: "It isn't a watch, sir; it's a compass."

A Scotchman holding an important job in the city was always being twitted by an English friend, about his nationality. By a curious chance the two met on holiday.

"Hallo," chafed the Englishman, "how on earth is your office managing to get along without you?"
"Fairly well," answered the Scot, cautiously. "You see, I left two Englishmen and four Welshmen in my place."

Wild Dogs of the West Have Vanished

BOSTON UP—The "rip-snort" days of a wild and woolly west when a United States marshal had a gun-slinging reputation equalled only by the Texas Rangers, have passed.

H. E. L. Toombs, one of the youngest men to hold a marshal's commission, retired after three years' service without ever carrying a gun or arresting a man.

"It's a business man's job now," Toombs said. He has poured over his ledger sheets through long nights, tracing down erring figures instead of dogged pursuit over western plains for an offending outlaw as his predecessors did.

Toombs, probably the average marshal for any district in any state, appears much as any business man.

The many government agencies, seven in all, track down and arrest the criminals. Only duties of the marshal, once feared as the "law of the ranges," is to serve legal papers and deliver the convicted criminals to prison. These are the only occasions on which the deputy marshals wear guns, Toombs said.

Principally, the marshal's office is a disbursment headquarters for federal employees of the district it serves. During the three years he was in office Toombs paid out for distributed approximately $900,000 in government pay, keep for prisoners, and paying of bailiffs and witnesses.

SHINGLES NAIL HELD BONE

VACAVILLE, Calif. (U.P.)—A shingle nail held Frank Weber's ankle bone together for 24 years after it was broken in 1910, it was disclosed recently when Dr. Middleton P. Stansbury performed an operation to remove the nail. Weber was forced to seek medical attention when the nail caused an ulcer to begin, he said.

The Census Bureau reports that we now number 125,693,000 inhabitants in the United States, or 2,917,964 more than shown in the 1930 count.

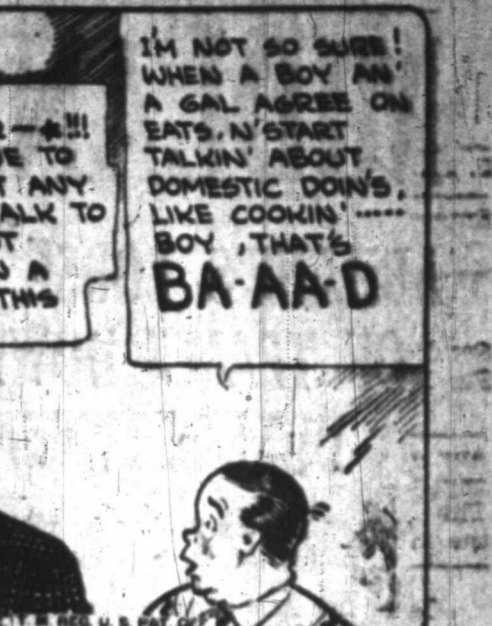

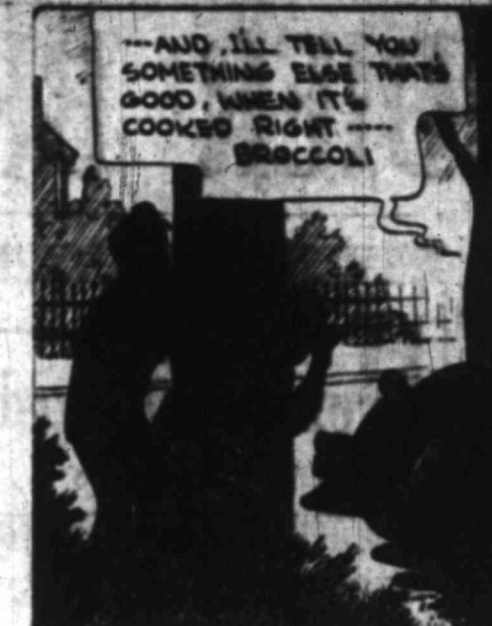

There are 700 to 800 graves in the dog and cat cemetery at Columbus, O.; it was founded 10 years ago.

In the Nevada Desert, near Las Vegas, alfalfa was found to grow 42 inches in 26 days.

The largest gold coin in the world is the Japanese oban, which is five inches in diameter and weighs four ounces.

Dunce caps were named after a learned Scotch clergyman, Duns Scotus, who lived in the 13th century.

MIDLAND'S STEADIER BRAND OF BALL SHUTS OUT ABILENE 4-0

ABILENE'S LOOSE FIELDING CAUSE OF TEAM'S DOWNFALL IN PITCHING DUEL BETWEEN ROSE AND JENNINGS

ABILENE, May 9.—Loose fielding in a couple of innings yesterday afternoon cost the Mose Simms Oilers the first game of the season at Gardner park against the Midland Colts of the Permian Basin League, 4 to 0.

It was a nip and tuck pitcher's duel between Leonard Rose, Mid-

Home Brewed

BY R. C. HANKINS

Sunday's game between McCamey and Crane was a pitchers' battle for eight and a half innings—all except for the first frame of the first inning, when Crane scored 11 runs!

Fletcher Currie, Midland man who called the game, said the affair was one of the most peculiar he ever saw. Charley Bryant of McCamey, who formerly hurled for Ranger, couldn't get Crane out that first inning until the McCamey club's chances were ruined. He was behind all the time, and some Crane batter would lay on the willow and give the sphere a ride to the suburbs. After that both pitchers gave an exhibition of hurling that would have done them credit in the big league. Park Allen, former Odessa twirler, was on the box for Crane. The game ended 13 to 2, Crane. Other runs coming in the ninth inning.

coach—but might accuse him of rolling. Dalton McWilliams is the best batter on the senior club, but likely will not get the nod. J. Nobles is back there with a toe constantly aching. The juniors are lining up in a Notre Dame T and shift into a box. They are poor in timing the shift still, even while practicing twice a day. The seniors, on the other hand, are showing class in carrying out their assignments. We will win if, in fact, brass knucks and brick bats can make any impression on junior skulls, Barry said. He should be allowed a reasonable doubt of the praiseworthy junior superstructure, as there is a professor in his leisure moments, bouncing off theorems on the aforementioned third-year pates.

There were several hectic moments in that Sunday baseball game. Midland was down 11 to 0 at Wink. The Colts were trailing when they went to bat in the sixth but, before they could swing their bats, Crane had spiked home plate five times as batters made a dash for it. Contributing were three consecutive walks, a hit batsman and four hits. The six runs were made before a man had been put out!

Midland started the afternoon ambitiously, scoring a brace of markers in the first. Wynne hit safely and James White, likely to do something like that at any moment, slapped over a home run that fell somewhere short of the nearest meridian. Heaton set down the first three Winkers cleanly, but in the fourth inning, Midland got her eight runs on 10 hits, four errors and three walks. White hit in three trips, scoring three runs. Eb Estes managed to hit twice, score two runs and whiff four times to the plate. Heaton worked until the fifth, when he was relieved by Girdley, who, in turn, was supplanted on the mound by Rose in the seventh. Lefty Mayfield went the entire route for Wink. Incidentally, both the Winkler hurlers are wroughanders and, as Midland has only two who rest their bats on their left shoulders, Manager Joe Pryor had felt a bit confident of annexing the game.

Contrary to common legend, Nero could not have played the fiddle while Rome burned, because that instrument had not yet been invented.

WHITE BREAKS ANKLE

Midland won the game at a dear price, James G. White, 22-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. White of 107 S. Pecos, suffering a fracture of the left ankle in sliding into third base. He is under treatment at the West Texas Baptist hospital of Abilene, and Mrs. White is with him.

land twirler, and Jennings of Abilene. Rose allowed three scattered singles over the nine inning route and Jennings was nicked for only two hits in eight frames.

Downfall of the Simms club came in the sixth inning when Midland chased three unearned runs across the plate to set up the game. Leonard Rose opened the inning by sending a-leaser to Jennings who overthrew first base. An error by Hetherly put Mills on base and brought Rose in. Wynne hit to Jennings who tried to catch Mills in a hot box between second and third. In the progress of the play, Hetherly threw one in the dirt at third to

What Has Happened

John Hunter Yates resigns as president of his huge corporation to enjoy the remaining years of his life. He is 40. When his wife will not join him in his planned adventures, he takes Blossom Bailey, beautiful young actress, to Europe with him. While there, they meet Anthony Zukowski, youthful music composer and former piano teacher of the music-loving Yates. Zukowski falls in love with Blossom. Blossom reciprocates the love in her heart, but will not return because of the kindness of Yates. She will do nothing to hurt him. Because of Zukowski's presence, she asks Yates to take her to New York after four years. Yates has sponsored Zukowski's symphony and made him a success.

CHAPTER V

New York. Blossom Bailey to appear in a new show as the star. John Hunter Yates, the unpublished sponsor, Anthony Zukowski to appear in a series of concerts.

Yates sat at one end of the long table. At the other end his wife, Elinor, picked at her grapefruit. She looked up at Yates.

"You've been so busy since you and I have breakfasted together? Cream?"

"No, thanks." Yates paused, then. "You've been perfectly marvelous all through this. Elinor, is there anything I can do for you?"

"If I have, it's only to make up for being perfectly stupid for twenty years."

"We've always been honest with each other, from the beginning to the point. I think it would be better for everybody concerned if you got a divorce."

Elinor spoke quietly. "For everybody but you and me. Do you want to marry her?"

"I've asked her. Is there any reason why I shouldn't?"

"About thirty. John. But even if you could bridge the gap of years, it still wouldn't be a very good idea. You're asking her to marry you because you think that'll hold her. It didn't hold us, did it? And however much I've failed as a wife, John, at least I've never loved anyone else. A failure—yes. But a faithful failure."

"You're not making up unpleasantness, Elinor. If you knew her—"

"I do know her. I made it my business. And I like her. She is loyal and tremendously grateful. So you'll get loyalty and gratitude, even if you don't marry her. But you won't get love, John. Because there's somebody else."

"Oh, yes you do. That's why you want to marry her. Build a wall. The sad part of it is you can't eliminate your rival. He'll grow more menacing with the years."

"I've failed as a wife, John, at least I've never loved anyone else. A failure—yes. But a faithful failure."

"Youth. His other name doesn't matter." She stood up. His voice was harsh. "I'm not going to let you poison my mind against her with any stray piece of gossip you have. It's a pity we can't meet the issue in the open, frankness, and I'm terribly sorry. I never thought we'd face each other as enemies—but since you won't give me a divorce I shall be forced to get one."

"Well, she stood also. "I'll contest it with all my strength. But whether I win or lose, I'm your wife. No court decision can ever change it. I'll always be your wife. And this you know. She leaned forward, seeking to her voice, faltered—"when you have no other place to turn to—"

She turned away suddenly to hide the tears that blinded her eyes. "John, walk slowly to her. He placed his hand on her shoulder in a mute, clumsy gesture of comfort. She took his hand for a fleeting instant, then with a muffled "Good-bye," she was gone. Yates started after her, his face a mask of stark misery. He picked up his cane and hat from a nearby chair and walked slowly from the house—the house that had been his.

Broadway electric lights told a tragic story. On a theatre marquee glinted this tale: OPENS TOMORROW BLOSSOM BAILEY IN A NEW PLAY "BOY AND GIRL." The New York Symphony Hall's marquee read: ZUKOWSKI—FAREWELL APPEARANCE.

Yates sat in the spacious living room of the apartment he had provided for Blossom. He started as the doorbell rang. The butler admitted a thick-set, squat individual. "Mr. Conroy," announced the butler.

Yates rose as the man entered. He stared expectantly, almost fearfully, at the newcomer, who seemed loathe to talk.

"Well," said Conroy, "I guess you won't need me after tonight, Mr. Yates."

"Why not?"

"It's all over but the flashlights." "Please be more specific," urged Yates.

"You hired me to get the goods, if any—and there's plenty." Yates spoke slowly. "What did you find?"

"Only what everybody on Broadway knows." He shook his head sympathetically. "If ever a man was two-timed, you're the guy. I'll say this for the girl—she kept putting that piano player off as long as she could. But the last week or so she's been going up to see him regularly at his flat—radio apartment in Greenwich Village. Here's the address. It's on the top floor. Zukowski called her up at her dress rehearsal tonight and I happened to be in the next dressing room to hers when she got the call. It looks like they're planning to beat it on the next boat."

"How could that be," said Yates heavily, "when her show opens tomorrow?"

"What's a little thing like a place after her rehearsal tonight?"

Yates was dazed. "You're sure of all your facts?"

"Or money refunded. Well... after all, what do you expect in a case like this? Two and two makes four. Anything else I can do, Mr. Yates?"

"No. Not a thing." His voice rose. "And I don't believe a thing of it! It couldn't happen. Not with her! It couldn't."

"Maybe it couldn't, but it did," said Conroy quietly.

Yates shouted, "You're a liar! And probably a blackmailer! I don't believe a word of your report."

"Then why did you hire me?"

"I don't know. I can't understand how I came to do such a low, rotten thing. I must have been drunk or out of my mind. You can send your bill to the office. Go on—get out!"

Conroy shrugged. "Okay. Here's the key to his flat. You paid for it—you might want it for a souvenir."

He threw the key on a chair and walked out quickly. Yates looked dumbly at the address clutched tightly in his hand. His gaze went slowly to the key on the chair.

"Yates' car rolled up in front of Zukowski's dwelling. "You needn't wait," he informed the chauffeur. "I'll drive home myself."

"Yes, sir."

Yates walked quickly into the building. Some time later another car drew up in front of the house. Blossom and Zukowski stepped out. In a few moments they were in Tony's studio apartment.

Fifteen minutes later they were seated at a small table in the large living room. A midnight snack [The clock read 12:30.

"Travel light and you travel light-hearted," said Zukowski. "As little baggage as possible, and no time-tables. When you're hungry, write a song."

He stared at Blossom—she hadn't heard a word.

"Blossom!"

Blossom snapped out of her reverie with a jerk.

"You haven't heard a word I said."

Blossom played with a fork. "I've been thinking. I've made up my mind about something, Tony..."

Zukowski looked at her inquiringly. "I can't leave on the boat with you next week."

"Now, sweetheart—I know how you feel about your play—"

Blossom shook her head. "It isn't the play. She leaned forward. A pleading tone crept into her voice. "Listen, darling! You're the most convincing talker in the world. Or maybe you're convincing to me be-

"Bottoms Up" Is Hailed as Rare Entertainment

"Bottoms Up" is rare entertainment. Buddy DeSylva has shown an admirable restraint in his use of songs in this romance, which is showing Thursday and Friday at the Yucca theatre. Despite the fact that he is himself a songsmith, he has concentrated on the story and brought in songs only where they worked in logically. It is precisely this concentration on the story that makes "Bottoms Up" such delightful screen fare.

And this is not to minimize the quality of the songs. There are four destined to become hits: "Waiting at the Gate for Katy," "Turn on the Moon," "Little Did I Dream" and "I'm Throwin' My Love Away."

John Boles is at his melodious best as the singing movie hero. Teamed with him is "Paterson," a charming English girl who can both sing and act—and does. Comedy roles are capably handled by Spencer Tracy, Herbert Mundin, Sid Silvers and Harry Green. Thelma Todd has a good opportunity as the villainess.

The story pokes pleasant fun at the bluff of Hollywood. Tracy, Silvers and Mundin help Paterson put on a swell front so she can crash the golden gates of the movie capital. The fact that she succeeds when she gets inside and then falls in love with her movie hero helps the plot along to an entertaining climax.

DeSylva and is director, David Butler, have kept a light touch all the way. The result, as we said at the beginning, is rare entertainment.

An amendment to the Air Commerce Regulations redefines and flying in the following manner: "A person is engaged in solo flying when he is in command of aircraft in flight."
