

MIDLAND JURY IS BEING PICKED

CATTLE RELIEF APPROPRIATION MADE THURSDAY

$1,500,000 Set Aside And Cotton Also To Benefit

WASHINGTON, May 18. (AP)—Funds to pay two new administration favored measures into effect—the Bankhead compulsory cotton control and Jones cattle relief acts—were voted Thursday by the house. As sent to the senate, the appropriation measure set aside $1,500,000 to finance the act making cattle a basic agricultural commodity under the farm adjustment act and an indefinite amount for administration of the cotton control law.

Efforts of republicans, led by Representative Bacon of New York, to eliminate the processing taxes from cattle and cotton under the farm adjustment act were defeated after Representative Jones (D-Tex.) told the house:

"The processing fee is not involved in this bill, which will make a processing tax on cattle unnecessary. If a processing tax is levied on cattle it will be small."

In testifying before the appropriations committee, Chester C. Davis, farm adjustment administrator, said $6,873,900 would be needed to administer the Bankhead cotton act for the coming season. Under the bill, Davis explained, the funds would come either from the present processing tax on cotton, the 50 per cent tax on staple produced in excess of 10,000,000 bales or from the $100,000,000 originally appropriated for the agriculture administration of which only about $10,000,000 has been used.

Chairman Buchanan (D-Tex.) of the appropriations committee explained to the house that while $250,000,000 was authorized by the Jones cattle bill, the farm administration asked for $100,000,000, the amount estimated necessary until next January when congress meets again.

"As I understand it," he said, "$100,000,000 is estimated for the dairy industry and the livestock industry and $50,000,000 to purchase cattle not suitable for breeding purposes."

The cattle bought for disposal will be used for relief purposes, he said. During debate, Representative Snell of New York, the republican leader, brought out that when the cattle measure was up for passage, Representative Kleberg (D-Tex.) said no processing tax was planned on cattle and dairy products until the price was increased to the level of the wool. "It looks like a reversal of the entire program," Snell said, when Jones, chairman of the agriculture committee, said there might be a small tax imposed under the farm act.

ANALYTICS CROP UP IN HOUSE DEBATE

WASHINGTON, May 18. (AP)—Chairman Jones of the house agriculture committee and Representative Truax (D-Ohio) today exactly agree about the qualifications of officials of the department of agriculture. "From my observation I would say of the men chosen in the department of agriculture, that the only kind of cattle they know about is 'bull,'" Truax observed in debate on the cattle bill.

"Mr. Speaker, I think it is peculiarly appropriate that the gentleman from Ohio should bring up the subject he has just mentioned," Jones retorted. "The gentleman from Ohio has been bawling around here for six months like a sick calf."

"That," replied Truax, running his fingers through his wavy hair, "is the way the farmers are. They are all sick under your program."

Jones retorted: "I visited a farm one time and was looking at the wavy hair, a big fine brindle cow with long wavy hair. I did not know much about dairy cows. I said, 'That looks like a fine cow.' The dairyman who was with me turned around and shouted, 'That animal there eats more and bawls louder and gives less milk than any cow I ever had.'"

"Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of personal privilege," Jones said. "I was just telling a story. I am sorry he has put that interpretation on it."

"I do not object to the story of the gentleman from Texas about the old brindle cow," said Truax. "I have found that the brindle cow bawls louder than any other animal on the place."

Jones retorted: "The gentleman from Ohio certainly qualifies."

Playground Ball Interest Waning?

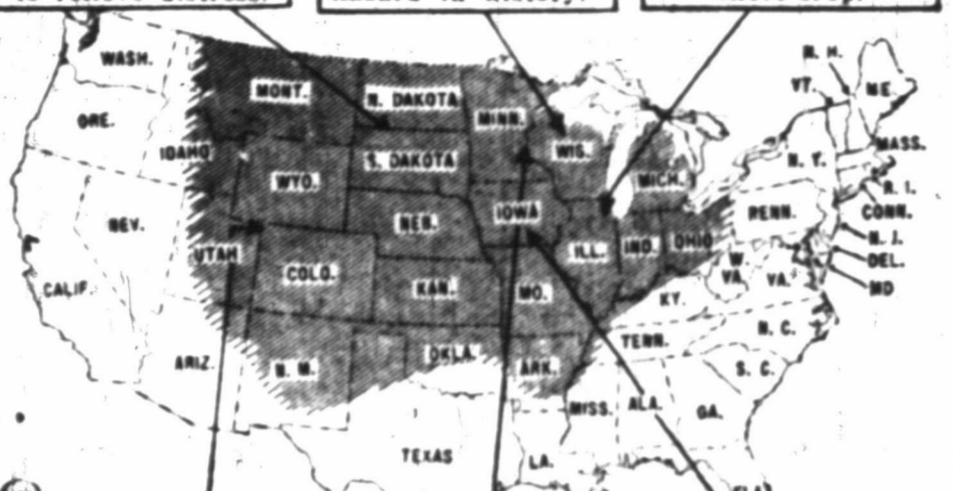

Playground ball evoked little more than casual interest at Thursday night's meeting, but the season will begin June 1 with six clubs. Dr. David M. Ellis, temporary chairman, believes:

Less than a dozen attended the meeting, held in the Harry Tolbert tailor shop. Big Spring is the latest town to "go native" on the subject of softball, and Iraan has a model night diamond, floodlights and mesh backstop. Big Spring plans installation of lights soon. Seven clubs are in the loop, and another loop to include five clubs is being discussed.

Drought Fund Appropriated For Stricken Middle West

Where 'Worst Drouth' Perils Crops

Grasshopper menace appears as appeals go to Washington to relieve distress. Governor acts to forestall "most dangerous forest fire hazard in history." Wheat pit in turmoil as prices rise legal limit, facing "short crop."

Acute water shortage at Salt Lake City and in many communities east to Ohio. Heavy dust storms sweep whole country, denuding and killing wheat. Farmers break seals of "loan corn" cribs to feed stock as mercury hits 90 degrees.

The entire midwest waits anxiously for relief from "the worst drought in a generation." Whole counties of "America's bread basket" lie parching under unseasonable heat, and nearly a million without appreciable rainfall is endangering the wheat crop. While a huge carry-over eliminates fear of actual shortage, Washington officials watch anxiously the effects on the midwest farming region.

A thousand feet of oil rising in Humble Oil and Refining company's No. 1 Kuykendall in drilling to 4263 feet and another gas blowout in the same operator's No. 1 Mestlin, in the northern part of the county, re-activated Andrews county Thursday as the focal point of West Texas Permian basin wildcat development.

The test was deepened to 4263 feet when last reports were received and the hole is standing 1,000 feet in oil. In the northern part of Andrews county, Humble No. 1 Mestlin, in section 2, block A-32, public school land, is pumping cement between two strings of casing in an effort to shut off gas, which was consistently encountered at 2573 feet. The test drilled to 4263 feet, 230 feet from the north and east lines of the southwest quarter of the northeast quarter of section 12, block B-23, public school land, continued drilling Thursday afternoon, a softer streak of lime at 3,925 feet. BIG CROWD SEES PLAY OF SENIORS

Once more was demonstrated the versatility of the senior class when, Thursday night, representatives in the east of "Square Crooks," a three-act comedy-drama, played to a capacity house in the senior high auditorium.

The audience frequently interrupted lines of characters to applaud, or to give over to gusty laughter. The sympathy of the audience was well demonstrated when it got a keen moment of appreciation from Dub Stanley's momentary change of character from Clancy, an assistant detective, to Thurston the magic Stella Mayo Lanham standing in the middle of the stage and turning on the lights without touching a wall switch. It recovered, too, in time to applaud following the first shock of seeing John Nobles, gunman, quit being a corpse long enough to start a swing at Jack Prothro, known for the night as Welch, a detective. The work of the cast was uniformly good, according to the critics of the stage. Dalton McWilliams and Jack Prothro were especially appreciated among the boys, and their parts were well written. Among the girls, Doris Black, Kathleen Burgess, Dorothy Cummings, Juanita Cox, Juanita Cummings and Alma Hankins were uniformly good. Bill Pratt and Graham Brown were in character each moment. The comedy was directed by Mr. L. K. Barry and Miss Elizabeth Lorenz. Miss Stella Mayo Lanham assisted in making up characters. The cast follows: Eddie Ellison, Dalton McWilliams; Ray Ellison, his wife, Doris Black; Mrs. Carson, a society leader, Juanita Cox; Tim, a police sergeant, Graham Brown; Welch, a detective, Jack Prothro; Clancy, his assistant, A. W. Stanley; Sorrow, the maid, Dorothy Cummings.

OVERRULING OF THREE MOTIONS DAY'S FEATURE

Gun Moll of Terrorist Sits by Him During Trial

DENTON, May 18. (U.P.)—Selection of jurors for the Raymond Hamilton trial began before noon today, after Judge Ben Boyd overruled three motions to delay the case.

Basket had asked a continuance on the alleged failure to serve the indictment, also quashing of the indictment and the dismissal of a special venire on the grounds that the judge had no authority to convene a special court term.

Trial earlier was delayed pending arrival of Dallas deputies, J. F. Peoples and Bill Decker, to testify. The officers served the outlaw with the indictment, charging him with robbery with firearms of the First National bank of Lewisville on April 23.

Hamilton's attorney, Albert Bassett, asked continuance, claiming the indictment was never served. Mary O'Dare, sweetheart of Hamilton who forsook her husband to accompany the desperado along his recent crime-blasting trail, sat beside him when he was led under heavy guard into court. She visited Hamilton in his cell for 20 minutes Thursday.

SHE ATE ALL-BRAN
TWELVE YEARS WITH FINE RESULTS

Delicious Cereal Relieves Constipation

Read this very enthusiastic letter: "Something like eleven or twelve years ago, I began eating Kellogg's All-Bran. When I started, it was called simply Kellogg's Bran, and I believe it was one of the first products of the kind on the market."

"My friends often laugh at my fondness for ALL-BRAN. It gives such a clean taste in the mouth, and I do not feel satisfied until I have had my ALL-BRAN."

"If the Kellogg Company should ever stop manufacturing ALL-BRAN, how is one who would be greatly disappointed."—Miss Amy Person, University Park, Iowa.

Science says that ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid regularity. Also iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. How much safer than taking patent medicines—often harmful. Just eat two tablespoons daily for most types of constipation. For serious cases, try it three times daily. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Sold in the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

The Town Quack

(Observes the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.)

Chicago newspapers with photographs of the "curible" said storm that visited Chicago last week have reached West Texas.
It was merely a mild dust storm; not a sand storm as we know them down in Texas. When the storm was at its height up in Chicago, billings could be seen at least a quarter of a mile away. According to the newspapers, in contradiction to some of the reports that came over the wire, the tops of the high buildings were never obliterated.
One flimsy Chicago housewife, who had a lot of other things on her mind anyway, became so excited over the film of dust that seined on the inside of her house that she tried to take her own life.
Move to the big cities and degenerate. They can't take it, they can't take it.

The philosophy of a Chinaman. "Honesty is still held in respect. Even those who are not honest make a loud pretense of being so."
The horse thief has reappeared in the western country.
Owing to the fact that the horse now has become valuable, from all parts of the western country there are reports of more and more horse thieving.
But the modern horse thief is not like the old-timer and employs a wholly different technique. Driving about the country in a motor car, the thief spots his quarry and returns at night in a speedy truck, into which the stolen animals are loaded. By daylight he is many miles away and his presence on the highway with a truck load of horses excites the attention of the law. The accepted method of transportation. Horse stealing is a new industry that is growing to an alarming extent.

Frederic March, Evelyn Venable To Play at Ritz

The much-heralded Paramount production, "Death Takes a Holiday," comes to the Ritz theatre for a three-day showing, commencing Sunday.
Splendidly cast with Frederic March and Evelyn Venable in leading roles, superbly mounted by Director Mitchell Leisen, and written for screen presentation by such capable scenarists as Maxwell Anderson, Pulitzer prize winner, and Gladys Lehman, "Death Takes a Holiday" merits all of the praise thus far conferred upon it.
The picture is based upon the famous drama of eternal romance by Alberto Casella, adapted to English by Walter Ferris. The screen play retains all of the dignity and beauty of the stage production, and one can detect the matchless writing of Maxwell Anderson in several extraordinarily beautiful love scenes.

It was on a battlefield that Alberto Casella first wondered just what would happen if Death should take someone from his eternal task and come to the world for a mortal holiday. The translation of that provocative idea into the photoplay was an ambitious task, but one which Paramount has proudly accomplished.
The picture tells how this mysterious shadow changes his shape and form, becomes, for a three-day holiday, a gay, dashing, romantic lover. He comes to a house-party, concealing his identity from every one but the host, who introduces him as a friend.
As a charming cavalier, Prince Sirk, the guest searches for life's thrills, seeks to learn what man loves in life that he must fear its end.
But the games, the pastimes of the crowd, bore him. Told that Love is the one big thrill in life, Sirk makes love. But the love that is proffered him is all to selfish, until in the arms of beautiful young girl, he finds love to be the one thing in life that man lives for.
And, with his holiday almost completed, he finds now that he is like any mortal man who is in love, afraid to leave life, dreading the

Campaign Expense Reduction Probable

AUSTIN, (AP)—Travis county candidates for political office see hopes of reducing their campaign expenses in a ruling by Bryan Blalock county attorney, that it is against the law for aspirants to contribute money to various purposes.

The practice of soliciting politicians and seekers of public office appears to be a quaint custom in which the candidates usually take it in the pocketbook. During campaign years solicitors are especially active although the season of office holders is open at all times.
Solicitation of funds from candidates for barbecues and community entertainments has shown a marked increase in recent years. Blalock said it was against the law for candidates to contribute to such enterprises and warned against the practice.

One Travis county office seeker asserted solicitation of funds had become a racket.
"Everytime a man turns around he is approached by some one wanting a donation," he said. "To refuse means to incur the ill will of the solicitor and his friends. To comply means to violate the law."
Blalock said donations were "clearly" against the law and all candidates for public office should refuse such requests.

Several candidates, Blalock said, had complained about the "racket."
It was recalled that during an investigation by a special committee of the Texas house of representatives last winter state office holders asserted one of the principal items of expense in a campaign was complying with requests for subscriptions and solicitations.
"I didn't know there were so many magazines and trade journals in Texas until I started running for office," one stated. "Really, gentlemen, you have no idea of the number. It is amazing."

Kidnaping

G. Bremer, 37 year old bank president, son of a prominent brewer, who is a friend of the president himself.

A gang of 10 or 12 men descended on Bremer just after he had taken his 8-year-old daughter to school one morning, beat him about the head, and carried him off.

This time the abductors carried off the negotiations successfully, and collected $200,000 in unmarked bills. They then released Bremer at Rochester, Minn.

Two months went by without any very tangible results. But now the case is beginning to open up. Chicago police have arrested a former state representative, and charged him with conspiracy in the Bremer kidnaping. They believe his arrest is the beginning of the breaking up of a "hot money" ring in Chicago which has specialized in disposal of ransom money and stolen bonds.

Fingerprints Are Found

Six men and two women, with a miscellaneous crime record behind every one of them, were rounded up in a bloodless raid on a farm near Mannford, Okla. Police gathered at night at Mannford in force, armed with every modern protective and offensive device, and descended on the farmhouse just the the sun rose.

The house surrounded, officers kicked in the door and arrested all the sleepy inmates before they could offer resistance. But they were small fry, wanted all over the United States. It is true, for various crimes, but still small fry.

The best things found on this raid were fingerprints. The sellate prints of Arthur (Doc) Barker and Alvin Karpis were found on gasoline cans and flashlights about the farmhouse. Already under judgment in the Bremer case, these two known desperadoes are suspected of having played the major part in it, and to have been closely enough allied with John Dillinger that he himself may have had something to do with this kidnaping.

So the hunt for Barker and Karpis was speeded up.

Prison Sentence a Sorry Climax for Colonel Luke Lea

RALEIGH, N. C.—With a click of grim finally the steel gates of the penitentiary here have closed one of the most dramatic careers in the history of the South.

Colonel Luke Lea—newspaper publisher, former United States senator, maker of Tennessee governors, World war hero, "the man who almost kidnaped the Kaiser," banker, industrialist, politician, and savior of two Tennessee's oldest and wealthiest families—is only now beginning to serve the prison sentence imposed nearly three years ago. In that time he continued to fight, and began serving his prison term. The Lea's, however, remained in Tennessee, forfeited their bonds, and put up a battle against extradition which involved numerous writs and hearings, and over two appeals to the United States supreme court.

Their pleas hinged mostly on the technicality that they were not in the state of North Carolina at the time of the alleged offense, and the argument was made interesting enough to keep them out of custody for 56 months.

Although the Asheville bank was the base of Lea's criminal activities, nearly all the South suffered in some degree. Not since the Civil war had the South faced greater financial disaster than it did in the autumn of 1930 after the collapse of the vast investment company built up by Lea and Rogers Caldwell. It was for thousands, suicide for some, followed the failure of Caldwell & Co., which held $500,000,000 of investments in its various enterprises. The tally of bank failures included 18 in Tennessee, 67 in Arkansas, 20 in Kentucky. Failure of the Central Bank & Trust Co., carried several affiliated organizations with it.

A craving for excitement and power was all that carried Luke Lea through his colorful adventures to a life of ease and wealth. Born to play the game otherwise. After accumulating four college degrees he returned to

Takes Plenty of Punishment When Slips in to Land

REG ROBBINS

This Leon McKennon may not take it on the chin—but he takes it nevertheless.

The parachute jumper here with the Reg Robbins aerial circus took an abrupt 40-mile-an-hour seat on the ground a few weeks ago while spilling the air out of his chute too long, in an effort to land in the flying field near a group of spectators. When he did turn loose the shrouds it was too late to arrest his drop.

McKennon will make drops here this afternoon and Saturday. He has watched the silk blossom over him more than 350 times, and make a specialty of dropping hundreds of feet before pulling the rip cord.

With the circus is Reg Robbins, who flies his trimotored Ford in aerobatics; Cal Murray and Lieut. R. R. McInnis, the latter being a stunt flyer addicted to doing stunts within a few feet of the tumbler.

The circus gives joy hops, taking off and landing at the Elkin farm just west of the golf course.

But the following year, when Lea founded the Nashville Tennessee seat, he split with the governor and directed bitter editorial attacks against him. The editor of Lea's newspaper, ex-Senator E. W. Calkins, was slain on Nashville street by a Patterson supporter, who later was pardoned by Patterson. Lea then backed Ben W. Hooper, a republican, for governor, and won the campaign.

In 1911, at the age of 32, Lea was elected by the state legislature to the United States senate. He served one term, ran for re-election, and was badly defeated. When the World war came, a friendly governor commissioned him colonel and he recruited a regiment of Tennesseeans. The unit became the 114th field artillery and saw action on four sectors in France. Colonel Lea was awarded the distinguished service medal.

Shortly after the armistice he and several of his men started the world by attempting to kidnap the Kaiser from his retreat in Holland. They actually entered the castle at Doorn and were preparing to seize and make off with the former German ruler when Dutch guards came rushing to his aid. As a result Colonel Lea was relieved of his command for a time by General Pershing. Neither ever has told exactly what happened, nor has Lea ever explained what he had planned to do with Kaiser Wilhelm.

Following the war Lea resumed his work as publisher of his newspaper and again took an active interest in politics. He was instrumental in the election of Governor Austin Peay, and when the latter died in office the automatic successor was Henry Horton, speaker of the state senate and a close political friend of Lea.

About this time Lea became associated with Rogers Caldwell, a young Nashville investment broker who had scored an amazing success in operations in the South. Under their joint direction the firm of Caldwell & Co. expanded tremendously and came into control of bank office buildings, industrial concerns, insurance companies, newspapers and other enterprises.

But it was a loosely pyramided structure, and began to sway with the first breath of the depression in the autumn of 1929. Lea labored to save it from collapse and began the involved series of manipulations which resulted in the crash of the Asheville bank. Luke Lea, Jr., was only 23 years old when he and his father were convicted in August, 1931. The elder Lea received a sentence of from six to ten years in prison, his son from two to six years. The latter was given the alternative of paying a $25,000 fine, but the family which had been involved in the loss of millions was unable to produce the amount.

Paroled; Back in Crime

Though he has twice escaped from custody, and was finally sentenced to life in the Oklahoma state penitentiary for murder, Barker was paroled in September, 1932, after serving 10 years. Since then he has been apparently active in a long series of crimes.

Barker has gone by the name of Bob Barker and Claude Dale, and has a brother Lloyd serving time in Port Leavenworth.

Karpis, his probable comrade, is also a professional criminal who has served time for burglary, larceny, and safe blowing. Karpis or Karpavics, has also gone under the names of Carle, Raymond Hadley, Gregg Hailer, Earl Pugh, George Dunn, R. E. Hamilton, and Ray Hunter.

When these two are rounded up, it is not unlikely that they may be found in connection with John Dillinger and his gang, for there is evidence that they have worked with them in recent months.

And that would make a round-up really worth going after.

Galveston Now Is Oleander Paradise

GALVESTON, (AP)—Oleanders are in bloom. Creamy white clusters and bright pink blossoms greet one on every side. The lovely flowers, an old-world product brought here from Jamaica in 1841, are seemingly more profuse than usual this year.

When the oleander was introduced and the early inhabitants of Galveston found it bore no fruit they were disappointed. Later they discovered other compensations, one of which was that the bushes grew readily in soil subjected to occasional overflows from salt water. Up to that time the only tree or shrub capable of withstanding the salt spray was the salt cedar.

Originally the known varieties of oleanders ranged from pure white to crimson including all the shades of pink and red. The oleander has been so developed that there are now 28 varieties.

There is a deep red with open throat and white center, a deep red with curly petals and irregular formation, a scarlet red, single, with open throat, whirling petals and long stamens, a light cerise, a dark cerise, an old reliable double pink, a single pink with whirling petals

7-H. P. Car Draws A Loaded Trailer

There have been conveyances and conveyances, but the sight of an Austin car pulling a trailer caught the fancy of the street crowds here Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Jeffers of Olympia, Wash., are leisurely making a vacation trip along the Broadway of America, driving their 7-horse-powered machine and towing in the trailer a tent, bed, cooking utensils and other touring necessities.

Jeffers manager of the Monkey-Shine Products company, said it was a relief to visit Texas again. He lived in Oklahoma 17 years ago, but has been on the west coast since.

"Texas people are more friendly," he said. The couple will visit at Sweetwater several days.

MELLOWED BY AGE
Enriched by Tradition

Fine beer can't be made over night. Behind fine beer must be age—and tradition. BUDWEISER is richly endowed with both. Anheuser-Busch began brewing in 1859. BUDWEISER was created in 1876. Its unforgettable quality was so outstanding that in the International Exposition in Paris in '78 it won first honors from all the brews of the world. It was awarded the gold medal at the World's Fair in Philadelphia in 1876, at Amsterdam in 1883, at New Orleans in 1885 and Chicago in 1893. BUDWEISER's greatest distinction never has been matched by any other brew anywhere—the biggest selling bottled beer in history.
