BUILDINGS BURNED BY THE THOUSANDS, LOSS IS ENORMOUS

BULLETIN: Radio reports issued at 9 o'clock Saturday night said firemen had succeeded in changing the course of the great fire by blasting tactics, but that thousands of structures had fallen before the onslaught of wind-blown flames. Damage could not be estimated, but early afternoon reports said it could not be less than ten millions.

CHICAGO, May 19. (UP).—Fire swept through mile-square Union stockyards tonight, whipped by a strong southwest wind.

Three firemen were reported killed in the heart of the blaze.

The conflagration levelled a district a half mile square in the stockyards before racing toward Lake Michigan, two miles away.

The blaze originated in the sheep pens of the stockyards. An hour later it had destroyed 75 buildings and several acres of pens.

The Western Exchange building was enveloped in flames. Denver park pavilion, site of the annual livestock show, was destroyed. The Drovers National and the Livestock National bank, with large sums in their vaults, were levelled.

Forty exposition buildings, 600 houses and a thousand head of cattle were burned.

Thousands of cattle driven down Halsted street, stamped over sidewalks into stores.

8 BAND STUDES IN LAST CONCERT

The Midland high school band will play its final concert of the year Monday evening at 7:30 on the high school terrace. The program of this concert has been released and promises to be the best the band has attempted before a Midland audience.

This year, the band will lose through graduation eight valuable players. The number graduating this year is less than it has ever been, however, largely because of the policy of selecting beginners from the lower grades. During the year the band has lost several members by their moving to other towns and there will doubtless be some losses during the summer. The following seniors will leave the band this year: Malcolm Brennenman, Graham Brown, Theo Cosper, Allen Dorsey, B. C. Driver, Janie McMullan, Roy Skipper and Fred Stout.

Seniors Leave School With Blaze of Accomplishments

In a shadow corner of the Midland high school library there lie books relating the histories of the classes that have come and gone from that institution. It is no musty, worn page that recounts the biography of the senior year of the Class of '34, but pages crowded with achievements and successes of a class that came to partake of the rights of the school but on leaving, is leaving the school richer for their sojourn there.

The senior year is replete with attainments and successes in every field of school life. Seniors were elected as president, critic, treasurer, and reporter of the literary society. Three seniors, Murray Paskin, Alma Lee Hankins, and Juanita Cox, shared honors by presiding respectively over the Latin, Spanish and Choral clubs. Offices in the band held by two seniors were: Allen Dorsey, one of two drum majors; B. C. Driver, assistant student manager; Malcolm Brennenman, assistant student manager; Roy Skipper, assistant student manager; Fred Stout, assistant student librarian; and Janie McMullan, assistant student librarian.

Of the 11 Red Cross speakers who spoke at theatres and churches during the annual Red Cross campaign, Alma Lee Hankins and Juanita Cox sang in that organization for three years.

Nell Hornsby, Dorothy Dunagan and Juanita Cox were winners in the home economics clothing contest held annually in Midland, and the contest year ended with Leila Mae Miles winning first place in foods entry at the state and Alma Lee Hankins won third in trying at the state contest, held in Austin.

Eight senior boys were awarded letters by the Athletic association. Those receiving letters were: John Hobbs, Murray Paskin, Maurice Kerff, A. W. Stanley, Delbert Booth, Jake Parker, Jack Prothro,

LONGSHOREMEN MAKE DEMANDS

HOUSTON, May 19. (UP).—Three thousand striking longshoremen at a meeting last night passed resolutions condemning the shooting of unarmed strikers and demanded that asserted "assassins of steamship companies" receive speedy justice by state and county officials.

Six, including a spectator, were wounded Monday when guards fired upon the strikers.

HERE'S HOW TO PAY OLD TAXES

DALLAS, May 19. (UP).—A prophet who asks you to pay a bill and at the same time tells how to get the money arose Thursday in Dallas in the person of Howard Steere, assistant district attorney, in charge of delinquent tax matters, who listed six ways to get money to pay old taxes. At the outset he declared they are honest, methodical and cautious taxpayers against robbing a bank to get the money.

The suggestions are:

1. The lienholder may be willing to pay the taxes and add them to the debt, a contingency provided for in nearly all deeds of trust. This saves the lienholder the danger of having to add such taxes to his liability in the event of foreclosure.

2. The Tax Collector can legally transfer the tax lien to any person paying State and county taxes on property if requested in writing by the owner and lienholder to make the transfer. He calls attention to the fact that a Dallas company has been organized for the purpose of lending money to delinquent taxpayers on this basis.

3. Borrow on an insurance policy. Steere points out that policy loans usually are at 6 per cent interest, whereas penalties and interest on delinquent taxes may amount as high as 7 1/2 per cent.

4. The present mortgage on the property may be refinanced for a sufficient sum to retire the existing indebtedness plus all delinquent taxes.

5. Some banks lend money on personal notes with two sureties and the interest rate on such loans is considerably less than the penalties and interest on the taxes.

6. It occasionally happens that a person who has a number of children owns real estate and can not pay the delinquent taxes. In such cases the children can sometimes be induced to pay the taxes on a prorata basis. Where one or more who can pay more than one share could pay the taxes after the parent has executed a will providing for reimbursement of the one who makes the payment.

State and county taxes may be paid in installments of one or more years at a time. Steere continued, and delinquents adopting this method should begin with the oldest delinquency which has the most interest on it.

1934 CATOICO WORK OF ART

It is the custom each year to write that the high school yearbook, "The Catoico," is better than ever before—and this year is no exception.

But one hasty look at the book will assure the reader the statement is entirely correct. From the distinctive cover to the novel Bulldog motif, a host of new advances never got out by a high school. It would do credit to any junior college, as one critic said.

The book is known as the "Bulldog edition" and is divided as follows: Coaches, Players, Favorites, Classes, Organizations, Game, Snapshots, Football, Minor Sports, Society and Calendar, Humor and Ads.

The book is well illustrated with pictures and snapshots, and the cartooning of Kathleen Scruggs is excellent and clever. Divisions of the book invariably present a square-jawed Bulldog dressed appropriately. The freshman section, for example, shows a Bull Pup suspended from the bill of a shark.

Arrangement of pictures and features is especially good. In fact, one would get the idea members of the annual staff had worked on the layout desk of a large newspaper's Sunday magazine supplement.

One must see it to appreciate the 1934 Catoico.

Grape Cuttings Available Free

Grape cuttings recently furnished by Midland county growers and put out by the county and home demonstration agent and C. W. A. labor, will be available for distribution at the court house, Wednesday.

These cuttings will be distributed free to anyone who will have sufficient water to irrigate them or water them until they are well rooted. As many as 25 cuttings may be obtained by any family and every one is urged to take advantage of this opportunity of getting grape vines started in Midland county.

Whether a man owns his farm does not matter and if enough people take advantage of this opportunity each farm in the county can have grape vines. Each one coming to get these cuttings is asked to bring a box and a gunny sack to take on the basis of the way home, it was announced.

Appreciation to those who furnished cuttings was expressed by the agent.

SULPHUR IS SHIPPED

Immense beds of sulphur lie in the West Texas area. A crusher has been constructed at Oria, a station on the Santa Fe Railway. Deposits were owned by the Coloidal Plant Foods company.

CHECKING A NUISANCE

Herbert Hoover's rebuke of the young university of Pennsylvania freshman, who sought to impress the editors of his college paper by getting an interview with President Roosevelt and wound up by writing Mr. Hoover for help, is a little document that ought to get a wide reading.

Mr. Hoover bluntly informed the young collegian that high government officials are busy men who don't have time for the amateur interviewers, autograph collectors, and other varieties of bright young men who buzz about their heads.

Every president has such ambitions but misguided youngsters to contend with. Mr. Hoover himself doubtless suffered from them in his own day. Now he seeks to squelch one who is trying to get at his successor, and in seeking to squelch him he has struck a blow in a good cause.

The time of a president is too valuable to be wasted on young collegians who are out to show their own cleverness and initiative.

'Death Takes a Holiday,' Famous Drama Starring Frederic March; Is at Ritz

"Death Takes a Holiday" a Paramount production, starring Frederic March, and featuring Evelyn Venable, Kent Taylor, and Sir Guy Standing, opens at the Ritz theatre today for a three day showing.

Its grandiose settings, its superb dialogue and splendid acting make this provocative, dramatic romance, one of the great pictures of all time.

For three days, he participates in all their games and pastimes, seeking to find some reason for man's love of life and fear of death.

CELLAR CLUB FROM WINK COMES TO MIDLAND FOR GAME THIS AFTERNOON

Fresh from a hard week of batting and fielding practice, topped off with a pep meeting held last night in Hotel Llano, Midland's baseball club will try to wrest this afternoon's decision from Wink, the invading cellar club of the Permian Basin league.

The game will start at 3:30. It was on the afternoon of May 6 that Midland, then standing with Odessa at the head of the league, met to Wink and received an 11-8 drubbing. Midland had an 8-5 lead through the sixth inning, but in the fatal seventh, Midland bowed six chances to retire the side, and six runs were chased across. Midland will oppose Wink's left hander Lybrand or Mayfield with Leonard Rowe, crack Midland right hander. The fact that Midland had had little trouble in hitting left handers and that local batmen have glued their eyes on the ball over the week past should insure Midland getting plenty of hits, in the opinion of Manager Joe Byron.

"We're in need of a big crowd and some gate receipts," the manager said. "We'll have to play out of town next Saturday and need money with which to make the trip and keep equipment up to requirements."

Byron likely will be back at his hot corner, his arm having improved somewhat during the recent hot weather.

"Which one of you is Curtis Cook?" this department asked a group ofurchins playing football at Cloverdale.

"That one over there," said an outspoken lad of about 11, "ought to know; he's my brother."

"Yeah, I know," your correspondent said. "I've seen him ride a lotta times on the Cowboy park oval."

"You ought to know my dad, then?"

"Yeah, I do."

"Crazy ain't he?"

Curtis is growing up. Fourteen years old, the crack jockey now hesitates about approaching the scales. He tips them at 114 pounds. Affable as ever, the boys refer to him as Alice, one of the Goon sisters. Like James Kinney, he early grabbed a chunk of reputation here-

Giant Sea Turtles Present Spectacle In Egg-Laying Time

BROWNSVILLE (AP)—The habits of the creatures of the deep have puzzled the generations of man but those fortunate enough to be on a long stretch of sandy beach on the coast of Mexico this week may see the annual egg-laying of the giant sea turtles.

The spot is about 100 miles south of Brownsville facing a coral reef a short distance off shore. Annually the giant reptiles of tropical waters move in phalanx upon this strip of ocean front to deposit their eggs and, incidentally, present one of the strangest of nature's spectacles.

Few Americans have looked upon the sight but Maurice Brulay of Brownsville states that when the great turtles advance upon this section of shoreline the second or third week of May, their number is so great they literally cover available space. As they emerge from the water and lumber up the beach the crashing of their colliding shells rises above the roar of the surf, Brulay said.

Ashore, the turtle chooses a spot, thrusts a flipper into the sand and rotates upon it until a smooth hole, larger at the bottom than at the top, is made. The eggs then are deposited, the hole carefully filled and packed down and the big reptile disappears beneath the waves leaving the sand and sun to bring forth another generation of its kind.

As a rule eggs are laid and the beach cleared within a week. During the period, however, the turtles are indifferent to the presence of man or beast and those who have seen the spectacle declare it is possible to cross the space by stepping on their backs without disturbing them.

As the time of the migration approaches enemies of the turtles begin to gather. Mexicans move to the beach and pitch little camps in preparation for the rich harvest. Coyotes stray to the vicinity while high overhead vultures keep an eye upon the water.

The egg-laying finished the Mexicans promptly raid the field. They fill great baskets hung from the backs of burros with thousands of eggs which bring a good price as a delicacy at interior markets. Coyotes slinking about dig the eggs from the sand and gorge themselves. The vultures swoop down and mop up.

Despite the ravaging of the egg pockets, countless thousands hatch at the end of three weeks when the scene of carnage is repeated in part. The tiny turtles must run the gauntlet of hungry coyotes and vultures before reaching the water and, once there, meet the further hazard of fish which pounce upon so fast a morsel.

Those which get through the dangers above and below sink to the nearby reefs which maternal instinct selected for their protection. They hide in openings in the rock and feed upon small plants until their shells harden. In short time they are able to follow the under-seas paths of their kind and soon they return and deposit eggs upon the sand where they were hatched.

CATCHES BIG FISH

GRAPELAND (AP)—L. A. Woods, state school superintendent, hooked and landed an 18-pound Opalonus catfish at the Grapeland country club lake four miles east of Grapeland, Woods, using live bait and a line on a cane pole, established a local record as well as proved his ability as a fisherman in handling the large fish. The Opalonus is a very game catfish and furnishes plenty of excitement when hooked.

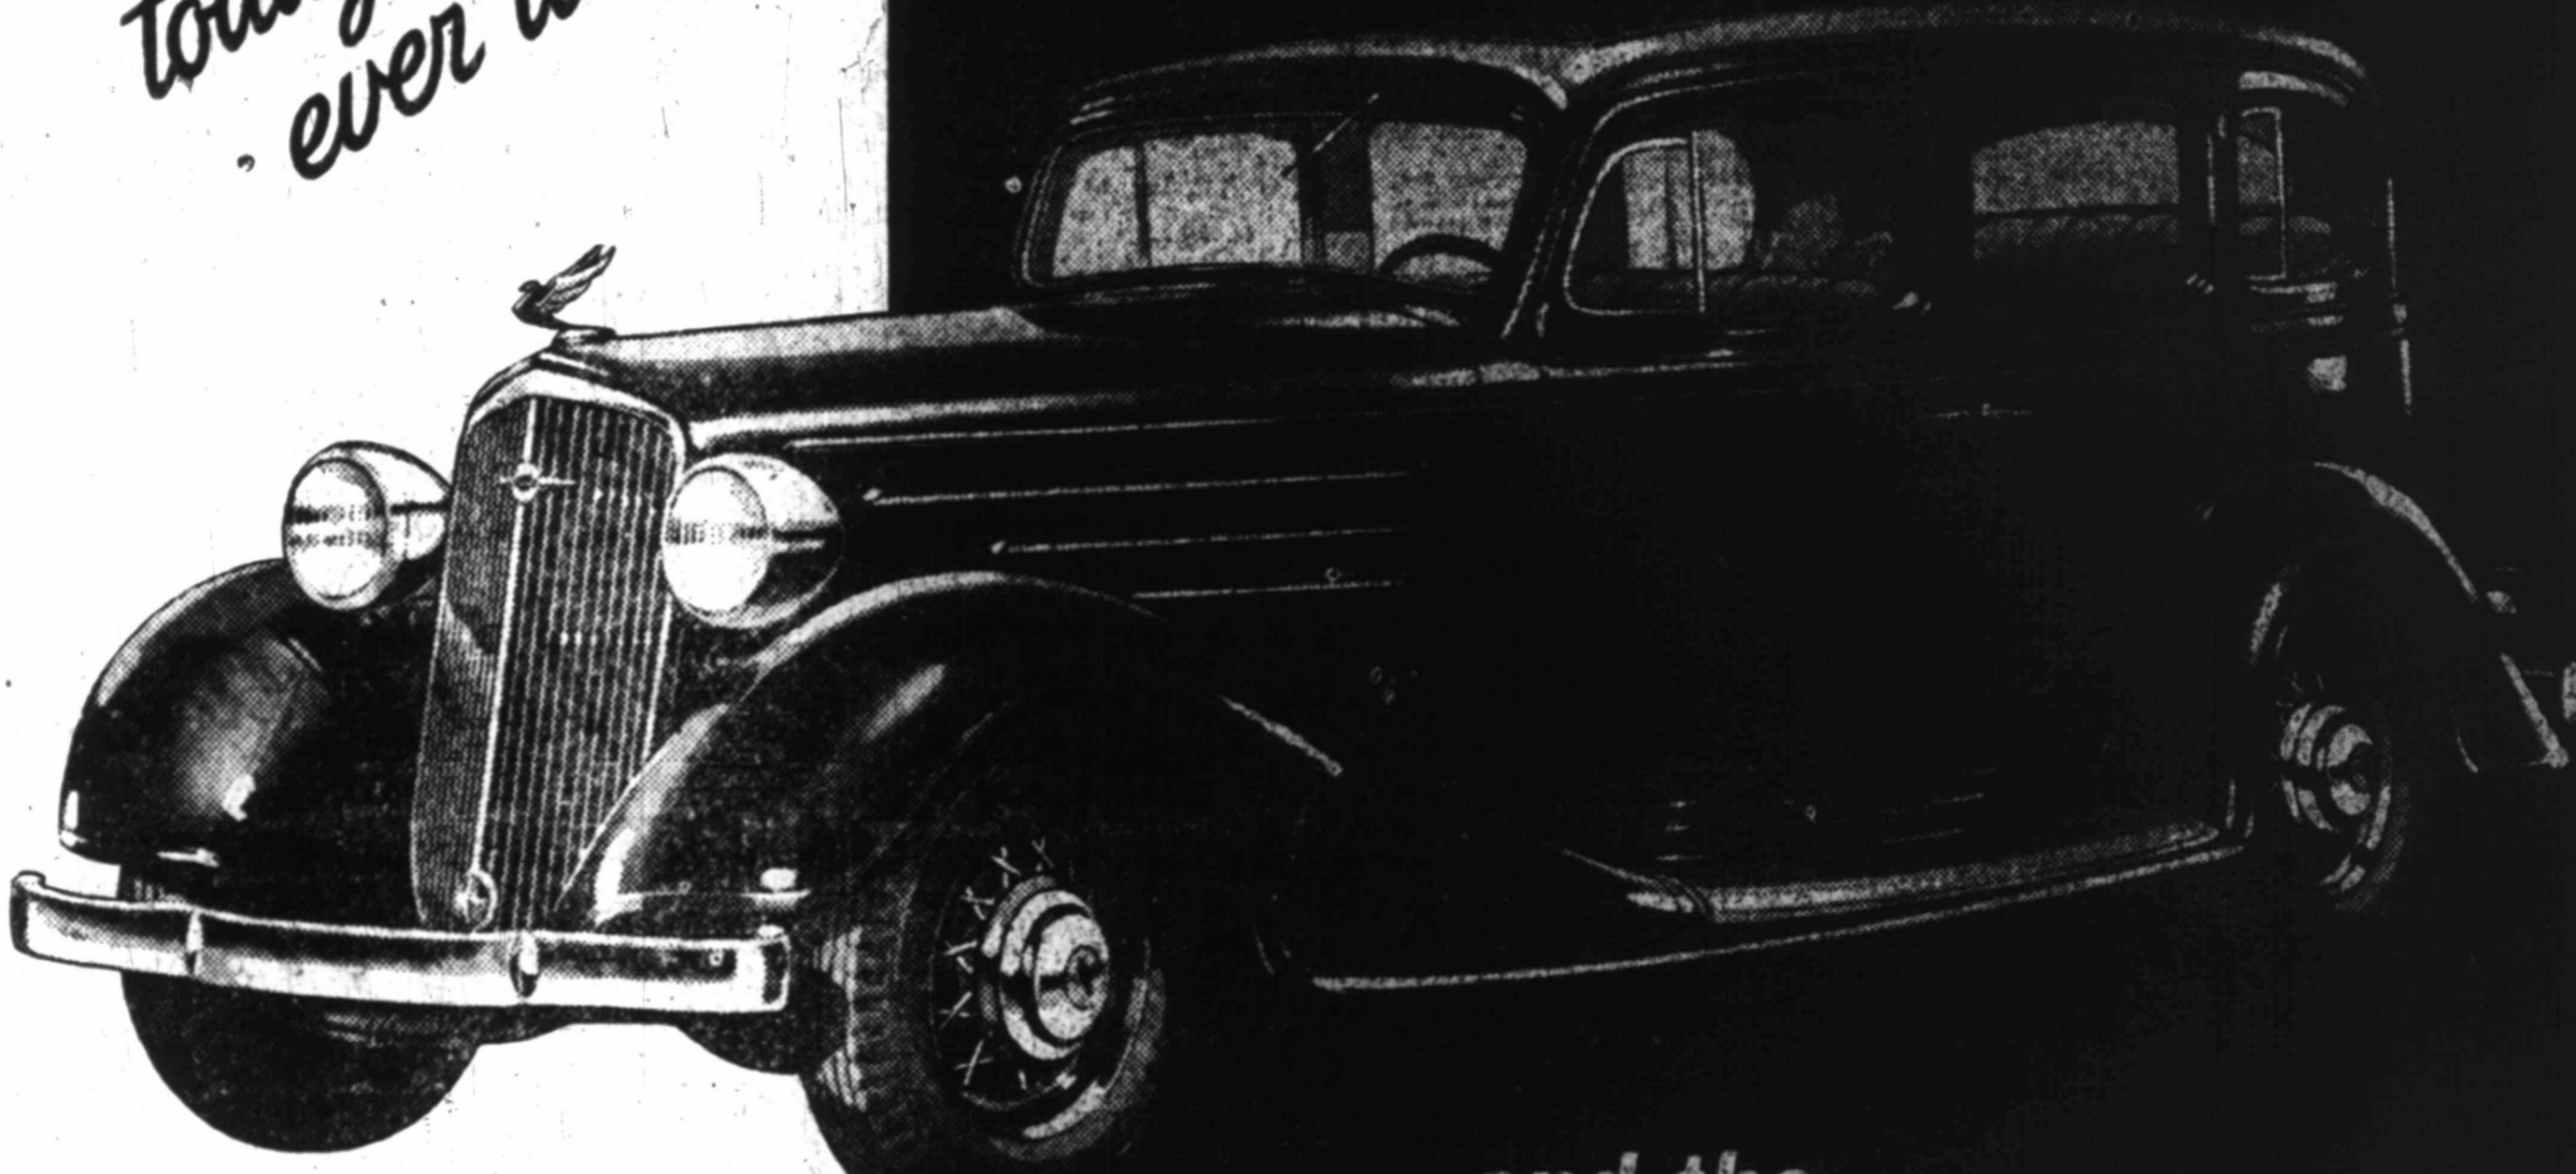

VERNON (AP)—Installation of a lighting system for night football at the City park home of the Vernon high school Lions, has been completed.

Construction of steel bleachers with wooden seats to accommodate about 2,000 spectators is well advanced.

Laborers from relief rolls are being used in the work. The Texas relief commission recently approved an application for $2,500 for use in employing relief labor. The cost of the lighting and bleacher project, sponsored by the Vernon high school Athletic association, is $5,500.

FORD CO. EMPLOYS HUNDREDS MORE

The steady increase in sales of Ford V 8 cars and trucks has recently made possible the addition of several hundred men to the large force already employed in the Dallas branch of the Ford Motor company, according to John Dabbs, general manager of the Ford Motor company, local Ford dealer.

The Dallas plant is assembling cars and trucks for dealers throughout Texas and Oklahoma and production has been steadily increased to meet the growing demand, resulting in over a 50 per cent increase in employment since the plant opened in February.

Dabbs expressed considerable pleasure at the thought that sales of Ford cars and trucks in this city had contributed to this improvement and stated that he confidently expected even greater improvement in June and succeeding months.

Fred Stout came into the band two years ago through the beginner's group that studied three years ago. Fred has been a very strong member of the trombone section for the past two years in the band and will be missed next year on the first line when the band marches. Fred was student manager of the beginner's group in which he started and during the past year served the band as assistant librarian.

BACK FROM TULSA

The dynamiting at night of a flaming gasser in front of thousands of curious spectators was one of the most interesting features of the great oil exposition at Tulsa, said Al Loskamp, who returned Friday.

Ten millions feet of gas flame reduced the great derrick and produced one of the most unusual sights ever attempted, other oil men said.

Included among those who attended from here were Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Noland, Paul T. Vickers, George Kingman, Mr. and Mrs. Loskamp, Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Prickett, and children and Ray Austin.

VETERANS ADMINISTRATION TAKING STEPS TO EXECUTE NEW PROVISIONS

General Frank T. Hines, administrator of Veteran's affairs has announced that the Veterans' administration is taking immediate action to make the Veterans provisions of the Independent Offices appropriation act for the fiscal year 1935, passed by the congress over the President's veto, effective in all respects as soon as possible. Primary consideration is being given to those persons who were removed from the rolls by reason of the provisions of the economy act of March 20, 1933, whose rights to benefits are reestablished by the new law.

The Texas Relief commission is ready to assist in the program when the highway department announces ready.

In all cases where it is possible to restore pension or compensation without the necessity of an administrative review, such action is being taken. Immediate attention also is being given to those groups of cases wherein a review of evidence is required before a determination may be made under the legislation in order that adjudication may be accomplished with the least possible delay to the veterans and their dependents.

It is estimated that approximately 330,000 World War veterans, 180,000 Spanish war veterans, and 34,000 dependents of Spanish war veterans will be affected by this legislation. It is further estimated that the increased cost of these cases will be approximately $83,000,000 on an annual basis.

Section 26 of the new law reinstates the former compensation rates for totally blind World War veterans where the veteran is being furnished hospital care by the government, and except as to cases involving fraud, mistake or misrepresentation.

Section 27 provides for the payment of compensation to those persons who on March 19, 1933, had established service connection under Section 209 of the World War Veterans Act, 1924, as amended, and reinstates the provisions of that section as to such cases, except where the person entered the service subsequent to November 11, 1918, where clear and unmistakable evidence discloses that the disease, injury, or disability had its origin before or after the period of service, unless the aggravation or where the prior service connection had been established by fraud, clear or unmistakable error or misrepresentation. But, as to all cases embraced by these three exceptions, all reasonable doubt is to be resolved in favor of the veteran and the burden of proof is to be upon the government. The payment is to be at 75 per cent of the amount payable in such cases on March 19, 1933.

Section 28 provides for the restoration of the World War rates in effect on March 19, 1933, for service-connected disability, except that reduction is permitted in accordance with regulations pertaining to payment of pension to men in hospitals. It perpetuates the rating schedule in effect on March 19, 1933, under which ratings are based as far as practicable upon the average impairment of earning capacity in civil occupations similar to the occupation of the veteran at time of enlistment. It further provides for service connection in death cases for the widows and children of those veterans who are entitled to the enactment of the law and who, if living, would be in a position to reestablish service connection thereunder.

The limitations as to receipt of pension and salary by government employes and as to the 50 per cent reduction of benefits while any person entitled thereto resides outside the continental limits of the United States are to be for application in these cases.

Section 29 amends Section 6 of the Economy act of March 20, 1933, as amended, by adding a proviso authorizing hospitalization or domiciliary care within the limitations existing in veterans administration facilities of any veteran of any war who is dishonorably discharged who is suffering from disability, disease, or defect, and who is in need of hospitalization or domiciliary care and is unable to defray the necessary expense therefor, including transportation to and from the institution. It provides that the statement under oath of the applicant as to his inability to pay for the service sought shall be accepted as sufficient.

Section 30 provides as to those veterans of the Spanish-American War, who entered service on or before August 12, 1898, and persons who served in the Boxer Rebellion or Philippine Insurrection, who were on the rolls March 19, 1933, receiving pension for disability or age by virtue of the new law are entitled to receive not less than 75 per cent of the pension being paid them on March 19, 1933, subject to the limitation requiring exemption from Federal income tax, and as to federal employes the limitation that not more than $6 for month can be paid such employes, if his salary, if single, exceeds $1000 or, if married, $2500.

The provisions pertaining to payment of pension to men in hospitals as established under Public Law No. 2 and the Veterans regulations are applicable to these cases. The benefits of this amendment do not extend to disabilities resulting from willful misconduct. The limitation as to the 50 per cent reduction of benefits within any years entitled thereto resides outside the continental limits of the United States is not for application in these cases.

Section 31 reestablishes the provisions of Section 213 of the World War Veterans Act where a person who is injured as a result of training, hospitalization or medical or surgical treatment or examination, is awarded compensation on the same basis as if the condition were incurred in the military or naval service. The application must be made within two years after the injury or aggravation or death or after the passage of the act, whichever is the later date.

Section 32 repeals the last sentence of Section 9 of the Economy Act which barred persons in receipt of benefits from participating in any determination or decision with respect to claims for benefits.

Section 33 changes the title of payment to be made in service-connected cases of World War Veterans from "pension" to "compensation."

Section 34 provides that payments shall be effective from date of passage of the act.

Section 35 provides for the payment of those insurance claims which have been determined to be payable prior to, but in which payment had not commenced on, Mar. 19, 1933.

Sixty-Five Seniors Finish

Sixty-five seniors will listen to the "beginning of the end" this morning at 11 o'clock, when they hear the commencement address by Dr. W. R. White, pastor of the Broadway Baptist church of Fort Worth; yet, by way of paradox, they will be reaching a point just starting on the course of educational experience.

Girls led the class in attendance, 40 of the class being made up of them, 25 boys. Girls also won the two highest honors of the class, valedictorian and salutatorian, Marguerite Lee and Mary Frances Minter taking those respective honors.

School System City's Pride

Among the many institutions of which Midland is proud, her public schools are by no means the least.

With 38 units affiliation with the state department of education, and another being sought, and with recognition by the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges, of which it is a member, the school is the pride of the home people and is referred to abroad as the "model small high school of Texas." It is possibly the best known and best advertised school of its size in the state.

Famed for good music and good singing, concert literary readings, high school literary society, debate clubs competition in district, regional and state interscholastic meets, the spirit of the student body and the forward-looking programs that are put over each year, the schools are the comment of all comers and goers. Graduates have made good and are still making good in every college and university they have entered and many of them are holding high positions of trust and influence in business, in the professions and in city, county and state government capacities.

Experts have pronounced the high school building and the junior high school building of Midland two of the prettiest, best appointed and best constructed buildings they had ever seen. Several school boards from throughout West Texas have come here to inspect these buildings and several cities have patterned their high school buildings after ours.

Dr. Julian Hyer of SMU once said in an address here that he had attended or participated in 50 high school and college commencements but that the high school program here was the most impressive he had ever witnessed.

Another distinguished visitor said he had visited high schools in 23 states, but that he had never seen anything to compare with the program and training of the Midland school.

So seniors, severing their connection with the school this week, may feel proud of the diplomas that attest to their having finished the curricula offered by the Midland system.

HOME ECONOMICS DEPARTMENT ONE OF STRONGEST THROUGHOUT STATE

Home economics in the Midland high school is one of the strongest departments in the system, and ranks among the best in the larger and better high schools of the state. The department comprises complete courses in foods and clothing and occupies two large laboratories, a dining room and two fitting rooms. It is equipped in keeping with the standards and requirements of the vocational board of the department of education. Midland high school is fortunate to have four affiliated credits in home economics. It has one and one-half credits in foods and one and one-half credits in clothing. The fourth credit in the course is a related subject which is a science, either physiology, biology or general science. The home economics courses are divided into H. E. I, H. E. II and H. E. III. In the first year's work the girl is required to take Foods I and Clothing I, in the second year both practical, economical and efficient home makers of the future. The objectives of each term's work in foods and clothing are as follows: Foods I—In foods the approach is from the health point of view. 1. The formation of definite health habits conducive to good health. 2. Breakfast and luncheon preparation stressing the importance of foods which are well chosen, properly cooked and regularly served. 3. The knowledge that our food supply is dependent upon various problems of production and marketing. 5. The home problem of food storage. 6. The encouragement of simplicity, attractiveness and variety in the service of meals. 7. The development of habits of cleanliness and sanitation through knowledge and daily practice. 8. A careful selection of line, color and texture in ready-made garments with reference to use. 3. An appreciation of the underlying cost factors in ready-made garments and accessories made at home. 4. To learn to apply the principles of art to the selection of ready-made garments and the planning and making at home. 5. To develop some ability to select and construct simple garments according to the need of self and the younger members of the family. 6. An appreciation of the effect of proper care and storage on the life of garments. 7. To decide when and how to remodel worn garments. Foods II 1. The continuation of health promoting habits. 2. Development of home interest and understanding of home problems. 3. Preservation of food. 4. Economic practices in the home and budget study. 5. Foods and hospitality. 6. To learn some of the more difficult construction processes and apply them to the better garments which girls wear. 3. To learn how to adapt and alter patterns to meet needs. 4. To practice good shopping tactics. 5. An appreciation of the problems connected with the construction and care of infant clothing. 6. To set up standards for evaluating the modern girl. 7. To develop ability to distinguish between "popularity" and admission and respect. 8. To encourage the belief that the home is an ideal training place for the development of desirable social characteristics and traits. 9. To develop an appreciation of the fact that a successful home is built upon the cooperation of its members. Foods III In Foods III the students study the problems of nutrition that meet the family group with factors including the study of physical and mental development. 1. Nutrition and health, malnutrition, etc. 2. Mal-nutrition and its prevention. 3. Entertainment. 4. Family and community relationships stimulating civic interest. 5. To develop ability to plan a budget based upon the family income and some knowledge of satisfactory methods of keeping household accounts and records.

Today's School Speaker User of Plane and Radio

Dr. W. R. White, pastor of the Broadway Baptist church of Fort Worth, will deliver the commencement address to the graduating class at the Midland high school auditorium this morning at 11 o'clock. His subject is "A New Deal in Greatness," taken from Philippians, 2:1-11. Dr. White has engaged the attention of leading pulpits, among whom he is known as "The Contingent Trust." Especially is he known to this section, as he was pastor of the First Baptist church of Lubbock before being drafted to act as secretary of the Baptist board of missions in Texas. For several years he served in that capacity, going to the Broadway Baptist church of Fort Worth, one of the largest in the state. Dr. White infuses a modern touch in his ministry, using an airplane frequently in flying to and from engagements. Necessity forced this recourse, as he is continually invited to speak throughout the state. His sermons over a radio hookup are eagerly followed by thousands. A microphone is in front of his pulpit each Sunday morning. Dr. White signified his pleasure at Midland's invitation by writing Supt. W. W. Lackey he had followed the course of the Midland system for years and that he considers it an honor to speak before residents of a city that evidently takes so much pride in its educational system. Among several important engagements this month, Dr. White speaks on the commencement program of the Baylor College for Women at Belton May 27.

TEXAS HIGHWAY COSTS ENORMOUS

BY R. W. BARRY AUSTIN, May 17. (AP)—Texas spent nearly $60,000,000 on her state highways during the fiscal year ended August 31, last. It was revealed by the annual report of Comptroller George H. Sheppard. From the state highway fund $40,771,79 was drawn, which with $19,228,201 taken from the county and district road indebtedness fund, brought the exact amount of the entire to $60,000,000. Support of the free schools cost $28,248,767 and $11,374,824 was spent for higher education. There was expended on the main University of Texas $4,244,794; on the medical

Strolls Down to Rio in Swim Suit And Tennis Shoes

HOUSTON, (AP)—Fred R. Scott, 22, Tampa, Fla., is "strolling down to Rio" clad only in his bathing suit and a pair of tennis shoes. Eight weeks after he strolled from his job at a riding academy in Tampa the former Cornell university student ambled into Houston, sustained and badly in need of a shave. Life wasn't all it might have been even though he had a good job, the young adventurer said in reviewing his actions. "I'm getting for a stroll," he casually announced to his beach friends at Tampa. "Where to?" he was asked. "To South America," was his solemn reply. His stroll through the mad streets here nearly caused a panic. His brief attire and his heavy beard won him the sobriquet of "The Tampa Tarzan." Scott does not like the name. Quiet and unassuming, he spoke with the earnestness of youth in seeking happiness. He is no fadist, he insisted. His "pack" consists of an identification card and matches. Scott isn't very crazy about civilization in its present state. If he is happy among the wild jungle natives of South America he will remain among them, never returning to the civilization from which he is fleeing. At least that's his story. The Tampa Tarzan accepts no rides in automobiles. "It is so tiresome," he said. He averages 30 to 40 miles a day walking. At night he sleeps in a house if one is offered; otherwise he sleeps out-of-doors. He thinks nudism is rather silly. If he takes a notion to go nude he will do so when he gets among the South American primitives where it is appropriate.

Scanty Swin Suits O. K. for the Women But Taboo for Men

DALLAS (AP)—Scanty bathing suits will be "O. K." at Texas beaches and municipal pools for women this year, but taboo for men.

Of course, the female attire, the United Press learned in a survey, will have to keep within the bounds of reason.

Just where the line of demarcation will be drawn to indicate "reason" has not been determined by the beach and pool officials the survey revealed.

If girls go to the extreme—i.e., wearing less than the fashion-approved brassiere-trunk style of suit—well, at least they won't be allowed to enter the water.

As far as styles for men and boys, it all depends on their age. Men with hairy chests simply will have to display them only in dressing rooms. And the approved attire for men will be the old style trunks with tops.

Of course, if men prefer a sun tan, they might be permitted to have a low-cut back. Only small boys will be permitted to wear the single trunk fashion for men.

The only place in Texas where beach and park superintendents turn a blind eye to water attire is at Galveston. There the idea was reported to be "whatever you can get into you can wear, and if you don't wear anything at the West

Beach that's your business. But at El Paso Park Commissioner Hugo Meyer said the latest brassiere-trunk suits for women probably would be worn by many girls, but they "won't be dipped in the water."

Men, Meyer said, have got to wear enough to cover everything between the neck and wherever the bottom of the bathing suit stops.

At Austin the "trunk-brassiere" style for women will be worn if the legislature has to be asked for the permission, women indicated. However, to prevent any "unreasonable"ness, James A. Garrison, head of the city recreation department, said he would have locker room attendants with authority to bar persons who attempt to appear in the "extreme or indecent cut or fit."

Park Commissioner Jake Rubicon at San Antonio has ruled negatively for men as far as "freedom" in bathing suits is concerned. But for the brassiere-trunk style for women, he doubts his ability to stem the tide of fashion.

Texas Christian co-eds declared the "scantier" the swimming suit the better we like it," so far as the health standpoint is concerned.

"Of course, there are always conscientious observers who actually are evil minded, but maybe they can have pools for themselves," one co-ed said.

Recreation Director W. D. Evans of Fort Worth said there were no iron-clad rules against bathing suits of any particular kind. He said he had not seen the new brassiere-trunk style for women, but believed they would be permissible.

At Houston, County Judge W. H. Ward emphatically instructed the commissioner's court that it was not authorized to pass upon the question of what type of bathing suit men and women should wear.

Czechoslovakian republic in Texas, has been announced. Dr. Hollub, a native Texan of Czech descent, has studied extensively in Czechoslovakia, having received his medical degree from Charles University at Prague in 1927. During his studies there, he obtained excellent training in the various clinics of Prague. Upon completion of his work abroad, Dr. Hollub returned to the United States for two year's additional work in American hospitals before beginning his professional work in Houston in 1929. He graduated from the University of Texas with the degree of graduate in pharmacy in 1921. His home was originally near Schulerburg.

Dr. Hollub was appointed honorary consul of Czechoslovakia by the foreign ministry of that republic, his jurisdiction to include Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico. His wife, a native Czech, will act as consular secretary.

CHANGE ADVOCATED

AUSTIN—Enlargement of the original "forty acres" to a campus of some 80 acres at the University of Texas has necessitated an increase in the time allowed between classes for students to go from one building to another. Already one change has been made in this respect, the original five-minute interval having been increased to seven minutes. It is now proposed to make another change, increasing the intermission to 10 minutes. This will cut classes from 53 to 50 minutes in length. Approval has already been given to the proposed change by the general faculty, and it will now go to the board of regents for final adoption.

First Lady Says Outlook For the Graduate Better

BY JULIA BLANSHARD
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, May 19.—The world never offered a greater or a harder challenge to graduating classes than this year. In the opinion of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt—just a year ago—“Times call for a new type of young pioneer. The First Lady sounded that challenge. “America needs young folks with staunch spirit and high courage that will keep them hopeful in the face of many difficulties that are almost insurmountable. “These young folks need the help and understanding that older people can give them. “I am not a college graduate myself. But I know that in my education it was the personalities that I came in contact with that meant most to me. The men and women who opened up new vistas to me, who taught me to think, who talked things over with me and listened sympathetically. “This year, I think the mature men and women in every community should realize their responsibility to give that kind of help to the young folks starting out. “Let them talk over their discouragements, their hopes, their failures, their dreams. Give them sympathy and understanding. Grow-ups in every community can do their bit for this year's graduates by giving them time enough and interest enough to help them get adjusted, to interest them in the community's needs and life, to broaden their outlook and help them become better citizens. “Material success fortunately does not count now as it once did. I know many young couples who have very little material. Yet they manage to live very simply, eliminating all the non-essentials. They are living lives that they like to live. They are finding happiness with practically no money. They are finding joy in their work and in their friends, and that really means success. “The scene shifts. It is this June that the First Lady talking with a reporter in her garden at the White House, discusses the problem of the graduate. “Those notes there—she indicates a rare variety of creper robe—are seeing a foothold on the upper reaches of that trellis. The season here is wonderfully adapted to their growth, and the trellis will be covered with them before the summer is over. It was much different last year, as you remember. “So it is with the May and June graduates. The difficulties of the past three or four years have disappeared, in the main, and the outlook, far from being barren in scope, offers bountiful returns for work. There is a definite need for these young men and women; in a few years they will be directing the affairs now conducted by their fathers and mothers. It is to be hoped they will seek the advantages offered by higher learning and practical application, and blossom into more perfect products of our educational system.”

“Mrs. Roosevelt realized there are thousands of college men and women who face the prospect of no job, no pay and without families to support them through the emergency. She has deep sympathy and understanding of the problems,” said an editorial writer at that time. “She paused, in a busy day, to sit down in her study to write a message to last June's graduates. “I think it is a most discouraging time for young folks finishing college this year, or so it may seem. But if they can just keep their heads above water now, if they can just keep their faith and courage, they will never again find a time that will discourage them. “This is a time above all others to do work you love doing for its own sake. The confidence, “Compensation must be secondary. As long as you can subsist, you should try to get joy out of your job. “For the girls and boys leaving college this June who have some place to live and can eat, there is no limit to the good they can do by identifying themselves with local social and civic work. “There is something in every community that you can do for the general good of those about you. Tea is pressed into bricks and used as money in Mongolia.

“These young folks need the help and understanding that older people can give them. “I am not a college graduate myself. But I know that in my education it was the personalities that I came in contact with that meant most to me. The men and women who opened up new vistas to me, who taught me to think, who talked things over with me and listened sympathetically. “This year, I think the mature men and women in every community should realize their responsibility to give that kind of help to the young folks starting out. “Let them talk over their discouragements, their hopes, their failures, their dreams. County Judge Is Doubly Honored

LAREDO (AP)—County Judge A. V. Navarro of Zapata county, great grandson of the late Don Jose Antonio Navarro, one of the signers of the Texas Declaration of Independence, has been doubly honored. He was appointed with Miss Juana Sanchez, daughter of Sheriff J. M. Sanchez of Zapata county, a member of the advisory committee of the Texas Centennial commission by Representative Ed H. Lange of the 75th District. Representative Lange named Mayor Albert Martin and Mrs. Robert Lee Bobbitt as the Webb county members. State Senator Archie Parr in naming his selections for the advisory committee chose Judge Navarro and his wife as members from Zapata county, while Sen. M. Alexander and Mrs. Arthur Claude Hamilton were named by Parr from Webb county. Each state senator representative are entitled to name two members from each county. Representative Lange announced he would concede the honor of naming Judge Navarro to Senator Parr and will name another member from Zapata county.

LAMB MARKET GOOD

SAN ANGELO (AP)—The market on good shorn mutton lambs in West Texas is a 5 1-2 to 6 cents a pound and sales are rapid at the latter figure. It is estimated that 40,000 lambs have left the San Angelo territory in recent weeks for the north. The next trading season is on yearling ewes out of the pens Arthur Mann, San Angelo commission dealer, thinks that ranchmen will not contract their mutton lambs for fall delivery at less than 8 to 10 cents a pound. Mutton lambs are scarce. There is an inquiry for goats and some

Dr. Frank Dobie, Author and Product Of the Range, Addresses Seniors Here

One of Latest Books Is Honored by the Theatre Guild

The picturesque figure of J. Frank Dobie, author of "Coronado's Children" and associate professor of English in the University of Texas, stands out as a fitting tribute to that institution and to the history of the colorful state of which he is a part.

Dr. Dobie will deliver the literary address for the senior class of the Midland high school Thursday night.

In appearance Dobie is the Texas-figured and his friendly ease of manner bespeaks the people of the plains. Many people would take him for a ranchman, a capacity in which he has served for part of his life. He stands and walks with the easy attitude and gait of the man used to long rides on the range; he is of average height and has a tawny mane of greying hair usually wears a sombrero or large hat, and nearly always chews a pipe even if he isn't smoking it. The pleasant friendliness of his greeting is reflected in the ease with which he speaks the cowboy's language in the drawing pleasant of that type. He easily makes friends of the people who hear him in his constant search for the legends of Texas.

In the past 10 or 12 years he has traveled far and talked with hundreds of men of the soil from whom he has learned the lore of the animals, anecdotes of frontier life, and legends. Immediately upon learning a story, he writes it down and files it away for future reference. It may take years to search all the threads, and data of background necessary for the full relation of one of his tales.

Writing and an interest in literature began early for him, for he says he can remember that when he was a child riding about the ranch on his pony he used to love the euphony of words and make phrases of the thoughts that came to his mind. It still comes no easier to him than to any other man of his trade, and he often revises a sentence many times trying to make it, as he says, "sing like a fiddle."

Since his under-graduate days he planned to write but did not turn to folk-lore until after the World war when he resigned from the University of Texas faculty to manage a large ranch in the brush country. The human side of folk-lore interests him most. There seems to him to be something about the search for buried treasure which keeps men's hearts young. Tales of fabulous wealth and of buried treasure are the stories of the new world. Perhaps because of this appeal, the Literary Guild chose "Coronado's Children" in February, 1931, as its monthly publication, and its choice was of significance both to Texas and to American literature in general. Two years earlier, "A Vaquero of the Brush Country," which is typical of South Texas, the section of the state where he was born, had been published.

James Frank Dobie was born on a ranch in Live Oak county, Texas, as the eldest of a family of six. Texas as a boy, he rode the range and he first learned to ride. At 15, he helped fight a stampede of cattle. His mother was a teacher and gave him his first lessons in the children he had a governess, and after that, he went to the neighboring school. The family library was the largest in the community, a factor which doubtless contributed to his early love of literature.

When he reached high school age, he went to Alice, Texas, to school, and at last to Southwestern university at Georgetown for his college training. Here he indulged his literary talents through the medium of university publications. In 1910, he received his bachelor of arts degree. The following summer was spent reporting criminal and morgue cases, and fires and other news events for the San Antonio Express.

Before going to Columbia university where he received his master of arts degree, Dobie spent two years teaching in the secondary school of the state at Alpine, Texas. He taught English and was secretary to the president of Southwestern university. His master of arts degree was conferred upon him in 1914. The next fall he came to Austin as an instructor in English in the University of Texas.

His teaching career was interrupted when he joined the United States forces for the World war, and was made a first lieutenant of the field artillery, reaching France shortly before the armistice was signed. Returning to Texas, Dobie taught another year in the University of Texas and then became manager of an uncle's ranch, the Elms, situated south of the Nueces river. It lay in three counties and had 10,000 head of cattle on its range. Under his charge were from eight to 30 Mexican hands, he being the only white man on the place.

While here he made the discovery that in the legends of the Southwest lay a fertile mine of material for exploration. Upon returning to the University of Texas once more, he became secretary and editor of the Texas Folk-Lore society—a position he has held continuously for 13 years. In 1922 he became head of the English department of Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical college, and built up the folk-lore society of that state. Two years later, he returned to the university as adjunct professor of English, and the following year, was made associate professor.

Since that time he has worked indefatigably on the range history, social history, and folk-lore of Texas and the Southwest. Three times he has been on leave of absence from the University to do research work—once under the Laura Spellman Rockefeller Foundation for Research in the Social Sciences; again independently, while his wife, Bertha McKee Dobie, taught in the university; and lately as a John Simon Guggenheim Memorial foundation fellow in Mexico.

When he gives his well-known course in "Life and Literature of the Southwest," admittance to the class is at a premium. His teaching there reflects the background of his subject and of his nature. He teaches matter about which he has learned through actual contact as well as through books.

His home is a fitting background for his personality. It is set in a suburb where his house is framed in a grove of trees and where there study, hold his collection of South-west literature. This den overlooks the creek and the woods; it holds his desk, files and more curios. In all, he has well over a thousand books on Texas and Southwestern history. Rare books intersperse modern books—and there are numerous. There is a complete collection of Siringo, who wrote the first cowboy autobiography. There are all sorts of histories, various books given him by people who supplemented the "tall tales" with stories of actual events, brand books listing the cattle brands and owners of ranges throughout the Southwest, and a complete collection of the published works of the late Charles Russell, whom Dobie considers to have been the best illustrator of western life. His curios cover his desk and hang beside it. He has machetes, daggers, hunting knives, all curiously carved and inscribed. He has hunting horns and a bridle rein woven in bright colors from horse hair. On the wall there is the mounted head of a grinning coyote.

His pride, a collection of objects made from cow-horn, is composed of pieces ranging from powder horns to dishes, spoons, combs, small horns for the tallow used to smooth the rope-cut hands of the vaquero, and other useful and ornamental objects. Many pieces are beautifully decorated and meticulously carved. Some are inlaid with mother-of-pearl. One powder horn is carved to resemble a red-fish, another a "houn daw" head to finish the mouth. Many have huntmen and hunting scenes carved so as to show the finest detail of the hunter's clothes. Most of all these is the symbol of Mexico—the carved figure of a screaming spread-eagle. All his body from neck to toes is carved of one horn, his wings and the snake coiled about his legs being the only joined pieces. This and his other collections grow with every trip.

Everything about the place, as everything about the man, spells Texas and the range. And one cannot leave this suburban home and its genial, unspoiled host, without a feeling of confidence in the "realism" the genuineness of his writing.

Brisbane and Mrs. Bloomer Contributed To Early Communistic Colony at Dallas

FORT WORTH.—There was communism in Dallas in the 1850's, and Fort Worth missed it only because Arthur Brisbane's father and Victor Prosper Considerant, a Frenchman, believed the town to be "closer to the frontier and farther from Austin" than Dallas was.

A multitude of interesting facts about that early-day experiment in communism, or, probably more properly, socialism, have been gathered by Dr. W. J. Hammond, head of the department of history in Texas Christian university. The famous Mrs. Bloomer, who gave her name to a now familiar item of women's wearing apparel, was a member of the colony. The late Arthur Brisbane, father of the Hearst columnist, helped locate the colony. It once had a population greater than the main section of Dallas. It lasted—but to begin at the beginning.

French and Belgian and Swiss followers of that school believing that society should be organized into co-operative units, decided about 1850 that they might found such units in Texas. Considerant, French leader of the movement, came to America to pave the way. He got both money and enthusiasm from the elder Brisbane. The latter came with him to Texas to locate the colony. They came by boat as far as Fort Smith Ark., bought horses there, and made their way to Dallas on horseback.

They weren't altogether pleased with the site decided upon—then

Nacogdoches First Texas Municipality Granted a School Under Mexican Rule

NACOGDOCHES, (AP)—Recent research among the old records preserved at the Nacogdoches court house reveals that the history of the Nacogdoches independent school district is woven into the fabric of Texas history. Nacogdoches was the first Texas municipality granted a school under Mexican rule but it did not materialize until Texas became politically independent.

Among the reasons given in the Texas Declaration of Independence for separation from Mexico was the failure of Mexico to establish schools for the colonists. The colonists memorialized the congress of such land "shall be appropriated free public schools in all the colonies in Texas."

In May, 1833, the congress passed a decree No. 240 granting four acres of land from any vacant lands "of that municipality" to the Ayuntamiento (corporation) of Nacogdoches for the purpose. The decree provided that the products of such land "shall be appropriated entirely and exclusively to a fund for the primary school wherein the Castilian language shall be expressly taught."

Similar decrees were passed for establishing schools in other colonies but none proceeded beyond the paper stage. From the close of the war for independence in 1836, until 1844, the Nacogdoches school project was dormant. In that year the ninth congress of the republic of Texas passed an act of 20 sections, chartering Nacogdoches university.

It was specific in details even naming the first board of 15 trustees and stipulating that "nothing in this bill shall be construed to allow banking or other privileges not contemplated in this charter." It recognized, however, the four leagues of land granted the corporation of Nacogdoches by the government of Coahuila and Texas and instructed that it be transferred to the Nacogdoches university.

The act also specified that "no religious sectarian tenets or doctrines shall be inculcated in the course of instruction," and that the lands, public buildings and other property belonging to the university were declared free from any kind of public tax for five years.

The city of Nacogdoches in 1850, gave the trustees, what is now known as Washington Square, consisting of 18 acres, to be used as a campus. Citizens of Nacogdoches and vicinity presented the university some money and 5000 acres of land in addition to the four leagues set apart by the ninth congress.

The contract for construction of the buildings provided that the contractors should receive $1,100 cash and 6000 acres of land. The building was completed in 1857 and school work began but the institution did not approximate a college because there were no students prepared to do college work.

During the Civil war only small children were taught. After the war the school continued as the town school until 1888, when Keachi college was moved from Louisiana to Nacogdoches. But that institution ceased to function two years later. Public school continued to be taught in the old university building.

Bon Voyage -- Mr. Graduate and a happy landing --

Men just naturally turn to the new PALM BEACH!

Taking the muss and wrinkles out of the average summer suit—is a good deal harder than putting them in!

So men just naturally turn to the new 1934 Palm Beach. Not only will these famous suits resist wrinkling and mussing, but when they are hung up overnight, all signs of a hard day's wear seem to disappear.

It isn't just an added finish that does the trick...finishes are apt to rub out in the wash. It is by new developments in the actual construction of the fabric that Palm Beach achieves this much-sought result.

SHOWING HOW PALM BEACH SUITS RETAIN THEIR SMOOTH LINES

Each of these summer suits, made of four totally different summer fabrics, were subjected to precisely the same musing treatment. Two sets of photographs were taken: (1) immediately after musing; (2) after hanging the suits up overnight. The Palm Beach Suit not only wrinkled or mussed less than the others...but also showed truly amazing facility in the matter of "automatic recovery." (See actual photographs.)
