Believes Hearings on Big War Dept. Bill To End This Week

According to Rep. George Mahon in Washington, hearings will be completed this week on the annual War department appropriation bill, a bill to supply the Army with funds for the fiscal year beginning July 1. The bill now in the subcommittee, involves the largest appropriation to be considered by Congress this year, the Army requesting the total sum of fifty-nine billion dollars, including re-appropriations.

Mahon is a member of a seven-man subcommittee of four Democrats and three Republicans, which conducts hearings and handles in the House the appropriations for the Army.

On the current bill General George Marshall, chief of staff, General Arnold, and many other officers of the Army have appeared before the committee to discuss and explain the war situation and the need for the funds requested. However, because of the nature of much of the testimony, the hearings on the bill are not open to the public. The bill covers appropriations for all items of expense of every nature for the carrying on of the war by the War department. Included are pay, food, clothing, guns, ammunition, airplanes, fuel, and innumerable other requirements for an army of 7,700,000 men. One of the unusual requests of the Medical Corps is for one hundred million dollars for the new wonder drug Penicillin designed to save the lives of thousands of our fighting men. Mahon states that the belief is that no funds other than those now being requested will be required by the Army for the defeat of Germany—that while the fighting has not reached its peak, war spending has reached its peak and will taper off very sharply within a few months.

Will Somebody Page Cecil Fox—Rattles Are Riding High!

Last Friday morning as Commissioner T. F. Baze of the Lower Red Mud community started to Clairmont, he spied a big rattle snake lying near his car, and while trying to get a lick at him the snake crawled into the framework of the automobile. Unable to dislodge the reptile, Mr. Baze drove on and soon came to a gate, and there in the road was a big rattle snake. He naturally thought it was the one that had dropped from his car. He killed it and drove blissfully on his way to Clairmont, where a friend, Mr. Van Zante, borrowed the car and came to Spur.

In the afternoon Mr. Van Zante returned to Clairmont and Mr. Baze returned home. Quite late in the afternoon the Baze children drove the car on some errands in the neighborhood, and about sundown they drove into the yard and the snake dropped from the car, after a ride of approximately 160 miles.

Needless to say that was one snake that had been taken for his last ride, and the entire Baze family soon finished him off.

TO OPEN TAILOR HOP

Last week Richard Ensey and Mrs. Cecil Addy purchased the tailor shop and equipment of D. T. Heat in Lubbock, and will open the City Cleaners Tailor shop in the building formerly occupied by the post office. Both Mrs. Addy and Mr. Ensey are experienced in the tailor business and will appreciate a share of your business. Watch for their opening announcement.

Post Office Gets Face 'Lifted'

Have you noticed the new coat of paint on the front of the post office?

We are indeed glad to have people in our community who take pride in making our city look nice.

Many of us are inclined to let George do it. Well, we have some Georges in our community.

George Link had his painters, Laine and Roberts, paint the front of the post office along with the new Bryant-Link building, for which we are truly thankful.

Let's see if more of us can't help the Georges improve the looks of our city.

MINORITIES AND TOLERANCE

There is considerable nonsense in the air upon the subject of tolerance, with the politicians in certain areas demonstrating lip-service to the promulgation of the ideal.

It is vastly amusing because the minorities in the United States, without exception, violate the fundamental rules of tolerance. They organize to secure special consideration, not as Americans, but as groups that must be given favors in order that tolerance prevail.

There is a studied effort to create the impression that the minority groups are oppressed and, in some states, no political campaign is smart unless it carefully "takes care of" the prejudices of the minorities that vote in strength.

It is high time that somebody thinks straight and talks plainly. There is no minority group in the nation that does not receive more than it contributes to the general welfare. None of them, regardless of the method of determination, pay in taxes as much as they get from the public treasuries, state and federal.

We have no prejudice against racial, religious or other groups in the United States but it is getting rather tiresome to hear that they are saving America and deserve greater favors from other Americans, who, in fact, are carrying the bulk of the load of the nation.

There is no easier way to create animosities between groups than for a minority, blessed by freedom and liberty, to misuse the privileges that are general in order to secure unusual benefits. The same misuse of political power, which is apparent in some states, will eventually bring a reaction against minorities and it will do no good, when the day arrives, to yell for tolerance.

For years there has been underway a gradual growth toward the development of a country which would offer equal opportunities to all citizens, regardless of race, religion or other distinction. The merit of the individual, aided by individual initiative, was the ideal factor to determine advancement. The process, no doubt, was and is, slow but it is the only way human beings develop.

Now, through the organization of various minorities, we find individuals seeking preferment not on merit, recognized and accepted by other citizens, but on the mere fact of membership in a special group. The weight of the group is thrown behind the individual and, in cases, it is sufficient to secure special treatment and undue recognition.

Of course, it is apparent that the minority groups are doing what they demand that the rest of the public refrain from doing. There is no sense in extending favors to members of various groups, merely on the basis of exhibiting tolerance, when the same group, exerting mass pressure, does not practice tolerance or exhibit the Americanism so blatantly utilized as a weapon against the general public.

What will be the result? Well, any intelligent member of any minority group ought to know the answer. In time, the minorities will secure slight edges and make progress that is apparent rather than real. Then the reaction will come and the unorganized mass of the general public will organize and, using a preponderant majority force, wipe out more than the minority has gained.

We have done everything in our power, as an honest writer, to prevent the growth of factionalism, blocs and pressure groups, whether along racial, economic or religious lines, but the trend is perfectly plain and the result equally clear. The danger in this country does not stem from so-called intolerance on the part of the general public but from the aggressiveness of minorities who do not know how well their bread is now buttered.

INVASION SPECULATION

There is widespread speculation as to the time of the Anglo-American invasion of Western Europe and an understandable interest in possible maneuvers that may be attempted by the contending forces.

Nobody knows when the invasion will be launched or upon what scale the initial landings will be made. It is likewise impossible to forecast the strategy or tactics of General Eisenhower and General Rommel. The public will have to await events to see what occurs.

Of course, the invasion can result in a quick, decisive victory, a stalemate or a terrible defeat for the Anglo-American forces. The Allied leaders are said to be reasonably confident of the successful conduct of operations, believing that their overwhelming weight of manpower and material will break down German resistance.

It is possible that the German defense will prove more formidable than expected and that something of a temporary stalemate will occur. In this event, it will be necessary to pour in additional troops and equipment until the necessary superiority is attained. Few, if any, observers believe that the Nazis will inflict a disastrous defeat upon the invaders who will have the protection of aerial and naval superiority.

When the war ends the politicians will pay attention to nearly 12,000,000 service men.

It is a neat pastime to read editorials for the purpose of seeing how foolish the editor can be.

It is rather futile to talk platitudes when a desperado has his fingers around your windpipe.

So far as we have been able to discover no patriot has offered to operate without profit during the year.

The effort to limit campaign contributions is time-wasted; the candidates know how to get around all restrictions.

When the acquisition of material things becomes the sole motive in life the individual might as well get a black mask and a pistol.

VOODOO STATISTICS

During my boyhood I knew one typical ante-bellum negro, a picturesque character born 50 years, you might say, after his time. It was said of him that, with solemn Congo River ritual, he named one of his seldom-used pockets "The World." Promptly then he had his wife sew up the empty pocket. After that, when a fellow worker asked him for a chew of tobacco he could truthfully say, "I ain't got a bit'a chewin' in The World."

This is not a pointless story. It describes an interesting philosophy, now in general use, notably by the Office of Price Administration. When the powers of this bureau find it impossible to stabilize a price (as they sometimes do) they promptly sew up the outlet with a so-called "line limitation," shift the trade to another store with somewhat ancient prices and call it a deterioration of quality; not a price boost—never!

The Magic Twist

It's uncanny. People pay more for what they get although prices stay the same at all points of sale. Just consider the case of Mrs. Effie Stone, proprietress of Effie's Store Inc. Nobody has ever called Effie a modiste. She runs a sort of general store at the edge of a farming town and stocks some apparel, mostly cheap, working garments for farm families and mill people. Woolen skirts at $4 and ladies' suits at $20 are for Effie's quality trade.

But now the store is out of woolen skirts entirely. Effie can buy them at about $4.50 wholesale, and could sell them for $6 and show a profit but it's not legal if OPA rules are law. The trouble is that Effie sold no skirts above $4 for several years, including the months that OPA has since designated as a "base period." By doing this she automatically fixed her own ceiling price. The OPA's MRP rule No. 330 caught her.

High-Brow Humbug

Nobody is fooled. Effie's highest allowable price for skirts is $4 and she can't get any more $4 skirts to sell. Her customers would pay more, in fact they are paying more. They still like the kind of clothes they wore during the famous "base period." But they are buying elsewhere, paying $8.50 for skirts in shops just opening; that have no "base period," or in big stores with higher "ceilings" upheld by more costly lines.

The very same sport skirts Effie used to sell at $4, the very same brand, can be sold legally by Ye Smart Shoppe at higher prices than they'd dare name if Effie is still a competitor. But Effie is out. She has lost her skirt business and her suit line is just ready to die the same death. She is not alone either. She has shopped around a bit with a merchant's instinct and has found dealers in other lines tangled up in the same red tape.

Who Said Scandal?

A few days ago Effie went to the shoe section of a basement store to buy some cheap oxfords to work in; no luck!! She found no soft shoes at low prices. She asked why and the salesman repeated her own $4-skirt story in other words. But later, at a fancy foot-wear salon she paid sat in slipper prices for what used to be called cheap shoes. Even this dealer did not get rich on the transaction either.

Choking competition does not help Mr. and Mrs. Consumer. Truly Effie's prices have not advanced, neither are her competitors' prices any higher, but the cost of living climbs anyway. Price Administrator Bowles has called quality deterioration a national scandal, and I believe he has something there—but there are indications that the fault is with OPA regulations which we are glad to believe OPA is taking steps to correct.

THE MAN WHO CAME TO DINNER

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

BY JAMES PRESTON

Despite official statements to the contrary, insiders claim Donald Nelson has crossed swords with his able lieutenant, Charles E. Wilson, in another one of those intercorporate setts that enliven Washington official circles.

Which brings up a curious fact regarding Nelson. Although he has collected more official seals than any other government executive, he is still regarded by newspapermen who cover WPB and by many of his underlings as one who cannot hold his own in such rows. Partly, no doubt, because he invariably emerges on excellent terms with the vanquished.

Also, Washington newspapermen like their top executives tough. They go for the man who swaggers into a press conference with a cigar jutting out of the side of his mouth, bangs his fist down on the tables and roars out a couple of triple-barrelled cuss words.

And Nelson who was once dubbed "Donald the Meek," is a man of temperate expression. Moreover, his round eyes and arched brows give him an owl-like appearance, and when he attempts to register determination he is apt to purse his lips, giving him a somewhat prissy expression.

Yet in the past two years Nelson has gone to the mat with such renowned warriors as Harold Ickes, Leon Henderson, Ferd Eberstadt, Harry Hopkins, the Navy's Forrestal, and the Army's dashing Brehon Somervell. He has taken them on singly and en masse.

The boys are not quite sure what happened, except all of a sudden they were feeling as though they had backed into a buzz saw.

And there was Nelson, smiling gently, helping them back on their feet!

We can tell you how the Presidential election will turn out this year, just for meanness, we will do no such thing.

THOUGHT IN SPRING

I never can decide which season I love most—cool, sweet May and June, in white and petal-pink, or October, flaunting its flaming hues.

But spring is the time when I begin to feel smoothed out and quiet and content. I love these twilights, with the neighbors working late in their gardens, and the robin singing away in my apple tree and the peeper chorus tuning up. I love the sharp fragrance of lilies-of-the-valley and the green, lacy branches of the maples.

And I know I am favored beyond belief—to have a white house in this peaceful town, watched over by a gnarled tree, with lilac plumes tapping the windows.

Do you sometimes wonder, as I do, why we in America, though we make our sacrifices to this terrible war, are still blessed, as so few in the world are now, with a tranquil and fertile countryside? Why our homes, though they wear their service stars bravely, are still outwardly unravaged?

I ask, and I try to answer. Have we, perhaps, been spared because of a precious heritage that must be cherished toward the day when other peoples are ready to understand and accept the gift from our hands?

In the old days, the oppressed of other lands turned their faces toward freedom, the opportunity, the new life that America stood for. Perhaps the time is really coming when the tide will turn—when democracy will flow out from our shores to build a better world.

(Both were from the same state).

APPROACHING MARRIAGE OF MISS RUTH COWAN IS REVEALED AT CALL TEA

Announcing the approaching marriage of Miss Ruth Cowan, daughter of Mrs. Lucy Cowan, 2218 Broadway, Lubbock, Mrs. E. C. McGee was hostess with a call tea last Friday afternoon from 4:00 to 6:00 o'clock at her home on Hill street.

Members of the house party were Mrs. McGee, Mrs. Winston Brummett and Mrs. Cowan. They wore corsages of red carnations. Those in the receiving line were Mrs. McGee, Mrs. Cowan, the honoree, who was dressed in beige and wore an orchid in her hair, and her two sisters, Misses Ruby and Emily Cowan, who, also, wore corsages of red carnations.

Miss Ruby Cowan presided at the bride's book.

Mrs. Grace Hurst and Mrs. Lillian Grace Hilly rendered piano selections during the afternoon. Mrs. Hilly accompanied Mrs. Marian Baker as she sang "Oh Sweet Mystery of Life" and "Lassie O' Mine."

Miss Bonnie Campbell assisted Mrs. Brummett at the beautiful lace covered table centered with a crystal punch bowl, entwined with roses and greenery, where punch and cookies were served. Place favors were hand painted miniature airplanes on cards, bearing the names—Bob and Ruth—and the date—June 11.

Miss Cowan will be married to Captain Robert L. Armstrong in Edmonton, Canada, June 11, where he is stationed as a transport pilot.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Texas Technological college, Lubbock. Captain Armstrong is a

MRS. HOWARD HOLLOWELL IS HOSTESS MONDAY TO W.S.C.S. MEMBERS

The W.S.C.S. met Monday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Howard H. Hollowell with Mmes. Hollowell, Geo. S. Link, C. H. Christian, and Dee Hairgrove, as co-hostesses.

In a brief business session the president, Mrs. Erie Foster, gave a report from the district conference recently held in Rochester. Mrs. J. C. Payne brought the devotional for the afternoon.

In an effort to regain their lost youth, the ladies played school. Mrs. Jack Rector, dressed as a spinster school marm, was elected as the teacher. The ladies were asked to leave the room and upon returning to bring something pertaining to school. Many brought books and pencils, paper, lunch bags, and others wore ribbons in their hair to achieve a girlish appearance. Mrs. Leland Wilson very gracefully wore a dunce cap. This seemed to have been a very crowded day in one school room with the reading, writing and arithmetic. Mrs. Link won first place in her declamation, as she very dramatically gave "The Boy Stood on the Burning Deck." As school was dismissed ice cream and cake were served to the 17 "pupils" present.

Just now we are thinking of the invasion of Hitler's domain, and it makes us sad, for we know many of our boys will be lost—too many if it is only a few thousand, for these boys are in no way responsible for this war. All we can do is hope and pray, buy bonds, give to the Red Cross and other institutions that are helping feed, clothe, and give medical aid and cheer to the starving and bleeding people of devastated Europe, China and the islands of the seas. Keep the home fires burning by keeping church, school and all helpful institutions going. ### Stick-to-Your-Ribs Dish Is Appetizing

Frankfurter farina dumplings with sauerkraut, pictured above, is a good down-to-earth, stick-to-your-ribs main dish, says the Country Cooking editor of Capper's Farmer, a publication of national circulation.

This dish has lots of what it takes, including vitamins in the fortified margarine and enriched farina. When buying cereals, margarine and other foods which are available with vitamins added, be sure to check that those you get are the enriched ones, advises the Capper's Farmer expert.

Dumplings with Sauerkraut
1 1/2 cups self-rising cake flour
1 qt. sauerkraut
1/2 cup enriched farina
2 tablespoons fortified margarine
3/4 cup milk

Sift and measure flour. Stir in farina. Cut in margarine and add milk. Mix lightly with a fork. Slice frankfurters in 1/2-inch slices. Add to dumplings, saving a few pieces to garnish top. Place sauerkraut in a large skillet with cover to fit. Add water and onion in which cloves have been stuck. Bring to a boil. Drop dumplings by tablespoonfuls on sauerkraut. Garnish with pieces of frankfurter. Cover closely. Steam without removing cover 20 to 25 minutes. Serves 6 to 8.

Proper Plowing Will Save Hoeing

By CHAS. A. TAYLOR
County Agricultural Agent

Several farmers near Spur plowed their cotton across the rows and eliminated at least one hoeing in 1943. This is what Elmer Shugart says about this operation: "After planting plenty of seed to insure a good stand, I plowed the cotton one time, then turned crossways and plowed it, using seven small sweeps set almost flat. I plowed at a slower speed than when plowing with the rows to prevent throwing too much soil on the cotton. This thinned the cotton to a normal stand and killed all the weeds. I believe that with everything just right; that is, moisture conditions, stand of cotton, etc. it is possible to eliminate all the hoeing with this type of cultivation."

This practice was ably demon-

'Does and Don'ts' for Home Equipment Care

THE old adage, "Take care of what you have and it will take care of you" is doubly true these wartime days when household appliances are difficult to replace, Marjorie Griffin, Home Editor of nationally circulated Capper's Farmer advises housewives.

Here are some of her "does and don'ts" about such items as the kitchen sink, the refrigerator, and the range:

"Don't let coffee grounds or particles of food, especially greasy ones, go down the sink drain. If it gets stopped up, force it with a suction plunger. Regular use of a commercial detergent or chemical will soft-or frost loose with a knife. Wash shelves and interior of mechanical or ice refrigerator once a week.

"The range is home base in your kitchen. Clean oven with soap and water. Rub with unsalted fat to prevent rust. Don't store food in the oven. Wipe up food as it is spilled, as acids in some may per-ten the accumulation in pipes so it can be rinsed away. Soap and water or a mild abrasive, used daily, will keep the surface spick-and-span.

"Don't crowd the refrigerator or foods will not keep well. Be sure refrigerator isn't getting hot under the collar standing too near the range. Defrost regularly; frost on freezing unit shouldn't get over one-fourth inch thick. Never pry trays manently discolor the finish. When cold, wash with soapy water. Washing while hot may craze enamel.

ASKS SUPPORT OF TIRE TRADE TO CARRY NATION THROUGH CRITICAL MONTHS AHEAD!

You automobile users have read the Fifth Progress Report recently released by the War Production Board office. It is possible that some will believe that the large figures used in the report, indicated an end to the rubber problem. You and we, know that from now until late Fall, will prove to be the most difficult period for civilian passenger and truck tires. Some time ago, this office stated there would be 30,000,000 new passenger car tires required for essential civilian use in 1944. Based on present conditions, it is now believed that with the public's cooperation, 22,000,000 passenger tires will be sufficient for essential driving. The present production plan contemplates making 22,000,000—15,000,000 of which plus or minus 10%, depending upon the trend of military requirements throughout the balance of the year. This sounds like a great many tires to the layman. It is, however, only three-fourths of their original plans and two-fifths of the number the Industry was accustomed to produce for replacement and original equipment business in a normal pre-war year.

All of this adds up to one hard fact: If our civilian economy is not to break down, the public must be induced to save the rubber in tires they now have. And we, your local tire dealer and recapper, can play a key roll in helping to carry the nation's essential rubber-borne transport through this critical stage.

At a request from the Office of War Information on a comprehensive rubber conservation program, designed to persuade car drivers and truck operators to let us, your local tire experts, keep your tires in shape and recap them when necessary. We know that as a result, your business has been maintained at a high rate of activity for many months past. Let's cooperate in this matter that we way all get "over the hump."

Y.: The slogan of the Grandmothers War Bond League, "Grandmother's Bond with the Future—War Bonds," is a common bond between two hard working grandmothers at the Aero Spark Plug Corporation in New York. Mrs. Elizabeth Taggart (left) and Mrs. Edna Neff invest part of their salaries in War Bonds every pay day.

Three-year-old grandson, John Wurmsler, is co-owner of the Bonds Mrs. Taggart buys to back her fighting Seabee stepson, James Taggart. Mrs. Neff's 10-month-old granddaughter, Barbara Ann, receives War Bond gifts as part of her grandmother's "back the attack" program in honor of Barbara's Marine daddy, a master technical sergeant, the highest rank of an enlisted Marine. Mrs. Neff also has a son, Herman, fireman first class in the Navy. Her last letter from him came from Guadalcanal.

In endorsing the Grandmothers League founded by Mrs. Marshall, wife of the General, Mrs. Neff agrees with Mrs. Taggart that "in buying Bonds with our grandchildren as co-owners, we have an emergency fund to use if necessary. But we don't expect that. We want the Bonds to be there for the children's education."

New Plastic Paints Make Decorating Easy

Amateur with brush or applicator can do professional job.

THE new war-born plastic wall finishes make redecorating these days a far cry from old-style painting, when rooms were unusable for days while 2 or 3 coats of slow-drying paint were applied. Dora May Talcott writes in the Rural Home section of Capper's Farmer, a magazine read by 1,250,000 farm families.

With these new paints that can be applied by an amateur and that dry in an hour, rooms can be lived in the same day. There's no paint odor.

"You can paint right over the wallpaper with these new flat paints," Miss Talcott writes. "One coat covers most any wall and ceiling surface, including painted walls, plywood, wallboard, brick and basement walls.

"Employing a plastic base that makes it extremely durable and washable, this paint comes in paste form and is thinned with water—1 gallon of paste makes 1½ gallons of paint. It dries to a perfectly flat finish without lap marks or streaks, yet it can be washed with soap and water to remove finger marks and smudges."

DR. SOPHIA BRUNSON

CARE AND TRAINING OF CHILDREN (Part Three)

The child needs about a quart of milk a day. It is necessary for his well-being because it contains so many different constituents that go into the making of his body.

It supplies heat and energy which comes from the fats and carbohydrates. The tissues of the growing child need protein, of which there also is an abundance in milk. It not only builds new tissues, but repairs those that are old and worn out. It has some iron and large amounts of lime or calcium, of which the bones and teeth are made.

Cream is rich in vitamin A, which is essential to good vision and healthy mucous membranes. It also contains other vitamins in varying amounts. We have no other natural food that is more digestible than milk. Grown people are benefitted by it, as well as children.

The vitamins are body regulators. They stimulate growth and protect the body against infections. If they are not in the food in sufficient amounts the body becomes diseased. For example, the absence of vitamin C results in scurvy, which may not be severe, but show itself in bleeding gums, loose teeth, loss of appetite and chronic fatigue. It is very common among the poor in Europe.

Other Body Builders

There is lime in vegetables such as collards, mustard, turnip tops, green lettuce, cabbage, spinach and many other green leafy vegetables.

Phosphorous also is needed for the teeth and bones. It is contained in foods that are rich in lime. If there is a lack of iron and copper in the diet, the blood will be poor in quality. Liver, red meats, fruits and vegetables contain these valuable minerals, though greens are the richest source.

The orchards provide iron in many fruits. We also get iron from berries and grapes. Nuts are as good a source of protein as fruits.

Meat and Eggs

Milk and whole grain cereals form an excellent combination for breakfast or supper. Not only children, but grown-ups should eat a variety of foods, containing all of the elements necessary to sound body-building.

Parents ought not to have many varieties upon the table at the same meal, but the menus should be varied from day to day. Sameness in the diet is not conducive to appetite. Children should be taught to eat the food that is set before them.

Some mothers tell you, apparently with pride, "My work is made so hard for me. Sara won't touch vegetables and Johnny won't drink his milk. Lucy won't eat beans and I have to fix something different for each child."

Those children are being brought up in a silly manner. They are deprived of good foods and are being trained to become nuisances wherever they go by their cultivated likes and dislikes and the indulgence of their vagaries of appetite.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

PAUL AND THE CORINTHIANS

International Sunday School Lesson for May 28, 1944.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty might become rich."—II Corinthians 8: 9.

Lesson Text: II Corinthians 4: 16-18; 5: 1, 5-8; 14-19.

Last Sunday's lesson was taken from Paul's first letter to the Christians at Corinth, while this Sunday's lesson is from the second letter. Entirely different occasions called forth the two epistles, and, therefore, the themes of the letters are different.

This week, we enter upon a consideration of a couple of brief passages from the second letter, in which the great apostle tells how that he has lived as best he could in this world, although he has also had constantly in mind the fact that he was at the same time preparing for life in the next world into which he was willing to be transplanted at any hour of the day or night that might be acceptable to Christ, for whom he lived with a loyalty no other servant through the ages has approximated.

Because some persons had come to Corinth after Paul's first visit there who were teaching doctrines which Paul did not approve, it was necessary for Paul to defend both his conduct and his message, which he declared, "For we preach not ourselves, but Christ Jesus the Lord; and ourselves your servants for Jesus' sake." Paul, one of the humblest followers Christ ever had, never exploited himself or sought to advance himself by his preaching, but had always proclaimed Christ Jesus as Lord. Because of his faithfulness in proclaiming the gospel of Jesus Christ, Paul was terribly persecuted, suffering far more hardships for his Savior than anyone else who probably ever lived. However, instead of complaining about his sufferings, he regarded these hardships for his Lord, all the more so because he had caused so much suffering to Christ's servants before he had become a Christian.

So, in II Cor. 4: 5, we find Paul saying, "For which cause we faint not; but though our outward man perish, yet the inward man is renewed day by day." Paul gave of himself so devotedly to the task of preaching that he was wearing out his physical body at a rapid rate. He realized that he could not live much longer, but at the same time, he kept so close to God that his inward or spiritual strength was being renewed day by day.

This thought is excellently illustrated by the following story: John Quincy Adams met a friend one day who said, "Good morning, and how is John Quincy Adams today?" "Thank you," was the ex-President's reply, who was then eighty years of age. "John Quincy Adams himself is well, quite well, I thank you. But the house in which he lives at present is becoming dilapidated. It is tottering upon its foundations. Time and the seasons have nearly destroyed it. Its roof is pretty well worn out. Its walls are much shattered and are trembling with every wind. The old tenement is becoming almost uninhabitable, and I think John Quincy Adams will have to move out of it soon. But he himself is well, quite well."

Paul's eyes were not on this life, with its sorrows and hardships. His eyes were on his eternal life, with Christ, his Lord. He looked beyond this world to the next for his reward and recognition, for he realized that the things of this world are only temporary, whereas the things of the next world—the things not seen—are eternal. Paul knew that when the body in which his soul lived gave out or was worn out by the strenuous life he lived, he would be given an indestructible, eternal, spiritual body which not only would never wear out but would never grow old or even tired. Death and the grave held no terrors whatsoever for him.

While Paul kept his eyes on the ultimate goal of his life—eternal life with Christ—he kept busy while he was on this earth, preparing himself for that life, laying up treasures there, winning others so that they, too, might enjoy eternal life. And everything he did, he did because "The love of Christ constraineth us." He gave himself unreservedly to preaching the gospel amid all sorts of hardships and difficulties because he loved Christ so, and because he realized that the proclamation of the gospel would please his Saviour as nothing else would.

TO THE AMERICAN BOYS IN THE ARMED FORCES WHO WENT TO MEET A CHALLENGE A CHALLENGE OF PROTECTION OF FAITH AND GOD

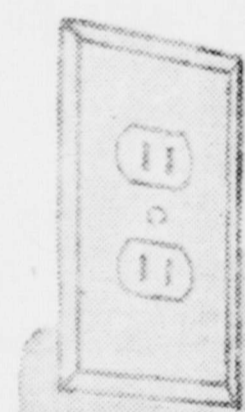

The history of America is one long story of the overcoming of threats to a peaceful existence. Since the Pilgrims, practically empty-handed, battled the rigors of climate and the onslaughts of hostile savages to found the nation we now know and love, we have been faced time and again with the necessity of defending a way of life that we revere far beyond the mere living of it. Ever content to mind our own national affairs, and to devote our energies toward the development of America's richness along the lines of peace and individual and collective happiness, we now must turn to total war to protect this wonderful thing called "The American Way of Life." And total war it must be, for the forces arrayed against us are far greater and stronger than we have ever faced before. Realizing the danger that faces America today, and realizing how much depends on the stout hearts and keen minds of our armed forces, it is with deepest sense of importance of the task America has undertaken that we commend these boys of the United States upon the grave responsibility they have undertaken in accepting the challenge of protection of Faith and God.

PROTECT THE LIFE LINE OF YOUR ELECTRIC APPLIANCES

Want to keep those appliances from getting old? Then, watch those "yanks"—a jerk of the cord can shorten the life of any appliance. When you pull out the cord, take a firm grasp on the plug and pull it out—Quick. Never yank the plug from the outlet by using the cord as a handle. Keeping your electric appliances clean is most important. The appliance may be washed with a damp, soapy cloth, but be sure no water gets into the motor.

Duck Creek Soil Conservation District NEWS NOTES

RILEY WOOTEN, Chm. OSCAR McGINTY, Sec.
WILL WRIGHT TOM MURDOCK A. A. FRY

In the early days of American agriculture, settlers found plenty of good land available at little cost, and acquired the habit of looking upon land as limitless and inexhaustible. The custom was to clear the plot, use it for a few years, until the top soil was washed away, and then clear another field or move to another tract. This destructive and wasteful tendency continued until only a few years ago, when fresh land suitable for clearing began to get scarce. In the process of exploitation, and migration from the worn out and to better land, there were left behind abandoned sites and millions of gullies. In the absence of soil conservation, the care soil was exposed to the devastating effects of erosion. More than 50 million acres of cropland have been ruined for further practical cultivation; another 50 million acres have been nearly as badly damaged and 100 million acres more have lost fully half of the topsoil. Of the 1,060,852,000 acres comprised in 6,096,800 farms and ranches of the United States, according to the 1940 census, about 398 million acres are in cultivation. If developed and improved with soil conservation practices, the total potential possibilities for crop production are 400 million acres. The topsoil remaining is now on the average, less than seven inches deep. Crop yields and production vary directly with the depth texture and structure of topsoil and with the amount of plant foods contained in it. Costs of production are higher and net farm income is much less when the top soil is removed.

It moves with every rain, and it moves as the wind passes across unprotected plains or other exposed dry sandy land. Topsoil is not replaceable, and subsoil can be made productive only after laborious processes and a long period of time.
