Muleshoe Basket- eers Defeat Mor- ton in Fast Game

The basket ball team, which was organized some two weeks ago by the town boys, walked over Morton town team last Friday night to the tune of 16 to 11. The game was played at the High School Gym and was full of pep and action from start to finish.

The local boys have played some four or five games in the past two weeks and are undefeated. They are working hard to keep this record up and are practicing two nights a week, Monday and Wednesday nights. It is understood that there will be another game in the near future and they ask the attendance and support of the citizens. They promise you a good clean and entertaining exhibition of basket ball.

Geo. Dodson Home Destroyed by Fire Saturday

The home of George Dodson, about two miles west of town, was destroyed by fire Saturday about noon. The house with practically all the contents was a total loss. Mrs. Dodson had just put some coal in a heater, and stepped outside to talk to Mr. Dodson, who was working near the house. On returning she found the room in flames. It is thought that the coal had caused an accumulation of gas in the stove which exploded. A small child was sleeping on a bed in the room and they barely had time to get it out. The people of Muleshoe and vicinity have donated freely with money and other necessities. About $150 was raised on short notice, besides articles of clothing and other things.

Muleshoe Merchants Well Equipped to Supply Needs.

Since coming to Muleshoe we have heard it said by a few, that the stores here were not well enough stocked. The Journal man has made several rounds of all the stores just to see how true this is. Muleshoe is a young town and small, but it is surprisingly above the average town for A-1 up-to-date stores. If you want high grade groceries, we claim Muleshoe has anything you want. If it's hardware or lumber you need not go elsewhere. And as for drugs, one of the cleanest lines we have ever seen is on display in this city. The dry goods and clothing people handle the very best, and nationally advertised stuff. The garages, filling stations and automobile agencies handle standard products. In fact, taken as a whole, we don't know where you could find better goods, and as for service—you'll travel many a mile before you'll beat it. Trade in Muleshoe, Mister, you won't go wrong.

Hard to Get Started

Purina Mills Man Says Great Oppor- tunities Here

S. H. Mitchell of the Purina Mills, manufacturers of commercial feeds, was in Muleshoe Friday and Saturday of last week, and was greatly impressed with the opportunities for poultry, cream and hog men in this section. "Being in the shallow water belt where an abundant feed crop is practically a certainty," says Mr. Mitchell, "it is left entirely up to the farmer to make it a paying proposition, which can be easily done. The best way to market a feed crop," Mr. Mitchell stated, "is on foot or in a cream can, or in other words, by keeping a number of good dairy cows, chickens or hogs."

According to Mr. Mitchell this territory has a wonderful start, and the farmers should put forth every effort to make it better. He advocates systematic feeding, using a balanced ration, and refers you to people in this neighborhood who have increased their cash returns many times by this method.

Mr. Mitchell will spend a number of days each month in this section, assisting the farmers that are interested in bettering their flocks and herds. It is to be hoped that the people interested in this line will take advantage of Mr. Mitchell's offer.

Longview Items

Everybody at this writing is extremely busy gathering crops. Most all feed had been gathered, much of it threshed, and the cotton is being gathered rapidly.

H. Sterling, prominent cotton buyer, reports cotton coming in volume at Baileyboro.

J. H. Johnson was painfully injured several days ago when thrown by a horse. He is reported somewhat improved.

Longview community feels honored in that Wiley Moore, star pitcher of the New York Yankees, is spending a few days visiting with his brother, Newton Moore and other relatives. Wiley, according to reports, is as mighty a hunter as he was a pitcher. However he sometimes has competition in bagging his ducks.

Jim H. Dyer, prominent boxing promoter and manager, is here this week visiting with relatives and is also scheduling a number of fights to be held in the near future.

Our school is progressing very nicely under the management of Mrs. L. L. Dyer and the enthusiastic teaching of T. H. Dyer. El Dulcie.

More Interest in Hog Raising Around Muleshoe

More interest is being shown in hog raising throughout the Muleshoe trade territory, which is a healthy sign that the farmers are on the right track to prosperity. There are a number of farmers owning fine bunches of hogs in this territory and the profits in sight are making them smile. The editor has been invited to visit some of these farms, but to date has been able to visit but one, that of Mr. G. W. Sollock. Mr. Sollock has a fine bunch of hogs, and of all sizes, from very young pigs to heavy weights. At this time he does not have registered stock, although some are qualified for registration. However, within a short time he is going to sell off these hogs and stock his place with pure bred Duroc Jerseys. Mr. Sollock realizes that the secret of success with any kind of livestock is the care and attention given, and is well equipped with good sheds, with water handy at all times. There is also plenty of range, which is cross fenced and planted in grain and clover for grazing purposes.

McCarty-Harden

The spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. Ira W. Harden was the scene of a very beautiful wedding Thursday evening, Nov. 24th, when Delma McCarty and Ruth Harden were happily united in marriage.

The home was beautifully and artistically decorated with pot plants and cut flowers. Mrs. Keeney played the wedding march. Miss Iris Harden, sister of the bride, and Mr. Buford Butts preceded the happy pair to a flower-banked altar. Rev. W. B. Hicks read a very beautiful and impressive ring ceremony. After the ceremony a delicious punch was served.

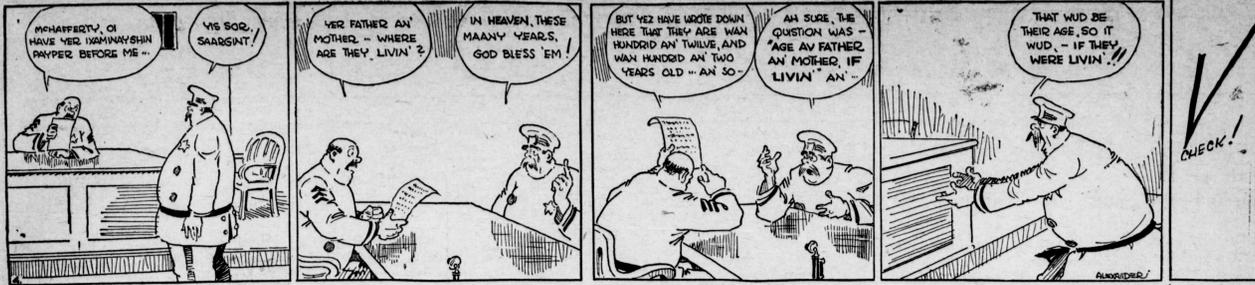

The wedding party then repaired to the dining hall of McCarty Drug Store where a delicious dinner was served. Mr. A. V. McCarty, Jr. acted as toastmaster of the occasion. He in turn introduced Mr. J. M. March, who very charmingly toasted the bride. Mrs. J. M. March then in her winning way toasted the groom. Mrs. W. B. Hicks proposed a toast to the old bachelor, Mr. Good Harden. Rev. W. B. Hicks was then introduced and with his pathos and humor kept the crowd in laughter over his experiences.

At a late hour we bade the happy couple good night, all wishing them a happy journey in their married life. A Guest.

CHAPTER XII

Garth found Joan Quarrier at the Mission school. Entering the building, he stood for a space in a doorway and watched her read to a group of Cree orphans.

As she looked up, aware of his presence, he said: "It is not February, but I have returned."

"Something is the matter?" she said, apprehensively. "What has happened at Elkwan?"

"Etienné shot himself."

"But you, why are you here? Why did you come?"

"For you."

"For me—to go to Elkwan?" Dazed at the idea, her hand touched her forehead, while the chattering children crowded curiously around them.

"He wants you. There may be infection—and you know how to save everything in your kit, bandages, stimulants, antiseptics."

"Let me put on my coat and we'll talk outside," she said, and he followed her. So they went to the clearing.

"I know well what I'm asking," she said. "It means a day on the sled—discomfort, for you, but he is my friend, and it may mean his life—or your coming."

Her troubled eyes turned to his. "I want to go—the sooner the better, going alone, with you—"

"Of course, Swan will make a fuss. To him it will look immoral—your going—to save a man's life," he said, savagely, "but for you—an army nurse, with a life at stake," he pleaded, "is there any choice?"

She smiled wistfully as she gazed over the frozen river.

"I've got to go. It's in my blood—to help them—the wounded."

His heart leaped at the words. "To help the strong—to help me—is that to your blood, too, Joan Quarrier?" he asked passionately.

She shivered and nodded his way, as a wave of cold swept up to her dark hair. "The strong need no help," she parried.

She gained in control of herself, the elated Guthrie smothered his own emotion in this thought for the stricken friend at Elkwan, for whom he had led to the man he respected and the girl he loved. And he wondered what she would say to him when she learned of the deception. That she would have come to Elkwan, had he told the truth, he had no doubt, but the secret of Galbraith's presence at Elkwan was a trust, sacred, inviolate. He had told Cameron that the crew of the Ghost had died to a man. At Albany, Laughing McDonald was a dead man. On the way up the coast, Joan Quarrier had died.

"Oh, ye of little faith!" Guthrie sadly shook his head. "What must I do to convince you?"

The girl made an answer.

Looking up, Garth saw, banded in fur cap and coat much too large for him, a short figure blocking their path.

"You are going on this mad journey?" the shrill voice of Swan demanded. "Do you hold your reputation so cheaply?"

"Yes! You have heard?"

"Yes! Mrs. Cameron has told me what this man has done."

"You're too late, Swan, she has promised to go," said Garth quietly, ignoring Guthrie, the little man gravely warned:

"You realize, Miss Quarrier, if you go, you cannot return to the mission?"

"Yes," Mr. Swan. Before I became a mission teacher, and my moral wear the object of my scorn, I have lived for three years with wounded men. A man's life is at stake. It is worth more than my reputation."

To Garth she said abruptly: "Come for me when you are ready. I'll go and pack my kit."

"Bravo. Healer of Wounds! That was spoken like a soldier and walking squarely at the mortified missionary, dazed at the flouting of his authority, who stepped into the soft snow to avoid the threatened collision, the elated Guthrie hurried to the trade-house.

"She'll go, she'll go!" he announced to the waiting friends.

"Good! You'll take good care of her, I know. I wish you the best of luck, my boy. She's a rare one—is Joan."

"Swan told her she couldn't return to the mission."

"A-ah!" contemptuously granted the others. "Well, Swan's eyes and get her belongings. She'll spend the rest of the winter with us. But she's much too valuable to the Swans for them to stick to their high horse. They'll be over trying to wheedle her into coming back."

"But I hope she won't."

It to take the ninety-mile run north to Elkwan and the sick man who, officially, had died on the Ghost.

At noon he drove his refreshed team to the mission where Joan, standing beside her duffle bags, waited in the snow.

With the light load of two passengers, the big runner sled—its wooden shoes shod with ice, which slips over a hard surface with less friction than steel and can be renewed at will, would be sport for the five powerful dogs. Driving over would be to bring skill and medicine to the succor of the guest at Elkwan, Garth hoped to reach the post before dawn, but much depended on the light. A thick fog would slow the dogs to a walk while crossing the mouths of the big rivers, where tide cracks opened and closed.

As the team set through the hummocks and ridges, but going by day—at night, heart-breaking to drive or dogs.

"You're not sorry—haven't regretted promising to come?" he asked, as he wrapped her in robes and stowed her bags.

She shook her head. "Not in the least. Mr. Swan, I've recited my prayer to the loss of the last shred of my reputation. It was a wild scene—in the house. They even praised me for it, when they realized threats were futile."

"Prayed for you—in the name of all our saints, they'll let an ignorant man die for want of proper care, because of my reputation? I must be a monster to them."

"Yes, I can truthfully say that after what my brother told you, they think you are a terrible person."

"But you?" he countered, leaning over the sled.

"Well—my dark eels flashed up into his, 'not exactly terrible, rather—' " "Marche, Castor?"

And the huskies, with Shot ahead, galloped to the trade-house. There the Cameron was waiting for the girl who had, also, burned her bridges. Shortly, down the cliff trail and over the river-ice raced the team, carrying hope for Craig Galbraith, deep into the heart of Elkwan, ninety white miles away.

As they left the river and turned up the coast, Guthrie's anxious eyes scanned the gray ledges and mountains of what would follow the haze-smothered sunset over the Keweenaw muskeg. For days, now, the weather had been like a Hudson's Bay winter, a characteristic of James Bay winters, which are milder than those of the forest country to the south.

sprawling in their harness, sniffling hungrily at the odor of bacon. Now that he was alone with Joan, was to be alone with her through the long miles to Elkwan, Guthrie felt strangely diffident. Until he had laid the truth before her, told of the love he bore this broken thing, once feared as Laughing McDonald, waiting in such sore need of her ministrations, and received her absolution for his deception, he would feel ill at ease with the woman who faced the world with the stark truth in her eyes.

"Let me see," she went on, "I know Castor and Pollux, but that cream-colored one?"

"Oh, that's Dido," he laughed, "and the white-gray one is Aeneas."

"Aeneas? And does he run away from her like his namesake?"

"Run away? Hardly. She's the fastest dog in the team. What's more, he doesn't try. He's more constant than Virgil's hero."

"What's the name of that surly one, who growls so much?"

"Oh, that's Achilles, of course, the sulker. But he's not so much of a hero. He's deathly afraid of Castor, and Shot fought him to a standstill, once."

"Pouring her a cupful of the steaming tea and making a sandwich with the bacon, he passed Joan her supper.

"My, I'm hungry! How good the tea tastes! But aren't the dogs to have some fish after their work?"

"No, they were fed this morning. If I feed them now, it would make them lazy; we wouldn't reach Elkwan before noon, and I'm worried—I'm afraid we're going to be too late as it is."

She looked up, puzzled at his tone.

"Why, you said he wasn't bleeding badly—no artery involved. It's only a matter of keeping the wound clean."

The moment had come.

"I have a confession to make to you, Joan Quarrier," he began. "I have lied to you—brought you from a warm shelter up this coast tonight on false pretenses."

"False pretenses! What do you mean?" She was curious but not disturbed.

"I have been the cause of your breaking with the Swans—given the missionary people the chance to raise their saintly eyebrows in horror—for what?"

"Why, my dear man!" she protested.

"To be sure, my dear man!" she protested.

ed. "I understand all that. They prattle can't hurt me, can it? I don't understand. Where is the lie?" He snaked in a deep breath and leaned toward her, as he said: "Etienné was not shot. You're on your way to help me save a friend—a friend who crawled with me on his back through gas and shell fire. They broke his arm and got him in the chest, but he came through. Can you guess what it is?"

"Her dark brows contracted as she met the pleading look of the man standing by the fire. Slowly she guessed the lie. "You said Etienné was hurt. Now you say it was some one else—I don't see."

"Laughing McDonald," she cried. "You said you found him on the schooner?"

"He was alive, but very sick—flu, pneumonia. I'm not sure—Etienné and an Indian took him to Elkwan while I came to ask you to go to help."

"Was this friend who saved your life—in France?" she asked, wide-eyed with surprise.

"Yes, Capt. Craig Galbraith. He took me, sent me to the coast."

"When he disappeared after the murder?" she broke in.

"That is unworthy of Joan Quarrier, pray, sensitively coming home with the Victoria Cross—twice won—should go mad when the wife he cherished, as I know he did, turns, in horror, to his strances, to a lover? Tell me, is it strances?"

"It was murder," she objected, half-hearantly.

"No, not if the man was struck in the chest of passion—as Galbraith could strike. It was retribution."

"After all, he was a gallant soldier," she mused aloud, "and he saved your life."

Ignoring the inference, Garth pressed his point, for he saw to his joy that his story had touched her.

"What is his bitterness—his agony—must have been, doomed forever to wear that mask, when the woman who should have been proud to bear his name—"

"Imagine his loneliness—his despair, when, in his need, she turned to another?"

"There was a mist in Joan Quarrier's eyes as she said: "You must have loved him greatly to defend him like this."

"He threw away his hope of reaching Elkwan, when he followed Shot to my shell-hole and started back with a gassed man: is it strange that I'm fighting for his life, oh, Healer of Wounds?"

For an instant, as he waited for her answer, she met the fierce prying of his eyes, then looked into the flickering light as she said to him: "You have won. I'll give all I have to save him—for he was a gallant soldier—and has suffered."

Joan Quarrier did not see the pride, the gratitude, and the love that shone down on her from Guthrie's eyes.

Great Emotional Role Long Without Friends

The role that is now considered by most actresses to be the world's greatest emotional part—Camille—once went begging for someone to play it, points out a noted actress in an article in Liberty. "When it was first written the part was refused by every actress in Paris," the writer explains. "Then, after it had gone begging for months, it was picked up and played by Madame Eugénie Doche, who needed a part very badly because she had been ill at the stage for a long time. So Madame Doche goes down in history as the first to play Camille. "Since then," the writer continues, "it is probably true that Camille has been played by more and greater actresses than any other role in the world. It was the part that won Sarah Bernhardt her first universal praise. Eleanor Duse played the part to cheers and tears, although quite differently. And there were so many others—Helena Modjeska, Clara Morris, Rejane, Fanny Davenport, Nance O'Neill, Olga Nethersole, Margaret Anglin, Ethel Barrymore. No wonder that Camille has been called 'the world's greatest emotional role.'"

"Secular" Music

The Latin word from which this term is taken simply means "age," as when we speak of something going "from age to age." In this way it applies only to the world and to worldly things. Thus, in our church a secular priest studies one performing his functions while still living in the world, as opposed to the monastic priest, who is cut off from it. Secular music, then, is the ordinary music of the ordinary world, its opposite being sacred or church music.

The BABY

No mother in this enlightened age would give her baby something she did not know was perfectly harmless, especially when a few drops of plain Castoria will right a baby's stomach and end almost any little ill. Freshness and fever, too; it seems no time until everything is serene. That's the beauty of Castoria; its gentle influence seems just what is needed. It does all that castor oil might accomplish, without shock to the system. Without the evil taste. It's delicious! Being purely vegetable, you can give it as often as there's a sign of cold; constipation; diarrhea; or need to aid sound, natural sleep. Just one warning: it is genuine Fletcher's Castoria that physicians recommend. Other preparations may be just as free from all doubtful drugs, but no child of this writer's is going to test them! Besides, the food, care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold.

Drugs Excite the Kidneys, Drink Water

Take Sals at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health. When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead, your back aches or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizziness, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good soft water rich in food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

The American Creed

I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign nation of many sovereign states; a perfect union, one and inseparable; established on those principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed lives and fortunes.

I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it; to support its constitution; to obey its laws; to respect its flag; and to defend it against all enemies.

New Ford Car

Four-wheel brakes, standard gear transmission, extraordinary acceleration, a speed of sixty miles an hour and more, a practically vibrationless engine, and unusual beauty in line and color are among the outstanding features of the new Ford cars, the first of which will be shown in many parts of the country next Friday. The generator, oiling system, steering gear and rear axle are of new Ford design, it is announced. And its 40-horse power engine has been so designed that it runs 20 to 30 miles an hour on a gallon of gasoline. In Muleshoe photographs and descriptive charts of the new cars will be on display at the Muleshoe Motor Co. show rooms where the public will be given the complete story of the new Ford car.

Duck Just "Dropped In"

A wounded teal duck provided John D. Reichardt of Iowa City, Iowa, with a toothsome meal. Reichardt, who is a confectioner, was working in the rear of his place when he saw a duck hovering over him. Suddenly it made for the open kitchen door and when he came to look for it he found the bird had come to rest on the gas range, just a few feet from a sizzling frying pan. The duck occupied that pan later.

Pretty Things that are Made at Home

both design and background alike. Cushions of chiffon velvet are new and extremely attractive. The quilting outlines the design as shown in the oblong velvet cushion centered in this picture.

Pleat-edged scalloped taffeta ruffles add a charming finish to the cushion or a covered or some other equally as attractive article for Christmas. Want to join this nation-wide "quilting bee"?

Several interesting types of quilted sofa cushions are shown in this picture, ranging from taffeta and fine velvet to humble calico patchwork—the kind that our grandmothers used to quilt.

Truth is, cushions made of quilted calico print are as cunning and clever as those of more pretentious materials. There's the calico patchwork cushion shown last in this group. Because of its quaintness it is as attractive though not so elegant as any of the others in this picture.

The first little cushion shown here uses an applique flower design of various colors of taffeta silk. This is sewed onto its silken background exactly as one makes the coverlets of unbleached muslin with applique of mercerized floral. The quilting covers.

SOFT BOWS AND ERRATIC HEMLINES CONTRIBUTE TO SMART STYLING

ONE soft bow after another adds its decorative note to the newer frocks. This tying of bows of soft material at neckline or in a series up and down the front of the dress is one way of accomplishing the feminine silhouette concerning which fashion has so much to say this season.

The effective youthful matron frock in the picture illustrates the idea in that its bolero-like blouse fits at the side over a fitted hipline. The chief of the new self-trimmed or rather untrimmed new satin frocks resort to tied bows on this order as a means of attaining "lines" of grace and charm.

And have you noticed with what "poetic license" skirts flaunt their uneven hemlines? Surely "variety is the spice of life" when it comes to this season's hemlines. The frock in the picture describes a very unusual hemline. In that the platted flounce has been slit into many strips which, being hemstitched, flutter at every step of the way. In many cases soft bows lead on to "vocal" hemlines. That is, the bows

MOTHER A Cross, Feverish Child is Bilious, Constipated

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Fig Syrup," that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping. When cross, irritable, feverish, or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless, "fruity laxative," and in a few hours all the food, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When the little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given. Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here, so don't be fooled. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company."

Home Coming

"You have traveled extensively?" "I have," answered Miss Cayenne. "What struck you as the most wonderful thing you saw?" "The American flag in New York harbor."

Finding His Sphere

"Why did you send your son into the air service?" "Because he is no earthly good."

First Session in 1800

Thought for Today

An acre of performance is worth a whole world of promise.—Howell. Nothing succeeds like success.

Her Worst Worry Ended for a Dime!

A Body Sweetness that Even Perspiration Can't Spoil

All the trick laxatives in the world can't tempt people who understand the properties of cascara. A hundred different drugs will purge the bowels, but a little natural cascara purifies the system clear through. Cleanses even the pores of your skin. Renders perspiration as innocuous as so much dew!

Your grandparents took "sals," and slowly washed away the mucous membrane with the waste. Mineral oils are better, but they leave the coating that your blood must then carry off through the pores. But when you cascarize the system, you get rid of all the poisons by normal muscular action of the bowels.

Don't get in the habit of taking medicine for constipation—or even for indigestion. If you have the habit, stop. A candy cascarate is a delightful form in which to take cascara. It takes the taste and the taste tempts most grown-ups to take more. And what a comfort to know you are that clean, wholesome condition that does away with any need of do-cascarae, even in warmest weather! Try a cascarae tonight! All druggists, 10c/25c.

"WHAT A JOY it was to find such an aid to utter cleanliness! My system is so purified, perspiration doesn't stain my garments and I just forget self now, after I've taken one or two —"

ISAIAH TEACHES RIGHT LIVING

LESSON TEXT—Isa. 5:1-23. GOLDEN TEXT—Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction and to keep himself unspotted from the world.

J. Israel, the Favored Nation (vv. 1, 7).

Their unique relation to God is presented under the figure of a vineyard. Observe: 1. God's peculiar favor (v. 1, 2). God did for this nation what He did for no other nation in the history of the world.

He gathered out the stones when the Canaanites were exterminated. The choicest vine which was planted therein was the Israelitish nation which had gone through the disciplinary process in Egyptian bondage. He built a tower in it when David Jerusalem was made its capital city.

2. The obligation of the nation (v. 2). The purpose of a vineyard is to bear fruit. The object of the husbandman in planting a vineyard and cultivating it is that it might bear fruit.

3. It bore only wild grapes (v. 4). 4. The desolation of the vineyard (v. 5-7). Since all efforts had been wasted, the owner of the vineyard now resolves to abandon it to the wild beasts of the forest.

5. The cause of this destruction are presented under six words, each well pronounced against a particular sin. 1. Monopoly and oppression of the poor (vv. 8-10).

2. The crime against which the first word was denounced is that of the avaricious grasping after property which leads to the accumulation of wealth in the hands of the few. 3. The sin here denounced is that of the greedy monopolist who in the agricultural district takes the form of the land grabber, in the commercial centers, the form of the big man crushing out the small ones.

4. Dissipation (vv. 11-17). The sin here denounced is drunkenness. Several features are connected with this one sin. (1) Drinking made the life business of some (v. 11).

(2) They got up early and continue until late at night, until their whole being is inflamed. (3) The effort to give their hellish business a show of refinement (v. 12). This is why pleasing music is heard pouring forth from the dens of infamy over our land.

(4) Blindness to God's warnings and judgments (v. 12). Their drinking and dissipation rendered them insensible to the dealings of Providence. (5) God's judgments for such sins (vv. 18-17).

(6) They went into captivity. The immediate cause assigned is ignorance, but it is a willful ignorance for which they are held responsible. They not only go into captivity, but there is great mortality among those who drink (v. 14). The records everywhere show a much higher death rate among drinking men. Drinking degenerates all classes (v. 15). The country itself was made a waste (v. 18, 19). So daring do they become that they defy the judgments of the Almighty (v. 19).

7. Moral confusion (v. 20). This was pronounced against those who try to adjust moral conditions to suit their sensual appetites. 8. Conceit (v. 21).

The fifth woe is pronounced against the sin of self-conceit. Many today have become so affected with it that they are unable to make moral discriminations. Having a false estimate of their own wisdom they plan and act without reference to God. 9. Perversion of justice (vv. 22, 23).

The sixth woe is denounced against those who are in places of justice as judges. Because of their lack of moral discrimination, and because of desire for temporal gain they cause justice to miscarry. Treatment of Sin Use sin! as it will use you. Spare it not for it will not spare you. It is your murderer, and the murderer of the world. Use it, therefore, as a murderer should be used.—Richard Baxter.

Handball Played in River

In accordance with an old custom the annual handball game between hundreds of young people representing the "Uppies" and "Downies," was strenuously played through the streets and lanes of Jedburgh, Scotland, and even into the River Jed recently. The contest started at noon and lasted for several hours, the players finally working their way into the river. Just at the moment when the "Uppies" were apparently losing the battle in a spot of river play, George Buffour, an Argentine farmer at present visiting his native town, headed a counter move, and despite a strong rebuff by the "Downies" the "Uppies" reached the Abbey Cauld. There, in deep water the ball was cut and the game declared won by the "Uppies."

62 Years in Tennessee and 46 in Texas THE FOLK'S BLACK-DRAUGHT For INDIGESTION - BILIOUSNESS - CONSTIPATION MR. SHIRLEY Says: "I consider Black-Draught the best purgative I have ever used. It is a wonderful medicine. Years ago, in Tennessee before I came to Texas, I knew about Black-Draught, and we used to keep it in our home, there. Whenever I had a spell of indigestion, I would take a dose of it and the spell would soon pass off. That is almost fifty years ago. For several years after I came to Texas, I was troubled with indigestion. I had sour stomach and sick headache. Some days I would feel dull and my head felt heavy. I found that taking Black-Draught would prevent this, so I never allowed myself to suffer long. Sometimes now I suffer from attacks of constipation. I always use Black-Draught when I have one of these spells, and it does not last long. I rarely take any kind of medicine, except an occasional dose of Black-Draught. It relieves constipation. I like a vegetable medicine. We try to keep this medicine in our home."
