Bulldogs Challenge Whirlwinds Here

Bulldogs, District Champs for 3 Years, Confident of Victory

Spur's Bulldogs will lock horns with the Floydada Whirlwinds on the Spur High School stadium at 3 p.m. on Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 30 for the district 4-A contest.

Both teams have played their schedule in district competition without a loss. Each squad has made an impressive record throughout the entire grid season.

The Bulldogs, with a colorful panorama of victories, and district champions of three years standing, are the heavy contenders for the 4-A title. They offer a distinct challenge to the less impressive record of the Whirlwinds.

Should the Bulldogs take the Floydada Whirlwinds, they very likely will face the Wellington Skyrocket in the bi-district play off, as the Skyrocket are leading in the district 3 with six straight wins and will play Wheeler this week, a team with six straight losses.

Eight members of the Bulldog eleven, four backs and four linemen, played on last year's championship team. Six members of the 1943 Whirlwinds, four linemen and one back are members of this year's squad.

Capt. Robert Greer Awarded Bronze Star For Gallant Action

Capt. Robert S. Green Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Greer Sr. of Spur has been awarded the Bronze Star for meritorious action with the Engineers somewhere in Germany.

With typical Yank modesty, Capt. Greer explained to his parents in a recent letter: "Have been recommended for the Bronze Star. Don't know why. All I did was get lost, run into a town full of Jerries, slipped quietly out, got a few guys and went back in and got them. The towns people made a lot of fuss, took my picture and gave all of us wine, freshly dug up after having been buried since 1939."

T/Sgt. Cleo Rogers writes his parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Rogers of Spur, from the Hawaiian Islands he likes that country fine. He is with the Air Transport Command and has been on the Island of Oahu in the Hawaiians about two months.

Lt. Ray E. Dickson Is Killed In Action

Mrs. Ray E. Dickson Jr., of Spur received word Thursday morning, Nov. 23, from the War Department that her husband, Lt. Ray E. Dickson Jr., was killed in action on Nov. 8, 1944. He was with the Field Artillery attached to the 80th Infantry Division of General Patton's Third Army in France. Lt. Dickson is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Dickson of Spur.

Ray was born Sept. 9, 1916, at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. He was a member of the First Christian church, and received his education in the Spur public schools. He was president of both the Junior and Senior classes while in high school and finished in 1933. After his graduation he entered A and M college and was there during the years of 1934 through 1937. Lt. Dickson also attended Texas Technological college for a summer term and the University of Texas during 1940-41. While a student of the University of Texas he married Miss Gertrude Hill of Eagle Pass, Texas, a graduate of the university.

Lt. Dickson entered the army in November, 1941 and received his training in Fort Bliss, Fort Riley and Camp Roberts and received his commission as a 2nd Lieutenant in the Field Artillery at Fort Sill, Okla., in March 1943, and was later stationed at Camp Gruber and Camp McCoy. He left the states in August 1944 and his wife was with him the entire time he was in the service prior to his departure.

A daughter, Marcia, was born to Lt. and Mrs. Dickson in May 1943 at Muskogee, Okla. and is now 18 months of age.

Ray's hobbies were literature and art and some of his best paintings were done while he was still in high school. He has had several articles published in magazines, the most recent appearing in the December issue of "The Progressive Farmer."

Besides his wife, parents and daughter, Lt. Dickson is survived by his sister, Mrs. Wm. M. Hilley, also of Spur.

Thanksgiving Day

By MILDRED DICKERSON

Jack Frost brushed a chilly, damp finger across the Plains of West Texas this week and paused to listen as the old folks kept muttering in bleak undertones about "how cold it is under foot." Pumpkin vines turned a dull gold. Thanksgiving Day is almost here.

Some few will have observed Thanksgiving on Nov. 23. But with true American obstinacy, many Americans will observe the last Thursday in November set apart as the annual festival for the year's blessings in the Sixteenth century.

Whatever day is observed, Thanksgiving should be an expression of gratitude, ever constant and forever with us. A deep appreciation of the simple blessings of our every day. A year 'round feeling, a manifold revelation to be expressed as a "thanksgiving" on the day set aside.

Centuries ago, when our forefathers first set aside a day to give divine thanks for the blessings of the new world, they were overcoming many obstacles. Hardships had been endured and yet the good and fine presented over all like a brilliant light shining as a symbol and a promise.

Through the years, that first day of Thanksgiving observance has been re-enacted. With bountiful feasts, celebrations and—yes—thankful prayers.

This year, perhaps more than ever before, we can still count our blessings without the proverbial "crossing of fingers." Why? Namely, for BEING AMERICANS. For those snow birds chirping on the slanting rosebush, and because, somehow, very slowly and carefully, the sun is weaving a hesitant ray from behind those erstwhile gloomy clouds and will one day break into that familiar red and gold smile for all to see! Yes, we have much to be thankful for!

Thanksgiving In Spur To Be Observed Nov. 30

Even though most of the Nation observed Thanksgiving day on Nov. 23, Texas, as a whole, under a proclamation issued by Gov. Coke R. Stevenson, will hold its traditional Thanksgiving services on Nov. 30.

As voted by the local chamber of commerce several weeks ago, Spur will observe Thanksgiving on Thursday, Nov. 30.

The local post office remained open Nov. 23 and will also remain open at the usual hours on Nov. 30. Rural carriers observed the Thanksgiving holiday on Nov. 23.

Spur schools, the Spur Security bank and all other places of business, with the exception of the four drug stores and all the downtown cafes, which will close only from 3 to 5 p.m., will remain closed throughout the day.

The spotlight of activities for the day, during which all business houses in Spur will be closed, is the football classic featuring Spur's Championship Bulldogs versus the Whirlwinds of Floydada at the Charles A. Jones Memorial stadium at 3 p. m. This district championship game is expected to draw Spur's largest crowd of football fans during the entire season.

Construction Work To Start As Soon As Poles Available

The long-time dream of Dickens and Kent county rural people to some day enjoy the benefits electricity the same as their city neighbors, was brought a step nearer to realization Tuesday when Robert Kuykendall, manager of the Dickens County Electric Cooperative, Inc., announced awarding of contract for construction of approximately 75 miles of rural electrification lines in the two counties, at a cost of $57,629.38.

Contract for construction of the lines was awarded to Eugene Ash Electric Co., Fort Worth, low bidders. Other construction companies submitting bids were Taylor and Montgomery, Lubbock, $62,682.36; Glade Construction Co., Fort Worth, $75,933.44.

Although no definite date for starting the work has been set, it will get under way as soon as poles can be secured, Kuykendall said. All other materials are available, he added. Construction of the lines will start at the east edge of town, but Kuykendall said he was not sufficiently familiar with the counties to outline the course the lines would traverse.

Current with which to power the lines after they are completed will be supplied by the Municipal Light and Power plant of Spur, Kuykendall also said.

Basketball Season to Open Saturday Night Dickens High Gym

The Dickens All Star's will feature such familiar faces as Clyde Latham, Giggis Noland, H. L. Futch, Kenneth Street Odell Holly, Rev. Hill, R. C. Littlefield, Willow Street and possibly others whose names are not available at this time.

Pat Fletcher Has Patr in Naval Battle Off Leyte Island

Pat Fletcher S 1/C, one of Mr. and Mrs. Jess Fletcher's four sons serving in the U. S. Navy, participated in the battle off Leyte Island with the Japanese Fleet.

The following was handed him by his ship's commanding officer:

"Probably all the papers and the radio have been full of the big fight we had off Leyte with the Jap Fleet on the 25th of October. As a matter of fact, you probably know more about the all-around picture of the battle than we do, who took part in it.

"From the viewpoint of the MANILA BAY here is what happened (everything can't be told, naturally, or the Jap would know as much as we do). Our first warning of what was up came when we were called to General Quarters about seven in the morning and the word was passed thru the ship that a large Jap force of battleships, cruisers and destroyers was attacking one of our CVE groups nearby. And, following close on the heels of that announcement came word that several of those battleships and cruisers and some destroyers were separating from the main body of their fleet and heading at full speed to strike us.

"That was the beginning of several very uncomfortable hours for us. We aren't the fastest ships afloat and the Jap's were closing the range on us much too rapidly for our peace of mind. After all, CVE's weren't intended for surface action.

"Our planes were our only means of defense—and most of them were armed for other purposes. We'd come out here to support the troops landing on Leyte, not to fight warships.

"But our bomb handling crews worked miracles in breaking out torpedoes and heavier bombs and loading the planes with a Sunday punch.

"When the flight took off that turned the Japs away from us, their shells were already beginning to fall within our destroyers' screen. It was truly just a matter of minutes until the MANILA BAY would have been under fire from their heavy guns. But due to the unexcelled aggressiveness and bravery of our pilots a desperate situation was turned into a great victory.

"At the beginning it was a defensive fight. We were fighting to save our ships and our skins. But after our pilots had dropped their torpedoes and bombs where they would do the most good and the Jap had turned from us it became an attack. When they turned, we turned—and the pursued became the pursuer. We threw everything we had at them, from rockets to depth bombs. They put their tails between their legs and ran, at full speed; and what had appeared at the outset of the morning to be a crushing defeat for the CVE Navy was turned into an utter rout of the main body of the Jap Fleet.

"We're pretty proud of the 'baby' carriers. We've demonstrated that they can take care and perhaps, now, they'll get the of themselves in any situation respect they have always deserved.

"The defeat of the Jap Fleet was the big event of the day. The air attack, of about 30 planes that they threw at us in the evening was an anticlimax. The same pilots, many of whom had flown eight or nine hours of combat that day, went out and knocked them down so fast that not one got a chance to drop a bomb near our ships. They too ran.

"All in all, as our admiral said, it was a big day for the little fellows.

"At the present, we have received dispatches from nearly every high ranking officer in the Navy commending us on our gallant and victorious battle."

Soldiers in Belgium Have Ham and Eggs—Except No Ham

Mrs. Emma Russell has received the following letter from her son, Pvt. Stanley A. Russell, somewhere in Belgium:

"Dear Mother,

"As I said, I will try to write you a longer letter tonight than the one I wrote today. I was in a hurry to get on the run I was talking about—the egg run.

"We really made a good haul today, got over a hundred eggs and one chicken. Had a nice supper tonight at eleven and now I am so full I can hardly write.

"I wish you could have seen the people's reactions when we were out getting the eggs. One small village was where we had most of our luck. We stopped at the first house and got two or three eggs and about five kids came and gathered around our vehicle. We had chocolate, gum and some assorted candy to trade. We gave the first kids candy and it wasn't long before we had all the kids running after eggs—"egges" is what they call them. We went all the way down the street and before we reached the last house we had a large box of eggs and had run out of candy, etc. Some of the boys went in the house and about 20 kids climbed in and hung on the vehicle. I gave them a short ride, and judging from the way they acted, I think it was the best time they had ever had in their lives.

"Everytime we would pull up to the next house in line, all the kids would follow, just a solid 'clack, clack,' from their wooden shoes. (Clack as in Clack?). Anyway it sure made us feel good to think that their families were so friendly. We gave all the old folks cigarettes and the kids candy. I think everyone was pretty well satisfied when we left.

"We tried to get another chicken, but as you can imagine, we have a hard time talking to these people. Anyway, one of the boys grabbed the chicken we had and was going to show it to the lady so she would know what we were talking about. Well, the chicken got loose. He started running and about twenty kids joined in. All of us were laughing our heads off. It was the funniest thing I ever saw. Most of the people knew the chicken belonged to us, but I suppose some of them thought we were running down their chickens.

"We have a stove in our tent and we had tomatoes, potatoes, onions and eggs for supper. For all of us, this was special after the one we had the mess hall. I suppose we will have the chicken tomorrow along with what is left of the eggs.

"I guess I have used the word 'chicken' enough by now, so will talk about something else.

"When we stop in any of the towns, the people—old and young—always stop and want to shake hands. All the elder ones want cigarettes and the younger ones want candy and gum. Most of them have fruit in a paper bag, and always insist on us having some of it.

"It is a pretty big country. Some of the people dress just as nice as the ones in the states. Most of them wear wooden shoes, and silk stockings are seldom ever seen. If anyone wanted to live over here, he could buy almost anything he would need. In the large towns all the stores are nice and have a good display always looking for something to play in the show cases. I am send home, but there isn't anything that can be shipped easily. I guess I will send some wooden shoes.

"We can get anything to eat in these stores but grease, which can't be bought anywhere. I have never seen eggs for sale, but the country people have plenty.

"These people will give you anything they have for a smoke. They can hardly get them, and when they do, they cost them about ten cents a cigarette."

Postal Officials

Public response to the Post Office Department's "Shop Now! Mail in November" campaign is good but needs to be better, according to Postmaster General Frank C. Walker.

"Extraordinary wartime conditions face us," Mr. Walker said. "Unless more people buy and mail this month the Postal service cannot do its job of delivering all Christmas gifts on time.

"It is not pleasing to us to have to ask the American people to mail packages so far in advance of the delivery date. We do so only because it has to be done. The job is a tremendous one, but we are confident that it will be done because we know from experience that given sound reasons Americans cooperate magnificently.

"Unprecedented shortages of man power and transportation facilities growing out of the war compel early mailing. The Postal Service has given 50,000 experienced employees to the armed forces and 300,000 railroad workers have gone to war. Equally serious is the fact that rail and other transport facilities are taxed to the limit with the great burden of war traffic which all of us know must take precedence.

"In a great number of our 43,000 post offices the man power situation is critical. The 200,000 extra workers whom we normally recruited to handle the swollen Christmas volume of mail were able to work long hours of overtime and to do heavy work. This cannot be expected from women and high school boys and girls to whom in large part we must look this year to meet the situation.

"The way in which everyone responded in making it possible for us to handle a volume of 70,000,000 parcels for the armed forces overseas leaves no doubt in my mind that in November Christmas mailing will be equally successful. I ask for the help of the press, radio, business advertisers, civic groups and all Americans in making it possible for the Postal Service to do its work.

"We urge every one to buy now, mail in November and mark gifts 'Do Not Open Until Christmas!'"

Thanksgiving FINDS U. S. TRULY BLESSED

● TODAY, THANKSGIVING 1944—we see our country engaged in a tremendous effort that is testing all of our capacities for ingenuity, for skill, for courage and patience. We can be thankful—and with confidence in the future—that the past has proven our ability to meet problems and to solve them, and that while our present position is a new one in history, it is not without precedent in kind and most certainly will yield to solution by the combined efforts of a people made incredibly strong by the blessings of nature and three centuries of freedom.

● SO, AS INDIVIDUALS, as a nation, as a people under GOD, we have much to be Thankful for on this Thanksgiving Day. Let each of us, individually, or as family groups, offer our Thanks as we sit down to that bountiful feast that is the outward sign of our gratitude.

Special Thanks to Service Men

● We on the Home Front express deep and heartfelt thanks to our boys overseas and others in our armed forces who are dedicating themselves so unstintingly to the cause of Victory. We pray that on next Thanksgiving Day the joys of family life and friendships can be resumed in all their true meaning.

Duck Creek Soil Conservation District NEWS NOTES

RILEY WOOTEN, Chm. OSCAR MCGINTY, Sec.
WILL WRIGHT TOM MURDOCK A. A. FREY

In May, 1943, Mr. Lawton Harvey of Midway Conservation Group, seeded five acres of cultivated land to a mixture of grasses. The mixture consisted of 30 pounds of Little Bluestem, 5 pounds of Buffalo, 8 pounds of Blue Grama and 55 pounds of Side Oats Grama. A recent check revealed an abundance of Side Oats and a smaller but well distributed amount of each of the other grasses seeded. Mr. Harvey plans to keep the weeds down by mowing. With average rainfall he will have a good cover of palatable grasses at the end of the growing season in 1945.

Mr. Joe Rose of Conservation Group 4, in the Duncan lat community, has an excellent demonstration of strip cropping. Most of his terraces have been planted to feed with cotton and other crops planted between the terraces. Two definite conservation advantages are obtained from this practice; one is the reduction in the wear and tear on the terraces which will call for less maintenance, and the other is the protection against wind and water erosion on the terrace and terrace interval.

The Supervisors of the Duck Creek Soil Conservation District held their regular monthly meeting last Thursday, November 16. Among other things accomplished, they approved the conservation plans on the following farms or ranches, comprising 4,638 acres: J. Baker, A. T. Duncan, H. W. Messer, E. C. McGee, B. J. Kellett, all of Spur Work Unit; J. J. Wells and L. R. Mason of the Post Work Unit. They also approved seven applications for assistance on 1,513 acres as follows: L. R. Reid, E. M. Locke, Jack Smithy, W. A. Perry, J. M. Steele, Carl George, Ed C. Brown, all of the Spur Work Unit area.

Texas fighting men of the famed 36th division grow furious when they hear predictions that "the war is just about over." They know better, and tell an authentic story that graphically proves their point.

When the "Texas Division" went in at Salerno, the men were told that little opposition was expected and that they would be able to conquer all Italy in less than three months.

But at Salerno beach they were met by a withering fire of rifles, machine guns, mortars and artillery, and many Texas boys made the supreme sacrifice. The predictions of a quick victory just made the whole thing more pitiful.

Incidentally, that prediction that Italy could be conquered in three months was made exactly 14 months ago, and Americans still are dying there. So the men of the 36th get fighting mad when they hear predictions that "the war is just about over."

When Capt. Faraon J. Moss, public relations officer of McCloskey General Hospital, spoke before the Austin Lions club recently as guest of State War Chest Manager Wayland D. Townner, he took with him two Texas heroes of the 36th, Corp. Richard Reno and M/Sgt. Bill Wasko.

Reno and Wasko were more than frank in letting the Lions know what wounded service men think of those who encourage "let down" rumors on the home front. They don't like civilians who sell their war bonds, either!

"Home was never like this!" That is probably what Willie Muzny of Galeston is thinking these days, as he lives in a sand-bagged foxhole in France. The army recently released a photograph showing Willie's battle-front home, with the Texan in the "doorway".

Kenneth Bennett of Pampa, Texas, who has seen much fighting in France, took time out to write a new military march, "Here Comes the Nineteenth!" Wick Fowler, Dallas News war correspondent, liked it, sent it back, and soon it will be published and played on radio programs.

When Lt. Dan Gilmore's Flying Fortress exploded during a mission over Europe, the Lulling bombardier experienced one of the war's most unusual escapes from death. He had just picked up his parachute when the blast came, and was hurled from the plane with the chute in his hands. He fell 10,000 feet before he was able to slip into the harness and pull the rip-cord, but he finally landed safely only three miles from the German lines.

Another Texan who marked up a new sort of record was Pvt. Dan Castro of New Braunfels.

Dan was advancing near Chateau Salins, France, when his rifle jammed at a crucial moment, with Nazis dead ahead. He grabbed a grenade and hurled it. Just as the grenade left his hand, a German 88 shell exploded, the blast hurling Castro into the air and wounding three of his comrades.

When Castro came down, he landed on a German "S" mine, which bounced him up into the air. Despite all this, and despite air again.

many wounds, he refused aid of litter-bearers and insisted upon helping other wounded men.

All of which proves that Texans are really tough. (Berlin papers please copy.)

WITH THE FIGHTING FORCES OF AMERICA!

Our Thanksgiving resembles to a great extent that of the Pilgrims... they gave thanks for their newly gained freedom. Today we again are fighting for this same freedom for which they suffered and died and which we now enjoy—and we join this nation in giving thanks for the guidance we are now receiving in our fight to maintain the American way of life for generations to come.

1917 Study Club Members Honor Mrs. J. H. Clay With Tea Tuesday P. M.

The 1917 Study Club members honored Mrs. J. H. Clay at a tea in the High School Home Economics Cottage on Tuesday afternoon.

Forty oil paintings, original work of Mrs. J. H. Clay and her daughter, Miss Sybil Clay, lined the waiting room, forming a picturesque background, and a striking and imaginary expression of their vivid artistic talents. Numerous water color sketches were displayed.

In the receiving line were: Mrs. Eula Perry, Julia Mae Hickman, Mrs. J. E. Berry, Nell J. Davis, Mrs. Fred C. Haile, Mrs. E. D. Hagins, Mrs. R. E. Dickson, Mrs. C. H. Elliott, Mrs. H. Hodges, Mrs. Clyde Bingham and Mrs. J. H. Bowman.

A musical program preceded the theme of the meeting. The audience joined in singing "America." Mrs. Oscar McGinty read the ever popular "L'Envoy" by Rudyard Kipling followed by "Vagabond House" by Don Blanding.

Mr. and Mrs. Ned Baird played the piano duet "The Glow-worm." A solo, "Wanting You," was beautifully sung by Mrs. George Gabriel, accompanied by Mrs. Ned Baird. Mrs. R. E. Dickson introduced the honoree.

The introduction featured Mrs. Clay's life as a citizen of long standing in Dickens county, a wife and mother of nine children and an artist who gained state-wide recognition from the original painting "Trouble Brewing" at the West Texas Art show in Fort Worth last March. The oil, "Trouble Brewing" is a

County Home Demonstration Office News

By AGNES M. MARRS, County Home Demonstration Agent

What is better than a luscious peach picked from your own tree? Nothing! A good peach crop in this section of the state is rare, but it could be more common if we would do all we can to produce peaches. Seeding peaches do better than budded varieties, as a rule, in this section of the state. Trees grown from seed produce fruit of an unknown quantity and quality. Seeds stored in damp excelsior for several days in the refrigerator then cracked before planting will assure seed sprouting. All fruit trees must be well cared for during the growing and producing seasons. Trees should have plenty of water during dry seasons. Weeds should be kept down in the orchard to give trees the food which weeds use.

The time for new planting begins immediately after the leaves on standing peach trees should be placed on root stock resistant to nematode, root knot, and root rot. The Shalil and Yunan peach, and the Marianna plum root systems or socks are good for this use.

At least one nive of honey bees per acre should be provided in a peach orchard, at least during the blooming season, because the majority of blossoms are pollinated by bees.

Smudge pots during extreme freezes will protect trees when buds have put out. Mr. Horace Wood found that all trees which were protected by this method O. L. Kelley discussed "Russia and the United States."

Refreshments of fruit cake and coffee were served to members present.

Mrs. T. H. Blackwell 20th Century Hostess

The Twentieth Century Study Club met Tuesday, Nov. 21 in the home of Mrs. T. H. Blackwell. Mrs. Erie Foster was the leader of the program on "Modern Russia."

Mrs. T. H. Blackwell offered "Russia's Contribution to the Modern World" after which Mrs.

produced fruit while other trees which were not protected had no fruit. This treatment requires some work and planning, but after all, isn't it worth it?

100 OCTANE GASOLINE won't grow wings on a car

EXPECT NO MIRACLES from your present car if the tank were filled with 100-octane gasoline.

Its motor was engineered specifically for the gasolines which were available at the time you bought your car. To secure the benefits of very high octane fuels, post-war motors will have much higher compression ratios, will be smaller and lighter, and will deliver greatly increased power and extraordinary mileage.

All this will be possible because of the super gasolines to be made available for motorists in the post-war period. And you have every reason to expect that Phillips will be among the first to offer these vastly improved motor fuels soon after victory.

Why? Because Phillips is today one of the nation's five largest producers of 100-octane aviation gasoline. Phillips is also one of the leaders in the war production of butadiene for synthetic rubber.

These achievements are a direct result of Phillips long years of peacetime research to extend the frontiers of knowledge concerning hydrocarbon chemistry. Other accomplishments, which cannot now be told for security reasons, flow from Phillips wartime exploration of the limitless possibilities of chemical production of new and better things from petroleum gases as well as from petroleum.

This is why we say: Every time you see the Phillips 66 Shield, let it remind you that Phillips refineries, in addition to producing gasolines, lubricants, and fuel oils... are also gigantic chemical plants pouring out weapons for victory.

DEMOCRACIES AND WAR

The effort to "make the world safe for democracy" must be made and made again until it succeeds but no one should be misled into thinking that the establishment of democracy throughout the world will automatically insure peace.

Democratic nations have gone to war. People, en masse, have responded to the war cries of demagogues. They will, perhaps, do so again. Therefore, it is vital that a force be created, and maintained, to prevent aggression by force of arms when necessary.

Until the world develops a bit more along the lines of mutual understanding, with an accompanying willingness to try to understand the problems of others, there is always the danger that the popular mind will be inflamed and that governments resting upon popular approval, will gradually proceed to positions that inevitably invite disputes that might lead to warfare.

Something of the type of mass emotion is seen, although on a small scale, in the propaganda efforts being exerted in the United States by various minorities. The Polish-Americans, for example, would persuade all of us to believe that, unless Poland gets what she wants, the structure of justice has collapsed and the principles of freedom abandoned.

There are others, including Italian-American, who seem to judge every proposal in regard to Italy from the standpoint of what they would like to have in that unfortunate country. These partisans are easily convinced that the "new Italy" is not being treated correctly and to forget that Italy, under Mussolini, sowed the seed that now present the harvest.

We could go on and name other groups, active in the domestic life of the nation. The tactics adopted emphasize wrongs, fancied and real, and overlook what has been gained. Regardless of what they have and enjoy, it is not enough. They parade incidents, magnify accidents and attribute all disappointment to grievances. Never do they stop to consider blessings, without which they would not have the opportunity to grumble.

NEED BLOOD DONATIONS

The treatment of wounded men, in the present war, is far better than that given fighters in any previous war. This is especially true of the men who fight under the American flag, because the nation has put their welfare above every other consideration.

The news comes from San Francisco that it is now possible to deliver fluid blood to Leyte Island forty-eight hours after it is drawn from a donor in that city. Moreover, the blood is seventy-five per cent efficient twenty-one days after being donated.

We have no expert knowledge as to the difference between blood plasma and fluid blood, but we understand that there are cases when a wounded man, who has lost oxygen as well as blood, requires liquid blood for recovery.

In this connection, a dispatch from Paris says that the Army newspaper, Stars and Stripes, declares, "There just isn't enough blood being given by folks back home." The paper intimates that the medics have been able to store up only two pints of blood for every man in action, although they have a quota of five pints of blood.

We call attention to this matter although it should be recognized that no serious effort has been made to secure blood donations in many areas of the nation. Evidently, donations in established centers have equalled the immediate demands of the service, but it is just possible that heavier casualties will make it necessary to call for a greater response.

The Stars and Stripes points out, however, that blood donations rise "when the war news is bad and fall when it gets good," but adds that "when the war news is good is when the blood is needed, because it takes blood—lots of blood—to make it good."

Individuals have a gift for making money but it is one of the lower forms of human activity.

MY DOCTOR

Last spring a woman of culture left her home in one of America's principal cities to spend six months in Arkansas. Soon after her arrival she came down with a common ailment and needed a surgeon. Her new neighbors almost failed to convince her that the village doctor was safe to consult. She asked: "If he's so wonderful, what's he doing here? A good doctor can make a lot of money in a city." She was right on one point. This doctor could make a lot of money in a city. He has not fared poorly where he is, but he never will be rich. He is not so much interested in money, however, as in a certain kind of success that's not measurable in dollars. He has a priceless estate of human lives. He can't leave people who owe their very existence to his skill.

A Rich Estate

This country doctor has the unfeigned love of his neighbors. His work has their unqualified approval, but that's only part of the story. He likes them too. Nobody suffers for medical attention where he lives. "He gets paid for it," do you say. Yes, he collects from about half his patients. But the humblest sharecropper can have the best doctor he ever heard of, and never see a bill.

Writing this, I have a particular physician in mind, but I'm satisfied you are thinking about another doctor as you read it. There is one in just about every country town; two or three in big places. America still has plenty of neighborhoods where men grow up and live to a ripe old age at one address. These are the spots where a doctor is a real person, not just a service.

The Case History

Knowing the people of his neighborhood is worth a great deal to a physician's success. Even a specialist, who treats strangers almost exclusively, will agree that a patient's history is more helpful to a doctor than an examination. That's why I don't want to swap doctors with you, and I hope you feel the same way. Together, we can save this country from the political curse of socialized medicine.

A firm protest from the folks of the creek, mountain coves and farming towns can keep the Wagner National Health Bill, now decomposing in a pigeon-hole of a Senate sub-committee, from ever coming to life. It was introduced with small hope of passage, its chief purpose perhaps was to raise the issue and start people talking about medical service as something to be standardized and rationed.

Certain to Lose

My doctor is a busy man. He works more nearly 16 hours a day than eight. A standardized working week of, say 40 hours for him would make two new doctors necessary. Of course both new men would have to study the community's health record, have to be well schooled as the older doctor and have to receive suitable salaries. It would be a bad deal, three ways:

(1) Some of my doctor's patients would have to accept treatment from a man with all to learn about them. (2) Since three men cost more to maintain than one, all of us would spend more money for medical aid. (3) My good doctor wouldn't be busy. The work he loves (his estate of lives) would be taken away from him. I figure his agile mind would turn to something else and that he'd quit being a doctor at all.

A DREAM OF THANKSGIVING . . . By COLLIER

LOOKING AT WASHINGTON

By HUGO S. SIMS

Warns That Japs Will Seek Easiest Way Out Of Defeat

Admiral William S. Halsey, Commandant of the Third Fleet which recently participated in the second battle of the Philippine Sea, says that "peace feelers are our greatest danger" and that "if a weakening at home" makes us listen, "we will only be giving the Japs time to prepare for a new war."

Speaking on his flagship, some where in the Pacific, the Admiral expresses the opinion that the big industrialists in Japan know that the war is lost. He says they will work to get the government in their control and when they succeed, "the first thing they will do is flood us with their peace feelers."

The Admiral's statement comes on the heels of a similar warning from Joseph C. Grew, who, for nearly ten years, preceding Pearl Harbor, was the American Ambassador at Tokyo. Speaking with his knowledge of the Japanese, the Ambassador warns that "an enticing peace offer may come from Japan at any time."

Mr. Grew reminds the American people that "there are many shrewd, level-headed, coldly calculating Japanese—including not only some of their statesmen, but also men such as those who built up the great business houses and shipping companies and industrial concerns of Japan."

Pointing out that these men know what has happened to their merchant fleet and navy and what is about to happen to their industrial plants, Mr. Grew thinks that it is almost certain that they will make an attempt to save something from the wreckage before the ruin is complete.

The former Ambassador thinks that a "liberal" front will be put on a government which will appear to throw the aggressive war lords out. Knowing that the war is irretrievably lost, it may propose to reestablish pre-war boundaries and even the relinquishment of some Pacific outposts and Manchuria.

This will be the dangerous time, according to Mr. Grew, because "the temptation to call it a day might be stronger than we can now visualize." He warns that no matter "how alluring such a peace may be, or how desirous we may become of ending this terrible conflict," it will be a "moment of fear, not for ourselves but for our sons and grandsons," who may "have to fight this war over again in the next generation."

The Japanese, like the Germans, realizing their aggressive designs have been thwarted, may be expected to seek something of a compromise peace in order to retain a nucleus of power upon which to build fresh armaments for another effort.

The argument for an inconclusive peace includes many short-term benefits, which will undoubtedly be alluring to those who have loved ones in the combat zones. It overlooks, however, the determination of this country to proceed to a thorough settlement in order to reap long-term benefits, such as peace for many years, through the conclusive destruction of German and Japanese military power.

The point to remember is that when we have our enemies on their knees, taking the count, we must determine to floor them completely when they attempt to completion of our present task.

No One Nation Can Hope To Rule Real Alliance

Let us assume that the United States, Great Britain and Soviet Russia, through their leaders, get together for a talk upon possible arrangements that must be made when the war is ended.

What should the President do, as the spokesman for the republic? Should he blandly announce that he speaks for us and that we know all the answers, that unless the other nations are ready to agree to what we think should be done we will abandon the parley, or should he make an effort to reach an agreement with the other nations?

Regardless of the readiness of the average American to know everything, with little study and less thought, there is no reason whatever to believe that Prime Minister Churchill, representing the British, and Joseph Stalin, representing Russia, are prepared to permit us to decide all matters from the standpoint of what the people of the United States happen to think.

It may as well be understood, now and forever, that when three great nations seek to perfect a common agreement upon an international question, there must be a spirit of compromise. No one nation will get everything according to its notion. We would not permit the British to decide every question nor the Russians; neither will they permit us.

The United States will have to accept some decisions that will not meet our idea of justice and prosperity. So will the British Empire and the Soviet. To secure joint action there must be a meeting of the minds upon what Secretary Hull calls the common denominator. To enter a parley with any other idea is to make certain its failure.

Today American soldiers march on fronts all over the world—while at home Americans are striving to march with them on the production front. The Municipally owned light and power company employee stands out in the front rank—he cannot fall back or falter—he must keep electric energy, the life blood of all industry, flowing in order that American enterprise production may keep up its great march towards peace abroad.

AMERICA IS ON THE MARCH! We Americans are not unfamiliar with being on the march towards freedom, liberty, and peace. The early New England settlers were marching toward freedom and individual liberty when they set out for their log churches—the colonial farmers were marching for freedom and liberty when they rallied to the call of Lexington—in 1917 our men outmarched the Kaiser in France. Many were forced to fall by the wayside in their heroic efforts and it is to these and all who have served in World War I and World War II, we pay tribute on this Nov. 30—Thanksgiving Day.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE CHRISTIAN'S VIEW OF INDUSTRY

International Sunday School Lesson for November 26, 1944

GOLDEN TEXT: "Let him that stole steal no more; but rather let him labour, working with his hands the thing which is good, that he may have to give him that needeth."—Ephesians 4: 28.

Lesson Text: Luke 19: 15-26
Thessalonians 3: 10-12.

So closely related are various individual and social problems to the earning and spending of money that it is certainly proper that this lesson be included in our quest for light from Christ on life's problems today. There is perhaps no area in life today where confusion and peril are more foreboding than in the economic order.

There is no hope for the solution of these problems apart from the application of Christian principles.

In the larger scriptural background suggested for this lesson is a passage from Deuteronomy, in which Moses exhorts the children of Israel to fidelity to God on the grounds of God's abundant blessings to them, and a warning to them about the perils of prosperity. Then follows a definite declaration that God is the source of all wealth, "But thou shalt remember the Lord thy God: for it is He that giveth thee power to get wealth."

Moses' warning to the Israelites is needed today. When people prosper in the material things of the world, they are tempted to forget their dependence upon God. Material prosperity encourages spiritual indifference. We see abundant evidence of this trend in our country today. With the national and per capita wealth greater than in any other time in our entire history, with wages high and savings accounts reaching an unprecedented total, people seem less aware of their need of God, even though the most terrible war in the history of the world is in progress. This would not be true if people would only remember that God himself is the source of all wealth and to Him should be thanks of grateful people for His goodness to them.

Contrary to the beliefs of some people, the Bible and the teachings of Jesus do not discourage the accumulating of material possessions. All through the Bible are exhortations to industry, to diligence and to steadfastness of purpose. Of course, there are warnings against the wrong motive in such accumulating and against covetousness. Jesus himself often recommended faithfulness in industry and set the example Himself, in word and deed, of one who was busily at work. In the Parable given for our edification the servant who did nothing.

God has entrusted to every normal human being the ability to do some particular work in the world and every person is expected to make his or her contribution to the world. Each person will be commended or condemned in proportion as he or she fulfills his destiny in his lifetime. While everyone is not expected to do the same task, everyone is expected to do his task, and it is up to that individual to find the task for which he is best fitted by talent and temperament.

The Christian, in selecting his vocation or in operating his business, should be guided by a desire to develop the finest powers of his life and to devote them to the betterment of himself and for the good of others. He should avoid working in or operating any business which does not foster the common good. No business can be considered legitimate by a Christian if it hurts men physically, mentally, or spiritually. It stands condemned if it has to be operated by dishonesty. Therefore, a business is justified according to the Christian view if it contributes to the welfare of society as a whole by contributing to the full-rounded welfare of the individuals which make up that society.

There would be no friction between capital and labor if both capital and labor operated along Christian principles. Capital would, if Christian, operate unselfishly, with the welfare of labor in mind and labor, on its part, would give a dollar's labor for a dollar's wage. This profit motive is justifiable only to the degree of a legitimate return from one's investment. Beyond that point it encourages covetousness and hinders the welfare of society as a whole.

Let's say, with Henry Van Dyke: Let me but find it in my heart to say, When vagrant wishes beckon me astray, "This is my work, my blessing, not my doom; Of all who live, I am the one by whom This work can best be done in the right way."

Health and Beauty

LISTEN YOUTH!

You are standing upon the threshold of life. Only two roads lie before you. One of them seems very pleasant and easy to travel but it will not always be so. There are swamps and morasses along the way in which hidden dangers lurk.

Many groups of young people have started down this road that seemed so fair to them. But, alas, they have been overcome by enemies who come to them in the guise of fair friends. They promised them pleasure if they would but yield to their seductions.

Some of these young people have turned back and have gotten who started upon the wrong road ten into the right road. But those who heedlessly remain on the road will find out when it is too late that they the hopelessly entangled in the morasses of bad habits, shattered health and weakened will.

Listen youth! It is fashionable to drink cocktails today. There are many parties and social gatherings where alcohol is served. You'd better let it alone. It is one of the chief enemies that you will encounter upon the wrong road.

Alcohol seems to be such a jolly good fellow. He's wearing a mask. If you cultivate him, that pleasing face will change and some day you will know him for the fiend that he is. If you listen to his siren song and follow him, he'll lead you down to disgrace and despair, perhaps a madhouse, or an early death.

Let us look at some of the facts about alcohol. It is a narcotic poison. At first it seems to exhilarate, to stimulate. When you

"LIKE TO SWAP NIGHT CLUBS, PAL?"

"Sorry, chum—no ringside seats. You sit in the mud, see?"

"You got a floor show of lizards and mosquitoes crawling over your face."

"You got a nice little 4-piece orchestra of Jap mortars, Zeros, machine guns, and your best friend screaming in the next foxhole."

"Come any time, pal. The show goes on all night. For a long time. There's never a cover charge. Not even for the flag they put over you when they carry you out."

We're all human.

We all like to go dancing or see a show or buy an extra suit or dress occasionally. But this war still has a long way to go. There are still 75 million Japs who don't believe in surrendering.

So during this 6th War Loan, how about putting all that luxury money into something a little more permanent—an extra $100 War Bond at least—to help get this thing really over and bring those boys of ours home?

It'll hurt! But not as much as the Jap bayonet in your neighbor's stomach. You get something back—in ten years —$4 for every $3 invested. He doesn't.

BUY AT LEAST ONE EXTRA $100 WAR BOND TODAY!

Thanksgiving Finds Us Truly Blessed...

As We Open Our Hearts... Our Homes and Our Purses in Behalf of Victory... Peace... and Our Loved One's Return

Our homes still stand; our income is generous. We can buy all the food, shelter and clothing we actually need—and produce enough in addition to make our fighting men the best equipped in the world, and to supply our gallant allies who are less self-sufficient than ourselves.

There is ample reason for Thanksgiving in the heart of every one of us. And it is a spirit to share with others: especially with someone far from home and lonely who can take the place at our own dinner table, left vacant by a loved one in service. Someone in uniform, whose own folks may be making up for his or her absence by entertaining yet another lad or lass in olive drab or navy blue.

And not a word will be said about not being able to get all of the Thanksgiving dinner standbys! Even if we can't have plates full of turkey—any palate or appetite can be satisfied with crisp-skinned roast duck; the sweet meat of goose, or chicken browned to a glaze! Actually, there'll be more Thanksgiving in our hearts, knowing that our small "doing without" makes it possible for our men at war around the world to at least be warmed by the home-y spirit of Thanksgiving: The important thing is that each of them has a heaping portion of turkey!

Of course you'll make it a wonderful Thanksgiving—for others as well as yourself. Because Thanksgiving is as American as the spirit of freedom we are now engaged in keeping alive at any cost! And the observance of this Thanksgiving is for each of us a rededication to the liberty-insuring precepts by which we live.

Above all, it's the day to make sure there will always be Thanksgiving—by deciding to buy War Bonds and hold them.

MAKE YOUR OWN BREAD AND ROLLS

Crisp, cool weather stimulates the desire for fragrant home-made bread and crusty sweet rolls. Contrary to popular opinion, good bread and rolls are easy to make if these few tips are followed.

Have the oven checked so that it registers the temperatures necessary for bread baking. Those home-makers who live beyond city gas main and have gas ranges served with butane or propane, will find that bread bakes more easily in gas ovens.

There is enough moisture to keep the bread from drying out, and still a hot enough heat to brown it evenly on top, bottom and sides.

Use your favorite bread recipe. After the bread has been baked, remove it from the tin so that it doesn't become soggy. Sweet rolls should be brushed with lightly beaten egg and water to add a glazed appearance. If you desire soft rolls or bread, brush with melted butter or substitute before and after baking, and then cover with a fresh, clean towel while cooling.
