Valentine Party At M. E. Church Monday Night

The Epworth League held a very interesting Social Monday night at the Methodist parsonage. The house was decorated with a profusion of red hearts, carrying out the theme of this being leap year. The young men were given broken hearts and were asked to write the name of some young lady who had broken their heart. This produced a great deal of merriment. The young men were also given hearts and the young ladies were asked to propose to the young men and see how many hearts they could secure. Miss Grace Chapin proved that she could propose most charmingly. At a late hour the merry crowd departed declaring that they had had a wonderful time.

Items of Interest From West Camp

We were too busy last week getting ready for our carnival to write any news, but we are glad to report that our carnival was a success and we were able to express our appreciation to our local merchants who made our carnival a success by their liberal donations. These donations consisted of everything from hairpins, brooms, gasoline and kerosene, to a half ton of coal. Our biggest returns came from these donations, and we people of West Camp think we should especially remember the following firms: Kemp Lumber Co., Farrell, Texas. State Line Tribune, Farrell, Texas; Doose Oil Co., Farrell and Texaco, N. M.; Panhandle Lumber Co., Texico, N. M.; Texas Oil Company, Farrell; Farmers Elevator Co., Farrell; E. Crawford Grocery, Texico, N. M.; Tidwell Grocery, Farrell; C. W. Hill and Son, Texico, N. M.; Fox Drug Store, Farrell, Texas; Bob Kyker Barber Shop, Farrell, Texas; R. E. Card Furniture Store, Texico, N. M.; Henington Cash Grocery, Mulshoe, Texas; Hart Lumber Co., Mulshoe, Bailey County Elevator, Mulshoe, D. H. Williams Grocery, West Camp.

Mr. and Mrs. Hartgrove visited at Lumbardy last Sunday. Mr. Carl Dotson and family have moved to Lela Lake, Texas. Bro. H. H. Copeland filled his regular appointment last Sunday. Mrs. T. H. Adair returned home from Dallas last week where she has been with her little daughter, Ruby, who is being treated at the Scottish Rites Hospital. Olen Burch and wife visited Mr. and Mrs. Hufstader last Friday night.

Mulshoe Calves Top The Market At Fort Worth

Mulshoe is fast becoming one of the leading cattle feeding towns of the Plains. M. S. Stidham shipped two cars of fine calves last week which he has had on feed for about one hundred days. They gained in weight every day after he got them on full feed. They weighed 749 pounds and were sold to Mr. Fuqua of Amarillo, who placed them on the Fort Worth market and topped the market bringing 12 cents per pound, or $89.88 per head.

Famous Picture At Brooks Theatre

"The Wolf Hunter" a James Oliver Curwood story, will be shown at the Brooks Theatre Friday and Saturday night. This picture was to be shown last week but because of being misshipped, did not get here. Readers of Mulshoe stories will enjoy this picture as it is one of his best.

Mulshoe Wins 2nd Place At Lamesa

Mulshoe High School girls basket ball team also secured the South Plains Tournament held at Lamesa High School Gym last Friday and Saturday, February 10th and 11th. There were over sixteen teams competing for honors at the tournament. Lamesa won first place by taking the last game from Mulshoe. They were the strongest opposition so far, but "off" the last game, or beyond any doubt Mulshoe would have captured first place. Mulshoe was the outstanding team of the tournament.

Everyone who saw the teams in action gave wordy expression of Mulshoe's ability and the ease with which they won. The prize money was too much prize was not good for the team because it gave too much confidence. We knew we had the strongest team. We already defeated Slaton by a score of 21 to 42, and Slaton was conceded to be the strongest opposition Mulshoe would have. With the strongest opposition they fighting spirit naturally let up some on the part of the Mulshoe team.

The Lamesa game was started with a lower spirit than the other games and when Lamesa's team came out with so much more fight than shown before, they really broke our feet. Our greatest weakness seemed to be in getting the ball from center. Our jump center was unable to get the tip-off and the ball broke up the play of signals. At the end of the third quarter Velma McDorman one tall forward was substituted to get the tip-off and from that time on to the end of the game Mulshoe played her signals. The game ended 34 to 27 in Lamesa's favor.

The first game of the tournament was played with Tutum, N. M. This was a "walk over" for Mulshoe. All substitutes were played the second half and the game ended 67 to 9 in favor of Mulshoe. This game was played at 8 o'clock Friday night.

The second game was with Slaton, played Saturday at 3:30 p. m. and the final game with Lamesa Saturday night at 7:30.

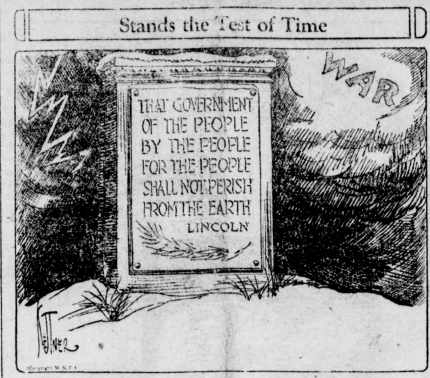

The officials of the tournament were three young ladies who played on Lamesa's team last year and the preceding year. There was no little criticism on this point.

With the exception of losing the victory Saturday night every person who made the trip had a wonderful time, greatly enjoyed the stay in Lamesa and the friendly toward each other displayed by all the competing teams. We generally appreciate the donations made by the business men of the town and the other people of the community to send the team to Lamesa. $41.38 was contributed an 4th cent of the trip was $46.65. We would not forget to thank Mr. Good Harden for letting his sister Ruth and Iris bring the team to Fort Worth. Those making the trip were Velma McDorman, Mild Morris, Catherine Scribner, Oliver West, Ruth McCarty, LeRoy and Fred Harden, Joe Mae Classcock, Inez Farrell, Miss Woods as sponsor, Mr. Jenkins as coach and Mrs. Jenkins. The loss of this game will not discourage the Mulshoe team for entrance at the State meet at Dublin, which meets March 15th and 17th.

We feel that the lessons learned at Lamesa will greatly increase our possibility to win at the State. Maybe the defeat was a blessing in disguise. At least we will know about how to play a tournament. Last year we took runner up at the State, and this year we have a stronger club than last year. We had not only six good players. This year we have nine and from this time it would be hard to pick the best.

Rev. Roy Mayless of Bristlewood, who serves the Mulshoe circuit of the Methodist church reports his work moving along nicely and some progress is being made.

Local Merchants Offer Subscription Coupons To Journal

Through the kindness and generosity of two of our local merchants, the Valley Motor Company, Chevrolet dealers, and Gupion Grocery Company, the Journal is pleased to announce that beginning on the 17th of February, and continuing through to March 3rd, they will present to their many customers a coupon which, when presented at The Journal office with one dollar, will entitle the holder to one full year's subscription to The Mulshoe Journal.

K. K. Smith and Connie Gupion, local city "Dads" stated to The Journal that not only would they offer this exceptional opportunity to new subscribers, but they extended this privilege to persons now taking the Journal. Their plan which they have announced to their ad elsewhere in this issue, of The Journal is indeed very simple, as your only requirement to secure a coupon at Valley Motor Co. is a dollar purchase, and at Gupion Grocery Co., a coupon will be given with each bill of groceries.

Read their ads and don't fail to "pick it up" on "em". We're for you.

Much Progress Being Made In Con- quest Campaign

The campaign of visiting our Baptist churches with a group of pastors or speakers and spending a day with each one, is coming fine in both of the Associations of Floyd County and Slaton Plains. These two Associations have about six or seven counties and are the very heart of the Plains country.

Our Baptist work in Texas and over the South has grown so fast in the last few years that our offerings have not kept up with it and this has meant some debt at the present time. Every true Baptist is certainly happy and glad at heart of our great unusual growth, but this can not be continued unless we give the necessary funds to carry it on.

A boy's clothing cost much more when he is 18 or 20 years old than they do when he is 5 or 6 years old and the percentage of his earnings amount to clothe their son. They are glad he is larger. Just so it is with our Baptist multitude and institutions. We never were so large and doing so many things for God and the Kingdom as we are today.

We want to urge every Baptist who lives his denomination and every friend and sympathizer who is not a member and wants to help a good cause, to attend all these rallies when they come for a day at your nearest church in these several counties. G. W. Tubbs of Floydada and H. F. Aulick of Abernathy, organizers in the Slaton Plains Association, either of these men will be glad to serve any of the churches in every way they can. Call on them.

Interesting Facts About The Farm Special Exhibits

The three cars of the Texas Farm Special carried exhibits by the A. & M. College of Texas pointing out the results of the latest experiments in agricultural development and illustrating the benefits of improved methods.

A special effort to interest the women and girls was apparent in the numerous exhibits designed to bring their attention to the ways in which housework may be made easier. One of these exhibits dealt with inexpensive and attractive children's clothes, the garments shown being the work of club members. Another exhibit dealt with meal preparation, showing the well planned pantry and equipment to save both time and labor. One of the exhibits that attracted much attention was that of rugs made of gunny sacks. What may be done with gunny sacks and rugs was illustrated in this exhibit, which was the work of club members of the lot were made of gunny sacks.

The livestock car carried hogs, cows, sheep and bay beavers. A Duroc Jersey sow of three years old and weighing 725 pounds, was shown as a very profitable type for the farmer. Proper feeding methods for livestock and poultry were stressed and the lessons were worth while. One pig fed all the kafir chops it would eat, weighed only 48 pounds as compared with the 182 pound weight of the pig fed all the kafir chops it would eat as well as a pound a day of protein supplement to give it a balanced ration.

Something of what the 4-H club boys are doing in agricultural development was brought out in an exhibit showing how the boy farmers have improved yields in grain sorghum, cotton and corn. While the average yield in Texas of grain sorghum is 182 bushels per acre, the boys have produced 40 bushels. They have produced 33 bushels of corn an acre against 22 bushels. The average yield of all lot others is 8,615 farm club boys enrolled in Texas.

The general agricultural exhibits each had a story to tell of better yields through improved methods. It is to be regretted that the weather was such that the farmers could not see these exhibits, however, the Santa Fe official expressed it. "They brought a good portion of moisture for the farmers, which will make them feel good."

Bailey County Prosperity Shown In Produce Sales

The true prosperity of Bailey County is shown by the sales of Produce for the month. The produce of the county is increasing each week, so report our produce men. The prices on all produce for the month have been steady. The egg market and price has been the most unsteady of all.

According to a check-up there has been 12,000 to 13,000 pounds of poultry, 1,650 cases of eggs, $2,000 worth of cream, 1,100 pounds of hides and over $300 worth of furs, consisting of mink, badger, etc., bought here the past month.

As a result of these products, business has been good among the different business houses. Our progressive people are securing better dairy herds of registered type, also better and more highly pedigreed flocks of poultry.

According to recent newspaper reports, Swisher county has more accredited dairy herds than any county in the state. By a recent checkup by the Chamber of Commerce of Tulsa, it was revealed that there was more than 7,000 head of dairy cattle. Dairy products for 1927 exceeded $850,000 and that by the increase it would exceed $1,000,000 in 1928.

If other counties of the Plains can secure this, we see no reason why Bailey county could not do better. We can if we work and boost for it.

Snow Helps Wel- come Farm And Home Special Here

The Santa Fe Farm and Home Special with A. & M. College co-operating, arrived on schedule time Thursday morning, February 15. The exhibits on snow storm the crowd was small. However, some 75 or 80 interested people met the special and inspected the exhibits. Arrangements had been made to have all the school children on hand, but due to the weather, it was an impossibility.

Talks by specialists of A. & M. College and the variety of interesting exhibits that filled three cars of the train set forth in a graphic way the benefits of improved farming methods and how life on the farm may be made more comfortable, happier and more profitable. The exhibits on snow storm the crowd found concrete illustrations of the points brought out by the speakers. Diversification and the live-at-home ideas were emphasized.

The stop of the special here was one of the total of 11 included in its six weeks' itinerary which will end January 16 at Navasota, Grimes County, in Central East Texas, and will lend February 25 at Fallett, Limestone county in the Northeastern corner of the Panhandle. The special is an eight car train, three of the cars being fitted with state-wide scope displays of the points brought out by the speakers. Diversification and the live-at-home ideas were emphasized.

The 1928 Texas Farm Special is the third agricultural train operated in Texas. The first was operated by Santa Fe and the A. & M. College co-operating. The first was in 1923 and was in West Texas. The present special is the first with state-wide scope. J. D. Linsley, general agricultural agent of the Santa Fe at Amarillo was master of ceremonies of the local stop. The exhibits aboard are the best ever carried on a Santa Fe A. & M. train, he said. "They tell in affine way what our A. & M. College is doing in promoting better agricultural conditions."

Specialists of the A. & M. College of Texas aboard included: Director C. B. Martin, of the Extension Service and Mrs. Martin; Miss Bess Edwards, assistant State Home Demonstration Agent and Miss Myrtle Murray, District Home Demonstration agent, Extension Service; Prof. D. H. Reid, head of the poultry husbandry department of the College; W. L. Glutter, dairy husbandry department of the College; G. W. Barnes, beef cattle specialist, Extension Service.

Miss Louise Baird, Lubbock County, home demonstration agent, was also aboard. She joined the train Wednesday night at Lubbock for the stop Thursday at Mulshoe, Sudan; Littlefield and Amherst. Rouge, Powder and Lipstick. THERE were moments when Helen was nearly content with the new force that ran through her veins, that colored her days and gave them meaning. Her life now was so much a part of her that it seemed woven into her very texture.

Far back, it seemed, did her memory have to travel to recover when she waked to vacuous days. But every time she thought of Bob's return it was like spark to gunpowder. Faithfully she strove—her days crowded—working on a regular schedule.

Her body was thinning, straightening, and relaxing now, to a gratifying extent. Perhaps she would not have attained the desired slimmness by the twenty-third—just three weeks ahead—but she would be well on her way to physical perfection.

A great deal of Helen's mental attitude had been due to the unfavorable impression that her personal appearance inevitably made. Now that she is again to see along the way to greater health and improved appearance—now that this bog of the last ten years of her life was being chased away—she never speculated as to what people thought about her. She had entirely unshackled that "inferiority complex." It was of course inevitable that her state of mind should change to match her changed appearance. And let it be noted—that Helen Crane's vanity had lost nothing of its intensity for having been damped up so long.

Her fresh, clear skin had a little color all its own now. Twenty minutes' persistence, six every night, restful sleep, exercise and proper diet had brought its own reward.

Essential Make-Up.

It was little "making-up" her skin needed. But that "little" is essential in every woman's toilet. One had to be a bit of an artist to do it properly. In these days of indiscriminate use of powder and paint, beauty is very often painted out, by concealing it under an expressionless mask.

Rouge and lipstick put on according to the requirements of the individual's face will not make one look like the "next one" on the street. So, if cosmetics are to be used, for the love of heaven use them artistically.

"Here's the medium rouge, madame," said the operator. "We'll take that first. I should like you to put it on the right position. No, that's not right. It must be applied where natural color is—or was. That is the real secret of artistic rougeing. Your nose comes rather low on your cheek—it must be shaded toward the temples. Your color will deepen as your circulation improves. So y-y-y must be very careful about this—for if it should fade it would leave the artificial coloring in an unnatural place that would change your whole expression. A slight dusting of the rouge on your chin will help the general effect."

Powder.

"Now we'll distribute the powder evenly over your face, not neglecting your neck. Always remember, madame, that a little powder goes a long way. If you slap it on the nose and chin, and nowhere else, it gives a ludicrous effect. Those who use powder, properly chosen, are the wisest and most fastidious ladies. If the tint to match the individual skin is chosen, the powder itself will not be obtrusive. Madame must acquire a bit of artistry in her use of cosmetics. That "make-up" look is very objectionable."

There was an audible sigh from the reclining chair. Helen smiled, showing quite even teeth that no longer appeared discolored. "This beauty building is a regular job, isn't it?"

A smile to that. "A word more about your powder, madame. Personally I should advise you to use a violet-scented powder. I've known it to be responsible for many a social triumph. It would be well to use the violet only. I mean in talcums, perfumes, cosmetics, and so on. The use of perfume should be simply an accessory to the costume—a delicate touch that is scarcely noticeable but which forms a subtle addition to the toilet. There are many charming scents on the market, but I happen to have this preference."

"We'll rub in a little cold cream before touching up your lips, madame. It softens the lips so that the color goes on more evenly. In a moment I'll put on two dots of the lipstick—one on the upper lip and one on the lower. That is quite enough. Then, I'll shade it with the tip of one finger toward the corners of the mouth. This guards against that sharp defining line of the lips that we see occasionally."

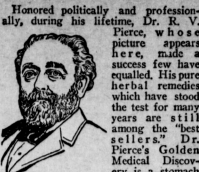

"I don't need the black cosmetic, madame. Your lashes and brows are quite dark enough. But an eyebrow brush is essential—brush the brows every night. It will make them silky and tractable. I remember telling you that the other day."

"How do you use this?" She was examining the little brush and black cosmetic.

"The brows should be brushed just enough to give character to the face. Some people prefer the eyebrow pencils. Personally I favor the brush. Be glad," she smiled, "that it's one thing you don't have to consider."

STORY FROM THE START

Defying all efforts to capture him, after a long search, the Easters and robberies, a super-crook known only as "The Hat" brought about a veritable reign of terror. The chief of police assigned his best operative, Anderson, to get on the trail of the Hat. With her success, she...

"Well, I wouldn't struggle like that for a theory," he said, the professional note coming back to his voice. "The cashier's missing—that's the answer."

"Then you don't think there's a chance that the money from the Union bank is in this house?" persisted Miss Cornelia.

"I think it very unlikely," Miss Cornelia put her knitting away and rose. She still clung tenaciously to her own theories, but her belief in them had been badly shaken.

"If you'll come with me, I'll show you to your room," she said, a little stiffly. The detective stepped back to let her pass.

"Sorry to spoil your little theory," he said, and followed her to the door. If either had noticed the revolving listener to their conversation, neither made a sign.

"The moment the door had closed on them, Dale raised his action. She seemed a different girl from the one who had left the room so inconspicuously such a short time before—there were two bright spots of color in her cheeks and her eyes were laboring under great excitement. She went quickly to the alcove doors—there opened softly, disclosing the young man who had revealed to him as a young fellow at least of the same general social class as Dale's if not a fellow-inhabitant of the select circle where Van Gorder's and moved of Van Gorder's, and a man's great-grandfather was more important than his own himself.

Dale cautioned him by waving his finger as he advanced into the room. "Sh! Sh!" she whispered. "Be careful! That man's a detective!" Brooks gave a hunted glance at the door into the hall.

"Then they traced me here," he said in a dejected voice. "I don't think I can do anything."

He made a gesture of helplessness. "I couldn't get back to my rooms," he said in a whisper. "If they've searched them, I'm sure they're sure to—they'll find your letters to me." He paused again.

"Your aunt doesn't suspect anything?" "No, I told her I'd engaged a gardener—and that's all there was about it."

He came nearer to her. "Dale!" he murmured in a tense voice. "You know I didn't take that money!" he said, with boyish simplicity. All the loyalty of first-love was in her answer.

"Of course! I believe in you absolutely!" she said. He caught her in his arms and kissed her gratefully—passionately. Then the galling memory of the predicament in which he stood—the ball already on his trail—came back to him, and he released her gently, still holding one of her hands.

"But—the police here!" he stammered, turning away. "What does that mean?" Dale swiftly informed him of the situation.

"Aunt Cornelia says people have been trying to break into this house for days—at night."

Brooks ran his hand through his hair in a gesture of bewilderment. Then he seemed to catch at a hope. "What sort of people?" he queried sharply.

Dale was puzzled. "She doesn't know."

The excitement in her lover's manner came to a head. "That proves exactly what I've contended right along," he said, thrusting one fist firmly in the palm of the other. "Through some underhanded channel old Fleming has been selling those securities for months, turning them into cash. And somebody knows about it, and knows that your Aunt Cornelia has been accused of the crime."

"Why didn't you tell the police that? Now they think, because you ran away."

"Run away! The only chance I had was a few hours to myself to try to prove what actually happened."

"Why don't you tell the detective what you told?" said Dale at her heels. "The Courtleigh Fleming took the money and that is still here?"

Her lover's face grew somber. "I'd take me into custody at once—and I'd have no chance to search."

He was searching now—his eyes roved about the living-room—walls—furniture—apparently—deceptively—looking for a few—the tiniest clue to support his theory.

"Why are you so sure it is here?" queried Dale.

"Brooks explained, 'You must remember—Fleming was no ordinary defaulter—and he had no intention of being caught in a foreign country. He wanted to come to this house and take his place in the community while it was in the pen.'"

"He interrupted her. 'Listen, dear—' He crossed to the billiard room door, closed it firmly, returned.

"The architect that built this house was an old friend of mine," he said in hushed accents. "We were together in France and you know the way fellows get to talking when they're far away and out of it. He passed seeing the great cream of a star-shell—two figures huddled in a trench, willing away the terrible hours of winter in the open air."

"Just an hour or two before—a shell got this friend of mine," he resumed. "He told me he had built a hidden room in this house."

"Where?" gasped Dale.

"Brooks shook his head. 'I don't know. We never got to finish that conversation. But I remember what he said. He said, 'You watch old Fleming. If I get mine over here it won't break his heart. He didn't want any living being to know about that room.'"

Now Dale was as excited as he. "Then you think the money is in the hidden room?"

"I do," said Brooks decidedly. "I don't think Fleming took it away with him. He was too shrewd for that. No, he meant to come back all right, and he would get the money. He had been looked, and he had fixed things so he'd be railroaded to prison—you wouldn't understand, but it was pretty near to get the money. He wouldn't have to break in the money."

"Jack! Why isn't the nephew who is trying to get the money?"

"He wouldn't have to break in. He could make an excuse and come in any time."

Brooks clasped his hands despairingly. "If I could only get hold of a blueprint of this place!" he muttered.

Dale's face fell. It was skulking to be so close to the secret—and yet not find it. "Oh, Jack, I'm so confused and worried!" she confessed, with a little sob.

Brooks put his hands on her shoulders in an effort to cheer her spirits.

"Now, listen, dear," he said firmly, "this isn't as hard as it sounds. I've got a clear night to work in—and as true as I'm standing here, here comes the money in this house. Listen, honey—it's like this. He pantomimed the old nursery rhyme of the house that Jack built. "The house that Jack built, here, somewhere, is the hidden room in the house that Courtleigh Fleming built—and here—somewhere—comes the money—in the hidden room—in the house that Courtleigh Fleming built. When you're low in your mind, just say that over for ten days."

She managed a faint smile. "I've forgotten it already," she said, drooping.

He still strove for an offhand glib that he did not feel.

"Why, look here!" and she followed the play of his hands obediently, like a tired child. "It's a sort of game, dearest. Money, money, money's got the money? You know!" For the dozenth time he stared at the unrevealing walls of the room. "For that matter, as I'm standing here, here comes the money in this house. Listen, honey—it's like this. He looked dubious. "It's a chance, but not a very good one," he said. "Well—" He led the way into the billiard room—and began to rap at the wall with his knuckles. Dale listened intently for any echo that might betray the presence of a hidden chamber or sliding panel.

It happened that Lizzie received the first real thrill of what was to prove to her—and to others—a sensational and hideous night. For, coming into the living room to lay a cloth for Mr. Anderson's night supper, not only did the lights blink threateningly and the thunder roll, but a series of spirit raps was certainly to be heard coming from the region of the billiard room.

"Oh, my God," she wailed, and the next instant the lights went out, leaving her in inky darkness. With a loud shriek she bolted out of the room. Thunder—lightning—dashing of rain on the streaming glass of the windows—the storm hallooing its bounds. Dale huddled close to her lover as they groped their way back to the living room, cautiously, doing their best to keep from stumbling against some of the heavy furniture whose fall would arouse the house.

"There's a candle on the table, Jack. If I can find the table!" Her outstretched hands touched a familiar object. "Here it is." She fumbled for a moment. "Have you any matches?"

"Yes. He struck one—another—lit the candle—set it down on the table. In the weak glow of the little taper, whose tiny flame illuminated but a portion of the living room, his face looked tense and strained.

"It's pretty near hopeless," he said, "if all the walls are paneled like that."

As if in mockery of his words and his quest, a muffled knocking that seemed to come from the ceiling of the very room he stood in answered his despair.

"What's that?" asked Dale.

"They listened. The knocking was repeated—knock—knock—knock—knock."

"Some one else is looking for the hidden room!" muttered Brooks, gazing up at the ceiling intently, as if he could tear from it the secret of this new mystery by sheer strength of will.

"It's upstairs!" Dale took a step toward the stairs stairs. Brooks halted her.

"What's in this house besides ourselves?" he queried.

"Only the detective—Aunt Cornelia—Lizzie—and Billy."

"Billy's the Jap?"

"Yes." Brooks paused an instant. "Does he belong to your aunt?"

"No. He was Courtleigh Fleming's butler."

Knock—knock—knock—knock—the dull, methodical rapping on the ceiling of the living room began again.

"Courtleigh Fleming's butler, eh?" muttered Brooks. He put down his candle and stole noiselessly into the alcove. "It may be the Jap!" he whispered.

Knock—knock—knock—knock! This time the mysterious rapping seemed to come from the upper hall.

"If it is the Jap, I'll get him!" Brooks' voice was tense with resolution. He hesitated—made for the hall door—tipped out into the darkness around the main staircase, leaving Dale alone in the living room, beset by shadowy terrors.

Utter silence succeeded his noiseless departure. Even the storm lulled for a moment. Dale stood thinking—pondering—searching desperately for some way to help her lover.

At last a resolution formed in her mind. She went to the city telephone.

"Hello," she said in a low, glancing over her shoulder now and then to make sure she was not overheard. "1-2-4—please—yes, that's right. Hello—is that the Country club?"

"Mashers" Worsted by Girls' Clever Scheme

Pittsburgh's young women have various ways of dealing with "mashers," "asphalt arabs," or whatever the species may be called. They are not lacking in the art of refusing to be taken in by the cream sodas or buggy rides. But this little tale is handed on for what it may be worth in an emergency.

The first girl had been visiting in a rather lonely neighborhood and were walking to their homes. The street was deserted except for two men being led. After a time of doubt and apprehensive shivers, the young women realized that they were being followed.

They hastened their steps, but to no avail. Gradually the pursuers gained and at last were almost within speaking distance. The young women were at a loss as to what to do. Suddenly

"Inside or Out?"

"I would be glad," said the clergyman, after he had given out the text and the first sermon, "if the young man is standing outside the door would come in and make absolutely certain whether she is here tonight or not. The second girl was a girl named Mrs. O'Connell's."

"The third girl was a girl named Mrs. O'Connell's."

"The fourth girl was a girl named Mrs. O'Connell's."

club? No! Mr. Richard Fleming there? Yes, I'll hold the wire."

She looked about nervously. Had something moved in that corner of blackness where her candle did not pierce? No! How silly of her!

Buzz-buzz on the telephone. She picked up the receiver again.

"Hello—is this Mr. Fleming? This is Miss Ogden—Dale Ogden. I know it must seem odd my calling you this late, but—I wonder if you could come over here for a few minutes. Yes—tonight." Her voice grew stronger.

"I wouldn't trouble you—but—it's awfully important. Hold the wire a moment." She put down the phone and made another swift survey of the room, listened furtively at the door—all clear! She returned to the phone.

"Hello—Mr. Fleming—I'll wait outside the house on the drive. It—it's a confidential matter. Thank you so much."

She hung up the phone, relieved—not an instant too soon, for, as she crossed in the doorway to go to the new log top of the dining glow of the fire, the hall door opened and Anderson, the detective, came softly in with an unlighted candle in his hand.

"It's a sort of place in the dark, isn't it?" he said casually.

"Yes—rather. If he would only go away before Brooks came back or"

"He hung up the receiver and turned swiftly on Dale.

"Hello—yes—this is Anderson—go ahead." He paused, while the tiny voice in the receiver buzzed for some seconds. Then he interrupted it impatiently.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Praise Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. Annie Kwinicki of 526 1st Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., writes: "I became so weak and run-down that she was not able to do her housework. She saw the name Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound in the paper and said to her husband, 'I will try that medicine and see if it will help me.' She says she took six bottles and is feeling much better."

Mrs. Mattie Adams, who lives in Downing Street, New York, Ala., writes as follows: "A friend recommended Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound and since taking it I feel like a different woman."

With her children grown up, the middle-aged woman finds that she has things she never had time to do before—and the new books, see the new plays, enjoy her grand-children, take an active part in church and civic affairs. "I feel like a different woman," says the younger set. "The finds a full, rich life of her own. That is, if her health is good."

"Thousands of women past fifty say they owe their vigor and health to Lydia Finkham's Vegetable Compound, and are recommending it to their friends and neighbors."

Help Kidneys By Drinking More Water

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Help Neutralize Irritating Acids

Kidney and bladder irritations often result from acidity, says a noted authority. The kidneys help filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it may remain to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. This suffering sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very prostrate; again, there is a burning in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, it is often one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Begin drinking lots of soft water, also get about four ounces of Jael Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast. Continue this for two or three days. This will help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normal again.

Jael Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are afflicted with bladder weakness caused by acid irritation. Jael Salts causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effective remedy to take which you can quickly relieve your bladder irritation.

BOYS AND GIRLS CLUBS

One of the most imperative needs of Bailey county at the present, since there is an increase in poultry and produce activities, is 4-H Clubs in each community. This will interest the boys and girls in better poultry and live stock. It seems that the Commissioner's Court could arrange to secure the services of a man for part time thereby bringing the cost down considerable. The cost would be small compared to the results that would be obtained. Realizing that there is a demand for these products, and that there are certain problems to cope with, we need to prepare our boys and girls for this important work.

OUR TOURING ARMY

The American Automobile Association is sending newspapers a statement that more than 44,000,000 people will take vacations this year and they will spend $3,500,000,000. The biggest part of them will use autos and there will not be a point in the United States left untouched by some of them. At lot which means a lot for the business of the nation. We may not get any very great number through Muleshoe, and yet there will be enough of them drifting through to remind us that we are still on the map. We should not, however, forget that the tourist goes where roads are best; the better roads into a community the more of them will visit that community. That means more money spent in those communities. This in itself should keep us from losing sight of the fact that we must never let up in a fight that every town in the nation is now engaged in—a fight for better roads.

NEW HATS HERALD COMING SPRING; ENSEMBLE THEME ENGAGES FASHION

COMPARED to "first hats" the "first robin" is a tardy comer. Long before Robin Redbreast arrives to "tell the world" that spring is nigh, the news of the passing of winter has been broadcast throughout fashion's realm via myriads of gay new hats which happily appear under the guise of "midseason millinery." Trustworthy harbingers of spring, these straw-touched chapaneux I appearing as they do while yet the earth is mantled in of chiffons and laces, they all focus to the same goal—the ensemble. Wherefore it is safe to conclude that before the new season is far spent we will be finding ourselves a nation of ensemble-clad women.

Since the ensemble theme has become so far-reaching and embraces so many phases, in brief space one can but touch the highlights of this most popular vogue. Ensembles for spring are presented in types ranging from now, they never fail to bring a thrill and a "forward look," which at once dispels the gloom of winter.

Milliners are accomplishing wonderful things this midseason and for spring, linking up straw with felt or with such fabrics as satin, faille, beiging ribbon and the like.

One thing assured for hats now and to be individually, both as to styling and to materials.

While the molded-to-the-head types still "carry over" with every promise of continued favor at least through the spring months, there seems no doubt of the growing importance of brims.

As to felt, although it has lost none of its prestige, it must now, according to the dictates of the mode, share honors with fabrics and straws. For immediate wear, fashion effects a compromise with felt by combining it with dainty straw brims. Three of the models in this picture, the one at the top and the two at the bottom of this group, are fashioned of straw with felt. It is significant that each of these three have brims two "off the face" and the third defining a mushroom sailor effect.

The toque above to the left bands a draped black satin crown with hand-sewed natural colored straw.

The over-eyebrow beam is a feature of note in the model centered to the cardigan jackets over one and two-piece dresses, frocks, short jackets over jumper frocks, to the longer coat effects either full or three-quarter length. Cape models, bolero and eton jackets are also included in the season's list.

As to leading color for spring, gray is again fashionable either in monotone or in mixtures. Also gray combined with black, navy, yellow, red or white. Smart, too, are the natural shades, grue tones as some call them. In this class is the new oatmeal color. Beige competes with gray and a surprising amount of brown in various shades is making its appearance. Navy blue is emphatically in vogue.

An ensemble in tones of gray is shown in this picture. For this handsome model, velvet forms partnership with georgette. The skirt and coat are of the former. The sewed-on-at-the-waistline blouse is of matching georgette with silver appliques of the gray velvet outlined with gold and right. In this instance straw is combined with faille silk.

Color plays a very important part in the "final analysis" of these hats. The idea of exquisite pastel tones, as emphasized in spring sports frocks and ensembles, finds flattering response in new millinery.

All roads in fashion's realm seem to be leading toward the ensemble. Whether it be via the sports fabric route, or along the path of things suited by way of the silk prints, crepes, satins and other weaves of the dressier sort, even unto the sheerest silver threads. The skirt features the side flare, suggesting an uneven hem line, a detail distinctly new for street costumes. The coat, shows to the right, is richly trimmed in chinchilla. It also accents the modish flare.

Enthusiastic young sportswomen will admire the ensemble illustrated in the inset panel. The skirt and coat are of white basket cloth. The fancy knit sweater is vivid red and white. The gray and white fur lo the coat is an added touch of chic.

A Doctor Talks About Cascara

It is unfortunate that many people judge the thoroughness of a laxative by its violence. The salts that rush through the system may not even penetrate the film of poisonous matter that has coated the colon. A long list of drugs will "loosen the bowels" but what is the best way to CLEANSE them?

The world's best laxative is one that Mother Nature makes in her own laboratory. It is the bark of a tree, called CASCARA. The Indians used to chew this bark—and reach old age without a sick day. It is the best thing there is today, for any system; best for the blood. The most beneficial in its action on the bowels, of anything yet disclosed. For many reasons:

First of all, there is no HABIT formed from cascara. The bowels are not weakened, but strengthened by its occasional use. The occasions when one needs this aid grow less and less. Its influence is long-felt. You don't find yourself worse bound-up the day following. You do find the bowels more inclined to move of their own volition. The candy cascara that every drug store always has in stock is the ideal form of cascara.

You can't stretch your word for without breaking it.

The man who is looking for trouble doesn't have to look far.

The BABY

No mother in this enlightened age would give her baby something she did not know was perfectly harmless, especially when a few drops of plain Castoria will right a baby's stomach and end almost any little ill. Pretrussness and fever, too; it seems no time until everything is serene.

That's the beauty of Castoria: Its gentle influence seems just what is needed. It does all that castor oil might accomplish, without shock to the system. Without the evil taste. It's delicious! Being purely vegetable, you can give it as often as there's a sign of colic; constipation; diarrhea; or need to aid sound, natural sleep.

Just one warning: It is genuine Fletcher's Castoria that physicians recommend. Other preparations may be just as free from all doubtful drugs, but no child of this writer's is going to test them! Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold.

The Interruption

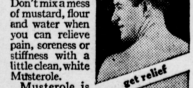

Ruth Elder, the daring aviator, is the heroine of a little story. It was at a dinner party in Birmingham, and an anti-feminist banker was laying down the law about woman's place. "Woman's place is the home," he said. "That is all she's fit for. Women have never produced a Shakespeare or a Homer, an Edison or Ford, a Raphael or Michelangelo or Lincoln or—"

"Dear me!" she said. "I thought women produced them all."

Improved Uniform International Sunday School Lesson!

Lesson for February 19

TWO MIRACLES OF POWER

LESSON TEXT—Mark 4:35-41.
GOLDEN TEXT—What manner of man is that even the wind and the sea obey him?
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Still the Storm.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Rules the Storm.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Universal Power of Jesus.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus' Power over Nature and Human Life.

1. Jesus Calms the Sea (vv. 35-41).
1. Crossing the sea (vv. 35, 36).
Wearied by teaching the multitudes. He proposed that they take ship at evening time to the other side of the sea, doubtless to escape from the throngs of people.
2. Overtaken by a storm (v. 37).
The disciples were in the boat with the disciples they were overtaken by a storm. It is not God's will that we should escape the storms, but those who have faith on that boat are safe because that boat cannot go down.
3. Jesus asleep in the storm-tossed boat (v. 38).
In the midst of the turbulent elements He was resting in sleep. The day had been a very strenuous one and He was weary. He who made the sea could well lie down and sleep, though the storm violently raged.
4. The terrified disciples (v. 38).
In their minds nothing but disaster and death awaited them. They were not only terrified, but they clung to Jesus for sleeping while they were in such great danger.
5. Christ rebukes the storm (vv. 39, 40).
(1) The wind (v. 39).
This showed the Lord's mighty power to control the forces of nature.
(2) The disciples (v. 40).
He rebuked them for their lack of faith. He showed that they were looking upon their circumstances instead of upon their Lord.
6. The effect upon the disciples (v. 41).
They were filled with great fear. A little while ago they were afraid in the face of the storm; now they are afraid in the presence of the Lord.
II. Jesus Heals the Gadarene Demoniac (5:1-20).
After the stilling of the tempest, Jesus crossed to the other side of the sea into heathen territory.
1. Met by a demon-possessed man (vv. 1-6).
This man was in a desperate condition. He was so fierce that no one could safely pass that way. He wore no clothes (Luke 8:27). No chains were strong enough to hold him and no one was able to tame him. In the night time his hideous cries could be heard while he vented his rage by cutting himself with stones. Many today are demon-possessed. Much of the insanity of the age is traceable to this cause. As the coming of the Lord draweth nigh these things will increase (1 Th. 5:1).
2. What the demons knew about Christ (vv. 7-9).
They knew that He was the Son of God and that He had come to destroy the devil and his works. Among the demons there is no doubt as to the deity of Christ and the judgment to come, though we have many theologians and preachers who say they do not believe it. The devil blinds their eyes so they cannot understand (1 Cor. 4:4).
3. Christ's power to deliver from the devil (vv. 10-13).
He cast out the demons from the man (v. 8). The demons quail before Christ, not daring to dispute His power, so they begged to be permitted to enter the swine. As soon as the Lord issued the permit, they hastened away to hurt the swine to destruction.
4. The effect upon the people of the city (vv. 14-17).
The keepers of the swine fled to the city and made report of what had occurred. This miracle brought the people out, but when they realized the loss of their hogs they sought Him to leave their country. They cared more for their hogs than for Christ and the cure of this man. These Gadarenes have many success stories today.
The man who was healed sent home to testify (vv. 18-20).
No doubt it would have been safe and pleasant to abide with Jesus, but his friends needed his testimony. The best witness for Christ is one who has been saved by Him. The best place to begin that testimony is at home where one is known best.

National Park Pets

Losing Fear of Man
The fearlessness and tameness of the animals of Yellowstone National park, much remarked upon by visitors during the summer, becomes even more marked in the winter. E. J. Sawyer, park naturalist, writes of the uncaged zoo that ranges past the window of his office at Mammoth Hot Springs during the snow-bound mountain winter. "An interesting wild life article could be written on observations made from this office in the Museum building. Elk and deer are familiar everyday sights; bears, until they go into hibernation, pass within a few yards every morning on their regular rounds; a coyote and badger are on the list. And now mountain sheep have lately been seen on the low hill a few hundred feet back of the weather bureau. For sheep to appear quite so close to the actual government buildings of Mammoth is unusual and it exemplifies the tendency noted during the last two years for large mammals of various species— notably moose, antelope and sheep—to become decidedly more neighborly with us; that is, to take the initiative in closer acquaintance."

Tim and the Pears

Thomas W. Lamont, the noted banker, favors reasonable publicity for industrial corporations, and at a luncheon before his departure for Europe he said:
"Publicity would do away with the corporations—few enough in number—that treat their shareholders as little Timmy treated his sister."
"Little Timmy came home and said to his sister:
"Mrs. Smith sent you five great big juicy pears for minding her baby. I ate two and lost one, and Bob and Dick swiped the other two."

MOTHER
A Cross, Sick Child is Constipated!
Look at Tongue

No matter what ails your child, a gentle, thorough laxative should always be the first treatment given. If your little one is out-of-sorts, half-sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that the little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of colic, give a teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless, "fruity laxative" because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup" then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

"The most valuable car ever offered for so little money"

John R. Willys
President, The Willys-Overland Company

So rapidly has demand mounted for the perfected Whippet, that four great plants—at Toledo, Elmira, Pontiac and Toronto—are taxed to capacity, and enlargement and expansion, to permit even greater production, are already under way. People continue to express amazement that cars of such remarkable quality and mechanical perfection can be offered at such low prices.

Here is true beauty—in color, lines, proportions and interiors. And here, too, are features which distinguish the finest American cars—low-swinging full vision bodies, BIG 4-wheel brakes, gasoline tank at rear, full force-feed lubrication, silent timing chain, oversize balloon tires and snubbers and long semi-elliptic springs.

See this car—ride in it, and compare it with any other light car—for looks, for performance, for quality, for all-around desirability—in short, for value.

Mr. H. E. Key of Vernon, Texas, was in Muleshoe looking over the country last week and was very much impressed with our territory. He gave us a subscription to the Journal, wishing to keep informed about our progress.

A. C. Gaede of north of town states that wheat is looking fine in his section since the rain. He says that prospects are as good as have ever been.

Taylor White of Tahoka, was in Muleshoe last week visiting old friends and looking after his farm interests here. He was still enthusiastic about Muleshoe and community and says the country is as good as the best.

THE BANKER-FARMER MOVEMENT GROWING

There are several reasons for the growth of the banker-farmer movement in Pennsylvania, William S. McKay, Chairman of the Agricultural Committee, Pennsylvania Bankers Association, has reported to the Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers Association. The cooperation and leadership of the county agents in the several counties of the state; the appointment and functioning of county chairmen of agriculture known as Key Bankers, one of whom there is in each county of the state; and the organization of county banker associations, whereby agriculture is given consideration by all the banks, are responsible for this interest. The following table shows the activities for the year:

Project	Number of Counties
Sent young farmers to state college for special course	6
Encouraged farm shows	16
Held agricultural tours	6
Sponsored various club activities	38
Gave illustrated lectures on poultry, cow testing, and improved farm methods	1
Distributed purebred livestock, chicks, and disease-free potatoes	13

"There is probably no class of business men that has a greater opportunity for helpfulness than the bankers in this movement," declares Mr. McKay. "It builds up a substantial community which makes for better banking institutions; it adds to the material prosperity of our state, but above all, it is the expression of a service which will react favorably upon the character of these interested."

BANKERS HELP OUT

The Oklahoma Bankers Association for the past twelve years has financed through its five groups ten scholarships in the A. & M. College at Stillwater. The winners are chosen by the Extension Department of the college on the merits of the club work done by the boys and girls over a certain period of time. The groups of the association finance the first year of the winner's college work.

The president of a national bank in Fayetteville, Arkansas, has been credited with doing more for the farmers of his section than any other one man. His work has consisted of introducing pure bred Holstein cattle into the county, helping employ a county agent, donating prizes to boys and girls in club work, and distributing better seed.

Here are some of the things accomplished in Randolph County, Ark with the help of bankers last year: forty-three purebred gilts were bought at a reasonable price and placed with boys and girls, on notes; three thousand eggs from high producing hens were distributed with the idea of developing flocks of at least one hundred hens on every farm; four pure bred Jersey bulls whose dams had a record of over 100 pounds butterfat have been purchased by the bank and will be paid for out of service fees.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS ENTERTAIN WEDNESDAY NIGHT

The Friendship Sunday School Class of the Methodist Church entertained their husbands with a social Wednesday night at the church. The church was decorated with a profusion of hearts carrying out the Valentine idea. Much fun was had in the different games provided for the amusement of the men.

At a half hour all departed, the men declaring that the women were fine entertainers as in the days of yore.

It seems that Bailey County is being specially favored with snow, which will put much needed moisture in the ground Monday a very good snow fell, while today, (Thursday) as we go to press it is still snowing with some four or five inches of snow on the ground.
