What Do You Read?

University of Oklahoma journalism students, polled on the question "What do you read in your newspaper?" revealed that they read more current news than editorials and even sports.

Answers were as follows:

- Read leading front page story, 62 per cent.
- Reading leading editorial, 51 per cent.
- Read top sports story, 41 per cent.
- Read top social news story, 31 per cent.

Editors and managing editors, who try to keep tabs on "reader interest" in a newspaper, should be interested.

Most editors will think the readers should pay more attention to the editorial offerings. But sometimes they do get mighty dull.

However, it's a good sign to see young people reading current news, even above the figure for the sports page. It shows a desire to know what is going on in the world... and leads them to think.

Reading a newspaper regularly is a habit that every young person should cultivate. Reading all of it is even a better habit.

Well-informed persons, however, not only read the daily newspaper but many other periodicals. Then, after thinking things through they learn to appreciate the editorials.

Chores Eased

An endless round of chores once extended the farmer's working day far into the night. But the day is fast approaching when he will be able to operate his farm on an 8-hour per day basis—profitably, practically, and with a minimum of hard work. No small part in bringing this about is played by electricity.

Farmers of a generation ago would have regarded as a starry-eyed dreamer anyone who told them that their grandsons would watch while their barn gutters are mechanically cleaned, or while their ensilage is automatically delivered to them down the silo chute at the flick of a switch.

Chore-Reducing Devices

A quick look at "What's new in farming electrically" reveals innumerable chore-reducing devices. In addition to barn cleaners and silo unloading equipment, the farmer who makes maximum use of such devices is on the road to a farm Eden his grandfather only saw in dreams.

Electronic equipment to candle eggs; bactericidal lights to kill air-borne diseases affecting poultry and stock; a device by which pasteurized cream enters one end of a tube and emerges as butter ready for packing; chicken debarkers which save feed and reduce cannibalism; peanut shellers; heat lamps arranged in banks to warm milkhouse workers in cold weather; rotating drums with rubber fingers to pick chickens; electrically heated stock waterers—these are only a few modern developments on electrified farms.

Farmer Freed From Drudgery

Today's farmer on an electrified farm no longer bonds to a back-breaking job when he can be freed from it by an electrical device. Pushing a scoop shovel is plain foolish when you can have mechanical power elevate the mixed feed to overhead bins, and use self feeders for livestock and poultry to reduce feed handling and thus waste. A one-fourth horse-power motor does the trick, used on a belt-and-crest-type elevator. For a few cents, electricity can handle as much feed in one hour as can be shoveled by 3 able-bodied men. The modern farmer saves himself many other chores like this with the aid of electricity.

School Prospects 1947-48

Our American schools are now well into a new school year. It should be a good year. The teacher shortage crisis of the past two years is somewhat abated but not over.

In most states there are enough certificated secondary-school teachers (except in special fields), but a distinct shortage of elementary teachers is widespread, particularly in rural areas. There is, however, a grave shortage in quality teachers to replace the poorly prepared, to relieve heavy loads, and to extend the program. And, even more disturbing, there are not enough young people in our teachers colleges to take up these shortages and to replace those who must retire in the next few years.

The great need now is to encourage some of our ablest young people to enter the teaching profession. For if education is a vital concern of a free nation, it must be in the hands of thoroughly able, well-prepared, well-paid, emotionally balanced teachers.

Salaries have been raised a great deal in the past two or three years due to the pressure of public opinion. A few states have adopted $2400 as a minimum altho not required by state law. This goal should be achieved by every state and community although it will not be possible unless federal aid is made available.

On the question of federal aid, Senator Taft, speaking at a Republican dinner in Columbus, Ohio, recently said: "Republicans agree that action must be taken to improve health, housing, and education. Federal assistance in fields of social welfare is definitely on the list of action in 1948."

Probably 6 million additional children over and above prewar enrollments will be entering elementary schools in the next decade. There may be as many as a million more secondary-school students. This will mean an additional outlay.

Expensive, too, will be the cost of plant replacement and repair long neglected during the war years. Six to eight billion dollars is needed for this purpose in the next decade.

People will have to decide in many cases whether to build roads, for example, or schools. Roads can wait. Children's minds never wait.

Yes, good schools cost money. But the load is not too heavy for a nation where 60 million are employed at a high level of income. Ignorance is far more costly.

Disabled Vets Better Workers

For 130,000,000 Americans World War II is only a memory growing dimmer with each anniversary of V-J Day.

But for some 500,000 permanently injured American soldiers and sailors, World War II remains a grim reality today. They are still paying for that war in personal suffering. They are the tragic human cost of that war.

Our sacred duty toward these disabled is clear. They must be given every help through special training and equipment to achieve their rightful place in our postwar economy. They want to be self-supporting and do their part in building a brave new world. Our government has a wonderful rehabilitation program for them. Approximately 210,000 of such disabled veterans are now taking job training under Public Law 16. Another 91,000 are in government hospitals being discharged by the hundreds daily as fit for employment. But already there are 170,000 such re-trained disabled veterans who have not been able to find work!

They have done their part in helping to win the war and in overcoming the physical handicaps incurred in winning that war.

"EPTII" Week Oct. 5-11

Our responsibility now lies in giving them a chance!

National Employ The Physically Handicapped Week will be observed October 5 to 11.

This year let's make this a week of education about our re-trained war disabled!

Large companies that hire disabled veterans agree that such veterans are more conscientious, learn skills better, stay on the job and produce more. The personnel turnover among such disabled veterans in industry is less and insurance rates are not higher.

The one thing, therefore, that is keeping our trained disabled from gainful jobs is ignorance on the part of those who do the hiring. Employers must be educated as to the ability of the disabled to do jobs they have been trained for, as to their dependability and as to the fact that hiring a disabled veteran in no way affects insurance rates.

Industry needs men and women who can lick big odds. The disabled fill that bill. They didn't let us down when we needed them. We must not let them down when they need us now.

I urge every American Legion post, every community, every newspaper and every radio station to do its best during the week of October 5 to 11 to tell the story of the worth and of the need of our disabled veterans in gainfully employment.

Under the Research and Marketing Act of 1946, the U. S. Department of Agriculture cooperating with state agricultural experiment stations, will conduct surveys to determine requirements and kinds of foods consumed by different groups with this country's population, the material to be used as a basis for estimating potential outlets for farm products.

NEW SINGING STAR MAKES FILM DEBUT

Mary Mather, at 18, is a sparkling, triple-threat newcomer of 1947 who can sing, dance and act. She does all three in the title role of "Variety Girl," Paramount's 42-star musical comedy coming Sunday to the Palace Theatre. This amazing youngster holds her own with such veterans as Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Dorothy Lamour, Alan Ladd and all the other stars on the Paramount roster who contribute to the gigantic musical festival.

A native of sunny Florida, Mary started to sing at home talent shows when she was nine. She continued her study of music and ballet in New York schools and, at 15, she visited Hollywood where she was signed to a Paramount contract when studio executives heard her sing. No exclusive assignment suitable to her talents was immediately available, so she was loaned to the Theatre Guild for the starring role in "Oklahoma." She toured with that troupe for a year before being recalled for the story lead in "Variety Girl."

Upon completion of the picture, Mary took over the "Oklahoma" lead once more—this time on Broadway.

Manufacturing Of Dairy Products Plunges 33 Percent

AUSTIN—Milk consumed in the manufacture of dairy products plunged 33 per cent from July to August, according to The University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

Individual dairies reporting to the Bureau revealed that the August decline, coupled with severe July setbacks, shoved milk consumption for manufacturing down to 62,878,000 pounds in August. These reverses also resulted in a 17 per cent drop below year-ago production figures. A similar situation existed last year when milk consumed in the manufacture of dairy products sagged 22 per cent between July and August.

Dairymen seemed to think that cool weather and even greater decreases in ice cream production would divert more milk into butter and cheese production. Milk producers expect to get seasonally higher prices for their products until late fall, although they do not anticipate prices as high as last year's.

The manufacture of all dairy goods showed declines from July to August, and every product failed to come up to August 1946 production levels.

Creamery butter production sagged 32 per cent below the July mark and 12 per cent below August figures to total 1,263,000 pounds in August, as cold storage reserves of butter dipped lower.

Ice cream manufacturing, including sherbets and ices, failed to reach seasonally-anticipated peaks in both July and August. Production dropped to 1,614,000 gallons for a 29 per cent deficit below July figures.

American cheese production was almost up to last year's level despite the 46 per cent July-to-August dip.

Definite School Health Program Is Urged

AUSTIN, Oct. 1.—Every school should have a definite school health program. Situations such as, the kind of drinking water, arrangements for the school lunch, the lighting, seating ventilation and cleanliness of the schoolroom, and the personal practices of the teachers and children are the bases of the school health program, said Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

Every school has tremendous opportunities to promote the health of its pupils and of its community. From early childhood to early manhood and womanhood, most children are enrolled in schools and are under the supervision of school staffs for a substantial part of the day for approximately half the days of the year. The conditions under which they live in school, the help which they are given in solving their health problems, the ideals of individual and community health which they are taught and the information and understanding that they acquire of themselves are factors which operate to develop attitudes and behavior conducive to healthy, happy and successful living.

Schools alone however cannot enable children to attain all the desirable goals of individual and community health. Considering the magnitude and multitude of the diverse and continuing efforts that must be made to satisfy the health needs of children, is fortunate that many people and groups, in addition to schools, are greatly interested in promoting health. Parents have a prime responsibility.

Physicians, dentists, nurses, health officers, social and welfare workers and their official organizations, such as medical, dental and nursing societies, health departments and voluntary health agencies are all rightly concerned with health activities in their communities.

RED FRONT DRUG

FOWL CHOLERA TIME IS HERE

Fowl cholera, one of the most deadly of poultry diseases, occurs in all domestic fowls and many free-flying birds. It is most prevalent during the fall and winter among flocks of laying age. It rarely is seen in brooder chicks.

You may suspect cholera when birds suddenly die in their nests or on the roosts without previously displaying symptoms of any kind. Sometimes the disease kills so quickly that the first indication that cholera has broken out comes when the poultry raiser finds up to two per cent of his flock dead when he enters the laying house in the morning.

Symptoms

Birds which linger for a few days after becoming infected by cholera organisms will display these symptoms: sudden listlessness, ruffled feathers, loss of appetite, green or yellow diarrhea, and a dark purple or blue color in the comb, wattles, face, and throat.

Cholera also appears as a chronic infection which may localize to form abscesses in various body parts. Inflammation and swelling of the joints, infection of the middle ear, edema of the wattles or infection of the nasal cavities in the chronic form, affected birds lose flesh gradually and become thin and poor before dying.

Preventing Cholera

Since cholera is highly infectious, good sanitation is important both as a preventive and as a control measure. Keep the laying house interior and equipment clean, as possible also, and should the soil become contaminated with droppings containing cholera organisms, it may be necessary to remove the birds until the soil has been purified by the sun, wind, and rain.

When an outbreak occurs, dead and sick birds should be destroyed by burning; or should be buried deep enough to remove the possibility of their being retrieved by dogs or other animals. The amount of corn or protein in the flock's ration should be reduced for a few days and replaced with bran and oats.

Some poultry raisers find that vaccinating with bacterins (killed cholera organisms) is helpful.

BOOST COTTON PROFITS

By Slashing
HARVESTING COSTS
 With A

JOHN DEERE COTTON HARVESTER

The surest way to boost cotton-growing profits is to save $36.00 or more per bale with a John Deere No. 15 Two-Row Cotton Harvester. This remarkable machine, "born and reared" in Texas cotton fields, does an excellent job in any crop that's suitable for mechanical snapping.

Stripping two 40-inch rows at a time after the leaves have been removed by frost or defoliant, the John Deere does a once-over job, saving more bolls than the average hand puller. Much of the dirt and trash is separated and dropped to the ground before the cotton reaches the wagon. Harvested at the same time, cotton pulled with the No. 15 grades as high as cotton hand pulled.

MAKE SHORT WORK OF HARVEST

With the No. 15, you can make short work of your harvest—have all your cotton in the gin before bad weather causes losses and lowers the grade.

Regardless of what your cotton harvesting program may be, there's a profitable place for a John Deere Cotton Harvester on your farm. It will mean money in the bank for you as a once-over harvester . . . or as a scrapper after hand pullers have gathered the early cotton.

Some farmers are harvesting their cotton with John Deere Harvesters now, gathering the open cotton with the green bolls, where as much as three fourths of the cotton is open. Most of the green bolls are cracked while going through the machine and will open when piled in the field with the open cotton in a short time, so one going over now may save waste and make your grades better than to wait until frost when all bolls are open and you have stains and tinges. There are harvesters made to put on John Deere A and B tractors but change over parts can be had now for Farmalls and some other makes of row tractors.

6666 Ranch House Scene Of Recent Humphreys-Martin Wedding Ceremony

Dignity and tradition marked the wedding of Celia Ann Humphreys and Fred C. Martin recently, members of the family and nearest friends having assembled in the spacious, flower decorated reception room of the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Humphreys at the 6666 Ranch at Guthrie, for the ceremony conducted by Rev. C. N. Gilbert, pastor of the First Baptist church of Spur. Fred is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Martin of Spur.

Decorations for the wide high-ceilinged room, which has a special quality of hospitality, were great bouquets of white carnations and gladioli. The mantel of the huge rock fireplace was also adorned with white flowers. Tall baskets of white gladioli were placed on either side of the fireside as were the tall branched candelabra with burning white tapers. Ann Hall of Fort Worth lighted the candles before the ceremony.

Miss Ruth Hart of Dumont played the traditional wedding music and also accompanied Miss Joyce Spencer as she sang "I Love You Truly."

The bride was lovely in a tailored grey suit with brown accessories. She carried a white Bible adorned with white flowers.

A reception followed the wedding ceremony at which guests were served punch and wedding cake. The three-tiered wedding cake was topped with a miniature bride and groom. The couple left immediately for a wedding trip to Las Vegas, New Mexico.

Mrs. Martin is a graduate of Guthrie High school and received her degree in August at T.W.C. at Denton. Fred graduated from Spur High school and is now a Junior at Texas Technological College at Lubbock. They are making their home at 2307, 13th Street in Lubbock.

WHY FOOT BRITAIN'S BILL?

By Graham Patterson, Publisher Pathfinder News Magazine

The staggering financial cost of two world wars has bled England white. She is making valiant efforts to get back on her financial feet but she is also engaging in social experiments that would be better held until a more propitious time.

Normally, whatever Britain chooses to do is her business. Or would be if she were the only one involved. Unfortunately, the American taxpayer now has a stake in England's experiments. It is to our advantage to help our ally get back on her feet, for in the world struggle between capitalism and communism we need every friend we can muster. But our money—and that means your money, the dollars you pay your Government in taxes—should not be used to underwrite experiments in social systems that are different from our own.

Last month the British Labor party voted to postpone the nationalization of England's steel industry. Note that the vote was not against the idea itself, but only against the present time to try it. The vote was close—81 to 77—and more than 100 party members abstained from voting. This would not indicate any change of heart on the part of those in charge of England's economic welfare. It is an admission of temporary failure, to be sure, but the implication is that original plans will be carried out when conditions improve.

Yet, one may well ask, why aren't conditions better now? It is two years since the present British government came into power. Under the leadership of Prime Minister Clement Attlee, Britain has been compelled to swallow quite a dose of socialization. It can hardly be said that it has been well digested. As with every other nation struggling to get back on its economic feet, England's great need is production. And its experiments in socialism have failed miserably in increasing production which, in fact, has fallen below that of pre-war years, particularly in coal. Because steel is so dependent on coal, the British Socialist government was realistic in postponing the nationalization of the country's steel industry, for there is no reason to expect any greater success in increasing production in that field than has been scored by nationalization in coal. And England must produce goods to sell in order to live.

It is to America's interest to help Britain, but there is a limit to the help we can give, especially if that assistance is not utilized to the fullest efficiency. It is little more than a year since we loaned Britain $3,750,000,000. At the time the loan was made, both countries believed the money was sufficient to take care of England's needs for five years. Yet the sum is now practically exhausted.

So it is not to be wondered at if America's taxpayers question the wisdom of some of the things Britain has been doing. England's need today is production of goods, to help her achieve a proper balance of trade. But her nationalized coal mines are below prewar production standards and her coal exports are only one eighth of what they were before the war.

Certainly the record does not speak well for the nationalization of basic industries, and while Britain is entitled to conduct any socialistic experiments she may favor, wisely or unwisely, she should not expect American taxpayers to foot the bill while she is doing so.

ELECTRIC POWER CONSUMPTION

Austin, Sept. 29.—Industrial production in Texas continued its upward climb during August, gauged by the index of industrial electric power consumption. According to The University of Texas Bureau of Business Research, consumption advanced 5 per cent above July levels.

This better-than-seasonal gain upped the industrial consumption index to 271.7, based on the prewar (1935-39) average of 100, and brought the August total to 282,981,900 kilowatt hours. Total electric power consumption in the State for all purposes rose 7 per cent from July to August to reach a monthly total of 593,858,000 kilowatt hours, according to Bureau reports received from the 10 major electric power companies.

Residential consumption increased by 7 per cent, and for other purposes the gain was 6 per cent.

4 small things of great value

Value? Only a parent can tell you. Cost? Uncle Sam allows a $500 income tax exemption to cover a year's board and keep—a parent has ideas on that too!

Value? What else gives you so much for so little as electricity? It lights, heats, cools, cleans and entertains; saves you time, work, money. Cost? A few cents a day!

Value? Ask any doctor the value of radium—or a patient whose life it has saved. Cost? A single ounce would cost you around $700,000—if you could buy that much all at once!

Value? You can measure a diamond's value only in a woman's eyes. Its cost? About $900 for a good-quality, one-carat stone... and it takes more than 140 carats to make one ounce!
