DENVER RAILROAD LINES OPPOSE PLANS FOR NEW SANTA FE RAILROAD

Lubbock, Apr. 25.—The application of the Peecos and Northern Texas Railway company, a branch of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe line to build a railroad from Hale Center, through Lamb county and joining the Santa Fe line at Parmerton, in Farmer county, will be given a hearing before an examiner of the Interstate Commerce Commission here on May 21, it was announced today.

The local Board of City Development has been advised that Lubbock will be expected to provide a meeting place for the hearing and steps to secure the quarters got underway today.

A lively hearing is expected, with the Fort Worth and Denver, South Plains Railway company disputing the need of the proposed Santa Fe branch on the grounds that it will parallel a Denver line from Plainview to Demmitt, in Castro County and legal talent of both rail lines is busily engaged now in preparing the data to be advanced.

A new situation, with the tables turned, is expected in the hearing for at the last such meeting held on the South Plains it was the Santa Fe lines which disputed the need of additional rail service which was then being planned by the Fort Worth and Denver lines. The plans introduced by the Denver road at that hearing, which was held in Plainview, are now rapidly materializing.—Lubbock Journal.

Tuesday Was Clean-Up Day In City

One feature of the day was the nail picking contest for boys. Nice cash prizes were offered for the most nails picked up on the streets, as well as many small prizes. Lonnie Dill won $7.50 as first prize, with 31 pounds of nails and tacks. Arnold Riddle was second with 29 pounds and received $5.00. Jim Alsup third, 28 pounds, receiving $3.00. Seven other prizes were given in the way of baseballs, bats and gloves. Three hundred and eighty-five pounds of nails were picked up in all.

Irrigation Pumps On Job This Week

Several farmers near town have their irrigation pumps working this week. The editor, with Mr. Rocky Ford, dealer, visited a few of the places that were being irrigated Tuesday afternoon and it was well worth the time spent to see these wells. Many people do not realize the wonderful advantage the shallow water belt has over the country where water cannot be obtained in sufficient quantities to irrigate their crops. A comparison of the dry land farms and irrigated farms in this section, should be enough in itself to convince anyone that the man who is using the water, has the advantage.

Survey Completed On New Rail Line

A surveying crew of nine field men and five office men were within a few miles of Parmerton, terminus of the newly proposed Santa Fe line, the first of the week and it is presumed that the survey was completed yesterday.

The survey crosses the Ozark Trail highway one mile east of the Hub community, the farm home now occupied by H. F. Hamilton falling in the direct path of the surveyed right of way.

Application for a charter to build the new line from Hale Center to Parmerton is now pending before the Commerce Commission and members of the surveying crew gave it as their opinion that the charter would be granted. They also stated that this survey would be permanent as all preliminaries have been ironed out before the states on the present survey were driven.

Hepington Grocery has recently installed a new Frigidaire machine. This new equipment makes it possible to keep perishable merchandise in good shape for several days.

Misses Opal and Jewel Hanney entertained a few friends Monday evening at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Haney, with a two-course buffet supper, honoring the birthday of David Anderson. TEXAS LONG DISTANCE GAS LINES ATTRACT INTEREST

Suggestions for piping manufactured gas from strategic centers to cities and towns hundreds of miles away are being brought in and Eastern gas men to Dallas next month to study the long distance natural gas mains of Texas. The web of long distance mains in Texas will be of much interest to the Northern men, who are attending a convention in Dallas May 10th, convention officials said.

There are some 8,000 miles of gas mains in Texas at this time.

UNFORTUNATE

Gasoline is a dangerous article to play with. Newspaper reports tell of the owner of a motor who left his automobile standing in the driveway the rear of his house while he went inside to get tools with which to repair a leak in the gasoline line of the car. Along came the rooster and decided to scratch for gravel in the driveway. It didn't mean anything to him that gasoline was dripping down beside him—he didn't know that he might be having been scorching dynamite. Evidently his claws struck off a spark, for the instant the air was full of tires, cushions, twisted metal and white legless feathers.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Edmonds, David Anderson and Misses Opal and Jewel Haney spent Sunday at the Anderson farm southwest of town.

Shad Green of Lubbock was attending to business here Friday and Saturday of last week. He was accompanied by his daughters, Misses Lea and Bess, who visited in the S. E. Morris home.

Rabbit Drive Held In Fairview Community

About sixty men met at the A. L. Davis farm in the Fairview community Tuesday, and carried out a big rabbit drive. It was estimated that something like 800 rabbits were killed. Rabbits are doing a great deal of damage to crops in Bailey county and these drives are being held every week. Dinner was served on the ground and Muleshoe men were present: Judge Pressly, Pat R. Bobo, R. L. Brown, J. E. Adams, C. D. Gupion, Joe March, A. P. Stone, Henry Edmonds, and H. L. Douglas. PROGRAM AT BAILEYBORO ENJOYED BY MULESHOE FOLKS

Quite a crowd of Muleshoe people visited at Baileyboro last Thursday night, at which place a fine entertainment was given. A number of candidates for business were in the crowd and all report a splendid time. A pie supper was also given, after which the candidates made short speeches. The pie supper was sold for the benefit of the school and a nice sum was raised which will go toward a better library. It is understood that Muleshoe are always willing and ready to help a worthy cause like this.

War-Time Com-Mand Will Meet With Old Division

Major General Henry T. Allen, of Washington, war-time commander of the Ninetieth Division, has accepted the official invitation of Major C. M. Chambers to be the guest of San Antonio during the American Legion national convention which is to be held at that place October 12.

General Allen will be the headliner of the Ninetieth Division's reunion during the Legion convention, for which elaborate plans are being worked out by officers of the division association.

Writing Mayor Chambers, General Allen expressed his pleasure at the invitation to come and continued: "The superb conduct of the Ninetieth Division with its unsurpassed record is a tribute to me in an imperishable way. The Thirtieth Division, which fell under my command for a while, also made a most enviable record."

"Some of the very best soldiers, if not the best, I have ever known" is the way the General referred to his old command in the stirring days in France.

SUDAN PRICES HIGHER GREAT HELP TO GROWERS

The recent rise in the price of Sudan seed has helped the farmers of this community. Last week local buyers were paying three cents for Sudan and the ones bidding for the seed were paying two cents. In conversation with one grower, he stated that he was on the verge of selling a large crop some weeks ago in order to pay some land notes. The local bank advised him to hold it a few days longer, which he did, and the result was that he made enough money to pay almost half his bills. Many others have profited by holding a part of their crop, which means many extra dollars in the Muleshoe trade territory.

FORD WILL MANUFACTURE PARTS FOR MODEL T CAR

Detroit, Apr. 25.—The manufacture of replacement parts for the millions of Model "T" Ford cars still in daily use continues to demand nearly one third the production capacity of Ford plants here.

Ford officials estimate from reports of the dealers all over the country, that there are still approximately eight million of the Model "T" cars in constant use in the United States. Some of these cars are many years old. Every year and then there are reports of Ford cars of 60,000 hours of service.

The newest of the model "T" Fords is now nearly a year old. For production of assembled Model "T" cars was suspended in May, 1927 to make way for the new model.

A few days ago a newspaper correspondent here asked Henry Ford how long he expected to continue making cars for Model "T" in cars.

"Until the last Model 'T' is off the roads," Mr. Ford replied promptly.

The opening game of the West Texas Baseball League will be played in Lubbock Friday afternoon, April 27, at three o'clock at the Merrill Park, when the Lubbock Hubbers, under the direction of Bennie Brownlow, former Texas League infielder, will meet the Midland Colts.

The Lubbock team has been doing intensive training for the past several weeks and South Plains fans will find that they have developed a wonderful combination in every department, it is said.

Lubbock wants the surrounding territory to feel that the club entered in the West Texas loop is not only Lubbock's but the South Plains' as well. S. D. Hunter, president of the baseball association declares.

Arrangements have been made to accommodate more than 2,500 people on the opening day and crowds are expected from all the surrounding towns.

TAHOQA FARM OF 150 ACRES NETS TOTAL OF $6,482

Tahoka.—Despite a drought that was not broken until June 15, 1927, 150 acres of fruit trees on the Tahoka farm, netted its owner a grand total of $6,482.

From 65 acres, $5,330 worth of cotton was gathered. From the remaining 85 acres, the yield was: 350 bushels of corn, 35 tons of maize and 6,000 bushels of heira, valued at $1,152.

Besides these harvests, cows, chickens and garden to supply every day necessities.—Star-Telegram.

This record is good, very good. There are hundreds of acres of land around Muleshoe making the same record, and when irrigated, does much better. With an unlimited water supply, Muleshoe should be one of the richest parts of the state. We predict that it will be within a short time.

TOM MIX IN TEXAS RANGER FILM AT BROOKS THEATRE

"Dardevil's Reward" a Fox Film production starring Tom Mix, which comes to the Brooks Theatre Friday and Saturday of next week, is a story of a Texas Ranger who kept peace with a big shooter and whose business was bagging bad men.

For more than a hundred years, the name of "Texas Ranger" has stood for fearlessness in facing danger, and for any uncanny skill in the use of firearms.

Acting as the keynote of the story and Mix, with the aid of Tony, brings to the screen one of the best fighting pictures. The manner in which Tom transports Tony around, concealed in a huge truck, is one of the humorous highlights of the picture.

Longview News

To those people who are reading the Longview News in the weekly issue of the Muleshoe Journal, you will recall that in last week's issue that I told you that Bailey County was going to the District Track Meet loaded for bear, and I feel that we were loaded and killed him.

Although Bailey county's representations to the District Track Meet were small, I do not think for one moment that the representation was in vain.

The young Mr. Boston from West Camp, made a nice showing and is to be congratulated, although he was not a first place winner.

The county should feel proud of our noble character, Mr. Reece Young, who won a home in the State Meet, which will be held in Austin soon. I only wish that it would be possible for everyone to have witnessed the occasion of the presentation of the medals that were won. Since Reece Young was the only one from Bailey County I am sure that the people of the county are more than proud of him, and we are all wishing him the greatest success at the State Meet.

A number of Longview people had business in Muleshoe Wednesday.

Our Sunday School is progressing very nicely. Last Sunday was well represented. We earnestly invite everyone to come and bring someone with you. It will not be long till there will be ice cream to eat, so you must be loyal to your side.

Brother Robinson and son, Frank, were in Clovis the middle of the week on business, and it is understood, bought a car. We are very proud of Brother Robinson and the good influence he is lending in our community.

Our school year is almost to a close and the progress of the children will be left in the hands of the teachers, to decide that they have done the best or not. In behalf of the teachers, let me say that without the co-operation of the trustees, the school could not have been what it is.

Miss Dorothy Wentland, our County Nurse, made a hurried trip with a bunch of youngsters to Lubbock for treatment the past week, and we are unable to tell our appreciation for the many things that she is doing in our community. I am sure that our school is far better by having her. She has instilled into them habits of personal hygiene. All the children are made happy to see Miss Wentland driving up.

Miss Ruby Dyer was called to Commerce, Texas, to be with her mother who is ill.

Mr. Milton Dyer was here in East Texas attending to business.

Mr. F. C. Carpenter, Mr. Sterling and others had business in Amarillo this week.

Mrs. Alice Martin of Lubbock, was visiting her mother, Mrs. J. H. Beggs, this week.

Mr. J. H. Beggs and Mr. Earl Young have gone South looking for a job. We hope they are successful.

Mr. Mack Bell was the liveliest man of the community Sunday. He found another vote that will be cast for him in the Primary.

ILL IN HOSPITAL

Little Charlene Morris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Morris, was taken to the Sanitarium at Plainview Saturday to be operated on for appendicitis. Her condition has been critical, but today her condition was reported somewhat better.

Mrs. Frank Killins and babies of Amarillo, are spending the days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Butt.

Batley swung in through the window, panting a little from his exertions.

"The man Lizzie saw drop from the skylight undoubtedly got to the roof from this window," he said. "It's quite easy."

Lizzie explained the situation to Jack.

"Aunt Cornelia thinks the money's still here."

Miss Cornelia snorted.

"I know it's here," she started to open the closets, one after the other, beginning at the left. Batley saw what she was doing and began to help her.

Miss Cornelia rattled the knob of a high closet by the other wall.

"This one is locked—and the key's gone," she announced. A new flicker of interest grew in the eyes of the Unknown. Lizzie glanced away from him, terrified.

Miss Cornelia pondered.

"It may be locked from the inside—I'll soon find out." She took a whip-lamp from her hair and shined it through the keyhole. But there was no key on the other side; the hair-pin went through without obstruction. Repeated efforts to jerk the door open failed. And finally Miss Cornelia brought herself a key from the other closet doors.

Dale and Lizzie on one side—Batley on the other—opened the keys of the other closets from their locks while Miss Cornelia stared at the one whose doors were closed as if she would force its secret from it with her eyes. The Unknown had been so quiet during the last few minutes, that, unconsciously, the others had ceased to pay much attention to him, except the casual attention one devotes to a piece of furniture. Even Lizzie's eyes were now fixed on the locked closet. And the Unknown himself was the first to notice this.

At once his expression altered to one of cunning—cautiously, with infinite patience, he began to inch his chair over toward the wicker clothes-hamper.

At last, he was within reach of the revolver. His hand shot out in one swift, almost unperceivable movement, and he grasped the handle of the revolver among his lathered garments as best he could, and, cautiously as he could, he slipped it back again to its original position.

"There—that unlocked it!" cried Miss Cornelia, triumphantly, at last, as the key to one of the other closet doors slid smoothly into the lock and she heard the click that meant victory.

She was about to throw open the closet door. But Batley motioned her back.

"I'd keep back a little," he cautioned. "You don't know what may be inside."

"Mercy makes, who wants to know?" shivered Lizzie. Dale and Miss Cornelia, too, stepped aside involuntarily as Batley took the candle and prepared, with a good deal of caution, to open the closet door.

The door swung open at last. He could look in. He did so and stared appalled at what he saw, while goose-flesh crawled on his spine and the hairs of his head stood up.

After a moment he closed the door of the closet again, and turned back, white-faced, to the others.

"What is it?" said Dale, agitated.

"Miss Cornelia," said Batley, "I found myself unable to answer for a moment. Then he pulled himself together. He turned to Miss Van Gorder.

"Miss Cornelia, I think we have found the ghost the Jap butler saw," he said slowly. "How are your nerves?"

Miss Cornelia extended a hand that did not tremble.

"Give me the candle."

He did so. She went to the closet and opened the door.

Huddled on the floor of the closet was the body of a man. So crudely had he been crammed into this hiding place that he lay in a long angle. Miss Cornelia's voice sounded strange to her own ears when finally she spoke.

"But who is it?"

"It is—or was—Courtleigh Fleming," said Batley dully.

"How can it be? Mr. Fleming died two weeks ago." The doctor.

"He died in this house, sometime tonight. The body is still warm."

"But who killed him? The Bat?"

"Isn't it likely that the doctor did it? The man who has been his accomplice all along? Who probably bought a cadaver over West and buried it with honors here, a long ago."

But Miss Cornelia's face was still thoughtful, and he went on:

"Isn't it clear, Miss Van Gorder?" he queried, with a smile. "The doctor did it. Mr. Fleming formed a conspiracy—both needed money—lots of it. Fleming was to rob the bank and hide the money here. West's part was to issue a false death certificate in the West, and bury a substitute body. I secured God knows how. It was easy—it kept the name of the president of the Union bank free from suspicion—and it put the blame on me."

He paused, thinking it out.

"Only they slipped up in one place. Dick Fleming teased the house to you, and they couldn't get it back."

"Then you are sure," said Miss Cornelia quickly, "that tonight Courtleigh Fleming broke in, with the doctor's assistance—and that he killed Dick, his own nephew, from the staircase?"

"Aren't you?" asked Batley, surprised. The more he thought of it, the less clearly could he visualize it any other way.

Miss Cornelia shook her head decidedly.

"No."

"Wells tried to get out of the house tonight with that blue-print. Why? Because he knew the moment he got out, he'd come up here—and Fleming was here."

"Perfectly true," nodded Miss Cornelia. "And then?"

"Dick Fleming killed Dick and Wells killed Fleming," said Batley succinctly. "You can't get away from it."

But Miss Cornelia still shook her head.

"No," she said. "No. The doctor isn't a murderer. He's as puzzled as we are about some things. He and Courtleigh Fleming were working together. He was in the living room with us. He'd been trying to get up the stairs all evening—and failed every time."

But Batley was as cautious of the truth of his theory as she of hers.

"He was here ten minutes ago—locked in this room," he said with a glance at the window-ladder up which the doctor had ascended.

"I'll grant you that," said Miss Cornelia. "But—"

"She thought back to the time she had seen the doctor in the window-ladder up which that mantel-room with Dale. The doctor put out the candle when you opened the door in the room. Why? Because he thought Courtleigh Fleming was hiding there? No—the missing pieces of her puzzle were falling into their places with a vengeance. "But at this moment," she continued, "the doctor believes that Fleming has made his escape. No—we haven't solved the mystery yet—there's another element—an unknown element," her eyes rested for a moment upon the Unknown. "And that element is—the Bat!"

She paused, impressively. The others stared at her, and then she tried to deny the sinister possibilities of her theory. But this new tangling of the mystery, just when the black threads seemed unraveling, was almost too much for Dale.

"Oh, call the detective!" she stammered on the verge of hysterical tears. "I've got through with this thing! I can't bear any more!"

But Miss Cornelia did not even hear her. Her mind, strung now to concert pitch, had reached some fine ago, and which all the recent distractions had momentarily obliterated.

Had the money been taken out of the house or had it not? But that mad rush for escape of the man hidden with Dale in the recess back of the mantel, had he carried with him his booty or left it behind? It was not in the hidden room, that was certain. Yet she was so hopelessly by that time that her first search was purely perfunctory.

It was when Batley finally opened the lid of a clothes-hamper that they stumbled on their first clue.

"A little Rosenwald in English shoes and books," he said, glancing inside.

"Books?" said Miss Cornelia dubiously. "I left no books in that hamper."

The Batley picked up one of the cheap paper novels and read its title aloud, with a wry smile.

"Little Rosenwald's Lover, or the Cruel Revenge," by Laura Jean—"

"That's mine!" said Lizzie promptly.

"Oh, Miss Nelly, I tell you this story to a hair. I left that book in my satchel, along with 'Wedded but No Wife' and now—"

"Isn't that your satchel, Lizzie?" asked Miss Cornelia, watching him fumble at the catch of the bag—even Lizzie drew closer. For a moment even the Unknown was forgotten.

Batley gave a triumphant cry.

"The money's here!"

"Oh, thank God!" sobbed Dale.

It was an emotional moment. It seemed to have penetrated even through the haze enveloping the injured man in his chair, slowly he got up, like a man who had been waiting for his moment, and now that it had come was in no hurry about it. With equal deliberation he drew the revolver and took a step forward. And at that instant a red glare appeared outside the open window, and overhead could be heard the feet of searchers, running.

"Fire!" screamed Lizzie, pointing to the window, even as Beresford's voice from the roof rang out in a shout, "The garage is burning!"

They turned toward the door, to escape, but a strange and menacing figure blocked the way.

It was the Unknown—no longer the bewildered stranger who had stammered in through the living-room door—but a man with every faculty of mind and body alert and the light of a deadly purpose in his eyes. He covered the group with Miss Cornelia's revolver.

"This door is locked and the key is in my pocket!" he said in a savage voice, as the red light at the window grew more vivid yet and muffled cries and trappings from overhead took keened universal confusion and alarm.

CHAPTER XII

"He Is—the Bat!"

Lizzie opened her mouth to scream. But for once she did not carry out her purpose.

"Not a sound out of you!" warned the Unknown, brutally, almost jabbing the revolver into her ribs. He whistled on Batley.

"Close that satchel," he commanded, "and put it back where you found it!"

Batley's fist closed. He took a step toward the capers.

"You—!" he began in a furious voice. But the steely glint in the eyes of the Batley Picked Up One of the Cheap Paper Novels.

Unknown was enough to give any man pause.

"Jack!" pleaded Dale. Batley halted.

"Do you tell us?" Miss Cornelia insisted, her voice shaking.

"A brave man would be willing to fight with odds a hundred to one—but only a fool will rush on certain death. Reluctantly, dejectedly, Batley obeyed—stuffed the money back in the satchel and replaced the latter in its corner of shadows near the window.

He watched the Unknown intently. One moment of relaxed vigilance and the Unknown was upon him, and he was unloading the door with his left hand—the revolver in his right hand—as steadily as a rock. He seemed to listen for a moment at the crack of the door.

"Not a sound, if you value your lives!" he warned again. He shooed her then away from the direction of the window with his revolver in a moment or two; he said in a husky, but calm voice, "a man will come into this room, either through the door or by that window—the man who started the fire to draw you out of this house."

Batley threw aside all pride in his concern for Dale's safety.

"For God's sake, don't keep these women here!" he pleaded, in low, tense tones.

The Unknown seemed to tower above him like a destroying angel.

"Keep them here where we can watch them," he whispered with fierce impatience. "Don't you understand? There's a killer loose!"

And so for a moment they stood there, waiting for they knew not what. So swift had been the transition from joy to deadly terror, and now to suspense, that only Miss Cornelia's agile brain seemed able to respond. And at first it did even that very slowly.

"I begin to understand," she said, in a low tone. "The man who struck you down and did you in the garage—the man who killed Dick Fleming and strangled that poor wretch in the closet—"

She rose, and, with a gasp, she descended the stairs, and removed the money from that safe—the man who started that fire outside—"

She rose, and, with a gasp, she descended the stairs, and removed the money from that safe—the man who started that fire outside—"

The top of the extension-ladder began to tremble. A big bulk, stood clearly outlined against the background of red glow—the Bat, masked and sinister, on his last foray!

There was no sound as the killer stepped into the room. He waited for a second that seemed a year—still no sound. Then he turned cautiously toward the place where he had left the satchel—the beam of his flashlight picked it out.

In an instant the Unknown and Batley were upon him. There was a moment's fierce struggle in the darkness—a gust of laboring lungs—the thud of fighting bodies clung in a death-grapple.

"Get your gun!" muttered the Unknown hoarsely to Batley, as he tore the Bat's hand away from his throat. "Get it!"

He switched his flashlight on. He jabbed the muzzle against a straining back. The Bat ceased to struggle. Batley stepped a little away.

"The gun is covered!" he said fiercely. The Bat made no sound.

"Hold out your hands, Bat, while I put on the bracelets," commanded the Unknown in tones of fierce triumph. He snatched the steel cuffs on the wrists of the murderous prowl.

"Sometimes even the cleverest Bat comes through a window at night and is caught. Double murder—jurglary—and arson! That's a good night's work even for you, Bat!"

Quite a Collection.

An hour or so later, in the living room whose terrors had departed, Miss Cornelia, her niece and Jack Batley were gathered before a roaring fire. The local police had come and gone; the bodies of Courtleigh Fleming and his nephew had been removed to the mortuary; Beresford had returned to his home, though under summons as a material witness; the Bat, under heavy guard, had gone off under charge of the detective. As for Doctor Wells, he, too, was under arrest, and a broken man though, considering that Courtleigh Fleming had been through the prime mover in the conspiracy, he might escape with a comparatively light sentence.

Calmly and dispassionately Miss Cornelia worked out the cross-word puzzle of the evening and announced her results.

"It is all clear," she said. "Of course, the doctor had the blue-print. And the Bat tried to get it from him. Then when the doctor had stammered him and locked him in the billiard room, the Bat still had the key and unlocked his own handcuffs. After that he had only to get out of a window and shut us in here.

And again:

"He had probably trailed the real detective all the way from town and stalked him down Mr. Beresford found the watch."

Once, too, she harked back to the anonymous letters.

"It must have been a blow to the doctor and Courtleigh Fleming, when they found me settled in the house!" She smiled grimly. "And when their letters failed to disclose me, they were in reality for the treasure, and that one moment of irresolution when he did not shoot the doctor at the top of the hill's chance. And thereafter lost his chance."

It somehow weakened her terrified admiration for him, but she had nothing but acclaim for the escape he had made from the hidden room itself.

"That took brains," she said. "Cold, hard brains. To dash out of that room and down the stairs, pull off his mask and pick up a candle, and then to come calmly back to the trunk room again and accuse the doctor, is a feat of real ability. But I had read to think what would have happened when he asked us all to go out and leave him alone with the real Anderson."

When Lizzie came at last to cuss and scold her into bed, she was sitting happily at the table, surrounded by divers small articles which she was handling with an almost childlike zest. A clipping about the Bat from the evening newspaper; a piece of paper on which was a well-defined fingerprint; a revolver and a heap of five shells; a small, very dead, bat; the anonymous warnings, including by divers small articles which she was handling with an almost childlike zest. French Dandies First to Sport the Cravat

One of the few words of Slavonic origin that do not retain its exotic flavor is cravat. The linen scarves worn around their necks by Continental merchants captivated the fancy of the fashionable French, who adopted the French word for cravat to designate their kind of neckwear. Thus "cravate" became "cravate" or "cravate" from whence our word "cravat."

The word was adopted in France in 1626 and appears in English about 1700. Its synonym, necktie, is of later origin, its first use as being the Oxford dictionary being 1838.

Cravats when first introduced were not exclusively an article of men's apparel, but some, which were laced and tied in a bow with flowing ends, were worn by women. "Cravat-

The English sparrow was brought to the United States from England in 1850 by Nicholas Pike and other directors of the Brooklyn Institute, when eight pairs were liberated in Brooklyn. The motive was to breed the shade trees of devastating caterpillars, which at that time were especially numerous and annoying throughout the eastern states.

FORD INSURANCE LESS

New schedules in insurance rates on new model Fords have been received by underwriters and as a result of reductions it is predicted that owners in Bailey County will save many thousand dollars during the year.

The rate on fire insurance dropped 10 cents per $100 and the theft insurance rate dropped $1.90. New theft proof wiring, locking device, and adoption of solid steel gas tank were given as the reasons for reductions.

Dalhart has obtained natural gas and naturally Dalhart is glad. To show its jubilant feeling the council and the chamber of commerce gave a town celebration and placed a jet 40 feet high on the court house lawn, the jet being left to burn all night to let the town and surrounding country see what Dalhart had achieved. Securing natural gas is a forward movement of which any place may be proud.

Merely a few of the incidents which the author works into his story, showing an unusual regard all the while for historical values.

Building for the Ages

Built centuries ago, yet built so well that it will withstand many more centuries, the Sphinx stands as a lasting monument to honest effort.

So may we of Muleshoe build, not alone the material creations which go toward making up this community, but may we also build good will upon a foundation of honest trading with our fellow men, so that it will outlast even the most substantial of concrete erections.

To make our dreams of a greater community come true, we must start to build from the very foundation. Confidence in our home institutions, as evidenced by our trade relations with them, is the cornerstone—careful and conscientious regard for our credit standing in our dealings, and a willingness to do our full share in any and every enterprise that tends to the good of our community, are the materials we should use in our building, if it is to outlast the ages.

THEN WE WILL HAVE A COMMUNITY OF WHICH WE WILL BE VERY PROUD.

NOTICE
THE STATE OF TEXAS:
 To the Sheriff or any Constable of Bailey County:—Greeting.
 You are Hereby Commanded to summon Vaughn Winn by making publication of this citation once in each week for four consecutive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your County, to appear at the next regular term of the District Court of Bailey County, to be holden at the Court House thereof in Muleshoe, on the First Monday in June, A. D. 1928, the same being the 4th day of June, A. D. 1928, then and there to answer a petition filed in said Court on the 19th day of April, A. D. 1928, in a suit, numbered on the docket of said Court No. 270, wherein Nancy Jim Winn is Plaintiff, and Vaughn Winn is Defendant, and a brief statement of plaintiff's cause of action, being as follows:

That plaintiff has lived in Bailey County for more than six months and the State more than twelve months preceding the filing of this suit; That plaintiff was lawfully married to defendant on the 20th day of December, A. D. 1925, her maiden name being Nancy Jim Cox, and that said marriage relation still exists; that they were separated on or about July 15th, 1927, since which time they have not lived together; that prior to their separation plaintiff was confined to a sanitarium on account of ill health; that as soon as she was discharged therefrom she went to the home of her mother to recuperate her health, at the suggestion of her husband, which was estimated to require about two weeks, and while there defendant wrote her to remain there as he was not coming after her, after which he went away and never returned, and she never heard from him again; that plaintiff is of a sensitive nature, and the conduct of defendant mortified her so much that she pine away; the said treatment of defendant toward her constituted cruel treatment of such nature as to render their further living together insupportable.

Herein Fail Not but have you before said Court, at its next regular term, this writ with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.
 Given under my hand and seal of said Court, at its office in Muleshoe, Texas, on this the 19th day of April, A. D. 1928.
 C. C. MARDIS, Clerk, District Court, Bailey County, Texas.
 By Lola Lipscomb, Deputy.

WHO IS THE "UNKNOWN" SOLDIER?
 Will the "unknown soldier" ultimately be known? Let us hope not for many who are now comforted by the thought that their son or father may be the unknown soldier, would then have added cause for sorrow.
 However, according to recent reports, over ninety-nine per cent of the Americans killed in the Great War have been identified. In fact, it is claimed that the identity of the "unknown soldier" has been established within seventy men. As the dead, including those who died on ship-board is placed between 75,000 and 80,000, the ability of those who have had the identification in charge is remarkable.
 We may be comforted, however, by the fact that the utmost pains were taken to identify the "unknown soldier" before he was interred in the famous grave at Arlington. It is doubtful indeed, if identification will be made, unless the remaining "unknowns" are identified and the "unknowns" become "known" through the process of elimination.

EVER TRY THIS?
 Just what to do with household articles she no longer has use for is a worry to more than one Muleshoe woman now engaged in the annual task of house-cleaning. We know house-cleaning is a big job, and we are anxious to make it as light as possible. For that reason we again want to offer a hint that many have taken advantage of in the past, and solved their problems. Someone would be glad to have the old stove, chair, bed or floor-covering you are discarding for something new. And they would be glad to pay a fair price for it. But without knowing what you have, how are they going to bring about an exchange. A few cents—much less than you would think—will tell everybody for a mile around just what you have to dispose of, when those few cents are spent for a little reading notice in these columns. In that way you get actual cash for what you do not want, and someone else gets what they do want at a bargain. Drop in and let us explain how this end of house-cleaning problems can be solved at little cost.

POULTRY
 EGGS IN AUTUMN
 BRING A PROFIT

The fall season and the advancing price of eggs offer an opportunity in marketing this product that is not found at any other season of the year, according to G. F. Klein, extension agent at the Kansas State Agricultural college, September, October, and November find egg prices rapidly increasing and the demand good for a high quality product.
 Many of the most successful poultrymen are taking advantage of these favorable prices by shipping to the large egg markets rather than selling locally. In general it has been found profitable to ship eggs on a rising market. Mr. Klein points out. The practice, however, seems hardly fair to the local buyer who has to buy the eggs during the season of less favorable market conditions.

"Experience has shown that it is not advisable to ship on a falling market," he declared. "This means that shipments must be discontinued about the first of the year unless a special market paying considerably above prevailing market prices can be secured. In a well organized poultry program, especially if the flock is well bred, this is not a serious matter as eggs can then be sold to a hatchery or for hatching purposes, thereby providing a 10 to 15 cent margin over the market prices for an additional period of four months. This shipment should not be more than a week old and it is even preferable to ship twice a week if volume permits, and new 30 dozen cases should always be used. Complete directions for packing can be secured from local express offices.
 "The eastern markets have all the poultry eggs that they can handle when they most want a high grade selected product. They are very particular about the cleanliness of the egg, and want it to be of high quality."

Fine Alfalfa Chaff Is Excellent for Chicks

The fine alfalfa chaff gathered from around the mangers makes an excellent green feed for young chicks, and it is also good scratching litter for the colony brooder houses. The alfalfa chaff is so fine that it will pay to keep the chicks off the range for about three weeks to reduce the danger from coccidiosis. They will supply green feed and stimulate to make range conditions in the house.

Poultry men who do not have alfalfa meal for chicks, may wish to refer to the quality.
 Some of the commercial starting mashers have a little alfalfa-leaf included. In feeding either alfalfa-leaf meal or screened alfalfa chaff, it is difficult to give any exact quantity which should be given. Chicks develop rapidly in weight and their requirements increase from day to day. The practical way of feeding green feed to chicks seems to consist in giving each chick about as much each day as they will clean up in an hour or two without waste. This the chicks can pick at the same rate as they will when they wish, and all the chicks in the flock will have a chance at some green feed.

Poultry Squibs

Cull, and sell stalker hens.
 Remove males from the poultry flock.
 Minerals are often limiting factors in egg production.
 There is considerable strain on a hen caused by laying heavily every day, even if that production is during the natural season for heavy laying.
 A young orchard or a wild plum grove or a grove of wildflowers are ideal places to raise chicks. Some successful poultry raisers grow their young chicks at the edge of a corn field.
 Poultry farming seems most efficient of all farming—is it because women do most of that?
 While hens will live and even keep in fair health on poor rations, well balanced, palatable feeds are essential to good egg production.
 Skim milk, either sweet or sour, and buttermilk are especially valuable feeds for young chicks in hot weather, making the hot weather without reducing its nutritive value.

One of the faults of many feeders is that they do not give their hens enough feed, rather than too much.
 Chicks will do best if the sexes are separated. The cockerels should be removed from the broilers when they can be distinguished.
 In order for an accredited flock to qualify as a certified flock, the owner must use water from his own well or a trap test record of 200 eggs or more per year.

FARM TRAINING FOR CHILDREN IN HIGH SCHOOLS
 Amarillo, Texas—The training of children for farm work has never had the attention which it now receives. One outstanding training system, vocational agriculture in the high schools, is fostered by the Federal and state governments under the provisions of the Smith-Hughes Act.

The Santa Fe Railway is encouraging these activities in the states served by its lines, announces W. B. Stover, President of the Santa Fe System. Every year the Santa Fe offers prize trips, including expenses, for champion stock judging teams of five members from each Santa Fe state to the National Congress of Students of vocational agriculture, held in Kansas City in the fall. The winning team is selected in a state wide contest, conducted by the State Department of Vocational Education, the prize trips being awarded to winners in Santa Fe communities.
 Another outstanding plan for training is the work done by the 4-H clubs under the provision of the Smith-Lever Act. The Santa Fe offers every year prize trips, including expenses, for 64 members of 4-H clubs from various states to the 4-H club conference in Chicago, held in November. The winners are selected in a contest under the direction of the state club leader at the agricultural colleges. Texas is entitled to 19 prize winners for the Chicago 4-H club conference. The winners must come from counties served by the Santa Fe Railway.

Dairy Interest Shown
 The interest in dairying as a leading industry of the Panhandle-Plains country was shown at the dairy show at Plainview the first week in April, there being 241 registered cows exhibited, in addition to some 60 or 70 high quality grade cows. People attended the show from as far away as Dalhart, Canadian and Clarendon. Lubbock, Lamesa, Tahoka, Slaton, Crowell, Floydada, Silverton and Hale Center were largely represented.

"Pave Every Street"
 Pharr started a "Pave Every Street" campaign, using that phrase as a slogan, in the early part of 1927, and so closely has the city stuck to its purpose that in a few months the slogan will be obsolete because there will be no more streets left to pave. Can any other Texas town make as good a showing on street paving?

CAN AN OWL SEE?

Many of us have been brought up to believe that an owl cannot see in the sunlight. Maybe so, and then again maybe not. At any rate, a group of boy scouts recently captured a common screech owl in the top of a tree on the outskirts of Philadelphia, carried him to earth, examined him closely as boy scouts are wont to do, and then deposited him upon a low branch of another tree. The owl flew to a branch higher up on still another tree, thence to a branch located a few feet from his nest; and then, with no hesitancy, he dropped into the nest itself. If he could not see, he surely had a wonderful sense of direction.

Today's Recipe

STUFFED PRUNE SALAD

Though a lengthy cut remove stone from large cooked or steamed prunes. Fill with cottage cheese seasoned and mixed with sweet or sour cream. On crisp lettuce leaves arrange stuffed prunes star fashion around a small mound of cottage cheese. Serve with Russian or any desired dressing.

A TEN MINUTE DESSERT

6 oranges
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup water
1/2 cup cream
Chopped Walnuts

Remove peel and membrane from oranges and cut into thin slices. Boil sugar and water together until a golden brown syrup is formed. Arrange layer of orange slices in glass dish, cover with syrup; repeat layers until orange slices are used. Heap with whipped cream and sprinkle with chopped walnuts.

ENGAGEMENT RINGS FOR MEN POPULAR

In most countries on the continent of Europe, men wear two rings. One is an engagement ring, plain wrought or with a single gem that is given on the day of fiancailles by the parents of the bride. In Germany the betrothal is a kind of premarriage and practically binds the pair, great scandal being caused by any breaking of such arrangements. In other countries, the ceremony is more or less solemn, more or less binding and rings are exchanged with a single gem that is given on the day of the wedding. As a rule, however the bridegroom gets a wedding ring as well as the bride, excepting in England. He is not supposed to remove it, as it brings bad luck on the house to do so, and for this reason, the ring is in plain gold. In summer time many men's rings are found in truncheons and other places, having been removed to make some infatuated female believe that the man was single.

The fact that every married man wears one or two rings on the third finger generally means that he wears a signet ring as well and perhaps an other ring, a solitaire with a magnificent stone, a mosaic or something plain and simple, yet good to take away the plainness of the wedding ring.

How Much Water Should Baby Get?—A Famous Authority's Rule

By Ruth Brittain

Baby specialists agree nowadays, that during the first six months, babies must have three ounces of fluid per pound of body weight daily. An eight-pound baby, for instance, needs twenty-four ounces of fluid. Later on the rule is two ounces of fluid per pound of body weight. The amount of fluid absorbed by a breast-fed baby is best determined by weighing him before and after feeding for the whole day; and it is easily calculated for the bottle-fed one. Then make up any deficiency with water.

Giving baby sufficient water often relieves his feverish, crying, upset and restless spells. If it doesn't, give him a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria. For these and other ills of babies and children such as colic, cholera, diarrhea, gas on stomach and bowels, constipation, sour stomach, loss of sleep, underweight, etc., leading physicians say there's nothing so effective. It is purely vegetable—the recipe is on the wrapper—and millions of mothers have depended on it in over thirty years of ever increasing use. It regulates baby's bowels, makes him sleep and eat right, enables him to get full nourishment from his food, so he increases in weight as he should. With each package you get a book on Mothering worth its weight in gold.

Get a word of caution. Look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher on the package so you'll be sure to get the genuine. The forty-cent bottles contain thirty-five doses.

What's the Use

Lois Hubbard, a supervisor of M. G. M. productions, was patiently explaining the wonders of Yocette to the leading lady of his company while they were "on location" in the wonder park. "Yes," he explained, pointing to El Capitan, "that was undoubtedly left there by some giant glacier."

"But where is the glacier?" asked the girl doubtfully.

"Come back another rock," smiled the disgruntled Hubbard.—Los Angeles Times.

VARIETY IN SILKEN SCARFS; BELTED SILHOUETTE STRESSED

WHAT more colorful than a gay scarf? Why two scarfs, to be sure or three if you please. And so it is, since we must have color, and plenty of it this season that the latest caprice of fashion is to wear scarfs en suite, rather than singly.

This add-a-scarf vogue issues a new challenge to the imagination, for there is no end of intriguing ways which prevent themselves for arranging the colorful kerchiefs squares and triangles, which are now so popular. The picture presents an interesting study in the art of scarf wearing.

Ways of Wearing Scarfs.

about the hips, that is one way of wearing a two-kerchief scarf set. The effectiveness of such an arrangement is demonstrated in the picture to the left.

Sports sets which consist of head bandeau, tie and giraffe have quite captured the fancy of the younger set. And if they are polka-dotted like the set shown to the right, well, that advances them to the top of the mode without question. Printed crepe de chine is the most popular for these trio-scarf effects.

Country club squares, they call the big silken kerchiefs which give such a modish air to the young modern centered in this group. One would think that this smartly attired young woman had just happened to carelessly thrust her kerchief into her pocket or rather, more properly speaking, out of her pocket. Truth is, it is not just a "hap-penstance" that the aforesaid silken square dangles so gracefully and so conspicuously at her side. No, indeed! It is due to a premeditated act on the part of this sophisticated young woman that this kerchief falls, yet does not fall, out of the pocket of her blouse. In other words, it is the very latest act of the mode to so position one of two gay-colored and bold-patterned scarfs, while the other skillfully knots itself about the shoulders. No anonymity in scarf patterning this season! The reason for this being that most of them are either hand-painted or hand-blocked. Some of the patterning are modernistic to an extreme. Picture a color scheme which involves vivid greens, blue, rose, black, white and yellow, and which depicts a young woman strolling in company with her canine pet amidst trees under a fair sky. No, this is not describing a picture to be hung in an art gallery, but rather does it tell of the trend of the mode in scarf designing.

Which shall it be, an ensemble or a separate coat for travel and general utility wear? Truth is, that it is one of those elusive seasons where "you pay your money and you take your choice." Arbitrary rules are few and far between. Fashion follows, as not for many years, are encouraged and counsel'd to dress to individuality.

One would not err in event of choosing either of the two candidates which appear in the picture. Whatever their other differences it is perfectly apparent that these models agree as to the "to be or not to be" of the belted silhouette. Indeed, the subject of belts is outstanding this season—not only self-fabric belts on the coat or jacket, but fancy belts for blouse and frock prove of fascinating interest.

Natural gray knits tie the medium employed for the semi-sports separate coat shown here. It is lined with crepe to match. There is a piping of marine blue knits outlining the deep cuffs, the novelty pockets and the strap along the center back. The color is of summer-weight gray fur. Which calls to mind the importance attached to the union of blue and gray. This color combination is one of the smartest. The belt fastens with a fancy buckle.

The three-piece ensemble suit pictured to the left is of tweed. The blouse and coat facings are of crepe silk. Straps of tweed trim the blouse. The pockets are of the patch type, and by the way, pockets are almost as intriguing a subject as belts these days. The belt in this instance fastens across the front only, which is a very considerate thing for it to do, seeing that this allows the chic coat to fall

Two Youthful Models.

In a clever unrestricted line from the neck at the back, the skirt which is sewed to a bodice, has a cluster of side darts.

Three materials which are indorsed by the latest designers for either ensemble or separate coat are loose woven basket cloth, repp and Jersey checking. Navy blue is considered every fashionable. Sometimes the navy check have tuxedo revers of matching material, likewise cuffs with perhaps a bow of the motif at the shoulder, or a scarf of the same run through slots cut in the woven coat collar.

Preacher Surely Had Right to Be Annoyed

F. S. Harkness, the philanthropist and patron of the arts who recently gave $250,000 to the New York Memorial Hospital for the purchase of four grams of radium, was talking at the University club against speculation.

"Speculation is demoralizing," he said. "There was once a country preacher who speculated in oil stock. A deacon asked him some time afterward:

"Well, doctor, what have you done with that oil stock of yours?"

"Done? I've been done. Got cheated out of it," the preacher said.

"No?" said the deacon. "No! How come?"

"Why," said the preacher, "I thought the stuff was valueless, you see, and so I unloaded it on a greenhorn for a song. But it turned out to be worth thousands, and that swindler who bought it from me knew it all the time!"—Kansas City Star.

Switzerland's "White Coal"

Although the United States is proud of the fact that its homes are more modern than those of most other countries, it remains a fact that 42 per cent of the homes of the nation are not yet served with electricity. Switzerland leads the world in per capita consumption of electricity, mainly because, with so many waterfalls in the tiny republic, there is power in every back yard, so to speak.

Expect Banded Birds to Explain Mystery

Bird enthusiasts, who wish to help solve the mysteries of bird migration, will have plenty of employment trying to get returns on the 270,000 birds that have been banded under the auspices of the United States biological survey. Returns on banded birds, according to Frederick C. Lincoln, in charge of this activity of the survey now amount to 10,328 cases. Knowledge of the movements of the bird after its first banding, gained from these return reports, enables ornithologists to get precise information concerning bird migration, a mystery that has puzzled mankind since the time of Aristotle. Ducks supply the most returns, Mr. Lincoln said. This is undoubtedly due to the fact that many banded waterfowl are taken by the millions of hunters in the field during the hunting season. Prominent among the bird problems of economic interest which banding may be expected to solve, Mr. Lincoln points out, is the control of red-winged blackbirds that do much damage to the rice crop in the South and of California in late summer and early fall.

Trees of Past Ages

in Botanical Garden

Seedling trees of a species that represents the vegetation of Florida 200,000 years ago, during the glacial epoch, have been added to the collection in the New York Botanical garden as the result of a scientific tour of the state by Dr. John K. Small. The trees, which are known as Torreya, or locally as Savares, belong to the botanical genus Taxodium, and occur naturally in a small strip of territory along the east bank of the Appalachicola river in the Florida panhandle. They occur nowhere else in the world, though related species are found in California, Japan and China. They resemble yew trees in some ways, and can be cultivated under the same sort of climatic conditions that favor the yew.

Roman Relics in England

One thousand eight hundred years ago Roman women suffered from difficulties of the feet. Evidence of this has just been found at Fountains court, Lothbury, London, where excavations for a new building are being carried on. The sole of a woman's leather shoe, in which the mark of a corn at the base of the little toe can clearly be seen, was discovered. A few remains of Roman glass of the most exquisite coloring and patterns were found on the same spot.

Doctor at 83 Found People Preferred His Prescription

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice, known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then, the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination ofenna and other mild laxative herbs, with pepsin.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic medicines and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. If grown people want to use them no one can deny them the privilege, but they should never be given to children.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a half and eat why by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take

THE COST OF DISCIPLESHIP

LESSON TEXT—Mark 10:17-27; 12:41-44.
GOLDEN TEXT—Where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Loving Jesus Best of All.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Putting Jesus First.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Suffering Christ.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Peril of Riches.

I. The Rich Young Ruler (10:17-27).
1. His question.

"What shall I do that I may inherit eternal life?" This young man was in earnest. He came running and knelt to Jesus. This question reveals a void in his heart. He was a young man with a loving character. "Jesus beholding him, loved him." He was moral, honest, earnest and courageous, but had a defective theology. He thought that eternal life could be obtained by good works. Though he claimed to have kept the law, he was conscious of lacking something. He was willing to do something to fill up that which was lacking, therefore he came to Jesus to make inquiry as to that lack.

2. Jesus' reply (vs. 18, 19).

He knew the young man's heart and put his finger on the weak spot in his life. Jesus reiterated the commandments. The young man averred that he had all his life kept these commandments, but when it came to parting with his possessions in order to help his neighbor he parted with the Lord, going away sorrowful.

3. Lacking one thing and yet lost (vs. 21, 22).

When the Lord pointed out to him that the defect in his life was love of money, he was unwilling to pay the price. When the time came in his life to choose between eternal life and riches he chose wealth and parted company with Christ.

4. The peril of riches (vs. 23-27).

Jesus said, "How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God." When he discerned the astonishment of the disciples He answered again and said, "How hard is it for them that trust in riches to enter into the kingdom of God. It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God." The difficulty does not lie in the fact that a man possesses riches, for one may possess riches and still be an heir of the kingdom. Wealth is a mighty power. In itself it is good. It provides bread for the widow and orphan, ameliorates the suffering, and sends the gospel of Christ to the ends of the earth. The peril of riches lies in trusting in them. However, the step from possession of riches to trusting in them is a very short one. The tendency of growing wealth is to destroy the noble life of the soul. So long as a man possesses riches he is safe, but as soon as riches possess the man he is in deadly peril.

11. The Widow's Mite (Mark 12: 41-44).

Jesus had spent a strenuous day and was now quietly watching the surging throng. Observe:
1. Jesus sitting over against the treasury (v. 41). The treasury was the place where the worshippers deposited their tithes and offerings. Jesus sat where He could see them drop their money into the chests. He saw the poor casting into the treasury their small gifts, and also saw the rich bringing larger coins. It is a solemn truth that Jesus' eye always beholds the gifts of the people. We may not be able to deal them from the people, but we cannot conceal them from His eye.

2. A certain poor widow threw into the treasury two mites (v. 42). The mite was the smallest copper coin made. The mite was worth about one-eighth of a cent, therefore her offering was one-fourth of a cent in value.

3. Jesus said unto His disciples "Verily I say unto you that this poor widow hath cast more in than all they which have cast into the treasury" (v. 43). The Lord estimates gifts by the motive of the heart, not by their amount.

4. Gifts are measured by what the giver has left, not by what was given (v. 44). This widow cast into the treasury all that she had, even all her living. The rich gave of their abundance. Though their gifts were much more than that of the poor widow, yet they had an abundance left.

This woman's influence goes on. Many devoted Christians have followed her example and have given their all.

Autumn Wisdom

Chaire Meredith, the brilliant poet, disembarked from a sumptuous liner, talked to a New York reporter about a retired actress who had condemned severely the immorality of modern plays, modern dances and modern youth.

"She's getting old," said Miss Meredith, "getting too old. When we get too old to set a bad example we begin giving good advice."

Shifts Earth Quickly

Material could be lifted to the top of a ten-story building by a giant electric shovel, largest in the world, now being constructed, says Popular Science Monthly. Placed in the center of a football field, it could dig out the entire field without moving from one position, and deposit the dirt in the stands. Its 120-foot boom will be terminated by a dipper stick eighty-two feet long, and a scoop that can pick up fifteen cubic yards of earth or coal, weighing nearly twenty-four tons, at a single stroke. The mammoth shovel will be used in the open pit mining of coal at Danville, Ill.

NOT GUILTY

The jury filed into the box. The red-nosed defendant looked at the foreman with hopeful but bleary eyes.

"Do you find the defendant guilty or not guilty of selling intoxicating beverages?" asked the judge.

"Some said 'yes' and others said 'no' stammered the flustered foreman, "but looking at the culprit's red proboscis, the nose won. No guy with a nose like that would sell booze.

Better than Beet-pulp!

Beet pulp is good. Purina Bulky-Las is better. Here's why:

Bulky-Las can be soaked in water and fed the same as beet pulp, and has the same succulent value. Bulky-Las, however, contains molasses which makes it more palatable than beet pulp. Again, it is much higher in available lime content, lack of which causes abortion and short lactation periods.

Feed Bulky-Las with Purina Cow Chew and get more milk at less cost per gallon.
