OLD FIDDLERS CONTEST DRAWS LARGE CROWD; CASH PRIZES AWARDED

Special Trades Day Feature For Next Saturday Will Be Prize Pens of Pure- bred Poultry.

The Old Fiddlers Contest, sponsored by the Merchants' Luncheon Club of Muleshoe, was held last Saturday at the Lone Star Theatre and drew one of the largest crowds of the year. There were some seven or eight contestants and the music rendered brought back memories of days gone by, when, according to some of the "old timers," music was music.

Mr. Byron Portales made a hit with the judges to the extent that he was awarded first prize $20.00.

Mr. M. P. Wimberley of Muleshoe was second, winning $12.50.

I. W. Harden won third prize and $7.50.

"Fiddlin' Ross" won fourth place and a prize of $5.00.

Mrs. E. J. Vance accompanied the musicians at the piano.

Next Saturday will be one of the best premium days since the drawings have been in effect. In line with their policy of promoting better dairying and poultry raising, the Merchants' Luncheon Club will give away to the holders of the lucky tickets, four pens of pure-bred Leghorn chickens. These pens will consist of 12 hens and one rooster and are of the best stock from the McAdams Poultry Farm.

Here is a chance for some one to get a start in the poultry business with some of the best stock obtainable. Get your tickets at Muleshoe stores and be on hand Saturday afternoon.

BLUE COMES IN A BIG RAILROAD THRILLER

Monte Blue again appears as a railroader in Warner Bros. lightning melodrama, "The Greyhound Limited," which comes to the Lone Star Theatre Friday and Saturday; also matinee at 2:30 for a run of two days.

His support includes Eina Murphy, Grant Withers, Lew Harvey, Lucy Beaumont and Ernie Shields. Albert Henson wrote the story, which was scenarized by Anthony Coloway. Howard Bretherton directed.

PROMINENT ATTORNEY OF LUBBOCK OPENING OFFICE IN MULESHOE

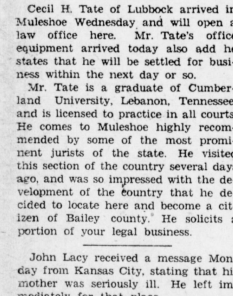

Cecil H. Tate of Lubbock arrived in Muleshoe Wednesday and will open a law office here. Mr. Tate's office equipment arrived today also and he states that he will be settled for business within the next day or so.

Mr. Tate is a graduate of Cumberland University, Lebanon, Tennessee, and is licensed to practice in all courts. He comes to Muleshoe highly recommended by some of the most prominent jurists of the state. He visited this section of the country several days ago, and was so impressed with the development of the country that he decided to locate here and become a citizen of Bailey County. He solicits a portion of your legal business.

John Lacy received a message Monday from Kansas City, stating that his mother was seriously ill. He left immediately for that place.

RUNNING TOO FAST CAR QUITS HIGHWAY NEAR CITY

While returning from a social at the Oklahoma Lane school house, east of this city, last Saturday night Clarence Taylor and Johnnie Burch were in a car accident that came near proving serious. Burch was driving at a rather fast clip when he approached the underpass unexpectedly. Due to the speed of the machine he was unable to make the sharp curve and the car quit the highway and plunged into the embankment on the roadside. Taylor received a number of cuts about the face when he was thrown through the windshield, but Burch escaped injury. The car, a model A Ford, was pretty badly damaged.—State Line Tribune.

COMMISSIONER BELL ANNOUNCES INTENTION TO RUN FOR SHERIFF

Commissioner J. M. (Mack) Bell, of Precinct No. 4, was a business visitor in Muleshoe last Saturday. Mr. Bell was a caller at The Journal office while in town and stated that conditions in his precinct were excellent. Many new settlers are moving into that section of the county. Mr. Bell said, and prospects are good for more developments this year than ever before.

Mr. Bell also stated that it was his intention to make the race for sheriff of Bailey county next year, and made the statement for publication so that the voters of the county could investigate his record if so desired.

Mr. Bell has been one of the commissioners of Bailey county for several years and is well known in all of the precincts.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY

The Ladies' Missionary Society of the M. E. Church met at the home of Mrs. Arnold Morris with 14 members present. The meeting was opened by reading the sixth chapter of Luke, by our president, Mrs. Hicks.

A short business session was held and then the meeting was turned over to Mrs. Stone, the leader of our study book, "Jesus, Our Ideal," each one present taking part.

The meeting was then closed by a prayer by Grandma Eirod.

The next meeting will be at Progress with a voice program. Each lady of the church is invited to attend. The crowd will leave town in a body at 3:30 in order to be there and begin promptly at 4:00 o'clock.

The society will have a bazaar on the 7th of December. Let's don't forget and let each member be ready.

Oh yes, last but not least, don't forget to take your things to Thompson's Dry Goods Store to be packed to be sent away.

The Fall Intruder

Season's First Bale of Cotton Ginned Friday

The first bale of cotton for the present season was ginned last Friday at the Muleshoe gin and was brought to town by Wade Ellis of south of town. The ginning, bagging and ties were furnished free to Mr. Ellis by the Muleshoe gin and the Luncheon Club gave a premium of $25.00. It is understood that the bale has not been sold as yet.

Since the beginning of the season's run last Friday, some 30 or more bales of cotton have been ginned here. Cotton is opening up fast and work of gathering the crop will be rushed while the weather is good.

The gin here has been put in first class shape and additional machinery for cleaning the staple has been added and men of experience are running the plant. Farmers state that they are well pleased with the work being done.

MRS. D. K. SMITH ENTERTAINS WITH LUNCHEON TUESDAY

Mrs. D. K. Smith, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. R. P. Lowrie of Chicago, gave a three-course luncheon Tuesday. Bridge was played and Mrs. J. E. Aldridge won high score, a beautiful strand of beads. Those present were Mesdames W. C. Buey, Lilia Daniel, J. E. Aldridge, J. M. March, W. H. Duckworth and H. A. Miller, of Clavis, and Mrs. R. P. Lowrie of Chicago.

CORRECTION

In our report last week of the car accidents on local highways, it was our intention to state that there was no light on the building that was being moved, but instead it was stated that there was a light on the building, and by oversight the error went through the paper.

Local Telephone Office Damaged By Fire Saturday

Fire, which is said to have been started by electric light wires, caused damage of about $250.00 to the building, occupied by the State Telephone company, last Saturday evening at 7:15 o'clock.

The building, a frame structure, is owned by Mrs. Virginia Hoskins and it is understood that insurance will cover the damage.

The efficiency of the Muleshoe Fire Department was demonstrated by the fact that one and one-half minutes after the siren sounded they were throwing on the building.

FAST FOOTBALL GAME PROMISED LOCAL FANS FOR FRIDAY AFTERNOON

One of the best games of the season is promised football fans on next Friday afternoon, when the Muleshoe High school team meets Priona at Cobb park here.

The local boys have been at hard training the past two weeks and are expected to deliver the goods, which means victory. The town team, which was recently organized and is composed of former stars of the gridiron, can testify to the fact that the High school boys are hard hitting bats. Tuesday afternoon they marked up three touchdowns to none for the town boys, and for good measure, we notice numerous lumps and bumps on the heroes of former days, some of which were college men.

Excellent Work of Fire Boys

Muleshoe citizens should be proud of the excellent work of our Fire Department last Saturday evening. One and one-half minutes after the siren sounded they were throwing water on the blaze at the telephone office. This, we believe, is about as good as some city departments can boast of and better than many.

One fact to be deplored is, the way some people thoughtlessly drive over fire hose while they are in use. Acts like this either show the ignorance of the driver or worse yet, an insolent disregard for the safety of city property. In either case it would be well for such people to inform themselves as to the seriousness of driving over a fire hose. Besides hampering the work of the fire department, driving over a hose with an automobile or other vehicle is very damaging. Fire hose cost money—and plenty of it. As we understand the situation, the city has very little money to squander and good fire-fighting equipment is very necessary to any town. Therefore, every citizen should take it upon himself to see that this property is not destroyed.

Far be it from us to flatter ourselves that we have any great amount of intelligence, nor do we know much about mixing up law for the city, but it seems to us, that while our efficient city officials are at the business of passing ordinances it would be well to include one to prevent careless people from driving over fire hose.

Oil Showing of Lehman Well Is More Favorable

Information received here today from Lehman, Cochran county, which adjoins Bailey on the south, which is on the Slaughter lands in what is known as the "scraped out pasture."

The well which is to be spudded in will be some six miles nearer the Bailey county line. It is said, and is attracting attention to this section of the county. There has been no oil activity in this county since, the Humble company ceased operations in the Baileyboro territory a little over a year ago.

HIGHWAYS IN SOUTH TOUCH HISTORIC SCENIC POINTS

United States highways, Nos. 80 and 90, extending from coast to coast across the southern part of the nation like "a two-pronged fork with the tines pointing east," offer the motorist passage through scenic belts ranging from Civil War battlefields of the historic South to the picturesque peaks and valleys of California, according to descriptive data just made public by the Bureau of Public Roads.

Highway No. 80 extends from Savannah, Ga., to San Diego, across the territory of the Mississippi Valley explored by De Soto, and sections of Texas, New Mexico and Arizona traversed by Coronado in his search for the Cities of Gold.

INFERIOR COUNTERFEITS OF NEW BILLS DETECTED

The first attempt to counterfeit the new small-sized currency has ended in failure. It has been announced by the Chief of the Secret Service, W. H. Moran. Advances have been received by the secret service that several counterfeit bills had been placed in circulation in a small town in Iowa, but were quickly detected. One man was reported under arrest on charge of counterfeiting.

NEW STAMP

Announcement has been made by Postmaster General Brown that there shortly will be issued a special 2-cent stamp as a memorial to General Anthony Wayne and to commemorate the 153rd anniversary of the Battle of the Fallen Timbers, which resulted in peace with the Indians in northwestern Ohio, evacuation of the last traces of British soldiery in this section and put the young American nation in position to expand westward.

Judge J. E. Adams received a message Wednesday that Mr. G. W. Sollock of Rule was very ill. The Judge left immediately for that place and after he arrived at Rule wired his wife that Mr. Sollock was better.

E. L. Gardner of Hollis, Oklahoma, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. M. March this week.

Increase in Bales Indicated By New Cotton Estimate

An increase of 90,000 bales was shown Tuesday in the Department of Agriculture's October cotton production forecast as compared with a month ago. The indicated crop was placed at 14,915,000 bales by the crop reporting board as compared with 14,825,000 bales last month and 14,478,000 bales ginned last year.

Decreases in the indicated crop in the Carolinas, Texas and Oklahoma were more than offset by increases in the central portion of the belt from Georgia to Louisiana and Missouri, the board said. In Mississippi and the Delta portions of Arkansas and Louisiana, the board reported, the crop is turning out much better than was expected a month ago.

"Apparently crop reporters were misled by dry weather during August, which did not damage the crop as much as was anticipated," the board commented. "This is also true in Georgia and Alabama."

"Development of the crop in Texas and Oklahoma has brought to light the small size of open bolls, and also the small number of young bolls on the plants which could benefit from the showers that occurred during the first week of September."

"In the Carolinas rainfall was excessive particularly during the closing days of the month and caused some damage to open cotton. Picking has developed the fact that rotting of partially mature bolls will be more serious in these states and northern Georgia."

Condition of the crop was reported at 55.0 per cent of normal, as compared with 54.4 per cent a year ago and a 10-year average of 53.0 per cent. The indicated yield is 153.2 pounds per acre, which is 2.5 pounds below the average yield for the 10-year period and 1918-27.

UNIFORM BREED OF COTTON IS SOUGHT IN LYNN COUNTY

Tohoka—Local business men and farmers have started a movement to bring about the planting of some uniform breed of cotton, the result of which would be the realization of a better price on the product. Much short staple cotton has been planted in the county in the past, resulting in all cotton bringing a lower price than in localities where only long-staple varieties are raised. This move has been successfully made in many parts of Texas, it is said, greatly to the benefit of the farmers.

Farmers here are selecting a choice of long-staples and each signing a pledge to plant the choice of the majority next spring.

PROF. A. M. BUSWELL

Prof. A. M. Buswell of the University of Illinois and his assistants have devised a practicable method of making illuminating power and heating gas from corn stalks. It is expected that farmers will be able to take full advantage of the device.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Disatisfied with the quiet life in his home surroundings, Athol Meldrum, young Scotsman who tells the story, leaves his mother and brother, Gerry, to seek his fortune at San Francisco, practically penniless, he takes a laborer's job, but meets a well-known adventurer whom he dubs, and who is hereafter known as the Prodigal.

CHAPTER II.—The Prodigal is anxious to join the rush of gold seekers into Alaska. He is traveling to go with him after he (the Prodigal) comes back from a visit to his wealthy father in the East. Athol, in great need, is befriended by Jim Hubbard ("Salvation Jim"). When the Prodigal returns, the three companions stampede into the Frozen North, the Prodigal and Hubbard financing the outfit.

CHAPTER III.—Among the motley crowd on the boat is a young girl obviously out of place. She is traveling with her grandfather and a hard-looking couple named Windstein, who figure as her uncle and aunt. Athol has an opportunity to befriend her, and she tells him a sad story of her life. She is journeying into Alaska to take care of her grandfather, who is obsessed with the idea of getting rich in Klondike. Her name, she tells him, is Berna.

CHAPTER IV.—Landing at Skagway, Athol's party at once takes the trail, which Berna and her companions had taken, hundreds of lives are lost. Pearl, the Prodigal's sister, and the Prodigal himself, find the old man dead and learns that Berna is prostrated. Madam Windstein refuses to let him see the girl, but he leaves a letter for her. Berna, who comes to Athol, confesses her love, and begs him to marry her, to save her from the harsh fate she foresees. He is unwilling to do so, and she decides to stop, and tells her what wait.

CHAPTER V.—Some days afterward Berna tells Athol Madam Windstein plans to sell her "Black Jack" to a certain millionaire miner of evil reputation. While waiting how cruelly he loves the girl, Meldrum, in a mixture of emotions, decides to follow the idea of immediate marriage, and they agree to wait a year before they are taken. Reaching the gold fields, Athol and his party are again taken, and the camp crowded with idle men.

CHAPTER VI.—Athol's party decides to stay and await developments. Unable to locate Berna, Athol seeks information from Locust, "Black Jack" declines knowledge of her whereabouts, and later eventually reveals the rivalry between them. Berna is taken to a lonely spot and beats him into unconsciousness.

CHAPTER VII.—Through a lucky chance Athol finds Berna. She tells him she has so far evaded Locust and will die before she yields to him. They set a date for their marriage, the first of June—Meldrum hoping to have made a stake by then—and part.

CHAPTER VIII

"You'd better quit," said the Prodigal. It was the evening of my mission, and he had arrived unexpectedly from town. "It just fits in with my plans. I'm getting Jim to cope in, too. I've realized on that stuff I thought, made over three thousand clear profit, and with it I've made a dicker for a property on the bench above Bonanza, Gold hill they call it. I've a notion it's all right. Anyway, we'll tangle in and see. You and Jim will have a quarter share each for your work, while I'll have an extra quarter for the capital I've put in. Is it a go?" I said it was.

Next day found us all three surveying our claim. The first thing we do was to build a cabin. Right away we began to level off the ground. The work was pleasant, and conducted in such friendship that the time passed most happily. Indeed, my only worry was about Berna. I schooled myself into the belief that she was all right, but, thank God, every moment was bringing her nearer to me.

We had hauled the logs for the cabin, and the foundation was laid. Every day saw our future home nearer completion.

One evening I spied the saturnine Ribwood climbing down the hill to our tent. He hailed me:

"Say, we want a night watchman as at the claim to go on four hours a night at a dollar an hour. You see, there's been a lot of sluice-box robberies lately, and we're scared for our clean-up. There's four hours every night the place is deserted, and Hoffmann proposed we should get you to keep watch."

"Yes," I said; "I'll run up every evening if the others don't object."

They did not; so the next night, for about a dozen after that, I spent the darkest hours watching at the claim where previously I had worked.

It was the dimmest and most uncertain hour of the four, and I was sitting at my post of guard. As the night was chilly I had brought along an old gray blanket, similar in color to the mound of the pay-dirt. There had been quite a cavity dug in the dump during the day, and into this I crawled and wrapped myself in my blanket. From my position I could see the string of boxes containing the rifles. By my side lay a loaded shotgun.

"If the swine comes," Ribwood had said, "let him have a clean-up of lead instead of gold."

Lying there, I got to thinking of the robberies. They were remarkable. All had been done by an expert. Each time the robber had cleaned up from two to three thousand dollars, and all within the past month. There was some mysterious masterstroke in our midst, one who operated swiftly and surely, and left absolutely no clew of his identity.

I was quiet for a while, watching dreamily the dark shadows of the dusk.

Hist! What was that? Surely the bushes were moving over there by the hillside. I strained my eyes. I was right; they were.

I watched and waited. A man was paring the bushes. Cautiously, crawling like a snake, he worked his way to the sluice-boxes. None but a keen watcher could have seen him. Again and again he paused, peered around, listened intently. Very carefully, with my eyes fixed on him, I lifted the gun to my shoulder. I had him covered.

I waited. Somehow I was loath to shoot. My nerves were a-quever. Proof, more proof, I said. I saw him working busily, lying flat alongside the boxes. How crafty, how skillful he was! He was disconnecting the boxes. He would let the water run to the ground; then, there in the exposed riffles, would be his harvest. Would I shoot . . . now . . . now . . .

Then in the midnight hush, my gun blazed forth. With one scream the man tumbled down, carrying along with him the disconnected box. The water rushed over the ground in a deluge. I must capture him. There he lay in that pouring stream. . . . Now I had him.

In that torrent of icy water I grappled with the man. Over and over we rolled. He tried to gouge me. He was small, but oh, how strong! He held down his face. Fiercely I wrenched it up to the light. Heaven! it was the Worm.

I gave a cry of surprise, and my clutch on him must have weakened, for at that moment he gave a violent wrench, a cat-like twist, and tore himself free. Men were running in from all directions.

"Catch him!" I cried. "Yonder he goes."

But the little man was shooting forward like a deer. Right and left ran his pursuers, mistaking each other for the robber in the semigloom. He yelled frantically, mad with the excitement of a man-hunt. And in the midst of it all I lay in a pool of mud and water, with a sprained wrist and a life on my leg.

"Why didn't you hold him?" shouted Ribwood.

"I couldn't," I answered. "I saved your clean-up, and he got some of the rest. Besides, I know who he is. Pat Doogan."

"You don't say. Well, I'm darned. We'll get him. I'll go into town first thing in the morning and get out a warrant for him."

He went, but the next evening back he returned, looking very surly and disgruntled.

"Well, what about the warrant?" said Hoffmann.

"Didn't get it," snapped Ribwood. "Look here, Hoffmann, I met Locust. Black Jack says Pat was cashed away, dead to all the world, in the backroom of the Omega saloon all night. There's two lawfers and the barkeeper to back him up. What can we do in the face of that? Say, young fellow, I guess you mistook your man."

"I guess I did not," I protested stoutly.

They both looked at me for a moment and shrugged their shoulders.

Time went on and the cabin was quietly nearing completion. The roof of poles was in place. It only remained to cover it with moss and thawed-out earth to make it our future home.

More and more my dream hours were jealously consecrated to Berna. How ineffably sweet were they. How full of delicious imaginings! How pregnant of high hope! O, I was born to love, I think, and I never loved but one. This story of my life is the story of Berna. It is a thing of words and words and words, yet every word is Berna, Berna. Feel the heartache behind it all. Read between the lines, Berna, Berna.

The Prodigal was always "snooping" around and gleaming information from most mysterious sources. One evening he came to us.

"Boys, get ready, quick. There's a rumor of a stampede for a new creek, Ophir creek they call it, away on the other side of the divide somewhere. A prospector went down ten feet and got fifty-cent dirt. We've got to get in on this. There's a mob coming from Dawson, but we'll get there before the rush."

Quickly we got together blankets and a little grub, and, keeping out of sight, we crawled up the hill under cover of the brush. Soon we came to a place from which we could command a full view of the valley. Here we lay down, awaiting developments.

On the far slope of Eldorado, I saw a hawk soar upward. Surely a man was moving amid the brush, two men, a dozen men, moving in single file very stealthily. I pointed them out.

"It's the stampede," whispered Jim. "We've got to get on to the trail of that crowd. Travel like blazes. We can cut them off at the head of the valley."

"Throw away your blankets, boys," said the Prodigal. "Just keep a little grub. We must connect with that bunch if we break our necks."

It was hours after when we overtook them, about a dozen men, and in the maddest hurry, and casting behind them glances of furtive apprehension. The leader was going like one possessed. We blundered on behind in the same mad, heart-breaking hurry, mile after mile, hour after hour, content to follow the man of iron who was guiding us to the virgin treasure.

We had been ponding along all night, up hill and down dale. The sun rose, it was morning. Still we

The Boll Weevil—Its Origin and Habits

You have probably heard of the boll weevil, but in case you are so ignorant as to not know what a boll weevil is, I'll tell you before I make my speech just what it is.

Now, there are several definitions of the boll weevil, both fake and profane, besides my own. I shan't give my own definition here but if you care to get a copy of it, please come around some time when I'm real sore about something (ladies not invited) and I'll try to accommodate you with a volume.

Webster, in his publication known as the dictionary, defines the boll weevil somewhat as follows (I leave out words not fit for publication): "Boll Weevil—An animal, bug, fly, insect or something of the kind, with two, four, six or maybe more legs, the same number or maybe more wings, a snout, two or three propellers, landing gear, fly wheel, hacksaw, drill, several eyes, no conscience and a number of other things, all enclosed in a fire-proof shell, hide, skin or root as the case demands." Mr. Webster declined to say anything further about the boll weevil for fear the Postoffice Department would refuse to accept his pamphlet in the mails.

Not being satisfied with the boll weevil history given by Mr. Webster, I dusted off a volume of Wood's Natural History and found that a boll weevil had eaten all the pages except those containing information about itself.

From Mr. Wood's book I learned that the origin of the boll weevil is undetermined but that a farmer in Georgia, who has made an exhaustive study of boll weevil history, has advanced the information that the bug was deported from hell back in 1729 because of conduct unbecoming a boll weevil. I have inside information that they couldn't keep fires down there on its account.

Mr. Wood does the boll weevil as follows: "A damned bug, or beetle, cussed, hated, lambasted, slandered, abused, mashed, remashed, scorned, feared and respected by everybody. A bug or beetle who fears no one, never gets hot or cold, wet or dry, neither smokes, drinks, cusses, chews gum nor gives a damn what folks say so long as they plant plenty of cotton for him." I consider that a fairly good definition but not strong enough.

Now I sympathize with the boll weevil even though he knows nothing of strikes, hatchet murders, suicides, gangs, taxes, the Eighteenth Amendment, laws, boarding houses or the pain of being married to a red-headed woman. He has my sympathy because he knows nothing of the pleasure of eating snap beans, chille, okra, or onions and has never enjoyed a good drink of home brew. He knows nothing of the pleasure of standing on a windy corner and watching 'em pass or the thrill of a good necking party.

More dirty methods has been resorted to in efforts to destroy the boll weevil than any politician ever employed in a political campaign, but he still hangs on. He is particularly fond of being thrown into the fire, and can live as well under water as on land. He goes north in the winter and south in the summer, and seldom spends two nights in one state.

Like persimmon sprouts, the only way to get rid of the weevil it to move off, leave him behind and move some place into the midst of more weevils. I believe that a suitable definition should be formed whereby the bug could be identified and that a committee should be appointed to have a hole drilled in the Pearly Gates where poor weevils could enter in case one should ever die.

THEM'S MY SENTIMENTS

I hate to be a kicker. I always long for peace; But the wheel that does the squealing is the one that gets the grease. You tell'em kid—you're peaceful and not too hard to please; But the dog that's always scratching is the one that gets the fleas. "I hate to be a kicker" means nothing in a show—the kicker in the chorus is the one that gets the dough. The art of soft soap spreading is a thing that palls and stales, But the guy who wields the hammer is the one who drives the nails. Let us not put any notions that are harmful in your head, But the body that keeps yelling is the one that gets fed.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

Muleshoe, Texas, Oct. 11, 1929. This is to certify that I have been associated with Sam Hoffman almost daily since he has been acting in the capacity of deputy sheriff at Slaton and I have found him firm and impartial in the enforcement of the law. Kind to prisoners, and his conduct and character at all times beyond question. I have found also that the number of cases filed on my docket and the number of fines paid in my court have almost tripled during the time that Mr. Hoffman has been acting as deputy sheriff at Slaton.

NEWS FROM THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

(By Special Correspondent)

President Green of the American Federation of Labor, issued an excellent address on the position and progress of organized labor, but he injected a sour note in his reference to injunctions issued in labor and other cases. Few injunctions are issued in labor disputes where violence and destruction of property is not alleged in the petitions for such injunctions. Organized labor is learning that lasting victory is not won by bloodshed and destruction of property, and no doubt the time is near at hand when an injunction in a labor dispute will be a rarity, in fact, while there may remain cause for disagreement between employer and employe, soon such disagreements will be settled in an amicable manner without strikes or lock-outs and both sides will gain, without loss to the public, which usually is the big loser in labor disputes.

AGAIN PARIS IS IN A MOOD TO FEATURE BLACK-AND-WHITE

Satin for afternoon, delicate evening, reversible the enthusiastic endorsement of the mode. One would have thought that after repeating its triumphs for so many seasons, satin would have by this time have outlived its voguishness, at least for the time being. On the contrary satin is holding its own with more certainty than ever. The satin mode as now presents many phases not the least interesting of which is the fact that there are more than one kind of satin featured in smart fabric showings and the color range extends from the most delicate evening tints to all the rich dark afternoon hues now in vogue. Speaking of the various satin types, there's everything from the ever popular soft crepe-back satins to the very new and much exploited highly lustrous panne satin which is really of the rayon family. Frocks of the new panne satin both in black or colors number among outstanding successes of the evening mode. For early autumn wear the satin afternoon and the satin street frock, also short jacket suit are making an excellent showing among new fashions. The smartest of these daytime modes are carried out in black and white as is the one-piece dress in the picture. One sees, too, any number of jaunty black satin suits the skirts

GASOLINE "CHEF" CONTROLS DIET OF YOUR AUTOMOBILE

Vitamins, calories, roughage, mineral salts—for your car? Not exactly. But, according to experts on automotive fueling, your car has dietary problems just as surely and equally as important as your body. And it is the business of the "gasoline chef" to see that the car gets the type of diet that will give it the ambition, pep and resistance it needs to keep on the job refrain from catching cold and stay out of the class of sluggish auto diptics. Who is the gasoline chef? He is a scientist who spends his days, and often his nights, working, studying, testing and discovering better ways to feed your motor. His kitchen is a great research laboratory maintained by the concern whose motor fuels you buy at the filling station. "Yes," says R. C. Joplin of the Phillips Petroleum company, Bartlesville, Oklahoma. "The research man in the motor fuel industry is really, among other things, a 'gasoline chef.' In our laboratories we have experts who continually study the dietary needs of the motor car and producing fare that meets those needs.

Deive Into Secrets of Island of Madagascar

A great deal of mystery surrounds the picturesque island of Madagascar. It appears to be the lumber room of an old continent, but which, or perhaps better, where is the continent, asks a correspondent: "Some think that Madagascar has broken away from its mother continent, Africa; others that it is one of the relics of a hypothetical continent, 'Lemuria,' which existed long ago in the Indian ocean between Africa and India." This is not, as the casual reader might think, a passage from some romance of the lost lands of the world. It is merely an extract from an official document, circulated by the British museum to call attention to the fact that an expedition is now at work in Madagascar seeking the solution of some of its riddles. It is not, then, beyond the bounds of possibility that the scientists may yet send the world authentic tidings of a lost continent.

Primitive Home Life

Rural Japanese housewives roll up their beds and store them away every morning. The Samous have no bathtubs. They bathe daily in the cool mountain streams. Their furnishings are limited to pots or gourds. Pebbles on the bare ground replace carpets. The Egyptian peasant along the Nile lives in a clay house. His bed and chair are a ledge of earth on the side of the room. In Arabia, dinner is served in a huge pot into which the diners dig with their hands and bring forth their portion.

The Culprit

"My dear," remarked Mr. Pitt, as he sat at breakfast one morning, "I think there was a burglar in the house last night."

"Why do you think that?" asked his loving wife.

"Well," said he, "I left a lot of money in my pockets before I went to bed last night, but there's none there now."

"That's your own fault," she replied snappily. "You should have got up and shot the person. If you hadn't been such a coward, you wouldn't have lost your money."

"Yes, perhaps you're right, my dear; but then I didn't want to become a widower."—London Weekly Telegraph.

Looking Backward

There were some strange peoples in prehistoric Kentucky. Scientists in digging deep in Kentucky soil are said to have discovered evidence of two distinct groups of human beings existing in different ages and at different levels. One race buried its dead in stone chambers whilst another had granite altars for human sacrifice and hurred their dead in pits of masonry. At any rate they seem to have had means of making fire, although they were here 10,000 years before cigar lighters were introduced. This is a damned sight older country than we think and men with shovels turn up many surprises.—Los Angeles Times.

In Hurt

Ellen Terry, to everybody's surprise, left $120,000. A New York actress was talking about her.

"Her wit was sharp," the actress said. "Sometimes it was too sharp. It hurt."

"She and I and three or four other actresses were standing behind the scenes at a benefit in a Broadway theater one afternoon. A young and pretty actress said uncertainly:

"I don't think I'll sing, after all. I'm sure they don't expect me."

"Indeed they do expect you, darling," said Ellen Terry. "Don't you see them all leaving?"

Solved

Four-year-old Bobby, perched on his father's knee in the crowded bus looked hard at the stout, gaudily-dressed woman as she hustled in, sniffling contemptuously, and wedged herself into the only seat left.

Then he turned to his mother.

"Hum," he said, loudly, "it's a lady."

"Hush, Bobby, dear," mother checked him; "we know."

"But, mummy—Bobby was puzzled—"you just said to dad, 'Whatever's this object comin' in?'"

PATHFINDER! The very name says discoverer—trail-breaker—pioneer.

And the other name of this great tire is Goodyear. When you put these facts together, you begin to understand why this big, husky tire is even greater than it looks to be.

You can see powerful traction, molded into every massive block, thick tread.

You can see long wear—and feel it, too, in the honest solidity of this handsome tire. But you cannot see the equally vital quality beneath the tread. For there is Supertwist—the famous cord material which increases tire-life by its elastic and sinewy resistance to fatigue. Here indeed is quality.

—Which reaches far beyond the point which the low price would indicate. A tire qualified in every way to take its place with "first-liners" sold by others at much higher figures.

You can tell that Goodyear is proud of this Pathfinder—for it is branded with the greatest name in rubber, and with the Goodyear seal.

Try this new Pathfinder—see what great value Goodyear gives you for little money.

Meat Made Tender by Juice of Tropical Tree

The toughest beefsteak may be rendered as tender and delicious as the choicest porterhouse if one will carry with him wherever he dines a bottle of papaw tree juice and rub it on his meat. The papaw is a peculiar tree of northern South America and other tropical regions, where the natives use its juice in this way to improve their meat. It also has a number of other peculiarities, says a bulletin issued by the Field Museum of Natural History, Chicago.

The papaws are definitely divided into two sexes, with distinct characteristics, whereas in most plants and trees each individual is equipped to reproduce itself alone, possessing both the male and female organs. Among the papaws, of which there are some twenty-seven species, the male and female flowers are produced on separate trees, the male flowers occurring in long scattered racemes, and the female ones in short, small bundles.

Another peculiarity of the papaw is that the juice of the plants contains fibrin, a substance which so far as known exists elsewhere only in animal flesh. This, however, cannot be regarded as establishing a link between the animal and vegetable kingdoms in the chain of evolution, botanists declare.

Applause for Workers in Physical Research
I salute the workers in physical research as the poets of today. It may be that they do not write in verse, but their communications are of such lively interest that they are on the front pages of our newspapers and command space in agricultural periodicals. They appeal to the imagination of us all. They contribute the warming glow of inspiration to industry, when their ideas pull their feet down from the heavens to the earth and harnesses them for practical service. It, too, feels that it is an important actor, not only in the makings of things but on the larger stage of the human spirit. There may be enough poetry in the whirl of our machines so that our machine age will become immortal.—Owen D. Young.

Romantic Love is on the Wane
There will always be soul chemistry holding a particular man and woman together long after surface attractions have been outworn. The great trouble with the Victorians was that they often defiled the surface attractions, and thought because they were thrilling to brown eyes that they were drawing close to a kindred soul. They revered thrills so highly, too, that our grandmothers believed romantic love would settle automatically all life's problems. If we moderns adopt a more challenging attitude toward the thrill and if we acknowledge that no other human being, no matter how close, can solve life for us we are that much nearer to saying, "The Kingdom of God is within."—Corinne Lowe in Pictorial Review.

Thought She Knew
An elderly couple were getting married at the little country church. The groom was very deaf.
When the clergyman read, "Wilt thou have this woman to be thy wedded wife?" the old man did not hear him, and asked his bride, "What's he say?"
"The old lady howled in his ear," "He wants to know if th'ol' ha' me for thy wedded wife."
The old man looked surprised and exclaimed: "Why, sartly! Mary, dear! Didn't I tell thee so t'other neet?"

Dutch Woman's Costume
"Colorful and Ample"
The costumes of rural Holland are indeed unique. Women wear six or more skirts, lest the torn be immodestly displayed, and a bright-colored waist with elbow sleeves, for strong red arms are admired by men. The climax is a lace cap, the shape of which distinguishes the province in which the wearer lives.
Wives of rich farmers wear gold rapiers, like helmets, with ornamental gold curls. An agent once told us that hers cost a hundred guilders (about $40).
Workmen wear exceedingly broad trousers, oftentimes colored vests and short caps. Children and the poor wear klomp—wooden shoes. If you hear what sounds like a troop of cavalry passing down the street, it will more than likely turn out to be a group of school children returning home. Concealed weapons are not needed in Holland. In case of a row, a lad flicks off his klomp and wallops his adversary over the head. It has great weight in settling an argument.—National Geographic Magazine.

Color-Blindness in Bees Proved by Investigator
Bees are said to be color blind and learn their way about by experience rather than instinct, says an investigator. It has been discovered that to the bee red and black look alike, orange and yellow look the same as green and there is no difference in the appearance of blue, violet, and purple. It has long been known that the longer bees live in a certain hive the more easily they will be able to find their way home. This has been tested by putting bees to sleep by ether and taking them to a new hive, which was then moved to a location some twelve yards away from the former home. None of them upon awakening and flying away could find their way to the new home for three days. By that time 30 per cent could find their way back. In five more days, however, 90 per cent had become so accustomed to their new location that they could go away and return to the right place.—Montreal Family Herald.

Church Bells Gaming Stalks
In the reign of Henry VIII, writes Satis N. Coleman in his book, "Bells," there stood in St. Paul's church yard a lofty bell tower containing four bells called "Jesus Bells," the largest in London. In a gambling game with one of his courtiers, Sir Miles Partridge, King Henry staked the bell tower and its bells.
Sir Miles won, and had the tower pulled down and the bells broken up. A few years afterward this gentleman was hanged; and some of the old writers have said that it was a judgment sent upon him for gambling for bells.

Republic of Mind
In the republic of mind, one is a majority. There, all are monarchs and all are equals. The tyranny of a majority even is unknown. Each one is crowned, sceptered and throned. Upon every brow is the tiara, and around every brow is the imperial purple. Only those are good citizens who express their honest thoughts, and those who persecute for opinion's sake are the only traitors. There, nothing is considered infamous except an appeal to love, liberty and joy.—Robert Ingersoll.
