Relief Garden And Canning Plant Is Started For Spur

The Texas Relief Commission has approved a plan for a community relief garden for Dickens County to be located at Spur. Work of laying out this garden was begun Monday and it will not be long until it will be ready for the planting of vegetables. The garden will be planted and tilled by relief workers of the county who will be paid for their work from the relief funds appropriated for work. Should any of the relief workers want any of the vegetables from the garden they can secure the vegetables and have the amount charged to their budget of food allowance.

The canning plant will be a public benefit. The building and grounds are to be furnished by the county and the city of Spur will furnish the water and lights.

The plant will be used to take care of the vegetables grown in the relief garden. Also, custom canning will be done. Any one who may have vegetables, fruits or meats to be canned, may have the work done at the relief canning plant on a percentage basis. Relief workers will be employed at the canning plant.

This means another allotment of about $10,000 for relief work in Dickens County. It is reported that if needed there will be other gardens planned and planted in other parts of the county.

The garden at Spur will be located adjacent to the disposal plant and the water from the disposal plant will be used for irrigation. It is estimated that there is enough water each week to be equivalent to a full inch of rainfall for ten acres of land. Chas. Whitener, County Relief Engineer, will be in charge of the work and supervision of both projects.

Officers elected were as follows: A. B. Hogan, W. M.; Guy Karr, S. W.; J. W. Henry, J. W.; M. D. Ivey, Treasurer; W. E. King, Secretary; Jim Cloud, Tyler.

The above named officers will be installed at the regular meeting in July.

COTTON MUST BE TAGGED

All cotton ginned before June 1, 1934, must be tagged in order to be exempt from the federal tax. Any one who has cotton produced in 1933 can secure tags by making application at the office of the County Agricultural Agent. This should be done at once in order to have everything in line with government regulations. See County Agent Lane about your cotton tags.

Mrs. Odie Holly, Miss Sibyl Hazel and Cleo Hazel, of Texas Technological College, were in our city Sunday visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Hazel, and family.

Fred Haile Addressed Jayton Young Democrats On "The Enemies Of The New Deal", Last Thursday Evening

The following is a copy of an address made by Fred C. Haile, candidate for Congress to the Young Democratic Club at Jayton last Thursday evening. The subject of Mr. Haile's address is, "The Enemies of the New Deal." The speech follows:

There has been a great deal said about the New Deal, the details of the working organization and the men who were backing the New Deal. We have been watching it work since March 4th, 1933, but there has been very little said about the enemies of the New Deal and the enemies of the men who were sponsoring the New Deal. Let it be remembered that the New Deal was not a mere happen-so proposition. Forces have been at work in the United States socially and economically for the past fifty years that have driven us to the New Deal. It might have been called by any other name. The revolution, as we know it, might have been called the New Order or it might have been called the Superindustrial Revolution or any number of things, but the present administration chose to call it the New Deal for the American people and I am going to discuss with you the principal enemies of the New Deal. Before we can understand what the enemies of the New Deal are, we should understand that the revolution in America, known as the New Deal, is unlike the contemporary revolutions of Europe in that there has been no one exiled of our people, private property has not been confiscated and individuals have not been executed. Russia pursued the policy of exiling her people in her revolution, confiscating personal property and resorting to execution, while Hitler-Germany loosed her wrath upon the

County Committee Arranges Ballot

The Dickens County Democratic Executive Committee met at Dickens Monday morning with Robt. Nickles, County Chairman, presiding and O. C. Arthur as secretary. The committee checked the candidates for assessments made the previous Monday and found that all candidates in the county had paid their fees, except W. E. Shaw, candidate for Commissioner from Precinct No. 4, who it was reported had withdrawn. Joe Thompson, announced candidate for Congress from Hale County, had not sent his fee and the committee ordered his name left off the ballot.

The next business was the drawing for places on the ballot which was done by a committee composed of Mr. Nickles, W. J. Elliot and O. E. Minix, with the secretary recording the result. The committee ordered the pledge adopted by the State Committee be placed at the top of the ballot and every voter in the primary is required to abide by the pledge. The committee instructed the election judges to challenge anyone they thought was not a true Democrat and if necessary, secure an affidavit. The committee also passed a resolution deploring the Primaries to be for white people only.

Secretary Arthur was empowered to establish an office for receiving the results of the primary elections and to tabulate the returns as fast as possible. The secretary was also ordered to prepare the ballot and arrange the election supplies in the boxes to be turned over to the various judges.

The committee adopted a resolution endorsing Hon. Robt. Nickles for reelection as County Chairman. J. P. Legg was seated as precinct committeeman from Croton, Precinct No. 9. Jim Offield was elected to fill the vacancy in the Prairie Chapel precinct.

RABBIT DRIVE AT RED HILL

The citizens of Red Hill community held a big rabbit drive Tuesday. All of them assembled at the school house in the community and started the drive. Many rabbits passed out during the day. Dinner was served at the school house at noon and a big community time was enjoyed.

A number of Spur men attended.

FIRE DESTROYS WHITENER GARAGE

A fire destroyed the garage and coal house at the Chas. Whitener residence at 508 N. Carroll Avenue Sunday afternoon. The fire was caused by a spark blowing from a fire screen into the dry grass near the garage. Mr. Whitener stated he thought he had all the fire extinguished, but it seems to have caught from underneath.

The fire department answered the call and soon had the flames under control. Mr. Whitener was successful in getting his car out of the garage before it was damaged. He lost a box of books he prized greatly. The garage and coal house were complete losses with no insurance.

Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Costolow and G. G. Miller left Sunday for points in Arkansas where they will spend a vacation and visit Mr. Costolow's mother.

Reports Favor Alton Chapman for District Attorney

The first primary is only about a month off and interest in the campaign and candidates is already reaching a high pitch. Discussion of the merits, chances of election, etc., centers on the county and district candidates to a large extent. And one race, that of District Attorney, is receiving quite a bit of this discussion. The "talk" about the race for District Attorney centers on Alton B. Chapman, Dickens County's candidate. How many votes will Chapman receive? How is he running in the other counties? These two questions are asked more than any other.

From the reports coming in to the Times office indications are now that Mr. Chapman will receive one of the biggest votes a candidate with an opponent ever received for a district office. Dickens County seems to stand solidly behind him. Motley and Briscoe reports are that Mr. Chapman will get from two-thirds to three-fourths of the vote there. In Floyd County, the home county of Chapman's opponent, the political forecasters go a little farther and say that the vote will be split in half.

Reports from persons interested in the campaign and who have watched and worked in various political campaigns say that Chapman has gathered a following that will easily elect him. This is due to his appearance, his speaking ability, the favorable impression he makes at all times, and his sincerity in pledging to enforce the laws of the state.

Mr. Chapman has served nearly four years as county attorney of Dickens County with a clean record of law enforcement tempered with judgement. He has served the people of his county in such a way that the office of county attorney has taken its place as one of the leading offices of the county. He has served diligently as a prosecutor with very few cases returned from the appeals court.

The people of the 110th Judicial District have learned of this record and if advance reports mean anything they are planning to promote him to a much bigger job that will give a wider field for him to serve.

Star Introduced By Her "Voice"

Although they play in all the scenes, Norma Shearer and Herbert Marshall are not seen in the opening reels of "Riptide." Miss Shearer's new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring vehicle which opens Sunday at the Palace Theatre.

This unusual opening is the contrivance of Edmund Goulding, who wrote and directed the new picture. The central characters are introduced to each other wearing grotesque costumes, only their voices betraying their identities to audiences.

For this novel scene, Adrian, noted screen stylist, designed an "Insect Man" costume for Marshall. Miss Shearer wears a gorgeous—if scanty—"Lady Sky Bug" creation.

Masks Removed

At the conclusion of the first sequences, the masks are removed and the characters become acquainted for the first time, precluding the romantic theme that follows.

What the Neighbors Of Tom Hunter Say

The last of the week we had the privilege of spending a day in Wichita Falls, the home of that staunch statesman, Tom Hunter. We made some inquiry into the standing of the man and found that people there believe in him. One business man stated with emphasis, "Tom Hunter is the best man to run for Governor since the days of Governor James S. Hogg." Interest grew and we continued to make inquiries. Another business man said, "The people of Texas could make no mistake in voting for Hunter for Governor. He is a man who believes in the rights of the masses and will use his influence to better the conditions of the common people."

We asked who would carry Wichita County in the Governor's race, and every one to a man said Hunter would lead all others. It seems that since he has the high opinion of practically every one in his home town, that he would be a good man to support for Governor. We need a Governor the next two years for all the people.

Spur Golfers Win Over Matador On Local Course Sunday

With the sun rays increasing the heat and a strong gale from the southeast, made golfing rather difficult Sunday afternoon. Visiting golfers from Matador Club expressed their appreciation for a good shade and plenty of water as they made their rounds on the local course.

It was another league game of the Cap-Rock Golf League in which Matador and Spur are contending for first honors. The game Sunday closed the first half of the league series with Spur team seven points in the lead. It seems that a number of the local team were off their stroke Sunday and shot loose score. However, the strong wind was an impediment and probably this accounted for many of the bad strokes.

As the game ended:

Spur	Matador
Draper 0	Stearns 3
Culbert 2	Pipkin 1
Dickey 2 1-2	Burleson 1 2
Adrems 1	Nalley 2
Lee 3	Glenn 0
Clouse 1	Harp 2
Nelson 3	Groves 0
Powell 0	A. Stearns 3
Caraway 2 1-2	Patton 1 2
Parrish 3	Ford 0
Totals 18	12

The standing of the two teams are: Matador 107 1-2 points and Spur 114 1-2 points. Crosbyton and Ralls both are much behind in their score.

Facts About Consolidated District Number 22

A careful check of the poll lists of Consolidated Common School District No. 22, by the school authorities, reveals that the bond election in that district, Saturday of this week, will probably carry in the ratio of 5 to 3. People are studying the matter and are understanding the tax situation better. They are realizing that rain or shine, bonds or no bonds, the tax rate will be one dollar and no more, less, and that the Commissioners' Court is the only body that can fix the proper valuations in District 22 as in all other common school districts of the county. Heretofore there have been some who didn't, wouldn't, or couldn't understand the facts that No. 22 is a common school district and that not more than a dollar can be levied in such a district for all school purposes, both bond and maintenance. With the clearing up of this tax situation in the minds of many voters, the bond issue seems to be gaining ground daily.

The latest figures on the proposed issue of $53,000 in District 22, show that the valuation of real property in the district is $844,064, and the valuation of personal property is $84,862, making a total property valuation for the district of $928,926.

In addition to the $53,000 of proposed new bonds there are outstanding $5,425 of old bonds in No. 22—the former Midway district has $3,150 and the former Croton district has $2,275. These bonds together with the new issue of $53,000 will make a bonded debt against the district of $58,425. Under the State law, the district can issue, on its real property valuation, the amount of $59,000 of bonds altogether, including both new and old. By staying within the statutory limit of 7% of bonds—based on real property valuations—the district will be enabled to sell its bonds to State Permanent School Fund for 100 cents on the dollar.

To fund this amount of bonds will require a bond rate of 40c on the dollar of property. Thus will be left 60c out of the dollar rate for the maintenance of the school. Many districts have a 50-50 rate. Since only a dollar can be assessed for all school purposes, it is clear that taxes cannot be increased by the proposed bond issue. All that can happen is for more of the dollar to be used for bond purposes and less for maintenance. Since the State by means of Rural Aid will help out the district funds for maintaining the school—the less the district has of its own, the more the State will help, if the District is doing all it can by voting a dollar tax rate, it is becoming increasingly clear to the voters that in reality the State will be building the new school house without any increase in taxes on the local district! This is merely the State's way of equalizing educational advantages and opportunities so the rural child shall be placed on a footing of equal opportunity with the town and city child. For nineteen years the State has been doing more and more to so equalize school opportunities as between the rural and urban child. Judging the future by the past, the State will continue to do more and more until equality of opportunity is reached and will certainly maintain that standard after it is reached. From the inception of Rural Aid in 1915, the State of Texas has consistently followed the policy of helping the rural schools. It is extremely unlikely that any Legislature would have the temerity to curtail Rural Aid, for its principle is a just one, and, too, there are too many voters in the country to make it politically healthy for any legislator to even attempt such a move.

People are going away for vacation period at this time and they need a good supply of merchandise and nice clothes before they leave. The Fair has arranged a very fine line of merchandise at reasonable prices.

"Viva Villa!" Takes Its Place in List of World's Greatest Screen Classics

"Viva Villa!" Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's spectacular story which opens July 4th at Palace Theatre, is generally classed among the great screen masterpieces of all time.

Filmed largely in Mexico, with Wallace Beery as the star and with an exceptional supporting cast, "Viva Villa!" has emerged as one of the truly great productions of recent years.

More than 100,000 Mexican natives were used during production, as many as 6,000 appearing on the screen at one time.

Months were spent by the stars in the remote interior of Mexico, their only means of communication with the outside world being by airplane.

Its battle scenes, including the storming and capture of Mexican cities which were in newspaper head-

In speaking of his campaign Mr. Haile stated that he will appreciate any effort on the part of his friends in behalf of his candidacy to their friends in other parts of the district. He is gaining ground every day, and there is no doubt but what he will be one of the candidates in the second primary.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blotches. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist a substitute. See at drug stores. ©1931 C. M. Co.

whom he represents in this locality. "Last year," said Mr. Caudle, "the Harvester Company's comprehensive exhibits of motor trucks and farm operating equipment ranked high among the outstanding features of the 1933 A Century of Progress Exposition. This year International Harvester will present to A Century of Progress visitors many new and unusual features, each one in itself intriguing, dignified and educational."

"Will the Company's mechanical cow be on display again this year?" inquired the reporter of this interview. "Yes, sir, and how!" answered Mr. Caudle.

"The mechanical, pure-bred Holstein cow, whose fame spread from one end of the country to the other last year, will again be a headline attraction. She is a part of the dairy equipment display and is being milked continuously by a mechanical milker. In addition, she moos, moves her head and ears, blinks her eyes, switches her tail, chews her cud, and actually breathes.

"This year two other noteworthy special features will compete with the cow for the public's attention. The first of these strangely enough, has to do with radio. Most of us who know little or nothing about radio marvel at its magic. We have read with interest and amazement stories of driverless automobiles, crewless ships, pilotless planes; bombs, rockets, and torpedoes directed by the invisible waves; but it remained for International Harvester to bring to millions of 1934 World's Fair visitors their first view of a driverless, radio-controlled farm tractor in operation.

"Daily outdoor demonstrations of this tractor at the north end of Northery Island, just west of the Foods and Agriculture Building, will undoubtedly call forth much speculative comment. Imagine, if you can, this unique exhibit—a mechanical farmer, lifelike in appearance and action, seated comfortably on the porch, operating a driverless, radio-controlled tractor. Will the farmer of the future be able to plow and harrow and harvest by radio control? Will the future see the radio-control principles widely employed in manufacturing and industrial operations? In military operations? The mechanical farmer will answer the many questions that are sure to be asked as the crowds witness this rare spectacle.

"Practically every farmer is interested in binder twine, yet few have ever had an opportunity to see the unusual and fascinating demonstration of twine manufacture right before their eyes. Every operation will be shown by transparencies and machines in slow motion, from the time the hanks of whitish-yellow fiber are received from Yucatan or the Philippines until the eight-pound balls, with patented cover, are finally ready for shipment to grain growers throughout the world. As an added attraction, a grain binder attachment, also in slow motion, will initiate the public into the secret of that ingenious tying mechanism without which the manufacture of binder twine would never have become the big-time industry it is.

"The mechanical cow, the radio-controlled tractor, and the twine-making demonstration," said Mr. Caudle, "are but headline attractions for the company's main display which covers almost 15,000 feet of floor space, comprising the entire Farm Machinery Hall in the north wing of the Foods and Agriculture Building. Here World's Fair visitors, whether from the farm or city, will discover many unsuspected angles of interest—historical, economic, and mechanical—in looking over the modern implements of agricultural production and contrasting their size and efficiency with those of an earlier day.

"The latest type of tractor-operated combine, four-row cultivator, and two-row corn picker will be displayed, all in motion. Tractors ranging in size from the recently introduced junior or "baby" series to the massive 5-ton, 50-horsepower Diesel TracTractor will receive their share of attention from those interested in this type of power equipment.

"International Harvester's prominent place in the field of motor transport will again be emphasized by a representative display of its full motor truck line ranging in capacity from 1-2 to 7-1-2 tons. The entire International truck line has been sweeping ly restyled in keeping with modern trends in truck design, and the appearance of these new models at the fair will doubtless be for the majority of visitors a premier showing.

"One section of the main exhibit is devoted to the historical side of the century-old industry. Here, by means of colorful dioramas, accurate replicas of early types of machines, and continuous motion pictures, the agricultural progress and inventive accomplishments of the past hundred years are realistically portrayed. A full-size replica of the first successful reaper, perfected and demonstrated by Cyrus Hall McCormick, lends a historical touch which will be of special interest to all visiting the Harvester exhibit. Further historical contrasts feature the Company's exhibit in the Travel and Transport Building, where its earliest type of farm tractor and high-wheel motor truck are shown beside their present-day descendants.

"All in all, it is going to be a great fair," commented Mr. Caudle. "Even facilities for directing visitors and answering inquiries have been improved; in fact, the entire Harvester exhibit has been intensively stepped up in timeliness, attractiveness, and public interest."

LAWYER FLEES PISTOL FIRE OF CITY WOMAN

While sheriff's officers here Wednesday pondered over the best way to arrest a pistol-wielding West Mary street woman "without further trouble," William Yelderman, young Austin attorney and former newspaper man was minus a hat but considered himself lucky at that to escape unscathed a hail of bullets fired by the woman.

Yelderman, representing a client who had obtained a judgment in 126th district court against the woman, said he accompanied deputy sheriffs to the woman's house on West Mary street, when the officers went to serve a writ.

Yelderman also had ordered a truck to remove the woman's household belongings, he said.

The two deputies and Yelderman went into the woman's house and were talking the matter over with her.

"I offered to pay for moving her belongings and offered to pay her first month's rent at another house," the young attorney related. "There was a knocking at the door and one of the deputies remarked that it probably was the truckman.

"I started to the door and suddenly the woman pulled a small automatic, evidently from a pocket in her clothing, and started shooting."

Yelderman ran into a bedroom, leaped over a bed toward a door in his haste to get away. The door was locked.

"But just then her gun jammed and I finally got out of the house," he said.

Yelderman said he found the officers out in the yard and the truckmen hiding behind their truck, when he arrived outside the house. He said he remembered three shots being fired by the woman.

"I tried to get the officers to arrest her but they insisted on having a warrant first. So I filed the charge against her this morning," he said.

The sheriff's forces planned to arrest the woman from her barricade, using tear gas if necessary.

Meanwhile the woman remained in the house—and so did Yelderman's hat, where he left it in his flight from the bullets.

William Yelderman of Austin, is a former pal to Alton B. Chapman of this city. The above clipping is from the Austin Statesman.

FISHERMEN RETURN WITH GLOWING REPORTS

The fishing party, which had been started on the morning of the 26th of the week to report. The party consisted of E. J. Cowan, J. R. Laine, John King and Cliff Dortch, and just how they corralled the fish has not been learned. It was one of the best organized fishing parties to make a trip. According to report by John King, J. R. Laine was selected as official reporter and Judge Cowan as the legal adviser. Any one desiring to know anything about the party are privileged to ask the proper authority.

Cecil Lawson, who has been working for a grocery firm in California for some time, is now visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Lawson of Afton.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Darden, of Crosbyton, passed through our city Wednesday morning enroute to Jayton to attend the funeral of Mrs. Earl Darden. Mrs. Darden made the Times office a pleasant call and stated she enjoyed reading the Times very much. She stated there are good crops at Crosbyton but rain is needed.

A WORD OF APPRECIATION

We take this means of extending our appreciation to Dr. Nichols, Dr. Hale, Dr. Wylie, the nurses, Miss Bailey and Mr. Priest for their many favors and to our friends and neighbors for their thoughtfulness and the many beautiful flowers given during Sybel's illness. And especially do we thank Mrs. Minnie Lewis who so graciously took care of Sybel for the first three or four days after her operation.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Clay and Sybel.

TOM F. HUNTER

One morning back in 1907, there appeared on the campus of old Polytechnic College at Fort Worth, a young, heavy-set lad, attired in a Stetson hat and boots, his coat of one shade and his trousers of another. His hat was just about as large as the boy.

The young man was from out in West Texas and his gait and carriage revealed that he was a veteran of the range in spite of his youth, one who was used to riding the hurricane deck of a boiling mad, raging, wild mustang.

This young man was Tom F. Hunter, of Wichita Falls, who polled more than 220,000 votes for Governor in the first primary of two years ago, and who is today one of the major contenders for the 1934 gubernatorial contest. Everybody calls him Tom. Franch is what the F. in his signature stands for. But in Wichita Falls, or elsewhere, nobody ever called him anything but just plain Tom.

Immediately upon arriving at Polytechnic, young Tom opened up a press shop in Mulkey Hall, boys' dormitory, and started cleaning and pressing clothes to earn his board. He had paid his tuition out of the small funds he was able to save from day labor on farms and from work on the old Circle-Bar Ranch which is now known as the O-Bar-O Ranch, these funds being augmented by a loan of $55 he obtained from a banker in Donley County where he was working during the summer before his decision to enter Polytechnic.

Young Tom was eager for an education and always kept that aim foremost in his mind. At the age of 13, young Tom left home because his stepfather was not interested in providing him with an education. His mother had been teaching him a little at night after Tom had spent a hard day in the field but soon it was time for the youth to decide whether he should remain an almost illiterate farm hand or forge forth and make his way alone.

So, off he went, out on his own at the age when most boys had little more to worry about than how early in the Spring they might get off their overalls and leap into the old swimming pool. Obtaining work on a farm that enabled him to have hours off to go to school, young Tom enrolled and was assigned to the primer class when he informed his teacher that he had never been to school before.

"My first lesson, as I remember, was h-e-t spells hat," he delights in recalling when he speaks of the early years of his life. And eight months later he had completed the eighth grade, or an average of one grade per month.

Then came his decision to go to Polytechnic where he took first preparatory work and then college courses. Let Shields Heyser, of Wichita Falls, who was one of Tom Hunter's classmates at old Poly tell about those years. It is Heyser who recalled Hunter's big hat and boots, the young seeker for knowledge wore when he appeared on the campus.

"When we gathered at Mulkey Hall for dinner that day," Heyser recalls, "this young man made his appearance at the dining table at the place which happened to be across from where I was seated. We then and there became acquainted with Tom Hunter. "We paid $10.00 a month for our room and board. Our meals consisted mostly of the toughest steaks ever carved, which are known to every Mulkey Hall student as "Ox Yoke."

"Tom joined the debating clubs and soon started out measuring his ability against that of the other boys. Soon he developed into one of our leading debaters. Hunter was an orphan lad and had to work his way through school. When summer came he did not return home like most of us boys, but took a contract to sell Bibles in East Texas and hot-footed it all over that part of the state peddling his books. Then in the fall, when the farmers began to gather their cotton, Tom took a horse and buggy into that section and delivered his Bibles. I have heard him say that he cleared $200 a summer. This paid his way through school, with the additional work he did in his pressing shop for the local school boys."

Tom Hunter attended Polytechnic for five years and then set out with a certificate stating that he was qualified to teach school. Even in those days he knew what he wanted to be later. For four years, his roommate was Elbert Williams, of Dallas and Corsicana, who recalls that Tom Hunter told him 25 years ago that he would be the Governor of Texas some day. How near he came to realizing that ambition two years ago, in spite of the fact that he was not widely known over the state, is now part of the state's political history. Whether he achieves that ambition this time remains for the voters to decide.

Reports from all sections of the state to his headquarters in Wichita Falls regarding his strength have caused him to declare that he believes he will run high man in the first primary. That, of course, is a matter yet to be determined.

With his teacher's certificate in his possession, young Tom headed for the Texas South Plains county and obtained a job teaching school. He taught at Brownfield, in Terry County, and was principal of the high school. While teaching school, Tom read law and in the summers attended what is now the East Texas State Teachers' College at Commerce, then known as Mayo College. Here he obtained his degree.

A few months before he left Brownfield for the last time, Tom Hunter, just past the voting age, was married. The bride was Miss Vera Scott. Shortly after their marriage, the Hunters moved to Wichita Falls. That was 21 years ago. Tom Hunter put out his shingle and began the practice of law. He had at last accomplished one of the big aims of all his study, that of becoming a lawyer.

Three children, two sons and a daughter, spurred Tom Hunter and his charming wife on to greater efforts for accomplishment. Their two sons, Frank and Scott, are now students of Texas A. and M. College. Frank being a senior and Scott a freshman. Their little daughter, Helen, who is seven years old, has only recently started in school.

It was in 1913 that the Hunters moved to Wichita Falls. Soon the young attorney was one of the most successful members of the Wichita County bar. He ventured into the business field and prospered although he has never been a wealthy man. Hard work and fair play were the guides he followed and all who know him declare him to be one of the most diligent and untiring of workers.

But now for a flashback as they say in the movies. Hunter was born on February 28, 1890, on a farm in Wise County. His parents were tenant farmers. Young Tom was only a few months old when his parents moved from Wise county, and settled in Oklahoma in the Chickasha nation. Here Tom Hunter lived in a log cabin, part of which still stands today, with a one-room board shed attached to it now. Then back to Texas, hard toil on the farm and no chance in sight of going to school. Then came his decision at the age of 13, as before stated, to leave home and make his own way.

Many hard years, and many busy years they were too, intervened between the day when he walked out to do a man's work and win an education and the day a little over four years ago when he stood before the President of the United States as spokesman for the Governors' Committee of the 14 oil producing states to plead for remedies in the oil industry that independent operators might meet major competition and foreign imports.

At the same time Hunter was representing a group of organized labor at Washington as national counselor. Standing there, after months of battling before a U. S. Senate committee, Hunter, with the vision of a prophet, outlined before the authorities at the national capital, the economic distress that was to be the nation's experience for the next four years. He predicted that hundreds of thousands of men would be out of employment and urged many of the points which have since been adopted at Washington in an effort to solve the depression. More than a year before, in an address at Wichita Falls, Hunter had made the same prediction but could not convince his hearers. Today, the men who were present at that luncheon meeting analyze at Tom Hunter's accurate analysis of the things that were to come and the causes to which he charged the impending economic collapse.

Intermittently before, and constantly for the last six years Hunter has studied the trend of economic and political affairs and has taken an active interest in developments in Austin legislative circles. At his own expense, he has attended several sessions of the state legislature and pleaded for regulation of public utility rates, divorcement of public utility rates, control from pipe lines and filling station setups, enactment of anti-discrimination legislation to prevent chain-store expansion at the cost of independent merchandising, and other reforms, including reallocation of the tax burden to relieve real estate. His activities have caused him to become known as the "lobbyist for the people" and it is his pride that he paid his own salary as a lobbyist out of his own pocket. He has been and is untiring in his attack on the public utilities and "the oil trust" as "the organized few" in control of the state's government. But it was not the intention of this brief biography to go into the details of his campaign arguments.

Two years ago, Tom Hunter startled the political dopesters of the state with the strength he displayed in the first primary. He was unknown to most of the voters and yet in the few weeks of his very active campaign he built up a support that brought him nearly a quarter of a million votes.

Our great President cannot do this job alone. It is essential that the state and every county and city within it, adopt recovery programs of their own to augment the national one," he declares. Two years ago in his campaign Hunter made more than 200 platform addresses. This year he has already passed the sixty mark and by the close of the campaign he expects to break the record he set in his first race.

basis with that of England and the United States Naval Ratio. You will also please bear in mind that France and Germany must come to an agreement with reference to the Saar coal region of Germany. Germany resents the inferior position the Treaty of Versailles forced upon them by the Allied Powers. The younger generation of those nations resent the position they have been forced into and are slowly, forcefully and surely regaining their position as a World Power. England and America see this power gradually growing and look with alarm and fear on the possibilities of the outcome of the meeting of France and Germany in this momentous effort on the part of Germany to regain her lost coal fields and to regain her right to arm herself for defensive purposes. The world is looking with a great deal of fear to the far East and Japan's efforts at territorial expansion in China and Russian Siberia. The first line of defense of the United States in its efforts to forestall the inevitable war, is her Diplomatic Corps. Those who understand the gravity of the situation look with alarm upon the incapability of her Ambassadors and Charges d'Affaires in the Capitals of the world. This lack of ability on the part of the Diplomatic Corps is not the fault of the individual but rather the fault of the American people in overlooking the necessity of training men for this particular field of work. America provides institutions for the training of Army Officers; for training of Naval Officers; for training of Judges; but our Diplomatic Corps has been picked at random and is usually from those who contribute in large amounts of money to the incoming Administration. I should think that the United States should spend more money in training its Diplomatic Corps, in order that we might prevent war and establish a more friendly trade relationship with our foreign neighbors and thus create a foreign demand for our natural resources, instead of trying to fight wars that the blundering efforts of our Diplomatic Corps, due to lack of training, get us into.

Second: In discussing the International Banker and his relation to the New Deal, we have only to point to his attitude toward the Security Act and his attitude toward the National Industrial Recovery Act. In a nation where money means everything, the money lender is King, therefore, in America the International Banker has assumed the role of King of Finance. For fifty years, he has sat immovably on the golden throne of Wall Street and dictated the economic destiny of the American people. The result has been the economic collapse of 1929 and untold suffering of the people of the United States. We have seen people literally starving to death in the shadows of grain elevators and we have seen our people freezing to death for the want of clothes in the very sight of storehouses, bursting and overflowing with an abundance of cotton. I think the greatest menace to the New Deal are the ideas that are in the mind of the International Banker... they retard the proper distribution of our abundant national resources not only to the people of the United States but to the people of the entire world. The International Banker is the sponsor of this idea because of his habit in gambling with the basic products of the necessities of life. When the New Deal was inaugurated March 4th, 1933, the International Banker was forced upon the defensive for the first time in many years. We should be grateful that he has been kept on the defensive by a series of systematic investigations into the habits and customs of the International Banker's dealings with foreign securities, in gambling with our cotton and stocks and securities of the basic industry of our nation. Our banking system had failed in its primary function, that of giving relief to the average man in time of dire need and distress. All this had come about as a direct result of the International Banker's betrayal of the confidence of the investing public of the United States, by its sale of worthless foreign bonds to them. Confidence of the American public in our bankers has been destroyed and through the service of systematic investigations that have been called upon in Washington during the years 1933 and 1934 confidence of the general public has continued to diminish. The Money King of Wall Street has seen his throne tottering forward because the United States Government in the form of the Democratic Congress has set up money lending agencies for the benefit of the people, as a whole, of our nation. With the result that the money changers, the money lenders and the money kings of Wall Street are the greatest menaces to the outcome of the New Deal. But the power of the Government has once more been restored to the people of the United States... thanks to the New Deal, and never again will the money king dictate the economic policies of the entire nation.

Third: The most apparent enemy of the New Deal but perhaps less dangerous than the previous two is the self-appointed defender of the Constitution. We find this enemy incorporated in the minds of the nit-witted attorneys from the lowest ranking corporation lawyers through District Attorneys, District Judges, Judges in the Criminal and Civil Courts of Appeal up to and including the Judges seated on the benches of the Supreme Court of the United States. Every effort that has been made to bring back the buying power to the average man has been met with a barrage of unconstitutionality on the part of these self-appointed constitutional defenders. Apparently a Philadelphia lawyer can drive a caravan through the constitution in the interest of the Big Business interests of these United States but when the interest of the Average Man comes up, the self-appointed defenders of the Constitution always point with a great deal of alarm to the rigidity of the Constitution of these United States. The situation is as if the common man should yell "Stop

DRUGSTORE COWBOYS

Thief!" the thief immediately wraps about himself the cloak of the Constitution of the United States and cries to a bewildered congregation to "incarcerate the posse." We can readily see and understand why the National Industrial Recovery Act has ignored the basic welfare of the small business man—why—because those who passed the act into a law or the drafters of the National Industrial Recovery Act were in the majority lawyers sitting in the Houses of Congress, of whom the majority represent the interests of Big Business Corporations in the United States. It is entirely constitutional according to the self-appointed defenders of the Constitution of the United States Congress to tell to our blacksmith how much he can charge for sharpening our plows, or how much the implement company can charge for our tools; but it is entirely unconstitutional for that same United States Congress to attempt to stop the gambling with the basic agricultural products of our nation. I think it is high time that the Congress of the United States should realize and also the self-appointed defenders of the Constitution that if the Constitution of the United States will permit us to get into the economic and social quixotic condition that we are experiencing at the present time, that the same Constitution should be flexible enough to help us get out of it. The pussy-footed lawyer politicians of the United States are largely to blame for this economic and social quixotic condition of the present, it appears to me. Apparently it is going to be left up to the Business Men of the United States to apply some fundamental principles of business to the handling of the Government and these business men should not be from the ranks of Big Business, they should be Business Men who represent the strata of Business at the distributing point.

I have discussed the three enemies of the New Deal. I have tried to show you that the ever present threat of foreign war is as apparent in world politics today as it was in 1913. I have tried to show you that the international banker and the capitalistic ideas of gambling with basic products of our nation, is a formidable enemy of the New Deal. I have tried to show you that Corporations, both in and out of Congress are within themselves a diminishing menace to the New Deal.

I shall attempt to discuss a program that will greatly diminish these enemies of the New Deal and its proposed recovery program. First, is the Universal Draft Act—under the provision of the Universal Draft Act, the next time the United States goes to war, she will go to war with a united front. The nation will go to war with the unification of the man-power; of the money-power; of the agricultural-power; and of its by-products, together with the entire movement, with all of the power and energy that the nation can muster, under the direct control of a strong centralized Board of Control at Washington... I mean by that the graft as experienced in the great world war will be impossible; I mean by that there will be no bonus offered or paid to railroads; steamship lines or to the soldiers. There will be no loaning of private capital to foreign nations because that capital will be drafted like the man-power back of the nation. I think it would appear to the people of the United States that if this draft were enacted they would realize that the captains of industry and high finance would not be so eager to welcome foreign wars, therefore, the enactment of the Universal Draft Act would at least diminish one of the outstanding menaces to the New Deal.

The International Banker has found himself with a fast diminishing influence under the credit system of the United States. He has found his fertile territory invaded by the long term loans of the Federal Government and should find his relentless efforts in the bankrupting of the agricultural sections of the nation by unnecessary foreclosures, with the passage of either extending moratorium or making long term loans for the co-benefit of present loans to corporations. In other words, the Government has ceased its primary function when it fails to protect the homes of agricultural communities and cattle raising communities, also, from foreclosure when the market price of their basic commodities is not the price of production. A further contribution to the diminishing menace, the international banker, to the New Deal, would be to issue no further tax exempt securities. The tax exempt securities as issued by the several departments of our state and national government have been probably the greatest factors in diminishing the value of our land. Once we force money back into the channels of commerce, land and the products of land in an agricultural and stock raising way, we will not have the menace of a tremendous surplus. A program worked jointly in connection with the above would be a general shake-up of our diplomatic corps, a revision of our tariff laws and regulations, reciprocal with that of other nations, together with a clear understanding with reference to war debts.

Third, there is only one way to stamp out the menace of the self-appointed defenders of the Constitution and that is by keeping the lawyers in the law profession and in his respective positions in the several departments of Government requiring his profession. He has demonstrated his inability in Congress to protect the average man in his endeavor to be happy and free from the ravaging influences of our international bankers. You may ask how has he demonstrated his inability. The fact is self-evident. The nation is bankrupt, people are starving and freezing to death in sight of plenty to eat and wear and the lawyer representing the people in the United States Congress has been unable to give to the people proper distribution of our national resources.

I believe the American people have awakened and realize as never before the necessity of practical, experienced business men in the legislative halls of our several states and in their Congress.

Manager of 3-Circle Ranch Injured

O. A. (Redmud) Lambert, manager of the 3-Circle Ranch at Bluffdale, was painfully injured when a pitchfork handle Thursday afternoon of last week. Mr. Lambert was working with a harvester combine when the pitchfork was caught in the wheels of the harvester causing the handle to swing around with great force. Mr. Lambert was hit in the front part of the neck cutting a hole through the trachea about the size of a nickel. He was rushed to the Methodist Hospital at Fort Worth where physicians attended to the wounds. All day Sunday it seemed his life was hanging in the balance, but physicians stated that if he lived through Monday that he had a chance for recovery. He was reported to be clear of fever Tuesday and everything looked favorable for him.

Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Lambert, his parents; Mrs. J. J. South and Mrs. Don Perrin, two sisters; left the last of the week for Fort Worth to be with Mr. Lambert. His wife was at his bedside all the time.

Mrs. P. H. Miller was in Stamford Tuesday to meet Miss Jennie Shields who has been visiting in Gladewater, and her niece, Miss Ovella Rich of DeLeon, and her nephew, Charles Barnes of Rising Star.

Rev. M. F. Ewton, who has been holding a revival meeting at Seminole, returned home Monday and is now busily engaged with his duties at the First Baptist Church.

Shahir Hassen, of Haskell, was in our city Monday looking over the business of the Hassen Bros. store here. He stated Dickens County crops look better than any place he had visited.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By ANN PAGE

THIS week sees the beginning of Lent and its changed food habits. For many people it means more fish, more eggs, cheese and vegetables and less meat and sweets. There will be ample supplies of fresh, salt, smoked and canned fish, and fish is delicious if well and not over-cooked and well seasoned.

Fortunately this is the egg season with eggs fresh, plentiful and inexpensive. They should be used freely as even the lowest priced group is really fresh. Cheese is abundant and gives a lot of food in exchange for its cost. Dried peas and beans are also good Lenten foods. Fresh vegetables and fruits continue plentiful with little change in price except for strawberries whose ripening is being slowed by cold. The Quaker Maid offers the following dinner menus.

Low Cost Dinner Baked Spare Ribs and Yams Pickled Beets Bread and Butter Baked Apples Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner Chicken Pot Pie with Noodles Buttered Onions Apple and Celery Salad Bread and Butter Orange Cream Tapioca Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner Cranberry Juice Cocktail Celery Carrot Sticks Pot Roast of Beef Potatoes Buttered Cauliflower Rolls and Butter Jellied Fruits Coffee Milk

"REMEMBER GIRLS .. I must leave at 4 to cook supper ..."

"Goodness, Evelyn," says Rose, "when will you ever make up your mind to get an Electric Range? We girls also have to have 6:30 suppers, but it's no problem at all with automatic cooking. We just put the entire meal in the oven before going out, set the clock control, and supper is being cooked while we play. The same control automatically turns off the current when the cooking process should stop, and the insulated oven retains sufficient heat to keep the food tender and piping hot to serve when we want it."

Do you know that your increased use of Electric Service is billed on a surprisingly low rate schedule ... and adds only a small amount to your total bill?

All New Cars
"Are Racing Cars"

It is almost breath-taking to realize the cars of today, large and small, conceal a power plant that will hurtle them through space at racing speeds—speeds at which a slip means wreckage and disaster. They do 95 miles an hour or more. Some have speedometers to show two-miles-a-minute.

"Sixty" is common highway speed— which means 88 feet per second—literally flying. Yet today's cars give you the thrill of motoring, the saving of time, the ease of travel and opportunity to "go places."

In racing and on the highway the most dangerous equipment is an unsafe tire. Traveling over the hot, hard surfaced roads—that under the sun reach temperatures hot enough to actually fry an egg—the tires become hot inside and out—and heat is the greatest enemy of tire safety and life. Firestone engineers 15 years ago anticipated the needs of today and have years of experience meeting the most trying conditions of racing— racing drivers buy Firestone Tires. These men who risk their lives and stake their fortunes can't be induced, under any circumstances, to use other tires. Every one of the 33 cars in the recent Indianapolis 500-Miles Race was equipped with these tires, and they have been on the winning cars for 15 consecutive years. New records were set up this year under the sizzling sun—but not a single tire failed.

The important thing in tires it not how many plies they have, but how strongly they are held together. To do this job, Firestone uses the patented Gum-Dipping process, which soaks every cord in liquid rubber to protect every fiber against internal friction and to bind the tire into one strong and inseparable unit.

Rubber has advanced 442%, and cotton 190%, but fortunately for the motorist, tire safety can be obtained today at very low cost, for prices have not advanced in proportion to the advance of materials.

Master Six Sport Sedan Offered By Chevrolet

A new knee action model, the Master Six Sport sedan, is announced by Chevrolet. It is a four-door five-passenger sedan with built-in trunk. New features of appearance and equipment distinguish it from other models of the line.

The newest Chevrolet has the appearance of increased streamlining, through the adoption of a modified roof line, to permit the rear panel to blend smoothly into the lines of the trunk. The entire rear panel, including the trunk, is made of a single stamping.

Advantage has been taken of all available space to provide a commodious baggage compartment. The trunk is 49 1-2 inches wide, 17 3-4 inches fore and aft, and 19-5-8 inches high.

The spare wheel is mounted at the rear of the trunk; spare wheels carried in fender wells may be had on order.

To provide protection for trunk, spare wheel, and fenders, a specially formed rear bumper, with a greater arch, is used.

The rear quarter windows differ from those used in all other 1934 models. A no-draft ventilation unit, pivoted top and bottom and operated by a T-handle, comprises the entire window. The vertical ventilator post is eliminated by this design.

Interior equipment includes upholstery of mohair or Bedford cord (optional), arm rests at all seats, adjustable sun deflector, adjustable driver's seat, assist cords, ash tray in front-seat back, glove compartment, rear window shade, metal robe rail, carpet covered foot rest, dome light, reversed opening screened coil ventilator, and Fisher no-draft ventilation. The trunk is provided with two hasps, each of which incorporates a lock; a single key fits both.

Three Rodeos Daily
At Cowboy Reunion

Three rodeo performances daily will be staged this year during the Texas Cowboy Reunion, July 2, 3, and 4. A morning matinee has been added at one-half the adult price of admission to the regular afternoon and night performances.

W. G. Swenson, president, believes this will be an added convenience to the crowds attending the Reunion, relieving the congestion which has resulted in the past from the great crowds attending the afternoon show. It will also give all the cowboy contestants in the rodeo an opportunity to perform before the crowds.

Mr. Swenson has also called attention of visitors to the advantages of attending the night performances. The arena is so well lighted that the performers may be seen as well as in daylight and at the same time the spectators have the comfort of the cool night air.

The morning matinee will start at 9 a. m. each day and the regular performance at 2:15 p. m. and 8 p. m. Low admission prices are being maintained, some of the tickets being slightly lower than last year.

Besides the additional performance to accommodate the increasing crowds at the rodeo, a new grandstand of approximately 1,000 seats has been added this year.

Rodeo prizes are more generous than ever before. Besides the cash prizes such as have been given for daily winners in the past, six saddles and other premiums are being given to champions in the various events this year.

The total prize list will amount to over $3,000.

Rodeo events include the cutting-horse contest, oldtimers calf-roping, steer riding for juniors and the usual cowboy contests: bronc riding, steer-riding, wild-cow milking and calf-roping.

The rodeo is the attraction around which is built a continuous program of entertainment for the three days and night of the Reunion.

TO MR. HOLLY

This old world has many sorrows.
This old world is not our home
But the worst of all, dear loved one
Is when we are left alone.

When our daily partner of life
Is taken away from sin and strife,
We grieve to see them go.
We have to travel alone, we know.

But travel world's old weary path,
And make the best of each lonely day.
Then you'll soon be out of this worldly path,
And go to meet her in that home far away.

She sleeps, she sleeps beneath the sod
She sleeps, but her soul has gone to God.

It seems that young Dunn made his dive and landed too close the edge of the pool striking his head against the concrete. A gash across the top of the skull was cut which required 18 stitches to close it. He was rushed to the Lubbock Sanitarium where first aid was given.

His mother at Spur was called and she went to Lubbock Friday. However, Arthur Lee was getting along fine and has been able to leave the sanitarium. Mrs. Dunn stated Monday that he is getting along fine and soon would be out again.

NOW YOU CAN BUY A CHEVROLET FOR $465

and up, J. o. b. Flint, Michigan

Startling price reductions, just announced, place Chevrolet further ahead in its field than ever—in price, quality and value

CHEVROLET In the face of the biggest demand in years, right when the trend toward Chevrolet is at its peak, Chevrolet reduces prices! No wonder America was startled when this news flashed across the country just a few days ago. And now that the public has had a chance to figure out what this price reduction means in terms of greater value, the news becomes even more important than before. Because it means that Chevrolet now offers you a big, substantial, quality car with the famous valve-in-head engine for as little as $465, f. o. b. Flint, Mich.—making it by far the lowest-priced Six in the world. It means that you can get enclosed Knee-Action, Blue-Flame performance, cable-controlled brakes, and all the other big advancements of the day, for as much as $35.00 less than before—and Chevrolet's former prices were already among the lowest of the low. It means, in short, that Chevrolet now presents America with the finest buy the low-price field has ever seen.

INJURED BY FALL

While visiting relatives and friends in Temple last week Rev. A. L. McClellan fell on the street and was painfully injured. Some people picked him up from the street and took him to a hotel where a physician was summoned and first aid was given. A message received here Monday stated that Rev. McClellan was resting easier and was on the road to recovery. His son, who lives at Hebronville, stated he was taking Rev. McClellan home with him and when he was able he would return to Spur to be with friends here.

Rev. McClellan is very active in church work and in the various branches of the Masonic Lodge. He has many friends who will be glad to know he is recovering. He is now in his eighties but is very active and gets great pleasure in visiting his friends.

SEEMS TO BE THE YOUNGEST GRADUATE

Miss Robbie Lou Driggers, of Duck Creek, seems to be the youngest 7th Grade graduate of the public schools in Dickens County. She will go into high school in September and will be eleven years of age in August.

She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Driggers, of Gilpin, is rather tiny for her age, but has proved herself capable of doing the work in her class since starting to school. During the last term of school she was a member of the team which won first honors in spelling in the county in her group. She is a good student and reads a great deal.

When she goes into high school it will have been just a few weeks after having celebrated her 11th birthday anniversary.

JOYCE HEMPHILL PASSES AWAY

Miss Joyce Lorane Hemphill, 13, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hemphill, of Orotan community, passed away about 9:30 o'clock Sunday evening. She had been suffering of diphtheria for several days, but seemed to be getting along all right. However, Sunday she seemed to be restless and Sunday evening her mother decided to give her an aspirin to quiet her nerves.

Joyce Lorane lay down on a bed and her father sat down by her. By the time her mother was ready to give the aspirin, she was dead. It is thought the diphtheria had affected her heart which caused death.

Funeral services were held at the cemetery at Dickens Monday afternoon. Rev. H. T. Harris conducted the services. Interment followed in Dickens cemetery, Webber Williams acting as funeral director.

Dr. J. L. Rice, 65, who had been a citizen of Slaton the past eight years, died at 8:00 o'clock Tuesday morning. Dr. Rice was the father of Wright Rice who is the Phillips Petroleum Agent at Spur, and a brother-in-law of G. L. Barber of this city.

Funeral services were conducted at Slaton Tuesday afternoon by Rev. C. W. Foote, pastor of the First Methodist Church. The widow and five sons survive him.

Rotarians In Session At Detroit

What lies ahead of industry and commerce, in community life and international affairs, was given Monday as the keynote of the 25th annual convention of Rotary International which opened a week's sessions in Detroit.

The theme of the convention was set forth by Mark Sullivan of Washington, D. C., noted author and commentator who spoke on the topic "The Choice Before Us," dealing largely with the recent changes in affairs which have been generalized in the phrase "the new deal." His address spread before the convention a broad background of world developments, which was simplified during the rest of the week by speakers dealing with particular phases of the industrial situation, the problems of communities, and the status of international relationships.

At 2 o'clock the convention was called to order by Clinton P. Anderson, state treasurer of New Mexico and immediate past president of Rotary International, who is chairman of the convention committee. After the messages of welcome, and a response by J. M. A. Iott, one of the leading advertising men of New Zealand. Mr. Sullivan sounded the convention keynote.

The founder of Rotary, Paul P. Harris, Chicago lawyer who brought together the group in February, 1905, to form the first Rotary Club, gave to the convention a personal message. Then followed the business reports of Secretary Chesley R. Perry of Chicago and Treasurer Rufus F. Chapin of Chicago.

Escorted to the Temple Auditorium by a troop of mounted police, John Nelson of Montreal, president of Rotary International, closed the first day's program with his presidential address.

The trend of Rotary, paralleling the recent improvement in commerce, was set forth by President Nelson in figures showing the upturn in Rotary membership and the increase in the number of Rotary clubs. More than a hundred clubs have been added to the list in the past year, President Nelson said, and the membership figures show a gain of more than seven thousand, reaching a total now of nearly 150,000 in nearly 3,700 Rotary clubs scattered all over the world.

The outgoing board of directors has selected five nominees, of the twelve to be elected. These are Maurice Duperray, Paris, France; Donato Gaminara, Montevideo, Uruguay; Tsunejiro Miyooka, Tokyo, Japan; Milan Stojadinovic, Beograd, Jugoslavia and Paul T. Thornwell, Helsinki-Helsingfors, Finland. Five others will be chosen by Rotarians from the United States, one by Rotarians of Canada and Newfoundland, and one by Rotarians of Great Britain and Ireland.

Proposed legislation submitted to the convention received first attention Monday morning in the Council on Legislation, a group of about 125 chosen to represent all sections of the world. One of the proposed enactments would provide for a change in the Rotary membership regulations by allowing a member for ten years to become a "senior" member, and allowing his Rotary club to elect to membership some other business or professional man of the same occupation.

Representatives of some sixty countries were present Monday when the week's sessions began. As the curtain rose on the opening scene, breezes set to fluttering the flags of more than sixty nations in which there are Rotary Clubs.

Monday night there was an "international fellowship night" which was a veritable "carnival of nations" with various kinds of entertainment within and outside the Temple Auditorium. The adjacent boulevard resembled a fashionable summer resort while indoors there was a composite film portraying the intricate processes of the motor industry, and a chorus of 200 employees of the Chrysler company.

The dissection of the general topics of Monday was begun Tuesday with the consideration of business problems—the non-financial incentives in business, employer-employee relations, laws and rules in industry, and closing with an address by Charles F. Kettering, noted research engineer, styled "The World Isn't Finished."

In groups according to their several occupations, the Rotarians got together on Tuesday afternoon for practical informal discussion of matters pertinent to their own profession—auto industry, finance, law, medicine, transportation, newspaper publishing, and so on. Scattered about the business offices and plants of the city, these groups threshed out the question "How has the economic crisis affected the business and professional standards of practice?" and other related problems.

Matters affecting the welfare of the community was up for consideration on Wednesday, with Harry Collins Spillman of New York, noted lecturer, on the theme "The Aristocracy of Service in the New Economic Order." Profitable leisure time activities was the topic of Prof. William Lyon Phelps of Yale, and then followed an extended discussion of the situation of youth, by men of five different countries—the United States, Germany, China, Federated Malay States and England—each one active in work for the benefit of young people, in his own part of the world.

The program of today and Friday, aside from convention business, will be devoted mainly to consideration of international conditions. The first topic today is that of an international auxiliary language, presented by Dr. Herbert Shenton of Syracuse University. The exchange of youth for education, "Our Unofficial Ambassadors," will be presented by Charles D. Hurrey of New York City.

RELEASED SUNDAY NIGHT
AT BIG SPRING

W. S. Posey, Lubbock banker, and Campbell H. Elkins, assistant Justice of the Peace for Lubbock, were released near Big Spring by the Lubbock jail breakers about nine o'clock Sunday evening. Being eight miles from town they were aided by a traveler on the highway who gave them a ride into Big Spring.

Mr. Posey sent a message to his wife that they were well and would be home soon. He stated that he had 95 cents in change in his pocket when Ed (Perchmouth) Stanton, Wm. E. Doupe, A. H. Nelson, and J. B. Stephens, ordered he and Elkins into Elkins' new car and drove away with them. The escapees laughed at Posey and twitted him about a banker not having more money with him.

Stanton was under death sentence and soon was to have gone to the electric chair. Doupe was under 10-year sentence for robbery. Nelson and Stephens both were under sentences for burglaries, one of which was in Dickens County.

Stanton seems to have had nothing to lose in making his break, and probably will have to be killed on the spot before he will ever surrender to officers. According to law and various court rulings all three of the other men have increased their penalties by making the break in the event they are recaptured.

In giving his account of the escape Mr. Posey stated that the men did not pass through any towns and kept off the main highways. Most of the time they were on the country roads in order to avoid meeting traffic. They bought gas and oil at filling stations along the road.

When the two kidnapped men were released Elkins was told he would get his car back when they got through with it. He was requested not to worry about the car as he would find it somewhere later.

DIES IN HUBBARD

Mrs. T. J. Sanders, 70, mother of Ray Sanders of the firm of Sanders-Watson of this city, died at her home in Hubbard at 8:15 o'clock Sunday morning. Mrs. Sanders had been ill about ten days suffering with heart trouble.

R. Lee Robinson of Sanders Pharmacy, a grandson, left here in time to arrive in Hubbard Wednesday morning. As soon as he arrived he wired his uncle, Ray Sanders, requesting him to get there at once. Mr. Sanders arrived Thursday morning and remained with his mother until her death.

Funeral services were held Monday at ten o'clock in the First Baptist Church at Hubbard. Rev. Oby Nelson, pastor of the First Baptist Church at Mt. Calm, and Rev. M. O. Cheek, pastor of the Hubbard Church, conducted the services. Interment followed in a Hubbard cemetery.

The deceased is survived by her husband, seven children: Mrs. D. E. Ford of Goree, V. T. Sanders, Mrs. Nathan Land, Mrs. R. L. Robinson, Mrs. Jasper Reddings, all of Hubbard; Lee Sanders of Albany and Ray Sanders of Spur; one sister, Mrs. Alice Fite of Henderson.
