Truck Growers Bailey And Adjoining Counties Asked To Attend Meeting Here March 8 To Discuss Marketing

The success of truck farming in Bailey County has not been due to the fact that our growers were unable to successfully produce truck crops, but to the fact that marketing problems have arisen each year with considerable difficulty and loss of money to growers. This problem has been discussed from time to time by the growers, but nothing to date has ever been done.

By starting now, S. F. Logan, county agent, points out, "it is expected that plans can be developed whereby this problem will not arise during the next crop year."

Considerable discussion has already taken place toward solving this problem and it is hoped that a truck growers' organization will be in effect by the time truck crops are ready to market from Bailey county this season. With this in mind growers have requested a meeting of all interested farmers in this area including the irrigated territory of Bailey county and adjoining counties to meet in the district court room March 8 at 2:00 o'clock and thresh out this problem.

Several of the growers plan to study the marketing setup at Portales and Herford between now and that date, and the meeting will also be favored with the presence of Jimmy Rosenberg horticulturist of the Extension Service, who has had personal and practical experience in truck growing in the winter garden district of Texas, and C. E. Bowles cooperative marketing specialist also of College Station, who has had much experience in organizing cooperative marketing associations.

Bill For Control Of Underground Water Will Be Amended So As To Eliminate Plains Country At Present

Several weeks ago, when it was called to the attention of the Plains farmers that an effort was being made to vest in the State the right to control all underground water, protest meetings were held in practically every town in West Texas. Resolutions were passed, and telegrams and letters poured in upon the legislators at Austin. In Plainview recently, 950 irrigation farmers met in angry protest to the Bill, which had by that time been introduced in the House and seemed sure of passage. These farmers were backed by business and professional men all over this section of the State.

It appears now that some good has come from these meetings, and that the Bill has been amended to meet the wishes of Plains farmers, at least for a time. Following is a letter received Monday by County Judge Jim Cook, which will explain the situation as it now stands in regard to underground water control:

Mr. Jim Cook,
Muleshoe, Texas.
Dear Mr. Cook:
I am in receipt of the following telegram from Mr. Fielding Helms of Plainview and Clifton, Texas, who has been in Austin in opposition to House Bill No. 70.

"Have just come out of conference with Judge Isaacs, author of House Bill No. 70, regarding conservation and utilization State's underground waters. He has agreed to offer amendment to his bill exempting all of Texas North of a line running due East on a line with the South line of New Mexico."

This is forwarded for your information.

Sincerely yours,
H. S. HILLBURN, President, Plainview Board of City Development.

Bailey County 4-H Club Show Date Set March 22nd

Plans for the Bailey County 4-H Club Show have been carried to all of the 4-H clubs in the county, and the boys have indications that they will show from 2 to 3 times as many entries as in 1940. The 22 classes will be judged on the afternoon of March 22; the place of the show will be the Lenau livestock sales barns. There will be five placings in each class. Ribbons have been ordered and will be printed locally. There will be five ribbons for each class of livestock and poultry.

As March 22 is also the date of the county school track meet, efforts are being made to coordinate the two programs and make a much larger and better day for each of the affairs than in the past. It is planned that the track meet will be finished before judging of livestock begins. By having a track meet and 4-H Club Show both on the same date it will be possible for all of the club boys, whether they show livestock or poultry or not, to be present at the show and see those entries judged and see why they were judged in such manner. In this way, it will be worth the boy's and their dad's time and efforts toward attending the show.

Judges have not been selected, but they will be announced within the near future, according to County Agent Logan.

The Yellowjackets Beat Whitharrel Tuesday Night

Tuesday night of this week the Muleshoe High School Yellowjackets, boys' basketball team, journeyed to Amberst, where they won their fourth cup of the season by downing the boys' basketball team of Whitharrel with scores of 22 to 16.

The first quarter saw the Yellowjackets trailing one to nothing. The half of the game ended with scores of six and eight in favor of Muleshoe.

The Whitharrel team tied the score during the last half of the game, but this hope was short lived, as the Muleshoe boys started rolling the ball through the hoop.

Clifford Gordon was high point man for the night with nine points. Due to inaccurate shooting of the Yellowjackets the game was close until the last two minutes of the game.

Final Games Of Hot Foot Series To Be Played Thursday

The Hot Foot League basket ball series, the most sensational in "these here parts" is going to come to a stop in a swirl of sweat, smoke and smut next Thursday night. The number of points made (or gruffed) by the teams during the month will decide the champion. The standings to date are:

Service Stations & Grocery Stores 28; FBI 81; Garages & Implement Houses 64; Merchants (other than Grocery) 101; Wholesale Oil, 102; Faculty & Professional 63.

All the teams will be in the hair-pulling Thursday, and it will be the last chance for spectators to express, publicly, their opinions of the players.

R. L. Brown still holds the lead as the shining example of a great individual player, and will likely be presented with the left-handed table fork after the coming contest. Another interesting feature will be the presentation of a white baby for adoption by the captain of the winning team. Dr. Green, one of the series managers, has found a baby which needs to be placed in a good home, and he will attend to this matter after the last game is played Thursday night.

To date a total of $111.00 has been realized, which is to be used for improvement on the foot ball field. Everyone is asked to be on hand for the final session, and enjoy one of the best shows ever seen here.

Old Sea Veteran Called Back For Service With Navy

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Like an old fire horse recalled from pasture, the historic liner George Washington was ordered out of retirement to serve in the navy's growing transport fleet.

It will be a familiar service to the 34-year-old vessel. Built in Germany for the North German Lloyd line, she was seized by the United States government at Hoboken, N. J. upon the outbreak of the World war, and converted into a transport.

Eighteen times the George Washington went back and forth across the Atlantic before and immediately after the armistice, ferrying 48,778 passengers to Europe and bringing back 39,228.

The same ship took President Wilson and members of the peace conference to France, transported the king and queen of Belgium on the visit to the United States in 1919, and figured in a history-making ship-to-shore radio telephone conversation between Secretary of War Baker and Franklin D. Roosevelt, then assistant secretary of the navy.

Some years after the war, the George Washington was operated by the government and the United States lines in the trans-Atlantic passenger service. She was laid up in December, 1931, by which time the competition from modern luxury liners had become severe. Since that date she had swung as anchor off Solomon's island. Maintenance crews kept her engines in shape for just such a call as the navy announced today.

The above item will bring back memories of incidents long forgotten by many a world war doughboy.

What a ship she is. When taken over by the U. S. it was found that German sailors had damaged her engines so that they could never be used again—they thought. They boasted that American machinists were not good enough to fix them. But within sixty days they were repaired, and this was where Germany learned her first lesson about Americans.

To a country boy like the writer, the George Washington was one of the "seven wonders." She was always the flagship of the convoy, carrying the commander, the staff officers of the Army Divisions which were being transported, and any notables who might be going to Europe at that time. Only crack crews of a Division were taken aboard the George Washington. It so happened that for once our regiment was in "high society" for we were picked to ride the Big Boat. Discipline was strict. The meals were the best to be had at that time. Everything was spick and span, shining like new money. The navy gun crews were all picked men, as were other members of the crew. We thought the Army had some fine gunners, but the deadly accuracy of the Navy boys was always a source of wonder to us.

The suite of rooms, formerly used by the German Kaiser, had been turned into a hospital, and there was none better anywhere. In the main dining room, everything had been changed except one. The orchestra stand was just as it had been when taken over by the United States. The instruments were still in place where they had been left by members of the band after the last concert. Dust was on the piano, the music stands, the bass horn, and all, but everywhere else in the great room the wood and metal work shone like a mirror. Just why this was, we never knew.

German sub commanders would have given their chance at Heaven to sink the George Washington. But she was well protected, and always in the center of the convoy.

As she goes back to duty today, we are wondering if there are those in Germany who recall those days and what their reaction is.

Democracy With A Little 'D'

We give our readers this report of a Government agency, so that they may see for themselves the brand of "justice" that is being handed out, not only in one, but many instances. Our personal opinion is that such decisions are of communist control to such an extent that they make an honest American gag with disgust. However, the National Railroad Adjustment Board is not the only government agency ruled by "red necked," so-called Americans. There are many of them, for they have sprung up like weeds during the past few months, and practically control every phase of national life. In this particular instance it appears that drunken driving, although universally condemned on the highways and airways, is to be condoned.

This is in effect the inference to be drawn from a decision which the First Division of the National Railroad Adjustment Board handed down on November 12, reinstating a railroad engineer who was discharged for violating Rule "G" (against the use of intoxicants), which is the time-honored rule on railroads for the safety of the public and employees. He was discharged after members of his own crew, long prior to starting on their run, had reported that he was not in fit condition to operate his train and after he had been examined by a competent physician who stated in writing that the engineer was "absolutely unfit to handle an engine due to the effects of alcohol."

This question is seriously raised by a decision which has just been rendered by a government agency, the First Division of the National Railroad Adjustment Board. The Board's decision rendered on November 12, 1940, restores full seniority rights and nearly two year's back pay to a locomotive engineer who was dismissed February, 1939, for reporting to work while intoxicated. He was considered unfit for duty, both by members of his own train crew and by a physician who examined him at the time, and under a law of the state in which this man operated a train, the railroad will be subject to a fine if it permits him to work. The Board, under the Railroad Labor Act, has decided that any further serious infraction of the rules would not be tolerated. Again in 1937 he was dismissed for a serious infraction of the rules, but was reinstated on his promise that any future failure to observe the rules "will be sufficient cause for my being immediately dropped from the service."

In spite of this previous record, the First Division of the Adjustment Board has now required this engineer to be reinstated after a third offense. If this is justice under a "streamlined" democratic government, please give us vanilla. But, as we have often been told, we get just what we ask for in the way of administrative personnel.

JUGULAR VEIN OF LIBERTY

Those who sit back and cynically condemn the banker as a parasitic money changer, are helping to place their own future in peril. They are suffering from a great and tragic misconception. The banker represents private savings, and private savings are the backbone of opportunity. Money and credit are fundamentally the private property of the people and must be guarded as such by private citizens. Our bankers are private citizens. They are the stewards of money and credit, nothing more. The billions which we, the people, have deposited in their care, belong to us. Therefore, we have set up stringent frame work of regulation around the banks to put them in the utilization of our money and to protect us against those who would abuse the trust we have placed in them.

History has shown that whenever a government succeeds in gaining control of a people's money and either later gains control of the people, too.

"A GIFT" FROM THE QUEEN

In a radio speech Saturday night, Senator Wheeler quotes a certain woman columnist in an address before a gathering in New York last week as follows: "I would be willing, if necessary, to sacrifice the lives of one million American boys in order to beat Hitler."

PUBLIC WEARY OF THREATS

Threats of strikes are ever current in defense industries. The American people are about fed up with irresponsibility on the part of any group. When the cream of the nation's youth is being drafted into the army at compensation of $1.00 a day, there will eventually be short shrift for those who take advantage of every crisis to gain more power and more special privileges. Labor and industry have a great opportunity now to show what they can do. Compulsory production methods for either industry or labor are unsatisfactory and can be avoided by the parties at interest if they do not alienate public sympathy and good will.

THE BRAVE MAN

A bright little girl, age four, and her brother, age six, were spending the night with their aunt. When bedtime came, the aunt asked how they said their prayers. The little girl answered:

"Sometimes I say them on muddy's knees and sometimes to the side of the bed."
"And how about you, Sonny?"
"Oh, I don't need to pray, I sleep with Daddy."

She was obviously annoyed when she returned from her shopping expedition. "John," she said to her husband, "I've just found that the woman next door has a coat exactly the same as mine."

John looked up from his banking account, which he had been trying to balance. "Well, my dear," he said, "I suppose you want me to buy you a new coat?"
"Yes," she replied, "it would be cheaper than moving, wouldn't it?"

A NICE POINT

Pat, a truck driver, stopped suddenly on the highway. The car behind crashed into the truck, and its owner sued the Irishman.

"Why didn't you hold out your hand?" the judge asked Pat.
"Well," said indignantly, "if he couldn't see the truck, how in hllin's name could he see my hand?"

A NATIONAL SALES TAX

It is forecast that the Treasury will not offer any new tax proposals until late Spring. By then, it should have a fairly good idea of how much the lend-lease bill, plus our own rearmament, is going to cost, and how much of the total is advisable to pay for as we go.

Higher direct and indirect taxes are, of course, considered inevitable in informed circles. That means further upping of the income tax rate in all brackets, and perhaps further lowering of exemptions. It also may mean new taxes on commodities, to be collected at the source rather than from the consumer.

The sales tax has many supporters. So far, this tax has been opposed by the Administration, but some feel that it will eventually be accepted as a matter of necessity. States sales taxes have proven tremendous and dependable revenue producers. A national sales tax should go a long way toward meeting the arms bill.

THE STORY SO FAR: In an effort to substantiate rumors that 200,000 foreign troops were in Mexico preparatory for an attack upon the United States, Intelligence Officer Benning went to Mexico City. Here he joined the staff of the unsuspecting Van Haskel, leader of the CHAPTER VII—Continued.

Hysteria was spreading. Thousands were fleeing the city in taxicabs and private cars. Cavalry was ordered into the city from Fort Myer to help police clear masses of people who flooded the parks despite frantic radio warnings that crowding up was dangerous.

Benning dismissed all thought of trying again tonight for the Van Haskel spies.

A finger of light leaped into the air across the Potomac. Benning went tense as he saw the restless movement into the skies of that ominous beam.

Another bolt of light shot up, the sky filled with those long pennants rising from the Sperry drums, driving toward the intensity of their thousand million candlepower. The bark of a cannon crept across the river. It told Benning that the lights had picked up an enemy craft within another six thousand yards of observation. Other cannon barked. The three-inch guns were driving at the skies.

Grimly he lifted his wrist close to his eyes and strained at the luminous dial of his wrist watch.

Thirty racking seconds ticked by. Forty. Benning braced himself, wet his lips, his hand was stricken by a jagged. Through the crackle of artillery he caught the ominous roar of motors in the sky. At this instant bombs were plummeting downward, he reckoned, released three thousand yards or more to the southwest of Washington while the planes flashed toward the city.

A vivid yellowish sheet of light winked over the city, low against the earth. In the next instant came the clap of thunder as the mighty detonation smote the city. Benning felt the earth reel under his heels, his ears rang with the reverberation.

Another crash, a fourth, fifth. The titanic wrath of the bombers smothered all sound of the anti-aircraft in a bedlam of volcanic fury that filled all existence. Two more crashes, separated by short intervals of time.

Silence came swiftly, a hush that yielded no sound for several seconds. Then, as his ears recovered, Benning caught the shrill roar of motors overhead, the sharp staccato of machine-gun fire. Near-by, the crews of the .50 caliber anti-aircraft machine guns were peppering away madly, separated by short intervals, and they ceased fire. Now came the sound of excited masses of people.

Benning headed into Fifteenth Street. People were running this way and that on the heels of hysterical, unbridled terror. Others were massed in stricken silence gazing into the skies. Taxicabs and automobiles were jammed in all directions. Benning saw pedestrians bowled over by wheeled vehicles, left floundering on the pavement. Scattered policemen were trying to stem the tide of panic. Sirens screamed as ambulances and police cars raced into the targeted area.

It was a few minutes before midnight when Benning turned into Pennsylvania Avenue. There was no such thing as a taxicab in the present disorder. He walked rapidly on past the White House, intent on reaching Morningside by twelve.

Benning's senses were jolted back and forth in front of the President's official mansion. The place loomed solemn and tomblike in the vague light of a quarter moon, the somber mass of its gray walls unbroken by a single lighted window.

But Benning, as he hurried on, knew that behind those screened windows grave concerns would be carried through the night as the heads of government charted the desperate course of an uneasy nation plunged suddenly into war.

On reaching Colonel Flagwill's office, Benning found the G-2 chief engrossed in the verbal report of an air service staff colonel. As near as could be judged, the attack on Washington had been made by a single bomber squadron of seven planes. The bombers had been accompanied by a squadron of pursuit ships. The anti-aircraft reported no hits, and was setting up now to cover the city foreign forces, and gained the confidence of two other officers, Fincke and Bravot. Discovering that foreign troops were poised for an invasion of the U. S., Benning returned to Washington to report to Colonel Flagwill, acting chief of military intelligence. Flagwill stated as best it could against the return trip of the invaders.

"It'll not be very long now before they're back over the city for a second time," the air officer predicted, speaking in a calm voice. "No report yet of damage to important buildings, but one bomb came pretty flush into a crowded street and we have a preliminary report of heavy casualties."

"No word of any other squadrons headed this way, Colonel?" Flagwill asked.

"None. We'd have picked them up if any more were coming tonight. But what puzzles us is how these bombers expect to get back into Mexico without refueling. Especially since the bombs dropped sounded like heavy ones, probably a thousand pounds or more."

"I'll want all details as rapidly as you get them," Flagwill instructed. "By the way, have our planes taken off for Texas yet?"

"Yes, sir. We've notified Operations. Our Third Wing will have one attack and two pursuit squadrons at San Antonio before daybreak, all ready for business. Other forces report there as rapidly as possible."

The telephone buzzed, a summons for Flagwill to conference with the Chief of Staff. Flagwill gathered up his notes and turned to Benning.

"You'd better come along, Captain. There may be some questions on Mexico City for you to answer."

Briefly, as they marched down the long corridor to the staff chief's conference room, Benning sketched in his own observations of the bombing of Washington, emphasizing the panic in the streets, the chaos and disorder that followed.

The floor under them reeled with the impact of a sudden terrific explosion in the distance. Flagwill's expression did not change, there was no hesitation in his gaze at Benning.

"Here the birds are back again," he muttered. He shook his head despairingly. "We've been pounding the public by radio all evening not to bunch up, but I'm afraid people will have to learn by costly experience. God, but I hope no persistent gas is dropped! I doubt if there are a dozen gas masks in all Washington."

Another savage detonation filled the night. As its vibrations waned, there came the uninterrupted click of typewriters and telegraph instruments as messages went hurrying across the country from the War Department mobilizing the country's armed forces.

General Hague's conference room was filling with generals and colonels, all self-possessed, but with the effects of fatigue and strain in their faces after long days without rest. They were promptly in the room where they stood until the four-starred head of the Army, now in uniform, came in. General Hague was grave and lined, but his shoulders were erect and his gray eyes burned with a level vitality.

"Gentlemen," he proceeded at once, "I've gone over the situation in detail with the President. First I'll give you a brief summary of available enemy information—"

"Three enemy columns are reliably reported at our Texas border and it is a reasonable assumption that they will bridgehead the Rio Grande and make ready to attack at daybreak. Likely enough the main body will strike from Laredo with the objective of San Antonio. Two other columns are reported to strike from Brownsville and Eagle Pass."

"You are familiar with the bombing of San Antonio, Galveston, New Orleans, and Houston tonight. We hope to give those cities the protection of our air forces, beginning tomorrow, but we are at the mercy of night raiders for the time being. I needn't tell you that nothing can save San Antonio and the occupation of our great oil and sulphur belts. It looks pretty hopeless for our troops."

NEXT WEEK
Another Absorbin' Installment

that forces were also reported missing in the Mediterranean and the Far East. That night Fort Houston, Texas, was heavily bombed. Reports that an enemy bombing squadron was approaching Washington threw the city into panic. Now continue in this story:

"The President has given us carte blanche. We are mobilizing our entire Regular Army and National Guard. This—"

An aide-de-camp, face bloodless and eyes starting from his sockets, burst into the room. General Hague glared sharply at the interruption, then stiffened as he caught the stark tragedy that was written in the officer's face.

"Please, sir, will the General take the telephone?" the aide stammered in a rasping whisper. "It's—important."

The Chief of Staff took the receiver of the portable telephone that was handed him by the aide.

"Yes, General Hague speaking," he said.

There followed a stifling silence. General Hague sat with the receiver glued to his ear. Into the leaden silence of the room came the faint metallic squeak of an excited voice. The assembled officers saw their chief stiffen as if an electric current had been driven through his body.

General Hague stared dazed across the room for several moments. His hand that held the telephone instrument descended to slow limp arc to the table. He took the telephone and returned to an adjoining desk.

"Gentlemen," General Hague focused his eyes, looked about among them, waited for control of his voice, then spoke firmly, "Gentlemen, by the ill fortune of circumstance, the enemy targeted upon the White House with a heavy bomb. The President of the United States is dead."

From out in the night came the screaming of sirens. The shrill screeches rose above an indescribable rumble of sound, the frenzied cries, and excited shouts of a terrorized populace. The bombers had raced on back into the south. The fretful bark of the anti-aircraft guns was stilled.

"Gentlemen," General Hague's voice broke the stricken tension of the room, "we will proceed with our business."

The head of the Army resumed his chair and fumbled with trembling fingers among his notes to pick up the shattered thread of his observations. The others sat down to a funeral stolidity.

"Getting back to the enemy intentions," General Hague resumed his voice dry and hoarse, "we must now consider only his immediate objectives. We cannot now deny him possession of the world's largest oil fields lying in that region generally north of Beaumont. At the same time he gains the vast sulphur belt north and east of Galveston. We may reasonably expect, therefore, that Van Haskel will drive on to establish his army on some east-and-west line as Fort Worth—Dallas—Shreveport."

"Yes, gentlemen, we'll take an awful beating in Texas for the time being. Lack of ammunition for all weapons will be a serious problem. Our lack of anti-aircraft guns will bring us horrible losses. The country will be in an uproar for days to come—until the people get educated to this terrible new reality of their existence."

"But all of this merely increases our own responsibilities. We must do the insuperable, we must achieve the impossible, we must face this crisis with patience and keep before us the protection of our country against later serious attack which I fear is inevitable. Gentlemen, let us remember this—"

General Hague rose to his feet and the muscles of his jaw hardened. He looked about among them again as his voice crackled as he concluded, "No matter what force may come against us, no matter what may be our initial reverses, our country has the basic character and the resources in manpower to make us invincible. In the bitter end of whatever storms may lie ahead, the forces, or coalition of forces, that dare attack the United States, will find the mighty vengeance of our massed valor. That's all for present, gentlemen."

PROGRESS H. D. CLUB ENTERTAINED

By Mrs. Carrie Wilhite

"Always use some kind of table decorations in the home, whether you have flowers or not," said Mrs.
Etoile Holley to members of the Progress H. D. club when they met in the home of Mrs. Carrie Wilhite
Tuesday of last week.

Mrs. Holley told us that there are many things to make attractive table decorations such as fresh fruit, vegetables, dry grasses, bear grass or even plain candles. Any time flowers are available they make the best table decorations of all. Mrs. Holley brought a number of these things to the club and the members arranged some very attractive decorations from them.

Two songs were sung, being led by Mrs. Roxie Lowry.

Miss Bessie Vinson was parliamentary critic for the meeting. She gave some very constructive criticism about the way the meetings have been conducted. To avoid confusion, she told everyone not to forget to address the chair and be recognized before speaking.

The club will sponsor a pie supper to be held this coming Friday night, the 28th. Music and entertainment will be furnished throughout the evening. Everyone is invited to

R. A. CANTRELL

Representative for SOUTHWESTERN LIFE INSURANCE CO.

A gain of $20,364,402 in insurance in force for the year 1940, giving the company a total of $381,132,934 insurance in force, is reported in the 38th annual report to Southwestern life policyholders. C. F. O'Donnell, president, announced today. This is the largest gain in insurance in force the company has had since the beginning of the depression ten years ago.

The figures are contained in a statement just received here by R. A. Cantrell, Muleshoe representative.

Reflecting an unusual growth during the past ten years, the company's insurance in force has increased more than 36 per cent during that time while assets were increasing more than 105 per cent. The company's 38th annual financial statement reflects continued progress of this Texas institution. The company continues its enviable record of never having had a default of interest or principal on any bond owned by it. Its assets increased more than $6,000,000 during 1940, total assets of Southwestern Life being reported as $73,415,129-77.

The 38th annual report shows that the company carries no real estate in excess of current market value, and that it continued to earn a rate of interest during 1940 in excess of 4 per cent. The company confines its business to the state of Texas and aside from its investments in United States government securities, practically all of its investments are in Texas. The 38th annual report shows that since 1903 Southwestern Life has paid out to policyholders and beneficiaries a total of $71,056,985.87.

An intensive agency training program begun by the company the first of last year kept pace with the company's growth. Mr. O'Donnell said. This program, he said, has as its objective the development of agents thoroughly equipped to give the highest possible degree of public service.

TO END PISTOL TOTING

Garrison said the national fatality rate was 12 deaths per 100,000,000 miles of travel while in Texas, with 1,157 deaths and 10,200,000,000 miles of travel it was 1033.

"Translated into human lives," Garrison asserted, "the statistics mean there are 187 persons alive in Texas who would have been killed in 1940 if one fatality rate had been on a par with that of all the States.

"This relative progress is encouraging but no one can boast that Texas had only 1,757 traffic deaths last year. With that number of deaths, considerably higher than last year, plus some 30,000 injuries and $50,000,000 in economic losses, it is painfully obvious that Texas is a long way from achieving a satisfactory degree of traffic safety."

Bureau Of Agri. Says Farm Income Is Up Considerably

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported recently that farmers' cash income from marketings, commodities placed under loans and government benefit payments totaled $9,120,000 in 1940, or the largest since 1937 when it was $9,155,000-000.

Income from livestock and livestock products totaled $4,818,000-000 and was 7 per cent higher than in 1939. The greatest percentage increases were wool and dairy products. The income from cotton totaled $629,928,000 compared with $628,575,000 in 1939.

Farm income by states for 1939 and 1940, respectively, included Texas, $575,461,000 and $579,192,000; New Mexico, $54,108,000 and $59,592,000; Arizona, $59,713,000 and $60,649,000.

187,817 MATTRESSES MADE IN TEXAS

Mattresses completed the first of this month under the 1940 and 1941 cotton mattress demonstration program in Texas totaled 168,817, according to reports compiled in the office of Mildred Horton, vice director and state home demonstration agent of the Texas Extension Service. ## Freezer Plants Are Diet Aids To Farmers

Freezer locker plants now moving into rural sections may become important aids to diet, health and vigor of many farm families, as particularly in the cotton belt.

Along with their salted, canned foods and their winter garden products, many southern families need fresh lean meat, fruits, and vegetables, federal nutrition and extension workers emphasize. Freezer locker service will help them to have such home-raised foods the year round.

During the past year the first plants for freezing home-raised food were established in Mississippi and Alabama. Tennessee and Texas were the states to pioneer in co-operative freezing in the south a few years ago. Following in their lead have been Arkansas with seven such plants now open, Georgia with five, North Carolina with four, Louisiana with three, and South Carolina and Florida with one each.

Southern farmers have long been interested in freezer lockers for curing their home-dressed hogs. But the new plants promise to be valuable also in bringing fresh meat, fruits, and vegetables to many people who have not been getting enough of these protective foods.

Muleshoe is very fortunate in having as one of its leading businesses a freezer locker plant, operated by an experienced butcher. Many local people and residents of surrounding communities patronize the local enterprise and consider it a very helpful business to the locality.

Lamar Witte, who is a member of the National Guard and has been stationed at Fort Bliss, El Paso, for the past few months, spent last week-end in Muleshoe visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Witte,

Demand For Books At Muleshoe Library Is Increasing Weekly

Received at the Library this week are two Zane Grey books, "Under The Tonic Rim," and "The Shepherd of Gaudaloupe," both of great interest to admirers of Zane Grey's writings.

To young people, "Games and Game Leadership," the "711" game book, should prove of interest, as well as "Games and Recreational Methods," mentioned some weeks ago as being of benefit to Boy Scouts.

The librarian reports that Monday, February 24th, was the busiest day for the Muleshoe Library since it opened in August, 1939. There were some forty books issued that day. At present, there are about 500 books of fiction alone, as well as a great number of non-fiction. Watch this space next week for a short synopsis of "Random Harvest," by James Hilton, a current best-seller just received. Visit and use your Public Library—Library Committee.

Canada Fights COUGHS

This New Amazing Way Acts Like A Flech

By far the largest selling cough medicine in all Canada is Buckley's CANADIAN Mixture. Composed of secret process Buckley's is entirely different from anything else you ever tried. Get a bottle today—take a teaspoonful, let it lie on your tongue a moment then swallow slowly, instantly you feel its powerful, effective action spread thru throat, head and bronchial tubes. Coughing ceases. Right away it loosens up thick phlegm—opens up clogged bronchial tubes—makes breathing easier. Now you'll know why over 10 million bottles of Buckley's famous cough mixture have been sold in cold, wintry Canada.

Most good druggists now have this great Canadian discovery.

Cecil Spence Returns to Duty

WITH U. S. ARMY

Cecil Spence, who has been home on furlough from the Army for the past ten days, returned to duty last Sunday. Cecil is with the 3rd Operations Company, U. S. Signal Corps. Last fall he was selected to attend a special school of radio instruction in New Jersey, from which he had recently returned.

While here, Cecil made a very pleasant visit to the Journal office and he and the editor spent an hour comparing notes on the "Manners and Customs" of the Army of today and twenty-odd years ago. We found that the equipment has been greatly improved, but an old "soldier-at" would still be able to recognize the lingo and find his way around at an Army post.

now Baths are the order of the day

It is becoming, in America, more and more a part of good breeding, good business, and good health for everyone to have a thorough cleansing bath each day. We have all recognized the bath for what it truly is, "a delightful and a highly important aid in the fine art of modern living."

An Automatic Storage Gas Water Heater will furnish plenty of Hot Water—the BATH will be more pleasant—then, too, there will be enough for other household uses.
