L. W. Jordan is being transferred, effective the 15th of this month, as secretary-treasurer of the Western National Farm Loan Association at Muleshoe to take over the management of two national farm loan associations at Plainview with total loans of approximately 1,700. Mr. Jordan has been assigned some special work in connection with the two associations at Plainview, which he expects to require about three or four months. At that time he has another promotion awaiting him with the Federal Land Bank.

Mr. Jordan began work with the farm with the Federal Land Bank in 1933. The certificate was signed by A. C. Bennett, commander of the U. S. Savannah, one of Uncle Sam's crack cruisers.

Mr. Jordan began work with the farm with the Federal Land Bank in 1933. The certificate was signed by A. C. Bennett, commander of the U. S. Savannah, one of Uncle Sam's crack cruisers.

Mr. Jordan stated that he had never worked with a finer bunch of directors and borrowers, who have co-operated 100 percent in working the association out of its difficulties, which were caused by drought and low prices for farm products, over which no one connected with the association had any control. He leaves his place here with regret, but with his best wishes to whoever will succeed him as secretary-treasurer, as well as to the board of directors, all of the borrowers and everybody else.

29 MILLION!

A record never before approached!

★When the 29,000,000th Ford rolled recently from the assembly line, an all-time record for the industry was set. 29,000,000 units built by the same management and all bearing one name—a name that has become one of the best-known trade-marks in the world!

It is significant that this achievement comes at a time when our country is making a mighty effort to re-arm swiftly. For to further that effort, to help speed it along in any possible way, we have offered the vast facilities of the Rouge Plant and every ounce of our experience.

As you read this, a new $21,000,000 Ford airplane engine plant, started only last fall, is nearly completed. A new magnesium alloy plant, one of the few in the country, is already in production on lightweight airplane engine castings. Work is right now under way on a new $18,000,000 plant for mass production of big bomber assemblies. Orders have been filled for military vehicles of several types, including army reconnaissance cars, staff cars and bomb service trucks.

In the midst of this activity for National Defense, building the 29 millionth Ford car is simply one part of the day's work.

The public has acclaimed the 1941 Ford car as the finest in Ford history. Ford Dealers are enjoying their greatest sales and expecting their best year since 1937.

It is good to be producing the things America needs, and to be setting records on the way!

"I want other boys to have the same kind of opportunities I've had. A COLLEGE MAN SPEAKS

Recently, a professor in one of our West Texas colleges wrote a letter to a member of the staff of the Dallas Morning News in regard to the educational system of Texas.

"Social efficiency is important, of course, but it is not a substitute for fundamentals. Suppose I give you some concrete examples:

"Some time back, one of our teachers gave a problem to his sophomore class. There were thirty-three in this class and some were juniors and seniors.

"I gave a quiz to my freshman physics class the other day and one question called for x, where x equals one-fourth plus one-sixth.

"This was solved by several as follows: 1x equals two one hundredths; 2x equals one hundred; x equals 50. "Another problem on this quiz called for x, where "Several solved this thinking that you multiply a number by 2 when you square it.

"This sort of thing goes on and on. It seems to me that we have lowered our standards in the public schools so that the have-nots (mentally speaking) may do as well as the haves.

"Some members of this education class that could not add common fractions will receive degrees in June and go out next fall to teach in our public schools.

BY GENERAL ABEL WHITE

THE STORY SO FAR: More than 200,000 foreign troops secretly assembled in Mexico by Gen. Hasek suddenly invaded the United States.

Colonel Flagwill had sprawled out on a cot in his office in the Munitions Building for a few weeks of sleep at sunrise, when he was shaken to wakefulness by an assistant.

Flagwill sat up and read the report with a blank expression. The staggering succession of events, the crushing responsibilities of the past few days had bankrupt him of emotion.

"Well—no more report from our Asiatic fleet and we'll know the worst," Flagwill announced.

"No, sir, the general has been asleep for nearly an hour. His aide refuses to let anyone disturb him on any account."

Benning responded at once, his face a peculiar chalky color. Flagwill's eyes centered on the major's left arm that hung from his neck in a woolen sling.

"What about Boggio?" Flagwill sharply interrupted.

"When I met him, instead of shooting him at sight, I said, 'Boggie, I'm Major Benning, United States Army. I understand you claim responsibility for bombing the White House.'"

"Flagwill nodded gravely and said: 'I'm glad you did it just that way, Benning. Hope your arm isn't too bad a fix.'"

"Just a little hole, sir. El Paso gave me anti-tetanus treatment and said I'd be as good as new in a short time.

General Hague's aide-de-camp banged into the room with a sumptuous, his ash face and distended eyes eloquent of some major catastrophe that he did not wait to disclose.

Benning passed up the hospital to see the first intelligence summaries and press reports. They reflected a world now black as pitch with stark omens of mighty violence.

An hour later President Tannard walked slowly up and down his private quarters, his hands tightly clenched, the tense silence of the room broken only by the soft tread of his feet and the noisily tick of a small clock.

The President halted in front of Hague and said in a low voice, "You are sure of your estimate, General, that you haven't sufficient forces to hold the Pacific coast against a major invasion?"

"Positive, sir," Hague affirmed at once. "Even if we shoved all our available troops onto the Pacific coast, we couldn't supply them with ammunition for more than two weeks of action, if that long.

"I regret to say, General," President Tannard responded, "that with all my years in the Senate I didn't realize this condition."

The President turned to Admiral Hunt and asked him, "With the loss of your naval bases on the Pacific, you will have Pearl Harbor to fall back on, is that correct?"

"If two of our battleship divisions and other craft are to be ordered to protect the Atlantic, sir, I'd recommend against risking what remains of our fleet on the Pacific in the event of such a violation of the fleet is very dangerous."

"Then you recommend abandonment of the Pacific coast, at least for the time being?" President Tannard demanded.

pared for this sudden attack, and could only retreat in the face of overwhelming force. High army officers worked desperately to organize an effective resistance against the invader.

The admiral's face went ashen; He swallowed several times and licked purple lips.

"That, sir," he said in a low, tremulous voice, "is a matter of decision entirely beyond my province. I can only give you the facts as to the limitations of our navy."

"Very well, gentlemen, I will decide," President Tannard said at last.

He halted and looked from one to another. His face now was wrinkled and drawn until he had the aspect of a very old man.

"The inevitable decision," he added, "and wet his lips with several nervous flicks of his tongue."

A momentous decision had to be made by the commander of the Fourth Army General Brunn and his general staff had been in a huddle through long hours.

American bombers, attack and pursuit planes, had hammered Van Hasek's marching columns without greatly reducing their relentless northern movement.

Another complication was the monstrous specter of invasion from the Pacific, now looming nearer and nearer.

From the sea came now the roar of thunder as heavy naval guns picked up the brawl to mock the pony defiance of the howitzer.

There was no such thing in this foggy night as observation, no such thing as gauging the tidal wave of boisterous co-ordinating resistance.

Through the stricken, cordon c that followed, Benning remained Fort Lewis into the Fourth Army Puget Sound division.

Benning merely stared at his pilot out of hollow eyes and said: "We're next week."

U. S. fleet in the Pacific Ocean. Ordered to Mexico City, the Fourth Army West coast. Benning then left for Washington in report to Colonel Flagwill, chief of the U. S. Intelligence Department.

They took off at once for San Francisco. Below them they saw the roads massed black with fleeing thousands from Los Angeles, Pasadena, and towns along the path of impending invasion.

At San Francisco they put down for the night because of heavy fogs. The city was in a panic. Steady streams of people were pouring out of the city on all roads.

A had engulfed most of the coastline from Seattle to San Francisco. Viability had been stripped from the sea by vast blankets of fog.

With nightfall work came to San Francisco that the Fourth Army was retrograding north from San Diego.

In the morning Hawtry took a chance against the fog. He found a hole at Medford and put down to refuel. Four hours later, Hawtry nosed about the fleecy sky over Fort Lewis until he found a rift and led to a landing.

Here on Puget Sound, some two thousand miles north of Brunn's retreating divisions, was the northernmost element of his Fourth Army.

Benning reported to Lieutenant Colonel Marsh, G-2, at Fort Lewis headquarters, intelligence operations in the field were being directed.

Marsh's bloodless, drawn face reflected stunned hopelessness; his voice was a contained but colorless monotone as he sketched over operations with Benning.

"This fog has us stumped, groaned. "We know enemy troops are not far off shore—it may make a landing tonight.

Private Rand knew that friendly patrols were not allowed in front of his position. His heart pounded so hard he heard nothing else.

A stab of flame leaped from the muzzle of Rand's gun. A succession of sharp flames followed as he poured the murderous might of his machine gun into the night.

Rand did not live to hear the howling, maddening storm that swiftly grew out of that first bark of his machine gun.

From a mile behind the shoreline the commander of a battalion of howitzer batteries roared out a battle cry. Flashes of light momentarily ribboned. The earth rocked from the force of the explosion that sent high-explosive shells screaming to the unbroken shoreline.

There was no such thing in this foggy night as observation, no such thing as gauging the tidal wave of boisterous co-ordinating resistance.

Through the stricken, cordon c that followed, Benning remained Fort Lewis into the Fourth Army Puget Sound division.

Benning merely stared at his pilot out of hollow eyes and said: "We're next week."

EVERY REGISTRANT MUST CARRY REGISTRATION CARD

Amendment of Selective Service regulations to make it mandatory for every registrant to have his registration certificate in his possession at all times and to present it upon request of proper authorities was announced recently by General J. Watt Page, State Selective Service director.

General Page made his announcement upon receipt of advice from National Headquarters which pointed out that while the old provision of the regulations said that the registrant should carry his registration certificate with him at all times as he may be required to show it from time to time, the revised regulations provide:

"The registrant must have his registration certificate in his personal possession at all times and, upon request, must exhibit it to any law enforcement officer, any Selective Service official of National Headquarters or of a State Headquarters, or any member of the local board or board of appeal."

Failure of a registrant to have his registration certificate in his possession, or to exhibit it upon request of authorized officials, will constitute a violation of the regulations and, in addition, shall be construed as prima facie evidence of his failure to register.

General Page also announced another amendment to the regulations pertaining to late registration which makes it compulsory that, "Every person subject to registration who for any reason failed to register on the day fixed by the President for his registration must present himself for and submit to registration before a local board, unless he has not already done so." General Page declared, "It does not apply to persons who have become 21 years of age since last October 16, as they will be required to register only if the President proclaims a second registration date."

Violation of the regulations may constitute a delinquency to be penalized by fine or imprisonment or both, General Page pointed out.

Six hundred questionnaires have been mailed to date.

SCREW WORM FLIES NOW MIGRATING TO PLAINS

Screw worm flies are now migrating toward the high plains, and are about three weeks ahead of last year, County Agent Sam T. Logan has been informed. This means that we can expect screw worms in fresh wounds caused from the primary screw worm fly about the last of this month if warm weather continues.

We can also expect a much more severe infestation this year than usual, Logan stated.

With this in mind, ranchmen should strive to complete as much marking and branding as possible within the next week or so, and also if all screw worm cases are promptly treated, infection can be kept to a minimum. This is important, as 90 percent or more of all screw worm cases are initially infected by one kind of fly, the primary screw worm fly in all areas where the fly is established.

Very few wounds are infected in areas where the fly is not present.

These flies are on the way three weeks earlier this year than usual, and this year the damp weather is distinctly to their advantage, Logan stated. Ranchmen should take this warning and be ready for them.

With Uncle Sam's Army

By George Wood

We made our second field trip last week. Tuesday morning, we were up at the usual time and were ordered to have our equipment ready to load at 7:30...

Someone found an old innertube and while waiting we made some "snigger-shooters." We decided that if we ran into some of the troops we were fighting it would be a good place to win a battle.

About the middle of the afternoon it began raining. It got cold, we built a fire by our radio and tried to keep warm. Somehow, it seems that the smoke always moves around and gets in your eyes.

When I went to bed I spread my raincoat out on the ground and the blankets on top of it. I got in with all my clothes on and finally dozed off when the wind changed and it started raining on me...

WANTED MORE TOMATOES

There will be a greater demand for tomatoes this year than ever before. England alone, wants 15 million cases. The capacity of the local canning plant will be increased if the acreage and yield in this territory justify it.

You still have time to increase your acreage, or plant a few acres if you had not previously planned to do so. I can save you time by furnishing you—

TOMATO PLANTS —at a very reasonable price. I also have plenty of tomato seed. Plants and seed are the best varieties for this area.

Brewer Action Program Now in Twelve States

In twelve states—one fourth of the nation—the new "clean-up or close-up" program of the American brewing industry is now in full swing. The movement is to be gradually extended into other states.

In these twelve states, brewers and beer distributors are engaged in active cooperation with law enforcement officials to assure the maintenance of orderly, lawful conditions wherever beer is sold.

Since the first of the year three new states, Arkansas, Missouri and Georgia, have installed the industry's program of acceptance of the social responsibility of brewing. Lunched as an experiment in Nebraska in 1928, this program proved so successful in eliminating antisocial conditions where they were associated with the sale of beer that it was adopted last year in Alabama, Kansas, Maine, Tennessee, North Carolina, Mississippi, Oklahoma and West Virginia.

At noon lunch is being served to the visitors. Any boys of Muleshoe and surrounding communities who are interested in the CCC are cordially invited to visit the Littlefield camp and converse with officers, who are stationed there on duty at all times.

MOST FOREST LAND IS BADLY MANAGED

"More than 85 per cent of all industrial and other non-farm owned commercial forest land in the United States still lacks any form of forest management looking to continuous production," says Earle H. Clapp, acting chief of the forest service. "Although 137 million acres of this land is partially productive, the growing stock needs to be built up and the forests need to be improved otherwise."

Close to 37 million acres may be called non-producing. Less than 1 1/2 million out of more than 200 million acres are now on a sustained-yield basis, and a good part of that is pretty sketchy.

July 1 Will See New Registration Of Nation's Youths; Million Young Men Attain Age To Enter Army

WASHINGTON — Army and selective service officers were reported last Thursday to have decided on July 1 as the date for registration of approximately 1,000,000 men who have become 21 years old since the first selective service enrollment last October.

The registration will take place at the headquarters of the 6,500 local draft boards now functioning, and authorities said it would be a "fairly simple job" compared with last fall when 16,500,000 men 21 to 25 were signed up for possible military training.

The date for the new registration will be formally fixed in a proclamation by President Roosevelt. Authorities indicated that the date now tentatively agreed upon was chosen to give the new group of prospective military trainees time to learn whether they are apt to be called for service this fall so they can arrange for their school or employment plans accordingly.

In official quarters here it was expected that a large proportion of them would be called for training within a few months after pervision of the Army, flying cadets are sent to an Air Corps primary flying school for 10 weeks additional.

Flying cadets are furnished government transportation from place of enlistment to the flying school. They receive pay at the rate of $75 a month and a ration allowance of $1 a day while undergoing training, in addition to free quarters, uniforms and necessary flying equipment.

Upon successful completion of the course of instruction at an Air Corps training center, a flying cadet receives his "wings" and the rating of pilot. To the extent authorized by congressional appropriations, flying cadet graduates are called to extended active duty with the Regular Army Air Corps in the grade of second lieutenant, Air Reserve, with the same pay and allowances as an officer of similar rank in the Air Corps, Regular Army, approximately $205.50 to $245.50 a month.

Legislation recently enacted by congress affords the Air Corps training center graduate an opportunity to compete for a commission in the Air Corps, Regular Army, to fill such vacancies as exist after the appointment of graduates of the United States Military Academy.
