

Illegal Alien Problem Continuing To Get Worse

By JOHN T. WHEELER
 WASHINGTON (AP) — By the millions they steal across the porous U.S. borders, seeking — and frequently finding — an illicit share of the American dream.

They are the illegal aliens, and they hold at least three million jobs in the United States, says the Immigration and Naturalization Service. That's nearly half as many jobs as there are Americans out of work.

Six Million In U.S. — The INS estimates that at least six million aliens are in the country illegally today, and 50 per cent are working. The estimate of those working is based on arrests — 800,000 last year — and on reports from state and local police.

Others put the figures higher. AFL-CIO officials say publicly that eight million illegal aliens are in the country today. Privately, they put the figure at 12 million, with half or nearly half working.

National unemployment is 7.1 per cent of the work force, or 6.5 million people.

The INS says the number of illegal aliens has increased 20-fold or more in the last decade. And government experts say the aliens send home or take home when they leave several billion dollars annually.

Great Impact — Leonard F. Chapman, head of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, said in a recent speech: "The impact on our balance of payments that results from this outflow of dollars is great. If it could be ended, a major part of the payments deficit . . . could be wiped out."

The income tax losses, and the hidden costs of illegal aliens, run into millions of dollars annually, Chapman adds. These hidden costs include illegal aliens on welfare or benefiting from Medicaid and the children of aliens in public schools.

"I believe it is a national crisis and will certainly grow much worse unless steps are taken almost immediately to check the flood of illegals into this country," Chapman says. He has asked for an increase in the INS staff, now totaling 3,000 men and women. The staff has grown 9 per cent in the past decade while the number of illegal aliens arrested and sent home has gone up 700 per cent since 1965.

Most Mexicans — Most illegal aliens — more than 80 per cent — come from Mexico, the INS says. Many others are from elsewhere in Latin America, where unemployment and poverty are endemic. And some are Greeks, Filipinos, Italians, Chinese.

Atty. Gen. William Saxbe, whose Justice Department includes the INS, says that "under present circumstances, because of personnel shortages, the service (INS) can handle only a small percentage of the illegal immigrants. What remains is overwhelming."

The latest legislative effort to make it a crime to hire illegal aliens died in the Senate last month. A bill, introduced by Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., would have imposed fines on employers convicted of hiring illegal aliens. The AFL-CIO supported the bill, but farm groups were opposed. They wanted an amendment that would have permitted the employment of large numbers of Mexican workers in American agriculture. Farming, once the principal employer of aliens, now absorbs only one-third of them. About 40 per cent work in industry and 30 per cent in service jobs, the INS says. A spokesman explains that illegal aliens are doctors, nurses, engineers "and almost any job classification you can come up with." Some illegal aliens are engaged in crime, authorities say, especially drug trafficking from Latin America and the Far East. Others are victimized, because of their status, by landlords, lawyers, creditors and others. Some pay $400 or more to enter the country illegally and to obtain work. Those seeking to curb the influx of illegal aliens hope that the Rodino bill, which must be reintroduced in the new session of Congress, will fare better in 1975 because of the high U.S. unemployment. Saxbe, however, doubts that Congress will pass legislation curbing the influx of illegal aliens. "On the basis of the past track record," he says, "I am not certain this will be the case."

Muscatine, Iowa: 'Workin'est Town' In United States

By TIMOTHY HARPER
MUSCATINE, Iowa (AP) — Marsha Keene takes 19 classes at Muscatine Community College and works full-time at a local restaurant, but her heavy schedule is not unusual. "Everybody around here works," she shrugs. "This is the workin'est town I've ever seen."

Indeed, Muscatine might be the workin'est town in the United States.

It's a pocket of prosperity in a recession economy. While the national unemployment rate jumps to 7.1 per cent and the cost of living rises 10 to 12 per cent annually, Muscatine slides along snugly with steady economic growth and an unemployment rate of .6 per cent.

The town's businessmen complain of a labor shortage.

But life wasn't always jingling cash registers and expansion blueprints in this Mississippi River community of 23,000.

In 1955, between national recessions at either end of the decade, Muscatine's 14 per cent unemployment was one of the highest in the country.

The town started as a center for German and Irish farmers who settled in the area in the 1800s. But by 1900, Muscatine had become "The Pearl Button Capital of the World."

It was a self-sufficient community. Surrounding farms fed the population, and wealth came from the manufacture of 300 brands of buttons from delicate shells gathered along the Mississippi.

Downtown Muscatine became a patchwork of stores and small factories in the shadow of giant grain silos a stone's throw from railroad yards along the river.

Pearl buttons, however, gave way to plastic in the 1950s and the town's economy floundered. In desperation, the business community formed a development corporation in 1955. It was one of the first in the nation.

"We had to do something, and we knew it," says Harold Ogilvie, a founder of the non-profit Muscatine Development Corp.

Within a year, 250 acres of marginal farmland had been purchased, rezoned and fitted with utilities. Nine companies with 3,000 jobs eventually settled in the industrial park, and 47 other small companies also came to Muscatine. The development corporation lured some.

Others were caught up in the general trend of industries to move from urban centers to small towns. It's only 45 minutes by car to the Iowa-Illinois "Quad Cities" of Bettendorf, Davenport, Rock Island and Moline.

Partly by chance and partly because of reluctance to again become dependent on one industry, Muscatine's 56 industries today range from tire retreading and pigskin tanning to food processing and vitamin making.

The two biggest are Bandag, Inc., which employs 600 retread tires, and Heinz USA, with 800 employees processing food.

"Things are in such good shape here because of the diversified economic base," says Cloyd Rudolph, head of the local branch of the Iowa Employment Security Commission.

"There is no major dominant industry that the entire local economy depends on."

Rudolph expects the city to feel some recession pressure later this year but predicts unemployment will still not rise above 3 per cent.

"The kind of industry Muscatine has, with much of it tied in with agriculture and food, means we still won't feel the recession very much," Rudolph says.

At least part of Muscatine's good fortune is attributable to its location. Iowa's unemployment rate is 2.2 per cent, lowest of any state. Gov. Robert D. Ray says the low unemployment is because of Iowa's balance of agriculture and industry.

But at least some of this town's prosperity seems due to the foresight of its businessmen 20 years ago. No other town or city in the area has so low an unemployment rate; and in La Crosse, Wis., another Mississippi River community 200 miles to the north, unemployment is 10 per cent.

Mayor Ronald Hansen points out that while the national economy was choking during the last few weeks of 1974, he was welcoming 12 new businesses to town and cutting ribbons for four new retail stores. Larry Froschheuser, executive vice president of the Muscatine Chamber of Commerce, glows with enthusiasm as he runs through a list of proposed expansions of existing Muscatine industries and the possible relocation here of several others.

But Froschheuser and Ogilvie are careful in screening the companies they encourage to move to Muscatine in order to maintain the area's balance of diversified industry. They recently discouraged a General Motors' scout considering Muscatine for the site of a plant several times larger than any of the city's existing industries.

Ogilvie says the main push of the Chamber of Commerce and the development corporation has been toward industries employing fewer than 1,000 workers.

Industrial employees in Muscatine average $200 weekly and the average salary for all of the town's 18,000 employees is $145 a week. Froschheuser adds that more than half the people moving here to take jobs — usually at the supervisory or executive level — earn upwards of $12,000 annually.

Why then don't more people move here to work?

The reason involves Muscatine's most serious problem: a housing shortage. Froschheuser says he probably spends as much time with out-of-town builders as he does with industrial scouts looking over possible plant sites.

"We added 250 jobs in a year in Muscatine, but we're not adding the housing," says Mayor Hansen. "If we could solve the housing problem we'd have it made."

Froschheuser blames the housing shortage on tight mortgage money and the large down payments demanded by the town's two banks. And few people born here migrate. Families go on living in the same home for decades.

"It's not a pretty town," admits Froschheuser, a transplant himself from Cheyenne, Wyo., 18 months ago. "Downtown looks like a giant parking lot with railroad tracks. It's an eyesore."

He is quick, however, to tick off $26 million in public improvements currently under way, ranging from a new school to a sewage treatment plant.

Froschheuser says many of the companies whose large silos, smokestacks, trucks and railroad tracks give the city its grimy visage are cooperating in a cleanup and facelift.

Today In History

Today is Sunday, Jan. 26, the 26th day of 1975. There are 339 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: In 1942, the first American expeditionary force arrived in Europe during World War II. The troops were put ashore in Northern Ireland.

On this date — In 1788, Sydney, Australia, was founded as a British penal colony.

In 1827, the South American country of Peru seceded from Colombia.

In 1861, Louisiana withdrew from the Union.

In 1880, Douglas MacArthur was born in Little Rock, Ark.

In 1952, the famous Shephard's Hotel in Cairo was burned by mobs demanding that the British withdraw from the Suez.

Ten years ago: Former Vice President Richard Nixon said American security required ending the war in Vietnam to prevent a Communist takeover of all Southeast Asia.

Five years ago: President Nixon vetoed a bill providing $20 billion for health, education and anti-poverty programs, saying it was inflationary.

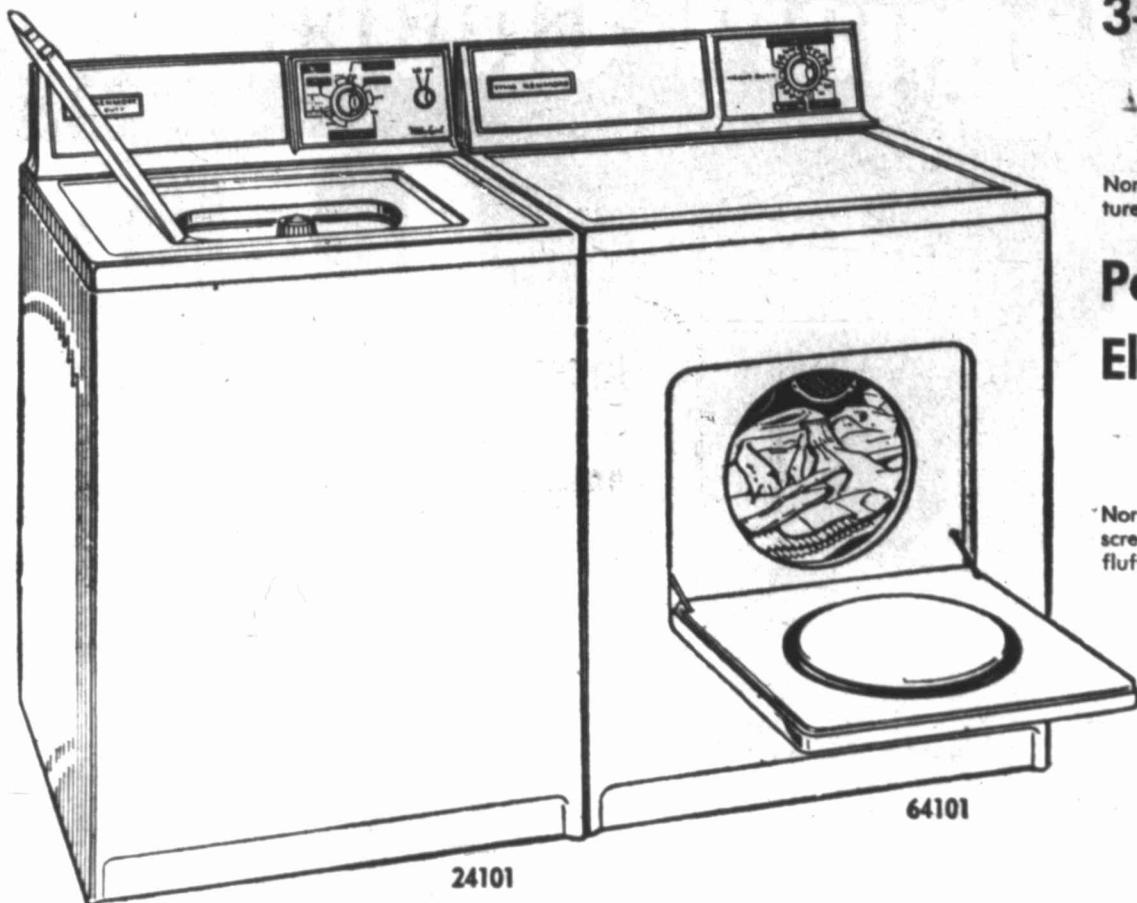

One year ago: A Bulgarian trawler was seized by the U.S. Coast Guard off the New Jersey shore for fishing illegally inside the 12-mile coastal limit.

Today's birthdays: Entertainer Eartha Kitt is 47. Black activist Angela Davis is 31. Thought for today: A prophet is not without honor, save in his own country, and in his own house. — The Bible.

Passport Pointers

By GENE BURKE
Los Angeles Passport Office
Distributed By Copley News Service

Why does the U.S. government require that a person have a passport in order to leave the country? And why is it necessary to show complete travel plans on a passport application? I object to this since it appears to be undue invasion by the government of personal privacy which is a right assured by the Constitution.

C. E. McA.

Dear C. E. McA.:

A passport is required by most countries for international travel and is also required for your reentry into the United States when traveling to a country requiring a passport of a U.S. citizen. No applicant for a U.S. passport is required to show complete travel plans but must have a bona fide intent to travel. Such information is requested on the application form to enable the passport office to furnish the traveler additional data regarding conditions or provisions applicable to specific areas. It is also helpful to our statistical division in providing data to the travel industry in projecting their plans. A passport is not denied an applicant purely because travel plans were incomplete.

Dear Miss Burke:

Why is the date of birth required on a passport? It has nothing to do with a person's identity and I feel very upset about having to show my real age. I have been married 36 years and my husband has never known my true age. I am 11 years older and it is humiliating to have to tell him this after all these years. My driver's license shows the date I have always used since my marriage. Can I request that an exception be made to show this date in my passport?

Mrs. F.J.S.

Dear Mrs. F.J.S.:

Date of the bearer's birth is a part of a person's identity and is included in the international criteria agreed upon by all countries. The date of birth shown on the evidence of your citizenship (certified birth certificate is your best evidence if born in the United States) will be the date written in your passport. While your driver's license will serve as identification, it will not serve as evidence of your citizenship.

Questions may be submitted to Miss Burke, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper.

Bad Years Leave Mark On Bucher

By DAN TEDRICK
POWAY, Calif. (AP) — The POWAY, Calif. (AP) — Lloyd M. Bucher wants it to be funny, the story of a torpedoman second class at work and play. A young submariner and his buddies locked up in the deep, finding humanity and humor in their daily routine . . .

That's the way it was for Bucher during many of his 28 years in the Navy. They were years spent on destroyers and submarines, and Bucher remembers "the good times, the laughter, the fun we had."

The bad years started on Jan. 28, 1968, the day the North Korean Navy captured Cmdr. Bucher's ship, the U.S.S. Pueblo, an old coastal freighter used by the Navy to gather intelligence.

Living Quietly
Bucher is 47 now, retired from the Navy, living quietly with his wife, lecturing to college students, writing. But the Pueblo controversy continues. Should Bucher have surrendered the spy ship without firing a shot? Did the Navy let him down?

Bucher and 82 officers and crewmen were held by the North Koreans for 11 months, and Bucher was tortured by his captors, finally signing a false confession to spying inside Korean waters.

After the men were released, a court of inquiry recommended that Bucher be court-martialed for surrendering the ship without firing a shot — the first such surrender in peacetime for the Navy — and for failing to destroy all secret documents and equipment before capture.

Court-martial Vetoed
The Navy vetoed a court-martial, saying Bucher had suffered enough. But Bucher believes today that the Navy made him a scapegoat to hide its own failures in the Pueblo incident; among them its failure to answer Bucher's radio appeals for help when the North Korean gunboats attacked. Bucher says in an interview: "There is no way they were going to court-martial me. It would have brought out so many people who were implicated because of their involvement and responsibility."

In retirement, "Pete" Bucher occasionally suffers headaches and other physical discomforts — reminders of prison camp.

Crewmembers Visit
Christmas cards and good wishes come from about half of the Pueblo men each year. A few drop by the comfortable home hidden from a winding foothill road by boulders. Pete and Rose Bucher paid almost $55,000 for the secluded house of 1 1/2 acres, wooded with orange and avocado trees.

His book, "My Story," produced more than $90,000 for Bucher. Still, he wonders why things turned out as they did for the Pocatiello youth bounced between orphanages in Idaho and California before seeing the movie "Boys Town," and petitioning Father Edward Joseph Flanagan to let him in as an 11-year-old.

He became football captain and a state champion runner before graduating in 1945 and joining the Navy. His two-year enlistment up, he studied geology at the University of Nebraska, working full-time and helped by the GI bill. He earned a public school teacher's certificate before the Navy called him back for the Korean war.

Bucher is thinking of applying to teach at a high school or nearby Palomar College where his 20-year-old son Mike is a freshman. His other son, Mark, 22, is wildcating for oil near Red Lodge, Mont.

At least twice a month, Bucher and some friends play golf, each time at a different course. Bucher's handicap is a 28.

Once a month, he drives eight miles to Miramar Naval Air Station for beer and poker at the officers' club or bachelor officers' quarters.

He and Rose drive to San Diego, 20 miles away, at least once monthly for seafood at the wharf. But they belong to no clubs since Bucher says he "never joined a thing" except the Navy.

Gives 20 Lectures
A speakers bureau signed Bucher on last summer. Since September he has lectured to 20 audiences, at colleges and conventions. He earns $400 each time to speak for an hour or two from notes, generally about the virtues of America.

"I don't preach and say why we're a great people, but I do give examples, usually out of the newspaper."

The other day after Atty. Gen. (William) Saxbe called attention to so many illegal aliens in this country, I told an audience that these people come here because America is still an aspiration for so many.

"I'm a positive man, an optimist. I may speak mostly in generalities, but at times I talk about places I've been in the world and compare that to what we've got."

The pains that come and go remind him of 1968, but the fetching, almost impish grin of his happy days at sea is back. Pete Bucher says he's starting to enjoy life.

Tourists Find Its A Small World

ROBINSON, Ill. (AP) — Last November, Mrs. Keith Price of Robinson was with a tour group on a bus en route to Delphi, Greece.

Mrs. Price had told a lady with whom she was talking that she was from Robinson, a southeastern Illinois community of about 8,000 population. A man in the seat behind Mrs. Price overheard the conversation.

"Did I hear 'Robinson, Illinois?'" said the man. "That's my home town. I am Jack Kaley."

Kaley now resides in Decatur, Ill., where he is pastor of a Methodist church. He was with movie "Boys Town," and petitioning Father Edward Joseph Flanagan to let him in as an 11-year-old.

He became football captain and a state champion runner before graduating in 1945 and

By 1918 some 80,000 tractors were traveling over 45,000 miles of track in the United States.

Ford Oil Tariff, Economic Plan Rapped By Democrat Hopefuls

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — President Ford's oil tariff and economic policies were attacked as "anti-people" and "economic genocide" Saturday by a parade of prospective Democratic candidates for President.

Five presidential hopefuls appeared, one after another, before 1,500 delegates and guests at the state convention of the California Democratic party.

Former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris won the only standing ovation from convention delegates with a brief, aggressive "new populist" speech ripping at Ford's policies.

Arizona Rep. Morris Udall, who has the public support of numerous liberal California Democratic leaders, also received an enthusiastic response.

But there was only polite applause for three other prospective candidates with more conservative reputations: Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter and Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp.

Shapp delivered the sharpest attack on Ford, but few delegates appeared to be listening as the Pennsylvania governor read a 25-minute speech in the noisy convention hall.

Harris, who billed himself as "a fulltime guerilla-style candidate for President" with no paid staff or hospitality suite with free drinks, was the only presidential hopeful to catch full attention of the convention in the day-long session of non-stop speeches by state and national Democratic figures.

Udall said Ford "is a solid and decent man, but a man of narrow vision." He said Ford's economic policies are a throwback to President Herbert Hoover's philosophy which won't work.

Bentsen called for Democratic party unity and then criticized Ford's economic policies.

"For a man who was a star football player, President Ford has shown a strange reluctance to tackle our problems, or call the signals, or run with the ball," Bentsen said.

Carter criticized the Army Corps of Engineers, called for removal of the U.S. attorney general from politics, attacked "uncontrolled military spending" and said Ford's $3 oil tariff is wrong because it is inflationary.

Soviet Foreign Minister Will Visit Egypt Feb. 3

By The Associated Press — Egypt's foreign ministry announced Saturday that Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko will visit Cairo on Feb. 3 as part of continuing consultations between the two countries.

Arab guerrillas hurled a grenade at Israeli soldiers in the occupied Gaza Strip, missing the troops but setting their jeep ablaze. The soldiers returned fire, accidentally wounding an Arab boy and girl, the military command said. The children were reported in fair condition.

The incident, which occurred outside the A-Shatti Palestinian refugee camp, was the worst in Gaza since October 1973 when guerrillas threw a grenade at an Israeli policeman and killed him.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy, in a statement to the official Middle East News Agency, also said President Anwar Sadat had received messages from Soviet party chief Leonid Brezhnev and from President Ford. But he did not say what was in the messages.

'Plan O' Not Popular With Students

(Continued From Page 1A) effectively use the available time, the need to offer some of the basic or required courses on Campus B. Likewise, some electives would be scheduled on Campus A.

The school day would be organized in half-day blocks so that students and staff scheduled on both campuses will have travel time at mid-day.

One principal would be assigned for the entire school, with one academic dean and one dean of students on each campus, according to the initial Plan O report. The counseling staff would be divided proportionately on each campus.

In the realm of athletics, the plan calls for one varsity football team with five coaches, a junior varsity with three coaches and two sophomore teams of three coaches each. Basketball would be similarly structured, and other sports would remain as they are now but with just one varsity.

While a consolidation plan would require approval from the University Interscholastic League, school district officials anticipate acceptance.

Team Teaching

Band students would be taught by the head band director and three associate directors. "A" and "B" marching bands would be organized, with junior and seniors comprising the 4A concert band and sophomores comprising the 4A second band.

Choral students would be divided into the 4A concert choir, for junior and senior students, and 4A second choirs, for sophomore students. Two choir directors would be required, with one designated as department chairman.

Some minor remodeling on both campuses would be necessary in order to implement Plan O.

Ryan has claimed that Bell maintained a political slush fund.

Monk said the SEC wanted to know his history with the phone company from the first rate increase after World War II at Tyler.

SEC representative Hiller declined to give the scope of the SEC probe would not say whether other executives would be questioned.

Monk said Bell executives falsified expense vouchers to disguise money spent entertaining councilmen and used Bell's purchasing power to influence their decisions.

Monk said: "I know one of the city councilmen at Tyler was a florist and I bought so dad-gummed many flowers and things from him... and he was a good, personal friend of mine and everything else, if you follow me."

The former executive said he would testify under oath in court if asked.

Former Southwestern Bell Executive Tells SEC Company Distorted Data

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A former Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. executive has told Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) investigators that the company distorted data and used its financial resources to obtain rate increases in Texas.

Jim Monk, now of Los Angeles, Calif., outlined his testimony to the SEC investigators during a telephone interview last week. Monk said SEC representative Bill Miller remained in the room with him during the interview.

Guinea Pig

Monk told The Associated Press he helped devise the system for winning the approval of rate increases at Tyler which was the "guinea pig" case for the Bell system nationwide.

He said he told the SEC that Southwestern Bell distorted figures used in rate setting cases by raising the rate base to reflect lower earnings.

Monk said figuring data as Bell did, "increased the rate base to such a point that it shows your earnings have dropped to a low level when in reality they haven't."

Monk added that Bell purchased from businesses and persons who could be influential in getting the rate increase requests approved by the city. Texas does not have a state utility regulation agency.

Monk said he was forced by Bell to resign in 1967 without severance pay or pension. He said that Bell gave no reason for his dismissal.

The ousted executive said he was questioned by SEC investigators for more than five hours apparently about allegations which came up in a $29.2 million libel and defamation suit against Bell filed by James H. Ashley and the family of the late T. O. Gravitt. Gravitt was Bell's manager for Texas when he committed suicide at his Dallas home in October. Ashley was dismissed by Bell during what the company described as an internal probe that included Gravitt's area of responsibility.

Monk is at least the second former Bell executive to be questioned by the SEC. John J. Ryan, former Southern Bell vice president in Charlotte, N.C., said he talked to SEC investigators in Fort Worth last week.

Ryan has claimed that Bell maintained a political slush fund.

Monk said the SEC wanted to know his history with the phone company from the first rate increase after World War II at Tyler.

SEC representative Hiller declined to give the scope of the SEC probe would not say whether other executives would be questioned.

Monk said Bell executives falsified expense vouchers to disguise money spent entertaining councilmen and used Bell's purchasing power to influence their decisions.

Monk said: "I know one of the city councilmen at Tyler was a florist and I bought so dad-gummed many flowers and things from him... and he was a good, personal friend of mine and everything else, if you follow me."

The former executive said he would testify under oath in court if asked.

53 Ex-CIA Staffers Working For DEA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fifty-three former CIA employees now work for the Drug Enforcement Administration as agents, analysts and clerks, the DEA has acknowledged.

The two agencies routinely exchange information about international narcotics trafficking, said DEA Administrator John R. Bartels Jr.

But "by mutual consent," the CIA and the drug agency have canceled agreements under which federal drug agents trained CIA agents in narcotics intelligence work, Bartels said.

The DEA intelligence unit and the agency's relationship with the CIA probably will be scrutinized when a Senate committee reviews the government's domestic intelligence operations.

A Senate vote to create the special committee is expected Monday.

Also Monday, CIA Director William E. Colby is scheduled to return for a second round of questioning by the Rockefeller Commission which is investigating the spy agency. He is to be followed by CIA official Richard Ober, who once headed the counter-intelligence unit which Colby has acknowledged kept files on 10,000 American citizens.

The House subcommittee on intelligence also plans to hold hearings on CIA domestic activities, beginning next week.

Gov. Shapp Asks President To Give Agnew Position

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Gov. Milton J. Shapp has asked President Ford to give former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew "an innocuous job" in government.

Shapp, a Democrat, said Republican Agnew should get the job "in the national interest" to keep him from hurting the country by dealing with Arab investors.

In a letter sent to Ford on Friday, Shapp said, "Please find an innocuous job for Spiro Agnew in your administration where he can do less damage to the nation than he apparently is going to do in private business."

He referred to one transaction in which Agnew allegedly raised Saudi Arabian money to buy the Mount Victory Coal Co. in Kentucky.

New York Bomb Explosion Kills Four, Injures 42

NEW YORK (AP) — The explosion of a powerful fragmentation bomb that set a Wall Street skyscraper quivering and damaged historic Fraunces Tavern killed four persons and injured at least 42 others.

A Puerto Rican nationalist group that has been linked with other terrorism here claimed responsibility for the blast that roared through the ossuary of the crowded financial district.

The bomb had been planted in the Anglers and Taryon Club adjacent to the tavern. The dead, including one man who was decapitated, apparently were lunchtime patrons at the club.

Built in 1719, Fraunces Tavern was the scene on Dec. 4, 1783, of George Washington's tearful farewell to the officers who served under him in the Revolutionary War. It is about 400 yards from the New York Stock Exchange.

The blast Friday afternoon sent glass shards flying into the street. Diners in the 60th floor cafeteria of the nearby Chase Manhattan Bank building said the structure shook.

"People were writing on the sidewalk—we didn't know if they had been blown out of the building or were passersby," said Fire Lt. Thomas Regan, one of the first rescuers to arrive.

Fireman Charles Anderson described the blast scene as "utter havoc" with "people lying all over the place, many of them mumbering in shock. Some... buried under debris."

Like Earthquake
"It was like an earthquake," said the owner of a nearby grocery.

Fifteen minutes after the explosion, an unidentified telephone caller told The Associated Press it was the work of the FALN, a band of nationalist Puerto Rican terrorists. FALN stands for Fuerzas Armadas de Liberacion Nacional Puertorriquena (Armed Forces of the Puerto Rican Nation).

The group has claimed responsibility for other bomb explosions in the metropolitan area, but previous blasts caused no fatalities.

Later police recovered a note in which the FALN claimed the latest bombing was in retaliation for the "CIA ordered" murder of two young Puerto Ricans.

Two Die
Authorities in Puerto Rico said a bomb went off Jan. 11 in a Maysaque restaurant, killing two men and wounding 11 persons. The restaurant was in walking distance of the site of a Puerto Rican Socialist party rally scheduled for later that evening.

Doctors said nails and other pieces of metal were found in the bodies of those who died in Friday's blast as well as in some of the injured.

Victims Identified
One of the four dead, James Georck, 32, of Wilmington, Del., died on an operating table at Beekman-Downtown Hospital Friday night.

The others killed were identified by police as Frank T. Conner, 30, of Fair Lawn, N.J.; Harold Sherbourne, 66, of Pine Orchard, Conn.; and Alejandro Berger of Philadelphia.

Mayor Abraham D. Beame rushed to explosion scene from nearby City Hall and denounced the bombing as "a senseless act of terror which defies all reason and decency."

"It was a hell of a way to spend Friday afternoon," said Richard Ross, 59, who was dining at the Anglers Club but escaped injury. "I'm afraid the fellow next to me was killed."

Kissinger Visits With Nixon

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and former President Richard M. Nixon have met for the first time since Nixon left office in August.

Kissinger was expected to stay in Palm Springs, Calif., until his return to Washington, scheduled today.

In his 40-minute speech to the World Affairs Council, Kissinger said congressional involvement in foreign policy could cause world leaders to misjudge American intentions. He said misinterpretation could lead foreign governments "into irresponsibility."

The growing tendency of Congress to deal in detail with the day-to-day or week-to-week conduct of foreign affairs raises grave issues, Kissinger told an overflow crowd of 1,200 at the Century Plaza Hotel.

He said Congress is "not well suited to the detailed supervision of the day-to-day conduct of diplomacy."

Kissinger blamed the recent collapse of the U.S.-Soviet trade agreement on criticism within Congress of Russia's policies on Jewish emigration.

"To single out individual countries for special legislative attention has unintended but inevitable consequences and risks unraveling the entire fabric of our foreign policy," Kissinger said.

The secretary said a new spirit of nonpartisan foreign policy was "a national necessity."

He acknowledged that Congress has a right to participate in the formulation of foreign policy. And he said he realizes that some congressional actions "represent the particular views of constituencies."

But he said the administration's view is that except for certain occasions, the American national interest must be served above anything else.

The old adage "if you don't like West Texas weather just wait a minute it's bound to change" was certainly true last week. Midland County had quite a variety of high winds and sand early in the week to light rain at the end. Although it was chilly the temperature never dropped extremely low.

Middlemen's Costs Rise Blamed For Food Price Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soaring middleman costs accounted for more than four-fifths of last year's retail grocery price increase, according to Agriculture Department figures.

A market basket of food items cost consumers an average of $33.65 a week in 1974, an increase of $4.09 a week from 1973. But farmers got only 63 cents of the weekly increase while middlemen took a $3.46 bite, the figures showed Friday.

Department officials said that in all the average cost of a 1974 food market basket was $1,750 for the full 12 months. That was an increase of $213 from 1973. The middleman's share of the increase was $180 while farmers accounted for $33 during the year.

The $1,750 cost for the full year's market basket included $1,016 for the middlemen who transport, process and sell food, a 21.5 per cent larger share than in 1973. The farm portion, meanwhile, was $734 last year, an increase of 4.7 per cent from all of 1973.

High food prices and the prospect they will remain so continues to encourage the growing of home vegetable gardens. Green offers the following suggestions for preparing the soil in a vegetable garden. Most of our West Texas soils need organic matter, nitrogen and iron. To fill the need, mix 1 pound of powdered sulfur, 1 pound of iron sulfate (copperas), and 50 gallons of manure, apply to each 100 square feet of area, and spade or rototill in.

The manure is equivalent to a layer two inches deep. Dairy or horse manure is best (rather than feedlot manure). Peat moss or cottonseed hulls may be substituted for the manure if two pints per 100 square feet.

Solons To Attend Farm Bureau Meeting

Ausint Bureau
AUSTIN — Five state legislators will take part in the Texas Farm Bureau's legislative conference Monday and Tuesday at the Driskill Hotel here.

The speakers and their topics include: Sen. Tom Creighton, Mineral Wells, "Land Use Planning;" Rep. Bill Sullivan, Gainesville, "Financing Public Education;" Sen. Bill Patman, Ganada, "Water Rights and Regulations;" Sen. Max Sherman, Amarillo, "Is Zero Pollution Possible?;" and Rep. Joe Hubenak, Rosenberg, "Animal Health Problems."

Bureau president Carroll Chaloupka of Dalhart says he will open the conference with

Court Overturns IBM Judgment

DENVER (AP) — A federal appeals court has cleared IBM of antitrust law violations and overturned a $259.5 million judgment against the nation's largest computer maker won by a competitor, Telex.

A panel of three judges of the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said the lower court ruling failed to show IBM's actions were "predatory and contrary to the Sherman Antitrust Act."

The court agreed with the lower court that Telex had stolen IBM's computer trade secrets and ordered Telex to pay IBM $18.5 million in damages.

In Tulsa, Okla., Stephen J. Jastras, president of Telex, said the ruling probably will be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Texas "number one in third sector composed of separate formulas for farm and agricultural production in the United States."

To maintain the state's high position in agriculture, Briscoe proposed the creation of a Texas Council on Agriculture to coordinate the "actions necessary to solve our agricultural problems."

The council outlined by Briscoe would include representatives from state government, the federal government and a farmers, ranchers and consumers.

Meanwhile, Sullivan has introduced a constitutional amendment on the subject of tax appraisals for land used for agricultural purposes.

Sullivan's amendment would strike the existing constitutional requirements for a producer to have his property taxed at the lower rate. The proposal would have the legislature establish at least two cents.

Also introduced is legislation by Rep. Don Kubiak of Rockdale which would require registered pesticides sold in Texas to be in returnable containers. The legislation also makes it unlawful to manufacture an unregistered pesticide in Texas.

Under Kubiak's bill, every returnable pesticide container would have a refund value of

Don't Wait, IRS Advises

Midland area residents should consider filing their 1974 income tax returns as soon as possible if they have not already done so, says Gene McCleskey, director's representative of the Internal Revenue Service for the Midland area.

"One basic fact you can always depend on," said McCleskey, "is that the sooner you file your return, the sooner you'll receive a refund if you are due one."

Clajon Production Corp. Purchases Gulf Building

Clayton W. Williams Jr., president of Clajon Production Corp. of Midland and Fort Stockton, has purchased the Gulf Building here.

Clajon offices, now located in the Gibbs Tower West, will be moved to the Gulf Building, 306 W. Wall St., during the summer. Williams said the 15-story Gulf Building was purchased from the Crosley Building Co. of Rhode Island. He said the acquisition of the facility was made as of a "financial investment" and would aid in the expansion of Clajon's Midland gas exploration, sales and supply office.

Williams said he does not expect any of the present tenants, including Gulf Oil Co., to relocate from their present quarters in the building. The oilman said, "We have made a long term commitment to Midland," with the purchase of the building.

Never Underestimate A Seven's Power

About 30 years ago experts had an easy time against average players. If the experts just sat still, average opponents would stop at part score when they could easily make game and would bid slam when their cards were barely good enough for game.

The rise of the point count ended that era; even average opponents now know when to stop at part score, when to bid game and when to consider a slam. The expert must be even more accurate if he is to live up to his reputation.

Intermediate Values
One of the advantages of the expert today is that he knows the value of intermediate cards. These are usually defined as tens and nines, but even eights and sevens are better than treys and deuces—and the expert knows it. The expert doesn't count any specific number of points for his intermediate cards. He just bids a borderline hand optimistically when he has high spotcards and bids the same sort of hand pessimistically without such intermediate values.

Opening lead—♣ J

In today's hand, for example, North virtually bid six spades after hearing his partner's opening bid of one spade. North went through the motions of exploring, but he found out nothing in the process. Perhaps North bid the hand aggressively because he had the seven of diamonds rather than the six. If you don't see the difference, try playing the hand at six spades.

The average player might bid the North hand just as optimistically, but he might miss the importance of dummy's seven of diamonds. If so, he might go down. The average player would win the first trick, draw two rounds of trumps and try a finesse with dummy's jack of diamonds. East would win with the queen of diamonds and would return a club.

South would next cash the top diamonds in the hope of capturing all of the missing diamonds. Upon discovering that dummy's last diamond does not become established, declarer gets to his hand to try the heart finesse. That loses and our average hero is down one.

The expert would notice the seven of diamonds in the dummy as soon as North puts the cards on the table; and our expert hero would now that his slam was safe against any defense and any distribution (as long as the first trick is not ruffed). Declarer takes the king of clubs, draws two rounds of trumps, cashes the ace of clubs and leads a diamond toward dummy.

Seven Forces East
If West happened to play a low diamond, declarer would play dummy's seven, thus forcing East to win the trick. If East then returned a heart or a diamond, dummy would get a free finesse; if East returned a club, dummy would ruff and South would get rid of his losing heart.

In the actual hand, West would play the nine of diamonds, and declarer is unable to use dummy's seven of diamonds as planned. He wins in dummy with the king of diamonds, returns to his hand with a trump and leads another diamond. If West happened to play low (or if West discarded), declarer would play the seven of diamonds from dummy in accordance with his original plan.

In the actual hand, however, West must play the ten of diamonds. Now declarer tries a finesse with dummy's jack—safe at the slam whether the finesse wins or loses.

Seven Guarantees Slam
East can win with the queen of diamonds, but cannot safely return a diamond because he has the 8-6 and dummy has the A-7. East would be able to get out safely with a diamond if he had the 8-7 and dummy had the A-6. That seven of diamonds in the dummy guarantees the slam.

South could make the slam in other ways if he could guess which opponent held the king of hearts, but he doesn't have to guess as long as dummy has good enough spotcards in diamonds.

Never underestimate the power of a seven.

Girl Scouts Conducting Annual Sale Of Cookies

The annual Girl Scout cookie sale is being conducted by third grade Brownies of some troops, and Junior, Cadette and Senior Girl Scout Troops.

The Scouts began taking orders for the cookies Friday and will continue to do so through Feb. 2. The cookies will be delivered Feb. 29-March 8.

Five types of cookies will be available, including Assorted Sandwich (chocolate and vanilla sandwiches with creamy fillings), Mint (chocolate covered with mint flavor), Butter Flavored Shorties (baked in the shape of the Scout Trefol emblem), Peanut Butter Sandwich (peanut butter filling between crunchy oatmeal base cookies) and Chocolate Chip 'N Nut (crunchy cashew and chocolate chip).

Maintain Camps

Proceeds from the sale provide necessary funds to develop and maintain Girl Scout camps at Mire Peak near Alpine, Hat-A-Ranch near Bakersfield and the day camps held by the communities in the Permian Basin for Brownies and Girl Scouts. The money is used to purchase equipment and maintain the camps, and also provides camperships for the girls. Also, the girls earn 15 cents per box they sell for their own troop treasury to help pay for craft materials, campout expenses and other troop activities.

A girl can earn a Cookie Patch by selling 40 or more boxes of cookies. They also can earn the following campership certificates to help defray expenses for a Girl Scout earning a campership: 60 boxes, $4; 80 boxes, $6.50; 100 boxes, $12.50; 150 boxes, $25; 200 boxes, $37.50.

250 boxes, $50, and 300 boxes, $65.

The Girl Scouts also benefit from the sale by learning to meet the public, carry out responsibilities and handle money, plus earning their way to camp.

If persons wishing cookies are not contacted by a Scout, dial the Girl Scout Midland Service Center, 684-6222, or Mrs. Dale Gorsuch, Midland cookie sale chairman, at 563-2418.

Looking around for a different way to use those Girl Scout cookies when you get them?

Try the recipe given below. It is a simple one using the Butter Flavored Shorties combined with dates, marshmallows and nuts and topped with whipped cream. How rich, but scrumptious, it is!

A good idea is to stock up and be prepared when your family takes a liking to this change in their dessert course.

Date and Nut Roll

1 doz. Butter Flavored Shorties, broken, but not too fine.

¾ cup chopped dates

14 marshmallows (large and cup cut up)

1 cup chopped nuts

¾ cup whipped cream

Combine ingredients, saving ½ cup crumbs. Mix well and roll with ½ cup crumbs on outside. Wrap in waxed paper and refrigerate for 3 to 4 hours.

Cut in slices and serve with whipped cream. Makes 8 servings.

Freeze Until Needed

Store orange and lemon rinds in a plastic bag and freeze until needed. They are much easier to grate than when fresh.

ANNUAL COOKIE SALE—Proceeds from the annual sale of Girl Scout cookies in Midland are used, in part, to develop and maintain Girl Scout camps in the area. Promoting the current sale are, from the left, front, Cynthia Mancha of Troop 189, Hope Williams of Troop 285 and Naomi Sanchez of Troop 268, and, back, Cindy Williams of Troop 301; Trisla Slater of Troop 185 and Renee Branson of Troop 144.

Microwave Oven Saves Energy, Time In Kitchen

By ELAINE SMYHE
Copley News Service

There's that shiny new microwave perched promisingly on your kitchen counter. Now what do you do with it?

Acquiring a new microwave oven is a little like having that first baby—it's a wondrous thing, but you just aren't sure how to handle it.

Get acquainted with the new item, advises Mrs. Mary Means, consumer affairs counselor for the San Diego (Calif.) Gas and Electric Co.

In the case of the microwave oven, she says, don't start out with big projects such as cooking a turkey.

Why buy one to begin with? "Microwave ovens can save 20 to 60 per cent of energy used in cooking and 50 per cent or more of cooking time than in conventional cooking," adds Mrs. Means, who also is chairman of the Consumer Affairs Committee of the Bureau of Home Appliances.

Depends On Family
The advantages of microwave cooking over conventional cooking depend on the size of the family, says Mrs. Means.

For the homemaker with a large family "microwave ovens

Wrap Prisms
When cleaning chandelier-like fixtures, wrap prisms in nylon net and wash them in the utensil basket of the dishwasher.

can be a real savings because, with family members having different eating schedules, with the microwave you can reheat foods quickly and without any loss of moisture. For the large family, this is really the biggest selling point," she says.

"And for the average or small family, microwave cooking has a tremendous advantage because of the speed, the reheating feature and the thawing feature.

Make Difference
"These kinds of things really make a difference for the average-size family."

Below is a recipe that demonstrates microwave cooking and its versatility.

SPARKERS CANTONESE
4 lbs. pork spareribs
1 (12 oz.) jar orange marmalade (1 cup)
One-half cup soy sauce
One-half tsp. garlic powder
Three-fourths cup water
Dash of pepper

Cut ribs in serving-size. Arrange in 12x7.5x2-inch glass baking dish. Cover with wax paper and cook in counter-top microwave oven for 10 minutes.

Drain off juices and rearrange ribs in baking dish. In bowl, combine marmalade, soy sauce, garlic powder, ground ginger, three-fourths cup water and dash of pepper.

Pour mixture over ribs. Cook uncovered in counter-top microwave oven until done, about 30 minutes. Occasionally baste with sauce and rearrange ribs in dish. Garnish with orange slices. Makes four to six servings.

(Note: If recipe is done in conventional gas or electric oven, cooking time would take approximately two to two and a half hours at 325 degrees.)

Storing Poultry
Freshly purchased uncooked poultry needs to be unwrapped for storing in the refrigerator. Take the poultry out of the cardboard tray and wrapping to let the air circulate. Take the giblets out of the package and re-wrap loosely; store separately from the rest of the chicken. Lightly cover the chicken but leave the ends of the package open. Keep no more than two days before using.

You will find that when making or altering dresses for a little girl, it is best to turn up an extra hem before hemming the garment to the correct length. Then when the dresses get too short, you can rip out the top hem and the dress is ready to wear without having to do any more work on it.

Cathy White, New Married In Austin

AUSTIN — Cathy Ann White and Benton Orbilee New were married at 5 p.m. Saturday in the sanctuary of the First United Methodist Church here.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. George Vernon White of 2201 Seaboard St., Midland, and Mr. and Mrs. Chesley Alton New of Lissie.

Wedding music was provided by Charles Barnett, organist. The Rev. Jack D. Heacock officiated for the double ring ceremony.

Mrs. Charles Hejl was the matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Rebecca Gideon and Peggy Barnes of Midland, Beverly Thompson of Bay City and Gail New of Eagle Lake, sister of the bridegroom.

Robert Mathis of Lissie was the best man. The groomsmen were Larry Steisel, Dennis Kovar, Rick Marik and Tim Otto, all of East Bernard. Frank Kaluza and Jerome Kucera, also of East Bernard, were the ushers.

daughter in marriage. She wore a gown of soft candlelight satin organza with Empire lines and full bishop sleeves ending in Alencon lace cuffs edged with a ruffle of Brussels lace. The fitted bodice was fashioned with a yoke of pin-tucked Seta sheer with a high neckline edged with scallops of lace and an overlay of re-embroidered Alencon lace traced with pearls. The flared A-line skirt, enhanced with softly gathered fullness at the back bodice line, dropped to a circular chapel train outlined in scalloped Alencon lace and a ruffle of Brussels embroidery. A profile cap of Alencon lace adorned with pearls held tiers of the imported silk illusion train-length veil. Topping the cap was a cathedral-length mantilla encircled with a scalloped border of the Brussels lace. She carried an Edwardian bouquet of Tropicana and gold roses, lavender statice and stephanotis and an heirloom linen handkerchief which belonged to her maternal grandmother.

Spring Fashion Picture Is Frilly And Feminine

By BARBARA HERRERA
Copley News Service

Think spring—spring fashion, that is.

It's a good way to get the jump on winter doldrums. And it's a good way to get prepared, budgetwise, for the days ahead.

Because when spring arrives, neither inflation, recession, nor sky-high prices will keep women from their appointed rounds of the clothing stores.

One way to reconcile your desire to hold down spending with that irresistible urge to buy some new clothes is to arm yourself here and now with a New Year's fashion resolution:

Resolved: "This year I will buy only those clothes which make a planned contribution to my total wardrobe." (In other words, don't buy on impulse.)

OK, that said, where do you begin?

First, tuck away in the back of your mind some generalities: Fashion this spring is big, loose and soft. It's strictly feminine. Daytime clothes look light, bright and unstructured. That means big tops, loose coats, flyaway dresses and dropped shoulder lines on practically everything. Evening stuff is frilly and romantic.

Year Of Dress

It's the year of the dress. Skirts are the new collectibles. But pants keep marching on. Hemlines, again, droop to mid-knee and below. "Investment buying" is the new catchphrase with designers, who are in competition to present the most well-thought-out, coordinated collection.

It's a particularly nice look for the office.

—The pinafore dress: feminine and bare, it's a pretty look for warm summer days.

—The skirt, wrapped, gored or flared, but never hugging the hips: match it with last season's light sweater set; tuck the inner sweater inside the skirt band, drape a long, matching scarf around the head hood-style, and it's the definitive look of spring 1975.

—Soft, straight-legged pants coordinated with tuck-in T-shirts and short jackets: they're looking best in the bright, lollipop colors.

—The long, cotton dress: a more casual look, it's a natural choice for informal evenings.

—The shoe minus clunky sole equals a fashion plus: two-and-a-half-inch heels are making a comeback, but so is the flat ballet slipper.

Which brings us to prices. They're up. Clothes will cost 5 to 6 per cent more this spring than they did in fall 1974, according to industry sources. Fall prices were up 5 to 6 per cent over fall of 1973.

Avoid Fads

Considering those prices, smart shoppers this year will avoid fads and extremes (skirts too short or too long) and will hit the stores knowing exactly what they want.

Here then is a checklist of some of the more likely buys to choose from:

—The chemise: stylish for daytime wear, it's the loose, unbelted dress that has invaded all the spring collections. Pret-clutch bags and pouches of finest in bright, flowery carpet fabric make the scene for evening.

—The two-piece dress: for daytime or evening, it's being hewn with old-fashioned, peplum-skirted tops.

For a more sportive look try an espadrille or wedge.

—The straw handbag: big, soft and basketry, it goes anywhere by day. Smaller, unbelted dress that has invaded all the spring collections. Pret-clutch bags and pouches of —Jewelry: there's no faking it for spring. Treat it like an investment or art form and look for real jewels or semiprecious stones, gold and silver. The naturals are still with us in wood, ivory and bamboo and so is plastic in an artsy-classy way, shaped into sculptured bracelets and pendants.

Junior Student Basketball Girl

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Eileen Borky, a 16-year-old high school junior, often gets on her hands and knees to wipe a basketball player's sweat from the floor of a stadium here, but it's not that she has a bad case of hero worship. It's just part of her job as ball girl for a basketball team.

"I'm supposed to get the basketballs when they go out of bounds and throw them back to the referees, wipe the sweat off the floor when the players fall down and do rebounds for the guys during practice," said Miss Borky.

Her younger brother, Tim, also chases balls for the team.

PRESENTS Our Valentine Lady Martha Bean of Midland

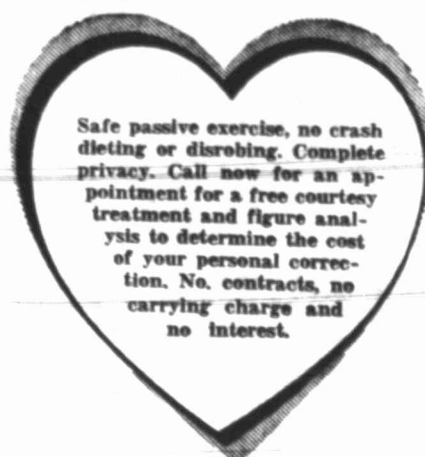

I once told one of the consultants at Pat Walker's, "If there is any way I can help other women learn about this program, I will gladly do so." This is my opportunity, so out comes my soap box.

At one time in my life I was very large, 230 lbs. With pills, I was able to lose weight with a doctor's help, but then what do you do with all the loose skin and flab that results with a large weight loss? Exercise you say, but I don't like exercise. Then I thought, I still need to lose weight, maybe the problem will dissolve itself with time. I don't have to tell you, it didn't, it only got worse. Then came Pat Walker's. I read the advertisement in the paper and it sounded good. So I went for my complimentary treatment and analysis and talked with one of the consultants, then went home. Once there I thought about what I had read and what I had been told and I wondered, "This is all great, but will it work for me?" Only one way to find out, try it. I did and two weeks later I had the answer to my big question, YES.

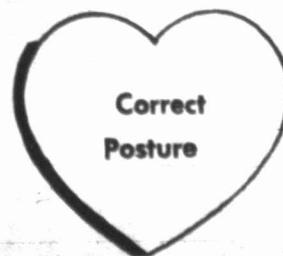

If you asked me what I like best about the Pat Walker program I wouldn't say it was the sensible eating tips and instructions I have received to help me lose weight the right way, nor would I say it was the toning and firming that must go with losing weight. I would say the thing I like best, is I no longer suffer from Sausageitis (wearing a girdle and feeling like a sausage tied in the middle.) I have worn a girdle since the age of 14, and since I have been working on my program, I have been able to throw ye old girdle away.

Pat Walker, I thank you for coming to Midland and having such a marvelous well rounded program that really works. I also thank all your great Midland personnel who work so hard and are so encouraging in helping their patrons to look their best.

Dear Abby

—By Abigail van Buren
If It's A Record, It'll Be Carved In Stone

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this for my great-grandmother, who is 98 years old.

My great-grandfather passed away a few weeks ago at the age of 98.

"Ma" and "Pa" (as we've always called them) were first married June 6, 1889, and every year after that, on their anniversary, they went back to the little church where they were married and had another marriage ceremony to renew their marriage vows.

Last June, Pa remarked that he wouldn't be at all surprised if he and Ma had set a world's record for being married more times than anyone else alive. Then he said if that was really a fact he wanted to have it engraved on the double headstone he already had picked out for himself and Ma.

Abby, here is where you come in. Will you please ask your readers if they know of anyone who has had their marriage vows renewed more than 84 times? If nobody writes in, I think maybe a record has been set. Thanking you kindly,
MRS. DAVID JOSEPH
FLATWOODS, KY.

Dear Mrs. Joseph: I'll inquire. But I doubt that anyone will challenge your great-grandparents' record.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old boy who is one of three children. My parents have been divorced for five years and I live with my mother.

My father lives 10 miles away. The first year he made little effort to see me, and I haven't seen him since. My mother has had him in court several times, and it's hammer and tongs to get any support money out of him. My father has a good job. He's in construction. Every Christmas, he mails me $5.

My problem is, if he isn't interested in seeing or supporting me, should I continue to accept the $5, or should I mail it back to him? I always feel like a hypocrite when I write him a "thank-you" note.
ONCE-A-YEAR-SON

Dear Son: Why should he get off scot-free? Accept the $5 and drop it into the Salvation Army kettle.

DEAR ABBY: When my husband and I go out to dinner and the waitress brings the check, my husband will put the money and the tip on the table and leave.

This may save time, but I don't think it's right. What if, just by accident, he doesn't leave enough money? Won't the waitress be stuck for the difference?

Also, what if somebody should walk by and see the money on the table and just pick it up? Again, the poor waitress will be held responsible.

When I mentioned these possibilities to my husband he said: "Don't worry, a good waitress is on her toes. Nobody would get out the door in the above-mentioned situations."

Who is right?
SAN CLEMENTE

Dear San: You are. Waitresses have enough to do without watching the tables, the departing customers, and the door.

DEAR ABBY: My father has been a wonderful husband to my mother for 27 years. He is 56 and mother is 49.

For the past few months, he has been acting strangely toward the whole family. (Fits of temper, abusive language, etc.)

I asked him what was ailing him and then he told me that he hadn't loved my mother for 25 years, and he wants to move into an apartment. He swore there was no other woman.

I have seen him (and others have, too) in a cocktail lounge with a very young girl. This from a man who goes to church and professes to be a good Christian!

Abby, does this sound like normal behavior to you? Also, he recently sold some of his holdings, amounting to $20,000 and put it in a private account. What is wrong with this man? Mother is a Sunday school teacher and has shown nothing but love and devotion to him.

I think my father needs to see a psychiatrist because his behavior is driving us all up a wall.
HEARTBROKEN AND WONDERING

Dear Wondering: First, your father should see a medical doctor for a complete physical checkup.

His sudden irrational behavior is symptomatic of a condition that it is possible to cure with early treatment. I urge you to get him to a doctor!

Sarah Nanny, Brunner Wed In Church Ceremony

TULSA, Okla. — Mr. and Mrs. William Regan Brunner, who were married in a double ring ceremony at 4 p.m. Saturday in the Trinity Episcopal Church, will reside at 2601 N. A St., in Midland, Tex., following a trip to Acapulco, Mexico.

The bride is the former Sarah Stuart Nanny, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Truman Aura Armstrong of Tulsa. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Ross Phillip Brunner of Midland.

Dr. Charles Brown performed the ceremony.

Mr. Armstrong presented the bride in marriage. She wore a gown of ivory silk-faced pearls and re-embroidered Calley lace Crystals and seed pearls outlined the Mandarin neckline and trimmed the lace bib on the bodice, which had long shadow sleeves. A wide border of lace hemmed the Avon skirt and traced down the skirt front from a raised waist marked with a double peau de sash. Knife-pleated organza trimmed the edge of the lace hem on the skirt and train and edged the neckline and cuffs. She also had a long veil of silk illusion held by a headpiece of silk flowers and jeweled lace motifs. She carried a bouquet of gardenias, stephanotis and gypsophila.

Thought Should Be Given To Shopping For Kitchen

By CAROLYN COIL
Copley News Service

You've decided it's time to declare your independence and live alone.

After you've chosen your apartment, it probably will dawn on you that you don't even have a coffee mug to call your own.

But, before you rush out and buy everything your mother has in her kitchen, you need to sit down and think awhile.

There are two things you can do before you begin to make any purchases. One is to check with your mother and friends to see if they have any castoffs that could help you get started.

Second, you need to think about your own life-style.

If intimate little dinner parties are your forte, you'll probably want at least a starter set of china or ironstone and some glassware.

Careful Shopping
By shopping carefully and watching sales, you'll be able to match up your dishes and glasses with place mats, serving dishes and other decorative items at a reasonable cost.

But if your idea of a formal party is sitting on the floor, a better purchase might be some rattan paper plate holders and inexpensive stainless steel silverware.

Even if you'll be eating alone most of the time, you'll need certain basics like sharp knives, pots, pans and a can opener.

And while you'll find everything you want in a variety of price ranges, the cheapest or the most expensive may not be best for your particular use.

You'll probably be happier though, if your knives are of a good grade that will sharpen well and not dull too quickly.

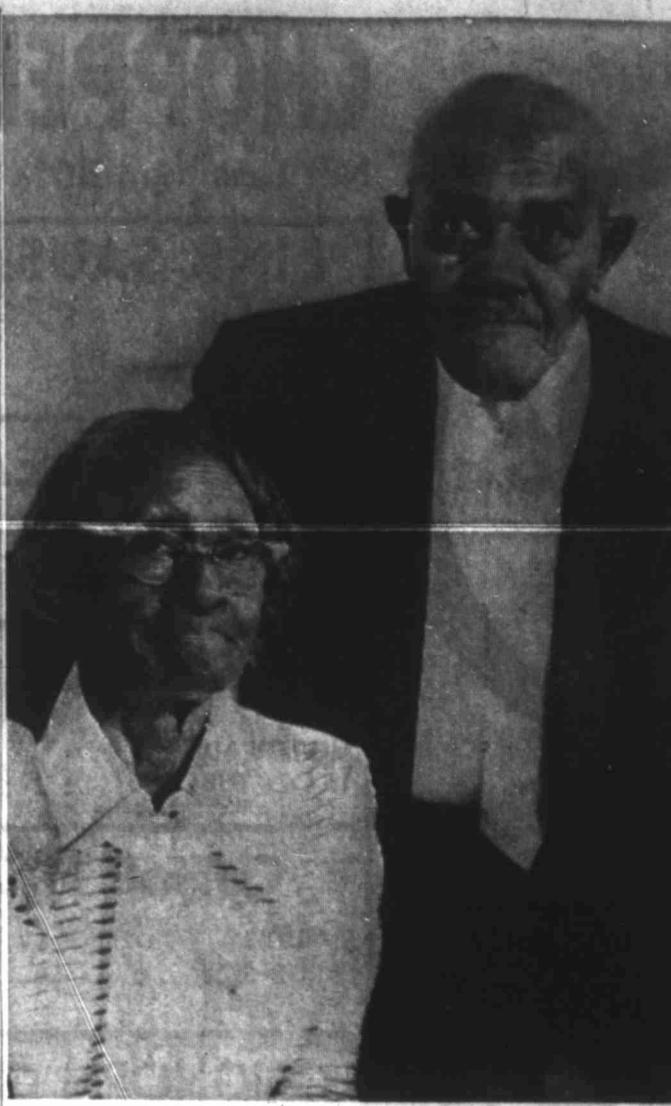

Make a list of things you feel certain you need immediately and then start shopping for these.

But, don't take your list to the nearest store and start buying. Look around. You may be able to find some things you want at garage sales, rummage sales, or at secondhand shops.

Small Budget

If your budget is tiny, buy an open-stock dinnerware pattern that you can add to later. Start with enough dishes to serve yourself and a friend.

Your money will stretch farther if you recycle some of your food containers. Buy margarine in colorful plastic dishes. Use them for dessert, soup, salad or small serving dishes.

'Inherit The Wind' Playing At Dallas

DALLAS — "Inherit the Wind," the famous courtroom drama by Lawrence and Lee, is having a six-week run at Dallas Theater Center's Kalita Humphreys Theater.

It was just 20 years ago in Dallas that the late Margo Jones, theatre's "Texas Toronado," staged the world premiere of this play which was destined quickly to become a classic of the American stage. The script had been rejected by virtually every major New York producer when Miss Jones, who had a talent for recognizing a great script when she saw one, made "Inherit the Wind" part of her Theatre '55 season here. Since that time, hardly a single night has gone by that a performance of the drama has not been given somewhere in the world. It has been translated and subsequently performed in almost three dozen languages.

20th anniversary production of "Inherit the Wind" at DTC is particularly noteworthy not only because of the play's Dallas history but because Jerome Lawrence himself came to Dallas to stage and direct the new edition of the work which brought him and co-author Robert E. Lee to the forefront of the American theater world.

DTC's new production features actor and playwright Preston Jones as Henry Drummond and Barry Hope in the role of Matthew Harrison Brady. Nancy Levinson designed the setting for the American theater's greatest and most memorable courtroom drama, and John Henson created the 1920s-style costumes for the show.

"Inherit the Wind" opened here Jan. 14 and will play through Feb. 22. The production has 8 p.m. curtains Tuesdays through Fridays, with Saturday performances at 5 and 8:30 p.m.

Young Artist Competition To Be Held This Week On Odessa College Campus

For the 13th year, gifted young instrumentalists and vocalists from throughout the nation will converge on the area to participate in the National Young Artist Competition sponsored annually by the Midland-Odessa Symphony and Choral.

The competition, which alternates yearly between Midland and Odessa, will take place this coming weekend on the campus of Odessa College. A distinguished panel of music educators, each of whom is also active as a performer or conductor, will adjudicate contest events Friday and Saturday in the OC fine arts building. They are Joseph Kirschbaum, returning for his second year as an NYAC juror, Richard Miller, Aube Tzerko and Roger Widder, all pictured above, as well as Walter Hautzig, not pictured.

The almost 90 young people who have been accepted for the competition are from secondary schools as well as colleges and universities in many parts of the U.S. They will be vying for $5,600 in cash awards to be distributed among finalists, winners and performing winners. Students designated as performing winners will return in March to perform with the Midland-Odessa Symphony.

The cash awards are contributed by Mrs. Raiford H. Burton, Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Ross and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew A. Bradford, all of Midland, as well as Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Noel of Odessa. In addition, the Beal Foundation of Midland makes an annual grant to help underwrite the administrative expenses of the competition.

The competition schedule is announced as follows:

College piano preliminary competition will begin at 8:30 a.m. Friday in the OC main auditorium, continuing until noon, then resuming at 1:30 p.m., and lasting until approximately 5 p.m.

College woodwinds preliminaries will begin at 8:30 a.m. Friday in the fine arts auditorium, continuing until noon. College strings preliminary auditions will begin in the fine arts auditorium at 1:30 p.m., continuing through the afternoon.

On Saturday, secondary schools woodwinds preliminaries will begin at 8:30 a.m. in the fine arts auditorium, continuing until approximately 10 a.m. Secondary strings preliminaries will begin there immediately afterward, continuing until noon.

In the meantime, secondary schools piano preliminary auditions will be held in the main auditorium beginning at 9 a.m. and continuing until noon.

College level voice preliminaries are scheduled to begin at 1 p.m. Saturday in the fine arts auditorium, continuing through the afternoon.

All preliminary events Friday and Saturday will be open to the public, as will the finals which are to be held at OC Saturday evening.

Nixon Reportedly Offered Book Deals

LOS ANGELES (AP) — For starters — the worldwide sale of the Nixon book will be stationary in addition to what it does in this country.

The newspaper said Lanza is representing Nixon in negotiations and Frank Gannon was helping Nixon write the book.

"An English publishing house has already made an offer of $300,000 for the British rights and there's a $300,000 bid from Japan," the paper quoted Lanza as saying in an interview published Friday. "That's far

Henderson will show the stitcheries from his private collection in an invitational event here this afternoon, arranged by Mrs. Roger Buck of Midland. The visitor also will display reproductions of Mood works which have been woven by artisans in Portugal.

Henderson is in the process of writing a book about Miss Mood. Before her death in 1972, she had achieved international renown for her art works which are now in many private and museum collections. While in the Tall City, Henderson will be photographing Mood works owned by Midlanders to help illustrate the forthcoming book.

Curtain Of 'Anything Goes' Goes Up Friday Night

"Anything Goes" is now just a few choice songs and a tap routine or two away!

The musical, a classic "Golden Oldie" from the 1930s which keeps winning new fans every decade and in every generation, arrives at Theatre Centre this week to usher in Midland Community Theatre's 1975 season.

And when the curtain goes up on "Anything Goes" at 7:30 p.m. Friday, there'll be a surprise addition to the cast — a real, live professional actor, straight from Broadway. Or, at least, straight from Off-Broadway.

His name is Michael Calkins and he will be in the role of Billy Crocker, the romantic lead in the classic Cole Porter musical. The 27-year-old actor arrived here a week ago from New York to join in final rehearsals for the show.

A professional in a community theater production is an event that comes about only under unusual circumstances — such as when the actor originally scheduled to play Billy Crocker is sent to Port Arthur to work temporarily at the oil refineries during the U.O.A.W. strike in that city. That was the situation of Jim Salner, an MCT "regular" who has been in the coastal city since early January. First, it was hoped the strike would end quickly and Salner would be able to do the role. But the settlement did not come and, finally, the move was made to have Calkins take the part.

The Chicago native has appeared in two off-Broadway productions — "Sisters of Mercy" and "Total Eclipse." His summer stock credits include "1776," "The Unsinkable Molly Brown" and "Rue de l'Amour." He has also performed in an opera at Julliard.

Calkins had played the same role during college days as well boosting an impressive list of theatrical credits from New York. His most recent role was in "Miss Moffat," a new musical starring Bette Davis and directed by Joshua Logan. The show closed in November before reaching Broadway when Miss Davis had to withdraw from the cast because of a pinched nerve in her back.

The Chicago native has appeared in two off-Broadway productions — "Sisters of Mercy" and "Total Eclipse." His summer stock credits include "1776," "The Unsinkable Molly Brown" and "Rue de l'Amour." He has also performed in an opera at Julliard.

Calkins had played the same role during college days as well composition from Webster College at St. Louis, and training in theater and dance at the Herbert Berghoff Studio in New York. He also studied dance with June Lewis, a member of the Martha Graham dance company. When he isn't on stage, Michael works on the Julliard staff doing costuming and technical work on opera and theater productions. He also works as a waiter at the Ninth Circle restaurant in Greenwich Village. ("Please mention the name of the restaurant," Calkins said. "The owner is very nice to hungry actors.") Another note of interest about Calkins: He is the oldest in a family of 16 children!

"Anything Goes" is presently scheduled to run through Feb. 22. The Theatre Centre box office will begin the sale of tickets by telephoning 682-2222.

Brubeck, Sons To Perform Soon At Odessa College

ODESSA — "Two Generations of Brubeck" will perform here Feb. 3 under auspices of Odessa College's fine arts entertainment series.

The concert, featuring famed Dave Brubeck and sons Darius, Chris and Dan, will be open to the public, with tickets priced at $2 for adults and $1 for area students. OC students may attend the 8 p.m. event free upon presentation of ID cards.

Dave Brubeck firmly established himself in the 1950s as one of the most sought-after performers both in the United States and around the world. His technique of combining classical forms with jazz, experimenting with various time signatures, won him jazz popularity polls year after year and made him one of the most significant figures in American music.

After a four-year absence in which he wrote three major works for chorus, orchestra and soloists, he returned to the concert stage with the "Two Generations of Brubeck" show in which his three sons joined him. The group's first performance was before a sellout crowd in New York's Carnegie Hall in March 1972, and they have since played in many major cities.

Leander Stillwell Being Performed Now At SWTSU

SAN MARCOS — "Leander Stillwell," a drama by Dr. David A. Rush, Southwest Texas State University's new playwright-in-residence, will be San Marcos' official Bicentennial drama production.

The play, based on a young Union soldier's coming-of-age during the Civil War, is having a series of performances now through March 1. Dr. Rush and Dr. Darrel Baergan, also of SWTSU's speech - drama faculty, are co-directors.

Although Dr. Rush has had works produced elsewhere, this production is his first at SWTSU, and it also is the premiere of "Leander Stillwell."

The department of speech and drama at the university has staged bicentennial productions for three years now, points out Mrs. Francis Stovall, member of San Marcos' Bicentennial Commission. "This support helped San Marcos become one of the first eight Bicentennial cities cited in 1973. We are all working together closely under the "Festival U.S.A." banner as we move toward the nation's third 100 years," she added.

Old West Exhibit Currently On View At Michener Gallery

AUSTIN — It's "Cowboys and Indians" time in a new exhibit at The University of Texas here.

More than 50 paintings and several bronzes depicting the Old West are on exhibit through March 16 on the first floor of the Michener Gallery in the Harry Ransom Center, 21st and Guadalupe streets.

The exhibit, "The Big Country and Early Times: The Old West in Pictures," is drawn from recent gifts and loans to UT-Austin from the C. R. Smith Collection, Smith, of Washington D.C. and New York, is a distinguished alumnus of the University who formerly served as chairman of American Airlines and as Secretary of Commerce under President Lyndon Johnson.

The art works capture varied Western scenes and personalities. They include a portrait of Sitting Bull, a cavalry shootout with Indians, a long line of covered wagons, desert ranges, cattle roundups, a prairie fire, wild duck shooting, Montana antelope, scenes of the Yosemite valley and old-time cowboys. Among well-known artists with works in the UT exhibit are Albert Bierstadt, Maynard Dixon, Henry Farny, Charles M. Russell, Harold von Schmidt, William T. Ranney, Frank Tenney Johnson and Tom Lea, the latter represented by two works, "Stampede" and "Up the Trail from Texas." The bronzes include sculptures of horse wranglers, the head of a girl, a horseman, stagecoach (subtitled "It Ain't No Lady's Job") and a bull.

Theater School Beginning Soon

The Midland Community Theatre School will begin its spring term a week from Monday.

Registration for the new term will be held during the coming week and parents may enroll children at the Theatre Centre office, 2301 W. Indiana St. Details on courses to be offered and class schedules are available by telephoning the theater at 682-3544.

IN SEASON-OPENING MUSICAL — When Midland Community Theatre raises the curtain on its 1975 season-opener, "Anything Goes," Friday night, the audience will see many familiar faces on stage — and some new ones as well. In photo below is New York actor-singer Michael Calkins who was brought in to play Billy Crocker, the romantic lead role. He will play opposite Coila Morrow, shown with him here, who has the part of young Hope Harcourt. In top photo, veteran MCT performer Charles Dixon has the comic role of Sir Evelyn Oakleigh. Pictured with him are four "Fallen Angels," Charity, Chastity, Purity and Virtue, portrayed by Barbara Buckley, Patti Herd, Alice Moxey and Susie Hitchcock, from left to right.

Next Symphony Concert To Be In Midland Only

The third subscription concert of the Midland-Odesa Symphony's current year will be something of a departure from the first two programs earlier in the season:

The concert will be a Midland-only event, although season subscribers in both cities may, of course, attend it. Single tickets also will be available.

And, for Midland concertgoers, it will be on Monday night, Feb. 3, rather than in the Tuesday night spot customarily reserved for the Midland programs.

The concert in Lee High School auditorium will feature a guest artist, violinist Fredell Lack of Houston, joining the orchestra under the baton of Dr. Thomas Hohstadt in a performance of the Beethoven Violin Concerto. Also programmed for the concert are contemporary American composer Alan Hovhaness' "Mysterious Mountain," an orchestral work premiered some 20 years ago by the Houston Symphony Orchestra, and Maurice Ravel's "Daphnis and Chloe" Suite No. 2.

The Hovhaness work will be performed by the orchestra, while the Ravel will feature the orchestra and members of the Symphony Chorale.

Miss Lack, a native of Tulsa, Okla., has been hailed by many critics as "the leading female concert violinist in the land." She is a familiar figure in concert halls both in the U.S. and abroad, frequently appearing as solo recitalist as well as guest artist with major orchestras and chamber ensembles.

'Plaza Suite' To Be Presented At Webb Air Base Saturday

BIG SPRING — Three plays for the price of one, plus a buffet dinner, will be offered members of the Webb Officers' Open Mess and their guests next Saturday when Neil Simon's popular comedy of one-acts, "Plaza Suite," is presented. The production will feature the Kaleidoscope Players, members of the State Theater of New Mexico, from Raton.

Each play has two central characters consisting of a husband and wife and the problems they face in marriage. These problems, however serious, become hilarious as each plot unfolds.

The Kaleidoscope Players are no strangers to Webb Air Force Base, having presented "I Do!"

Generals Overcame Bull Though the Battle of Bull Run was a Union fiasco, no fewer than 63 Northern officers who saw action there were or would become generals.

"I Do!" and "Marriage Round" here last year.

The buffet dinner begins at 7 p.m. and the play at 9 p.m. The club is now accepting table reservations. Reservations may be made by telephoning 263-8381.

All seats are reserved, with seating limited to the capacity which affords good viewing. The complete cost for the evening is $6.50 per person.

Tim Blonkvist To Exhibit Art At Trinity School

A talented Trinity School "artist," Tim Blonkvist, will have a one-man art show there beginning Monday. The show will continue through Feb. 14 in the Trinity School botanical gardens.

Blonkvist, son of Dr. and Mrs. Brent Blonkvist, first discovered his talent as an artist while enrolled at Trinity. When he was a seventh grader he was a winner in a national student art contest. Later, athletics occupied his interest and it was only when he was a junior student at Midland High School that he once again took up art seriously, with the encouragement of MHS art teacher Mary Barnett. Currently he is a senior student at MHS.

Last summer, the young man received a partial scholarship for special art study at the University of Kansas. In the upcoming show at Trinity, a number of works, including woodblocks and prints, which he completed during the summer course, will be exhibited. Other works to be shown are watercolor and oil paintings, batiks and several pen-and-ink drawings. A number of the items will be for sale.

The show will be on view during weekday school hours (8:30 to 4 p.m.). Trinity School is at 3500 W. Wadley St.

Midland Student Wins Scholarship

SAN MARCOS — Southwest Texas State University freshman student Barron Frith, from Midland, is the recipient of the first Woods Kone Memorial Scholarship.

The scholarship will be an annual award to the outstanding freshman male music student at STSU, based on academic achievement and musical ability. The award will be made annually by STSU's chapter of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, honorary music fraternity. The late Woods Kone, a San Marcos native, was one of the founding members of the university's Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia chapter.

Frith is a 1974 graduate of Midland's Robert E. Lee High School where he was active in choral work and appeared in several musical productions of the school.

Former Midlander Presenting Recital

PINE BLUFF, Ark. — Former Midlander Robert Ben Chambers, now a member of the music faculty of the University of Arkansas at Pine Bluff, will be heard in a vocal recital this afternoon in the fine arts auditorium on campus. His 3 p.m. program will include works by Schumann, Chausson, Debussy and Massenet.

Chambers, a tenor who holds bachelor's and master's degrees from Texas Christian University, was a teacher in the Midland, Tex., public schools before joining the UA-PB faculty last September.

Ranch Headquarters Fund Drive At Lubbock About 'Half-Way There'

LUBBOCK — "We're almost half-way there," leaders of a Ranch Headquarters fund-raising campaign were assured here recently.

The funds are needed to move and restore the final structures for the unique Ranch Headquarters, a permanent exhibit at The Museum of Texas Tech University.

"More than $95,000 has been raised in cash and pledges since the campaign began in December," said Robert Snyder, Ranch Headquarters director and one of the chairmen of the fund drive. "That is nearly half the goal set. Some $392,000 is needed to move and restore the rest of the buildings for the Ranch Headquarters," Snyder continued. Of that amount, $250,000 is the goal set for the Lubbock community. The remainder is being sought from other sources, he said.

The Ranch Headquarters is asking the Texas Legislature for a one-time grant of $355,000 for site development which will include landscaping, walkways and drainage facilities for the 12-acre site, Snyder said. The legislature also will be asked for $337,000 for operation and maintenance of the exhibit through fiscal 1977, he said.

Texas Tech already has spent over $150,000 in preparation of the Ranch Headquarters site and for utilities and personnel. The Ranch Headquarters Association has contributed more than $300,000 for moving and restoration of historic structures on the site. The association is sponsoring the drive to ensure completion of the exhibit by 1976 inasmuch as the exhibit has been designated an official U.S. Bicentennial site.

The exhibit depicts the development of ranching in the U.S. from its beginning onward into the 20th Century, through authentically restored and furnished ranch buildings and other visible records of the past.

During the past two years, more than 30,000 visitors have toured the exhibit during limited weekend visiting hours.

The Black Experience: Prior to 1960, when recruitment of black students by prestigious white colleges and universities began to develop impetus, there was little concern about how these students fared in learning to cope in a predominantly white environment, says Henry Johnson of the University of Michigan. He states that at Michigan, as elsewhere, many black students in good academic standing as well as those minus the skills they need, drop out. When asked why, the students frequently mention uncertainty about the relevance of their courses to careers and a feeling of social alienation from teachers. To be mutually beneficial developments of black cultural centers and Afro-American studies program need to be tied into the majority system, Johnson believes that the black constituency should keep in mind that the most efficient way to achieve worthwhile goals is for the black students to keep asking themselves, "What skills can we acquire that will result in long-run benefits to the black community?"

White institutions should encourage black students to think and establish priorities. The institution and the students must then agree on those goals and the proper methods of achieving them, Johnson said. Without proper support and commitment from the institution these students tend to fall back on withdrawal or overt aggression when faced with new challenges and obstacles. Johnson said that some kind of in-service training may be needed for faculty members to help familiarize them with the needs, aspirations, and abilities of the black students they teach.

Only 30 per cent of the U.S. population today—those over 45—lived through the Great Depression of the 30's, according to S. G. Blackman, retired newsman. How many bellringers remember when corn brought 10 cents a bushel and butter was 19 cents a pound, and you could get two dozen eggs for 25 cents? Or when you could get a loaf of bread for a nickel or a pint of sweetmilk or a pack of cigarettes for a dime? We do. We entered college for the first time in Sept. 1930.

February is National Brotherhood Month. Let's make every month Brotherhood Month. Editorial Quote: Renew Voting Rights Act of 1965! "We must save the voting rights act. In 1965 there were fewer than 100 Black elected officials in the South. Today, there are almost two thousand. The number grows every year. In many places throughout the old South, black voters hold the balance of power in a number of elections." From the Black Dispatch-Oklahoma City.

"Looking at the present time, it seems an effort is being made to link black crime to the Black Muslim religion. This seems to be somewhat unfair according to American standards," states Wild Bill Bebo. There must be a reason for some of this identification. We will examine some of these reasons here soon.

Dear Mr. J. T. It does seem that the situation that has developed over the appointment of a black member to the OK City School Board is unfortunate. We have too many self-seekers it seems. Perhaps an election (special) will be the best way out after all.

To Al Westbrook, 1509 Cinnamon Drive, Memphis: Thanks for news on honor recently bestowed on Mrs. Gussie Adams, formerly of Lane College for some 50 years. Will contact you later.

Until then, Peace and the best of everything for 1975.

Judge Culver To Teach Course On Women, Law

Judge Barbara Culver will devote three evenings in February to teaching a course at Midland College, titled "Today's Laws and the Contemporary Woman."

The Midland County judge will "talk about federal laws and state, civil and criminal laws as they affect women. I think, in order to start, we would discuss the Equal Rights Amendment proposed and the existing Equal Rights Amendment to the Texas Constitution," she said.

The class will meet three consecutive Tuesdays, beginning Feb. 11, from 7 to 9 p.m. in room 445 at Lee High School. The cost is $6. Judge Culver said she is enthusiastic the college is offering the course. "I have been active in the family law section of the State Bar which has come up with the family code."

She said the code deals with such topics as marriage law, divorce, property, custody, adoption and delinquency — subjects which she plans to include in her class.

Her credentials for teaching the course, aside from being county judge, include serving as juvenile judge, presiding officer of the commissioners court and being the county's top administrative officer.

'Bayonne Bleeder' Eager For Chance

BAYONNE, N.J. (AP) — A fist rapped against the car window. Chuck Wepner turned and stared at a young black man, rolled down the window and heard the man say: "Congratulations, Chuck. Put Bayonne on the map."

Wepner doesn't mind being labeled "The White Hope," and he enjoys being kidded by his friends. But he bristles when it's written or broadcast that he doesn't deserve a title shot. He also doesn't care to be known as "Chuck Who?" and he abhors the tag of "The Bayonne Bleeder."

"Bayonne Bleeder gets me," he said, pointing out he hasn't lost a fight on a cut in four years. "Why shouldn't I get a shot? Outside of a possible cut, I think I'm the toughest guy in the world."

He admitted he likes the increased attention. "It's very nice," he said. "Everybody likes to be recognized for what he does."

One day recently, he gave two interviews in New York and then returned to his apartment to give another while his wife got ready to go to work on the night shift at the post office.

Following his apartment interview, Wepner fitted his 6-foot-5, 220-pound frame behind the steering wheel of his cream-colored Cadillac — "I help myself stay in shape by playing a lot of basketball" — and drove to the liquor and wine distributor he works for in nearby Union. He had to make some weekend deliveries that couldn't be handled by truck.

On the way, he talked to two acquaintances about his reputation as a bleeder.

"I can't help I'm white and I'm fair," he said. "It looks worse when I'm cut."

SEIZE ACC LEAD—Heels Pop Terrapins

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Two pressure free throws by Mickey Bell with three seconds remaining clinched a 69-66 upset victory for 14th-ranked North Carolina over third-ranked Maryland in an Atlantic Coast Conference basketball game Saturday.

After a field goal by Ed Stahl put North Carolina ahead 61-60 with 10:10 remaining, neither team scored until John Kuester sank two foul shots to put the Tar Heels ahead 63-60 with 1:56 left.

NC State Wins Big

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — All-American David Thompson tossed in 29 points to lead fifth-ranked North Carolina State to a 106-80 victory over Wake Forest in an Atlantic Coast Conference basketball game Saturday night.

The second free throw by Kuester was a bonus shot, and Phil Ford added two more while sinking four free throws for a 67-64 North Carolina advantage with 55 seconds to play.

Hoosiers Thump Purdue, 104-71

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Indiana, the top-ranked major college basketball team, toyed with archrival Purdue for six minutes Saturday, then overwhelmed the 20th-rated Boilermakers, 104-71, behind Scott May's 23 points and Quinn Buckner's 18.

Both teams started slowly and Purdue had a 14-10 lead when Indiana outscored the Boilermakers 16-4 in a three-minute stretch to take the lead for good.

Purdue's John Garrett, who scored 18 points, fouled out with 10 minutes left in the game and Indiana holding a 25-point lead, 77-52. The Hoosiers continued to widen the lead to 34 points, 88-54, when Coach Bobby Knight cleared the bench.

The largest crowd ever to attend a basketball in the state—17,823—saw the Hoosiers extend the nation's longest winning string to 21 games over two seasons.

Indiana, 7-0 in the Big Ten and 18-0 over-all this season, moved two games ahead of the second-place Boilermakers, 5-2 and 10-5.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Big Leon Douglas scored 24 points, including 10 of 13 field goal attempts, to lead sixth-ranked Alabama to a 92-68 Southeastern Conference basketball victory over Georgia Saturday.

A's Just Not Class Operation...Bando

GRESHAM, Ore. (AP) — The Oakland A's have been professional baseball's world champions the past three years, but team captain Sal Bando has few good words about how the organization is operated by owner Charles O. Finley.

"It's run in the best interest of one man." Bando said the crusty, controversial Finley "just doesn't understand how to 'rust' players. To him, everything is cut and dry, a challenge or a fight, when it really doesn't have to be."

"The players are tired of fighting," he said. "It's tough enough fighting 163 games during the season without having to fight with management."

"Sometimes they say our fights encourage us to win," he said, "but that has nothing to do with it. We win on our ability. There's not a team in modern-day baseball that's won three World Series in a row, but you don't hear about that. You hear about the fights."

"Instead of talking about Joe Rudi's ability as a leftfielder, they'd rather talk about the fights between Bill North and Reggie Jackson."

TORS BEAT SNYDER TO GO 240-

Lamesa Nails Down First Half

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
R-T Sports Writer

LAMESA — The Lamesa Golden Tornados steam-rolled their way to the first half District 3-AAA basketball title here Friday night with a 73-64 victory over the Snyder Tigers before the first standing room only crowd in the brief four-year history of the Middle School Gym.

Lamesa fans must have sensed the importance of the crucial tilt as there were no empty seats long before the 8 p.m. tipoff and the Golden Tornado answered the challenge with the convincing win.

Lamesa went into the tilt as the only West Texas cage five that has escaped a loss this season, but more important both teams owned 5-0 district marks and only one could earn first half honors.

When the smoke had cleared, and there was plenty of smoke in this one, Lamesa owned the first half title and a 24-0 season record. Snyder fell to 19-5 and 5-1.

Spencer Key Credit has to go to Lamesa's 5-11 senior guard Eddie Spencer for this one. Spencer probably had his best game as a Tor with 20 points, seven steals, 10 rebounds and a bundle of assists.

Spencer was also an example of the Tor success. He found holes in the Snyder defense and broke through for some easy layups and when he wasn't there, he was feeding to Jim Vassauskas and Brian Meeks under the basket for a bushel of easy points.

Vassauskas had 19 points with nine field goals underneath and Meeks, displaying a devastating hook, ripped the cords for 16 to complete the three-fisted punch that drowned the Tigers, rated as one of the top AAA teams around.

Lamesa's success at getting the easy shot was the difference as the Tors connected on 31 of 62 shots for a 50 per cent shooting mark. Snyder, on the other hand, hit only 23 of 65 for 37 per cent.

The tenacious Lamesa defense was unbreakable and the Tigers found themselves shooting from the outside most of the night.

Only Chester Cobb and Larry Johns could score with any authority, but both were inconsistent.

Cobb pumped in 20 points to take the game's high point honors, but 19 points came in the second period when the Tiger made their severest challenge and Johns added 16 points. Walton Cobb managed 11 points with six coming in score for the first time in the second half.

Spencer, Dennis Fleming and Meeks opened the game with unanswered points as the Tor broke to a quick 6-0 lead and held a 16-3 margin at the end of the first period.

That's when Chester Cobb went to work for the Tigers with two baskets and a couple of free throws to narrow the gap to 16-14 in the second period, and it was his tip-in of an errant point. Walton Cobb free throw later in the period that knotted the 11 points with six coming in score for the first time in the second half.

Tors Lead At Half The Tors led by a 37-33 halftime margin and Coach O. W. Follis changed defenses at the half from a 1-3-1 to a 2-1-2 in order to cut down on the effectiveness of the hot shooting Chester Cobb. It worked as Cobb connected on only one try from the field in the third period.

Brad Van Cleave and Mike Walton, Hunter scored 15 points before fouling out of the game while Van Cleave had 14 and Walton 12. Permian is now 22-4 on the season and 4-3 in loop play while San Angelo stands 11-10 and shares the cellar with OHS and Big Spring with a 1-5 loop mark.

High for the Bobcats were Arnold McDowell and Steve Speer with 17 and 11, respectively.

In JV action, Permian won, 80-43 for its 20th win in 23 games while Big Spring's JV blasted OHS, 100-51.

SEAGRAVES — The Seagraves Eagles dealt a death blow to the first half cage hopes of the Stanton Buffaloes here Friday night in District 5-A play with a narrow 89-86 win over the Buffs.

Seagraves now owns a 2-1 mark in loop play and can earn a share of the first half crown Tuesday with a victory over Plains. Shallowater has already completed first half play with a 3-1 mark, leaving no hope for the Buffaloes. Stanton is 1-3 in the loop chase.

Robert Tames pumped in 22 points while Brad Woods added 18 points. Bobby Richardson was the top scorer for the Buffs with 18 markers.

Stanton will end first half cage play Tuesday when it hosts O'Donnell in a meaningless outing. Second half games start Friday.

Fry Discovery Offset Slated Completed In Runnels Area

Frizzell Exploration Co., Abilene, has completed No. 1 William Stevens Estate, 1/4 mile northwest of the one-well Paul Thomas (Goen) field and 1 1/4 mile southeast of the one-well Big "A" (upper Fry) field, as a Fry re-oper in the depleted Jim Adams multipay field of Runnels County.

It potentialized flowing 83 barrels of 43.4-gravity oil, no water, on a 24-hour test. Gas-oil ratio measured 1,700-1.

Completion was through a 14-64-inch choke and perforations at 4,332-4,334 feet and 4,347-4,350 feet, after the sections had been fractured with 10,000 gallons and 8,200 pounds.

On ground elevation of 1,997 feet, the following tops were picked: upper Capps lime, 4,308 feet; Fry, 4,329 feet; lower Capps lime, 4,418 feet and Goen lime 4,510 feet.

Drilled to 4,550 feet, it was plugged back to 4,430 feet, where 4 1/2-inch casing was seated.

Production site is 1,200 feet from south and 2,203 feet from west lines of section 81, CTRR survey, four miles southeast of Wingate.

The field was opened Jan. 9, 1960, with the completion of James E. Kemp No. 1 Mrs. M. J. Adams, which was potentialized flowing 588 barrels of 41.9-gravity oil per day, through perforations at 4,373-4,389 feet. At one time there were 38 producing wells in the field.

Wildcat Planned In Crockett Area

Dan J. Harrison, Houston, has made plans to drill No. 1 R. A. Harrall, a 9,100-foot Ellenburger venture in Crockett County 6 1/4 miles north of the Davidson Ranch multipay field, 4 1/4 miles northwest of the depleted Claton Ranch (Ellenburger) field, and 3 1/2 miles north of a 9,078-foot dry hole. Located eight miles northeast of Ozona, it spots 1,220 feet from north and east lines of section 47, block GH, GC&SP survey.

MONAHANS — Dan Aycock has been appointed manager of Technical Services for KontrolKem. He will supervise the firm's technical service operations throughout the Permian Basin.

Aycock has been associated with technical aspects of drilling and production in the Southwest for more than eight years. He will be headquartered at KontrolKem's Monahans office.

Offset Slated In Lea County

The two-well Lovington (Devonian) field of Lea County, N.M., gained a new site with the starting of Union Oil Co. of California No. 5 Midway-Stage.

Slated to 11,800 feet, it spans 2,310 feet from south and west lines of section 12-17b-39e, six miles southeast of Lovington.

Texas O&G Gets Pecos Extension

The third current lower Leonard producer in the El Cinco field of Pecos County was recompleted by Texas Oil & Gas Corp., Midland. It is the No. 1-E Price, a location west extension to that pay.

It was completed flowing 71.25 barrels of 35-gravity oil per day, plus 5.75 barrels of water with gas-oil ratio measuring 1,951-1.

Production was through a 28-64-inch choke and perforations at 4,660-4,670 which had been acidized with 2,000 gallons.

Originally completed by Shell Oil Co. as No. 1-6 Shell-Price as a detrital gas well, it became depleted, and was plugged in April, 1971.

Location is 9,983 feet from south and 467 feet from east lines of section 6, block 12, H&GN survey, 10 miles southwest of McCamey.

Sutton County Well Completed

HNG Oil Co., Midland, has finished its No. 2-8 Friess as a 1/4-mile east extension to Cannon gas production in the Sutton County portion of the Sawyer multipay field.

Calculated, absolute open flow was 1.025 million cubic feet of gas per day, with gas-liquid ratio of 150,000-1. Condensate gravity was 70 degrees.

Completion was effected through perforations at 4,433-5,334 feet, after the section had been treated with 42,000 gallons and 26,000 pounds of fracture material.

Production site is 1,233 feet from south and 933 feet from east lines of section 8, block C, HEAWT survey, 12 miles southwest of Sonora.

Outpost Staked In Kent County

Belco Petroleum Corp., operating out of Midland, has made plans to drill No. 1 Swenson, 1/2 mile southeast of the opener and lone Strawn "C" producer in the Spring Branch (Pennsylvanian) field of Kent County.

Drill site is 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 17, block 7, H&GN survey, 12 miles northwest of Chisnolm. Contract depth is 7,400 feet.

Belco's No. 1 Strawn "C" was completed on the Strawn "C" discovery Oct. 30, 1974.

It finished producing 56 barrels of 35.5-gravity oil and 58 barrels of water per day through perforations at 7,142-7,154 feet.

Skelly Foundation Gives $25,000 Grant To Basin Petroleum Museum

A $25,000 grant to the new Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Library and Hall of Fame by the Skelly Oil Co. Foundation, Tulsa, Okla., has been announced by the museum.

The grant will be used in paying off the remaining capital cost of the museum's building, scheduled for opening here next spring.

Notification of the foundation's action came from James D. Boswell of Tulsa, its president.

Midland district manager for Skelly Oil Co., Audra B. Cary, said she was "impressed by the goals of the museum, and the kind of leadership and support it has attracted." Boswell said, "It is the type of project we believe the late William G. Skelly would have liked."

Skelly, founder of Skelly Oil, discovered the Healdton Field, one of the larger mid-continent fields, and later had phenomenal success as an oil explorer and producer in Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Kansas, and other states. He also was a founder of the International Petroleum Exposition in Tulsa and was widely known as a civic and industry leader.

Due to Skelly's pioneering efforts, Skelly Oil has become a large integrated oil company, operating widely in the U.S.

Emil C. Rassman, chairman of the museum's Board of Executives, joined Russell J. Ramsland, museum president, in thanking the foundation for its gift.

"This is a very generous action by the Skelly Oil Co. Foundation which was made possible by good neighbors here in the Basin and in Oklahoma," Rassman said.

He and Ramsland pledged that the gift will be used to help create a museum "of the first order, one that will tell much of a great industry's story in a memorable, imaginative way."

A non-profit organization, the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum has a 33,000 square-foot building under construction in south Midland. Funds for it have come entirely from private donors in the Southwest and other areas. Its final worth is estimated at close to $1.5 million.

Exhibits in the new building will stress the history of the oil industry, its operations and economics, and the earth sciences. Significant portions also will deal with historical events prior to the discovery of oil in the Basin.

Wright said there is an important relationship between the prospective resources on the Atlantic Shelf and the energy needs of the East Coast.

"The East Coast is more dependent on liquid petroleum than is the rest of the country," he said. "In 1971, for example, the East Coast relied on liquid petroleum for 58 per cent of its total energy requirements. The comparable figure for the entire United States was 44 per cent."

Additionally, Wright said some eastern states have substantial chemical and petrochemical industries which use petroleum feedstocks.

"The petrochemical industry's needs for petroleum raw materials will grow appreciably faster over the next decade," he said.

Exxon Executive Warns Energy Must Not Develop Into Regional Conflict

By MAX R. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP) — M. A. Wright says there is a real danger offshore oil development, socio-environmental concerns may cause energy to be seen as a regional conflict rather than a national need.

"Energy must not become an exercise in 'regionalism' or an issue which pits state against state," says Wright, chairman of Exxon Co. USA.

"Energy—its development, its production, and its consumption—is a national issue and should be a shared responsibility."

Wright was discussing proposals to start oil and gas explorations off the Atlantic coast, proposals that have prompted concern by many officials and residents from New England to Florida.

"They question the environmental impact of offshore drilling, including possible effect on the East Coast's beaches and marine estuaries," he said.

"And they are concerned about the onshore industrial impact of offshore petroleum development."

At the same time, Wright said, citizens and public officials in states where oil and gas are produced, and where coal and uranium are mined, are asking whether it is fair for them to share their supplies of energy with states which refuse to develop their own.

"Their question is whether it is reasonable to want gasoline but not the refinery which makes it, or to want electricity but not the fossil-fired or nuclear plants which generate it," he said.

Wright said there is an important relationship between the prospective resources on the Atlantic Shelf and the energy needs of the East Coast.

"The East Coast is more dependent on liquid petroleum than is the rest of the country," he said. "In 1971, for example, the East Coast relied on liquid petroleum for 58 per cent of its total energy requirements. The comparable figure for the entire United States was 44 per cent."

Higher Crude Prices Hike U.S. Reserves

TULSA — Higher prices for crude oil are increasing U.S. petroleum reserves.

Based on interviews with oil industry specialists, The Oil and Gas Journal estimates that crude price hikes since March 1973 increased reserves from five to six per cent — or 1.8 billion to 2.2 billion barrels — without any action on the part of operators.

This is due simply to the longer life for producing wells as a result of new postings that pushed the average price of crude to $6.85 a barrel last year from $3.39 a barrel in 1972, the Journal's Jan. 20 issue says.

Further large additions have been and are being made through programs such as infill drilling, rapid development of fields found through stepped-up exploration, development of previously marginal or clearly uneconomic deposits and enhanced recovery projects.

One major oil company, using 1974 operating costs and an exempt crude price of $10.75 a barrel, compared with 1972 prices, says its net reserves have increased about 11 per cent. This is equal to one full year of crude production for the firm.

The reserves volume added via field operations, especially those from new exploration and tertiary recovery projects, should build with time.

A large engineering consulting firm told the Journal the prospect is that higher prices eventually could add 10 percentage points to the U.S. recovery rate. Provided the economics remain as favorable as at the present, this could mean added reserves of more than 40 billion barrels in the years ahead.

Oil industry officials say the existence of the new reserves, and the outlook for actually producing them hangs by a slender economic thread. Higher taxes, with their resulting slimmer profits on production, could wipe out reserves gains as quickly as they were added.

Virtually every oil company official interviewed by the week-end magazine sounded the same note of caution: "Their company's new projects are tied directly to higher profits on production from properties considered marginal or uneconomic at former crude prices. Any price relief for its marginal move that erases profits could signal an abrupt halt to such activity."

Whatever the impact on reserves, there's no doubt that higher crude prices have helped spawn a flurry of drilling and production activity in U.S. oil fields, the Journal says. As a result, industry officials estimate, the country's production last fall was running about 150,000 barrels a day above what it would have been without improved prices.

Giant fields such as Wilmington in California's Long Beach harbor demonstrate the impact of higher crude prices on ultimate recovery.

The Long Beach Department of Oil Properties is appealing to the Federal Energy Administration for removal of price controls or some further relief for its marginal wells in Wilmington field. The city cites increased ultimate recovery as the basis for its appeal.

A study last year showed ultimate recovery at the then-current exempt oil price of $9.21 a barrel would amount to 2.86 billion barrels from upper zones in the field. That's 330 million barrels more than would be recovered at the controlled price of $4.21 a barrel and 540 million barrels more than could be produced at the $2.61 price in effect before crude postings started moving up.

Industry's increased level of spending for exploration and development is evident in a Sun Oil Co. program that called for outlays of $243.2 million in the United States last year as a direct result of higher prices for energy. This money wouldn't otherwise have been included in its expenditures plan, the company says.

Among other programs of renewed development, Continental Oil Co. is conducting a $7.3-million project of infill production activity in U.S. oil

WASHINGTON OIL— Petroleum 'Floor' Regulation Could Increase Supply

By CLYDE LA MOTTE

Reporter-Telegram Washington Oil Correspondent
WASHINGTON — One aspect of the Ford administration's energy related proposals that has been largely overlooked is the prospect of putting some type of floor under energy prices. Over the long run, this could be highly important.

Most attention and most debate thus far has been over whether there should be price ceilings. President Ford favors removing the existing ceiling on "old" domestic crude oil and decontrol of the wellhead price of "new" natural gas. The purpose in each case is to let marketplace factors be the major factor in determining price levels.

The price decontrol suggestion has encountered heavy fire on Capitol Hill where many congressmen contend that this would simply add new burdens to people already struggling to pay their bills.

The fact is that while price controls may be useful in preventing price abuses, price controls do not add to supply. If, then, the primary goal of the nation is to increase its own energy supplies in order to lessen its increasing dependence on foreign sources, it should be clearly understood that price controls will not help achieve that objective. In fact, they are likely to do just the opposite because they reduce incentive.

On the other hand, a price floor could play a definite role in increasing supplies. Consider this: The soaring world price of crude oil has made economically feasible the development of various other types of energy, including shale oil, gas from coal, and marginal or remote deposits of oil and natural gas.

Ford in his message to Congress called for 200 major nuclear power plants by 1985, together with 250 major new coal mines, 150 coal-fired power plants, 30 major new oil refineries, 20 major new synthetic fuel plants and the drilling of "many thousands" of new oil wells.

Washington Oil—

(Continued From Page 1D) saying that price collars or rationing will not produce the energy resources that are badly needed.

It undoubtedly would be difficult to sell Congress on the idea of a price floor for energy and it's likely that the public, too, would be wary. But the public, becoming gradually aware that the energy crisis has an impact on every aspect of American life, may be more ready than Washington realizes to take what steps that appear to be needed to provide some solutions.

Right now, congressional intent is focusing on a tax cut, which would please almost everyone. Beyond that, it remains to be seen whether Congress will help shape efforts for progress on the energy front.

The speech contest, this year burdened U.S. taxpayers. But as the world has learned, there can be even greater danger in becoming too dependent on an outside source of energy supply.

Ford, to his credit, is telling Americans there isn't any quick, easy way to solve this nation's energy problems. And he is

What would happen, for example, if as this nation starts moving toward the targets set by Ford, the oil exporting nations should decide to reduce the price of crude oil substantially for an indefinite period?

Any such prospect, however remote, creates uncertainty among investors. There simply isn't any way, on a cost basis alone, that energy from coal or shale or other sources can compete with Middle East oil.

A U.S. floor on domestic energy prices would diminish such worries by investors.

There are some obvious dangers to this approach. An obvious one is that it might make some energy operations too profitable. This could perhaps be offset by an excess profits tax if necessary.

Another possible danger is that a price guarantee would encourage wasteful, uneconomic operations and thereby further burden U.S. taxpayers.

(Continued From Page 1D) drilling and well conversion to boost recovery from Sacatosa field in Maverick County, Southwest Texas. And Chevron Oil Co. has resumed drilling in giant Kelly-Snyder field of Scurry County, West Texas.

Continental says its big infill program had been planned for some time. But higher oil prices assure that the project will be an economic success.

Several other companies, including Amoco Production Co., Cities Service Oil Co. and Texaco Inc., are stepping up their efforts to test tertiary recovery techniques aimed at squeezing the maximum amount of oil from old fields.

Marathon Oil Co., meantime, is eyeing commercial application of its Maraflood micellar solution process in Pennsylvanian sands of the Illinois Basin.

A decision to proceed with commercial tertiary recovery projects rests entirely on the outlook for profits from production.

The company tentatively plans an outlay of $125 million to $130 million over the next five years if it goes ahead with commercial projects near its Robinson, Ill., refinery.

Among other enhanced recovery operations, Standard Oil Co. of California has started or scheduled 12 projects in California for 1974-75.

The 12, four probably are a direct result of higher crude prices, the company says. The other eight probably would have been undertaken anyway, but their timing may well have been accelerated by higher prices for crude oil.

AUSTIN NOTEBOOK—

Inflation Cuts Two Ways

By STUART LONG
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Inflation giveth, and inflation taketh away. That not-quite-Biblical rule became quite obvious as the Texas Legislature set about its business, which is the business of all Texans for the next two years.

Comptroller Bob Bullock was able to announce that the legislature will be able to spend $1.4 billion more during the two years starting next Sept. 1 than it is spending during the current two years.

A great deal of that surplus is due to inflation, which has kicked the receipts from the many state sales taxes as well as the price of oil and gas.

But that same inflation has done to state workers and public schools just what it has done to everybody else.

So, Gov. Dolph Briscoe has laid before the legislature emergency proposals to meet inflationary impacts which will use up $372 million of that surplus.

One item familiar to all homeowners is the $1,196,000 needed to pay the state's water, lights and gas bills for the balance of this year.

Pay raises for state employees will come to $93 million, just for the period from Feb. 1 to Aug. 31.

Improved retirement benefits for retired school teachers will come to $102 million, and for retired state employees to $92 million.

Then there is the $80 million promised by Gov. Briscoe to help school districts buy gasoline and paper towels and all the other things it takes to run a school.

And $2 million to pay workmen's compensation claims to injured state workers, who just got the right private employees have had since 1913 to workmen's compensation insurance.

Added up, it cuts the anticipated budget surplus down to $1 billion, if you do not take into account the fact that another $350 million is, in effect, already spent because of salary schedules for school teachers already in the law.

So, it is easy to see why several experienced legislators, commenting on Gov. Briscoe's wide-ranging state of the state message, wondered where all the money was coming from.

Most people probably have had that feeling on a trip to the supermarket, even with a recently fattened paycheck.

The money just slips away like a green-backed frog you picked up on a creek bank.

One of Briscoe's proposals which seems certain to get approval is the tax-cut idea of taking the 4 per cent sales tax off commercial and residential water, light and gas bills.

It sounds real nice in these days of added "fuel charges" on the electric bills. Industrial utilities were already exempt.

But that will whittle another $62 million off the money the legislature has to spend. It seems certain to pass, and some are suggesting that the 1 per cent city sales tax should also be taken off those necessities.

Actually, you can be certain that whatever new spending is done by this session of the legislature, it will be trimmed to the point where it does not cause new taxes. Nor will it cause new taxes two years from now.

The reason for that conclusion is the make-up of the leaders of this session, from Gov. Briscoe, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and House Speaker Bill Clayton on down. They are fiscal conservatives, as are the decision-makers on the Senate Finance and House Appropriations committees.

And finally, the pay-as-you-go provision in the Texas Constitution gives further assurance. If the money is not in sight, the constitution requires Bullock to "veto" the appropriations bill.

And it takes four-fifths majority in both houses to override that "veto."

You'll never get four-fifths of either house to agree on anything, including the time of day.

That will be demonstrated when they vote on doing away with Daylight Saving Time.

Midlander Hurt In Odessa Crash

ODESSA — Shirley Ireland, 42, was injured in a two-vehicle accident Friday morning at the Interstate 20 and U.S. 80 overpass near East Loop 338.

She is listed in good condition in Medical Center Hospital with a back injury.

The Midland woman was driving a 1973 car that was in collision with a 1972 pickup truck being driven by Normie Thomas of Odessa, a Texas highway patrolman said.

Langdon Criticizes Eastern States For Banning Offshore Oil Drilling

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Jim Langdon, head of the powerful Texas Railroad Commission, this weekend sharply criticized eastern coastal states which will not permit drilling for oil and gas off their shores.

Langdon, whose commission oversees oil and gas production in Texas, said in an interview that "if the nation ever hopes to meet its overall energy need it will take a total effort from everyone involved."

His attack was spurred by a letter he had received from government officials in Rhode Island wanting to know the environmental damage done to Texas by oil drilling and refining.

Langdon was here to attend the El Paso Bar Association's 73rd Legal Institute and banquet Saturday.

"I believe this burden these states are shunning is not as bad as they think it is," said Langdon. "I answered their letter by telling them that we fair share from the states that do," said Langdon.

"And the thing that is most upsetting is that these same states have continually opposed the production of this energy within their own boundaries. A number of companies have wanted to drill and locate refineries in their state but have been continually refused by the cities, counties and states."

Langdon said there were "very good" offshore oil deposits along the New England coast but that the states apparently feel it would be too much of an environmental risk to allow drilling and refining.

Langdon was here to attend the El Paso Bar Association's 73rd Legal Institute and banquet Saturday.

"I believe this burden these states are shunning is not as bad as they think it is," said Langdon. "I answered their letter by telling them that we closely monitor all phases of oil production, and all the oilmen are extremely careful and proven operators. I said it was possible to drill and refine oil with little environment disruption."

"I also told them they should pitch in and join the battle," Langdon said. "Texas has become an economic oasis since the energy shortage."

"We have an oil-based economy in Texas, and if that base is pulled out from under us it will hurt tremendously," said Langdon. "One of the problems facing us right now is holding on to the energy to keep up the economy."

General Telephone can now either set the rates accordingly or take the city to court. Further discussion of the matter is expected Feb. 14.

In other business, the city approved purchase of two automatic sanitation lifts for Andrews' containerized garbage program at a total cost of $8,000.

It was also decided that the city will have a recognition dinner Jan. 30, at 7 p.m. in the tank "boiled over onto a butane fired heating unit," which is also located on the truck.

Approximately 100 barrels of petroleum were consumed in the blaze.

Tank Battery, Oil Truck Fire Burns Three Hours

A raging oil truck and tank battery fire required more than three hours to be extinguished by Midland firemen Friday evening.

The fire destroyed the truck, owned by the Stroud Hot Oil Service and caused heavy damage to one of three oil tanks, owned by Ram Exploration Co.

Firemen were called to the scene at the Johnson and Seales lease located south of Midland and a half mile east of FM 1213 at 7:31 p.m.

On arrival of fire units, the truck was totally engulfed in flames, with oil flowing from a four-inch suction line feeding the fire.

George Woody, fire department battalion chief, said the back portion of the truck was "glowing red" from the intense heat.

Woody said the truck had been pumping hot oil into the tank battery and adjoining pipelines in an effort to clean out paraffin buildup.

He said the fire apparently ignited when oil from the tank "boiled over onto a butane fired heating unit," which is also located on the truck.

Approximately 100 barrels of petroleum were consumed in the blaze.

Andrews Refuses 46 Per Cent Hike In Phone Rates

ANDREWS — A 46 per cent residential rate increase requested by General Telephone was refused Thursday by the Andrews City Council.

The increase, which would have amounted to a return of some $155,000, was refused in favor of a figure less than half that amount.

After two months of study by the council and an independent CPA firm, the rate of reasonable return was determined to be 7.34 per cent, or about $64,000.

General Telephone can now either set the rates accordingly or take the city to court. Further discussion of the matter is expected Feb. 14.

In other business, the city approved purchase of two automatic sanitation lifts for Andrews' containerized garbage program at a total cost of $8,000.

It was also decided that the city will have a recognition dinner Jan. 30, at 7 p.m. in the tank "boiled over onto a butane fired heating unit," which is also located on the truck.

The Live Oak Trees

"Dear V.I.P. Members:
 "Thank you for the live oak tree. We planted it very carefully. I am planting some flowers in my front yard and I pick up all the tumbleweeds and throw them away." (Signed) Dwayne.

"Dear V.I.P. Members:
 "Thank you for the trees you gave us. I planted my tree the day I got it. It is doing just fine. My dog saw it and started barking at it and hid. It didn't come out till morning. When I got it planted I showed my puppy and he almost tore it down, but I stopped him." (Signed) Lisa Perryman.

"Dear V.I.P. Members:
 "Thank you for the live oak trees. They are very pretty. And that's just what I always wanted... my own live oak tree to plant and to take care of." (Signed) Dan Carter.

The above are typical of scores of letters received by the Visual Improvement Project Committee (VIP) of the Midland Chamber of Commerce in response to its free distribution of more than 1,200 live oak saplings to third grade students in all Midland schools.

The VIP group, headed by Gordon Knox, has done a number of very fine things since its organization about a year ago, but this was one of the most meaningful yet.

The project was designed to improve Midland's tree population, as a beautification move. Students were encouraged to take the two-year old trees home for immediate planting.

Judged by the letters appearing above, the trees were planted... and are receiving excellent care and attention.

Thus, the project serves a multiple purpose, as the third-graders

Man Or Policy—Which Counts Most?

By BENJAMIN SHORE
 Copley News Service
 WASHINGTON — In his farewell to Washington after 32 years in Congress, Sen. J. William Fulbright of Arkansas suggested to political reporters that they should pay closer attention to policies than personalities.
 It is an interesting view, one that is debated continuously by journalists here.
 The face of political journalism clearly has changed in recent years. It used to be considered enough to report simply what a politician said or did; today there is the added element of why he said it or did it.
 In his illuminating book, "The Boys on the Bus," an account of how the press corps covered the 1972 presidential campaign, author Timothy Crouse, himself a reporter, attributes much of the current style to journalist Theodore White.
 With his first "Making of the President" book in 1961, White showed his colleagues that there were some fascinating and significant stories behind the visible political tactics and speeches.

assume responsibility in planting and caring for the trees, which were given names by some of the students. One or two youngsters wrote that they talked to their trees.

A lesson in home beautification also was noted. One of the students, as noted above, reported that he also had planted some flowers in his front yard and picked up the tumbleweeds. Others did likewise.

No one can say with any degree of certainty just how many, but it is safe to say that many stately live oaks will grace the Midland scene in the years ahead because of the interest and thoughtfulness of this particular chamber of commerce committee.

Knox explained that third-graders were chosen to receive the trees because a national survey revealed that this age group is very possessive of living plants and old enough to be responsible for them. The oak trees are said to be well adapted to the West Texas climate and have a long life. They will grow to a height of 30 to 40 feet.

The project was timed with the annual observance of Arbor Day in Texas. The committee plans to make this particular project an annual event.

Members of the Midland Garden Club assisted with the project. They, with members of the VIP committee merit a vote of thanks from all Midlanders for their thoughtfulness, interest and all-out effort in this regard.

Midland very well could become known in the future as the "City of Live Oaks" as a result of this particular program.

Puzzling Situation

Some one has said that representative government is a somewhat puzzling term when one realizes that most candidates are elected by the people who didn't vote!

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The senators who investigate domestic spying, if they dig deep enough, will find gossip about prominent Americans squirreled away in filing cabinets all over Washington.

Not only the FBI and the CIA but the Secret Service, National Security Agency, Internal Revenue Service and armed forces collect choice tidbits about famous people.

We have had access to these forbidden files, which are stuffed with memos, reports and clippings on citizens who have committed no crimes.

Read singly, these files seem merely another dreary example of bureaucratic excess. But examined in larger lots, they provide an intriguing case-by-case study of just how far the government has intruded into the private lives of Americans.

There is an FBI file on Gerald Ford, for example, if it hasn't been discreetly destroyed since he moved into the White House. It contains a report about a bugged conversation between two AVCO executives who on April 23, 1963, talked about how Ford, then a Michigan congressman, had intervened to help spare them from a federal investigation.

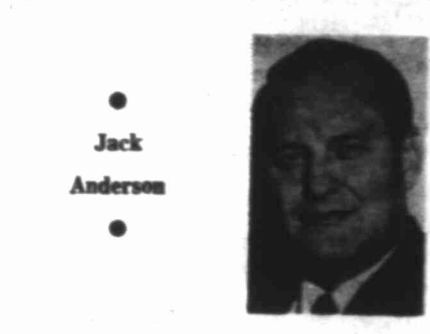

The FBI folder on Speaker Carl Albert tells about a 1963 breakfast date with lobbyist Fred Black. A notation in the file states: "WFO (Washington Field Office) will be alert for any information which would indicate Black did or did not keep his appointment with... Rep. Carl Albert."

The dossier on Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., contains surveillance reports on his son Michael and daughter Jacqueline. They came under the watchful eye of the FBI because of their association with antiwar activists.

The FBI also follows the affairs, sexual and political, of film personalities, athletes and other celebrities as avidly as the fan magazines. There is an FBI report on actor Rock Hudson's sexual adventures. Facts are on file about the private lives of Marlon Brando, Paul Newman and Zero Mostel.

The agent reporting on Jane Fonda's visit to an Indian reservation to drum up support for the Indians who took over San Quentin noted suspiciously that her hair was "disheveled." Joe Namath's passes off the football field are in the records.

Life for Eartha Kitt, according to the champion, aroused the sympathy of millions of admirers when he suffered a mental disturbance several years ago. Many Americans believe government agents are following them, and Louis developed the same paranoia. He took a punch at a man he thought was a federal agent in the upstairs lounge of a 747 on a cross-country flight. The victim, according to Joe's FBI file, was a government agent... who reported he had stayed at his post despite the blow.

The dirt that government gurnahoes pick up on people is also freely exchanged between federal offices.

FBI memos in our possession show that reports on the late agitator Saul Alinsky were forwarded routinely to the Navy, and Air Force. And as late as March, 1971, reports on black leader Ralph Abernathy were going to the Air Force, Naval Investigative Service and the Army's Military Intelligence Group.

We have written dozens of columns about the government's practice of snooping on prominent Americans. As evidence, we have obtained actual excerpts from FBI folders, Secret Service records and other government files.

We will be happy now to lay our evidence before the Select Senate Committee, which now has been established to investigate domestic spying.

We have crusaded for years to stop the government from spying on citizens who have committed no crimes and are guilty of no more than exercising their constitutional guarantees of free speech, assembly and petition. The government excesses have come perilously close to police-state methods.

'In God We Trust,' But Not Government

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Americans' trust in their government, which has been deteriorating since 1964, seems to have bottomed out in the last year.

So reports the Center for Political Studies of the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research.

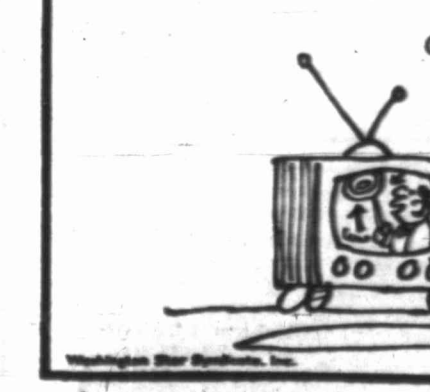

Among the Center's recent findings: —There was a slight increase in the low level of trust just after Richard Nixon resigned the presidency, but the slight spurt in trust disappeared following President Ford's pardoning of Nixon.

Clearly," says Arthur Miller of the Center, "American citizens expect the government to assist them in solving their problems—particularly economic problems." But combined with severe and prolonged economic troubles, it makes people's faith in the government's ability to handle any kind of problem just about nonexistent.

This present lack of popular confidence is preventing President Ford from being able to convince the nation that his policies will benefit the economy. Only until and if the government adopts policies that are successful in halting inflation and holding off recession, says Miller, would he expect confidence in government to begin to rise.

It seems certain that the press will not be returning to those simplistic pre-Teddy White, pre-Watergate days. The debate, rather, is over balance and fairness, the right of personal privacy vs. the public's right to know why things happen in their government.

INSIDE REPORT

Newest Dove Of All: Sen. Henry Jackson!

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, long a rugged and hoarse champion of strong national defense and this country's international commitments, has decided to oppose emergency military aid for embattled South Vietnam—a drastic change casting sober shadows on both Indochina and the senator.

Jackson's astonishing decision derives from his new premise that no further American aid can save South Vietnam, a conclusion reached long ago by dovish senators he always has opposed. That Jackson has reached agreement with them so late in the day arouses suspicion that presidential politics is the cause. Jackson does not claim South Vietnam can survive without U.S. aid but seems content with a virtual death sentence for the South Vietnamese against Hanoi's legions, well-equipped by Moscow and Peking. That puts Scoop Jackson in step with his arch-enemy and the most passionate foe of Saigon, Sen. George McGovern.

In the State Department, Jackson has been viewed as the indispensable Democratic supporter of President Ford's request for another $300 million to send desperately needed ammunition and aviation fuel to Vietnam. Chances of the Democratic Congress fulfilling U.S. commitments to Saigon were slender at best. Now they may be gone.

But apart from the abandonment of Indochina, there will be an impact on Jackson's long campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination, which even skeptics believe has become realistic. While this late conversion on Vietnam will not dim the anti-Jackson animus of the party's left wing, it will disenchant—even sicken—many old admirers. To them, it is evidence of what can happen to courageous public servants hypnotized by the beacon of the White House.

Until now, Jackson's courage on Vietnam has been unique among nationally ambitious Democrats. His support of Kennedy-Johnson intervention in Vietnam was the rule rather than the exception for Democratic senators. But while Democrats were tumbling over each other to repudiate Saigon once Republican Richard M. Nixon became President, Jackson strongly supported Vietnamization.

He did object to Nixon's use of American troops in the 1970 Cambodian incursion. But as recently as April 21, 1972, Jackson said he did not consider it "responsible" for Sen. Edmund Muskie to threaten to withdraw military aid from Vietnam. As for Nixon's bombing of Hanoi and Haiphong, he complained it came "about six years late."

The South Vietnamese army (ARVN) since has survived without American ground or air support. But even so, Jackson displayed private disenchantment about aid to Saigon. Although his own advisers until now have persuaded him not to change position, even his warmest admirers cannot deny this disenchantment is a product of a presidential campaign which has come to dominate his thoughts.

Jackson is a realistic enough politician to know that a deathbed conversion on Vietnam cannot melt the animosity of long-time anti-war Democrats. Nor has he abandoned his lifelong commitment to a strong national defense.

Nevertheless, in over four years of tenacious national campaigning, Jackson has operated in a political world which regards those who advocate arms to protect South Vietnam as lunatics. He has spent progressively less time thinking and talking national security and almost none at all on Indochina. With his heavy emphasis on the economy-energy crisis, Jackson today is not well informed on Vietnam.

In defending his forthcoming vote against the new aid request, Jackson talks about profligate weapons firing into the air by ARVN troops imitating the departed Americans. As authority, Jackson cites Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia—a junior but highly regarded member of the Armed Services Committee recently dispatched to Vietnam for a fact-finding mission by Chairman John Stennis of Mississippi.

Actually, Jackson and Nunn have discussed Vietnam only briefly. While Nunn refines comment until his Vietnam report is completed, intimates say it will support the Ford request as assuring stability of supply for Saigon. Nor is Nunn expected to charge reckless use of ammunition by government troops, who in fact are defending beleaguered positions with short arms rations imposed by congressional aid cuts.

Coming to a momentous conclusion with superficial study is wholly out of character for Jackson, whose well-earned Capitol Hill reputation stems from careful decisions based on documentation and staff work. In this case, there is no documentation and his staffers have not even been consulted. For that reason alone, some Jackson men still hope he will change his mind as a matter of conscience.

If not, he will saddle some loyal supporters. One of these—who is also a stout defender of South Vietnam's fight for survival—recently told us he cannot bear to attend receptions and dinners at the South Vietnamese embassy, so deep is his sense of Saigon's imminent betrayal by the United States. That feeling of guilt could become overpowering if Henry M. Jackson follows his present intent.

Auto Industry Layoffs Will Rise This Week To Almost 248,000

DETROIT (AP) — Layoffs in the auto industry will rise by 20,000 this week, to nearly 248,000, as the nation's car makers maintain a slow production pace to match the continued sales slump.

Despite an improvement in sales in mid-January, the industry still has more than a third of its 687,000 hourly employees off the job. Some 165,000 are on indefinite furlough.

Sharply reduced sales this model year have left dealers with a record 100-day car supply.

Some 239,000 workers—nearly half the industry's blue collar work force—have been scheduled for layoffs of varying periods during January, with furloughs in any given week from 200,000 to 230,000.

The companies are closing 18 assembly operations this week, compared with 11 last week, when 220,000 workers were off the job.

Ford Motor Co. said Friday it is recalling Monday 20,650 workers who were on temporary layoff last week. At the same time, Ford is placing another 43,450 on layoff, raising its temporary furloughs to 44,500.

The nation's No. 2 auto maker also is laying off another 1,725 hourly workers indefinitely, raising open-ended layoffs to 31,125.

Ford is closing five car operations, four truck lines and eight of its 46 manufacturing plants this week and curtailing operations at another 12 manufacturing plants.

In all, 77,875 of Ford's 177,000 hourly employees, or 44 per cent of its blue collar work force, will be off the job Monday. The layoffs do not include 8,000 workers Ford has passed from its employment rolls in the past year by not replacing employees who quit, retired or died.

Some 165,000 workers, or 20 per cent of General Motors' 370,000-member hourly force, will be off the job this week, with three GM car plants shut. GM said 6,000 workers will be on temporary layoff for the week, compared with 10,455 last week, compared with 10,455 last week, compared with 10,455 last week, compared with 10,455 last week.

More than half of Chrysler's 117,000 workers are scheduled for layoff this week, when the firm will have three car plants down.

Prior to 1880, Lum Medlin, a lone hunter, had settled in this area. Early in 1880, E. N. Garrett arrived with a herd of sheep destined for market. He liked what he saw and decided to stay. His family in California soon joined him. A box car the railroad had set off served as a depot, post office and general store. On February 2, 1885 Midland County was created; 26 days later the City of Midland was born.                  The old, the middle-aged and the young enterprises of Midland have contributed immeasurably to the progress, pride and prosperity of our city. # NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY A NEW CAR!

Don't be misled
by higher prices!!

FACT:

Back in the "good old days," 1954 for example, the average buyer spent 5.1 months of his income to pay for a standard size car.

Today the same comparable car takes only 4.4 months' pay and the buyer gets a lot more automobile in the bargain.

Inflation has increased the value of your present car. It's worth more in trade than you might think. Get a FREE appraisal from any of the value-conscious association dealers.

FIAT

Are you happy at the gas station?
And miserable everywhere else?

The question that has swept America is "What kind of mileage d'ya get?" In response, car manufacturers have come out with a rash of small cars overnight. Of course, it's not easy to build a small car overnight.

At Fiat, we've been building small cars for 70 years. The Fiat 124 has more leg room than a Lincoln Continental, a Cadillac Eldorado and a Chrysler Imperial.*

The 124 coupe has more headroom than a Mercedes-Benz 450 and a Rolls Royce.*

The Fiat 124 has twice as much trunk space as the Volkswagen.*

In all, the Fiat 124 gives you something hard to find in a small car: more mileage without less everything else.

Delivery Of 600 Live Oak Trees Completes Program

Delivery of 200 trees to third graders at Henderson, Lamar and Travis schools Friday completed delivery of about 600 live oak seedlings to Midland's third graders.

The trees, with the first delivery Jan. 17, were made available through the Visual Improvement Project Committee of the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

Friday's delivery was under the supervision of Mrs. Paul Karcher, VIP Committee member; Mrs. Henrie Mast of the Midland Garden Club, and Los Pinos Nursery employees.

And, judging from the letters received by the VIP Committee, the trees really made a hit with the youngsters.

"I loved my tree I loved it so much I had to plant it right there every morning I go out and look at it. My dog always sits by it he never gets on the tree. I water on the right time. I name it Herby the love tree. one third-grader wrote.

Another student reported: "I named her Charli. Should you fertilize her when she grows up?"

Still another student wrote: "I plant it on the side of my car. So when it grows up it will make shade for my car."

One student, either an optimist or a green-fingered gardener, wrote to let the committee know that "I look at it every day and it has grown a little."

VIP Committee chairman Gordon Knox indicated that this year is planned as an annual event.

Skeleton Positively Identified As Heidi's

SEATTLE (AP) — The skeleton and clothing found on a hillside here have been positively identified as those of 4-year-old Heidi Peterson, who disappeared from her front yard almost a year ago.

The remains were discovered Thursday on a bluff overlooking Portage Bay, within sight of Heidi's home.

Dr. Donald Ross, chief deputy medical examiner for King County, said Friday an examination of dental records showed the remains definitely were those of Heidi. She would have been 5 years old New Year's Day.

Ross said the cause of death hasn't been determined.

Soon after Heidi's disappearance last February, posters with her photograph appeared throughout the city. Community involvement in the search attracted national attention and thousands of posters asking "Where is Heidi?" were distributed throughout the nation.

For Heidi's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Peterson, the identification at least meant an end to their uncertainty.

"Indecision is a terrible thing to live with for so long," Peterson said. "On the other hand, we had a year of hope."

The body was discovered in an area which police said had been searched several times.

"There is no doubt in my mind that she was not there at the time of the searches," Peterson said. "I believe that the body was put on that hill within the last few months, maybe the last few weeks."

Police said they will pursue that possibility in continuing their investigation.

Among the volunteer recruits will be members of the Midland Jayceettes who will deliver 150 packets to area captains in the march.

CHICAGO (AP) — Chairman and viewpoints of the Republican party.

"It will be a kind of magnanimous plan Saturday for a television campaign to rebuild the shattered perception of the public has of the Republican party."

Winding up a meeting of GOP state chairmen who pledged to "stop the tide of the Democrats," Mrs. Smith said that work for a month, 30-minute television shows beginning in May.

She also announced that a registration drive will be held at every level during the first three weeks of November "to demonstrate that we are in touch and have the public's concern in a non-election year."

Democrats In Congress Say They Seek Cooperation With Ford On Oil Tax Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill to delay part of President Ford's energy program is advancing in Congress, but Democrats handling the measure insist they are seeking cooperation, not confrontation, with the President.

"I think we have made ourselves clear today that we want to cooperate with the President, we want to rebuild that marriage that he talked about so early," Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., said Friday.

Gibbons spoke shortly after the House Ways and Means Committee approved legislation linking a delay in the oil tariff increases ordered by Ford with an increase in the debt ceiling. Ford needs to pay for his new economic proposals.

"All that we in the Congress are doing is asking to give the Congress a reasonable amount of time to try to improve the President's proposed energy package so that it will not be so discriminatory against some parts of the country and so that it will not be so inflationary," Gibbons added.

The committee voted 15 to 14 to tie together the two provisions. One would increase the federal debt limit to a record $21 billion through June 30 and the other would block for 90 days the President's three-step oil import tariff boost.

The committee then approved the complete package, 19 to 15, and began making plans to get the legislation to the House for action by late this week or early the following week. Rep. Herman T. Schneebeli, R-Pa., the panel's senior GOP member, said he is sure Ford will veto the bill if Congress passes it.

Committee Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., said Congress "by taking this action is clearly under obligation to develop an energy package of our own. We must, just as rapidly as possible, develop a sound energy policy for the nation and get it enacted into law."

The administration estimates the federal debt will reach $45 billion by Feb. 28. It has asked for the higher ceiling so that it can go on borrowing money.

On Feb. 1, under Ford's proclamaion, a special $1-per-barrel tariff will be levied on foreign oil and petroleum products, with additional $1 monthly surcharges until $3 becomes the level April 1. The President said this would help cut energy consumption by hiking petroleum prices.

Request Okay Sought

Ford said his action would be rescinded if Congress approves his broader legislative request for a $2-per-barrel levy covering all oil from home and abroad. Congressional critics of Ford's action claim it will take time to write sound legislation in this complex energy field.

Green maintained Ford "could have come to us and said, 'Here is an idea.' He has done that with virtually every other part of his program. But this one he insisted had to go into effect without giving us a chance to comment."
